VOLUME 41

EAST JORDAN, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, MAY 21, 1937.

NUMBER 21

400 Boys And Girls

FROM NORTHERN MICHIGAN HIGH SCHOOL HERE SATURDAY, MAY 29.

The first annual festival of Glee Clubs, Choruses, and Ensembles will be held at the East Jordan High School Auditorium Saturday afternoon and evening, May 29.

The afternoon program begins at 1:30. Individual glee clubs and choruses will perform at this time. The evening program will be unique in that Dr. William Norton, our guest conductor, will assemble these four hundred young people into a mass chorus that will sing several numbers which have been prepared by all schools. This will be a performance never attempted before by the schools of Northern Michigan, and should prove very interesting to music lovers.

There will also be several special numbers aside from the massed groups during the evening program. Come out and enjoy this first music festival with us and watch the artist, Dr. Norton, conduct.

The afternoon program will be free to the public. An admittance of 25c and 15c will be charged for the evening performance.

National Poppy Day To Be Observed Here Saturday, May 29

Saturday, May 29, is National Poppy Day. The flowers are made by disabled war veterans who need the money for dependent families. No set price will be asked for the flowers and the proceeds will be used for needy families.

Our local unit American Legion Auxiliary wishes to express their appreciation to all who have helped this cause so generously in the past.

Our slogan — "Wear A Poppy on Poppy Day."

Clark Haire, Editor of the Boyne Citizen, Passed Away, Monday

Clark Haire, 76, passed away at his home in Boyne City Monday noon May 17, following a lingering illness from diabetes.

Mr. Haire has been identified with Boyne City's business interests for the past 25 years. He was born in Macomb County, Mich., in 1861, and was united in marriage to Miss Flora Ueberhorst of Bay City in 1889. He was for many years identified with the railroad business. At one time he was general manager of the D. & C. R. R. when it had its headquarters at Deward, and later on when the headquarters were moved to East Jordan. When the railroad was purchased by the M. C. R. R. he continued as general manager of the East Jordan Branch of the M. C. R. R. for several years. Mr. Haire went to Boyne City in 1911, connecting himself with the E. C. G., and A. R. R., being Superintendent at one time. He became interested in the Boyne Citizen when it was a stock company, purchasing shares in the enterprise. He has been Editor of the Boyne Citizen for the past fifteen years, being assisted in the work by Mrs. Haire.

In fraternal circles, Mr. Haire was a member of the F. & A. M., R. A. M. and Rotary Club.

Beside the widow, deceased is survived by two daughters — Mrs. W. G. (Flora) Gilbert of Dillon, Mont., and Mrs. J. Alex (Kathryn) Rowan of Highland Park, Mich.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon, May 20, at the M. E. church conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. A. Eley assisted by Rev. G. E. Smock, pastor of the Presbyterian church. Burial was at Maple Lawn.

As a mark of esteem to their fellow business man the business places of Boyne City were closed during the hour of the funeral.

E. J. H. S. Base Ball Team Handed Shut-out By Boyne City Boys

Coach Jankoviak's local baseball nine suffered its second loss of the year, dropping a close contest to Boyne City 1 to 0 at the West Side Ball Park last Thursday afternoon. The fray was a pitcher's battle from start to finish, Green besting Johnson as both hurled well. Green, in winning, allowed but two scratch hits, one in the first and one in the sixth inning while striking out 9 batsmen. Johnson also allowed two hits, both doubles, one by Hausler and one by Kanipe in the sixth which resulted in the only run in the game. Morgan and Saxton were fortunate local lads who hit the offerings of Green.

The locals looked very good afield Thursday as they went the full route without an error but the hitting was terrible; several times, with men on second and third, batsmen were easy prey for Green as he sent them down swinging. Many observers claim the local combination to be the best fielding-high school nine here in the last decade.

With this loss the locals chances are very slim in getting any share of the championship honors. To have teams of championship caliber, a coach must have some outstanding and powerful batsmen and this seems to be lacking in the local attack.

Charlevoix comes here Thursday, leaders of the Northern Michigan Conference. Johnson will probably be on the mound for the locals with Holley or Umlor catching.

Garden Club Meeting Postponed One Week

The meeting of the East Jordan Garden Club, scheduled for last Wednesday, has been postponed to next Wednesday afternoon, May 26th, at 3:00 o'clock. The meeting will be held at the City Building and it is expected to have a speaker present who will discuss planting and growing of tulips. All ladies interested in gardening are cordially invited to be present.

Poison Bran Bait Available At Ten Cents Per Bushel

Already many requests have been made for cut worm bait, as apparently they are showing a lot of activity. This poison bran applied in the evening will control these worms very nicely.

Until further announcement, this material can be purchased from John Lewis, Boyne City, who is in charge of the mixing this year. His warehouse is directly across from the Boyne City Railroad freight office, and can be purchased any day from 9:00 to 5:00. It will cost 10c per bushel is ample for at least one acre, if distributed evenly.

B. C. Mellencamp, County Agr'l Agent.

William Powell Starred At Temple

Entertainment at the Temple this week runs heavily to farce with the comedy tinged with not too serious mystery. The Friday and Saturday bill is a giddy, gay and nonsensical offering, "Dangerous Number" starring Robert Young and Ann Southern. And to top the enjoyment an Our Gang Comedy, a Pete Smith Specialty and a new News of the Day have been added.

William Powell, Joan Crawford, Robert Montgomery and Ralph Morgan head the star studded cast of "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney" for three days starting Sunday. A musical featurette and a Metro Miniature round out this outstanding program.

Family Nites, next Wednesday and Thursday, bring us "Sinner Take All" with Joseph Calleia, Bruce Cabot, Margaret Lindsay, and Charlie Grapewin starred. Dan Healey is presented in "It's All Over Now" and lastly a new Technicolor cartoon-musical, "I Only Have Eyes For You."

SUMMER 4-H CLUB WORK STARTS

After completing a very successful winter program, the 4-H club members are making preparations to start on their summer projects. Quite a number of clubs are planning on having their organization meeting with in the next two weeks. Some changes in the canning and food preparation requirements have been made. New bulletins in canning, food preparation dairy and pig projects will soon be ready for distribution.

Some of the projects that can be carried are: canning, food preparation, 4-H club girl entertains, garden, corn, beans, potato, soil conservation, forest fire study, forestry, and livestock.

If there are any communities that are not yet contacted and that wish to organize a summer 4-H club, please write your county agent.

Orville F. Walker, 4-H Club Agent.

E. J. Thinclads Placed Fifth At Cadillac

Coach Cohn's thinclads, headed by Captain Edward Stanek, who scored 7 of his teams 19 points, placed fifth in the Regional Track and Field Meet last Saturday at Cadillac. Mancelona easily won the highest honors with its all around ability.

