Win High Awards At Kalkaska

CHARLEVOIX EXHIBITORS AT POTATO AND APPLE SHOW

The Kalkaska Potato and Apple Show closed Thursday night after a successful three day show. Exhibits from over 25 counties were displayed at the exhibition.

Clinton Blanchard, Charlevoix, won second place in the Russet Rural peck class. The competition was the strongest in this class of any in the show, and included three times as many exhibitors as any other. Louis McDonald and Sam Houtman from East Jordan won 8 and 9 positions.

Mrs. Ed Kowalski, also of East Jordan, won 1st on a peck of Russet Burbanks. This peck was very close to being awarded the sweepstakes, and in the same class Harry Behling won 5th place.

In apples Eveline Orchards of East Jordan won first on bushels of Wagner, Wealthy, Starking; won second on bushels of Northern Spy and Cortland, and third on a bushel of Wolf River.

In the Smith-Hughes competition at the show the East Jordan school won third as a group with Gardell Nice winning second place on a peck of Katahdins, followed by John Ter Avest in fifth place with a peck of Russet Rural, and Gardell Nice ninth with a peck of Russet Rural.

In the club competition Donald Tibbits of Boyne City won third with a peck of Russet Burbank and Lyle Anthony of Boyne City fourth with his Irish Cobblers. The Advance Club was awarded fifth place in the club competition.

For the first time 100 pound samples were shown. With some 60 entries in this class the following from Charlevoix county were judged excellent and will receive $6 each. Henry Korhase, Boyne City; Elmer Hoti, East Jordan; and the Boyne City Co-op. Two were judged good to receive $4 in premiums, Claude Shepard of East Jordan and the Boyne City Co-op. In the fair class for premiums of $2 appear the names of Louis McDonald and Sam Houtman both of East Jordan.

The better exhibits from the county have been sent down to Lansing and will be placed in storage until the State Seed Show, which takes place in February. Tentative action by the Board of Directors indicate that the next show will be held at Petoskey.

B. C. Mellenkamp, County Agr'l Agent.

Mr. and Mrs. Lon Sheldon Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary At Flint

(From Flint Journal, Nov. 11th)

Surrounded by members of the family and old friends from Flint, East Jordan and elsewhere, Mr. and Mrs. Lon Sheldon of Detroit are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary today at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Grenon, Bronbright street.

Open house has been in order since early in the day, so that guests could come and go for visiting with the celebrants on this occasion. The decorative scheme of orchid and yellow is the same color combination used at their wedding 60 years ago.

Mrs. Sheldon (Christina MacDonald) was born at Plympton, Ont., Nov. 19, 1865, one of the six children of Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey MacDonald. Mr. Sheldon, one of seven children of Mr. and Mrs. Arden Sheldon, was born at Wayne, Mich., June 12, 1858. They were married at Ironton, Mich., Nov. 11, 1886, and are the parents of three children: G. Austin of Bloomfield, N. J., Mrs. Grenon, and Miss Carmen Sheldon of Detroit. There are six grandchildren and one great-grand-child. They lived in East Jordan for 28 years and have made their home in Detroit for the last 22 years.

Out-of-town guests include Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Pepper of Port Huron; Mrs. R. R. Pool and daughter, Christina, of Garden City; Mrs. George Pringle, East Jordan; Mrs. A. J. Kime Detroit, Miss Sheldon; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Jardine, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Harrington and son of Charlevoix.

Temple Installs New Heating Equipment

The installation of an under-feed coal stoker has been completed at the Temple Theatre and the new equipment is now in operation. Thermally controlled this device maintains room temperatures at definite levels and automatically supplies the fire with the proper amount of fuel. This unseen piece of equipment is an improvement that will add materially to your comfort when attending the Temple during the winter months ahead and is another step in the modernization of this popular play house.

There was something uncanny in Garner winning the Vice-Presidency when only Knox was running.

UNION THANKSGIVING SERVICE

The Union Thanksgiving Service will be held in the Presbyterian Church Thanksgiving morning at 10:30. Rev. John Cermak, pastor of the Methodist church, will preach the sermon. The customary Thanksgiving offering will be received.

W. S. Snyder, 68 Passed Away Suddenly Tuesday Evening

The community was deeply grieved Wednesday morning to learn of the sudden death of W. S. Snyder, janitor in the public school, on Tuesday evening, Nov. 17, from a heart attack. He was taken ill at his home and passed away about a half hour afterward.

William Seth Snyder was born in Kent county, April 15, 1868. On October 31, 1896, he was united in marriage to Miss Eva Plumb of Hart, Michigan. In 1899 he and his family moved to East Jordan, where he was employed in the mills for fifteen years, starting work on his birthday, April 15, 1899, and quitting the mills April 15, 1914. In this year he began his work as janitor of the East Jordan Public Schools in which capacity he has efficiently served until the time of his death last Tuesday evening. While Mr. Snyder had not been in the best of health for several months the urge to be about his work was stronger than the physical infirmities, and he spent Tuesday at his usual work at the school.

Besides his widow he is survived by the following sons and daughters:—Glen of Grand Rapids, Pearl Reinhardt of East Jordan, Howard of Flint, Viola Silvis of Grand Rapids, and Jason of East Jordan. One brother, Herbert Snyder of Chelsea; four sisters, Mrs. Mabel Parsons of Muskegon, Mrs. Maude Williams of Casnovia, Mrs. Rose Taylor and Mrs. Violet Kettle of Bradentown, Florida; besides a host of friends among the young as well as older people.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at two o'clock at the High School Auditorium conducted by Rev. John Cermak, pastor of the M. E. Church, of which Mr. Snyder was a member, assisted by Rev. James Leitch, former pastor.

Burial will be at Sunset Hill.

Special Holiday Program For Thanksgiving At Temple

Continuing the tempo of Anniversary Month the Temple is bringing a great variety of entertainment for Thanksgiving week. May we refer you to the schedule below for something truly fine in recreation:—

Northern Michigan "C" Conference Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Northern Michigan "C" Athletic Conference was held at the Wolverine Hotel in Boyne City on Monday evening, November 16th. Seven of the nine schools in the conference were represented at the meeting. Officers of the conference are: Superintendent Hugh Doyle of Gaylord, President S. E. Coleman of Charlevoix, Vice President Coach James Quin of Roger City secretary and treasurer.

Trophies were presented to East Jordan and Boyne City for winning the Championship in the spring sports. East Jordan in track and Boyne City in baseball. The football trophy for 1936 was also presented to Boyne City. The results of games and schedules of games for the week as was done last year will be repeated again, and notices sent to all conference schools. The basketball schedules for all schools will be made at the spring meeting. The spring meeting is held on the Monday following the regional tournament. A notice is to be sent to all basketball officials used by the conference schools urging them to attend the state regional meeting in basketball, to keep up on state modifications of the rules. The Wolverine Hotel arranged a fine supper for the conference affair.

Thanksgiving Proclamation By the President

I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, president of the United States of America, hereby designate Thursday, the twenty-sixth day of November, 1936, as a day of national thanksgiving.

The observance of a day of general thanksgiving by all the people in a practice peculiarly our own hallowed by usage in the days before we were a nation and sanctioned through succeeding years.

Having safely passed through troubled waters, it is our right to express our gratitude that Divine Providence has vouchsafed us wisdom and courage to overcome adversity. Our free institutions have been maintained with no abatement of our faith in them.

In our relations with other peoples we stand not aloof but make resolute effort to promote international friendship and, by the avoidance of discord, to further world peace, prosperity and happiness.

Coupled with our grateful acknowledgement of the blessings it has been our privilege to enjoy, we have a deepening sense of our solemn responsibility to assure for ourselves and our descendants a future more abundant in faith and in security.

Let us, therefore, on the day appointed, each in his own way, but together as a whole people, make due expression of our thanksgiving and humbly endeavor to follow in the footsteps of Almighty God.

Franklin D. Roosevelt

Schools To Receive $4,621,919.53 This Week

The Department of Public Instruction allocated the final installment of Primary School Interest Money to the various school districts this week. It will total $4,621,919.53.

Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, Superintendent of Public Instruction, said that the installment amounts to $3.30 for each census child and the money should reach the districts this week.

Among the amounts allocated to each county are the following relative to counties in this section:

Antrim	$11,322.30
Charlevoix	14,694.90
Emmet	16,038.00

Sense Not Luck Gets Spud Yield

Potato growers in northern Michigan are curious about the methods employed in 1936 by O. F. Walker, certified potato seed grower of Alba, Antrim county, Michigan.

On six acres of potatoes Walker obtained a yield of 1513 bushels, according to H. C. Moore of the extension service of Michigan State College. When this yield was graded out, the results were remarkable.

Walker obtained 1238 bushels of certified No. 1 seed stock measuring one and seven-eighths inches in diameter and not over 10 ounces in weight. He had 52 bushels of certified No. 2 seed stock one and one-half inches to one and seven-eighths in size. Seven bushels of No. 3 seed stock were included in the yield.

In addition to the seed stock there was 176 bushels of U. S. No. 1 table stock, mostly large potatoes over 10 ounces. And the remainder consisted of 40 bushels of cull potatoes.

Moore finds that in general Walker follows methods recommended by Michigan State College, but that the Antrim county farmer adds a few ideas of his own. He usually puts in potatoes after sweet clover or alfalfa, plants early, or the latter part of May, puts in about 25 bushels of seed to the acre and plants deep, about four inches.

Walker usually uses about 500 pounds of commercial fertilizer to the acre and sprays at least seven times. The last time the field is cultivated he ridges up the rows, throwing at least one inch of soil over the rows to prevent sun scald or frost damage. In harvesting he digs enough so that the tubers can lie on the ground for about two hours before they are picked-up, toughening the skins before the potatoes are handled. He stores his seed stock under conditions probably better than that provided for most table stock, keeping temperatures around 43 degrees Fahrenheit.

Child Health League To Meet

An important meeting of the Child Health League will be held next Monday, Nov. 23rd, at 2:00 p. m., in the office of the City Treasurer. All members are urged to attend and anyone else interested is cordially invited.

