EAST JORDAN, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1936.

NUMBER 45

A Landslide to Roosevelt

NATION GIVES ROOSEVELT ADMINISTRATION HEAVY ENDORSEMENT

Charlevoix Co. Republican

Entire County Republican Ticket Receives Good Margin

Riding high on an unprecedented wave of popularity, President Roosevelt was returned to office for another four years in Tuesday's election by the largest vote ever given a presidential candidate.

Returns to date indicate he has won or is leading in 46 states. There is also a fair prospect of his having an increased majority in the House already strongly Democratic.

Returns from Michigan indicate strongly that Michigan will have another democratic Governor as Frank Murphy is leading Gov. Fitzgerald by a substantial majority.

Michigan will also have a Democratic representative in the upper house at Washington in the person of Prentiss M. Brown of St. Ignace.

Republican candidates for re-election Douglas Tibbits for state representative and Otto W. Bishop for state senator have been returned to office.

Charlevoix County Republican candidates were all successful by substantial majorities.

Heavy Vote in County

Comparing the vote on governor of two years ago (1934) with that of last Tuesday, indicate there were at least a thousand more ballots cast this year than in November 1934.

This year the vote on Governor in Charlevoix County totals 5369 for the two major parties against 4359 in 1934.

In Boyne City the vote is 1168 against 837 for 1934.

In East Jordan, 756 against 659.

Amendments in County
Fifteen precincts out of Charlevoix County's 25 reported Wednesday that all four amendments were being turned down by a better than 2 to 1 vote.

The clearest word available on the European outlook is "It all depends." And if someone asks, "Depends on what?" who, that again depends.

75 Exhibitors Win Over $200

ANTRIM-CHARLEVOIX POTATO AND APPLE SHOW OUTSTANDING EVENT

The Antrim-Charlevoix Potato and Apple Show held in the East Jordan High School Saturday, October 31, proved to be a success from every angle. In spite of the fact that it rained all afternoon and evening, and the road conditions were terrible, folks attended the banquet and enjoyed a wonderful program. The weather conditions were such that it was very difficult to obtain good show stock, but nevertheless the quality was way above average, especially in the 4-H Club and Smith-Hughes competition. In the 4-H Club department alone there were 34 club exhibits. In the Smith-Hughes division, 10. If there is anything worth while in a show of this kind it is the encouragement and development given the young boys and they certainly do respond.

The apple department attracted considerable interest. The exhibitors this year did not have the quantity, but concentrated on fewer displays, all of which made the exhibition one of the very best held any where in the state.

Not to be outdone, the program with such headliners as Prof. H. C.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Trade Balance for Nine Months Is Unfavorable—Mrs. "Wally" Simpson Gets Divorce—Goering Launches Nazi Economic Plan.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union

EXPORTS of manufactured goods and raw materials exceeded imports into the United States during September by more than four million dollars, according to a report released by Secretary of Commerce Roper. But the flow the other way was so strong during the previous three months that the country suffered an unfavorable balance of trade during the first nine months of the year amounting to $33,136,000. This is in contrast with a favorable balance of $86,496,000 in the corresponding period of 1935.

Roper minimized the situation, declaring that heavy exports of raw cotton, tobacco and automobiles would probably bring the trade balance more into line with previous years. Pressed for further explanation Roper insisted that "our government as such does not compete with other governments in the selling of goods," and this was the province of private business. On reciprocal trade agreements he was mum.

"We'd like to end the year with a favorable trade balance, naturally," he said, "but we are going through a period of study and readjustment in world trade."

In fact, Roper found the increase in import trade to be "encouraging." He said that it showed our industries were buying raw materials abroad for expansion of their production in this country. Heavy increases in wheat and meats resulted from the drought; according to Roper, rather than from the killing of six million pigs and non-raising of grain under the AAA.

UNCLE SAM'S nephews and nieces now number 128,429,000, according to the estimate of Director William L. Austin of the bureau of Census. The new figure, as of July 1, represented an increase of 908,000, or 0.71 per cent, since July 1, 1935. It was based on the number of births and deaths during the year ending June 30, 1936, and the excess of immigration over emigration.

Births exceeded deaths by 899,956 and the net immigration was 8,044, according to the data taken by Austin. The population figure on the basis of the 1930 census was 122,775,046, and the biggest annual increase since then was 1,022,000, for the year ending July 1, 1931.

The bureau of agricultural economics also has been doing some population estimating. It says the back to the farm movement of the depression years has halted and that the farm population remained practically stationary during 1935, being 31,809,000 at the end of that year. This figure, the bureau says, was only slightly greater than in 1920 and "somewhat less" than in 1910.

PROCEEDINGS lasting nineteen minutes in the court of assizes at Ipswich, England, sufficed to give marital freedom to Mrs. "Wally" Simpson.

Justice Sir Anthony Hawke heard neatly arranged evidence of the infidelity of Ernest Simpson, who was not represented, and gruffly gave a decree nisi to the attractive American woman who has been and is the close friend of King Edward VIII. For six months she will be on probation, technically chaperoned at all times, and if her behavior satisfies the king's proctor she will be unqualifiedly free April 27 to marry again. Whether or not her new husband, if she takes one, will be King Edward is a question that only time and the two persons most directly concerned can determine.

Mrs. Simpson returned from Ipswich to her London residence on Cumberland terrace, Regents park, and there told interviewers that she was angered and humiliated by the international sensation her divorce has caused. She said she might go abroad for a time but that she would never return to the United States because of "all the nasty things" said of her here.

The week, a radical London weekly, was the first English newspaper to carry an open reference to Mrs. Simpson's friendship with King Edward. The article was at the same time a denunciation of the American press for giving the story such prominence and of the British press for suppressing it entirely. It also made it clear that there would be widespread opposition to a marriage between Edward and "Wally." Papers from Paris and elsewhere outside the United Kingdom have been in great demand in London, but of course the vast majority of the English people know nothing about the affair.

SPURRED to quick action by the new accord between Germany and Italy, Leon Blum's popular front cabinet approved a large increase in France's military air force, already reputed to be one of the most powerful in the world. To modernize and build up the aerial squadrons the government will spend $230,000,000 at once. It was reported, too, that the cabinet decided to ask parliament to vote extraordinary funds for the fortification of the northern frontier because of Belgium's reversion to a policy of armed neutrality.

BENITO MUSSOLINI rattled his sword again on the occasion of the fourteenth anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome. "The Italian people," he proclaimed, "today are ready and determined to defend as never before—with all their force right up to the last drop of blood—victory and empire."

As for Fascism, he said, "When it finds obstacles in its path, it throws itself against them and burns its bridges behind it."

NOT to be outdone in martial gestures by other nations, Japan trotted out her entire navy for review by Emperor Hirohito. It was the greatest fleet ever brought together in Asiatic waters, comprising 108 warships aggregating nearly 700,000 tons and manned by 40,000 men. Large numbers of aircraft also took part in the evolution in Osaka bay.

GEN. HERMANN WILHELM GOERING, German minister of air and now the director of the Nazi four-year economic scheme to make the reich independent of the rest of the world in raw materials, launched his program at a great Nazi rally in Berlin.

"We shall hack finger after finger off the foreign hand clutching at Germany's throat within the next four years," he declared. Outlining his plans, Goering said no German had starved, nor would starve. The high seas fishing fleet will be increased, he asserted, so the people can eat fish when meat is not available. Whale fishing will be developed for the margarine it can produce, he promised.

Goering urged all Germans to follow the example of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler who, he said, eats neither meat nor butter. The audience yelled with delight when the robust Goering told them he had lost 22 pounds by eating less butter.

Germany would prefer the old system of international exchange of wares, but this now is impossible in a mad world, so Germany will build her factories, produce her own synthetic rubber and her own substitutes for cotton and other materials for which she now must spend millions of dollars yearly, the general declared.

MANY American travelers join the English in mourning the death of Sir Edgar Britten, commander of the great liner Queen Mary and commodore of the Cunard White Star lines. He was stricken with paralysis in Southampton and died within a few hours. Sir Edgar was sixty-two years old and first went to sea as a lad of eighteen in sailing ships. He was knighted by King George V in 1934.

EIGHT armored cars escorted by armed private guards and state police, carried a fortune of $25,000,000 from the estate of the late Col. E. H. R. Green in South Dartmouth, Mass., to the First National bank of Boston.

The fortune, which consists of the famous coin collection, valued at $5 millions; the stamp collection, valued at $3½ millions; a large amount of cash and securities, and a quantity of uncut diamonds, has been under constant guard at the Green home since his death.

BEFORE taking a recess of two weeks the United States Supreme court announced that it would review and hand down a decision at this term upon the Wagner labor relations act. Many lawyers believe this law will be held unconstitutional, for in the Guffey coal act decision the Supreme court held that the relationship between employers and employees was local and beyond the power of congressional regulation.