Other Jordanites to come through for points were Wm. Bennett placing first in the high hurdles and fifth in the low; Bowman second in the shot put, and Alston Penfold finished fourth in the mile.

Edward Stanek turned in a fast time in the low hurdles, covering the barriers at 200 yds. at 25.3 seconds clip to better the local high school record by .3 second, formerly held by David Pray and Robert Bennett. He also ran fifth in the 220 yd. dash and leaped 18 ft. 11 1/2 inches for fourth in the broad jump.

Bowman, Bennett and Stanek qualified for the State Meet in East Lansing, Saturday, and at least one of the trio should return with one of the honor medals.

Ellsworth, our neighboring school, walked off with Class D honors with E. Edson leading the team to victory with four firsts for a total of 20 points all by his lonesome.

SCOUT Activities

BOY SCOUT NEWS

East Jordan Troop No. 1 had its annual overnight hike and boat trip down the Jordan River on Friday and Saturday of last week.

The main burden of transportation upriver to Graves-Crossing was ably handled by Cliff Gibbard and Bill Porter. In camp each patrol pitched its own tent, cooked supper and laid blankets. Each fared according to the virtue of its own camp plan. Some slept comfortably! The supposition was that all would gain an appreciation of the various camp methods.

The trip down river rounded out one more delightful excursion for the gang. Porter acted as rear admiral in charge of the fleet.

FOR THE FUTURE

The Troop plans a Father and Son Picnic and get-together at the Tourist Park, June 3, at 6:30 o'clock.

Those invited are scouts, their fathers or guardians, those still working on tenderfoot tests and their fathers.

The price required to cover cost of consumption will be 25c a pair. A softball game — sons vs. fathers, will be played as one of the events. The group anticipates another rousing good time.

Fathers, come and get it!

Memorial Service Held For Elisha N. Clink

The Charlevoix County Bar Association held a brief memorial service for Elisha N. Clink, its oldest member, at the opening day of the May Term of Circuit Court at Charlevoix. Court was recessed for an hour at 11 A.M., Judge Gilbert vacated the bench and Pres. J. M. Harris presided. The following resolution was offered by Arthur L. Fitch, was unanimously adopted, and ordered spread on the records of the Court.

RESOLUTION

Resolved by the Bar Association of the County of Charlevoix that,

Whereas, Elisha N. Clink, a member of this association, died on the 20th day of March, 1937, of which sad event we desire to make due note and give fitting recognition. Mr. Clink was living in his seventy-eight year and engaged in the practice of his profession. He was born in the province of Ontario, Canada but moved to Michigan when 8 years old. He operated the first East Jordan Newspaper, taught in the public schools, and studied law in a local law office. He was admitted to the bar in Charlevoix County on July 18th, 1890 and to practice in the Federal Courts in 1903. He at one time served as Prosecuting Attorney, and as Postmaster of East Jordan.

He was an able lawyer, skilled in the practice of his profession. He was ever zealous in the interest of his clients and an earnest and courageous advocate of their cause. He delighted in surrounding himself with many text-books of the law and legal publications. He found pride and satisfaction in the belief that he had acquired one of the largest and most complete working law library in Northern Michigan.

In his social life he was companionable and courteous, enjoying to a marked degree the many contacts with his fellowman. He was fond of social and athletic events and his was a familiar figure on those occasions in this and other counties. He was always an active and ardent champion of his home town and county and a generous contributor to civic projects. He was a strong exponent of lawyers associations and consistently urged the maintenance of his local bar organization. He was particularly solicitous for the observance of last rites and memorial obsequies for departed members of the bar, holding this as one of the most sacred and solemn duties of his life.

He was a devoted husband and a kind and generous father. He leaves surviving him the wife of a lifetime and two children, a son and daughter. In his going this bar has lost a faithful and valuable associate, and the community in which he spent a lifetime has lost a valued citizen and friend. And now it may be truthfully said of him,

His last brief has been written, his last plea made. Soon the parchment will be yellowed, soon the ink begin to fade. In the files of courts of Justice where his plans and work were laid. Now another Bench will hear him, another Judge preside, Where the record is eternal, and immortal truths abide, In the heavenly court of justice of the lawyers who have died.

Therefore Be It Resolved, that this bar express in some enduring form our earnest and sincere sorrow and sense of deep loss. That we convey to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy and offers of help and consolation.

Resolved further, That the President of this association, the Honorable John M. Harris, be requested to move the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, at its May, 1937 term, for an order directing the entry of this resolution upon the records directing the entry of this resolution upon the records of the Court, and the spreading of the same at length upon the minutes of the proceedings of the opening day of the term.

And Resolved further, that a copy of this resolution, suitably encribed, be transmitted to the family of the deceased.

Adopted at a meeting of the Bar Association of the County of Charlevoix, held on the 17th day of May, A.D. 1937.

J.M. HARRIS President
ARTHUR L. FITCH Secretary

Following the adoption of the resolution each member of the bar association asked for and was granted leave to make a few remarks in tribute to Mr. Clink as a citizen, an able lawyer and a real friend. Judge Gilbert also asked for and was granted leave to add a few remarks in tribute to his life long friend.

The service was extremely impressive and evidenced the high regard which Mr. Clink's fellow attorneys had for him.

To cut expenses, Edward waited till 7p. m. to phone the woman he loves. Probably what this world needs is government at night rates.

Ladies Day Was Enjoyed

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT LADIES ACHIEVEMENT DAY

On May 11th in the East Jordan Auditorium a wonderful delegation of ladies from all points of the county enjoyed the many features staged in connection with the annual Ladies Achievement Day. Especially did these exhibits attract attention. These exhibits were displayed around the gymnasium floor. Above each exhibit a placard was hung which gave the name of the exhibit and the community responsible for it. Never before have so many exhibits vividly told the story of the nutrition and child care projects.

Probably the most instructive exhibit was one on children's furniture. A little dresser was constructed by placing a well finished board over two orange crates. This was about the right height for children and made a very convenient place to hold dresses and other articles of apparel. A little chair likewise made from an orange crate covered with cretone completed the wardrobe.

In the nutrition display the exhibits forcibly brought to the attention of the visitors the importance of fruits and vegetables, rich in vitamins, and the use of foods in place of the old tonics and remedies of yesterday.

The forenoon program was introduced by Mrs. Helen Cohn, county chairman. During the forenoon session Miss Roberta Hershey gave a brief summary of the results of this year's project. She stated that 232 ladies were enrolled and that each one on an average, helped 3 other outside of the group. 404 Better health practices were reported. 183 families use more vegetables, milk and tomatoes.

