picked by the so-called "Old Guard" of eastern Republicans. Some observers still hold the belief that the selection of Senator Steiwer was not wholly pleasing to the Landon forces but, that as it may, there has been no particular ill feeling created by it.

The best advance information obtainable on Senator Barkley's plans is that he will devote the bulk of his time on the convention platform to a review of Roosevelt accomplishments in the belief that such a review will take his presentation out of the class of a "defense" speech.

Having observed Senator Barkley in action in the senate for a number of years, I believe I am justified in saying that he is a square shooter and a fighter. In this respect, he and Senator Steiwer, the Republican keynoter, are much the same type of man and, therefore, if either convention gets off on a wrong foot, the fault will lie with the convention managers rather than with the proposals offered by the men who are supposed to lay before the delegates a rough outline of their respective party's campaign policies.

Concerning the record of the keynoters in the senate, each stands foursquare. Senator Barkley has consistently battled in behalf of the President and New Deal policies throughout Mr. Roosevelt's administration.

For many months Washington has heard the plaint of business leaders who wanted to fight socialistic schemes and unsound economic policies given birth by New Deal brain trusters but were afraid to do so because of "retaliation."

It was in the senate that a New Deal Democrat, Senator Homer T. Bone of Washington, broke loose with statements that seemed to substantiate the fear voiced so frequently by business.

Of course, Senator Bone was attacking this espionage system because of a feeling that it might be used to coerce members of congress and even executive or administrative officers of the government who were opposed to plans propagated by Presidential advisers.

I am unable, however, to reconcile Senator Bone's position respecting the OGPU which he charged was in operation within the government and his utter silence when the obnoxious senate lobby committee, headed by Senator Black, Democrat of Alabama, engaged in the wholesale seizure of private telegrams.

While we are talking about the forthcoming quadrennial conventions, the two keynoters naturally enter into any discussion. Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky will do the keynoting for the Democrats at Philadelphia and Senator Frederick Steiwer of Oregon will deliver the main address to the Cleveland convention of the Republicans.

The selection of Senator Steiwer was one of those things that can be said to be a surprise and yet not a surprise. He is, without doubt, a good man for the job. Yet in some quarters there is a conviction that Senator Steiwer was

ARLINGTON—SACRED SHRINE OF AMERICAN DEVOTION ON MEMORIAL DAY

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

IF THERE is one place in the United States toward which, more than to any other, the hearts of Americans turn on Memorial Day, it is Arlington national cemetery in Virginia.

There the first Memorial Day exercises were held on May 30, 1868, after Gen. John A. Logan, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, had issued his historic "Order No. 11," setting aside this day each year for honoring the Civil war dead. The principal speaker on this occasion was Gen. James A. Garfield, later president of the United States, and at that time was inaugurated the custom of honoring the Unknown Dead, as well as those whose names are known. For the principal ceremony at that first Memorial Day celebration was decorating with flags and flowers a monument that had been erected to the memory of 2,111 unidentified dead found on the fields of Bull Run and the route to the Rappahannock.

There, in 1921, was entombed the Unknown Soldier of the World war, to give the nation its most precious shrine.

And there, as a crowning glory, has been erected the magnificent amphitheater of classic design in which the President of the United States on each Memorial Day speaks to the nation and for the nation in paying tribute to its soldier dead.

Truly this is hallowed ground and Arlington is a hallowed name.

Rich in sentiment, Arlington is also rich in tradition and in historic association. Its story goes back to the year 1669 when Sir William Berkeley, royal governor of Virginia, "by authority of King Charles II, by the grace of God and by the discovery of John Cabot," granted to Robert Howser, a sea captain, 6,000 acres of land, including the present site of Arlington, for bringing settlers to Virginia. Howser is said to have sold his grant the very same year to the Alexander family for six hogheads of tobacco. But they do not seem to have taken advantage of what was obviously a good bargain until 1735 when John and Gerald Alexander asserted title under the grant made 66 years previously and their title was sustained.

On Christmas day of 1778 Gerald Alexander sold two tracts on the Potomac to a certain John Parke Custis. One of these tracts, embracing 1,100 acres and including the present national cemetery, brought 11,000 pounds sterling in Virginia currency.

John Parke Custis was the son of Col. Daniel Parke Custis who had married seventeen-year-old Martha Dandridge, the reigning belle of Williamsburg, then the leading city in the Old Dominion. Daniel Parke Custis died in the spring of 1757, leaving besides his widow and their two children, John Parke Custis and Martha Parke Custis, an estate valued at more than $100,000.

An Historic Marriage.

A little more than a year later a young officer in the Virginia colonial troops, who had distinguished himself at Braddock's defeat, came a-wooing the Widow Custis. His name was George Washington and, he and Martha Dandridge Custis were married on January 6, 1759. Washington grew passionately fond of his two step-children and when Martha Parke Custis died on June 10, 1773, at the age of seventeen he was almost heart-broken. Meanwhile her brother, John Parke Custis, had become deeply smitten with the charms of Miss Eleanor Calvert, second daughter of Benedict Calvert of Mount Airy, Md., a descendant of Lord Baltimore. His marriage took place in February, 1774.