4-H CLUB news

EMMET COUNTY 4-H CLUB BOY IS J. C. PENNEY CONTEST WINNER

Robert Cook, a member of the Pellston 4-H Potato Club was acclaimed the outstanding 4-H potato club member in Northern Michigan as a result of a contest conducted at the Northern Michigan Potato and Apple Show held at Kalkaska. As a reward for his outstanding achievements in potato club work Bob will receive a free trip to the Boys' and Girls' 4-H Club Congress held in connection with the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago, November 28 to December 5. This trip was made possible by the financial sponsorship of the J. C. Penney Company stores located in Petoskey, Cheboygan, Cadillac, Manistee, Alpena, Ludington and Traverse City.

In winning this trip Bob competed with 4-H potato club members from several of the north and western counties. Howard McDonald of Charlevoix county was a close second and will be the alternate, while Bob Bantler of Emmet county and Wilbur McDonald of Charlevoix county were a close third and fourth.

Robert has been active in potato club work for six years. During this time he has exhibited at various shows and in several cases won high honors. This year his peck of Russet Rural won the sweepstakes in the Junior class at the county shows. At the Northern Michigan show his sample of potatoes placed fourth.

Bob has shown a great deal of interest in his club work and this year his project was the growing of 6 acres of certified seed potatoes. He also was leader of his club, taking over the leadership which his father had previous to this year.

Orville F. Walker, District Club Agent.

Responsibility Act Gets Mostly Drunks

The recent expiration of the first three years operation of the Financial Responsibility Act has revealed several interesting developments according to records in the Department of State. In the first place, while the act was framed to curb the driving of those who fail to satisfy damage judgments returned against them, actually less than 200 drivers were involved for this reason during the three year period. More than 10,000 drivers ran afoul of the act during this time.

While those failing to meet judgments returned against them for damages, are barred from the highways until the judgment is satisfied, others involved for a considerable list of other reasons—all violations of motor vehicle act—are barred for three year periods, unless they meet rigid requirements. Less than 15 per cent of all drivers involved have been able to meet these conditions.

The 1935 legislature amended the Financial Responsibility Act, removing 1,552 drivers from the barred group, leaving 8,774 barred by the act. Of these, 8,162, or nearly 91 per cent were barred from driving on conviction of drunk driving charges.

The three year suspension period for those first under the act, convicted for motor vehicle violation, expired Oct. 17, third anniversary of its effective date.

Chevrolet Depends On Newspaper Advertising

Chevrolet's achievement of all-time sales records in 1936, under a policy which made newspapers the front line of the company's advertising offensive, has dictated continuance of that policy in 1937, and especially in the announcement of the forthcoming new models. This statement by C. P. Fiske, advertising manager, was a feature of an all-day party which Chevrolet held for 300 newspapermen this week.

"The 1937 models are the finest Chevrolet ever had," said Mr. Fiske. "And the advertising behind them measures up to the product itself. Last year and for several years back, we have relied primarily upon newspaper space to get our message across to the public. In light of the amazing sales achievements of 1936, it is hardly necessary to justify to you our intention of adhering to that policy this year. The newspaper will be the foundation of our advertising effort."

East Jordan H. S. Will Compete In State-Wide Speech Contests

East Jordan School has become a member of the Michigan High School Forensic Association and will compete in the various statewide contests to be sponsored by the Association this season.

Mr. Leslie M. Oldt, of the high school faculty will coach the contestants.

Over 300 high schools throughout the State have enrolled to date, and additional enrollments are coming in daily to the Association's office in Ann Arbor. It is hoped that a record enrollment will be reached this year.

The major activities directed by the Michigan High School Forensic Association consist of statewide interscholastic contests in debate, oratory, declamation, and extempore speech. The earlier part of the season is devoted to debate, the other speech contests, opening in the early Spring.

The debates will be conducted in two series again this year, a preliminary series and an elimination series. The preliminary series will open on November 27 for the great majority of schools. Three succeeding preliminary debates will follow on December 11, January 15, and January 29. Each member competing in the Association's regular preliminary schedule will debate twice on the affirmative and twice on the negative of the subject to be discussed. Also, each will debate two times at home and two away.

The topic to be argued in all debates sponsored by the Forensic Association will be that of "Government Ownership and Operation of Electrical Utilities." Much interest has already been aroused because of the timeliness of the subject.

Those schools attaining the required number of points in the preliminary series will enter the elimination series which opens on February 19, and which terminates in the Twentieth Annual State Championship Debate to be held in Hill Auditorium, Ann Arbor, on the evening of April 30. In this series, losing schools will drop out of competition and winners will be paired in each succeeding round until there are but two remaining schools. These will be brought to Ann Arbor, expenses paid, to compete for the State Championship.

Various awards are presented through the courtesy of the University of Michigan and Detroit newspapers. To each school taking part in the elimination series, a beautiful Wall Plaque Trophy of American walnut will be presented. The design is taken from the University of Michigan shield. To each debater will go a lapel button or pin replica of the Plaque.

Each debater participating in the Twentieth Annual State Championship Debate will receive a beautiful engraved gold watch. The two competing schools will be presented with bronze loving cups, as will the semifinal teams. Competition in oratory, declamation, and extempore speech is conducted in three series, school, subdistrict contests. No state championship contest is held in these activities. Here, also, awards are presented. Each subdistrict winner will receive a Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, with his or her name engraved in gold on the cover. Each school winning in the district contests will receive a wall banner.

Three hundred and fifty-five schools participated in these various activities last season. It is estimated that nearly 14,000 Michigan high school students took part. They were heard by a total audience of 112,000 persons. Hundreds of awards have been presented through the Association since its inception in 1917. Dr. William P. Halstead, member of the Speech Department of the University, will continue as manager of the Association this year.

Thousands of packages of material have been furnished by the Library Extension Service of the University of Michigan, under the direction of Miss Edith Thomas, to aid contestants in their preparation.

First Debate of Season

East Jordan will meet Pellston Tuesday evening, Nov. 24th at the East Jordan High School in the first debate of the season.

The question for debate this year is: "Resolved that all electric utilities should be governmentally owned and operated." The East Jordan team will uphold the affirmative, and will consist of Lorena Brintnall, Arthur Cronin, and Arthur Rude. Irene Brintnall is also out for debate and will debate on the negative side of the question. The hour of the debate is 8:00. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Donations of Clothing Are Much Needed

The Charlevoix County Emergency Relief office is anxious to learn of any persons who have clothing which they would like to give to those in need. Shoes and rubbers or galoshes are needed very badly and because of the large number of applications, funds for November will not be sufficient. Anyone who has anything that can be used is asked to call Charlevoix No. 61 and arrangements will be made to call for it.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Secretary Roper Plans National Census of Unemployed—Armistice Day Duly Observed—Opening of the Huge San Francisco-Oakland Bridge.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

Sec. Roper

NOW that the election is over, Secretary of Commerce Roper is laying plans for the complete census of the unemployed in the United States which has so long been called for. He said he would ask congress to appropriate between 13 and 15 million dollars for this count and that it would require the services of about 25,000 persons who would be given special training for several months.

"The census would not only take up an enumeration of those classified as unemployed," said Roper, "but we want to find out which trades or industries the unemployed would fall into. We would also like to help the states in classifying the unemployed from the unemployable."

"There are many economic questions involved. Some families have enough income to support them, but one or more members may be out of work. We want to obtain information on this phase."

The secretary intimated that the census machinery might be made permanent so that a close check be kept on persons out of work, as is done in England.

According to the American Federation of Labor 2,900,000 workers have been re-employed since last January.

"Employment has been gaining steadily since January, without setback," the federation said. "This unusual development points to the strong upward trend of business, which was of such force as to offset the usual summer layoffs."

"Comparing September this year with September, 1935, we find 2,250,000 more persons employed in American industry, indicating that while a portion of this year's gains merely restored winter losses, by far the major part represents lasting gain in employment recovery."

"This year's gains (comparing September, 1935 and 1936) have been largest in manufacturing industries where about 675,000 wage and salaried workers were re-employed; about 300,000 more farm laborers are at work, 285,000 more in trade, 200,000 more in building and 100,000 have been added in railroads. Most of the other gains were in service industries."

IN A joint report by the federal bureaus of agricultural and home economics the prediction is made that farm cash income available for spending in 1937 will continue the upward trend shown in 1936.

As a basis for this expectancy the bureaus cite increases in net income from agricultural and non-agricultural sources, lower interest rates and long term financing of debts.

Record production of truck crops also was forecast. All sections of the country will share and all important truck crops will be included except celery, onions and spinach, it was stated, with the likelihood that in spite of indicated larger supplies, improvement in consumer buying power would help maintain the higher prices of 1936, which were about 10 per cent over 1935.

SECRETARY of Agriculture Wallace in an interview intimates that for a year there may be no new legislation for crop control along the lines of the outlawed AAA, for farmers would like to have one. Really good crop without forced curtailment. But he added: "We will need some legislation eventually unless the weather changes or the world demand for our products greatly improves."

Wallace was asked whether the lack of a control plan might not result in another surplus, leaving the administration up in the air without any machinery to cope with it. He said he could not estimate a surplus ahead of time and that he would rather wait to see what would happen.

"It may be possible to find a solution that will prove better than the AAA or the soil conservation act," he said.

also placed a wreath at the tomb, and all stood bare headed as "taps" was sounded precisely at 11 o'clock eighteen years after the guns ceased firing on the western front in France.

Everywhere in the United States and in all the allied countries the anniversary was suitably observed, and in Poland the day was one of especial rejoicing for it is regarded as the birthday of that re-born nation.

An ironical note came from Geneva where the League of Nations announced that 8,200,000 men are now permanently under arms throughout the world. Of this total 545,000 are attached to world navies.

The league calculations show that men under arms throughout the world just before the outbreak of the World War numbered 5,900,000, not counting naval units. The figures released show that since 1931-32 world armies have increased 1,700,000 men. In Europe total armed forces are now 4,800,000, compared with 3,600,000 in 1931-32.