SECRETARY OF LABOR FRANCES PERKINS announced that the third national conference on labor legislation, designed to stimulate the raising of work standards through federal and state co-operative efforts, will be called into session in Washington on November 9, and will last three days.

JUST about everything necessary to a general European war is now ready. At this distance it seems that Josef Stalin, dictator of Soviet Russia, will be the man to fire the starting pistol; and he is reported to be convinced that another great conflict is unavoidable. The nations of the continent are lining up as Communist or Fascist, either in the constitution of their governments or in their active sympathies. The immediate occasion for their disputes is the civil war in Spain. Nearly all the continental governments and that of Great Britain joined in an agreement of nonintervention, but that pact is about played out. Russia, accusing Portugal, Germany and Italy of aiding the Fascist Spanish rebels, has denounced the agreement and declared she reserves freedom to help the Madrid government; the accused nations deny the Soviet charges, and the nonintervention committee voted that Italy and Portugal were not guilty, the accusations either not being proved or referring to what happened before the international agreement went into effect. Italian counter-charges, detailing 20 alleged acts of Russian aid to Spanish Socialists were laid before the committee for action.

Portugal severed diplomatic relations with the Madrid government, and the representatives of the two countries were recalled. Dr. Armando Monteiro, Portuguese foreign minister, followed up this action by sending to Lord Plymouth, British chairman of the nonintervention committee, a long document accusing Russia of having planned and brought about the Spanish civil war. He named the Russian diplomats, agitators and soldiers who, he charged, were directing the operations. He alleged that Moscow sought to start a revolution in Portugal and thus provide a base for attacking General Franco's insurgent forces in the rear.

Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy have buried their differences for the time being and reached an agreement on a united policy. This was outlined in a communique published after Italian Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano had conferred with Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler. In the first place Hitler and Mussolini inform the world that they intend to recognize the insurgent government headed by General Franco as the legitimate regime in Spain, but they promise to respect the terms of the nonintervention agreement.

Other important declarations of policy by the two states are:

1. Co-operation to protect the peace of Europe and "the holy riches of European civilization" and family life.
2. Endorsement of a conference to rewrite the Locarno pact guaranteeing European borders, but only in the west. This implied that neither would agree to Soviet Russia's presence at the meeting.
3. Co-operation for the rehabilitation of the Danubian countries.

In one clause of the agreement Germany recognizes Italy's sovereignty over Ethiopia.

POPULAIRE, the organ of Premier Leon Blum's Socialist party, alleges that a shipment of sub-machine guns from the United States has been added to the secret armaments of the Croux de Feu in preparation for a civil war in France. The Croux de Feu, a Fascist organization headed by Col. Francois de la Rocque, was dissolved recently by the government and was succeeded by the new Social party.

Populaire, referring to the sub-machine guns, said these "terrible weapons used by American gangsters" arrived from America through the port of Havre and through Holland. The paper added that the weapons are being planted in caches in Normandie and elsewhere in the north of France. Furthermore, according to Populaire, great quantities of tear gas bombs and tear gas pistols are arriving from Germany for the use of the Fascists.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI, talking at Bologna, said that Italy's "olive branch grows out of an immense forest of 8,000,000 bayonets"; and next day at Imola he told 70,000 listeners that he hoped for long periods of peace, but not for "eternal peace, which is absurd and impossible."

"The Italian people, which gave its blood for the empire, is ready for any other trial when the crucial hour approaches," the Fascist chief shouted. "In order to make peace—just as to make love—it is necessary that there be two."

BELGIAN Fascists, known as Rexists and led by Leon Degrelle, clashed with the police in Brussels; and Degrelle was jailed for a night. He said the motive of his demonstration was to show that ex-soldiers were backing the Rexists, and he announced that he would carry out his threatened "march on Brussels" with 150,000 followers and overthrow the government.

SETTING a new world's long distance train speed record, the Burlington railway's streamlined steel Denver Zephyr made a non-stop run from Chicago to Denver in 12 hours 12 minutes and 27 seconds. The distance is 1,017 miles, so the average speed was 83.4 miles an hour. After crossing the Colorado border the train hit its top speed of 116 miles an hour, which was maintained for one mile.

FROM AROUND MICHIGAN

Kansas City—A Michigan State College—livestock judging team placed eighth in competition at the American Royal Livestock and Horse Show here.

Big Rapids—Minor work relief projects in Macosta and Osceola counties were halted by WPA officials to provide labor for the potato and apple harvest.

Mt. Pleasant—How would you like to walk around the world five times? Frank A. Owen, veteran mail carrier here has done the equivalent of that in the 33 years he has worn the grey uniform of Uncle Sam's letter carriers in Mt. Pleasant. He plans to retire this year.

Lansing—A vast majority of Michigan's deer hunters apparently are indifferent as to what license number they wear on their hunting coats this fall. Less than 60 low-number license tags were issued by the department. Several higher numbers have been reserved on request.

Hartland—In February, 1934, a cautious start in the manufacture of looms was begun here. The first year 50 were sold, surprising even believers in the plan. This year more than 1,000 will be marketed. In these figures is contained the story of the revival of spinning and weaving.

Grand Rapids—A "he-man" hobby show, the newest idea in exhibitions, will be held in this city early in January, fashioned after an exhibition held recently in Des Moines, Iowa. The show will consist of fine creative work done by men in their leisure hours. There will be hooked rugs, needlework, knitted things, hand-carved articles and various other types of handicraft.

Grand Rapids—Reports in the current issue of Forbes Magazine that Grand Rapids is one of the Nation's "sales high spots," are borne out by recent business developments. Berkey & Gay's furniture company, which reopened last year after a long shutdown, has announced that it will open Plant No. 3 this fall. The Michigan Bumper Co. announces plans to erect an addition which will add 25,000 feet of floor space.

Lansing—The first of the fall and winter trapping seasons opened in Michigan Nov. 1. Beginning on that date and continuing to Jan. 31 it is legal to trap opossum, skunk and badger throughout the state. In the upper peninsula muskrat trappers began setting their traps on Nov. 1. The muskrat season in the upper peninsula closes on Nov. 30. The open seasons on trapping muskrat and raccoon in the lower peninsula are staggered.

Grand Haven—The Highway Education Board announced in Washington that Dean Misner, a sixth grade pupil in the Central School at Grand Haven, was the Michigan winner in the eleventh national safety essay contest. The reward is a gold medal and a check for $15. The essay will be entered in competition with best essays from other states for the national prizes. The awards were made possible by the automotive industry.

Lansing—P. J. Hoffmaster, State conservation director, designated W. J. Kingscott, superintendent of State parks, as his representative at a regional conference on state parks to be held Nov. 13-15 in Missouri. Hoffmaster said Kingscott will deliver an address on trailer camps and the new problems they bring in regard to park roadways and service. He said about 50 per cent of all camps this year in Michigan parks were of trailer type.

Olivet—The strip of US-27 lying between Charlotte and Olivet, once an Indian trail, has been opened for traffic following several months of paving construction. At Five Points a gradual curve, has raised the grade 1.9 feet; thus slow-moving vehicles, such as loaded grain wagons take the old road which is left in certain localities for that purpose. There is less of valley and sharp curves on the new road and the distance between the two towns is somewhat lessened.

East Lansing—Michigan corn growers may not have realized it, but they have been playing in luck during the last two seasons when they thought climatic conditions were not in their favor. By turning on plenty of heat in May, June and July, Old Sol was doing more than make corn plantings huddle skyward, according to plant breeders at Michigan State college. The sun was baking the eggs and larvae of the European corn borers on the leaves and stalks, holding this pest in check.

Lansing—State government "men of science" will have a new kind of Christmas this year, for by that time nearly all of them will be under one roof for the first time in history. Centralized in one laboratory building will be analysts, technicians and biologists of several agencies that have operated separately in the past. The union will affect technical services of the Department of Health, State Board of Pharmacy, Department of Agriculture and Department of Conservation.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart
National Press Building
Washington, D. C.

Washington—I have been wondering whether the rank and file of the American citizens have been able to piece together the many loose ends of the distressing conditions extant throughout the world. It is to be recognized, of course, that when a man like Dictator Stalin of Russia makes a statement that war in Europe is just ahead, it awakens the peoples of the world with a sudden start. That is the spectacular side. But there is much more about European political conditions than is disclosed in the Stalin declaration.

The thing that students and observers of European affairs can see in conditions abroad, as they view them in the light of our own State Department's information, is that a gigantic battle is on between two schools of thought. On the one hand is communism. On the other hand, and just as firmly entrenched and as deeply determined, is fascism. Followers of these two lines of thought are both literally and figuratively at each other's throat, and the picture when pieced together, can lead to no other conclusion than that which Stalin foresees, namely, war.