At the beginning of the Revolution young Custis promptly offered his services to his country and as an aide to Washington he served with distinction down to the siege of Yorktown. There, however, he contracted fever and before the surrender took place he was forced to leave his post. He was removed to the home of his uncle, Colonel Bassett, at Eltham where he died on November 5, 1781, leaving his young widow and four small children.

This second blow was almost as great a one to Washington as the death of Martha Parke Custis had been. He immediately adopted as his own the two younger children, Eleanor Parke Custis and George Washington Parke Custis, who were taken to Mount Vernon and placed in the care of Mrs. Lund Washington, whose husband was managing the general's property at that place. When permanent peace came and Washington again took up his residence at Mount Vernon he and Mrs. Washington assumed intimate and active care of the two children, who proved of much comfort to them in their declining years.

Why Named "Arlington"

In 1796, what are now the Arlington lands were allotted by the court to the legal representatives of John Parke Custis who had died testate. By the law of primogeniture the estate descended to Washington's namesake, George Washington Parke Custis. It was G. W. P. Custis who named it Arlington, after the Custis ancestral home in Northampton county on the eastern shore of Virginia.

George Washington Parke Custis had an interesting career. From the time he was six months old until the death of his grandmother, Martha Washington, on May 22, 1802, he was continually under her guidance and influence or under the instruction of his famous adopted father.

Perhaps no other American boy ever had better advantages offered him than young Custis had in his day. As a child he met all of the great men who had taken part in the American Revolution, and when Washington became President he was taken with him to live in New York and later to Philadelphia. In both places he frequently came in contact with the builders of the republic, as well as the most cultured and retired element with which the first President continually surrounded himself.

He was educated along the most practical lines in the best schools of his day, forming the foundation for his subsequent taste for art and literature, and equipping him, as well for the speaker's platform, which he delighted in filling in after years.

Following the death of his grandmother, he made his home for two years with his sister, who had married Maj. Lawrence Lewis. In 1802, in anticipation of his own marriage to Mary Lee Fitzhugh he began building Arlington mansion, or Lee mansion, as it later was called. To this house, designed after the Temple of Theseus in Athens, Greece, he brought his sixteen-year-old bride in 1804 and for the next half century the "Sage of Arlington," as he became known, was a leading figure in the life of the national capital. There were few men of note whom he did not know and few men who did not know him. He was popular with the people of Washington for whose entertainment he generously threw the grounds of his estate open. They were glad to take advantage of his hospitality even though he was regarded as something of an eccentric character.

Relics of the Washingtons

Arlington house became the repository of a large and interesting collection of relics of the Washingtons which were given to him by his dotting grandmother, or, as he called her in the final division of the household goods or which he purchased from less affluent possessors. These included among other things the bed in which Washington died and the tent which had sheltered him during the Revolution. The latter was often pitched on the Arlington lawn for the awed admiration of residents of Georgetown and Washington who were ferried across the Potomac to attend the annual sheep-shearing festivals which Custis held, since the breeding of merino sheep was one of his hobbies. A barbecue was the reward of those who attended these festivals and "an oration by Custis was the penalty"—at least, that is the way one of his descendants put it.

Although he was one of the wealthiest men of his day, Custis was often hard pressed for ready cash. On one occasion he asked the bank to defer payment of a note for $65 and in 1831 he applied to the Bank of the United States for a loan of $12,000 in order to finance a trip to France. There he proposed to go to obtain from Lafayette all of his Revolutionary war papers and his personal recollections of Washington for a book on "The Private Memoirs of the Life and Character of Washington" which Custis proposed to write.

Besides aspiring to be the biographer of his adopted father, Custis also had ambitions as a painter, a poet and a playwright. As the latter he wrote such productions as "Launch of Columbia," "Our Blue Jackets Forever," "National Dream of Pocahontas," of the First Settlers of Virginia," and an operetta called "The Railroad." "Pocahontas" was played in Charleston and Columbia, S. C., and "The Railroad" was produced at the Old National theater in Washington and also ran for seven nights in Baltimore.

Writer of Melodrama

"Pocahontas" was criticized as being too melodramatic and Custis wrote to a friend: "Melodrama is all the go now, and even in historical plays you must sprinkle show and pageant and things to please the senses as well as the judgment. . . . The play is in London in the hands of Washington Irving and John Howard Payne, who will under their able auspices bring it out on the London stage. If successful there, why, I may be considered here as something of a dramatist." But if Custis never became known as "something of a dramatist," he is remembered for many other reasons. One of them is the fact that it was in his mansion on June 30, 1831, that his only daughter, Mary Ann Randolph Custis, was married to a young lieutenant in the engineers go with his state when he left the Union, although it meant the sacrifice of everything which he held dear. On April 22, 1861, Colonel and Mrs. Lee left Arlington for Richmond, where he immediately entered the military service, first of Virginia and later of the Confederacy. From the date of their departure Arlington was occupied only by servants and soon afterwards a force of Union troops commanded by Colonel Heintzelman took charge of it.