A wonderful noon meal was served to approximately 116 ladies in the Methodist Church. The afternoon program started at 1:30 again with Mrs. Cohn as chairman. The address of welcome was given very graciously by Miss Bernice Bashaw and the response by Mrs. Lavina Lockman. Next appeared several musical numbers that were enthusiastically received by the large attendance. A tap dancing number put on by 8 young girls was especially fine. A flute duet by Miss Wilma Shepard and Miss Marty Clark was well received. Not to be outdone, Mrs. Jacklyn Cook rendered a piano solo.

Miss Roberta Hershey gave a splendid talk on "Folks and Food". She kept her audience in good humor by relating many amusing incidents of her work in other states. The main address of the afternoon was given by Mr. C. H. Mahoney, specialist in vegetable gardening from the Michigan State College, on the subject "Vegetable Gardening, 1937 Style". Mr. Mahoney gave many recommendations on varieties of vegetables, time of planting and cultural methods to use. The ladies were deeply interested in his discussion as shown by the dozens of questions asked in regard to various problems. The last feature of the program was the presentation of certificates to the ladies who had completed their course of study.

For the new year the election resulted in the selection of Miss Jennie Black of Charlevoix as county chairman, Mrs. Connie VanHoesen of Boyne City as recreational leader, and Mrs. Florence McGhan of Charlevoix as county secretary. 23 different communities participated in the Achievement Day. The ladies have selected another project in nutrition for the new year and everything points to another highly successful program which will start this fall.

ARLINGTON and the Bill of Rights

By ROBERT MERRILL
 "NOR shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation."

That's from the Bill of Rights, an important part of our federal Constitution.

On many occasions the Supreme court, acting as our National Umpire, has been called upon to protect citizens under the clause. Sometime it has saved citizens from losing their homes without being adequately compensated.

The most notable instance involved Arlington, the home of Mrs. Robert E. Lee, wife of the Confederate general. Today it is the famous national cemetery across the Potomac from Washington, where rest our soldier dead.

Union Takes Arlington. Here is the story—from the records of the court:

During the war between the states, Union forces took possession of Arlington, and the wife of the famed southern leader was forced to retire behind the Confederate lines.

In 1862, congress passed a bill entitled, "An Act for the Collection of Direct Taxes in the Insurrectionary Districts within the United States." Under this measure commissioners were appointed to levy and collect taxes and, in default of payment, to sell the property against which they were charged.

Various rules were drafted by the appointed commissioners. One provided that property taxes in the district including Arlington had to be paid by the owner in person.

On January 11, 1864, taxes to the sum of $92.07 were due on the Lee estate. Since she was behind the Confederate lines, Mrs. Lee was unable to appear personally to pay them. She sent an agent to make the payment for her, but, because of the arbitrary rule, the money was refused.

Then the estate was sold to pay the taxes. The United States government bid it in.

Confirms Lower Court. Mrs. Robert E. Lee died in 1872, and her son inherited the right to reclaim the estate. Asserting that the government claim to his boyhood home was unjust, he petitioned congress to return it to him.

When that effort failed he instituted suit against the officers in charge. The lower court decided that the tax sale was invalid, and, therefore, the United States had no rightful title to the property. But the Department of Justice appealed. The case went to the Supreme court of the United States for a decision. It affirmed the lower court.

Referring in its opinion to the 5th Amendment of our Constitution—the Amendment which provides that: "No person shall . . . be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law, nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation," the Supreme court said:

"If this Constitutional provision is a sufficient authority for the court to interfere to rescue a prisoner from the hands of those holding him under the asserted authority of the government, what reason is there that the same courts shall not give remedy to the citizen whose property has been seized without due process of law, and devoted to public use without just compensation?"

Lee Sells Home to U. S. Thus the Supreme court had upheld the Lee title—but while the government was in possession, it had converted part of the estate into the cemetery and buried thousands of soldiers and sailors there. Another part had been made into a military post. Lee, therefore, agreed to sell Arlington to the United States and the government acquired title after "just compensation."

That was an outstanding case, but in other cases, too, the Supreme court has assured similar protection to men and women who appealed to it for justice.

On one occasion a citizen's property was taken by government officers under the impression that the ground had been ceded to the United States in an Indian treaty. An appeal carried up to the Supreme court resulted in its restoration to the owner, even though the government had erected a garrison and other buildings on it.

British Roads Fenced. Fencing in roads has begun in Great Britain as a protection to pedestrians. Already a number of highways in London and vicinity have been treated in this manner. It is pointed out that the safest places in the land are the railways, which are railled in. When a fence goes up a police car with a loud speaker is stationed in the neighborhood to see that the wayfarers are duly informed. It is believed that sooner or later the barriers will go nearly the entire way along highways and roads, leaving only the surface crossings at infrequent intervals. The highways will have become motorways and pedestrians will be required to keep off them, except where signs and beacons permit them to cross.

AROUND the HOUSE Items of Interest to the Housewife

Protecting Mirrors—Keep mirrors out of the sun—it will cause spots and other blemishes.

Milk Puddings—Orange peel shredded very finely makes an excellent flavoring for milk puddings. It is a pleasant change from nutmeg when added to rice pudding or baked custard.

Rust Remover—Onion juice will remove rust from tableware.

Fitting Your Hat—If you have a tight felt hat, hold it in the steam of a boiling kettle. When the felt is thoroughly damp it is easy to stretch it to the right size.

Save Stockings—If stockings persistently wear out at the toes, try buying them one-half size larger.

Cleaning Combs, Brushes—A teaspoon of ammonia in a quart of water will remove all grease and dirt from combs and brushes, after which they should be rinsed and dried in the sun.

Tough Pastry—Too much water will make pastry tough.

Keeping Cheese Moist—To prevent it from becoming dry, keep it wrapped in butter muslin, or in the glazed hygienic paper in which some bread is wrapped.

Stewed Macaroni—Boil one pound macaroni in milk and water for three-quarters of an hour, adding one-fourth ounce butter, salt, and an onion stuck with cloves. Afterwards, drain the macaroni, add three ounces grat-

Old-Girl-With-a-Face Presented Proof Positive

"I'm afraid, madam," said the bank clerk to the not-so-yung-or-pretty woman who presented a check for payment, "that I shall have to ask you for some proof of your identity."

"Certainly," she said with a sweet smile. Then, raising her voice a bit:

"I'm the 'old-girl-with-a-face' on the other side of your fence. Last night, when you came in, your wife said to you: 'If you don't turn up at a respectable hour tomorrow night I'll give you such a piece of my mind as you've never had yet, you unfeeling, selfish—'"

The cashier paid out quickly.

Kite Flyers Asked To Observe A Few Simple Safety Rules

Observance of a few simple safety rules for kite flying will avoid possible dangers for children, according to Ole Hegerberg, manager for the Michigan Public Service Company in this territory.

"The coming of spring brings the advent of the kite flying season, and because of some hazards in this sport, the Michigan Public Service Company is joining other electric, telephone and telegraph companies throughout the country in warning children to keep their kites away from overhead lines.