I have lately heard some observers make the statement that the Spanish rebellion is the crux of the problem. I cannot agree with that. Spain and her revolution may prove to be the spark that ignites the European powder keg, but Spain and her revolution are just incidents in the developments that came originally from the overthrow of the Czar's government in Russia and the establishment for the first time of a commune of the proletariat in the world.

It was unfortunate for the world and for those people who wanted to promote peace at all times that the Versailles treaty had to take shape as it did. The Versailles treaty subjugated Germany beyond all reason. I think that will be accepted by all save the most violent partisans of the late President Wilson. It seems to me, however, that the Versailles treaty has proved to be the second stage in the chain of circumstances that led to Mussolini in Italy, Hitler in Germany, overthrow of the royalists in Spain, and lately the election of a "people's front" in France.

Any analysis of that chain of circumstances cannot fail to include the effect the Versailles treaty had upon European conditions. In some ways, the effect was direct; in others, it was indirect, and the full import of the treaty provisions were not evident until eight or ten or even twelve years after the four great powers had made that treaty effective and, they believed, effectually disarmed and bottled up Germany.

After many conversations with diplomats, foreign students and Washington government officials, I believe too much importance cannot be attached to the attempt made by the Versailles treaty to break up political jurisdictions. The treaty, it will be remembered, created a vast number of insignificant and rather helpless states in Europe. They were supposed to serve as a buffer between the larger nations and prevent snarling and making faces among those world powers that had engaged in the last war. The effect, it has now been proved, is exactly the opposite.

Throughout Europe, according to the official and unofficial word that I get, there is a new kind of hatred among nations. It is not the hatred that obtained between France and Germany under Kaiser Wilhelm. It is a hatred not between the statesmen of the various countries, but among the rank and file of the people. That is to say, it is a vengeful feeling and when that is understood, it is not difficult to realize how vicious the undercurrent of relations is from Russia on the north to the Straits of Gibraltar, or even into Africa on the south.

To bring this condition into today's light, one hardly need look further than the various cabled dispatches from European capitals; each telling a story how the respective governments are watching the Spanish revolution. Again, the Russian Stalin puts the thing into a spectacular relief. If reports can be accredited, and official information indicates that they can be regarded as having a basis of fact, Stalin is ready to lend assistance to the so-called loyalist armies in Spain.

Now the loyalist armies, representing the government that is barely holding on by the skin of its teeth, are wholly communistic. Hence, Stalin's interest.

But the Russian dictator might be regarded as horning into a mess that does not concern his nation, except for another and most important piece of information. That information, not officially confirmed but generally believed, is to the effect that Italy's Mussolini has a finger in the pie on the fascist side of the Spanish revolution. The rebel armies in Spain are fascists. Hence it is quite understandable how the Italian dictator may be mixed up in promoting, even extending military assistance, to the rebel Spaniards. Thus we have definitely a triangle that surrounds the peoples of Europe. Within the boundaries of that triangle are jealousies unparalleled, political propaganda of a sort never before unleashed on the world, and millions upon millions of people who may be classed as unthinking. They are of a type comparable to the lowest grade of American individuals who, while not wholly illiterate, cannot be accredited with the power to reason. They are being led into the very jaws of another war by wholly unscrupulous and unprincipled agitators who are posing as the friend of the common man. They are working on fertile ground.

Repeatedly, I hear questions asked concerning whether the United States is likely to get involved in that bottomless pit of Europe and, a kindred question, whether communism and fascism are gaining in the United States. The answer to the first half of that question must be made in two ways. We are likely to get involved unless some of our government policies are changed. But we can stay out if those policies do undergo revision. Whether we find ourselves embroiled in that horrible mess, depends entirely on the Washington government and the attitude of the Washington government appears entirely upon the attitude of the American people.

And that statement brings me to the most important observation that I have to make in connection with this discussion. It is now a definite fact that communists are spreading their propaganda through the United States in an effort to create a war spirit. It is the beginning of their movement to drag us into another world war and if we get in, it means the end of the American nation, as the land of freedom for us all. Our economic structure, as well as our government, will be destroyed. I have no hesitancy in making such a statement.

After the World war it took us twenty years to recognize what the cost of that war was. I mean the cost of disturbed lives more than I refer to money cost. The depression resulted from that war just as surely as the sun shines, and we are all now getting well fed up with this depression. And so I say on the basis of conclusions given me from countless authoritative sources, we cannot stand another war of the proportions of the World war and retain our government in its present form, our traditions, our institutions. There will be no preventing such a breakdown.

As I have said in these columns before, one particular criticism that I have against the Roosevelt administration is its capitulation to Russia.

Frankly, I believe Mr. Roosevelt was trapped. I believe he saw too late what the full meaning of his action was when he recognized Russia—that is, recognized his mistake, too late unless he believes in the doctrine of the communists. In any event, it is my firm conviction that the recognition of the Soviet opened the door through which now are marching hordes of men and women squint-eyed, unprincipled in character, unpronounceable names, ruthless in design. They are bringing the propaganda which I mentioned. This is not intended to be a scare story. The evidence of communistic propaganda probably is all about you in your own communities. It is subtle, cleverly handled. Sometimes, it is even very boldly done. For example, in many of the larger cities today, handbills in appearance like those that are used announcing a public sale, are finding their way into the playgrounds of public schools. Allegedly brilliant lecturers are going about the country making what appear to be educational addresses, but containing, in many instances, propaganda argument in support of the communistic theory.

There are many other types of this propaganda under way. Professor Rexford Guy Tugwell published a text book on government a few years ago and he has succeeded in getting that volume into the special list of books for Delaware schools. It contains declarations definitely opposed to the American form of government.

It is unnecessary to point out more of these things. The point is quite definite and clear. The movement toward communism in this country is proceeding slowly, cautiously, because the communistic leaders recognize American sentiment must be changed slowly, but the slimy head of the snake is coming out of the water and it will be much bolder if we become involved in the European struggle. Communists would make of us American citizens each and every one a communist and would throw us into the world struggle on the side of communism and against fascism.

Uncle Phil Says:

Will Not Recognize It

When we cannot find contentment in ourselves, it is useless to seek it elsewhere.

The man who has affection for you may be under an illusion, but, oh, let it never be dispelled. I slept, and dreamed that life was Beauty; I awoke, and found that life was Duty.

A word to the wise may be sufficient, but the wise frequently ask for further enlightenment.

Can't Fool 'Em

Don't argue to young people that the world is all wrong. They know better.

Strong, solid unbreakable friendship is the greatest thing in life. It's rare.

Happiness is the bird on whose tail you have to put salt in order to capture it.

A chronic knocker is angry when everybody agrees with him and he has to dry up.

Where He Wants to Be

A man generally shuns an invitation. Why? Simply because accepting, knocks him out of the dull, stupid rut he is always complaining of.

After opportunity has passed on by, it looks three feet taller.

Two perfectly useless complaints are of the weather and the fashions. Both are inexorable.

The dumb animals are the ones that live as wisely as they know how.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Greenhorn Hunters.

BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF.--

Now that the casualty lists are drifting in, there's talk of action to cut down the needless fatalities that mark every gunning season.

Greenhorns prowl the glade, firing at anything that moves. All who can afford hunting licenses and high-powered rifles are eligible. They rarely hit big game, but seem able to blast down humans at any distance. If it were permissible to mount guides' heads there'd be handsome trophies over many a mantelpiece in this fair but careless land.

Irvin S. Cobb

Once there was a Maine guide—so the old story runs—who got goshawfully tired of being shot at by city slickers. So he made a complete suit of broad awning stripes, alternately white and black. He figured that ought to save him, but, on his next trip into the woods, an amateur potted him the first shot.

At the inquest, the coroner said: "We know you didn't mean to kill poor Eph, but how in thunder did you think a man dressed like him could be a deer?"

"I didn't think he was a deer," confessed the remorseful one, "I thought he was a zebra."

Antics of "Automaniacs"

IT MUST indeed be true that providence looks after idiots and drunkards. Else how could all such be able to get drivers' licenses?

I rode with a prize specimen yesterday. He seemed lucid enough until he got his foot on the gas. That was what fooled me. If ever I ride with him again, which heaven forbid, I shall carry a lily in my hand—just in case.

We had a set of overcoat buttons, the top off of a stop signal and part of a gocart in our car when we arrived. So we didn't actually hit anybody, this being due, I think, to his holding dead on the mark instead of leading it by a few inches, as one should when one's target is moving. He hopes for better luck next time.

Yet there was no rush. There rarely is. And that's the funny part about an automaniac's reactions. It's the only funny part—the rest is tragedy.

The Simpson Affair

THE simple name of Simpson has become practically a household word in America, but 'tis said millions of English people haven't so much as heard it yet—or at least not in their public prints. It's another case of having to get away from home to hear the news.

If it's true, as exclusively reported over here, that his majesty invited a premier and primate—two of the highest cards in the whole deck—to mind their own business, he set the tune for the daily press of his realm to dance by.

