NUMBER 32

Saw Mill Destroyed By Fire

FLYING EMBERS CAUSE LOSS OF ST. JOSEPH CATHOLIC CONVENT

In a spectacular blaze early Sunday afternoon the East Jordan Lumber Co's Mill B saw mill — known as the "Red Mill" — was destroyed by fire together with considerable valuable machinery.

A strong north-west wind, veering to west, was blowing and flying embers caused roof fires on a number of structures on the terraces above the mill. The St. Joseph Convent on Second St., together with some furnishings, was badly damaged, the roof practically caving in. This building was being used most months of the year for the St. Joseph Church weekly service. This was the first catholic church building in East Jordan. It was erected some 45 to 50 years ago on the present site of the Jos. Nemezel residence. The land was sold and the building moved to between the present church and school. In 1910 it was moved to its present location, and brick veneered. Some insurance was carried on the building.

THE "RED" MILL

Built on the shores of the South Arm of Pine Lake — now Lake Charlevoix — in 1879, Mill B was for years the scene of activity when the timber industry ruled supreme in Northern Michigan. In 1892 the mill got its first serious setback when in a boiler explosion five men were killed and the structure and machinery considerably damaged.

It was immediately repaired and operated until March, 1913, when it was destroyed by fire together with valuable machinery. Rebuilt and new machinery installed it was operated each season until 1928 when the timber supply ceased.

Although private property, the site has been a popular place for fishing off the docks, and it is thought the blaze was started by young men smoking on the premises.

Loss is estimated at upwards of $10,000 on building and contents with no insurance.

Monday the blaze, although levelled to the ground, was still burning in spots and a mother rabbit was observed hopping around among the hot embers looking for her lost brood.

Dr. George Butterick To Preach Here Next Sunday

Dr. George Butterick, pastor of the Madison Avenue Church, of New York City, preaches in the East Jordan Presbyterian Church next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

To facilitate the seating of the congregation, Sunday School will close promptly at 10:30, and the doors will be open for the Church service at that time. Those attending Sunday School are urged to be punctual.

This is the tenth summer that Dr. Butterick has preached in East Jordan. The congregations that greet him each summer are evidence that East Jordan people appreciate his generous courtesy in giving us one Sunday of his summer vacation.

Prof. J. W. Thompson, of Knox College, will officiate at the organ; and Miss Edyth Thompson, of Wilson College will sing.

Ira H. Butterfield Memorial Grain Growing Contest Announced

Complete details and application blanks announcing the Ira H. Butterfield grain growing contest to be held at the Michigan State Fair at Detroit have been received by County Agent, Melencamp. Any farmer having a promising field of wheat, oats or barley of five acres or more is eligible for entry. Fields do not need to be certified or grown from certified seed.

The minimum size of the field must be five acres, but the entire field irrespective of acreage must be entered. A five acre plot from a larger field cannot be entered. All that is required of a farmer is a statement of the size of field on certificate, statement of total bushels threshed on certificate, verification of certificate by two disinterested parties, sending of the certificate to the Farm Crops Department at Michigan State College before August 28, 1935, and the sending of a peck sample of grain from the field to the Agricultural Bldg. at the Michigan State Fair, August 30, 1935.

In each one of three different classes there are twenty awards with the first premium being $15.00, second premium $12.00, and the third and fourth $10.00. It is hoped that some of the better fields of grain in this county be entered in the state contest. Application blanks and further details available at the county agent's office.

Musical Comedy Progressing Rapidly

The musical comedy "Listen To Me", which will be presented in the High School Auditorium on Monday and Tuesday, August 12th and 13th, has been progressing smoothly under the direction of Miss Constance McWethy. The St. Joseph's Parish, which is sponsoring the show, reports that from local indications it is expected to prove one of the most popular staged here for some time. The following committees have been selected and the entire parish is making every effort to make the show successful, both from a financial and a dramatic standpoint: Tickets, Joseph Bugai, chairman, Mrs. Edward Strehl, Mrs. Margaret Davis, Miss Marion Kraemer, Mrs. Winifred Hite, Mrs. Agnes Hegerberg, Miss Bernice Bashaw, Mrs. Albert Lenosky, and Mrs. Joseph Kenny; Advertising, Mrs. William Swoboda, chairman, Mrs. Gus Muma, Mrs. A. J. Hite, Miss Ann Klevinski; Costumes, Mrs. John Dolzel; Properties, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Quinn; Posters, Mrs. Nellie Sweet, Agnes Votruba, and Marcella Muma.

There has been a great deal of interest in "Listen To Me" shown by the townspeople, and a number of questions regarding its nature. It is not a musical revue, as some believe, for it does not consist of a series of sketches, and musical numbers. Rather it is a humorous farce comedy, with a clever plot and interpolated musical numbers. There is comedy to delight the ear, and dancing and costumes to delight the eye. Many have asked if it contains comedy which would appeal to children. The answer is that in the many towns where "Listen To Me" has been staged since its appearance eighteen months ago, children have formed no small part of the audience. The comedy is one that appeals to all ages.

The following cast members have been practicing faithfully to insure a good performance: Willard St. Charles and Vernil LaPeer, who will be remembered for their work in "The World's All Right", presented in East Jordan a year ago; Marcella Muma and Cyril Dolzel, who play the leads; Mrs. Mabel Carson, Miss Pauline Clark, and Roderick Muma, who play guests in the Shelton Hotel, Virginia Bartlett and James Lilak, who appear as a maid and bellhop, and Preston Kenny, the lawyer. In addition to these principals a large singing chorus, and twenty dancing girls add to the entertainment.

Between the two acts of the show, there will be twenty minutes of varied specialties.

The curtain will rise promptly at 8:15 for both performances.

Michigan Beekeepers Ass'n To Hold Summer Meeting at East Jordan

The Michigan Beekeepers Association will again have their annual meeting at East Jordan. This meeting will attract a large attendance of beekeepers from Northern Michigan and should be well attended by Local beekeepers. All meetings will be held at the East Jordan High School on August 10th with a big banquet that evening as one of the big features. Ira Bartlett of East Jordan is in charge of the local arrangements and assures everyone a most enjoyable time. The banquet is to be held at the Russell House.

Among the speakers are M. J. Deyell, Assistant Editor, Gleanings in Bee Culture, Medina, Ohio; Kenneth Hawkins, Sales Manager, G. B. Lewis Co., Matertown, Wis.; Chas. Reese, State Apiarist, Columbus, Ohio; D. P. Barrett, State Apiarist Inspector, Lansing, Mich.; and R. H. Keltz, East Lansing, Mich.

This session will be filled with useful and timely suggestions relative to successful beekeeping. Every beekeeper in Charlevoix County should be sure to attend the summer meeting. Keep Saturday, August 10th in mind and enjoy the contacts with other beekeepers throughout the state.

Will Rogers, James Cagney and Jackie Cooper In Temple Shows

The Temple Theatre of East Jordan is announcing in this issue a week of very unusual entertainment, every program of which presents a Special production of the highest calibre. And a glance at the following schedule, we're sure you'll agree, bears us out: Thur-Fri-Sat.; James Cagney and Ann Dvorak in the sensational "G Men."

Sun-Mon-Tues.: Will Rogers and an all-star cast in "Doubting Thomas."

Wed-Thur.: (Family Nites) Jackie Cooper and Mary Tator in "Dinky." By the way, it looks like we'll have to speak to Mr. Drew about this — with all the fine shows playing at the Temple this summer we are getting behind with our home-work!

It takes many years to grow a tree. And then a fool comes along with a cigarette.

Central Lake Homecoming

NEXT WEEK — AUG. 15 - 16 - 17. OX-PARADE TO BE A FEATURE

Business men and residents are working hard to make the approaching homecoming, Aug. 15, 16, 17, the biggest and most spectacular show ever to be staged in Central Lake.

The backdrop of the stage includes a scenery of sincere hospitality and friendship that may be viewed by townsmen, former residents and visitors alike. The recent friendship letter chain circulated more than 2000 invitations; today, the mail bags are jammed with replies from receivers informing that their presence may be expected. Across the portals of the town flashes the homecoming slogan, "Our Latchstring Is Out To You."

The main event will be the ox-team parade, Saturday afternoon. Mr. Box in charge has been promised twenty teams from old-time teamsters in Antrim County. The night preceding the parade, the teams will be raked in the tourist camp south of the bridge to be viewed by the many spectators. News reel companies have been notified, and throughout the country may be flashed views of these beasts of labor as they snap into action.

To project thoughts into the future and not into the past, the Kiddy Parade, directed by Mrs. Grant Mudge, has been planned for Saturday evening.

Among other interesting features to be included a carnival with several free acts and a balloon ascension; the former, each afternoon and evening, the latter, each evening. Two airplanes will stand by to take riders into the air to view the district's countryside. To this may be added the dances on Thursday and Saturday evenings in the high school auditorium, preceded by a band concert on the village green. East Jordan's band will play Thursday and Saturday evenings, the "Kalkaskians" Friday evening, and "Speed" Watson's orchestra of Traverse City will furnish the dance music.

The planned athletic events and boat races have aroused a strong spirit of rivalry among the young folks, which is further fanned into flame by the offer of money and merchandise prizes. The field events with Claude Snarey in charge are scheduled for Friday afternoon, and the boat and swimming races, Saturday morning. The horseshoe and tennis tournaments are under way; the finals for the former will be played Friday morning, for the latter, Saturday afternoon.

During the two baseball games, one between the East Jordan Independents and a neighboring team on Saturday afternoon, the other between the Atwood Boys and "Tubby" Washburn's "Heathens," a local team. On Friday afternoon, the scores and the outstanding plays of the National and American League games will be broadcast as received over the radio.

However, the greatest contest of all, the one that holds the greatest interest, will end at 9:00, Thursday evening, when Harry Alderman, the chairman of the homecoming committee, places the crown of a hard-fought victory upon the head of the most popular girl in Antrim County.