SAN FRANCISCO'S dream of 30 years was realized when the great bridge across the bay of Oakland was formally opened with elaborate ceremony. This longest vehicular bridge in the world has been under construction since July 19, 1933, at a cost of $77,000,000, the funds being largely supplied by the Reconstruction Finance corporation. It is eight and a quarter miles long and, except for a tunnel passage through Yerba Buena island, is entirely over water.

It is divided roughly into two parts, mechanically speaking. The west side, from San Francisco to Yerba Buena, is of the suspension type. The cables are the largest ever spun for a bridge—nearly two feet in diameter. The east crossing, from Yerba Buena to Oakland, is of the cantilever type.

As the climax of a four-day celebration, President Roosevelt pushed a button in his White House office lighting two green lamps on the bridge and officially throwing it open for traffic.

COL. JOSEF BECK, foreign minister of Poland, concluded his visit to London and departed with assurances of Great Britain's friendliness and desire to co-operate with Poland in its contest against Nazi intrigues, especially in relation to the Free City of Danzig.

Foreign Minister Eden talked with Colonel Beck for three days and was told by him that Poland would reject the overtures of both Moscow and Berlin and work for the same neutrality in eastern Europe that Belgium intends to maintain in the west.

One feature of Poland's celebration of its independence day was the bestowal of a baton on Gen. Edward Rydz-Smigley, making him the fourth marshal in the revived nation's history. He thus succeeds the late Marshal Josef Pilsudsky and is regarded by many as the new military dictator of Poland. President Moscicki presented the baton during an imposing ceremony in the courtyard of Warsaw castle.

WHEN Admiral William H. Standley retires on January 1 from the post of chief of naval operations, it will be filled by Admiral William D. Leahy, now commander of the navy battle force. This selection by the President was announced in Washington. Half a dozen other high officers of the navy will be advanced when the change occurs.

It was also announced that Maj. Gen. John H. Russell, commandant of the marine corps, would be succeeded in that post when he retires from active service December 1 by Brig. Gen. Thomas Holcombe. The latter will be elevated to the rank of major general of marines.

KING Victor of Italy had a birthday, and President Roosevelt, in his cabled message of congratulations, was careful to follow the American policy of not recognizing territory acquired by force, addressing him only as "king" and not as "emperor." However, the Italian conquest of Ethiopia was formally recognized by both Austria and Hungary, following Germany's example.

CORNELL university at Ithaca, N. Y., is to have a new president in the person of Dr. Edmund E. Day, an internationally known social scientist and economist. He will assume office June 30 next on the retirement of Dr. Livingston Farrand, Doctor Day, who is 53 years old, is a graduate of Dartmouth and has taught there and at Harvard and the University of Michigan.

WHILE the Fascist insurgents were smashing their way into Madrid and hurling shells among its chief buildings, the Socialist government of Spain, headed by Premier Francisco Largo Caballero, fled from the capital and set itself up in Valencia on the Mediterranean coast. The capture of Madrid by the rebels seemed certain and this, it was believed, would be followed by recognition of the Fascist government by several powers, including Portugal and Italy and perhaps Germany. The first nation to accord this recognition was the Central American republic of Salvador.

It is not to be assumed that this would end the civil war, immediately or soon. Caballero, it was reported, believed the loyalists could beat continue the struggle from the south, and it was claimed they had strong concentrations at Valencia, Cartagena, Alicante and Albacete. Moreover, there were indications that they would soon receive open aid from Russia and perhaps France. Leon Blum, the French premier, told a Socialist meeting that he was ready to scrap the non-intervention pact and help Caballero if Great Britain would join in such action. This caused consternation among the British statesmen.

Fighting in the suburbs of Madrid was continuous and bloody. The casualties on both sides were heavy, and the Fascist bombardment by artillery and planes killed and wounded hundreds in the center of the city. The Socialist defenders had been ordered to hold their posts regardless of losses, and they fought bravely and stubbornly.

THROUGH the efforts of Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor and the department's chief conciliator, the strike of maritime workers that tied up a large part of the shipping on the Pacific, Atlantic and Gulf coasts may be settled amicably. Negotiations between the shipowners and the union leaders were resumed in San Francisco, and in Washington Secretary Perkins said she was hopeful that a just agreement would be reached.

On the Pacific coast the strikers had already consented to ease the plight of stranded passengers and release perishable cargoes. The joint strike committee recommended that their membership return strike-bound vessels to home ports. This promised relief for 600 stranded passengers and 900 strikers in Honolulu as well as for hundreds of maritime men idle in Atlantic and Gulf ports.

MAJOR producers of steel, led by the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, largest subsidiary of United States Steel, and the Columbia Steel company, west coast member of the same group, announced wage increases averaging 10 per cent and in some cases running as high as 25 per cent, which will add about $80,000,000 a year to the industry's payroll. In most instances the increases were to take effect November 16. According to compilations of the American Iron and Steel institute they will affect 526,700 employees throughout the country.

Committees acting for employees at more than a dozen plants rejected the offer, demanding higher pay. Negotiations in these cases are therefore continued. Directors of numerous big corporations authorized special dividends to stockholders and wage bonuses to workers that will release many millions of dollars. This is in pursuance of the policy of avoiding so far as possible the stiff levies imposed on undistributed profits under the revenue act of 1936; and also, in most cases, in recognition of improved business.

SECRETARY of the Navy Claude Swanson, who it is believed may retire from the cabinet, made his annual report to the President showing that the navy had made considerable progress in its program to build up to full treaty strength. At the end of the 1936 fiscal year last June 30, the secretary said, the navy had under construction 79 vessels. Further, the 1937 appropriations act provided for the building of 18 vessels as replacements for over-age ships and for the beginning of construction in 1937 of two battleships.

The secretary emphasized the need for auxiliary vessels, which service and supply combat vessels, as necessary to the maximum efficiency of the fleet. Present auxiliary vessels are old and unfit and should be replaced with modern craft, he said.

Chief of Staff Malin Craig reported to Secretary of War Woodring that the army in the second year of its five-year rebuilding program had gained ground toward its objective—a defense establishment up to the minimum needs of the nation.

"Our military establishment is of a type that—conforming strictly to our national policy—is designed for defense and is unsuitable for aggression," Craig said. "This fact may not be clearly understood by our people. Our establishment is of a character exclusively its own, essentially distinct from the military establishments maintained abroad and now in the course of vast expansion."

Saluting the President
SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—
Top of the morning to you, Mr. President Elect! Many happy returns! But you've already seen the happy returns, haven't you?

We've been behind you right along. At times, some of us may have been so far behind you we couldn't seem to see you, at all. But why bring that up now?

As for those who voted the opposition ticket—well, Americans may be greedy to win, but they're sporty losers. Besides, it'll soon be hard to find anybody who was against you. Among the multitude, the patriot who actually opposed you—except maybe in a whimsical spirit—will be as lonesome as an honest bone in the average beauty-contest promoter's body.

Synthetic Napoleon Brandy
I WILL now tell about Napoleon brandy. Napoleon brandy is any brandy more than four years old, if poured from a dark bottle with an "N" on it and decorated with cobwebs applied by an expert cobweb-twiner before being served; price $1.50 to $3 per slug at your favorite robbers' cave.

More genuine guaranteed Napoleon brandy is sold every month in New York night clubs alone than all of the regular Napoleons, numbered, respectively, I, II and III, ever saw.

What brought these interesting statistics to mind was running into a collector of Napoleon brandies. Why, some of his specimens must date back as far as 1914.

But my aim is to collect the pistols carried by Jesse James and the handcuffs worn by Billy the Kid. It's a great ambition, but may run into money because it will take a large hall to contain all the Jesse James six-shooters and all the Billy the Kid handcuffs I've seen.

Hurrying to Get Nowhere
WHEN I see a motormaniac burning up the road and feel confident that, ninety-nine times out of a hundred, there's no earthly need for his hurry, I think of a Japanese gentleman who visited a typical New York go-getter.

They started downtown. The guide hurried his guest aboard a subway local, yanked him off at Times Square, jammed him on a packed express, pulled him out of the express further down and violently inserted him into another overflowing local. When they emerged at a way-station, the Japanese was badly bruised, ruffled and trampled.

He limped to his host's office, where they sat down with practically nothing to do except relax. So he asked why they'd changed cars so often when the original train would have brought them along.

"Oh," said the New Yorker, "doing that, we save six minutes."

The oriental sucked in his breath politely and did some pondering. "And what," he murmured then,—"what were you going to do with the six minutes?"

Cobb's Pet Annoyances
SOMEbody writes in, demanding to know what my pet loathings are. Well, let's see:

Is it the fellow who, having heard every blamed word you said, waits until you're all through and then says, "What?"

Or the barber who, having finished the job, grabs up a towel and dabbles you with ninety hundred and seventy-four separate and distinct dabs?

Or the clerk who, when you go in for a pair of socks, tries to sell you everything in the store, including some pajamas that you wouldn't be caught dead in?

Or the orator who says "one last word" and buries that last word under about five thousand other words?

Or the solicitor who begins by asking for just a minute and hangs on until you begin to figure the present Christian era must be approaching its close?

Stage and Stock Market
Fascinating and envied professions—financiering and acting—do not necessarily call for intelligence. Not that there aren't brilliant persons plenty engaged in both lines. But the mimetic quality, the knack of rendering other people's lines, perhaps without ever understanding them, may be but a sublimated emotional instinct, just as sometimes the ability to make great gobs of money has nothing to do with brains, or rather brains have nothing to do with it. A certain man can smell out a hidden dollar exactly as a rat terrier sniffs behind the wainscoting the rat which another dog would pass unnoticed. There are young ladies capably interpreting classic roles who probably think Salome is the name of an Italian sausage.