However, the British newspapers never did develop the high arts of keyhole peeping and transom lifting to the extent practiced by a certain peculiar school of American journalism. With them, an Englishman's house still is his castle, though it be a glass house. Or even a royal palace.

But some of the London gossip-writers must be so swollen up with strangled copy they've probably had to have their clothes let out. Now, if haply 'twas purely a Yankee affair—instead of being, as it were, fifty-fifty—how those boys would love to cut loose.

A Job for the New President.

IF, in his first message to the next congress, our newly-elected President—should come right out and advocate the following things:

First—Taking steps to collect, or at least try to collect, what those defaulting debtor nations owe us; second—instructing the proper departments promptly to deport all aliens illegally admitted to this country and therefore here in defiance of our immigration laws; third—authorizing immediate action so that all unnaturalized communists and other foreign-born enemies of the government which shelters them—including especially such of these as are on federal relief rolls or hold private jobs to the exclusion of citizens—shall be put out of this country and kept out.

Well, if he did do those very things, there wouldn't be, as Adam Bede once said, a dry throat left among the kind of Americans I trot around with.

Urges Farmers to Store Machinery

Equipment Should Be Under Cover to Prevent Damage in Winter Time.

By Prof. E. R. Gross, Agricultural Engineer, Rutgers University.—WNU Service.
Thifty farmers have long recognized the value of storing their farm machinery after its season of use is over in a shelter that protects it from damaging effects of the weather.

Do not try to crowd machinery into a small space in the barn. Farmers who have tried to do this usually become discouraged over the extra labor of taking down the machines and outside storage is the result.

A simple structure of ample size which will keep out the sun, wind, rain and snow is all that is needed to house the farm machinery. Framing that is well braced and a good foundation are essential. Roofing and siding may be corrugated galvanized iron. Doors must swing or slide freely and be tight enough to exclude birds and animals. If high and dry, an earth floor treated with oil is not objectionable.

The cost of upkeep for a piece of machinery is also greatly reduced when such tasks as cleaning, listing needed replacement parts on a tag tied to the machine, and repainting or varnishing to save the finish and prevent rust are done at the time of storing or in the winter.

Vetch Aid to Orchards; Needs to Be Inoculated

Winter vetch is one of the state's best cover crops for orchards under bearing age, says W. R. Martin, Jr., of the Missouri College of Agriculture. It is not satisfactory in older orchards because the shade of the trees prevents any large production of a cover crop.

The most satisfactory seeding date is soon after the late rains begin. Normally, the seedbed should be prepared well ahead of seeding time. Best results are obtained if the seedbed is firm and free of weeds.

The vetch being a legume needs to be thoroughly inoculated before seeding. The use of soil in which winter vetch has been successfully grown is a satisfactory way of supplying this inoculation. When this is not possible, pure cultures of the proper bacteria can be obtained.

The crop will reach its maximum growth in early May. At that time its greatest value as a green manure crop can be secured by disking or plowing it under. By such a practice it is not unusual to secure a yield of organic matter equivalent to 15 or 20 tons of barnyard manure per acre. This will be in addition to the nitrogen added to the soil by the legume.

Facts on Milk Flavors

Although there are many factors which may affect the flavor of milk by the time it reaches the doorstep of the consumer, there are only two principal causes of off-flavors in milk at the time it is drawn from the udder. Perhaps the most common of these flavors is due to the feed eaten by the cow. Chief among the offenders in this group are weeds such as wild onions, ragweed, and bitter weed. Certain green forage and root crops such as rye and green alfalfa cause pronounced off-flavors in milk unless the grazing periods are properly spaced. Other green feeds affecting milk flavor are cowpeas, beef tops, rape, cabbage, turnips and kale, states an authority at the University of Kentucky.

Grinding Kafir

Grinding is a profitable practice in preparing some feeds for consumption by hogs, but it apparently is not economical in the case of kafir, offered in self-feeders. C. P. Thompson, animal husbandry specialist at the Oklahoma agricultural experiment station, found it took 440 pounds of ground kafir to produce 100 pounds of gain as compared with 438 pounds of whole kafir. Moreover, there was practically no difference in the daily gains of pigs self fed on whole kafir and those self fed on ground kafir.

HOW ARE YOU TODAY

DR. JAMES W. BARTON Talks About

Cod Liver Oil Heals Burns.

A NUMBER of years ago while examining the boys in a preparatory school it was interesting to watch the different youngsters go up to a table immediately after lunch and take a spoonful of cod liver oil from their own particular bottle. Thus cod liver oil was known to be a body builder for a number of years, but it was only in recent years that it was discovered that it was the vitamin D that was the important factor.

Dr. Barton

A couple of years ago it was discovered that in old diseased bones, if the dead bone were scraped out and the bone filled with cod liver oil, healing advanced more rapidly.

And now Dr. J. P. Steel, in the Lancet, tells of the good results he has obtained with cod liver oil in the treatment of burns and wounds.

Lint heavily soaked in cod liver oil was applied widely over the part to be treated and covered with a dressing. The dressing is left in place and re-soaked with cod liver oil every 24 hours, the lint not being taken from the skin surface until the end of 48 hours—a great advantage in extensive burns. Cases that have not done well under the ordinary dressings or were very slow in recovery, seemed to make a rapid recovery with the use of the cod liver oil treatment. Almost every patient has said that the first application of cod liver oil has given much greater ease than other dressings.

Good for Slow Ulcers, Too.

Dr. Steel has also used crude cod liver oil as a dressing in slow or indolent ulcers and deep scrapes in the skin, always of course letting the pus out (if present) before applying the cod liver oil. Pus should never be covered or smothered in; it should always be let out, or at least nothing allowed to prevent it from coming out.

Cod liver oil has been found of advantage in a great number of slow healing wounds. After the removal of pus or gangrenous (dead) patches of skin, the oil applied as above has brought about healthy granulation of the tissues and complete healing.

The above information should be helpful in many "slow" cases of wounds or deep scrapes in the skin.

How to Reduce Weight.

Such a large percentage of the population is overweight—20 per cent of the entire population and about 40 per cent of those at or past middle age—that the matter of reducing weight is now a popular or unpopular subject in many households.

The first point that every overweight who is really willing to do all possible to reduce weight must fully understand is that no matter how much overweight exists and how much effort has been expended in reducing weight in the past, much of the excess weight can always be taken off.

The only point of difference between one overweight and another is the rate at which the extra weight can be removed.

The fact that fat tissue holds a great amount of water, and that some overweighters drink much more water than do others often accounts for the fast or slow rate at which the weight comes off.

All that is necessary then is to first reduce the liquids until the body stops losing weight. As all foods contain water—10 to 98 per cent—there is no need for the great amount of water so many overweighters drink.

The next point is to use certain foods that will furnish all the needs of the body, but are not too rich in food or fuel value, and to avoid the rich fat and starch foods which, while good energy producers, are big fat storers.

The first foods to use are lean meats and eggs, which, while rich in fuel value, must nevertheless be eaten to maintain the structure of the different parts of the body. These foods are not only absolutely necessary to health but give a "satisfied" feeling to the individual on a reduced diet. Vegetables and fruits must also be eaten for although containing much liquid, they are needed to supply the minerals and vitamins the body needs.

The foods that must be avoided or very greatly reduced in amount are: cream soups, breakfast cereals, bread, potatoes, fat meats, cream, butter, sugar, nuts, dried fruits, rich dressings, and rich desserts.

By keeping in mind that meat and eggs must not be reduced although rich in food value; that cabbage, celery, lettuce, and radishes are good foods but bulky with little fuel value and can thus be eaten in large quantities; and that starch foods—bread, potatoes, sugar—are weight producers as are also cream, butter, fat meat and nuts, one has a working or practical knowledge of what to eat and what not to eat to reduce weight.

Wives, Know Yourself!

Accurate Analysis Will Do Much to Overcome Difficulty in Wedded Life

SPEAKING on the question of trial marriages, a well known writer said, "There should be no need for trial when two people know their own abilities and have measured themselves accurately. Two people who understand themselves will never, I believe, have any difficulty living happily together after marriage."

That is a new slant on the question of success in marriage, supplements a woman writer of national fame. Not "Know thy husband"—or "wife," but "know thyself!"

And, come to think of it, isn't most of the discontent and dissatisfaction in marriage traceable to ideas of ourselves—that may be misconceptions, no less than our illusions about the other person?

How many women's dissatisfaction with their husband has as its source the thought of all they gave up to marry him, all they "might have had" if they had married a certain other man?

How many women's discontent with the role of wife and mother springs from the thought of how much more fascinating pastimes they might have had if they had followed that career?

How many girls' impossible expectations of a fulltime lover and Prince Charming originates in an exaggerated notion of their own devastating beauty and charm?