First Burials

After the first battle of Bull Run, McDowell's army entrenched itself on Arlington Heights; the mansion was occupied by officers, soldiers were camped on its grounds and two strong forts were built there for the defense of Washington. After the battles of the Wilderness, Quartermaster Gen. M. C. Meigs ordered burial at Arlington for all soldiers dying in the military hospitals in and around Washington. The official records of such burials begin with May 13, 1864, so Arlington has been a burial place of soldier dead for nearly three-quarters of a century. When the bodies of the unknown soldier dead, buried between the Potomac and the Rappahannock, were reinterred in Arlington it brought the total of Civil war burials there to 36,000.

As for the process by which Arlington became a national cemetery, it came about in this way: In 1862, by act of congress, a property tax was levied in all the states for the conduct of the war. This tax totaled $92 for the Arlington property, and, since it was unpaid, the property was ordered sold on January 11, 1864. The government was empowered to bid the property in and to use it for educational and military purposes. The price paid was $23,800.

In 1877 George Washington Custis Lee brought suit in circuit court for the ejectment of persons living on the estate. The federal government had rented out parcels of land to small farmers, while on one corner of the property a village of nearly 1,000 persons had grown up. Lee won his case in the lower court, and in 1882 the Supreme court upheld the verdict. The government then had made itself a party to the suit, and following the handing down of the Supreme court decision, it agreed to pay Lee the $150,000 he asked as a compromise. This sum was appropriated by congress and turned over to Lee.

After the close of the Civil war Arlington house, or the Lee mansion as it became known because of its association with the great leader of the Lost Cause, remained a deserted mansion. In recent years, however, it has been restored and completely furnished with original pieces of furniture, or faithful reproductions of them and contemporary articles so that a visit to it takes one back to the days when the "Sage of Arlington" ruled there and gave the hand of his daughter in marriage to the man who was destined to become one of the greatest captains of all time.

Predicts One of Nine Persons Will Be Injured During 1936

Every ninth person will meet with an accident of some sort this year if past statistics can be relied upon. L. D. Cavanaugh, executive vice president of the Federal Life Insurance Co., of Chicago, asserted recently in a statement issued in connection with Accident and Health week.

"The number who will probably meet with accidents," Cavanaugh continued, "is five times as great as are expected to die from natural causes. More than 8,250,000 persons were injured and more than 100,000 killed by accidents in the United States last year, according to statistics compiled by the National Safety Council. The toll taken by sickness is even greater. While an average of 17 persons is injured in accidents every minute of the night and day, 51 are disabled each minute by sickness."

Wood Structures Withstand The Ravages of Time

It is sometimes thought that wood is perishable and is suitable only for temporary structures. "Although wood, like other materials, is subject to attack by destructive agents, there is much historical evidence of its permanence when protected from attack by fungi, insects, marine borers, and rodents," say engineers at the Forest Products Laboratory, Madison, Wisconsin; a division of the U. S. Forest Service.

Examples of centuries of long service rendered by wood are to be found in old world history, such as the covered bridges at Bern, Switzerland, over the Aar in 1535 and at Gummnen over the Saane in 1570. These and other similar old structures are still in service. An example of an old wooden building is the church built by the Saxons near Ongar, Essex County, England, of English oak in the year 1013. This edifice is still standing; and although some remodeling and repairing was done some years ago, the old timbers have been retained.

Unless early cliff dwellers are considered, the United States does not, of course, afford examples of such long service. A recent survey has shown that hundreds of bridges made partially or entirely of wood have served satisfactorily, with little attention, for long periods of time. Many are more than a century old and are still in service. Others, still in good condition, have given away to the demand for greater width or higher load capacity than for which they were built.

In Philadelphia, a section of wooden water supply pipe of southern yellow pine that had been in the ground for over a century, was removed in some reconstruction work in 1916 and was still good and firm in texture. In Albany, New York, sections of sycamore water pipe were removed in 1912 after being in service for over a hundred years.

The Fairbanks house in Bedham, Massachusetts, is 290 years old. Although some claim that the original siding is still on the house, it has been learned that new siding was put on in 1903 after the original siding had served for two and a half centuries. The original frame is still intact. At the Amana colony in Iowa some of the original houses built in 1858 are still standing with their original siding, which has never been painted. However most of the buildings at the colony built at that time have had the siding partly or completely replaced.

Even under conditions favorable to decay, numerous examples of long service of treated wood are on record. The Lake Pontchartrain, Louisiana, trestle of the Southern Railway is a notable example of the use of creosoted timber. This structure was built in 1883 and has been in continuous use for 45 years and in a subtropical climate with an annual rainfall of more than 56 inches. Tests of timbers removed from this structure show they compare favorably with new untreated wood and with recently treated wood of the same general characteristics.