Tri-County Fair At Petoskey Grounds Better Than Ever

Aug. 27 to 30 inclusive have been named as the dates for the Tri-County Fair to be held at Petoskey. Fair Grounds, added classes of competition have been announced, in addition to all those that prizes were awarded last year, space for concessions is nearly all taken according to W. C. Bannister, secretary. Baseball games, rides, pulling contests, CCC track meet, 5 camps, Friday, and many other features have been planned and Col. A. L. Gatewood has promised the Tri-County Fair officials that he will bring his show here intact from the Escanaba State Fair, and some of the best Western Stars in the business will be on hand, among them Dugan Smith, World's Champion Bronc Rider and winner of the 1934 London Show, Toots Ayers another champion of calf and steer roping division, and that celebrated rodeo clown "Sy" Perkins.

The Colonel will bring the show to Petoskey in four 70-ft. baggage cars. Stock includes steers, bucking horses, and educated horses.

There will be special daily features in connection with the Rodeo, with other stars to be announced.

City Tax Notice

Time for paying taxes has been extended to Sept. 1st, after which date 2% penalty will be added.

Win Awards At Club Camp

SIX MEMBERS OF 4-H CLUB GET TRIPS TO STATE FAIR

Friends of 4-H Club work in this county can well be proud of the splendid record made by the large delegation who enjoyed the Club Camp held at Gaylord last week. During the week approximately 50 Club members and Leaders enjoyed the camp. Of this number 27 spent the entire week, and the balance from one to two days.

After having been in the finals in the health contest for two years, Gwendon Hott of East Jordan came through with flying colors. He will represent Northern Michigan in the state contest to be held in connection with the State Fair. Also he was runner up in the achievement contest. Miss Lorena Brinnall repeated her ability in canning judging contest, by again winning a trip to Detroit. Her sister Irene had the highest score in the contest but was unable to receive the trip on account of her age. Not to be outdone, Eda Zipp and Bethel Echeisen of Bay Shore came to the front in the demonstration contest and will represent this county at the state contest. This is the first year either have participated in the demonstration contest, which makes the award that much more commendable. In the crops judging contest we will be represented by Einer Olstrom and Wilbur MacDonald of East Jordan. Einer had the highest score in the entire contest.

Additional honors are expected to come to this county when the six fine 4-H Club members compete at the Michigan State Fair next month. They have been outstanding in their accomplishments and activities and are truly representative of 4-H Club work in this county. Mrs. Mamie Straw of Charlevoix acted as the girls club leader during the week, and Melvin Sommerville of Boyne City in a like capacity for the boys. Watch the papers for further announcements regarding the outcome of the contest at Detroit.

Surviving besides the father are one brother, James of Mancelona, and two sisters, Edith of Detroit, and Bonny of East Jordan.

"Treated Like Cattle" Cry of Relief Settlers

Protests that federal emergency relief settlers in the Matanuska Valley were "treated like cattle" reached Representative Engel, Michigan Republican, at Washington from the far-off Alaska colony this week.

Of sixteen Michigan families replying to a questionnaire following revelations of widespread discontent among the colonists, ten expressed bitter disappointment and a longing to return home.

Mrs. Walter Anderson of Kenton, Mich., writing of her neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. George Campbell, said their baby had died without medical care. Her letter said:

"Their baby was buried here at Palmer, Sunday, and their oldest boy is in critical condition in the hospital at Anchorage. The family had no medical attention whatever until the baby passed away."

Seven other families protested that medical facilities were inadequate; ten reported cases of scarlet fever, measles, mumps and other ailments, and eleven charged they were gouged at the government commissary.

One farmer said the soil was a volcanic ash that stayed frozen through June and "blew away like flour" when tilled.

Collecting Delinquent Taxes

MICHIGAN'S DRIVE COMMENCING TO SHOW RESULTS

Payments of delinquent property taxes have already started to roll into the County Treasurer's office in the first week of the State's "big push" to reduce the back tax burden under which state, county and local governments are staggering.

Gov. Fitzgerald started off the campaign with the request that every Michigan taxpayer take part in the effort to put governmental finances back on a sound footing.

"The Legislature has provided the means; the State is doing its utmost to present the facts. The rest is up to the taxpayer," Fitzgerald declared. "He can save his home, and save from 27 to more than 45 per cent in interest and penalties. Most important of all he can get a fresh start in new security freed from the devilish worry over debt and the fear of losing his home.

Three reminders to taxpayers are being stressed in the campaign:

1. All penalties and interest on taxes for 1932 and prior years will be waived provided the original amount of the tax shall be paid on or before September 1, 1935.

2. Taxes for 1932 and prior years can be paid in annual installments over a period of up to ten years, starting September 1, 1935, with only a four per cent interest charge on delinquent balances.

3. Regular taxes for 1933 and 1934 may be paid without interest or penalties before November 1, 1935, a four per cent collection charge being added.

The provisions apply to state, county, municipal, village, township and school taxes, as well as most city taxes. Delinquent taxes for all years except 1934 not paid in accordance with these provisions must be offered for sale in May, 1936, by the Auditor General.

The drive is being directed by Auditor-General John J. O'Hara who has arranged to have County Treasurers send him weekly reports on the results of the drive in every county.

Public Schools here will be aided by payment of back taxes, according to Dr. Eugene B. Elliot, State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

"About one quarter of the taxes collected will go to public schools," Elliot said. "Some of the money will be available for current expense but the larger share will go to meet default debt service charges, unpaid teachers' salaries and other unpaid bills accumulated during the depression. Efforts of school boards to meet these unpaid obligations have been a constant threat against adequate provision for schools."

"Better educational opportunities for children will be the natural result if boards meet their outstanding debt through the medium of delinquent tax collections. I urge every taxpayer interested in the welfare of his children to make every effort to pay overdue taxes now."

Touring Bureau Set up by S. O. to Serve 13 States

Expecting motor travel, heretofore retarded by the prolonged wet season, to approach if not established new record highs for the rest of the summer, Standard Oil Company has opened at 910 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago, a high-g geared touring bureau for promptly furnishing motorists throughout its thirteen states free, accurate, and detailed information on motor trips to any part of the North American continent traversed by passable roads.

All company stations are now supplied with form postage-paid cards addressed to the bureau upon which any motorist may quickly check the information desired. The bureau acknowledges the cards a few hours after their receipt, simultaneously supplying the requested information in all cases where it is immediately available. Answers to unusual requests are only slightly delayed to allow for the necessary research and compilation of material.

To prevent mistakes, the service man nearest the motorist's residence is notified by the bureau that the information has been mailed, and he makes a personal call to check whether any further information, maps, and routings are needed by the tourist.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Statesmen in Geneva Struggle to Prevent Italo-Ethiopian War — Progress of the New Deal Measures in Congress.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

CAPT. ANTHONY EDEN, British minister for League of Nations affairs, was exceedingly busy in Geneva trying to find a way to avert the war between Italy and Ethiopia. He was aided and abetted by Premier Laval of France and together they evolved a plan for procedure by the league council which appeared promising, until it was communicated to Premier Mussolini. Then Baron Aloisi, Italian delegate, announced the Eden-Laval formula was "entirely unacceptable." However, hope was not abandoned for there was a chance that modifications could be made that would satisfy the demands of the Italians.

Anthony Eden

Unofficially, it was said the British-French formula dealt with these points:

1. Conciliation and arbitration is to continue.
 2. Neither Italy nor Ethiopia is to resort to war measures in the meantime.
 3. Appointment of a fifth arbitrator to the deadlocked Italo-Ethiopian conciliation commission.
 4. Signatories of the 1906 treaty—Great Britain, France, and Italy—will lend their good offices to obtain a general broad solution of the conflict.
- Italy was expected to protest against time limits fixed in the draft of the projected peace formula.
- One deadline was set for September 1, by which time the arbitrators on the Italo-Ethiopian conciliation commission, who would resume their work, would be required to report to the league council.
- Another time limit was set for September 4, when the three powers and Ethiopia would be required to report their findings to the league council.
- In any event the council would be scheduled to meet September 4.
- One important concession was made to Italy in the formula. It was agreed that the ownership of Ualual, scene of the frontier conflict involved, should not be discussed. The Ethiopian contention has been that responsibility for the border clash could not be established without the ownership of the locality being first determined.
- Emperor Haile Selassie met his chiefs in council at Addis Ababa and they told him it might be now too late to prevent war for their tens of thousands of fighters were eager for hostilities to begin and could hardly be restrained. The emperor, however, sought to hold the chiefs back. At the same time he issued another defiant note informing the world that Ethiopia never would accept an Italian or other mandate, adding: "No amount of prosperity under foreign domination would compensate for the loss of independence."
- Mussolini seized control of Italy's metal and fuel imports for use in the expected war, and several thousand more soldiers and workmen sailed for Africa.

LEAD by George Huddleston of Alabama, the members of the house who opposed the "death sentence" in the utilities bill scored another victory over the supporters of that plan of the New Dealers. Sam Rayburn's motion that the house agree to the senate action on the bill was defeated, 210 to 155. Rayburn argued, pleaded and threatened, but to no avail. He warned the representatives that those who voted against his motion would be incurring the wrath of the administration, and at the last moment had read testimony before the senate utility committee to the effect that a New Jersey man had suggested the utilities companies start a whispering campaign regarding the sanity of the New Deal leaders. Still the big majority in the house insisted on rejecting the Rayburn motion.

Then the house, by a vote of 183 to 172, adopted a resolution which virtually called for the exclusion of Ben Cohen, administration lobbyist, from future conferences on the bill.

DEMOCRATIC congressmen started the week briskly determined to push through the President's "soak the rich" tax bill at this session. Opposing them with equal determination were a number of the hardest fighting Republicans who insist that consideration of taxation be postponed until next winter and that meantime the question be studied carefully in connection with the budget for the next fiscal year. These Republicans are urgently calling for an early adjournment of congress. Senator Hastings of Delaware has introduced a resolution setting August 10 as the day for quitting and was trying to have it brought up for consideration before passage of the tax measure.

Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, often mentioned as a Presidential possibility, also demanded postponement of the tax legislation until January, and he gave out a statement denouncing the administration's plan as a "sterile political gesture" which would raise "only a little extra pocket change" and declared that "we chatter of taxes in millions to offset known deficits in billions."

"The pending tax bill, as it is being developed," said Senator Vandenberg, "will not produce appreciable revenue for Uncle Sam. It will not pay the President's deficit even for the period while the bill is under consideration. As a contribution to the public credit, it is as grim a hoax as was ever perpetrated on the country. As a 'distributor of wealth' it is a mere vagrant flirtation with this left wing idea."

Nevertheless, it appeared probable that the tax measure would be enacted before adjournment, for the administration leaders had promised this to Senator La Follette and other "liberals," and besides that, they have no desire to pass a taxation bill in a Presidential election year. As produced by the house ways and means committee after great travail the measure embodies an 87 per cent confiscation of large fortunes and increased levies on the rich which would produce perhaps $250,000,000 of additional annual revenue.

CONGRESS has passed and the President has signed a bill which assures promotion in the near future for about 5,000 army officers. It accelerates the advancement of commissioned officers below the grade of colonel and takes effect September 1.

The act increases the number of colonels by 158, the number of lieutenant colonels by 364, and the number of majors by 890. More than 1,000 second lieutenants will be advanced immediately to the rank of first lieutenant and 1,769 first lieutenants will become captains. In all, 4,918 officers will receive immediate promotion.

SENATE and house committees investigating the activities of lobbyists went their separate ways, neither thinking very well of what the other was doing. Senator Black's quiz occupied itself much with the doing of representatives of the Associated Gas and Electric corporation. An executive order from the White House directed the secretary of the treasury to make available to the senate committee all incomes, excess profit, and capital stock tax returns to the extent necessary in the investigation with the so-called "holding company bill" or any other matter or proposal affecting legislation. Simultaneously President Roosevelt approved a new treasury regulation authorizing the release of this information to the committee.

Representative Patton of Texas went before the house committee again and satisfactorily explained how he had been able to buy $3,000 worth of bonds out of his savings. As to the cigar box he carried away from the hotel room of John W. Carpenter, president of the Texas Power and Light corporation, it contained nothing but cigars, Patton said.

"The fact is, you have been done a very great wrong," commented Representative E. E. Cox of Georgia.

SENATOR GLASS scored perhaps the greatest victory in his long public career when the senate, without a record vote, passed his draft of the 1935 banking act, rejecting the central bank features urged by Gov. Marriner S. Eccles of the federal reserve board and favored by the administration. The doughty Virginian, who was once secretary of the treasury, had fought desperately against the Eccles scheme and his triumph was decisive. There was no demand for a roll call on the final vote, for the fate met by the proposers of various amendments showed this procedure would be futile. Senator La Follette sought to strike out a provision permitting commercial banks to underwrite securities and his proposal was beaten, 59 to 22. Senator Gerald Nye of North Dakota, another radical Republican, offered the central bank plan of Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, radio priest, which would set up a government owned and wholly dominated system. It was voted down, 59 to 10.

FROM the Communist Internationale in Moscow comes the word that the reds are planning a strike "of unprecedented scope" by seamen and dock workers on the Pacific coast of the United States, beginning in September. Sam Darcy of San Francisco, an American delegate told about it. He repeated what had already been said by Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist party in the United States, that Communists were responsible for the seamen's and dock workers' strikes last year.

LONG the line of providing help for "white collar workers, Harry L. Hopkins appointed four technical assistants to direct the employment of painters, musicians, writers and actors. They are: Nikolai Sokoloff for music, Halle Flanagan for the theater, Holger Cahill for painters and sculptors, and Henry G. Alseberg for writers.

PASSAGE of the bill to restore $46,000,000 of Spanish war veterans' pensions was completed when the senate accepted the house measure, the only opposing vote being cast by Senator Hastings of Delaware. This nullifies the various adjustments made by the President for the purpose of economy to carry out the party pledge of a reduction of at least 25 per cent in the cost of administration of the federal government.

FREDERICK H. GILLET, who represented Massachusetts in the house for many years, for six years was speaker, and thereafter served as United States senator, died in Springfield, Mass., at the age of eighty-three. Able, dignified and unfailingly courteous, Mr. Gillett was highly esteemed by his fellow congressmen, whatever their party affiliation. In his home town he was known as a politician who said little and did much.

JAPAN will probably have another cause for complaint against the United States. Secretary of the Navy Swanson has announced that strongly fortified naval bases will be established in the Pacific ocean upon the expiration of the naval limitation treaties on January 1, 1937. He said he considered the creation of naval stepping stones in the Pacific an inevitable result of the treaties' expiration. He revealed that the navy long has given consideration to Pacific fortification problems and that impetus had been given to the study since Japan's abrogation of the naval treaties.

Sec'y Swanson

The necessity for adequate bases in the Pacific was demonstrated forcibly last May during the annual fleet maneuvers off Hawaii and the Aleutian islands. According to reports, the navy high command in a report of the lessons learned in the exercises strongly recommended an Aleutian islands base.

The United States naval bases are few and far between as against those of Japan and Great Britain, which lie along the principal courses of English and Japanese traffic lines. The American bases are relatively obsolete.

GERMANY'S diplomatic note concerning the Communist attack on the liner Bremen in the port of New York took the form of a request that the offenders be punished but asked for no apology. Acting Secretary of State William Phillips, in his reply handed to the German charge d'affaires, Dr. Rudolf Leitner, told briefly the efforts of the New York police to guard the vessel and to subdue the mob, and pointed out that some of those who took part in the attack were arrested. The German note said the incident constituted an insult to Germany.

In his press conference President Roosevelt declined to comment on the affair. Asked about the protest of Jewish organizations against the German government's religious attitude, the President intimated that the administration's view was fully expressed by Mr. Phillips' reply in which he expressed sympathy for anyone who was denied religious liberty.

Representative Dickstein of New York told the house that no apology was due to Germany for the Bremen incident and that neither the federal nor the local authorities were to blame for it. He asserted the attack was made possible by "a selfish desire on the part of the skipper of the Bremen, who would not take police advice to halt visiting to the ship and lose the revenue of visitors."

Over in Germany the saner men in authority recognized that the Nazis were going too far and were probably headed for a fall if not restrained. Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank and economic dictator of the reich, uttered a solemn warning to the anti-Jewish and anti-Catholic forces, declaring that the great task which the German people must fulfill to comply with the wishes of Hitler cannot be fulfilled unless "all disturbances are ended, be they in the intellectual or economic field."

Among developments in the current campaign against the Steel Helms, the World War Veterans' organization, the Schutzstaffel or "black corps" formed to protect the person of Hitler, gave out a warning that it must be reckoned with in the event of a showdown against "state enemies," and asserting its complete loyalty to der Fuehrer. The proclamation closed with these ominous words:

"For many reasons it would be deeply regretted if the Steel Helms, by their own fault, should come to a dishonorable end."

MORE disasters in the Far East. Antung, an important city in Manchukuo, was engulfed by a terrific flood; a thousand persons were drowned and practically the entire population of 110,000 was rendered homeless. Formosa was ravaged by another typhoon which took many lives and did vast damage. Along the Han and Yangtze rivers the surviving Chinese were striving to keep alive and at the same time to bury the tens of thousands who died in the floods there.

NEWSPAPER men in the state museum at Lansing there is proof of an unusual freak of nature, which has to do with the life of a frog. In a glass at the museum there is a chunk of coal and fast in the coal there is a full grown frog. The frog was removed from Todd Kincaid coal mine near Corunna and the coal was removed from a shaft 84 feet underground. The frog is in excellent state of preservation and those who worked at the mine at the time recall the day that it was discovered and brought to the surface.

Lansing—Gov. Fitzgerald has asked Dr. Amy N. Stannard, nationally famed psychiatrist and a former member of the Federal Parole Board to come to Michigan and make a survey of prisons and paroles.

Ludington—Clarence Ferris, fishing on Talman Lake, found a 15-inch black bass with an eight-inch bluegill in its mouth. Both were dead, and Mr. Ferris figured it out that the bluegill had choked the bass, and that the bass had strangled the bluegill.

Lansing—The State has decided to invest $75,000 in its sales tax collection division in the hope of getting approximately $1,500,000 in return. The $75,000 will be spent to employ new workers, part of them in the Lansing office, but the majority in the field in the metropolitan area.

Lansing—Shifting of some of the important functions of the Michigan Liquor Control Commission into the hands of elective officers of the State Administration was forecast after an informal order by Gov. Fitzgerald that all liquor control enforcement be turned over to the State Police.

Grand Rapids—PWA projects totaling $90,000 have been approved by the Grand Rapids City Commission to be submitted to the new Federal agency. Building sewers, both storm and sanitary, draining and graveling 72,000 feet of roadways and cleaning bricks in the city streets make up most of the total.

Ludington—In a special session the Mason County Board of Supervisors have approved plans for the proposed County Hospital and application made for WPA funds with which to build the institution. Plans call for a $100,000 brick, two-story building with a capacity of 37 beds and provision for more if desired.

Owosso—Government statistics show that although there are 209 more farms in Shiawassee County than there were five years ago, their value has dropped more than $7,000,000. In 1930 there were 3,063 farms in the county, valued at $22,538,293. On April 1, 1935, there were 3,272 farms valued at $15,187,743.

Lansing—The Michigan Road Builders' Association has endorsed the $20,700,000 highway relief program but refused to join the Michigan Construction League in a protest to President Roosevelt against the Federal regulations which require that 90 per cent of the labor employed on the highway projects be taken from the relief rolls.