If all discontented wives would look deeply into themselves, measure themselves, stop fooling themselves, many might discover that the other man they might have married is a self-nurtured illusion; that the career of their dreams is not a soft snap and a joy forever; but a grueling, exhausting job which might have worn them out if they had qualified for it, which they probably would have been unable to do; that they themselves are neither devastating beauties nor always charming, but women who are frequently disappointing and difficult to live with. They might discover and admit to themselves that they are greatly in debt to their husbands for many things that make life easier and better and more worthwhile—that they would not get along so well without them.

Then they might think more of doing their part of trying to make those husbands happy. And that effort on the part of one must inevitably go a long way toward a mutually happy and successful marriage.

PENINSULA

(Edited by Mrs. W. Hayden)

Mrs. Milton McClure of Benton Harbor arrived Sunday evening and spent the week with the F. D. Russell family at Ridgeway farm which was her girlhood home. Atwood Seeks Early Auto Plate Sales

In an effort to stimulate the sale of automobiles at the time when for years manufacturers have closed their plants to take inventory, Orville E. Atwood, Secretary of State, has written to proper officials of every state in the Union, notifying them that 1937 license plates were placed on sale October 21. He notified these officials that he would do all he could to cooperate with them, in the event they saw fit to release their 1937 plates early this year.

It is the belief of Atwood that labor in Michigan, as well as everywhere else in the nation where automobile or allied industries are located, will be immeasurably benefited by every move to overcome the seasonal slack in the automotive industry.

This is the second successive year in which motor vehicle license plates have been placed on sale on Oct. 21, Atwood pointed out when he set the date. It was made as early as practicable in order to aid the manufacturers in their drive to bring out models for fall trade. It was believed that with the placing of license plates for the succeeding year on sale coincidentally with the bringing out of new models, one factor of sales resistance would be overcome for the motor industry.

Deer Hunting Regulations
 The state conservation commission stands fast on its 1936 deer-hunting regulations. That, in effect, is what the commission told a delegation from Muskegon who asked that a commission order opening part of Muskegon county to deer-hunting this fall be rescinded.
 Similar requests from several other counties in an area which will be open to deer-hunting for the first time in years, have been rejected by the commission.
 Maybe the Wally romance could be handled by the embarrassed British press as a believe-it-or-not.

District Nurses Meeting

Thursday, November 5, at 8:00 p. m. the nurses of the Sub-District will have their business meeting in the Petoskey Community Building.
 It is hoped that all graduate registered nurses will be present. Officers for the year will be elected and plans for the remaining year will be discussed.

Deer

The State expects 30,000 to 40,000 more deer hunters will trek north this fall than in 1935. At least this is indicated by the number of resident deer hunting licenses to be distributed to dealers this fall. Last year about 90,000 deer hunters took to the field, an all-time record. This year 130,000 licenses have been ordered and it is expected that the dozen or more counties in northwestern Michigan which will be thrown open to hunters this fall will draw an extra quota of gunners this year. If the State's license sales materialize Michigan can look for the largest kill of bucks ever made and from all present reports there are plenty to go around.

How Bank Loans Make Communities More Productive

The farmer in arid regions draws water from an irrigation system to cultivate his crops.
 Commercial loans to business men for sound purposes, may serve a like purpose in stimulating production.
 This bank is always ready to turn the flow of its loanable funds into legitimate channels for the benefit of industry and the welfare of the community.

A Constructive Idea For Wearing The New Deer Hunters License Tag

Conservation men here credit Gerald Templeton, a deer-hunter of Holly, with the most constructive idea yet submitted in connection with the new deer-hunter's license tags to be used for the first time this season. Templeton will use a square piece of red cloth on the opposite ends of which he has sewed elastic shoulder straps as a background for his numbered license tag. The tag will fit squarely between the shoulders as required by law.

If weather conditions permit of light clothing or suddenly require heavy, warmer garments, Templeton can slip the red cloth easily over his back no matter what he is wearing. This makes a quick, easy change. When the tag is sewed on the back of the hunting coat and a change of garments is necessary, it must be detached and sewed or pinned on the coat to be worn.
 "Templeton's arrangement is entirely legal and it looks serviceable," commented H. R. Sayre, chief of field administration, department of conservation.

SYNOPSIS

Dr. Greeding, a wealthy and talented middle-aged surgeon, is possessed of seemingly supernatural powers. He is able to anticipate what people say before they utter a word; occasionally he can wish for something extraordinary to happen and have the wish fulfilled. Greeding meets Ira Jerrell, a wealthy business friend of his own age, who tells him he loves his daughter Nancy and would like to marry her. Dr. Greeding is pleased and tells Jerrell he has a clear field. Nancy, however, is in love with Dan Carlisle, an assistant professor at the University who has little means. They discuss marriage, but decide to delay talking to her father about it. Nancy, who has been playing tennis with Dan that afternoon, tells her father she had been playing with a girl friend. Greeding knows this is untrue and is secretly enraged. Stepping into his wife's room, his eye falls on a marble statuette which he dislikes. He picks it up, wishing he could smash it to bits. Suddenly it is snatched from his grasp as by an invisible force and burst asunder. Mrs. Greeding is greatly disturbed over the mysterious destruction of the statuette. The doctor makes light of it.

"He's a pauper, always will be. Or the next thing to it."
"Do you think that makes so much difference, Ned?" she urged gently. "And—after all, isn't that Nancy's business?"
"I won't have it," he insisted. "I shall make it my business."
"It's possible, you know," she reminded him gravely, "that you can't do anything about it. Nancy has a will of her own, and an income of her own, later, apart from you. From my father."
He said tensely: "Myra, what's got into you? You've always stood shoulder to shoulder with me."
"You've always done things I could agree with, and support," she replied. "But I think you would be wrong to oppose Nancy, if she loves Dan, without a better reason than the fact that he has no money. After all, his family is fine."
And she urged: "Finish dressing, Ned. We must go."
He started to speak, then held his tongue. He returned to his own room for vest and coat; and when he came back, she was ready.
"Twenty minutes past seven," she said. "We're supposed to be there at a quarter of, and it's half an hour's drive."
He said: "The others will be late. Wait." He had decided to

He cried: "I—" But she touched his arm.
"Hush," she protested. Some one knocked at the door, and she opened it. Ruth was there.

"Thomas wants to know will you want him to drive," she said in a resentful tone.

Doctor Greeding shook his head. "No, I'll take Mrs. Greeding's car," he answered shortly.

And Mrs. Greeding, before Ruth could turn away, keeping the servant near as a shield between them, touched his arm. "Come, Ned," she said. "We'll have to hurry."
So they went downstairs together.

He drove headlong, some of the fury in him communicating itself to the car. The Jordan home was in Winchester; and Doctor Greeding came to the Fellway and turned in to it to escape the slower traffic on the avenue.

Mrs. Greeding protested uncertainly: "Ned, you're driving awfully fast."

"You don't want to be late," he retorted harshly; and she shrank away from him.

A traffic-light halted them; and when it changed to green, the car beside them leaped ahead and cut in front of Doctor Greeding. His brakes ground to avoid a collision; and the offending car darted away. He said through clenched teeth: "The rat! I hope he breaks his neck!"

The other car was no more than a hundred yards ahead of them. Doctor Greeding heard like an echo of his words a loud explosion, and saw the other automobile lurch drunkenly to the right against the curb. It tilted up and over, and came down crashing. They were so close behind it that he had to jam his brakes hard down to stop in time.

Other machines penned them, and instantly there was a small jam of traffic, and a motorcycle officer swept to the scene.

Mrs. Greeding cried: "Ned, he must be hurt! Go see!"

Doctor Greeding got out of his car. His legs were stiff, yet shaking. His shoulders jerked convulsively. His brow was wet and cold. There was in him an incredible certainty hideous and horrifying, and yet in some dark fashion intoxicating and full of promise too.

He went forward to where the policeman had dragged the driver out of the wrecked machine. The man lay limp, motionless.

"I'm a physician," said Doctor Greeding briefly, and the policeman gave way to him. Doctor Greeding made a swift examination.

Then he stood up and brushed his hands; he spoke in a voice scarcely recognizable as his own.

"Nothing to be done. His neck is broken, Officer."

The man was dead. He was a middle-aged man, a little shabby. His was an inexpensive car. It was crushed and battered, now fit only to be junked. The man, fortunately, had been alone. Doctor Greeding, looking down at him, felt terror and contrition—and a dizzying sense of power!

The policeman asked at large: "Anyone see what happened?"
Doctor Greeding cleared his throat, steadied his voice. There was no more anger in him; but rather a quick caution.

"He was driving very rapidly," he explained to the officer. "He passed us at the last traffic-light, and cut in on me pretty sharply. Drunk, do you think?"

"No smell of booze on him," the policeman replied. "His front tire blew out when he hit the turn. I guess that's the answer." He produced his notebook and took Doctor Greeding's name and address, then turned to the others who had pressed around.