Fudge Brownies
4 eggs
2 cups sugar
1 cup butter
4 squares chocolate
2 cups flour
1 cup chopped nuts
2 teaspoons vanilla

Beat the eggs and add the sugar. Melt the butter and chocolate together. Combine the mixtures, beating them thoroughly. Add the flour, nuts and flavoring. Bake in a shallow pan for about twenty minutes in a moderate oven. Cut in squares or novel bridge-card shapes before removing from the pan.

It is important not to bake brownies too long. Their delightful quality depends on their being a bit "crusty" on the outside and moist in the center. Any kind of nuts may be used, although English walnuts are usually preferred.

SYNOPSIS

Dr. Greeding, a wealthy and talented middle aged surgeon, is possessed of seemingly supernatural powers. Occasionally he can wish for something extraordinary to happen and have the wish fulfilled. Greeding meets Ira Jerrell, a wealthy business friend of his own age, who tells him he loves his daughter Nancy and would like to marry her. Dr. Greeding is pleased and his Jerrell has a clear field. Nancy, however, is in love with Dan Carlisle, an assistant professor at the University who has little means. They discuss marriage, but decide to delay talking to her father about it. Nancy, who has been playing tennis with Dan that afternoon, tells her father she had been playing with a girl friend. Greeding knows this is untrue and is secretly enraged. Stepping into his wife's room, he finds a marble statuette which he dislikes. He picks it up, wishing he could smash it to bits. Suddenly it is snatched from his grasp as by an invisible force and burst asunder. Mrs. Greeding is greatly disturbed by the mysterious destruction of the statuette. The doctor reveals that Ira Jerrell wants to marry Nancy. On the way to a dinner party a car cuts in front of Greeding's. He angrily expresses the wish that the driver would break his neck. An instant later an accident occurs in which this very thing happens. At the dinner the Greedings meet Prof. Carlisle, Dan's father, and his daughter Mary Ann. Dr. Greeding is intrigued by Mary Ann, who is a surgical nurse. Mrs. Greeding tells Prof. Carlisle about the destruction of the statuette and he indicates it might have been caused by a "poltergeist," a "racketing, mischievous spirit." Greeding pretends to Nancy that he has no objection to Dan. More interested in Mary Ann, Dr. Greeding induces her to take a position in his office. Eventually he finds he loves her. Jerrell continues to see Nancy, whose love for Dan is unchanged. The Greedings invite the Carlises to dinner. Dr. Greeding discusses with Prof. Carlisle the subject of "poltergeists," the doctor telling of some of his own experiences, but attributing them to a friend.

CHAPTER III—Continued

"The subject is pretty extensive," Professor Carlisle explained. "Fires are a common manifestation, appearing in many of the tales." He added: "There was a man named Charles Fort—he is dead now—who made a study of such things. Probably with his tongue in his cheek. In one of his books he said these fire phenomena look to him like the survival of a power that may once have been common, when primitive men needed fires and didn't know how to make them. He talks about vestigial functions in the human body, just as you surgeons talk about vestigial organs. . . . Of course, this is all in the highest degree fanciful."

"But it's an amusing subject for speculation," Doctor Greeding insisted. "Your man Fort, I gather, thought these functions were originally of some use to their possessors. But what possible good can it do to project a plate across the room and allow it to break against the wall?"

The professor answered good-humoredly: "Well, Fort suggests that these poltergeist disturbances may emanate from some malicious mind. If your friend in the hay-mow wished the hay to burn up, for instance, so that he would not have to work so hard on a hot day—"

Doctor Greeding laughed, suddenly expansive. "Like Mrs. Greeding's statuette," he suggested. "She told you about that, the other night. As a matter of fact, I had the statuette in my hands when it fell—though I haven't dared confess as much to her. She'd blame me for dropping it; but I didn't. I was thinking that it was rather hideous, when the thing simply flew out of my hands and crashed to bits."

He saw the other's curious glance, added quickly: "If this chap had been in the house, I'd suspect him!"

"What was his name?" asked Professor Carlisle.

"Tompkins," said Doctor Greeding readily. "But he's dead now."

The older man was for a moment silent; he lighted his pipe afresh, looking intently at the bowl. But at length he asked curiously:

"Did you notice anything unusual about the way the statuette fell? You said it flew out of your hands?"

Doctor Greeding nodded, forgetting caution. "Exactly," he assured the other man. "It was as though some one snatched it away; and I remember it seemed to hang in the air for a moment before it fell."

Professor Carlisle smoothed his pipe-bowl in his hands. He said after a moment: "Well, that hesitating, uncertain flight is often mentioned in the accounts of poltergeist disturbances."

He added apologetically: "But I'm afraid I'm a skeptic at heart. I can discuss these absurdities so long as the discussion remains empiric; so long as I confine myself to things that are reported to have happened to others, far away. But when you tell me things that happened to your friend, and now to yourself, I lack the courage of my conviction."

Doctor Greeding felt a faint irritation rising in him at this disbelief. He said: "You sound rather like an incredulous scientist yourself!"

"It's much less disquieting," the professor pointed out, "to assume that there is a credible explanation for these incredible occurrences." Doctor Greeding watched him narrowly, till pique at the other's attitude drove him on. "Are there any cases," he asked challengingly, "of actual injury or death, through this sort of thing?"

"Yes," Professor Carlisle assented. He was grave now. "There have been persons found dead, their bodies charred to a cinder, their clothes not burned at all. There are even one or two cases reported of men killed by a bullet, or stabbed, but with no rent in their clothing to correspond with the wound in their bodies."

"What does your friend Fort say of such incidents?"

"He only points out that 'wounds such as might be imagined by haters of people have appeared upon the bodies of people,'" the professor cautiously explained.

Doctor Greeding nodded. "I suppose most of us, in fits of anger, have wished that unpleasant things would happen to certain people," he reflected soberly. "It would be rather disturbing to a man if those malicious wishes on his part began to come true." He chuckled. "Nations might enlist an army of good effective haters to win a war by wishing their enemies dead!"

Professor Carlisle shook his head. "That's outside the bounds, of course," he commented, not smiling.

"I wonder whether it is," Doctor Greeding stubbornly demurred; and he said thoughtfully: "You know, the human body has an infinite capacity to rise to emergencies. If a man loses sight, or hearing, his other senses become more acute. If a vein is destroyed, even the jugular, others take up the burden. If fingers are amputated, the thumb redoubles its usefulness. Isn't it possible that in some cases, when a man approaches old age and the impairment of his muscular strength, he may by way of compensation develop such a power?"

"Old men acquire wisdom," the professor pointed out. "That is weapon enough!"

"But in a primitive society," Doctor Greeding urged, "old men, when their increasing weakness made them a burden to the tribe, would have been eliminated, unless as their strength failed they learned other ways to defend themselves. For instance, to imagine a wound, and have that wound appear—"

And he said, his eyes gleaming strangely: "A man able to do that would be a dangerous enemy."

Professor Carlisle said reflectively: "I expect he would be more dangerous to himself than to others. The world seems to be organized for the general rather than the individual benefit. Probably some counter-force would arise to deal with him."

"Yet it's a fascinating thought," Doctor Greeding insisted.

Professor Carlisle retorted gravely: "I should be inclined to remind such a man that he who eats with the devil will need a long spoon!"

There was something monitory in his tone; the Doctor felt it, and suddenly wary, was silent. Before he could speak again, Mrs. Greeding came to the door.

"You two have been alone long enough," she suggested. "Dan and Nancy have disappeared, and Mary Ann and I are talked-dry. Professor, I thought you might care for bridge?"

"By all means," Professor Carlisle assented, and rose so quickly that Doctor Greeding suspected the other man was glad to see an end to this conversation. They settled at the table in the other room, the Doctor and Mary Ann as partners.

But almost at once the telephone rang, and Ruth came to call Doctor Greeding. When he returned, it was with apologies.

"I'll have to break up the game," he explained. "This is a call I can't very well refuse. Up in Kennebunk. An old friend, an emergency. He looked at Mary Ann, smiled. "It's a grand night for a drive, Miss Carlisle," he suggested. "But if you'd rather not—"

Mrs. Greeding protested: "Ned, it can't be necessary to subject Mary Ann to this—nor yourself either. You could send Doctor Mayhew!"

Mary Ann insisted: "Oh, I don't mind. After all it's my job, you know!"

"I don't know at all," the older woman argued. "On the surface there was in her words no more than solitude for Mary Ann. 'Surely your regular work is—'"

But Doctor Greeding interrupted. "Tosh, Myra," he said cheerfully. "A doctor's work is never done; and a nurse is just as much abused as a doctor. Come, Mary Ann."

And Mrs. Greeding yielded, though reluctantly. So they were presently upon the road.

CHAPTER IV

There was in Doctor Greeding when he set out tonight with Mary Ann a deep intoxication which he rigorously controlled. They took the roadster, and the top was down. The long miles unrolled in a ribbon before their wheels, and the night was jeweled by the headlights of approaching cars. Apple orchards were bright with belated blossoms along the roadside, and the night was warm and fair.

Doctor Greeding drove rapidly and surely, and Mary Ann slipped down low in the seat and relaxed there, her wrap loose about her shoulders, her hair flying in the breeze. He told her the nature of this summons. "The idiot is an old friend of mine, or I wouldn't go," he explained cheerfully. "Some one else could do it just as well, or he could wait till tomorrow. But his wife is alarmed, wants me—"

She nodded, and he said in amused irritation:

"The visited us at the lake last summer. I told him that this operation was inevitable. Tried to persuade him to take care of it; but he's a headstrong old man."

And he added after a little; "You and Dan must come up to the lake sometime. And your father. We've a pleasant place there: an island of our own, a couple of good boats, tennis court, golf near by if you want it, target-shooting and so on."

"That's Outside the Bounds, of Course," He Commented, Not Smiling.

"I like tennis," she confessed. "Dan and I often play." She spoke sleepily, relaxed and at ease beside him.

"We go up for all of August," he remarked. "You can take your vacation at the same time."

"I hardly rate a vacation so soon," she demurred.

"You've earned one," he insisted. He added, as a saving phrase: "Mrs. Greeding will insist on your coming, I know."