"Kites should be flown only in open spaces where there is no likelihood of their coming in contact with electric lines. Especial care should be exercised in choosing the spot, for it should be remembered that the kite string is at an angle and may pass over electric lines a long distance away, perhaps out of sight.

"If a kite should become entangled in electric wires, children should not pull it or make any attempt to remove it. Under no circumstances should they climb a pole and try to bring down the kite. The proper procedure is to call the electric company, telephone company or telegraph company to which the wires belong, and linemen with proper equipment will be sent to take the kite from the lines.

"It is unsafe for children to pull down a kite from electric lines, because in so doing the wires may be pulled together, causing a short circuit. It is possible in such cases that the wires may break and fall to the ground, causing serious injury to anyone who may be near them.

"Construction of the kite should measure up to safety standards also. Kites should NEVER have wire frames. No metal or metallized cord should be used. It is dangerous to make kite strings of wire, tinsel cord or any cord with metal strands in it because such materials are conductors of electricity. It is also important to remember that the kite cord should be kept off the ground where there is a possibility of it becoming damp. A wet kite cord becomes a conductor of electricity when it touches an electric line.

"Kite flying is a fine sport and is entirely safe for children when they fly a properly-made kite in an open space away from electric wires. The observance of these few safety suggestions will not detract from the fun and may prevent accidents."

'Check Addresses' Motorists Cautioned

With the approach of the outdoor and summer vacation season, motorists of Michigan are cautioned by Department of State officials to check the home addresses on their drivers' licenses.

The 1931 operators' and chauffeurs' licensing act makes it the duty of operators to notify Leon D. Case, Secretary of State, of changes in address. Forms are available at police and sheriffs' offices.

In the event of injury or accidental death of motorists, drivers' licenses at times furnish the sole means of identification; only complications result if the addresses are not correct, Department officials point out.

Not infrequently the Department receives queries as to the whereabouts of missing persons believed licensed in this state as motor vehicle operators. Little aid can be extended if a motorist's registered address is not up to date, it is pointed out.

Child Health League Luncheon Friday

The Charlevoix County Child Health League will have its annual luncheon meeting Friday 1:00 p. m. at the Dilworth Hotel, Boyne City.

Due to illness of Dr. Howard McClusky he has been compelled to cancel all speaking engagements. However they have secured Dr. Cligir Gates—also of the University of Michigan and field Secretary for the Joint Committee on Public Health Education. He will discuss phases of lay participation in public health education.

The program is as follows:— Mrs. E. Edwards, Charlevoix, presiding

Luncheon—50c
Address—Dr. Clair Gates
Vocal Solo—Mrs. Dieken
"An Luxembourg Gardens"— Kathleen Mauring
"The Star"—Rodgers

Remarks—Mrs. Russell Barden, Charlevoix County chairman
The Values of Lay Participation—Dr. Carlton Dean, Health Director of Dist. Health Unit

A few brief remarks will be made by Miss Mary Buser, Antrim - Charlevoix Nurse and Miss Deane Rinck, Charlevoix County Nurse

A few very important business matters to come before the meeting are:

1. The 100% dental correction program for the whole county.
2. A 4-county rotating public health institute each October.
3. Assisting the District Health Unit in sponsoring the Women's Classes to be conducted by a woman physician from the Michigan State Health Department this fall.

Second Checks In 1936 Soil Conservation Program Have Been Received

Very recently the second checks covering the 1936 Soil Conservation program have been received. These checks run very small in amount as they only represent approximately 7 per cent of the conserving payment already made. It is to be remembered that 10 per cent was held back from the conserving payments due in the first check.

Please keep this in mind, that the soil building payments were made in full, and that the 10 per cent deduction was only made from the soil conserving payment. Therefore in cases where farmers received their entire payment from soil building practices, they do not receive a second check. This is the reason why there will be in the neighborhood of 100 who do not receive a second check, but who did receive their first check. The last year's program now is practically completed. In fact there are only eight checks that have not been received. These checks have been held back because of various claims incurred in past programs. As near as can be determined with the receipt of the last checks there will be approximately $25,500 paid out to 658 farmers in this county in benefit checks.

More Attention Being Given Farm Woodlands

An awakening interest in farm forestry throughout the United States is indicated by the increasing number of boys who have forest projects on their home farms. This interest is not confined to planting new shelterbelts, windbreaks, or groves of forest trees but includes conserving the farm woodlot by properly cutting the trees. In the past little attention was paid to timber conservation or reforestation when it came to cutting the farm woodlands. Farm woodlands well cared for and judiciously used will often supply the lumber the farmer may need for rough buildings, fences, fuel and needed repairs. Since in recent years a good shelterbelt or grove has been shown to add as much as $1,000 to the value of many farms, selective cutting, forest protection, and forest conservation have taken a new lease on life, and not only with the farm boys, but with the farmer himself.

The U.S. Forest Products Laboratory, Madison, Wis., has definitely proved that small trees cannot be cut into lumber at a profit. They suggest that woodland owners leave the smaller trees for development and later use as saw timber or to use the small trees, where necessary for thinning, for pulpwood.

Many areas left desolate and denuded by clear cutting of the timber, forest fires, and wasteful lumber practices are being replanted and brought back to future production through the efforts of Federal and State Forest Services and the owners of farm woodlands. Trees improve the soil, build up its fertility, and preserve the moisture; they also give protection to farmstead and neighboring fields.

Census figures show that the products from farm woodlands rank among the first ten crops in total farm income in the United States. By careful appraisal of land and trees, the farmer and his sons often find new possibilities of profit.

G-Man Hoover's estimate that 4,300,000 felons are actively engaged in their employment has shocked his countrymen. He would not be counting in Miami slot-machines, would he?

Glamor Via Sheer White Accents

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ONE of the newest and most exciting style notes of the present season in this year of grace is the welcome return of femininity. We say "year of grace" for that's literally what it is—a year when gracious lines, glamorous sheer fabrics embellished with delicately wrought embroideries, laces and all such prettily feminine devices are the order of the day. Nowhere is this ladylike trend more charmingly symbolized than in the snowy lingerie touches which are bringing refreshing sprightliness to our new frocks and suits.

Swiss organdie, crisp and clear with a luminous transparency, is proving the idol of the hour for the new lingerie blouses so smart this season with your wool tailleur. It is also to be found in myriads of neckwear items and wrist wear touches which are this season glorifying every type of costume. Fine as a cobweb, this imported organdie is—marvelously practical in spite of its lovely fragile look. This practicality comes in that the clever Swiss, using the pure icy waters of Alpine streams, have imparted to their sheer fabrics an absolutely permanent finish which holds smooth and crisp and new-looking after repeated tubbings. If your frivolous looking frills are of Swiss organdie they can be popped in and out of the tub as often as you wish with a minimum of effort, as no starching is required to restore the original fresh crispness to the fabric.