Examples of long service such as those cited, and an analysis of the conditions involved, show that if wood is protected from decay, insect attack, and similar destructive agencies, it will render service indefinitely.

what Irvin Cobb thinks about:

BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF.—
The more I ponder on Italy's sacrifices in Ethiopia, as balanced against what she gains, the more I'm reminded of the old story of the Confederate who was released from a northern prison camp after the surrender. Skeleton-thin from jail fever and debility, he started on tottery legs for the Ohio river, determined to die on southern soil. One night this poor rack-o'-bones crept into a haymow. Next morning, early, the hired man heard suspicious sounds in the loft and ran for reinforcements. Presently, the ex-captive's refuge was surrounded by stalwart, armed men. The farmer's six-foot son leveled a cocked musket. "Come out of that, whoever you be," he bellowed. "Con sarn your hide, we got you." The southerner raised a white face. "Yes," he said, wanly, "and one h—l of a git you got."

His Next Movie.
WE'RE starting a new picture, and I am teamed up with Slim Summerville, 6 feet 6 of pure comedy, and little Jane Withers—for her age, the greatest scene-stealer in the business. It's as though Little Boy Blue were sandwiched in between Jesse James and Calamity Jane. Well, as I go down for the third time I'll still be gurgling feebly, so give me credit, please, as an earnest gurgler. They call our picture "Public Nuisance Number 1," but a movie is like an Indian—starts out with a name and winds up with anyone of a half-dozen. I once knew a Blackfoot who was first one thing, then another, and the best he could do for himself in his old age was to be known as Chief Many Tall Feathers Going Over the Hill.

Franks of Zioncheck.
THE papers seemed so barren—not a single front page story about Representative Zioncheck, Washington's No. 1 Boy Scout. Life, indeed, is empty on a day whose low descending sun sees no gay deed done, no headline won by the nation's official problem child. He may have started off at the foot of the ladder, alphabetically speaking, but his startled constituents can't complain that the gallant lad stayed there. Either he's getting plinched or getting jailed or getting married or getting his pen in hand to tell the President how to run the country, or getting ready to polish off some fellow-statesman of the house, or just getting about. And hasn't he put the throbbing pulse into the Congressional Record? It reads now sometimes as the old Police Gazette used to.

Rules for Olympics.
AS I understand it—and somebody correct me, please, if I'm wrong—the rules for the forthcoming Olympic Games in Berlin have been so revised that it will be quite all right for any of our Jewish athletes to take part—just so they don't win. I'm wondering, though, about what may happen when the American team turns up over there with a whole batch of negro foot-racers in the outfit. It's going to be awful hard to convince a Prussian crowd that they're merely medium-to-well-done Nordic-Caucasian stock browned in the pan, so to speak. It so happens that our fastest runners are all colored boys. Perhaps 'tis just as well. They may have to keep right on running.

Improvement in Influenza.
IN RESPONSE to large numbers who I wrote or wired, I would state that either I'm getting over my influenza, or maybe I'm just getting used to it. Its latest whimsical notion was to settle in both ears, and now should it thunder, a rare occurrence out here, in order for me to get the benefit of the phenomenon, it'll have to thunder again—and louder. However, being temporarily deaf has its advantages: I don't hear the dull things other people say, but can still enjoy the bright things I say myself. As will be noted, I'm back from Palm Springs, where I cooked in the desert sunshine until all I needed to do before being served was to drape a sprig of watercress across my brow and thicken the gravy with a little brown flour. Driving in, I kept tying up the traffic, so many motorists mistook my face for a stop signal. Should I relapse I'm going to try to throw myself into the epidemic. That's a horse disease, but I've been as sick as a horse and had to be as strong as a horse to live through it—and, anyhow, I know a good horse doctor. IRVIN S. COBB. Copyright.—WNU Service.

Ouch.
"You say yours is the perfect husband?" exclaimed the first woman. "Yes," retorted the other, "but my definition of a husband is a man who takes his wife for granted, thinks having meals on time one of the most important things in the world, wonders why she complains about picking up after him and can't be made to understand it actually takes money for a woman to keep looking presentable."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Faultlessly Tailored for Spring

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FASHION is in a contradictory mood this season, which makes the game all the more exciting and fascinating. Either you are strictly tailored or you go beautifully feminine with all sorts of flourishes. Your wardrobe for spring and summer is made to play this dual role in that you may choose between being that faultlessly and uncompromisingly tailored the masculine members of the smart set will see themselves out-ripped in the matter of meticulous detail or your costume feminizes to the extreme via gay prints, gay flowers and a lavishment of adorably frivolous accessories that are utterly devastating in their coquetry of color and fluter and chic and charm.