He had, he reflected in a faint astonishment, been near forgetting that Myra would be at the island, had thought only of himself and Dan. In sudden caution, he curbed his tongue, and they were silent for a while. Through Newburyport, and beyond, the road led smoothly on. They drove swiftly. Once he thought she slept, but when he looked at her, she was watching him. Or rather her eyes swung to meet his. He was dangerously near missing the road before he turned his head away.

He had never felt so awake, so alive. He grudgingly the fact that they came presently to their destination, and had a task to do; and he attacked this business in haste, eager to be done and on the road again with her; and Mary Ann became an automaton, supplementing his own hands with hers, anticipating his least desire. . . . An hour of this, like machines. Then low-toned conversation with the Doctor, words of reassurance to the patient's wife, instructions to the nurse. So toward two o'clock in the morning they set out on the return to Cambridge.

They had been urged to stay the night, but Doctor Greeding would not. "I've five cases scheduled for the morning," he explained.

On the road again, Mary Ann said: "You might have been wiser to stay. There aren't five cases. There are only two, and Doctor Mayhew could do them."

Doctor Greeding chuckled. "He shall," he assented. "I intend to sleep till noon. But I wouldn't miss this drive home with you."

"I expect a night's sleep would have done you more good," she insisted, smiling as though his words were a jest.

He shook his head, intoxicated, alive; and after a little, he began to talk. He was in a confidential mood; and he found himself telling her about Ira Jerrell and Nancy.

"But don't repeat this to Dan,"

he warned her. "That brother of yours is so conscientious he might feel bound to step into the back-ground and give Jerrell a clear field. I don't want him to do that. I want Nancy to make up her own mind, freely, between them."

"I know Dan feels he isn't good enough for Nancy," she admitted, and added loyally: "Personally, I think she's lucky to get him. Dan's a peach!" She looked at him, surprised. "But I didn't know you knew about them?" she said.

"I have Nancy's confidence," he retorted; and she nodded. He continued: "Did I take the right attitude? Would you have said the same? Do you feel that a girl makes a mistake to marry a man twenty years her senior?"

She was silent for longer than he liked. He looked at her, smiling. "Tell the truth," he insisted.

"Not if she loves him," said Mary Ann at last. She added, almost reluctantly: "Not if there is no reason why she shouldn't love him." And after a moment she remarked, half to herself: "Sometimes a girl is wiser to choose a proved man. Then she knows what she is getting. Young men may change as they mature."

He laughed in a sudden swift delight; but when she asked why he laughed, he would not tell her. Silence embraced them again, drawing them together; the car ran smoothly. The moon now was low; and Doctor Greeding's eyes fixed upon the flowing road in a sort of fascination. He drove automatically, his thoughts elsewhere.

It may have been that for a moment he slept. But at a certain point where the road forked and their way lay to the left, he kept straight ahead; and where just beyond the fork, this right-hand road turned, he did not turn. The car plunged through a shallow ditch and into the meadow beyond. His foot jammed home on the brakes, and he came to a breathless stop, thrown forward against the wheel. Mary Ann in a heap on the floor of the car beside him.

He was in dismay. "Are you hurt?" he exclaimed. "I'm sorry! I must have gone to sleep!"

She scrambled up on the seat again. "I don't think so," she declared, laughing. "No, I seem to be all here. My eyes were closed. I had no warning—"

"I must have gone to sleep," he repeated.

She touched his hand, on the wheel. "You're so desperately tired," she said gently. His blood, at the touch of her fingers raced through his veins. "Let me drive. I'm awake now."

He looked at her hand on his, at her. "I'm not tired," he said huskily, breathlessly.

She withdrew her hand, abruptly; but his eyes held hers. He thought that even in the moonlight he could see her cheeks flaming. Then she spoke defensively, laughing, her head high. "Give me the wheel," she insisted. "You men are all idiots—don't know when you're tired. Come!"

He did not trust his voice. Without speaking, he got out of the car and went around to take the other seat. She backed into the road again.

"Now shut your eyes and do go to sleep," she commanded.

He obeyed her; he did shut his eyes. But he did not sleep. It seemed to him he had never been so wide awake before. There may be in the mere circumstance of sharing together even a passing peril something mystic and compelling in its effect on man and woman. For a moment, it might have happened that he and Mary Ann would die together; it seemed to him now that after that moment, their two lives could never take completely separate ways again.

But if Mary Ann had any such thought or feeling, she did not betray it. Somehow she found the proper road again; somehow she brought them back to Cambridge. For all that time he neither spoke nor opened his eyes; but his thoughts were a millrace. Only when she stopped the car did he rouse from his abstraction.

"Can you manage the rest of the way alone?" she asked lightly then.

"Or shall I take you home and tuck you in?"

They were, he saw, at her father's door.

"I can manage, of course," he assured her. She alighted; and he got to the ground, and extended his hand.

"Thanks for taking care of me," he said. "I needed some one." Her hand was in his. "Anything might have happened," he confessed.

"But nothing did!" she reminded him, smiling. "Except that it's almost daylight, and we've lost a lot of sleep."

Impulsively, he lifted her hand to his lips; and then he saw the startled light in her eyes, and was quick with a word to make that gesture meaningless.

"This is for a good little girl," he said. "Good night!"

She turned away, quickly, in something like flight—darted toward the house. He waited till she had disappeared, before driving on toward his own home. The car he left at the side door.

Upstairs, he undressed slowly, trying to face and measure this new passion in his life. When he came into the bedroom he and Mrs. Greeding shared, gray dawn was in the windows. His wife roused sleepily; her face was an unlovely mask of cosmetics; her hair awry.

"Ned?"

"Yes, Myra," he said shortly. "Go back to sleep."

"What time is it?"

He protested irritably: "What difference does that make?"

"It's ridiculous," she protested, "for you to be out all night. You could have sent Doctor Mayhew!"

He got into his own bed without replying.

"I believe you like this sort of thing," she asserted. "I declare, Ned, you ought to have some sense of your own position."

"Don't talk, Myra," he said sharply. "I'm dead tired. Let me sleep in the morning."

"It's morning now," she reminded him. "And I shan't close my eyes again, you may be sure of that. You might have some consideration—" Her voice went on, unheard, till suddenly a word fixed his attention. "—and driving all over New England all night with Mary Ann! Is that necessary? Of course, I understand; but people are so ready to think and say unkind things about a girl who works—"

He made no reply; but he was conscious of a rising tide of anger at her chidings. He checked and curbed his own wrath, startled, full of a quick and vivid terror, afraid of his own thoughts. He was like a rider who reins back—his steed at the brink of a precipice. He felt in himself dark, terrifying powers, which must be restrained.

He closed his ears to his wife's words, found solace and contentment in remembering Mary Ann—whom incredibly, he loved!

Incredibly; and also with a great futility. Doctor Greeding was essentially conventional, accepting the decent standards of his world, abiding by them. No matter what he might feel for Mary Ann, he would still cleave loyally to Myra, so long as they both should live. —Or—so long as Myra should live!

Thus insidiously, as he lay half dreaming, there crept into his thoughts a hideous possibility, one of those monstrous specters which need only to be recognized to be abhorred. . . . Yet which, if a man contemplate them long enough, may cease to affright him, may come to wear an aspect treacherously beautiful.

Sometimes, in retrospect, it is possible to say that on a certain day, or even at a certain hour, there occurred in an acquaintance a fundamental change; to recognize that he became from that moment another person, almost a stranger.

There was this summer such a change in Doctor Greeding, but even those who knew him most intimately were not afterward able to fix definitely its beginning. His wife's death, it was sometimes suggested, might have been the cause; but Mrs. Greeding had in fact herself remarked the difference in him, and had more than once spoken of it to Doctor Greeding himself, before she died.

Moonless Month Period

Without the Full Moon

Moonless month is the name popularly given to a month in which no full moon occurs. Under our calendar February is the only month that is shorter than the lunar cycle and consequently it is the only month that can have fewer than four moon phases. The absent phase, however, need not necessarily be the full moon, but may be any one of the four. Likewise five phases of the moon occasionally fall in the other months.

The average time from one full moon to another is twenty-nine and one-half days, and the time from one phase to the next varies from less than seven days to more than eight. About every six years February has only three phases. When it is without a full moon, the preceding January and the following March may have two full moons each. This remarkable sequence, astronomers estimate, will not occur again for some 2,500,000 years. February was without a full moon in 1885, 1915 and 1934, and from approximate computations made by the United States naval observatory that month will be without a full moon in 1961.

Februarys without new moons or either of the other two phases occur at about the same intervals, but, of course, in different years.—Indianapolis News.

RED CROSS AID TO MORE THAN 500,000 DISASTER VICTIMS

Large Urban Areas Devastated As Elements Hit 20 States East of Mississippi

"The number of disaster victims assisted by the Red Cross during the fiscal year ended June 30, was more than four times the number aided in the previous twelve month period," Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman, said in commenting on highlights of the annual report just issued. "Over 181,000 families were given food, clothing, shelter and medical care, and thousands of homes were rebuilt or repaired by the Red Cross to enable them to carry on."

Pointing to the many-sided problems created by the wide variety of types of disasters which occurred during the year, Admiral Grayson said, "The Red Cross sent hundreds of trained workers into 39 states to meet the many exigencies of catastrophes which included earthquake, epidemic, explosion, fire, hurricane, ice lock, landslide, refugee relief, shipwreck, tornado and typhoon. The Red Cross took charge at the scenes of 105 domestic disasters of major severity."

The report emphasized the marked value of Government-Red Cross cooperation when disaster strikes, giving as example the flight of Army bombing planes which dropped Red Cross food to marooned refugees at Renovo, Pennsylvania, during the Spring floods. More than 10,000 persons were rescued from the second floors of homes in Wilkes-Barre and Kingston through Coast Guard-Red Cross cooperation at the height of these same floods.