Handwork is appearing in utmost profusion on this year's lingerie fantasies. Allover embroidery, both cut-out and plain, embroidered edges and frills, appliqued lace and finest net are delicate and lovely on sheer organdie backgrounds. Tiny tucks and hand-fagging are popular too, used not only on the plain organdie but also on the exciting new shadow-printed types. In these perfectly charming print organdies dainty floral motifs and vine patterns show up in clouded white on clear white or pastel-colored backgrounds.

In choosing your lingerie blouse to wear with your tailleur, and you really must have a sheer utterly feminine lingerie blouse to arrive at top fashion, take as your cue the smartness of shadow-print organdie. It should be simply styled after the manner of the model to the right in the accompanying illustration. A youthful turn-back collar and cascaded jabot distinguish this sheer Swiss organdie blouse which is so daintily shadow-printed in a tiny floral motif. Valenciennes lace edges the collar, bow and short puffed sleeves.

Snowy Swiss organdie in a dainty shadow print makes the very beautifully fashioned blouse to the left in the picture. And listen to this! Fine handstitching, so tremendously smart this season, as are many quaint trimmings revived from "way back when," edges collar, cuffs and crisp ruffly effect in front. So here's to get busy and tat, for tatting and hand crochet lace are as stylish at this very moment as they were during the gay nineties.

The fashion of snow white frilly neckwear is going at top speed this season. You can find types of Swiss organdie from prim little bobby collars to low-cut pointed bibs and frothy jabots. See the double ruffle of finely embroidered Swiss organdie that flares so youthfully below a prim little turn back collar shown below in the picture and note to the right the two-tiered jabot with high neckband and quaint ribbon bow imparting an attractive Gibson girl air to a gilet of finest Swiss organdie.

SMART MILLINERY

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

As to smart millinery, the revival of the ever practical and flattering sailor is notable. Flower trims on sailiors abound. The newest way of using flowers is to border the brim with a row of tiny flowers as shown here. The tiny blossoms are set in between a double-edge brim in a most becoming manner. The new sailiors encourage the wearing of veils. The latest fad is to tie the veil by the yard over the face in Gibson girl fashion bringing the ends to a big fluttery bow at the back. The other hat pictured has the new and smart mushroom brim. Its flower trim emphasizes the use of a flower cluster placed at the front of the crown.

SHOES HAVE GONE STRICTLY FEMININE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Shoes have gone feminine. Fine stitching in new guises, pin tuckings, pipings, puffings and cordings ornament shoes in a soft manner. Nailhead and metal eyelets make an appearance. Buttons and buckles, often leather covered, are designed for utility or ornamentation. They're often on the side in this season of asymmetric lines.

The "Gone With the Wind" shoes cleverly modernize such Civil War shoe themes as rosettes, criss-cross, ballet lacing, side lace booties and Colonial tongues. Simplicity is the keynote for this season when the shoe for the activity is all-important. Soft feminine details and new silhouettes are in the limelight.

The pump, especially of patent leather, is growing in demand. Models with dramatic touches at the throat, off-sided versions and built-up styles are of equal importance. Colonial with unusual and classic lines are due for glory. Gray, beige and navy are important colors for shoes.

Dress-up sandals are back for this dress-up afternoon season.

Chiffon Capes to Be Worn

by Dancers This Summer

Chiffon capes of dance dresses this summer will be popular, as they give a floating quality to the dancer. These may be worn over prints or contrasting colors. Circular chiffon skirts also add to the airy effect on the dance floor. These are effective when held out at the sides by the dancers.

Double Duty Dresses

Double duty dresses that serve for street and cocktail wear are the latest innovation of the big Paris dressmakers.

JOHN LARDNER

Prods a Child Prodigy

Once a week I am supposed to lick some boy. Last week the press agent double-crossed me. He forgot to tell the other fellow to lay down. At least, he says he forgot.

By JOHN LARDNER

THERE are some cute and clever child stars in Hollywood, all right, but none of them can hold a candle to curly-haired little Billy McGonigle. At least, that is what Billy told me when I went out to interview him on his seventh birthday in the 28-room cottage of homespun pink marble, covered with honeysuckle, which he shares with his father, mother, paternal grandfather, three aunts, two lawyers, chauffeur, chef, and pet hyena.

"Bartholomew is through," confided Billy as he met me at the door and slipped his little hand into mine. "So is Withers. I give Temple one more year at the most. She can't go on making people believe that vaudeville hoofing is real art. The same thing goes for Jason—you know, Sybil Jason, the South African prodigy. As for Dicky Moore, he mugs too much. He can't look at a camera without mugging. Don't you agree with me?"

I said that I did. Somehow, there was no resisting that confident little smile and those curly golden locks and the blue eyes that have won their way into the hearts of 6,204,500 movie fans, with Maine and New Hampshire still to be heard from.

Billy led me by the hand through a big gymnasium lined with Indian clubs, horizontal bars, pulleys, ropes, and light and heavy punching bags.

A Reg'lar Feller.

"This is to prove that I am no sissy," explained the boy Bernhard. "Far from being a mamma's boy, I am a normal, sturdy, red-blooded little American lad, quite capable of taking care of myself in a fight, though by no means quarrelsome by nature. In short, I am a reg'lar feller."

"A what?" I asked him.

"A reg'lar feller," said Billy. "The press agent over at the studio told me that 'feller' sounds more sturdy and boyish than 'fellow.' And I guess he knows his business, though between you and me the man is always lushed up and has played me some very dirty tricks."

"Not really?" I said, in amazement.

"Absolutely," affirmed my host, with a manly little frown. "For instance, once a week I am supposed to lick some boy who is bigger than me, so that the reporters can carry the story and prove that I am no sissy. Last week the press agent double-crossed me. He forgot to tell the other fellow to lay down. At least, he says he forgot. I was in bed for two days."

"Tsk! tsk!" I said, horrified by this revelation of chicanery behind the scenes.

They Go a Round.

As we left the gymnasium Billy called my attention to a pair of lovely, chichly-dressed ladies who were wrestling on a nearby staircase.

"That's mother and Aunt Mabel," the little fellow explained. "They're using each other for possession of me. Mother is also suing father, stepmother, and grandfather. Mr. Dunfinkel says there is hell to pay with the living arrangements in this house when one of them has a bad day in court."

"Mr. Dunfinkel?"

"My lawyer," said Billy. "He handles my investments and keeps peace in the house. At least, he keeps peace with everyone but Mr. Garfunk."

"Mr. Garfunk?"

"Grandfather's lawyer," said Billy. "Mr. Garfunk says that grandfather has nothing but me and his Civil war pension, and the pension alone is not enough to keep his racing stable going."