Speaking from the smart tailored viewpoint every fashion-wise American woman is dashing out with joy in her heart to fit herself with a feminine version of the latest in men's swanky topcoats or trim business suits. Always she has envied the slim distinction of well-cut masculine attire, and from experience with riding habits and active sports costumes she knows that mannish styles accent rather than detract from femininity. Broad shouldered and slender hiped, the two models pictured are man-tailored in the best tradition with a custom-built look that makes them eminently correct. The jacket suit of men's wear wool has arrived at a high spot of perfection which makes instant appeal with best-dressed women. Its lines are in the latest fashion with gracefully sweeping lapels, single-button jacket closing and braided edges and pockets. One of the very smart details in high-style tailoring this season is the preference given braid-bound edges. The stunning straight-cut skirt closes oh-so-neatly with a concealed slide fastener at the side. The Oxford shade of the wool is beautifully adapted to the formality of the jacket, and the skirt may be changed for a pin-stripe matching flannel for the girl who has always had a hankering for a chance to pin a gardenia in her buttonhole and look like the handsomest usher at a fashionable wedding. The Chesterfield type topcoat shown, of a fine herringbone medium weight woolen, is an ideal choice for wear over any tailored costume. The traditional velvet collar, high lapels and side pockets with flap tops are both chic and mannish. The coat is fitted for a slender-waisted effect, which is further accented by the double-breasted closing. The varying length of this season's coats makes it important to suit your coat length to your wardrobe. This Chesterfield is cleverly designed in the new style which allows just an inch or two of the skirt to show at the hemline. As here pictured, an excellent ensemble idea is carried out as it ties up accessories, skirt and hat as accent to the topcoat. Because of its fitted lines, this model is easily adapted for both sports and street wear over the new sheer wool tailored frocks as well as over spring suits. The beauty of this season's woolens is that they are related in color so as to be friendly and tuneful to versatile combinations that admit of interchangeable alliances and effects. © Western Newspaper Union.

LONG NET CAPE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Multi-color carnations on black silk crepe interpret the new fashion in prints that calls for dark backgrounds with widely spaced single flowers. The shoulder straps of cutout flowers forming a ruche effect are also of style significance. As to the long cape made of dotted net it defines fashion at its smartest, for wherever possible designers are veiling both daytime and evening prints with net or tulle. The jewels worn with this stunning gown are superb. Hold Berets in Place Jeweled perfume pins are Schiaparelli's new invention to hold velvet berets in place. She trims hairnets with cabochons or rhinestones for evening wear. Taffeta Pattern Raised The pattern on black taffeta material is being raised with the aid of rubber to impress the design for dressy wear.

LESS UNIFORMITY SEEN IN NEW HATS

Less uniformity is noticed in the new hats than was previously the case. Besides the general tendencies already in vogue, there are new interpretations of Bretons by Agnes in grosgrain and rayon satin ribbons with hand-work on the crown. The crowns of her Abyssinian Negus hats are shaped something like a tiled roof and her Chinese caps are extremely pointed. Talbot shows little Flemish bonnets that are very cute. Among the Catherine de Medici coiffures and Reine Margot bonnets at Marie-Alphonse's are models in crocheted rayon straw with open work, others in laize of silk cellulose film and bright straw of this weave.

New Colors and Materials for Women's Spring Shoes

New colors, contours and materials are making the spring shoe styles as exciting as the costumes they complement. Mannish pumps, strap sandals, ghillies and peasant type shoes with heels of all heights are only a few of the modes that will be represented in fashion's march. Graceful variations of the Cuban, continental and boulevard heel, in both built-up and covered models, will direct new attention to the back view of shoes.

Polka Dots

You can't down polka dots in the spring. Even so great a designer as Mainbocher uses them in a new dinner ensemble. The material is navy crepe de chine dotted with white, the same fabric in red and white marking the underarm seams and making a wide waistband. A finger tip mandarin jacket accompanies the dress.

High-Waist Corsets

Corsets with a definitely higher waistline are being designed in Paris to wear under the directoire evening gowns of the styles shown in recent Paris openings.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for May 24 BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 30:45-47; 31:1-36.
GOLDEN TEXT—In your patience possess ye your souls.—Luke 31:19.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Gift That Pleased Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—What Makes a Gift Great?
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Making the Most of Today.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Living for Spiritual Ends.

While this lesson is indicated as the quarterly Temperance lesson, and the various subjects suggested vary in their objective, a more logical theme would seem to be "Jesus Teaches in the Temple." No individual, city, or nation can truly build for the future that disregards what the Bible says about the future.

I. Jesus Warns Against the Scribes (vv. 45-47).
He had just dealt with the disbelief of the Sadducees. The scribes claimed faith, for they were the teachers of the law. They were, punctiliously exacting as to its literal observance. They had little understanding of the need of flexibility in applying its principles to human needs. They discovered that Jesus was teaching things contrary to their interpretations. Jesus taught that the law was made for man, and not man for the law. The scribes were publicity seekers, making parade of their wisdom. Sunday school teachers should earnestly pray that they may serve as true messengers of Christ, not as scribes, with only a head-knowledge of Biblical matters.

II. Jesus Makes Estimate of Gifts (Luke 21:1-4).
Amount counts for little (v. 1). While the rich cast their gifts into the treasury, and observers may have noted that the clasp and clatter of their coin indicated large giving, it is not likely that these gifts meant personal sacrifice or self-denial.

2. Inner conditions determine the value of a gift (v. 2, 3). In the sight of man the poor widow's deed was not worthy of notice. In the sight of God it merited the immortality of the Bible record. The two-mite gift of the widow revealed her love for God, else how could she spare her all? It revealed her faith in God for tomorrow, for how else would she be fed? It revealed her humility, for she did not withhold her gift because it was so little. Verse 4 is indeed revealing as to Christ's interpretation of the deeper meaning of gifts; for that and the present age.