"Government agencies and relief groups were of invaluable assistance to Red Cross relief forces at all times," Admiral Grayson stated. The complete resources of Red Cross leadership, training and disaster experience were brought into play by the Spring floods and tornadoes which took so heavy a toll of life and property in eastern and southern states this year, the annual report reveals. The Red Cross aided 77,000 families in 14 flooded states east of the Mississippi and 6,000 families in 6 tornado hit states south of the Mason-Dixon line in this one operation.

"Never before have as many metropolitan centers borne the brunt of attack by wind and water within a single year, challenging Red Cross preparedness and efficiency by so wide a variety of pressing human problems," Chairman Grayson said.

In its work of relief to disaster sufferers the Red Cross expended in excess of $5,200,000 for the year. The report points out that this figure does not include assistance given in 27 lesser disasters with a total of 2,000 persons aided, and adds that additional millions will be used to "clean up" Spring floods and tornadoes.

"Numerous local disaster situations occurring during the year were met by Red Cross chapter funds and manpower," Admiral Grayson said. "In each major relief operation undertaken the great army of Red Cross volunteers aided trained workers with the task of rehabilitating those without resources who had suffered losses."

"The Red Cross disaster relief service is one of many Red Cross activities supported by the American people through membership at the time of Roll Call, held each year from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving."

Public Buys 1,000 1937 Plates Daily

Sale of motor vehicle license plates for 1937 is proceeding at the rate of slightly more than 1,000 pairs a day, Department of State figures show.

These figures include plates for all classes of motor vehicles including passenger cars, dealers' cars, commercial vehicles and motorcycles.

Plates for 1937 went on sale Oct. 21, ordered by Orville E. Atwood Secretary, as an aid to car manufacturers who bring new models out in the fall now, rather than during midwinter. Plates for which revenue was actually checked into the Department of State for the first 19 days of sale, including Nov. 12, showed that 21,388 pairs of plates had been sold throughout the state.

Any disposition on the part of the public to defer purchase of plates for cars they now own, is seen as a reflection of uncertainty as to what changes the 1937 legislature might make in the motor vehicle law as it pertains to the deadline for annual plate purchases.

Atwood has publicly recommended a March 31 deadline; and on request of Leon D. Case, Secretary of State, Atwood has announced a 30 day extension from Jan. 1, making the prospective deadline Jan. 31. In the meantime the 1937 legislature may take action on this matter.

RED CROSS HIGHWAY POSTS AID INJURED

1,000 Function At Key Points To Give Emergency Care To Traffic Hurt

Highway first aid stations, set up by the Red Cross to give emergency care to victims of traffic accidents, are saving lives, according to James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations.

"More than 1,000 of our emergency posts are already operating in 47 states and thousands of others will soon be established at key points along America's highways," Mr. Fieser stated.

The Red Cross highway posts are concentrated at danger spots in rural areas where medical aid is not readily available. The importance of this coverage of the open road, the Red Cross holds, is given sharper emphasis by the fact that there has been a 150 per cent increase in rural traffic fatalities during the past twelve years.

The project was initiated last year on a national scale as a practical approach to the highway accident problem. The Red Cross felt that it could best apply its strength by succoring those who continue to be injured pending a reduction in the highway accident rate through legislation and safety education.

"Our program brings first aid skill to the scene of accident in an effort to reduce the number of persons killed and maimed in automobile mishaps," Mr. Fieser said. "Our highway first aiders are not medical men in any sense, but it is their job to turn the injured over to the medical profession in the best shape possible."

The Red Cross highway posts are established at gasoline service stations, tourist homes, rural police and fire departments. The personnel of the posts are trained by the Red Cross in first aid, standard first aid equipment is installed at each station, and identifying signs for the benefit of motorists are erected beside the highway at both approaches to the station.

The attendants of these roadside units who qualify as first aiders volunteer their services through the Red Cross and may under no circumstances accept pay for caring for the injured.

To complement the highway first aid stations, the Red Cross has announced formation of mobile units. Several thousand trucks which regularly ply the highway in the course of routine work will be equipped with first aid kits. Drivers and crews will take courses in both standard and advanced first aid, and each truck will be identified as a Red Cross mobile unit. More than a hundred trucks are already operating.

"The highway police of eight states who have finished first aid training will join this army mobilized to cut accident fatalities and prevent complication of minor injuries through mishandling at the scene of accident," Mr. Fieser said.

"We receive reports from our first aid stations daily, telling of essential care given to traffic casualties on the spot and of lives actually saved."

This and many other Red Cross programs of equal value are supported by the people of America during the annual Roll Call for members. This year the Roll Call will be held from November 11 to 25.

FOR the moon and the stars that shine,
For the stout heart that beats with mine,
For my home and its daily cares,
For dreams that grow along the years,
For those friends whom I hold most dear,
For my senses, e'er keen and clear,
For the seasons which come and go,
For the books that I've learned to know,
For music and its lovely way,
For the sun pouring out gold all day,
For the hills of my native land,
And the clasp of my children's hand,
For the life that binds me to these
Let me be thankful, dear God—please!

GOOD stuffing for Thanksgiving bird is of prime importance to the success of the yearly feast. It must, first of all, be well selected, a delicately flavored stuffing for the roast chicken and turkey, a more strongly flavored one for the roast goose or duck, writes Helen Robertson in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.
Second, it must be perfectly seasoned. Not too strongly to overwhelm the deliciousness of the bird, nor yet so bland in taste as to be uninteresting. Third, it must be of the proper consistency, not too moist, nor yet too dry. And fourth, there must be enough.
Bread being the usual foundation of the dressing, let us talk of it first. All kinds of breads may be three-fourths to two pounds of bread may be used. And for the smaller bird, one pound and under should be sufficient.

Celery, oysters, mushrooms, chestnuts, the other ingredients you will use are of course dependent upon your own personal tastes and upon the bird you are serving. Here is a basic recipe for dressing for the twelve to fifteen-pound bird.

Bread Dressing.
8 qts. stale bread cubes Sage to taste
2 tsp. salt 1 cup melted butter
1 tsp. pepper 2 cups chopped celery
1 tsp. chopped parsley Cooked giblets

Prepare bread, sprinkle with seasonings. Pour over them melted butter and enough boiling water or stock from cooking giblets and neck to moisten. In adding butter and stock, toss the ingredients together lightly with a fork. Never press them together.

If you like onion in dressing, saute one or two slices in a portion of the butter before adding it to the dressing.

For oyster dressing omit giblets, add one pint of oysters cut in half and the oyster liquor, well strained.
To make mushroom dressing saute one-half pound mushrooms, sliced, in a portion of the butter and mix with bread-crumbs. In using the mushrooms celery may be omitted or a smaller amount used.

Chestnut dressing is usually liked. To make it, prepare one-half pound chestnuts, chopping them rather fine. Mix with bread.

Sausage dressing is another favorite. One-half pound is sufficient for this amount. Cook it over a low fire fifteen minutes before adding to the dressing.

For the roast duck or goose you will find this rice and prune stuffing tasty:

Brown three tablespoons of finely minced onion in two tablespoons butter. Add one cup well washed, drained rice. Let simmer until rice is slightly browned. Then add four cups soup stock or water in which bouillon cubes have been dissolved, eight or nine cooked prunes, pitted, and one teaspoon salt. Cook over a very low fire or over hot water until rice is tender. Season well.

URGED THANKSGIVING

TRADITION has it that a woman was responsible for establishing the modern Thanksgiving day on the last Thursday of November. According to that story, President Lincoln issued his proclamation in answer to her plea from Sarah J. Hale, editor of Godey's Lady's Book.

President Andrew Jackson refused to give Thanksgiving day the customary presidential sanction because he would have nothing to do with "that Yankee holiday"

AN AMBASSADOR IN CHAINS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 23:16-24, 30, 31; Romans 5:6-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me. Phil. 4:13.
PRIMARY TOPIC—In the World's Greatest City.
JUNIOR TOPIC—An Ambassador in Chains.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Prisoner Speaks for Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Chained But Not Silenced.

The rescue of Paul from the Jewish mob by the Roman authorities resulted in consideration of his case on their part to determine what manner of man he was, and why his words and actions provoked such violent reactions among the Jewish subjects of Rome in Judea. When it appeared that Festus, who was procurator, was inclined to turn him over to the Jews at Jerusalem, Paul, knowing of their hatred, makes

I. An Appeal to Caesar (Acts 23:16-19).

It was an act of great significance, and largely determined the course of Paul's life and ministry until his death. It is a question upon which there is no little difference of opinion whether Paul was right in making this appeal. Perhaps Dr. G. Campbell Morgan has best gathered up the truth of the matter in saying, "His way was that of an attitude revealing for all time what the duty of the Christian man is—to be true to his Lord, to be true to his conscience, to be loyal to the powers that be, and to make his appeal to them where necessary, for protection, in order that he may continue his work in accordance with the will of his Lord." Paul made no appeal to save his own life, but he did want to continue his ministry. And this he was permitted to do, for after he had come to Rome we find him to be

II. A Prisoner Preacher (vv. 20-24, 30, 31).

He was chained, but not silenced. He was anxious that those in Rome should "see" and "speak with" him (v. 20). They knew of the Christian "sect" only by rumor as one "which everywhere is spoken against" (v. 22). He now proclaimed the truth to them, and with what results? "Some believed... and some disbelieved" (v. 23). Again, we see that the greatest of all preachers met just the same encouragement and discouragement that we face. The witness and messenger is not judged by the success that crowns his efforts, but by the faithfulness with which he discharges his duty. Let us not condone our own carelessness or inefficiency by saying that even Paul was unsuccessful; but if we have been faithful and diligent, let us be encouraged even though some disbelieve.

Verse 30 indicates that Paul either had a large measure of liberty, being permitted even as a prisoner to dwell in a private house, or that he was tried and acquitted and continued to work in Rome for a period of years. Whichever may be true we cannot but admire the faithful testimony of this man upon whose body time and trials had borne heavily, but whose spirit was as young and as powerful as the message he presented. And what was his message? We find it in his epistle to the Roman church. It was

III. Justification by Faith (Rom. 5:6-11).

Christian men and women are those who were weak (v. 6), ungodly (v. 8), unrighteous sinners (v. 7, 8), and enemies of God (v. 10). But having been justified by his blood (v. 9), they are "saved" (v. 9). What a beautiful word—"saved!" Brought back to God, "reconciled to God through the death of his Son" (v. 10), we are indeed saved if we have accepted him as our Saviour.