"Is your grandfather suing anybody, Billy?" I asked.

"He is suing father, Aunt Mabel, and Mr. Dunfinkel," said the boy Bernhard. "What do you think of that likeness on the wall there? That's a still of me in my first starring role, as the child in 'The Love of a Mother.' I stole the picture from Gloria Glibby."

"It looks something like Jackie Cooper," I ventured, considering the photograph thoughtfully.

Billy's face became a trifle austere.

"Cooper is going downhill," he said. "Come into the Cerise Room. I think you need a drink."

Chief Interest Is Art.

We talked of art and the cinema for an hour or two. Billy's lively, boyish mind played over the subject like a glint of sunshine, lighting up every facet with homely, child-like philosophy. He told me frankly and from the heart that he thought he was underpaid by a matter of $275 a week. He confided in me, with touching faith, that his agent was robbing him. He spoke in a straightforward, manly way of his suspicion that his chauffeur was cheating him at dice.

"I will have to have Mr. Dunfinkel fire him and get another," mused Billy. "He made ten straight passes night before last."

But, though Billy has the normal boy's interest in games, his chief interest, as befits an actor, is his art. He told me of his daily schedule of work. Early in the morning he goes to the studio with either his mother or his father or his stepmother, who alternate in court and on the lot. Billy reads over his lines, and then plays marbles or mumblety-peg with other boys in the picture until the publicity photographer goes away.

He always knows the story of the picture before they shoot it. His mother reads it to him, or, if his mother is tied up trying to get a writ of habeas corpus, his Aunt Mabel reads it to him.

"And then they tell me what it is about," explained Billy, "because Aunt Mabel has trouble with those two-syllable words."

Grandpa Needed Cash.

The boy Bernhard entered motion pictures at the age of four, and a few months later brought suit against Marian Munch, celebrated beauty of stage and screen, for spanking him harder than the scenario called for in a picture in which they appeared together.

"Did it hurt much?" I asked him, shocked by this account of the lovely Marian's brutality.

"Naw," said Billy. "It was the softest touch I ever had. Father always worked on me with a barrel-stave and I was plenty tough. Munch didn't even get me winded. I could have gone another six rounds."

"Then why did you sue?"

"That was grandfather's idea," Billy explained. "He thought we could get Munch to settle out of court, and he needed $1,500 to claim a plater down at the Caliente track."

At the end of our interview Billy borrowed a couple of cigarettes and escorted me to the door.

"Tell my fans I love them one and all," he called after me, "and don't take any wooden nickels."

Don't Sleep When Gas Presses Heart

If you want to really GET RID OF GAS and terrible bloating, don't expect to do it by just doctoring your stomach with harsh, irritating alkalies and "gas tablets." Most GAS is lodged in the stomach and upper intestine and is due to old poisonous matter in the constipated bowels that are loaded with ill-causing bacteria.

If your constipation is of long standing, enormous quantities of dangerous bacteria accumulate. Then your digestion is upset. GAS often presses heart and lungs, making life miserable. You can't eat or sleep. Your head aches. Your back aches. Your complexion is sallow and pimply. Your breath is foul. You are a sick, grouchy, wretched, unhappy person. YOUR SYSTEM IS POISONED.

Thousands of sufferers have found in Adierka the quick, scientific way to rid their systems of harmful bacteria. Adierka rids you of gas and cleans foul poisons out of BOTH upper and lower bowels. Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierka. Get rid of GAS. Adierka does not grip and is not habit forming. At all Leading Druggists.

HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste

Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance.

You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS

BEAUTY'S DAUGHTER

by KATHLEEN NORRIS

"You have six children!" The beautiful voice could not be said to have even a trace of Norse accent, and yet there was a charming little hint in Serena's words now and then, a slight clinging and lingering that marked her as not all English-born.

"She always tells everyone that instantly," Phyllis said.

"I have. And they make it hard for me ever to get away."

"But do come and see me. Except for Phyllis here," Serena said, completely expressionless in voice and face, "I am quite strange in California."

"We were in school in Paris together, Serena and I, but I didn't know they were here until last week!" Phyllis explained.

"If you know Phyllis you know everybody; she's the special minister between Europe and America," Victoria said. "We were in the 'Assumption' in Rome together, too, but we had known each other before that."

"You were at the 'Assumption'?" How I hated it!" Serena said, in her calm, emotionless way.

"Gallo coming to take us driving on Sundays," Phyllis put in, and the three laughed together. Then Phyllis went away, and Victoria could study at her ease the extraordinary beauty of the flower-like face in the clear shadow of the parasol. Exquisite womanhood; those were the two words that Serena suggested.

There was a silence filled with faint distant sounds and the click of balls. The club gardens blazed with flowers; there were stretches of green lawn beneath the trees; the sun shone warmly.

"There, who's that?" Serena suddenly asked, with the first sign of animation in voice and manner that Vicky had seen her.

"Which one?"

"The brown man—the square one, in white. With that other man."

"That's my husband—Dr. Hardisty," Vicky said, pleased at her interest. "Run get him, Gwen—yes, go along, Susan, you can go!"

"Your husband?" Serena asked, not moving her eyes from the distant figures of the men.

"Yes—Well, trot along with them, Kenty," Vicky said bracingly. "Don't cry because they're ahead of you. Quentin," she added welcomingly, as he came up with the children hanging on his hands, "we're all ready to go—we'll be just in time!"

Quentin and Mrs. Morrison were looking at each other, smiling.

"You'll have to introduce me, Vicky."

"Oh, I do beg your pardon! I always think that everyone knows everyone else. Mrs. Morrison, my husband, Dr. Hardisty. Quentin, do you remember who this is?"

"I do," Quentin said, smiling down at Serena, his white teeth and white clothes in almost startling contrast to the Indian brown of his face and skin. Serena looked up from the lavender shadows of the white parasol that was slowly turning behind her golden braided head.

"You were on your way to China?"

"It was before my husband's accident—yes, we had a wonderful trip!" the woman said, smiling lazily with sea-blue eyes, raising heavy dark gold lashes.

"And they're neighbors," Vicky told him. "They are the people in the Tracy place!"

"Next door?" Quentin's face broke again into his own pleasant smile.

"You remember Gita, Quentin, who plays with the children?" Mrs. Morrison is Gita's mother.

"Oh—I thought the name was Stewart?"

"Gita's father is dead," Serena explained. She continued to look up at Quentin, and Quentin to look down at her. "You've all been such angels to the child," she said. "She's been horribly lonely all her life, alone with her amah. I brought her amah with her, from China."

Vicky was baffled by the other woman's sleepy manner, by the vague words that seemed to have some meaning beyond their obvious meaning, for Quentin at least, for his face was absolutely radiant as he continued to hold Serena's hand and to look down at her.