III. Jesus Prophesies His Return (vv. 5-33).

1. The temple to be destroyed (vv. 5, 6). The temple was the pride and boast of the proud Jew. Such boasting called forth the Lord's declaration that "there shall not be left one stone upon another," a fact that had its fulfillment A. D. 70, when Titus destroyed Jerusalem.
2. The disciples' inquiry (v. 7). There can be no surprise that the disciples should ask for more information about future events. A corresponding verse in Matthew (24:3) should be considered.
3. An order of events was presented to them (vv. 8-24). Perhaps one would not so much say an order, as that he pointed out details on the great canvas of the future.
  - a. False Christs would appear (v. 8), some claiming to be the Messiah in his first appearing, and some in his reappearing. These make their appeal to such as are not rooted and grounded in the faith. "Go ye not after them."
  - b. Inevitable wars and commotions (vv. 9, 10) will embroil the nations. "Commotions" signifies tumults, in the absence of war, wrangling within national life, or between nations. The restful follower of Christ is to "be not terrified."
  - c. Violent persecutions were foretold (vv. 12-19). The believer of today should absorb the meaning and teaching of this marvelous passage of Scripture. "Settle it in your hearts" that Christ will be to his own even as to the tempest-tossed disciples on Galilee, when he said "Peace, be still." And in this connection he spoke the words of the golden text, "In your patience possess ye your souls."
  - d. Appropriate Warnings (vv. 34-36).

The grosser sins may not ensnare the believer, but how subtle are the cares of this life. But upon the drunken, the obscene, the frivolous, and upon the follower of Christ alike shall trials and perplexities come. Watch ye therefore, always; pray, always. Only so shall the child of God be ready ("worthy") to escape, and to stand before the Son of God. Benediction is pronounced upon "those who love his appearing."

Christianship Worship
All Christian worship is a witness of the resurrection of him who liveth for ever and ever. Because he lives, "now abideth faith; hope, charity."

The Greatest Gift
You propose to give up everything for God. Be sure, then, to include yourself among the things to be given up.

Talent and Character
Talent forms itself in solitude; character in the press of life.—Goethe.

Divided Skirt and Shorts Combination That Equips the Young Lady for Sports

PATTERN NO. 1875-B

You know yourself that half the enjoyment of any sport is spoiled if you aren't correctly dressed, and really there's no excuse for not being equipped for any active sport when a model such as illustrated is so easy and inexpensive to make. The divided skirt is suitable for golf, tennis, bicycling, riding and hiking. It assures plenty of room and comfort, buttons on the side and supports the most youthful blouse. Note the sports pocket, Peter Pan collar, raglan sleeve, and dainty feminine bow.

Instead of the divided skirt, you may have shorts if you prefer, for the pattern is perforated at just the proper length. Notice the small sketch. Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1875-B is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 16 (34) requires 4 1/2 yards of 35 inch fabric. For shorts only, 3 1/2 yards is required. Send 15 cents for the pattern. Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 867 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill. © Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

Pigeon Brings in an SOS; 17 Men Are Rescued at Sea

Officials of the Freeport (N. Y.) Boatmen's association have disclosed that 17 men were rescued from a stranded craft off Squaw Island recently after a carrier pigeon brought an SOS message to shore. The rescue was the first of its kind, as far as is known. Off West Island the Dawn, a 40-foot fishing boat, broke her exhaust pipe. A pigeon bearing word of the vessel's plight was released and flew 16 miles to the association clubhouse at Freeport. Rescue craft then were dispatched.

AMAZING NEW STOVE USES 96% AIR-4% FUEL

Housewives Everywhere Now Can Enjoy Modern Gas-Cooking Service At Low Cost, Thanks to W. C. Coleman's Invention

Utilizing the principle of carburation used in present day automobile engines, W. C. Coleman, noted inventor and pioneer manufacturer of gas-pressure appliances, has invented an amazing new cooking stove that makes its own gas from ordinary lead-free gasoline.

An ingenious device converts liquid fuel into vapor gas—then mixes it with fresh, live air so that the fuel, when it reaches the burner, is actually about 96% air and 4% vapor gas. This remarkable invention has effected fuel-saving economies which, combined with the heating efficiency of the Coleman patented Band-A-Blu Burners, makes the new Coleman Safety Range cheaper to use than wood, coal or kerosene. Housewives everywhere express appreciation for the convenience, safety, economy and beauty of a stove which provides cooking equaling that of the finest city gas range.

Readers of this paper wishing full information about these wonderful Coleman Ranges will receive beautifully illustrated literature and a valuable stove check chart by addressing a postcard to Mr. W. C. Coleman, Dept. WU-237, Wichita, Kansas.—Adv.

Dealing With Others

THE longer we live the more we shall need to deal kindly with the limitations of others. Many are doing their best, even though there are some things which they cannot do very well. Parents, teachers, employers, and all the rest of us need to be patient and kindly when we face the limitations of our friends and loved ones. Criticism will not help. "Nagging" will be out of place. Let us take certain limitations for granted, and move on with appreciation of all the other good things we find in friends.—E. B. Allen.