This was Paul's message, and it is our message to a lost world.

Count Your Mercies

Be on the lookout for mercies. The more we look for them the more of them will we see. Blessings brighten when we count them. Out of the determination of the heart the eyes see. If you want to be gloomy, there's gloom enough to keep you glum; if you want to be glad, there's gleam enough to keep you glad. Say, "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits." Better lose count in his enumerating your blessings than lose your blessings in telling over your troubles. "Be thankful unto him and bless his name."—Maltbie D. Babcock, D. D.

A True Life

One truly Christian life will do more to prove the divine origin of Christianity than many lectures. It is of much greater importance to develop Christian character, than to exhibit Christian evidences. —J. M. Gibson.

Pattern 1818, an unusually graceful and flattering double duty frock for the mature figure, features a softly draped collar in contrast and set in skirt panels topped with pockets. Appropriate for any of a wide range of fabrics, it will serve with equal grace as a morning or daytime frock, can be cut twice for double wear. The pattern is available in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, and 52. Size 36 requires 4 1/4 yards of 39 inch material plus 1/2 yard contrast.

Household Questions

To prevent that hard crust forming on left-over cooked cereal pour a cup of cold water over it before placing in the refrigerator.

Cooked prunes stuffed with celery and nuts make a tempting salad. Stuffed prunes can also be used as a garnish for chops, roasts or steaks.

A little salt added to pumpkin sauce will greatly improve the flavor.

To clean fireplace bricks, cover them with a paste made of powdered pumice and household ammonia. Let it dry for an hour, then scrub with warm soapy water.

After removing the tough portion of the center of a grapefruit and separating the pulp, place an after-dinner mint in the center of each half and chill. The mint gives the grapefruit a delicious flavor.

Baking soda is excellent for cleaning fish aquariums. Rub the inside with a wet cloth dipped in the soda, rinse and dry. It will remove all traces of scum and evaporation marks, as well as deodorize.

To braise roasts, steaks or chops first brown the meat, then put in a tightly covered utensil with very little water either on the top of stove or in oven and continue cooking slowly until meat is tender.

make for your baby daughter or a favorite niece. Your selection of materials is unlimited—percale or gingham or pique or pongee or shantung or linen. Designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8 years, the pattern in size 4 requires just 2 3/4 yards of 32 or 35 inch fabric.

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart
National Press Building
Washington, D. C.

Washington — Probably sufficient time has elapsed since the election to give us something of a perspective, something of an understanding of what happened November 3. In that record-breaking vote for the re-election of Mr. Roosevelt, there lie covered perhaps the greatest number of reasons why votes were cast as they were, ever to influence a national election. The results left the Republicans stunned; they were surprising even to the Democrats and that is no secret.

I have consulted with numerous among the better informed political students and political writers concerning the basis for this deluge of votes that came so nearly making the electoral college unanimous for Mr. Roosevelt that there had been only one time in history when the opposition received fewer votes in the electoral college than Governor Landon will receive. The inquiries have brought almost as many different answers as there were people interviewed. Each one of these persons was thoroughly convinced that his diagnosis was correct and yet after hearing all of them I have a conviction that each one was only partially right. It was, in my opinion, a combination of reasons that brought about such an enormous vote for election of Mr. Roosevelt. The various reasons entering into that combination were influential individually only as regards a comparatively small percentage of the population.

How else can it be explained? Unless separate reasons operated in various sections of the country and, indeed, upon segments of voters in those various sections, no such thing could have happened as the election, for example, of Henry Cabot Lodge, a Republican, to the senate in Massachusetts, while Mr. Roosevelt carried the state overwhelmingly for himself as a Democrat. There were other instances where Republicans won in statewide elections while the state's electoral vote went to the President.

This necessarily shows that even in states that normally vote a straight ticket, either Democratic or Republican, there was some appeal which Mr. Roosevelt had for the voters that was non-existent insofar as the lesser candidates were concerned. In other words, there were split tickets and if this ever proved anything, it surely proved this year that the nation was overwhelmingly in favor of Mr. Roosevelt personally.

I think that, as always, the national ticket carried many men into the house and senate, only it is quite apparent that the percentage of representatives and senators elected this time on the strength of the national ticket was larger than usual. I mean that instead of local personalities carrying the national ticket, the national ticket swept in the local personalities because it is the tendency of a vast majority of voters to vote a straight ticket.

What I have just said seems really to complicate the whole picture. It seems to complicate it for the reason that such a paradox as the election of Mr. Lodge in Massachusetts occurred within this deluge of votes.

But whatever else can be said, nothing can overshadow the consequences of the vast power handed to Mr. Roosevelt. He is in complete control and has a right to feel that anything he does will be accepted by a large majority of the population. With the exception of George Washington, who was elected President by the unanimous vote of the electoral college, and James Monroe, who had all excepting one electoral vote with him, no President of the United States has ever been awarded such a verdict.

So, it strikes me that the outstanding question before the United States today is "how will Mr. Roosevelt use this authority?" It is in his hands to become a man of history, a man who will stand out among all of our Presidents if he uses his power wisely. It is to be suggested in the same breath that if he misuses or abuses that power he can easily become just as infamous.

I said above that there were, so many reasons influential in bringing about the unusual vote for Mr. Roosevelt that it was almost impossible to enumerate them. Nevertheless, I shall try to set down some of the more important ones that appear to have been operative. It must be remembered that these larger reasons embrace numerous and sundry variations. Each of the important reasons is made up of a number of less important and less significant and even less influential reasons. Each of the larger and each of the smaller propositions had its effect.

I do not want to have it appear that the order in which I name these various reasons has any significance. In fact, I think it would be utterly foolish for anyone to attempt to say that one particular reason was more influential than another.

How, for instance, can any one individual know what caused particular voters to vote a particular way without knowing the individual voters concerned? So, I am simply outlining some of the reasons that the political students agree have been important:

That the federal government can or should interfere in the management of basic industries like agriculture, manufacturing, power and possibly in the commercial field of finance.

That the government can or should be centralized to a greater extent in the federal machinery as distinguished from the state machinery. This implies, a disappearance to a large extent of the age-old contention for state's rights. It goes even beyond that and into the field of local government which, it must be said, has not been too efficient.

That the people, as citizens of the United States, ought not be hamstrung by rigid constitutional provisions and strict interpretation of them by the United States Supreme court. This may easily be expanded into other propositions such as modification of revision of court powers; mandatory retirement of judges when they reach a given age, or constitutional amendments giving the federal government more direct contact with individual citizens and individual businesses.

That the great business leaders of the last score of years are outmoded and that the time has come for a fresh start in business leadership just as the advent of the New Deal accomplished a fresh start in the political leadership. In this thought is hidden various and sundry possibilities. There are those, for example, who have become permeated with a hatred of big business. Likewise, there are those who feel that only portions of big business have been unfair and have crushed the little fellow. Aside from these two is a third group that surely feels the necessity for strict federal control of all types of business, good as well as bad, in order to prevent private initiative from getting out of bounds.

That many of our citizens are willing for the federal government to participate in business by direct competition with private initiative. This thought, expanded, naturally takes on the aspect of a broader movement for public ownership of various businesses than has been evident heretofore.

It is axiomatic that reasons effective with one person are not effective with another and reasons that operate to control the views of a county or a section of a state or even a region of states undoubtedly have had nothing at all to do with votes taken in other parts of our nation.

There are unsettled conditions. There are ten or eleven million people who are out of jobs. Some of these felt that they had been benefited by one Roosevelt policy; some felt they had been benefited by another. However one may examine the picture, it seems to me incapable that it was a combination of reasons and not any single proposition. It may be added, as some honestly feel, that the Roosevelt political machine was able to encompass all of these factors and to show in the various sections of the country how effective particular policies had been in those particular sections. That to my mind is going beyond the scope of intelligence because strong as the Roosevelt political machine is, it had to have and had to hold the faith of an extraordinarily large number of voters in addition to those controlled by the machine in order to roll up a majority of nine million votes.

So, again we get back to the question: what will Mr. Roosevelt do with this new mandate, this fresh delegation of power that has been given to him?

Already there are signs developing among the old line, conservative Democrats of a desire to persuade him to be less radical than he was in his first four years as President. These Democrats feel that this country needs a little less of reform and considerably more of sound governmental management. How much effect they will have on general administration policies obviously is problematical. It is problematical because included among the new senators and representatives, especially among the representatives, are many men who do not impress me as having the slightest understanding of governmental functions. Consequently, from these and from those wild eyes already in the house membership, we undoubtedly will see some of the worst harum scarum pieces of legislation ever proposed in the national house of representatives.

It is such circumstances as are presented in the type of legislation that I named that will test Mr. Roosevelt's real capacity as a statesman.

FROM AROUND MICHIGAN

Sturgis—Delegates to the annual convention of the Michigan State Grange unanimously re-elected C. H. Bramble of Lansing state master and chose Alpena as the 1937 convention city.

Berkley—Twenty-five years ago, Arthur Mitchell swallowed 36 buckshot while hunting. Recently he underwent an appendectomy. Surgeons removed an appendix six inches long, with the 35 buckshot in it.

Lansing—The state highway department and the WPA have announced jointly an $11,000,000 road construction program designed to continue through the winter in the upper peninsula and a part of lower Michigan.

Sandusky—It has been estimated that recent rains and heavy frosts have cost Sanilac county bean growers $1,400,000. About 25 per cent of the crop has been ruined. Rain has forced many farmers to abandon machinery and attempt to harvest the crop by hand.

Adrian—Officials are under Stream Control Commission orders to submit plans by March 1st for a secondary sewage disposal system, estimated to cost $60,000 and intended to decrease River Raisin pollution. Completion of the plant has been ordered by May 1, 1938.