"She's had you, hasn't she?" Vicky said sensibly. And she touched Quentin's arm with that wifely signal that says, "The children are ravenous. Let's get home and have lunch!"

Serena was paying no attention to Vicky; she looked only at Quentin.

"I can't be much with my little girl. You see my husband's an invalid," she said, in a child's flat tone.

"Ah, that's too bad!"

"They said he was slated for a brilliant career. But he was thrown from a horse, and dragged, about four months ago. It's his back, and he lost his eye."

There was something extraordinarily incongruous between her unruffled flawless beauty and the terrible thing she said; the white hand, the white skin, the gold hair and innocent blue eyes under the parasol were apparently unaffected.

"Tough luck!" Quentin said. Victoria pressed his arm again.

"Will you come and see him, Dr. Hardisty?"

"I'd like to."

"I wish you would!" Mrs. Morrison said. "We're always there in the late afternoons." The frills of her parasol tumbled slowly as she twirled it.

"Daddy, I'm hun-n-gry!" Kenty shouted. Quentin accompanied his family to the waiting car, after a cordial good-bye from them all to the new neighbor. Mildly, as he took his place in the driver's seat, the doctor observed to his wife that he wished that the children would not be rude.

"He's terribly hungry, Daddy, and we're late."

"I know," Quentin said. "I know. But she was telling us of her husband; I don't imagine she often gets to talking of her troubles."

Victoria glanced at his profile in surprise, ready to laugh. But he was quite serious.

"But did you ever know anyone to talk of dreadful—of ghastly things, so calmly? That poor husband of hers—imagine being cut off in the very beginning of your career, blinded."

"You Have Six Children?"

Quentin, turning into their own, made no comment, and Kenty said animatedly:

"Why din' Gita go to the club, Mummy?"

"She stays with her amah!" Susan supplied.

"You speak of the man's misfortune," Quentin began unexpectedly, at lunch. "I was thinking of hers."

Victoria raised interrogative eyebrows. She had been cutting chicken into tiny pieces on Susan's plate, murmuring to the waitress, murmuring to her mother.

"I was thinking," Quentin expanded it, "that it must be a pretty dull life for her, planted down here in a country house with an invalid and a child!"

"They have our rabbits, too, Dad," Susan contributed animatedly. "They have the two rabbits we gave Gita."

Quentin looked at her absently, moved his gaze to Victoria.

"Any chance of your going down to Del Monte with me this afternoon?"

"Oh, darling, not on Sunday! Mollie off, and Nurse with all of them to handle, and the Carters coming to supper! They're bringing all the children—I thought that since you wouldn't be here it would be a grand chance for a children's supper."

"H'm!" Quentin said noncommittally. Victoria, made vaguely uneasy by his tone, sent him another questioning glance. Quentin wasn't quite like himself on this hot still Sunday.

"The other doctors are going, Quentin? You're to have your golf in the morning?"

"I don't know," he said irresolutely. "I thought I might telephone Johnny. We might have our golf right here. You'll get over there and see her, won't you, Vic?"

"Get—?" She was completely at sea, untangling Susan's bit, as Susan bunted into her. "Take your cooky and run, darling," she said to the child, "and don't wake Baby—she's out on the side porch!"

"Get over and see the Morrises," Quentin completed it.

"Oh? Oh, yes!"

Somehow—somehow, something was wrong. Through the familiar scene a chill faint wind seemed to blow; a faint apprehension of trouble—of change. Vicky couldn't analyze it, was only vaguely conscious that she felt it, but it was there.

"I'll walk over to the Morrises' this afternoon for a few minutes, if you like, Quentin," she said, on an impulse, after luncheon.

Quentin was stuffing his pipe; he did not look up. In their more than seven years of marriage he had never made a call that Vicky could remember. Now, sauntering forth into the garden in search of dogs, children, his favorite chair under the oaks on the long terrace, he spoke carelessly over his shoulder.

"Oh, don't you bother," he said, "you've got enough to do! I'll wander over there, later, and afterward I can give you some idea what sort of an outfit it is."

"You'd be a darling to do that!" Victoria said. But oddly she did not feel happy about it, and it was from that Sunday that she dated the change in Quentin. Not understanding why, she nevertheless was conscious of the fact that life somehow didn't go back, after that Sunday, to what it had been before.

Just two weeks after the day when Vicky and Quentin had first met their lovely neighbor, her eyes were suddenly opened, and after that Victoria understood.

Quentin had said that he thought he would go over to the club, might play another eighteen if it got cooler, might watch the polo. Vicky saw him off, had a cloud-clearing talk with Mollie, who since her marriage was in port was given the rest of the afternoon and the evening as a special concession; helped Nurse to the extent of opening all the little beds, laying out night apparel, putting away various books and toys in the nursery.

Finally they were all in bed, with books, and Victoria's head and hair jerked into a hundred agonizing directions by warm good-night kisses and embraces. Five minutes past seven, and supper due within the hour—oh, dear, not much room for rest in there! Her chiffon was at the cleaner's. Perhaps that white one that she had worn this morning.

There was a wide upper hallway in the house, filled now with a pleasant half-light, like the light under water. Victoria, closing the nursery door behind her, lingered for a moment at its big open window, looking out at the cooling and softening day, breathing the freshened air, resting her eyes on the greenness of the great trees.

So standing, she could look down at the drying-yard, and the berry vines, and the flat stretch of neglected lawn where a cow grazed, and the gate in the evergreen hedge that divided the Hardisty property from the small but exquisitely groomed estate of the Morrises next door. There was a small strip of lane there, and in the lane Vic saw a white figure, with the level light of the setting sun shining bright on pale gold hair and illuminating the white parasol as if it were a lantern lighted against the dusky shadows of the lane.

Mrs. Morrison, of course. She was talking to someone, apparently; she had the air of a person talking. But her companion was quite invisible against the hedge; it was tall enough to hide anyone who was close to it on the other side. Victoria stood watching her and reflecting upon the inescapable power of the beauty that had been so suddenly introduced into their compact little group.

Mrs. Morrison continued talking in the lane; the revolving frills of the parasol tumbling, tumbling. Dusk was falling fast now; Anna, coming upstairs, touched the switch that lighted the hall behind Victoria. How many would there be for supper, please? Victoria turned about; considered. The Keates had said they'd stop in on their way home with Kate, and Dr. Miller would be here. Six, please, Anna. No, seven; there'd be Gwen, Vic remembered. Anna went downstairs again, but when Victoria turned back to the window the lights in the hall had spoiled the lovely dusk, and the white frock was gone from the lane. She went into her room after a peep at Madeleine. Quentin was tearing off his clothes.

"Oh, did you just come up? I hoped you'd gotten a nap."

"I went for a stroll."

"A stroll?"

"Yep, I walked a little way. It was lovely out. Feels hot in here."