Lake Odessa—Mrs. Charles Overly was painfully injured by multiple bee stings, because she went to the rescue of a calf that had been attacked by bees. When she threw a bucket of water on the calf, the bees transferred their attack to Mrs. Overly, who plunged into a tub of water to escape them. Physicians who treated her said that the poison had affected her heart.

Chelsea—By the use of bright lights and a noise-making device, this village succeeded in routing a large flock of starlings which had taken possession of the trees along the main street. A 200-watt electric bulb was placed in each tree. In addition, chains were attached to the shaft of a small electric motor, arranged so that they struck a large tin can when the shaft revolved.

East Lansing—The Farms Crops Department of Michigan State College has warned that heavy losses to the grain harvest are in store this year because of rains and high humidity. The department predicted that there will be two kinds of losses—reduced prices because of an excess moisture content in threshed grain, and damage to the grain itself because of sprouting in shocks in the field.

Onaway—Few in Michigan realize that the State boasts 32 waterfalls, some of such beauty that they are rated high among those of the nation. All but one of the falls, the Acqueoc, near Onaway on the Onaway-Cheboygan road, are in the Upper Peninsula. Indicative of the lack of interest in Michigan's waterfalls is the fact that until recently motorists on the highway out of Onaway passed within 100 yards of the small but attractive cascade without knowing that it lay near them.

Corunna—In the state museum at Lansing there is proof of an unusual freak of nature, which has to do with the life of a frog. In a glass at the museum there is a chunk of coal and fast in the coal there is a full grown frog. The frog was removed from Todd Kincaid coal mine near Corunna and the coal was removed from a shaft 84 feet underground. The frog is in excellent state of preservation and those who worked at the mine at the time recall the day that it was discovered and brought to the surface.

Lansing—A $12,000,000 program designed to improve shore-line routes and highways to resort centers was submitted to Washington by Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner for Federal approval. Nearly 375 miles of scenic routes, including 119 miles of shore line, would be eligible for improvement in the northern part of the State and the Upper Peninsula, including US-2 and US-41 in the Upper Peninsula, and the main tourist routes of the Lower Peninsula. The proposed expenditure would be in addition to the $20,000,000 program.

Washington Digest

NATIONAL TOPICS INTERPRETED
By William Bruckart
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D.C.

Washington.—President Roosevelt has settled a controversy by the simple expedient of transferring two men from responsible positions in the Virgin Islands to jobs in Washington. He has taken Paul M. Pearson from the post of civil governor of the Virgin Islands and has made him assistant director of housing in the interior department and has transferred Federal Director Judge T. Webber Wilson from his post in the islands to the federal parole board here in Washington. Each man has accepted his new appointment and in so far as a current controversy is concerned, the book is closed.

It will be recalled that Governor Pearson and Judge Wilson long have been at loggerheads over Virgin Island affairs. The battle was bitter. It came to a head when Paul Yates, executive assistant to the governor and a former Washington correspondent, resigned his job and came back here with a bag full of charges against his former chief. The Yates allegations ranged all the way from minor charges of poor judgment to gross accusations. He succeeded in getting a senate committee investigation and it was at that time that the Pearson-Wilson feud flared so openly that administration officials here were dragged in and the whole scope of differences aired.

As a matter of fact there is every reason to believe that Governor Pearson was far from a successful executive in the islands. He frequently aroused the ire of natives and, according to testimony adduced by the senate investigation, had very little to show for the sums of money he expended in attempting to give the Virgin Islands a new lease on life. All of the information tends to establish that the islands continue to be "an effectual poorhouse" just as President Hoover described them on the occasion of a visit during his term as Chief Executive.

But Governor Pearson had his supporters in the administration. Chief among these was Secretary Ickes whose department is responsible for administration of the islands. Just why Mr. Ickes has been so enthusiastic about Governor Pearson's regime is not fully disclosed in any evidence here except that the interior secretary has certain ideas about social reform that some unkind critics refer to as pure socialism which Governor Pearson had been attempting to impose upon the island inhabitants. Governor Pearson has expended vast sums of PWA funds in the islands in his efforts to carry out the Ickes program of reform. It seems, however, that the schemes were not as practical as they might have been and so trouble started in a rather extensive fashion.

The President stayed outside of the row until in the course of the senate inquiry Senator Tydings, a Maryland Democrat and usually an anti-Roosevelt Democrat, received a letter from Mr. Ickes. Mr. Ickes accused the investigating chairman with having whitewashed a witness whose testimony was all anti-Ickes and anti-Pearson. The senator flared up in a big way at that letter. His reply is likely to become a classic in official correspondence. He did not mince his words. After voicing his general conception of the attitude exhibited by Mr. Ickes and accusing him of attempting to interfere in the investigation, Senator Tydings informed the interior secretary that he may as well attempt to run the Department of the Interior and let the senators run the senate. He used just about those words.

That was the signal for Mr. Roosevelt to take a hand. It was easy to see that a few outbursts of that kind and Mr. Ickes might have found himself in a splendid position to resign from the cabinet. So the President got the feudists into his office, singly of course, and when those conferences were over the senate investigation into the Virgin Island situation was suspended for two weeks. The transfer of Governor Pearson and Judge Wilson resulted.

One might properly inquire why all of this agitation has occurred about the Virgin Islands. They are many hundreds of miles from Washington. They lie in the Caribbean sea, considerably out of the usual pathway of ships; they are populated by about 22,000 individuals, 95 per cent of whom are negroes and may generally be described as a "backward" place.

They may have some military and naval value. That has never been fully demonstrated. But the fact remains they are possessions of the United States and if our government is to be their protector, it is responsible for a sane administration of their affairs.

The Washington fight may have had its start in the Virgin islands, but it has progressed beyond that point and is a domestic battle now. It is safe to say that for 18 years, which is the time the islands have been under United States rule, there has been a dire need for a plan of government suited to those people. Each year congress has been appropriating thousands of dollars for the island government and each year there has been miserably little in the way of improvement to show for these funds.

Almost as frequently as congress has appropriated money it has made changes in the administration methods in use there. There has never been a long term program laid out and there has been nothing whatsoever done showing the sympathy of a so-called intellectual people as we claim to be for those downtrodden masses that populate the Virgin Islands.

All of this, it seems to me, shows the woeful need for careful consideration of that situation. It seems to me equally apparent that as long as congress keeps meddling in and as long as politicians from the mainland are sent there purely on a political basis we will continue to have a pack of trouble bunched up in those Virgin Islands.

Several attempts have been made to work out a governmental system worth while but the politicians are not among those who will let plums escape. It is certain, therefore, that the Pearson-Wilson-Ickes-Tydings battle royal is an outcropping of what amounts to a festering sore in American governmental policy.

If congress continues in session past August 15, and it is now apparent that it may run to September 1, it will have been in session 225 days, some two weeks longer than the average of the so-called long sessions of congress. Prior to adoption of the "lame duck" amendment which did away with sessions of unequal length, the shorter sessions of congress averaged about 170 days. The longer terms were around 215 days before final adjournment was taken. Thus, the current session stands in a fair way to be among the list of hardy sessions.

All of which is by way of saying that the current session of congress has worn down its members both physically and mentally to an extent quite unusual. I was talking a few days ago with a veteran senator, a man who has served almost 25 years in the upper house of congress. He is known as a physically strong individual and usually lasts very well through the work that piles up before senators and representatives. I inquired of him concerning the general health of congress and his reply was:

"I regret to say we are just a bunch of debilitated old men, incapable of doing the job that is expected of us and everyone is hoping against hope that we can live through this work and this heat."

As a result of that conversation the thought came to me that here was an answer to the oft repeated declaration that members of congress fail to earn their salaries of $10,000 per year. I have observed congressional proceedings almost a score of years and it is my mature conviction that few times in that period has congress failed to earn its salt.

There is another reason why congressional sessions should not run so long and should not be carried on in the intense heat of a Washington summer. One condition nearly always has obtained near the close of a long session. As the days drag by, persons with axes to grind and individual interests to serve have a way of digging up questionable bills that theretofore had been side-tracked and assumed to be dead. With resistance low, the average senator or representative is unable to fight off legislation which he knows to be bad with the same spirit that accompanied his activities earlier in the session. Likewise, he is unable to battle as successfully as before for legislation which he knows to be good.

This condition opens the way for a revival of lobbies. They are back in Washington in numbers now despite the disclosures being made by the two congressional committees that are investigating the lobbies that operated to defeat, temporarily at least, the legislation killing utility holding companies. One would have assumed justly with the investigations under way after the utility legislation was passed that lobbyists and self-serving representatives would have been frightened away from Washington. Such was not the case. They are here in such numbers that some observers believe Mr. Roosevelt has made a mistake in demanding that congress stay until it has enacted the share-the-wealth-tax bill and the legislation which will prohibit lawsuits against the government for damages resulting from abrogation of the promise in government bonds to pay them in gold. Mr. Roosevelt is insisting on these laws. He will get them. But in the opinion of many authorities he stands a fair chance also of getting some other legislation which he may not want.

WILSON TOWNSHIP
(Edited by C. M. Nowland)

Mrs. Mable Holland of Lansing spent the week end with her sons, Basil and Herbert.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hott were Sunday visitors of their nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Don Hott of South Arm.

Mr. and Mrs. Clare Krenze and mother, Mrs. Sarah Krenze and Miss Bessie Behling of Grand Rapids spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Behling.

Alfred Dow of Kissimmee, Florida, arrived last week for a visit with his son, Leonard and other relatives and friends. Mr. Dow was 92 years of age last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kremkow and Irving Coykendall of Detroit are visiting and camping out this week with their mother, Mrs. Arvilla Coykendall. Ivan Wall who has been visiting his aunt, Mrs. Krewkow, returned home with them.