Doctor Greeding, at the first opportunity, returned to his car, took the wheel and moved away. He said nothing; but Mrs. Greeding watched him, saw his deep distress.

"Was he killed?" she asked.

The Doctor nodded. His brow was moist, his tones shaken. "Myra, his neck was broken!" he said unsteadily, and tried to laugh.

"That makes me feel—curiously guilty, almost responsible!"

She touched his hand reassuringly. "Ned, dear, don't be absurd!"

"I feel as though I'd wished it on him," he admitted.

"You're perfectly ridiculous," she urged loyally. "He was driving like an idiot. It just happened to happen right before our eyes."
"Poor devil!" Doctor Greeding muttered; and she looked at him in a secret astonishment. It was not like her husband to be thus senselessly disturbed; and she sought to turn his thoughts into another channel.

"You'd better hurry, Ned," she reminded him. "We're late already!"

So he drove on in silence; but he could not so easily dismiss this tragedy from his mind. Common sense told him that this was no more than one of those incredibly apt coincidences which occur in the life of every man; yet something deeper than common sense, something rooted in the very base and foundation of his soul, cried out against accepting such a simple explanation. He was trembling and shaken with a vast and perilous excitement, like one who stands before a closed door, long locked, in which now the key is fixed, waiting only for him to turn it, and open the door, and enter in.

Suddenly his hands wavered on the wheel, so that Mrs. Greeding caught and steadied it; and she cried sharply: "Ned!"

"It's all right," he said huskily. "I'm upset, that's all." And he added: "I've a mind to turn around and go home. I don't feel like seeing people."

"Nonsense!" she insisted. "It's what you need."

"Oh, I suppose so," he assented. But she watched him thereafter with an alert attention, till they came to their destination, where other cars were already parked, and alighted and went in. On the way up the walk to the door, she held his arm; her eyes full of solicitude, till he smiled at her reassuringly.

"I need a cocktail," he said. "That will pick me up."

And in fact, once in the house, greeting a dozen people in succession, he was swept out of his own distracting thoughts. He gulped a cocktail and another, and felt new strength flow into him. In the drawing-room he recognized, standing with Mrs. Jordan and two or three others by the hearth, Professor Carlisle, who was young Dan's father.

The professor was a small, lean, gray old man with clear blue eyes; and Doctor Greeding, with an impulse to cultivate the other as a possible ally against Dan and Nancy, crossed to speak to him.

As he did so, a young woman by the professor's elbow turned to watch him approach; and Doctor Greeding unconsciously paused as he saw her countenance. She was tall, her glance serene and steady. As though she marked his hesitation, there was a faint amusement in her eyes; but after that momentary pause, Doctor Greeding went on, and Mrs. Jordan welcomed him into the group and made introductions.

"You know Professor Carlisle, Doctor Greeding? And Mary Ann? I've put Miss Carlisle beside you at dinner, Doctor, so you can talk shop as much as you please!"

He shook hands with Professor Carlisle and with the girl. Mary Ann's hand in his had a strength which pleased him. He found her deeply, stirringly beautiful. At Mrs. Jordan's word, she smiled again; and Doctor Greeding echoed: "Talk Shop?"

But before Mary Ann could reply, Mrs. Jordan swept her away. Doctor Greeding and Professor Carlisle were left together. Doctor Greeding said casually:

"I've met your son, of course, Professor; but I didn't know you had a daughter too."

Professor Carlisle smiled fondly. "She doesn't circulate as much as Dan does," he assented. "She's a registered nurse—takes her profession rather seriously."

"That is apt to be a sporadic occupation," Doctor Greeding suggested.

"She was Doctor Homans' surgical nurse until he died," Professor Carlisle explained. "But since then—"

The exodus toward the dining-room began. Doctor Greeding found himself placed at Mrs. Jordan's right, Mary Ann on his other side. Mrs. Greeding was at the other end of the table, beside Professor Carlisle.

The effect of the cocktails the Doctor had taken began to pass, and memory of the tragedy he had witnessed so short a time ago returned to disturb him. By and by he heard Professor Carlisle at the other end of the table utter a word at once strange and vaguely familiar.

The word was poltergeist. It touched some chord of memory in him, and he tried to hear what the other was saying; but Mary Ann just then released herself from the man beyond her, and smiled and suggested:

"We don't actually have to talk shop, I suppose, Doctor Greeding; but we ought to say something to each other!"

He forgot his interest in Professor Carlisle. "Mrs. Jordan contrives these things so carefully," he assented in an amused undertone. "Gives us our cue. You worked with Doctor Homans, your father says?"

"For three years," she assented. He chuckled, curiously stimulated, forgetting for the present that man with a broken neck limp on the turf beside the road.

"I know your brother Dan," he remarked. "See him around the house occasionally. I expect you know Nancy."

"Oh, yes," she agreed. "Of course, I'm older than she." She laughed softly. "And our orbits don't cross very often."

She continued to talk to him, in a pleasant and diverting fashion, of a variety of matters; and Doctor Greeding responded, stimulated by her beauty and her wit. Once at something she said, he threw back his head and laughed so heartily that for a moment everyone else at the table was silenced.

He enjoyed this talk with Mary Ann, but when they rose from the table, he lost her; and thereafter, abstraction descended on him like a cloak. Mrs. Greeding came at last to his rescue, and they made their farewells. He was not anxious to go, had hoped to find himself once more near Mary Ann; and in the car, he said almost resentfully:

"Leaving early, aren't we?"

"I saw how tired you were," she replied, and added with a curious sidelong glance: "Though you seemed to enjoy yourself at dinner."

"Miss Carlisle is attractive, interesting," he assented.

She seemed about to speak, hesitated, said then: "I suppose you're still worrying about that poor man who was killed. But that's just silyly, Ned. Forget him." He nodded silently, and she sought some topic to distract him.

"Professor Carlisle was explaining to me about poltergeists," she volunteered in a sprightly tone. "I had told him of the statuette in my room being broken so mysteriously; and he said we probably had a poltergeist in the house!"

Doctor Greeding remembered. "I've heard the word, somewhere. 'It comes from the German," she explained quickly, grateful for his attention. "It means 'a racketing spirit'; and when there is one in a house, it throws stones, crockery, furniture—all sorts of things—all around everywhere."

And she went on hurriedly: "Professor Carlisle said usually these things happen where there is a young girl who is sick, or half crazy, or something." She laughed. "So I told him Nancy certainly wasn't either sick or crazy; and Ruth may not be so awfully well, but she's over forty and perfectly sane, and cook's fifty if she's a day!"

Doctor Greeding, in a sudden startled interest, asked in a careful tone: "Did Professor Carlisle offer any explanation of these phenomena?" His pulse, absurdly, pounded.

"Oh, he says there isn't any," she assured him. "He says such things probably don't really happen; that they're imagined, or faked, or something. Pictures can't just fall off walls, of course; and fires don't start by themselves."

He nodded vigorously. "Of course not," he agreed. "All nonsense!" But he had a sudden, vivid memory of a sultry summer day, a day in haytime. Himself a small boy in the mow, stowing away the hay as it was tossed up to him; his nostrils full of choking dust, stifled, miserable. He hated the work, the barn, the hay; he wished furiously for some manner of rescue from this toll.

And suddenly there was smoke in the air, and flames about his feet, and he leaped down out of the mow—and had need to work no more that day, but only to watch the barn burn merrily.

Mrs. Greeding's voice went on, an undercurrent to his thoughts: "Things don't just fly around for no reason."

And he said, surprisingly uneasy: "Of course not! All those yarns are pure fraud, or superstition. Myra! Old wives' tales! Or trickery! That sort of stunt is the stock-in-trade of professional mediums; but Houdini demonstrated that he could achieve, by natural physical means, every effect the mediums produce."

He exploded the whole faked!" "I know he did," Mrs. Greeding assented; but she added with inconspicuous and maddeningly logical stubbornness: "And of course I don't believe in them—in mediums. But the fact that Houdini could do such things by trickery doesn't prove that others couldn't do them by spiritualism, does it, Ned? I mean, just because I can tip a chair over with my hands doesn't prove that you can't tip it over by just looking at it!"

He said harshly, feeling himself accused, a sudden clutch at his throat: "I, Myra? Nonsense! I don't pretend to any psychic powers!"

"Of course not!" she cried. "I didn't mean you. I meant—anyone." And she added: "Professor Carlisle says there are so many things which couldn't happen, and didn't happen—and yet they did happen!"

"Tosh!" he protested. "Well, anyway," she declared, "I wish this poltergeist, or whatever it was, would put my statuette back together again."

Doctor Greeding did not like this conversation. It struck too close home. He turned into their own drive with deep relief.