Loggers Cut Down Giant Spruce 405 Years Old

Cathlamet, Wash.—A gigantic spruce tree, one of the largest ever cut in Washington, was felled by Jarnesen Brothers, logging contractors, near here.

The tree was 11 feet in diameter where it was cut, 10 feet from the ground. The first sawlog, 16 feet long, scaled 11,000 board feet. The top of the stump showed it was 405 years old. Jonas Larsen and Pat Jacobsen felled the forest giant after a day and one-half of work. It took John Ashley six and one-half hours to cut the log in two the first time.

EDITORIAL

Do You Appreciate Good Writing?

Not so many years ago people considered themselves lucky indeed if they had a few books to read. Good reading was scarce and people appreciated what they had.

Today our libraries are filled with the writings of Emerson, Poe, Whitman, Hawthorne, and many other famous writers. The books, besides being very interesting, contain the thoughts and ideas of these famous men and give us something to set our minds working. When we do read a book, we scarcely stop to notice the author's name, and seldom indeed do we try to find out anything about the author's life so that we can better understand his book. Many excellent writings are today at our disposal. And do we make use of them? Not Students feel that they are "picked on" because they have to read a few of these for book reports when in reality they are very lucky to have them to read.

Can't we appreciate a little more the really good literature we are able to get and have pride in knowing the better books and something about their authors?

Letters Received

The third graders have received letters, a pamphlet, cotton seeds, cotton balls, and pecans from Cotton Valley School in Texas. They answered the letters and sent a bouquet of arbutus to the Texas children.

Reporters Report News

The third grade has decided to have a news staff of their own, Elaine Ostrom, Eugene Barber, and Katherine Blossie were the reporters last week and a new group has been chosen for next week.

Signs of Spring

In the sixth grade room a cecropia moth came out of its cocoon during a geography class recently. It was taken around for the other rooms to see before being liberated.

Three black swallowtail butterflies also "came out."

Moving Pictures New Style For Assembly

The high school assembly was entertained Monday afternoon by a very interesting sound moving picture entitled "Mysteries of the Deep" accompanied by an animated cartoon. It was sponsored by the Louis-Chapin Business School at Traverse City. Mr. Spees, the field representative, introduced the picture, and afterward met with the seniors interested in business courses. This was the third moving picture shown in assembly in the last three weeks. It is a type of program that always meets with the approval of the student body.

Oh John, screamed the excited woman driver, the car is running away. Can you stop it? asked the worried husband.

No.

Well, then, see if you can't hit something cheap.

Dad, said the kid; what is personal liberty?

It's what a man exchanges for a wife, son, growled his dad.

What is more dangerous than a road hog full of corn?

Try a Herald Want Ad for Receipts!

The second graders have a live toad in their room in connection with nature study.

School Sees Movie

Thursday afternoon the grades and the high school had the pleasure of seeing the motion picture "The Story of Louis Pasteur" at the Temple Theatre which proved to be very worthwhile. It was sponsored by the local P. T. A.

Interesting facts about Pasteur's experiments to prove his theories were revealed.

WHO'S WHO

Ernest John Rude

Whenever we think of Ernie we also think of pencils and paper, for seldom has he been seen lately without that equipment. The explanation is that he is secretary-treasurer of the senior class, and if you don't know what that means just ask one of the seniors how many times he has had to sign his name on that slip of paper for pictures, invitations, name cards, etc.

A farm a few miles south of East Jordan marks the place of Ernest's birth to Mr. and Mrs. John Rude.

He is one of the "little kids" that used to come to this school in that green, horse-drawn wagon bus in summer, and you must remember the little white sleigh bus with the smoke stack and tiny square windows which was used in winter. When asked about it Ernest said, "Boy, those were the good old days," but that isn't saying he doesn't like the present means of conveyance.

Ernie is very interested in work connected with agriculture, and has been president of the F. P. A. for two years. Last fall he was sent to the F. P. A. Convention in Kansas City, and he has won various prizes on the potato exhibits at the annual county and regional Potato and Apple Shows. He has also been a member of different judging teams such as seeds, apples, and potatoes.

As for sports, Ernie is pretty fond of all of them but right now he is playing on the high school baseball team.

"Wouldn't be hard to guess that dancing is among his — shall we say hobbies — even though Ernest refused to reveal any more about himself, quite and retiring boy that he is.

We have an idea that Ernest will take up something in the line of agriculture.

Lois Mae Rude

"Make it short" was the sole injunction our modest, twinkling-eyed editor gave when she heard that her biography was to appear in the "Who's Who" this week.

Born in 1928, Lois had a disposition hardly less sunny than that bright August day on which she arrived. And she has favored the East Jordan Schools with it all during her student days.

Besides taking second honors in the class and holding the responsible position of "School Bell" Editor in her senior year, Lois has belonged to the glee club, participated in debating, oratory, and dramatics and played the role of "Ma Harrington" in the Junior play "The Patsy."