Mrs. Alma Nowland returned to East Jordan Saturday evening after spending 3 weeks at the A. R. Nowland home.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Nowland and sons were Sunday guests of her cousin, Mr. and Mrs. Burdette Paine of Waters. Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lock of Grand Rapids were also guests of the Paine's.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Brandt and Andrew Valler of Kalamazoo spent the week end at the Omar Scott home.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reidle and son Bobby of Deer Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Henning were Sunday visitors of their brother and sister, August and Margaret Knop.

Mr. and Mrs. Vere Hawkins and daughter, LeVere Bee of Petoskey were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Simmons.

Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Nowland were Friday business callers in Charlevoix. Mrs. W. H. Davis spent the week end in Petoskey with her daughters, Mrs. G. Russell.

The preacher calling on one of the congregation was met at the door by little Johnny.

Preacher: Sonny, is your father home?
Johnny: No Sir, pop hasn't been home since Christmas when mom caught Santa Claus kissing the cook.

Doctor (inquiring after boy who had swallowed a half-dollar): How is the boy today?
Mother: "No change yet"

JR CLUB news

The next meeting of the Jordan Jar Club will be held August 15th, Thursday, at the home of Mrs. Josephine Stewart, 707 North Main St., at 2 o'clock sharp.

Achievement Day is not far away and it is very necessary that all members take advantage of the supply of fruits and vegetables now in season and can while the canning is good. Take warning, girls, and do not wait until the last minute. Discussion of Achievement Day is one important item to be settled at this meeting. Light refreshments, potluck. Everybody turn out.

States' Rights An Issue

New Deal emergency and permanent legislation has invested the federal government with more authority over the several states and over individuals than ever before. This growth expansion and centralization at Washington under the Roosevelt administration has revived the troublesome complaint about federal encroachment on state rights. Recent Supreme Court decisions have only complicated a situation which now looms as a political issue of the first magnitude. Some New Deal critics, both Democratic and Republican, claim Miss Democracy has crossed "states' rights" off her slate and is still trying to think up something better to take its place.

Do You Know That

More than four million farms in this country are located on unimproved roads.

The ancient Egyptians taxed the rich back in 700 B. C.

More than 16,000 Communist agitators and young radicals have been expelled from CCC camps.

Two-thirds of all drownings in the United States occur during the swimming season—May, June, July and August.

Most French wines are now made from grapes grown on vines derived from American root stock.

No one knows the origin of cheese. Eggs are about 65 per cent water. Some unbreakable buttons are made from blood.

The total cost of accidents in 1934 is estimated at $3,500,000,000. Some people will believe anything. Cornerstone laying is an ancient custom, dating back to Ur, the ancient city of the Chaldees.

Save your home - Save interest - Save worry - Pay Your Taxes Now!

THIS month the eyes of America are on Michigan, and its drive for taxes. Involved in its success are the security and happiness of many homes, and the financial integrity of various units of government. Aided by a considerate legislature, the State of Michigan now asks its delinquent tax-payers to meet their important obligation without further delay.

For those who are prepared to pay in full, taxes for 1932 and prior years may be taken care of without any interest or penalties. This means a saving of 27% to 45% —and even more.

For those who aren't able to pay taxes for 1932 and prior years in full, there has been provided a 10-year plan, with the same substantial savings, but with a small added carrying charge.

Those who owe 1933 and 1934 taxes, may also save all interest and penalty, by paying a 4% collection fee. (For these taxes there is no deferred payment plan.)

Regardless of how you plan to take care of the obligation the important thing is that you do so without further delay. The immediate cash saving is an important item for anyone; but no less important is the saving of worry, doubt, and bother.

Acting under the Law, the Auditor-General must soon offer most of the delinquent taxes at public sale. This difficult task will be considerably lightened if the individual property-owners take the situation promptly to heart and proceed to pay their taxes.

See your County Treasurer at once. Show him your tax bills; or at any rate, give him the legal description of your property.

Then he will tell you the exact amount of your back taxes, and accept your payments. If you are not familiar with the details of the tax laws he will give you a descriptive folder that describes in simple terms just what you must do to save your home. See your County Treasurer at once.

GOVERNMENT AGENCY ANSWERS QUESTIONS

Information Service Called On by Many for Aid.

Washington.—Established by the national emergency council in March to assist Washington visitors to thread the maze of federal agencies and emergency units, the United States information service now answers questions from far and near. Whereas previously, inquirers resorted to the trial and error method, addressing queries to a particular department, they now have at hand an information "central" in close touch with every department, bureau, commission or other federal agency, says the New York Times.

Directed by Miss Harriet M. Root, a graduate of Wellesley, a dozen expert research workers, all women, answer the queries which come in by personal call, by telephone and by letter. Not infrequently one day's mail will bring in 400 letters—each carrying one or more questions. On a busy day, as many as 200 persons have called at Miss Root's office seeking general information, or assistance in contacting some federal agency.

Cover Wide Range.

The queries cover an encyclopedic range. A New Jersey woman, for example, having what she believed to be ambergris in her possession, asked where she could find out whether it was genuine. Her question was referred to the bureau of fisheries. Requests for information on diving rods and buried treasures go to the bureau of mines. A lawyer in New York asked for a list of all federal corporations since the establishment of the United States government—a request that necessitated considerable research. Another letter called for "anything you can find on capital and labor." In due course, a reply furnished references to government publications on the subject.

"Does a bullet from a high-powered rifle actually change its course when entering water? If it does, why? And in what direction?" inquired another correspondent. Here, obviously, was an opportunity for government ballistic experts, to whom the query was forwarded. From a small town came a request for a check on the source of certain statements carried in an article in a local newspaper. And a woman with potatoes to sell sought the help of the service in finding the best market for them.

Many Personal Questions.

Personal questions are numerous. The widow of a naval man who was lost when a ship went down in the war wanted guidance in preparing a claim for compensation from the government. Another inquirer sought directions on how to obtain a medal for a child who had saved a playmate from drowning. A father asked how he should go about finding for his son a billet in the merchant marine. And whenever former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker comes to town, the information service invariably receives one or more calls for his Washington address.

Requests for information on federal activities reflect the increased interest in public affairs, particularly in the work of the New Deal agencies. The national emergency council publishes a daily manual, covering changes in the federal setup, and also charts showing graphically the present federal organization. Both the manual and the charts are in great demand. Universities and schools and faculty members send many requests. A California college plans to use the NEC manual as a textbook; a professor in a midwestern university ordered 300 copies of the chart of the federal government.

Eastman Clinic Will Be Opened in Paris in 1936

Paris.—The new million dollar Eastman dental clinic will open here in September, 1936.

The deal for its construction with the fund led by George Eastman has been closed by Dr. Harvey J. Burkhardt, director of the Rochester dental dispensary, after a conference with municipal authorities and the architects, E. Crevel and John W. Chandler.

Although scheduled to be built in the French style, the inside of the new structure will follow the plan of Eastman clinics at Rochester, Rome, and London, and will have equipment for 50 dentists.

"The plan," explained Doctor Burkhardt, "was to secure the promise of foreign municipalities to supply sites and guarantee upkeep while Eastman promised to furnish a million dollars for the erection of each building. The personnel of the clinics is chosen by the municipal councils, subject to the approval of the Rochester board of directors."

Doctor Burkhardt has just come from Stockholm, where he has been inspecting the Eastman clinic there. He will go to Brussels to discuss plans for the opening of the Brussels clinic January 1 and will return here before leaving for America.

Hotel Man Finds March Leading Month for Births

New York.—There are more Americans born during March than any other month, reports Ralph Hitz, nationally known hotel man. Hitz, who finds each guest registered at his hotel are a birthday card, disclosed that of the 35,000 cards sent out during 1934, about 17 per cent were mailed during March. In contrast to this, more guests celebrate their birthdays on May 10 than any other single day.

A MODERN Convenience

Hard to Do Without

The real value of anything may be measured by considering the effect on our lives of having it taken away.

Measure your checking account by that standard. Would you like to be without its benefits? Would you like to pay your bills the old way? How much would it cost you in time and effort and twice-paid bills?

We are glad to be the means of bringing to you the many benefits of a checking account.

SLIMNESS ALONG WITH SIMPLICITY

Pattern 9350

Every line in this dress is cleverly contrived to "lie" about your weight. The unbroken line from shoulder to hip adds to your height, the diagonal closing "slims" you down and the panel skirt gives you a trim hip line. Why it makes you "feel" slimmer. Just to look at this frock. Notice how cleverly it avoids wasteful emphasis, but adds four buttons for smart accents. About the house, you'll appreciate the unhampered freedom of the easy fitting sleeve and bodice. Run up several in printed cottons for about-the-house and make a dark printed foulard for smart town wear.

Pattern 9350 may be ordered only in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 3 3/4 yards 36-inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighth street, New York.

SYNOPSIS

To the little town of Heron River comes Anna ("Silver") Grenoble, daughter of "Gentleman Jim," formerly of the community. Known as a gambler, news of whose murder in Chicago has reached the town. Sophronia Willard, Jim Grenoble's sister, is at the depot to meet Silver. Her household consists of her husband, and stepsons, Roderick and Jason. The Willards own only half of the farm, the other half being Anna Grenoble's. On Silver's arrival Duke Melbank, shiftless youth, makes himself obnoxious. Sophronia slaps him. Roderick is on the eve of marriage to Corinne Meader, daughter of a failed banker. Silver declares her eagerness to live with her aunt, on the farm, and will not sell her portion. She meets Roddy, by chance, that night. Silver tells Sophronia ("Phronie," by request) something—but by no means all—of her relations with Gerald Lucas, gambler friend of her father.

"Yes," Silver said breathlessly, looking away, "I might have married him. That would have been worse. But I told dad how I felt about him—and I knew as soon as I had told him that I'd rather die than marry Gerald. I can't explain it to you, Phronie. When I was away from him, I almost hated him. But as soon as he came back I was—well, I just can't explain it. I—I was sort of hypnotized."