At the door of her dressing-room Mrs. Greeding kissed him—good-night. "Now, don't worry about that poor man who was killed, Ned," she insisted.

He smiled ruefully, and he said: "I know it's absurd, but—I do feel responsible. I think I'll check up, find out whether his family is left in straits."

She said fondly: "You'd carry all the world's burdens on your shoulders if you could. Good night!"

Till she slept she could hear him moving about in his room next to hers. He had, in fact, no inclination for sleep. In pajamas and dressing-gown, he sat for a while trying to read, but the book failed to hold him. . . . It was of course absurd to suppose that his own wish could have caused that man's death; and yet Doctor Greeding was disturbed. There were emotions which poisoned a man's soul and his body too; could it be possible that hate and anger might sometimes be like deadly shafts projected into the world?

He himself was almost immune to these passions; he prided himself on this fact, and he thought regretfully of his anger of a while ago. So, seeing the cause of it, he remembered Nancy, and the problem she presented. There was a new kindness in Doctor Greeding tonight. Of course, he decided, if Nancy truly loved Dan, he would not want her to marry Jerrell; yet she might be led to weigh the one man against the other, might make for herself the wise and sensible choice.

It occurred to him inconsequently that if Nancy married Dan, Mary Ann would become like a member of the family; and that prospect had attractions. But his thoughts in the end returned to the dead man, and to the broken statuette; and he remembered at last what Mrs. Greeding had said about this absurdity of poltergeists. It was an absurdity; and yet he wished suddenly to be informed on the subject, and with this purpose in mind he went downstairs to select as the only ready source of information a volume of the encyclopedia.

Nancy came home while he was there, met him in the lower hall. She exclaimed: "Why, Father! Still up?"

He put his arm around her, proudly kissed her. She was beautiful, straight, slender, young and strong.

"I wasn't sleepy, Nancy," he confessed. "Came down to get a book."

She looked at the volume under his arm. "The encyclopedia! That will put you to sleep, certainly."

"Theater tonight?" he asked.

"Yes," she agreed. "With Judith Plank."

Magna Charta Signed by King John's Royal Mark

Every schoolboy knows that Magna Charta was signed by King John at Runnymede on June 15th, 1215, observes a writer in London Answers Magazine.

But every schoolboy happens to be wrong! Magna Charta was never signed at all—for the very good reason that King John was quite unable to write even his own name.

In this he was not alone. Most of the British rulers of that time—and those on the Continent, for that matter—were ignorant of the use of a pen.

And so Magna Charta bore at the foot an apparently meaningless mark which was called, perhaps to the secret delight of his Majesty, "the royal signature."

However, the barons made sure that there were plenty of witnesses to the "signing," and John would never have dared to repudiate his mark.

Only fragments of the original Charta remain, most of it having been destroyed by fire 200 years ago.

Standard Time

Prior to 1883 great confusion as to proper time existed. Towns and cities usually set their clocks by the sun. Under the standard plan the time throughout each zone is the same. The zones each represent roughly fifteen degrees of longitude, with variations that take account of local conditions. From east to west the time is one hour earlier in each successive zone. When it is 3 p. m. in the Eastern zone, for instance, it is 2 p. m. by Central time, 1 p. m. by Mountain time and noon by Pacific time.

The standard time scheme was proposed by Dr. C. F. Dowd, a New York schoolmaster, who worked for twelve years to have it adopted. It was finally put into practice on November 18, 1883.—Literary Digest.

Flat Furs Is Smart Trim for Suits

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IF YOU are planning a new coat, costume-suit or daytime frock of handsome broadcloth (great favorite this season) or one of the new silks that look like wool or any of the smart novelty woollens, accented with trimmings of flat fur handled in clever dressmaker ways, you do well. The idea is right in line with smartest current style trends.

One of the outstanding gestures in fashion's realm today is the lavish and ingenious use of such furs as Persian lamb, astrakhan, caracul and similar pelts, for borderings, for collars, panels, bib and plastron effects, for big revers and even for entire sleeves and novel pockets.

Also highly significant is the fact of a strong British trend influenced by the forthcoming coronation of King Edward VIII, that is evidenced throughout this season's fashions.

The models pictured carry the message both of British influence and the vogue for flat fur accents. They were selected from a collection of "classy" fashions presented by the style creators of Chicago in the wholesale district. The silk afternoon costume to the left is in royal wine shade, fashioned after the king's guard, trimmed in black astrakhan with typical old English collar, with three-quarter length coat of military bearing. The designful handling of the bordering down the front illustrates the intriguing manipulation designers are giving to the now-so-voguish flat furs.

The dress and cape-coat ensemble to the right is developed in a royal wine shade trimmed in smart black astrakhan with satin lined cape—a most charming costume for afternoon or street wear. The dress is tailored with long tight-fitting sleeves and also carries accents of astrakhan.

Chic versions of the very-new-flat-trimmed gowns are created of gleaming black broadcloth with a bordering of Persian lamb outlining the very full circular hemline and collar, from which extends a matching fur border all the way down the front from neckline to hemline. Wear one of the fashionable high toques of the same Persian lamb with a dress of this description for stunning effect.

The big hue and cry this fall is for gray-on-gray coats, the smartest types tending to the use of gray caracul or Persian lamb on rich gay cloths of sterling quality, although gray kidskin and grayish moleskin come in for a big share of the honors. The unique maneuvering of the fur adds to the zest of things. For instance a coat is apt to have a vestee that develops into a panel that travels the entire way down the front of the coat. Or perhaps the sleeves and the collar will be all of fur. The tricky ways of these stunning flat furs are too numerous to mention.

Cunning suits that sing a song of youth have hip-length peplum jackets with full "swing" skirts, all the edges being finished with bindings of the Persian lamb or caracul if preferred. These are fashioned of broadcloth, duvetyne or velvet. Black is first choice, although the autumn reds and greens and browns are competing most successfully for prestige. The latest thought is the fur-trimmed cloth or velvet dress sold with a matching fur muff.

LATEST CROCHET

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Buttons down the back mark this advance style. Many of the newer dresses are crocheted in a quick lacy stitch that is most effective yet does not exact a heavy toll of time and patience to bring to completion. The dress shown is crocheted of knit-cro-shewn and will hold its shape beautifully. It is just the type to wear under coats this winter, and it will blossom out next spring gaily and becomingly and smartly wearable without a coat. You can turn this dress around and wear it frontways if you really wish.

STREET TWEED SUIT HAS LONGER JACKET

The conventional street suit of tweed is made, this year with a longer jacket that is nipped in at the waist and then flares out in a basque. For country or sports wear, the more classic suit lines are used, length top coats shown over full or divided skirts. One house goes further and makes a bloomer dress of tweed. The dress is cut on severe, tailored lines, high at the neck and with long sleeves. Instead of a skirt, the dress ends in well-out bloomers, which come several inches below the knees. A seven-eighths sport coat of matching tweed completes the bloomer costume.

Silk Satins Outstanding Vogue for Autumn Wear

From morning to night during the coming weeks style-alert women will be wearing silk satins, judging from the emphasis accorded this fabric in the Paris openings. Plain and novelty weaves are both endorsed.

Sleek satin afternoon frocks under roodish broadcloth coats are especially good form. Satin blouses with wool suits are also in high fashion. Printed silk satin in a pin motif or printed in a filigree patterning are among the new showings. Eyelet embroidered satin is also a new feature.

New Stocking Note
After a summer of light beige stockings, black heels strike a note that seems fresh and new. They are two-thread chiffon, with black heel, sole and toes, and seamed with black thread.

Contrast Important
Color contrast is important this season in sports costumes, skirts and sweaters often being of different tones. Scarfs and belts also carry out color contrasts on knit.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for November 8

THE CHRISTIAN WARFARE

LESSON TEXT—Acts 19:3-12, 18-20; Ephesians 6:13-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. Eph. 6:10.
PRIMARY TOPIC—When Paul Preached in a Schoolhouse.

JUNIOR TOPIC—In a Schoolhouse to Ephesus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Weapons of the Christian Soldier.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Gospel Facing the Forces of Evil.

War, war! The whole world is war-conscious in our day. Nations are watching one another with suspicion, and in the meantime arming themselves for conflict. Hatred and suspicion are yife, and as long as sin rules the hearts of men we long in vain for peace, which cannot come until that day when the Prince of Peace himself shall reign.

Yet every Christian hopes and works for the peaceful solution of the nations' problems. Right thinking men do not want war between the peoples of the earth. But there is one warfare that we do seek to foster and promote. We encourage it, and as Christians make a holy resolve to battle to the end. That is the warfare against Satan and his hosts. As long as he rules in the hearts of men, and sin and wickedness are here, we say, "Fight on, my soul."

Christian life and service are presented in Scripture as a fight, and we do well to learn the methods and the weapons of this great spiritual conflict, not stressing a belligerent note of strife against one another, and particularly not between the divisions of God's army in the earth, but standing shoulder to shoulder in the battle against the Evil One.