Elsie — Mrs. Thelma Dunham, 36 years old, and her mother, Mrs. William Wright, 55, of Elsie, died of burns suffered when Mrs. Dunham poured oil onto some coals in the kitchen stove as she started to prepare dinner. The mother was burned while beating the flames from Mrs. Dunham's clothing.

Lansing—Michigan's wheat crop is ready to go into the winter in the best condition in many seasons. With a world shortage of wheat to reduce the prospective carryover from the 1936 crop into the 1937 marketing season, growers are cheered by the outlook for fair prices in the next harvest.

Grand Rapids—The same crew that removed the first rail from the 40 miles of street railway tracks here in August 1935, took up the last rail during October. Buses are now used in place of street cars. The Federal government supplied $1,888,966 for the project and the city $69,434 in cash and $75,000 in salvaged rails.

Traverse City—Potatoes are pouring into the city's warehouses but very few of them are finding their way to market. Most growers are selling just enough to pay harvesting costs and are holding the remainder for higher prices. The quality of the crops is the best in several years, growers report. The average yield in Grand Traverse county is 100 to 125 bushels per acre.

Ionia — Harwood & Son, prize stock breeders, probably have the most unique steer in the state among their herd. He is "Scotty," one ton of beef on the hoof, a Scotch highland steer. He was saved from the Kansas City stock yards by Harold Harwood several years ago, after being exhibited in circuses since the time he was brought to America as a calf. "Scotty's" dress is unique—it's all horns and wool.

Allegan—Six Allegan county farmers have won charter membership this year in the Michigan Thousand Bushel Club but none of the winners harvested a thousand bushels per acre. The yields varied from a high of 834 bushels per acre to a low of 750 bushels per acre and all were certified by a county agricultural agent. The project was sponsored by the Pennsylvania railroad, the Michigan Muck Farmers and the Michigan State College.

Bay City—Raphael G. Phillips, Bay City's veteran municipal judge, was one of two Republicans to survive the Democratic landslide in Bay County. Phillips, who lost both hands in a hunting accident when a youth of 12, has made an enviable record as police justice since first being elected in 1921. Although physically handicapped, he leads a normal life, drives an automobile, operates a typewriter and does the others things a person with both hands does.

Hastings — "If a farmer pays taxes on his property to the middle of the road, does he have the power to post his land against hunters to the middle of the road?" That, according to the local justice of the peace, is a poser! A local youth was arrested on charges of violation of the Horton act for hunting on land without the owner's permission. He pleaded not guilty, saying that the squirrel which he killed was shot in the road, where he had a right to hunt.

Cheboygan—A two-year-old bull elk, feeling ill, stopped an ambulance in the Pigeon River state forest and obtained help. Bill Tremblay, driver of a CCC ambulance, said the elk barred his way, walked over to him on wobbly legs, and made him understand that it was in need of help. "Fellow, I can't take you in the ambulance, but you stay here and I'll send a truck for you," Tremblay promised. When the truck arrived the animal permitted a rope to be placed around its neck and rode quietly to a stall.

Then It Became a Heated Argument

"How much coal are you going to burn this winter?"
"Twelve tons. I knew it."
"What?"
"I said I knew it."
"You knew what?"
"You'll burn only eight."
"Why, that's so. I never buy over eight. How did you guess?"
"I didn't. It's a foregone conclusion. I knew it."
"What?"
"You're going to tell me how to run my furnace."
"You ought to be glad to save a few tons. Here's what I do. At bedtime I shut all the drafts and..."—Kansas City Star.

GRADE NEWS
Second Graders Turn Farmers:— The second graders are building a farm. They made the animals out of clay and the buildings out of paper. They have the farm all laid out on the floor.
Honor Roll of Eight:— The third grade honor roll consists of Marietta Burbank, Grey De Forest, Anna Gibbard, Betty Hayden, James Lewis, Gerda Neilson, Ray Olson, and Gloria Reed.

Fourth Grade Studies Pilgrims:— The fourth graders are making booklets about pilgrims. They have just finished studying about the Indians and are now studying Pilgrims leading up to Thanksgiving.

Honor Roll of Eleven:— The fifth grade honor roll consists of Violet Ayers, Elgy Brintnall, Jack Conyer, Marilyn Davis, Harold Donner, Nolan Dougherty, Arlene Hayden, Helen Hayes, Dale Johnson, Johne Williams, Emily Neilson.
German Foreigners:— The sixth graders are studying Germany. One of the boys brought some German books to school which are very nice. They are going to make a German exhibit which will include anything from Germany. The Honor Roll consists of Beryl Bennett, Russell Conway, Evelyn Gibbard, Gerald Green, Leland Hickox, Thomas Lew, Francis Malpass, Phyllis Nimme, Bernice Olson, Elizabeth Penfold, Billy Saxton, Ernest Stallard, and Barton Vance.

LATIN CLUB
The Latin Club met at the home of Mrs. Wright Carr Tuesday evening at 7:30. (At least that was the time set to be there but due to the fact that some were late it didn't get under way until about 8:15).
The Club decided upon their Latin pins and also appointed committees to find out a name and a constitution for the club.

After playing a few games the club went down town for refreshments. After the refreshments were partaken of each departed his way, with the help of Mr. Smith's and Art Rude's car. Everyone had a pleasant evening.

OBSERVATIONS
Bus No. 1, Mr. Inman's bus, has not been going on the East Jordan-Boyer City road because that road is having the black top put on it at the present time.
Hot lunches are being served to the grade students who live in the country.

Mr. Smith can't imagine any of his students getting their lessons done when their study halls are omitted. Many students were absent Wednesday. They went to Kalkaska with Mr. Eggert to judge potatoes.

GUESS WHO
The person described last week was Helen Burbank.
The person we're describing this week is a girl. This girl is five feet, five and one-half inches tall. She weighs one hundred thirty-five lbs. She has greenish-blue eyes, and she is light complected. Her favorite color is blue. Her favorite sport is swimming. Her hobby is collecting snapshots, and her pastime is tapdancing.

EDITORIAL
Once each month during the school year an event happens which brings pleasure or dismay to each parent and child.
In most cases the fault of poor monthly grades is the student's or his parent's, not the teacher's. If his marks are good, it is through his, and his parent's, efforts and co-operation.
There are eight periods in a school day and no student has to carry more than four studies through the year. Surely four periods consisting of forty-five minutes each is enough for any student to get his school work done.
Because your child does not get A's and B's as a few students do, don't complain! The majority of the class always has to back up or aid those students and therefore comes in the average class. This doesn't necessarily mean he is not as good as the other students. In order to be outstanding in a class, the student must understand his text book and know something of what is going on in the world outside at the present time.

ARMISTICE DAY
Our school program opened this year with a march by the band and "America". Mr. Wade gave a very fitting and descriptive talk of the beginning of the war and of his experiences in France at the time. Joseph Wilkins, an expert bugler from the local American Legion Post, blew taps. Rev. C. W. Sidebotham gave the invocation.

A boys' octette (incidentally there were nine boys instead of eight) composed of Bruce Bartlett, Fredrick Knuckles, Benny Clark, Tom Joynt, Frank Ingals, Du Wayne Penfold, Mattison Smith, Melvin Gould and Sherman Thomas sang a group of songs popular at the time of the war. Miss Raatikain sang "Roses of Picardy."
The program was concluded with taps, again blown by Mr. Wilkins.

MISSING STUDENT
Jeanne Stroebel, one of the most outstanding students of the Junior class, left Saturday evening for Detroit where she will attend the Redford High School.
Jeanne was not only outstanding in her school work but very popular with all of the students.
She was a very active member of the band and has played first alto ever since she joined it. She also joined the French Class, which proceeds each night after school, and during her short sojourn there was a bright student.
All of the students join in wishing Jeanne the best of luck and lots of it.

VITAL STATISTICS
In the history room or the tenth grade room you will find the following equipment: From nine to eleven maps, one door, six windows, twelve sections of blackboard, eight rows of seats consisting of seventy-one seats, five lights, one pencil sharpener, three pictures, one bookcase consisting of one hundred and one books, one waste paper basket (usually the basket is empty with all the paper around it), two ventilators, one sky light, five corners, one bulletin board with three pictures on it, one chair, one teachers' desk, and one clock.
There are no window curtains, erasers, chalk, or no tables.

SNOOPY SUE
It is rumored that Mr. Smith needn't go deer hunting this year because he has already caught his deer. Who is the Mr. Smith?
Mr. Wade has called up neighboring superintendants and asked them to phone him if any pupils from here visit school there. Better watch out boys and girls.
Some of the high school boys are running a little contest. Perhaps they would not like the purpose of this contest published but I wouldn't let a 9th grader beat me Frank. Beware girls!
I wouldn't worry too much about how you will look wearing a ping pong medal in your shirt, Titch, because perhaps you might end up the way you did last year.
Mr. Robert would like to know just why Jane and Winifred came back to school instead of skipping Friday afternoon.
No students in Mr. Eggerts classes will fall asleep because no heating system has been devised for that building as yet.
Mr. Oldt believes that Mr. Smith's deer (or dear) is a fake but everyone knows that Mr. Oldt wouldn't be taking 500 mile hikes to see a rabbit.
It appears as if Jeanne Stroebel didn't like school in Detroit for she's back again to finish the semester. We are glad to have you Jeanne.
Alston Penfold wears perfume already to school.
Sonny what were you expelled for?
What could the boys that went to Lansing have done to get home at 4:00 a. m.? We wonder.
Snoopy's sick this week. Just a substitute.

THE LIBRARY
The East Jordan Public Library was founded in the year 1918.
In the library there are over 3000 books. These books are for both the young and old. Some of the books are picturesque, others are mysterious, in fact there is almost every kind of book you would wish to read.
There is also a very large map of the state of Michigan in the library. This map shows the main roads, the countries, the cities, and almost anything you would wish to know about the state of Michigan.
The library also carries the leading and most important magazines of the nation. In these magazines you will find amusement for everyone.
The Library is open six days of every week and some nights.