"So that was why Jim decided to leave it all, eh?" Phronie asked with surprising shrewdness. "Duke Melbank has been tellin' it around that he seen you with him that night in Chicago, and you seemed kind o' stuck on him. I thought maybe Jim would have the sense to get you out of a mess like that."

"Yes," Silver said in a dull voice. "He wanted to get away because of me—partly. You see—he never seemed to realize that I was growing up."

"That would be like Jim!" Phronie explained and wiped her eyes. "Land sakes—let's not talk about it any more. You're here—safe with me, you poor child! Everything's all right from now on."

She brought her tremendous long arm down about Silver's shoulders, drew her awkwardly toward her for an instant, then got mightily to her feet.

"Well," she blurted out, "you take a walk around and get acquainted with the place. I'll go down and fix dinner."

Silver watched the tall, gaunt woman stride away toward the house, then she walked to the eastern slope of the hillside and seated herself. In the field below the great black horses were being unhitched from the binder and led toward the barn. She saw Roddy run his hand down one shining black shoulder, and observed that in the act there was compassion, affection. In his attitude toward herself, last night, she thought unhappily, there had been little more than chilly formality. He had been polite enough, it was true, but far from cordial.

Well, she would not bother him. This was her place, in a deeper sense that it could ever be his. It was too soon for her to make any plan, any pattern, for her life from now on. But for the time being she would remain here, let Roddy Willard bring home a hundred wives who disapproved of her. Whatever had been beautiful and unmarred in the spirit of Jim Grenoble was still here—the pure and inviolable ghost of the boy who had known this earth. She needed this land that held the very roots of her being—she needed it to obliterate forever the dread and insecurity and violence of that other life, and the memory of Gerald Lucas.

Roddy had brought the horses to the watering tank, and as he glanced up at her on the slope she looked quickly away. Presently he came up the slope toward her with long, swinging strides. In the suddenness of their encounter last night, she had not really seen Roddy, she thought. Now she observed him with a cool sense of detachment and indifference. His face was blunthewn, his cheekbones and brows prominent; although his gray eyes were deep-set and unsmiling, they were widely spaced so that the upper part of his face had a surprised, boyish look; his nose was high-bridged, and seemed almost square with its well-defined nostrils; his mouth above the obstinate jaw was unexpectedly mobile. He was darkly burned, and heads of perspiration margined his forehead. He gave her an odd smile.

"I came up here to apologize for the way I acted last night, Silver," he said, and seemed to hesitate on her name.

"You were all right," she replied. "I acted like a half-wit," he insisted curtly. "If it isn't too late, I want to tell you how glad I am that you came straight here—to Sophronia.

He flushed a little, and Silver looked at him wonderingly.

"Thank you," she said simply. His mouth drew to a straight line.

"You are very polite," he remarked. "I didn't feel exactly polite toward you—last night. I—well, I had other things on my mind."

"Of course," she said. "Phronie told me about it this morning. I hope you will be very happy."

"Thanks." He looked away for a moment. "That was part of it, I admit. The rest can wait."

"You mean—about the land?"

"I don't want to trouble you with that business right away," he replied heavily. "But you'll probably want to sell and get your money out of it as soon as you can. The rent we've been paying isn't much. Phronie told me you said you want to stay here with her, but I don't believe you will for long. I don't think this sort of life will appeal to you."

She regarded him with darkly brooding eyes.

"You may as well be honest with me, Roddy," she said slowly, "even if you don't know me very well. You don't want me here, do you?"

His startled frown gave way at once to a look of perplexed dismay.

"That's a fine question to ask me, Silver," he replied with a brusque laugh, "just after I've apologized to you for my stupidity last night—"

"I don't mean that," she broke in hastily. "I know you mean to be kind—and—and you feel sorry for me, and that sort of thing. But deep down—you resent my owning half this land, you resent my right to be here. And you are afraid of what your wife will think of me."

Roddy looked at her curiously, and strove to speak as he would to a child who was in error.

"I'll confess to your first charge," he said gravely, "up to a point. I've worked your father's land since I was a kid. I've always looked forward to the day when it would be my own property. I was afraid last night that I was going to lose it. But as for resenting your right to be here—I'm not quite as mean as all that, Silver."

He paused and looked away with misgiving as he sought for the right words in defense of Corinne. All morning the question of how she would accept Silver Grenoble had plagued him, to his shame. His doubts implied a lack of trust in Corinne's generosity that was mortifying.

"And as for the girl I am going to marry," he resumed resolutely, "you wait until you meet her before you jump at any unfair conclusions. You are probably over-sensitive." He halted, hating to put into words what was in his mind.

But Silver leaned back on her palms, threw back her head and uttered a dry little laugh.

"I know what I'm talking about, Roddy, never fear," she said softly. "I had one friend after another in boarding schools, until their mothers looked up my background. But for all that—"

Her eyes widened brilliantly, and her full, sweet lips parted in a serene smile. "—I wouldn't have given up one single day with my father."

"Everybody who knew him round here thought highly of him," Roddy said. "I'm sorry I never met him. Of course I was only a boy then, and our farm was miles away from here."

Silver turned abruptly toward him. A change had come over her face, a guarded, secret look.

"I'm sorry," she said. "I didn't mean to speak of—of my life before I came here. I don't want you—any of you—to think that I've had a hard time of it. I—I really haven't. It was all splendid, in a way—but you would never understand that. But this—"

She moved her hand lightly before her and gazed down on the land below. "—this is what I want now. I want to be here, where my father was happy. I don't think he ever really was—afterward. So you see you are quite wrong if you believe I won't want to stay."

Roddy thought of Duke Melbank and his mouth twisted in wry silence.

"Phronie," Silver went on, musingly, "probably didn't tell you what happened at the depot last night in Heron River, did she?"

He gave her a startled glance. "No. She didn't mention anything out of the ordinary."

"Well, you'll probably hear about it. I suppose it's the kind of thing that keeps a small town talking for a long time. But I'll tell you to prove to you that I'm not going to be scared away."

With ironical brevity she related the occurrence at the depot the evening before, while Roddy, under his tan, turned livid with wrath. He gave vent to an oath that shook his voice. Then he got abruptly to his feet and extended his hand to Silver.

"Come," he said harshly. "Let's go down to the house."

She stood for a moment looking coolly up into his eyes. "I know now," she said, "why Phronie didn't tell you. I don't think there's any use in your getting into a rage about that person,

Your see—people will just have to get used to me, Roddy. They can get used to anything."

"I'll use my own judgment about Duke Melbank," he replied blackly, and taking her arm he led her in silence down the slope to the house. Jason, meeting them in the yard, looked at his brother with a whimsical smile. "Old Shad Finney just called up," he reported in his soft voice. "He thought maybe we'd like to know that Duke Melbank left town last night."

It was Jason, unfathomable and dark and silent, who drove Silver and Sophronia two days later on that last quiet errand for Gentleman Jim Grenoble. Without ritual or dirge, Jim's ashes were scattered into the open soil above Anna Grenoble's grave, and when the dark earth wound was closed again a single yellow poplar leaf drifted down upon it and lay as though sealing what was done.

Jason said, "Trees know."

On the day before Roddy was to leave for Ballantyne to marry Corinne Meader, Sophronia and Silver put up the last crisp curtain in the old house. The pine floors and moulding had been scrubbed white, the rag rugs washed, the horse-hair sofa and settee in the sitting room treated with gasoline. Beds and bedding had been moved down from the big house, and other essentials had been bought in Heron River.

Silver was grateful for Sophronia's permission to share in this activity. There was a strange, enthralled air about her as she moved through the rooms of the old stone house.

Sophronia went to the narrow stairwell that rose almost vertically from the kitchen and called to Silver. "Come down and have a bite o' supper, Silver."

When Silver appeared, Sophronia glanced out the back door. "There's Roddy," she remarked, "goin' into

"My G—d!" Jason said, peering out through the muslin curtains of the sitting room in the old house. "They have a retinool!"

Silver, standing at his elbow, looked at the people getting out of Roddy's car. She clasped Jason's arms.

"The big girl must be a servant, Jason," she said. "Phronie told me Corinne was small."

"Sure," he replied. "That's Corinne with the fox fur on. Kind o' warm for it, but I guess it's the style. She's pretty, isn't she? But that other one—say! She looks like a Mackintosh Red!"

Silver giggled. She saw that Sophronia, white pique dress still crisp, black velvet ribbon still about her long throat, was walking sedately down the steps to greet Roddy and his wife.

"We must go up and meet them, Jason," said Silver.

But her eyes lingered a moment longer on Corinne, Roddy's wife. She was small and exquisitely formed, with negligible trinkets of feet, and a scantily hatted little head poised eagerly as she went forward to accept Sophronia's blundering kiss and old Roderick's handclasp.

A painful sound came from Jason's throat. "Lord!" he muttered. "I could cry. Corinne has no idea what she's—"

"Oh, Jason," Silver protested, "it will be all right. When people are in love—they can adjust themselves to anything."

"We've got to be d—n nice to her, Silver. The poor little thing!"

Everybody was in the living room when Silver and Jason entered the new house. Roddy, with only a trace of self-consciousness, brought Corinne, with his arm linked in hers, up to his brother and Silver while they stood in the doorway.

"You've met Jason, Corrie," he said. "This is Silver Grenoble. Silver—Corinne. Did I get it backwards? I usually do; remember, Corrie? She used to laugh at my manners, you know, Silver. But what's manners between friends?" He laughed, and Silver extended her hand to Corinne, who took it with a quaint little move upward toward her tall husband.

"He's slandering me, Silver," Corinne declared. "I never had anything but admiration for him, the wretch!"

Jason bent forward in an almost courtly fashion as he shook Corinne's hand. "Welcome home," he said, with a dark shine in his eyes.

"I've got a lunch laid out in the dining room if you'll all come," Sophronia announced.