Our lesson presents a picture of I. The Lord's Warrior (Acts 19:3-12).

Paul, who is now on his third missionary journey, comes again to Ephesus, the leading city of Asia Minor, and the center of the worship of the heathen goddess, Diana. He carries there for about three years.

Like a good tactician he began his campaign at a strategic point, the synagogue. He brought forward his God-given weapons, "reasoning and persuading." Some he won, others disbelieved—the sad fact which even this greatest of all preachers had to meet.

God attested his work by miracles. The soldier of the Lord does not go into battle alone. Nor does he fight in his own power. God gave him

II. A Mighty Conquest (vv. 18-20).

When a man's profession of faith in Christ carries with it an open forsaking of his confessed misdeeds—a true change of life as well as a declaration of belief—there has been real dealing with God.

Notice that they burned the bad books found in their homes, even though they were valued at thousands of dollars. Christian, how many books or magazines are there in your home now that minister only to the lowest in your nature? Oh, yes, they may be "literature," they may be in beautiful bindings; you may even read them "in the original," and regard the reading as cultural. But if they are bad books, are you ready to follow the Ephesians in destroying them?

Finally we have from Paul's letter to the Ephesians the glorious presentation of the Christian's

III. God-Given Weapons (Eph. 6:13-20).

This is a familiar, but none the less rich and instructive, passage. We have space to note only that there are (1) five weapons of defense; namely, the girdle of truth, the breastplate of righteousness, the shoes of peace, the shield of faith, and the helmet of salvation, and (2) one mighty weapon of offense, the sword of the Spirit—the Word of God. A glorious and impenetrable armor and equipment for battle!

But it will do us not the slightest good unless we obey Paul's admonition and put it on.

Christian, are you wearing and using "the whole armor of God"?

Judging From Appearance

Men in general judge more from appearance than from reality. All men have eyes, but few have the gift of penetration.—Macchiavelli.

God's Way

The strength and the happiness of a man consists in finding out the way in which God is going, and going in that way, too.

Acts That Bring Results

No act falls fruitless; none can tell how vast its power may be; nor what results, unfolded, dwell within it silently.—Bulwer.

A Friend, Indeed

Keep close to thy Best Friend, and He will refresh and cheer thee.—Spurgeon.

God's Holiness

We must not only bless God for all his benefits; we must rejoice in his holiness.—McIntyre.

Mr. Eggert saying "terrific."
 Frances Cain wearing a Landon and Knox pin.
 Fourth year English class writing ballads.
 Jean Bartlett fussing with her kerchief all day.
 Mildred Evans not wearing rouge and lip-stick.
 Jane Davis getting her fingers caught in the typing roll.
 Tommy Joynt getting "A's" in Modern History.
 Art Rude going to Boyne City to visit school.
 Edward Stanek writing "Knock-knocks" to the girls.
 Bob Winstone not "allowing for it."
 Eugene Gregory losing his temper in Farm Crops.
 Pauline Zitka not turning around in seventh-hour study hall.
 DuWayne Penfold not having streamlined hair oil on his head.
 Bud Porter being sick during hunting season.
 Eighth hour typing class being quiet.

SNOOPY SUE

Murel Pollitt, we take it that Mrs. Cohn doesn't like the way you use mirrors in 5th hour study hall. (Nor does the coach eh, Bob Kiser?)
 Did Dolly like your sitting with her, Art?
 What's the matter, Burl, did they leave you home?
 Why weren't you at the party, Ruth? Has Ellsworth that much of a calling?
 Kay, that's what you get for racing up the hill.
 The Juniors and Seniors are expecting to be treated to cigars and candy by "Scotty" and "Smudge".
 Still like "Green Gables" for a name, Bob?? Pretty eh?

SPORTSMANSHIP

The Sportsmanship Brotherhood Code is:
 Keep the rules.
 Keep faith with your comrades.
 Keep your temper.
 Keep yourself fit.
 Keep a stout heart in defeat.
 Keep your pride under in victory.
 Keep a sound soul, a clear mind, and a healthy body.
 Play the Game!
 If Mr. Cohn's team follows that code those teams are on the right path.
 Nevertheless, those rules do not apply only to the athletic department but to the school as a whole.
 Does each of you obey the laws (written and unwritten) of your school and home? Are you friendly and kind not only to your friends but everyone around you, or do you carry on spite wars? Can you keep your temper and a stout heart when you make a bad mistake at school or you lose a game? It's just as easy to apologize to the object of your anger or to realize that the other team was a little bit better, and then try harder next time. Most important of all can you keep a sound soul, a clean mind and a healthy body??
 None of us is perfect at any time. However, if you accept the helping hand held out to you by your parents and the school and try diligently to keep up to the standard of the code you will surely come out with a high average.
 Try to Play The Game!

COMMERCIAL CLUB

A Commercial Club is being started again this year and we hope that we have as much fun in it as we have had in the past years. The students taking any commercial work may belong.

IS THE NEW DEAL OFF OR ON

The question up for debate was: Resolved that the New Deal should be continued.
 Civics debates were held in Mr. Robert's civics classes Thursday afternoon.
 The first debate was fifth hour and was presented by Jacklyn Cook and Jane Davis on the Republican side, and Frances Cain on the Democratic side.
 There were supposed to be three students on each side but it seems

PROBATE ORDER

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix. In the Matter of the Estate of Frank E. Zitka, Deceased.
 At a session of said Court, held in the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix, in said county, on the 19th day of October, 1936.
 Present: Ervan A. Ruegsegger, Probate Judge.
 The above estate having been admitted to probate and Fanny Zitka having been appointed Executrix, It is Ordered, That four months from this date be allowed for creditors to present their claims against said estate for examination and adjustment, and that all creditors of said deceased, are required to present their claims to said Court, at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix, on or before the 1st day of March, 1937, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at which time claims will be heard.
 It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix County Herald a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.
 ERVAN A. RUEGSEGGER,
 Judge of Probate.

that they lacked nerve and material. The debate went off fairly well for so few speakers.

In the eighth hour class Arthur Cronin was chairman of the affirmative team and his colleagues Katherine McDonald and Donald Johnson. Alston Penfold was chairman of the negative team and his colleagues were Wylon Payne and Lorena Brintnall.

These students gave four minute speeches with two minute rebuttals. The material in the debate was well prepared and well handled. In fact it was too well done, and they aren't through yet.

AN INTERESTING MASTERPIECE

The 8-B English class, whose teacher is Mr. Heafield, has made a bulletin board. The boys and girls worked together in making it. Everyone in the class contributed towards it, by bringing in pictures and interesting illustrations for it. The bulletin board is very attractive and is in room 15 so everyone may go in and look at it.

HALLOWE'EN IN THE AIR

The grades all planned a Hallowe'en party for Friday, the 30th. They looked forward to it with much enthusiasm.

Mr. DeForest's room had an achievement test the first part of the afternoon and went on with their party. The other grade had their regular routine the first part of the afternoon also.

THE SIXTH GRADE NEWS

Miss Clark
 The Sixth-Grade girls and boys are going to save all the health pictures they find because next week they are going to make health posters. The best posters are to be taken to the fair next year.

They are also going to try and improve their vocabulary's. They all have notebooks, and each day they put in five different words and learn them.

They registered in Mrs. Larson's room, as they also voted on election day.

They have divided their class in half, and each week one certain half is appointed for the clean up committee. They pick up all garbage and papers, etc.

FOURTH AND FIFTH GRADE

Mrs. Larson
 The Fourth and Fifth Grades are going to have a Hallowe'en party Friday afternoon. Some of the girls and boys have brought electric poppers so they are planning on popping their own popcorn. The pupils are going to make their own napkins and plates.

The children have new blue reading books. They are called "Neighbors and Helpers."
 They have also a booth made for election. The Sixth grade is also going to use it election day.

FRENCH CLASS

This year Miss Kjellander, the second grade teacher, kindly consented to teach a class in French after school from 4:15 to 5:00.

The following students are taking it: Clara Wade, Jeanne Stroebel, Wylon Payne, Katherine Kitsman, Ruth Darbee, Stella Stallard, Virginia Stanek, and Thelma Hegerberg.

New books have been secured for the class and so far all the girls have immensely enjoyed studying them. The class hasn't decided whether it will do any work outside of the regular class work.

OBSERVATIONS

The students gave the football boys a good send off from the school house by having a few yells.

Mr. Ter Wee went to Grand Rapids so the band didn't go to Gaylord to play.

There was a teacher's meeting in the grade building so the French students had a class of their own.

The debate raged hot and heavy in the 8th hour civics class.

Students from the Junior class were trying out for the Junior play Thursday night after school. This is not an observation, but nevertheless, three seniors wish to thank Mr. Heafield for his encouragement and aid.