Next year, unless Lois decides she is more interested in journalism, she will take up teaching at Central State Teachers College at Mt. Pleasant.

Guy Edwin Russell

Guy might well be called a "man of few words" for it was very difficult to pry anything about himself from him. Perhaps he thought we should know from observation that he is the seniors' "skyscraper" — about six feet — and that accounts for his having played center on the high school basketball team, as well as his nick name.

"Spike's" achievements in athletics are numerous. He has the best high jumping record in the school and has been a valuable man on the track team for four years. He was out for football this year and is now serving as pitcher on the baseball team.

Not only in athletics, however, does he excel, but also in mathematics. It takes more than advanced algebra, geometry, or even physics to "get him down."

Guy, by the way, is the son of Thomas and Harriet Russell, and was born on November 29, 1917.

Gayle Bradley Saxton

The "Spider" you saw running over the floor at basketball games, on the field of football and baseball games, also at track meets, was born, June 25, 1918 at East Jordan, to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Saxton.

He says he has gone through the grades and high school here but even yet he hasn't any favorite subjects. We must not fail to mention, however, that he is very good in mathematics, and ranks in the upper part of his class scholastically.

Football is his favorite sport; yet his hobby is making a baseball scrapbook.

"Spider" hasn't any definite plans for after graduation, but based on his good marks and athletic training, we might make a good guess.

Videre Est Credere

Should lip-stick towels be furnished for the over supply of lip-stick instead of the shower curtains in the girls' rest room?

Instead of one 4-H meeting announcement on one end of the board and a Boy Scout announcement; they must have decided to get together on it; anyway the announcement "Joint 4-H and Boy Scout meeting" is on the middle of the board.

The tenth grade literature class has gone in for drama — "Ha! ha! ha!"

The town has been honored by the band playing a piece on the streets the past week.

The warmer it gets, the fewer students in classes — even to Mr. Roberts.

The old tradition of carrying down Latin books from year to year no longer holds true; a new book was given to each owner of an old one. What's the matter Miss Cook?

I'll wager the first one that turns a certain fountain on in the morning gets a surprise — unless he's trained to expect it. How we all love it!

Mary Jane got her annual bath in the Home Ec. Class.

Is the E.J.H.S. sprouting little CCC boys? Oh, no, it's just the girls and horticulture classes trying to hide the school in underbrush.

What did everyone first think of when they saw Thelma Looze with a bunch of envelopes in her hand?

"Why was Shakespeare ever born" is the cry of English II students.

You'll have to go some to catch Ed Stanek girls; he's Cohn's best man on the track team.

Is that sticker on the study-hall window just another relic of the school or are we really supposed to vote for Fitzgerald now?

Well, the Latin II students had their banquet Tuesday, May 12 — or rather their picnic, for the diners were required to eat with their fingers and to bare their feet.

Why all the sudden rush to Walloon?

Just a little economic problem — why not let the manual training students who find too much time on their hands work on the new building?

Has the Athletic Association a pull to be able to give a dance in the middle of the week?

Why are the masculine members of the junior and senior classes smiled on so sweetly lately?

One never knows what chance he's taking when he sits on one of the chairs in the commercial room.

Music Dept. Participates In Traverse City Festival

Band, Orchestra, and Glee Club Represent East Jordan

Of course, everyone is well aware of the fact that Saturday, May 9, was the big day for the high school band and orchestra under the direction of Mr. Ter Wee, and the Girl's Glee Club, directed by Miss Scott. You would have reason to believe that "school was out" if you had not known that the four big bus loads were bound for Traverse City to participate in the Festival there. Bands from nine different schools were supposed to have attended but two of them failed to appear. Six orchestras and five glee clubs assembled to add celebrity and gaiety to the occasion. It was an all day affair with programs scheduled for morning, noon, and night. One of the most interesting features was the massed band which played under the direction of Mr. Conway Peters, guest conductor and critic judge.

Mr. Ter Wee received many compliments on the band's playing and marching ability and was told at the Director's Conference that the East Jordan band was the best one present, considering the size of the school. Bud Porter's drum majoring and Ruth Bulow's saxophone solo were received with much applause.

The school provided for the delegation's supper, which was indeed a very palatable one, and added to the success of the affair.

Tell your son about ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Tell Him What You've Found to Be True

- Tell him of the value, educationally, he will derive from reading this noted feature writer's historical articles as they appear regularly in this paper. He will probably say: "Sure, I like history, Pop, but..." But too often it's ponderous and drained of the vitality that makes history the stirring story that it is. Then reveal to him the skill with which this man makes dramatic phases of his country's history read like lively fiction.
- Show him that Mr. Watson's articles sometimes digress to other fields of American interest—to popular science, sports, the fine arts, industry, literature—to developments that will MAKE history... but read like romance.

You can feel secure in this guidance of your child's reading because Elmo Scott Watson's articles always are authoritative and are based upon the most painstaking research. In addition to writing these special articles, Mr. Watson serves as an instructor in feature writing at Medill School of Journalism, Northwestern University, and is co-author of a new book on the subject that has been adopted as a textbook by leading journalism schools throughout the nation.