"Oh, Mrs. Willard!" Corinne pleaded. "May I be excused? I feel so very gritty—all I want is a good hot bath."

Sophronia's face fell in disappointment. Silver had helped her make the fancy molds of fruit gelatine that had reposed all day in the cooler. She knew, too, how long Phronie had labored over the deviled eggs and the special mayonnaise dressing, not to mention the angel cake with its greeting in pink icing on the top.

"Maybe you'll feel more like having a bite after you've washed?" Phronie suggested hopefully.

Corinne shook her head mournfully. "I'm so sorry, Mrs. Willard. It has been so hot driving today. Oh—Roddy! Paula went upstairs with our bags, didn't she? Perhaps she would like something to eat. Do you mind calling her?" Then in a hasty aside she added, "We picked her up only this afternoon in an employment office in Maynard, but I suspect she's a jewel."

wants you to see his studio, too. And that's something, for Jase! I can't remember when he's asked anybody into that place."

They had come to the screen door of the kitchen, and Jason opened it for them.

"You don't seem to be in any hurry to come to the 'last supper,'" Jason remarked drily.

"None of your irreverence, young man!" Roddy cried, and prodded his brother jovially in the ribs. "You have a serious job on your hands tonight. You've got to show this child my lair—and your own. Her mind has a scientific as well as an artistic turn—eh, what, Silver?"

He grasped the soft coil of hair at the nape of her neck and gave it a playful tug.

"Are you bunch comin' to supper, or to breakfast?" Sophronia demanded, and planted herself with force at the foot of the long, blue and white-checked table.

A misty sensation of gratitude, of deep, quivering happiness pervaded Silver as she partook of the simple meal with these people who were, through Sophronia, closer to her than anyone else on earth. But far down, underneath, there was a stirring of something uncertain, something winged and light and strange. She found herself wondering, time after time, what kind of person Roddy Willard would bring home as his wife.

"My G—d!" Jason said, peering out through the muslin curtains of the sitting room in the old house. "They have a retinool!"

Silver, standing at his elbow, looked at the people getting out of Roddy's car. She clasped Jason's arms.

Belief in Witches

Belief in witchcraft persists even in London. A sect in the East end regularly brews "dragon's blood" to keep on good terms with witches. Others seek to propitiate the "wise women" by hanging a string of rabbit's teeth above their doorways. One little known London treasure house, the Cumming museum in the Walworth road, contains a display of witches' remedies, all collected from Londoners in the last few years. A spiral shell, one learns, because of its apparently unending nature, guarantees a long life if carried in the pocket; a donkey's shoe covered with cloth and hitched to the bedpost drives away nightmares, while a pig's tooth hanging in a little bag around your neck is a sure guardian against

TREES AND RAINFALL

There is much controversy over the question whether trees and other heavy vegetation bring rain or not. A great number of forcible points are cited both for and against this question. But we cannot help noting with interest a report from the Soviet government. In Russia a considerable area was planted with trees in 56 foot strips 700 feet apart. Rainfall in the area of these strips was carefully checked against rainfall in surrounding untreed areas. The results were astonishing. The increase in rainfall in the area bordered by the forest strips was from 13 per cent to 27.2 per cent. In the treed areas the evaporation between the strips was from 20 to 35 per cent less than in the open.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, & Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for August 11

DANIEL

LESSON TEXT—Daniel 1:3-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God?—1 Corinthians 6:19.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How Daniel Grew Strong.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Ten Times Strong.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Obeying the Laws of Health.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Motives for Total Abstinence.

The lesson committee has designated this lesson, "Temperance and Health." In the use of this as a temperance lesson it must be borne in mind that it is temperance in the sense of self-mastery, rather than having to do with indulgence in intoxicating liquors. Daniel's self-mastery was due to his right relation and loyalty to his God. It is utterly futile to hope to enforce a program of temperance upon those who are in rebellion against God.

I. Daniel in Captivity in Babylon (vv. 1-4).

Daniel with his companions were carried away to Babylon in the first siege of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar. At the command of the king, certain choice young men were carried away because they were "skilful in wisdom, and cunning in knowledge, and understanding science," that they might be trained to stand in the king's palace.

II. Daniel's Trials (vv. 5-7).

1. Conscience tested (v. 5). By the appointment of the king, a daily provision was arranged of the king's meat and wine for Daniel and his companions. This was contrary to the custom among the godly Jews. Being contrary to the Jewish customs they could not conscientiously partake of them.

2. The change of name (vv. 6, 7). Among the Hebrews names were given to children which were most significant. Daniel means "God is my Judge." The significance of this name is that all the problems of life were submitted to God for a decision. God was made the arbitrator of his life. His name was changed to Belteshazzar, which means "Bel's prince." It meant, therefore, one whom the chief god of the Babylonians favors. Hananiah means "gift or beloved of Jehovah." His name was changed to Shadrach, which signified "illuminated by the sun god, Raah." Mishael means "who is as God?" His name was changed to Meshach, which means "who is like the goddess, Sheshach, the gentle one?" Azariah means "Jehovah is our help." This was changed to Abednego, which means "the servant of Nego." Back of the change of names was the attempt of Satan to wipe out the name of the true God.

III. Daniel's Courtesy (vv. 8-13). Daniel seems to have been the spokesman for the company. Although his heart was fixed, he did not forget to be a gentleman. He requested to be excused from this meat and drink in order that he be not defiled. We should learn from this that in times even of great trials we should be courteous. When Daniel asked that a test be made as to the effect of the food upon the countenance of himself and companions, gracious consideration was given to them.

IV. Daniel's Triumph (vv. 14-21).

1. As to physical health (vv. 14-16). A test was made for ten days, and it was shown that Daniel and his companions were fairer in countenance and fatter in flesh than those who indulged in the eating of the king's meat. This meat and wine would have been pleasant to the palate, but would have meant a compromise of the conscience. It is obligatory upon God's children today to abstain from that which is contrary to his law.

2. Spiritual insight (v. 17). Because of Daniel's loyalty to God, Nebuchadnezzar's dream was revealed to him (2:31-45), and he was given visions sketching the whole history of the world.

3. Mental growth (vv. 17-20). Daniel and his companions were found to be ten times superior in matters of wisdom and understanding to their comrades. Those who abstain from indulgence in the use of strong drinks have clearer minds and are thus better equipped mentally for their work than those who indulge therein.

4. Their social and political preference (v. 19). They stood before the king. No higher position of influence and honor could have been given them.

5. Their temporal influence (v. 21). They were all advanced to positions of influence, and Daniel became president of the college of wise men, and the prime minister of the nation. This position he continued to hold during several dynasties.

Good Actions

Do you act as if you had ten thousand years to throw away. Death stands at your elbow. Be good for something, while you live and it is in your power. What remains but to live easy and cheerful, and crowd one good action so close to another that there may be the least empty space between them.

Log Cabin Effect in Crocheted Rug

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

Log cabins are always picturesque, and the many antiques usually found about the place add much to complete the picture.

We can't all live in cabins, but we can satisfy our antique cravings by giving these ideas some space in our homes.

This "Log Cabin" crocheted rug was developed from the old "Log Cabin" quilt which is known to many of our readers. This model measures 28x42 inches and requires about 4 pounds of rag rug material.

The inner square of 4 triangles is made first. Four elongated pieces of same size form the first row around center, two short and two long pieces form the next or second row. Four pieces of same size from the third row. Four same size triangles fit in corners. Slip-stitch sections together in black and single crochet all around in black. Color scheme may be all brown in light and dark shades or mixed colors. Alternate panels in light and dark shades to give contrast to rows. Measure each section as the work progresses and fit sections into spaces. Rag rug material may vary in weights.

Sleep EIGHT Hours a Night

The trouble with most of us is we eat the wrong foods. We haven't any respect for our stomachs until they start to kick up a rumpus. We go along for years filling ourselves full of acids, the result is we can't sleep nights and always have a heavy lousy feeling. My doctor advised taking Milnesia Wafers to get rid of the acids and now I sleep soundly all night.

MILNESIA Wafers neutralize the excess acids that cause indigestion, heartburn and sick headaches. Each Wafer is a full adult dose, children—one-quarter to one-half. Pleasant to take. Recommended by thousands of physicians—At All Good Druggists.

If your druggist does not carry Milnesia Wafers in stock send us his name and address together with 10c in coin or postage and we will forward you a full size 20c package of Milnesia Wafers equivalent to 12 full adult doses. Write SELECT PRODUCTS, INC., 6602 23rd St., Long Island City, N. Y.

Two Lives Taken In Accidents Near Petoskey During Week End

Accidents took two lives in Emmet county over the week end—a drowning and a fatal automobile crash.

Mrs. Clifford Chapin of Bliss, 26-year-old mother of two children, was fatally injured in an auto crash 4 miles east of Petoskey, Saturday evening. She was riding in a car driven by Alex Yunevitch, football coach at Central State Teachers College. He received injuries and was taken to Petoskey Hospital.

Fourteen-year-old Clyde Gregory of Harbor Springs was drowned in Little Traverse Bay, Sunday afternoon when the undertow pulled him under the water.

Auto Title Flood Now At High Tide

With the Department of State coping with the biggest volume in its history of issuing and transferring auto titles, "over the counter" business handled on the fourth floor of the state capitol at Lansing is of such proportions that dealers coming personally to the capitol, rather than mailing their applications, are saving little time for their customers, officials point out.

Dealers from as far north as Big Rapids, and from the Indiana-Ohio border, have been arriving at the capitol with sheaves of applications for new titles or title transfers. One dealer may bring applications from others in his vicinity. In ordinary times, this business can be handled "over the counter" with the dealer on his way home the same day.

With the automobile business running at its continued high level, however, personal applications of this kind are beginning to exceed facilities for immediate handling; some dealers return home empty handed, with their titles mailed to them later. More than 400 "over the counter" applications are now being handled daily.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Dr. Harold G. Urey, who was awarded the Nobel chemistry prize for 1934, sometimes lives up to the Fontaine Fox title, "The Absent-Minded Professor." One morning up at Columbia, where he is a professor, he entered a classroom and gave his lecture. After some time had elapsed, he discovered that the faces before him were all unfamiliar. He had merely wandered into the wrong room. On another occasion, he started out wearing shoes that were not his. His award came to him for his discoveries in regard to heavy water. The hydrogen content of heavy water, known as deuterium, weighs twice as much as the hydrogen element in ordinary water. It used to cost $8,000 a pound. Now the cost is only from $8 to $20 a pound. Few laymen know what to do with it as yet. It is regarded as extremely valuable to science, however. Scientists hope to learn atomic secrets through it—witness the "dance of the molecules" or something.

Doctor Urey is forty-one years old. He received his degree of bachelor of science from the University of Montana and his Ph. D. in chemistry from the University of California. He came to Columbia as an associated professor five years ago. In addition to the Nobel prize, he was awarded the Willard Gibbs medal by the Chicago section of the American Chemical society. That too was for his work with heavy water. But his spare time reading is detective stories and S. S. Van Dine is his favorite author. He also likes to fool around the garden and play the piano. His wife will spend his prize money.

Another recent prize winner was Louis Paul who lives in Kew Gardens. He received the O. Henry memorial award of $300 for the outstanding short story of the year. It was his first to get into print. After writing it, he laid it aside for six months. Then, one day, seeing a newspaper advertisement of a high priced magazine, he concluded the editor would want that yarn. The editor did. He not only accepted it but along with the check sent a letter telling the author how good it was. While the story that was to be a prize winner—the title is "No More Trouble for Jedwick"—and it deals with the escape of a negro slayer from a chain gang—was gathering dust, Paul was at work on a novel. He finally turned out two. Both have been accepted by a publisher, and the first will be out in the spring.

The winner of the O. Henry award looks much like a somewhat dated football player. He is thirty-two years old. He weighs 215 pounds and his muscles are well developed. They should be. When he was sixteen, he quit school and joined the army. In that way, he saw the country, having been shifted from camp to camp until his title reached seven. After the Armistice, he served as an orderly in Walter Reed hospital in Washington. Tiring of that after a time, he quit and went West. On the Pacific coast, he was a movie extra. Also a stevedore. Also he held down various jobs on railroads. In addition, he had other jobs in all of which toil was spelled with capital letters. Then he came East. For the last three years he has been doing nothing save write—"with-out making a nickel." But he's on his way now.

Leaving prize winners and turning to—a Fifth avenue hat shop. Hat shops are common on the avenue. But this one is different. In it, it is possible for a man to get a new hat for a dollar—the price including a Fifth avenue label. It isn't a cleaning establishment. The old hat is turned wrong-side out, a new lining and a new sweat band inserted and the patron can again hold up his head without spots showing.

Several times reference has been made in this space to those Times Square subway change makers who so throw coins that one hangs back and is overlooked by the hurrying sardine. They used to be content with a nickel. Late reports have it that now when a dollar bill is changed, the retained coin is a quarter.

Parrot Legatee Is Dead After 33-Year Luxury

London.—Polly, hailed as the world's most extravagant parrot, has died in London. She was thirty-three years old.

Polly had such an enormous appetite that she swallowed more than half the $1,375 bequeathed her by Mrs. Elen Herietta Harriss in 1901. Three hospitals, which were to get the money at Polly's death, tried vainly to put a stop to the parrot's epicurean tastes. Courts ruled that Polly could do whatever she pleased with her money.

Three-Horned Steer Exhibited in Zoo

Hershey, Pa.—A three-horned steer is one of the exhibits at the Hershey Zoological garden. The animal was presented to the garden by Walter M. Dunlap, of the Union Stock Yards, of Lancaster, Pa. Ward Walker, director of the zoo, said he "would break the unwritten law of zoological gardens against exhibiting freakish animals" and keep the yearling steer.

U. S. NAVY AIRCRAFT IS SECOND TO NONE

Planes Equal or Superior to Any Other Nation.

Washington.—America's "fleet that flies" is equipped with planes and motors equal or superior to those of any other nation in the world and still further advances are now in sight. Rear Admiral Ernest J. King, chief of the bureau of aeronautics, declared in his annual report to Claude A. Swanson, secretary of the navy.

"The bureau . . . is upheld, in this opinion," the document adds "by the reports of various committees of congress which have, during the past year, inquired exhaustively into the subject. Every effort has been made to expend the funds at the bureau's disposal in such manner that the efficiency, reliability and usefulness of the aircraft and equipment furnished the operating forces would be the maximum possible."

Halls Expansion Statute.

The most progressive step taken by the government in the development of naval aviation during the fiscal year 1934, Admiral King said, was passage of the Vinson-Trammell act authorizing aircraft construction commensurate with the strength of the "treaty navy."

"The 1,000 plane program prescribed in 1926 (as a result of the Morrow air craft board's recommendations) did not provide for ships authorized and constructed subsequent to that year," Admiral King says, "with the result that new ships had to be provided with aircraft by curtailment of other activities for which provision had been made, so that the ratio of aircraft to ship strength constantly decreased. The Vinson-Trammell act removes this restriction and a tentative program providing an orderly expansion of the naval air arm over a period of five to seven years has been prepared by the bureau of aeronautics and submitted to the Navy department for consideration and approval."

Greater Range Sought.

"Constant effort is being made to improve the characteristics of naval aircraft, particularly in regard to speed, range and striking power," the report adds. "Increased employment of long range patrol bombing squadrons is expected. Future plans involve service tests for larger seaplanes of this type with great range, bomb loads and speed."

"It is desired to increase the striking power of carrier-based scouting planes by including arrangements for dropping heavy bombs in diving attack. The development of such an airplane is now under way."

Admiral King points out that the speed range of the navy's latest-type planes has undergone marked improvement during the last year.

New Device to Improve Police Marksmanship

Los Angeles.—Peace officers may soon be equipped with an attachment for their service pistols which will make each officer a deadly marksman in the dark.

The device, known as the automatic night sight, the invention of A. B. Scott, Los Angeles engineer, soon will be in quantity production, although offered for sale only to city, county and state peace officers.

The invention, which fits securely on the muzzle of a regulation police pistol, consists of a small flash bulb, a clover-leaf shaped aperture and a system of lenses. In operation it throws a clover-leaf shaped beam of light along the path of the bullet, with the bullet striking the point where the inner points of the four beams of light meet. The secret of the device is in the lenses, which enable the light to illuminate the object aimed at, although a person in front of the pistol cannot see the rays.

Each set of the equipment will bear a serial number and sales will be registered just as the sale of pistols is now recorded.

French Colonial Cotton Is New Threat to South

Havre, France.—American cotton may well look to its laurels. A cargo of 840 tons of cotton has arrived from French Equatorial Africa. It is the first time such an important amount of it ever has arrived in France. It is consigned to a French spinning company. The French spinners are beginning to realize the value of the class and quality of the cotton furnished by big African concerns to France during the last three or four years.

The production reached 2,300 bales in the past season.

2,400 Applicants Would Be Philadelphia Firemen

Philadelphia.—Ninety vacancies in the Philadelphia fire department attracted 2,400 candidates. According to Civil Service Examiner Charles S. Shaughnessy, the list of applicants included two graduates from the United States Naval academy and one from West Point. Examinations were given here recently. The job pays $35 a week the first year, $38.50 the second year, and after three years' service, $42 weekly.

Demijohn 200 Years Old

Union City, Tenn.—A small bottle of demijohn, which is more than 200 years old and which has been in her family five generations is the proud possession of Mrs. N. E. Jenkins, of Union City.

Homemakers' Corner

Following a few simple rules for the operation and care of the pressure cooker assures an easier and a more successful canning season, according to home economics experts at Michigan State College.

Sufficient water should be placed in the cooker to insure that it will not become dry while in operation, two or three cupfuls are sufficient. Clamps on the cover should be tightened two at a time and the two should be on opposite sides of the cover. The cover must be clamped tightly enough so no steam escapes except through the petcock.

The petcock should remain open until steam escapes in a steady stream, usually seven to ten minutes. Do not start counting time for processing until the petcock has been closed long enough to permit the temperature to rise within the cooker and to allow the steam pressure to reach the proper point.

The heat under the cooker should be regulated to maintain an even steam pressure in the cooker, changes in pressure may cause losses of liquids from the inclosed jars. When processing is complete, the cooker should be removed from the fire and the pressure allowed to fall to zero before the petcock is opened if the cooker contains glass jars. The petcock should be opened at once if tin cans are being used.

Thorough washing and drying of the cooker after use will insure its perfect operation the next time it is needed and will prolong the life of the equipment. The steam gauge must not be immersed in water while washing the cooker. Leave the cover off the cooker when storing it away.

Mrs. Jones went to her neighbor, Mrs. Smith, for advice on how to rear chickens. After giving a few hints, her neighbor wound up by saying, "Remember, a hen sits three weeks for chickens and four weeks for ducks."

Mrs. Jones thanks her and went away to set her hen on some eggs.

All went well for a couple of weeks but suddenly Mrs. Jones was called out of town.

"Mary," she said to the maid, "I'm going away for two weeks, so remember that if that hen sits more than another week, take her off. I don't want ducks."—Answers.

Properly Stowed Bags Add to Comfort

Comfort, pleasure, and safety on a tour depend largely on efficient loading of the luggage, and modern body designs have done much to ease the problem, as these views of Chevrolet models reveal. In the upper left view, the suitcases have been fitted snugly, the adjustable front seat having been moved forward to allow extra legroom, and the driver is now pushing back the seat to clamp the bags in place for the day. Upper right, the tourist is utilizing the baggage space back of the rear seat. The two lower pictures show the loading of a coupe compartment and a sedan trunk.