"It does feel hot. You didn't get as far as the hospital, did you, Quentin? That woman's coming on all right, isn't she?"

The roar of the shower drowned any reply Quentin might have shouted through the half-closed bathroom door; when he came out again Vic was getting into an old black lace.

"It's frightful to burn your shoulders in just the pattern of your bathing suit," she said. "I wonder how that woman keeps so white?"

Quentin did not answer.

"She was down there in the lane just now, parasol and all," Victoria pursued, now doubled over to insert her heels one at a time into rather tight slippers.

"Zat so?" Quentin asked, shaving.

"Yes. I happened to be looking out of the upper hall window, she was talking to someone—gardener, maybe—but no, it's Sunday night. Maybe it was a lover," Vic said, trying a heel, scowling, taking up the slipper to sex it vigorously.

"She's having a terribly dull time, poor soul, with a sick husband and no friends here."

Quentin was pulling his face about with hard fingers, testing his shave. He was non-committal.

When he and she were going to bed after the bridge game, quite suddenly Quentin said:

"How about asking them to dinner?"

"Who?"

Lesson for May 23

THE WEAKNESS OF ESAU

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 25:27-34; 27:41-45. GOLDEN TEXT—And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things. I Corinthians 9:25.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Twin Brothers. JUNIOR TOPIC—Twin Brothers Trading. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Winning by Self-Control. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Conquering Appetite and Greed.

One of the difficult and at the same time challenging things about teaching the Word of God is that its divine precepts are diametrically opposed to the current philosophy of men. In our lesson of last week we saw that meekness and forbearance are strong and commendable qualities in a world which magnifies brute force. Today we are to study a portion of Scripture which shows the folly of living for the flesh, and we are living in a world where the flesh and its appetites are given full sway.

Professors in many colleges are openly advocating the free exercise of every fleshly appetite as a normal expression of life. Morality is cast off; the flesh rules. Many of the nations of the earth look upon boys and girls as merely so many physical units useful in a future war. Motherhood has been degraded into an animal-like function, solely for the breeding of more manpower. One nation recently advocated as great an increase as possible in the birth of illegitimate children to be cared for by the state as a measure of national security. One shudders to mention such unspeakable wickedness, but even so we have only touched the surface.

Is it true that man is but a beast? Is there no spirit in man capable of fellowship with God? Has the moral law of God been abrogated? The story of Esau and Jacob is most pointed and instructive in its answer to such questions. Two New Testament quotations have been chosen to express the truth of an Old Testament lesson; namely, Galatians 5:17, and 6:7.

I. "The Flesh Lusteth Against the Spirit" (Gen. 25:27-34).

Esau is a type of the man of the flesh. He was "a cunning hunter, a man of the field." Evidently he was an athletic, outdoor man of attractive personality, of free and easy-going spirit. He was a hail-fellow-well-met. Had he lived in our day he would have been featured in the rotogravure, would probably have been in the movies, would possibly have been a great athlete, and the good-looking boy who set hearts a-flutter at the country club dance.

He came from the hunt, and he had found nothing. He was hungry. What a type this is of the folly of seeking satisfaction in the world. It never satisfies. For all its glitter and glamour, it is empty and shallow. He had a birthright—a valuable possession in any case, but doubly so as a son of Abraham. But he was hungry, he would simply die if he did not eat. His brother Jacob, inspired by his scheming mother who was not willing to abide God's time for the fulfillment of his promise, had the savory pottage ready to tempt him and he sold his birthright for a "gulp of that red stuff," for so might v. 30 be translated.

One is reminded of a clergyman who attended the Keswick Conference in England. He sent a request for prayer to the platform, and asked this question: "I have a habit which is dishonoring to Christ. If I give it up I will die. What shall I do?" The wise and complete answer was one word—"Die." Rather should we lose our body and its desires than to lose our soul.

II. "Whoever a Man Soweth That Shall He Also Reap" (Gen. 27:41-45).

Jacob and his mother found that one lie called for another, and ultimately their deceit led (as deceit always does) to the place of reckoning. The law of sowing and reaping is inexorable. Jacob fled from his angry brother. Rebekah thought it would be for "a few days" (v. 44), but it proved to be twenty years, and she never saw her favorite son again.

Let us make no mistake about it. Our sins will always find us out. Even God's people must learn to walk uprightly before Him if they are to walk in peace.

The Season of Hope
Youth is the season of hope, enterprise, and energy, to a nation as well as an individual.—W. R. Williams.

Part of His Plan
I find most help in trying to look on all interruptions and hindrances to work that one has planned out for one's self as discipline; trials, sent by God to help one against getting selfish over one's work.—Annie Keary.

Bountiful Blessings
Forever from the hand that takes one blessing from us, others fall; and soon or late, our Father makes his perfect recompense to all.—Whittier.

For Dress and Utility

"WHY Mollie R., are you going out again? My own mother has become a gadabout and all because she made herself such a pretty new dress. Really, Ma, those soft graceful lines make you look lots slimmer. I think the long rippling collar has a good deal to do with it. Or maybe it's because the skirt fits where it should and has plenty of room at the bottom."

"Yes, My Darling Daughter."

"Daughter, dear, how you do run on! Imitate Sis; put your apron on and have the dusting done when I get back from the Civic Improvement League meeting. And speaking of aprons, that is the cleverest one Sis ever had. I love the way it crosses in the back."

"So do I, Mom, and see how it covers up my dress all over. Good-by, Mom, have a good time."

Sisterly Chit Chat
"Sis, run upstairs for my apron, won't you? I wouldn't have a spot on this, my beloved model, for all the world. It's my idea of smooth; all these buttons; no belt; these here new puffed sleeves; and this flare that's a flare."

"Just you wait, Miss, till I grow up! Your clothes won't have a look in because I've already begun to Sew-My-Own. All right, I'm going."

And so on well into the afternoon!

Most Successful Author

Mark Twain probably is the highest-paid American author of all time. Harper's became his sole publishers in 1898. Early figures are lacking, but since the author's death, in 1910, the publishers have paid into the estate more than $1,250,000 in royalties. These figures do not include huge royalties from stage and screen nor do they account for the enormous earnings of Mark Twain as his own publisher.

Since 1898 Harper's have sold more than 6,500,000 volumes of the humorist's work.

AS AMERICA LOOKS SEEN FROM THE AIR

British Aviator Writes of His Impressions on Tour.

London.—How the United States looks viewing the land from the air is described in the Daily Telegraph by Major C. C. Turner, who recently made an extensive flying tour of this country.

"Travel by airplane," he explains, "gives one a view different from any of the usual landscape panoramas. The enormously long shadows of trees and cattle, as the rising sun, suddenly jumping over the rim of the world, strikes them, is among the things that impress him."

"Niagara, seen from a few thousand feet above, is but a small affair," he says. "Its grandeur is not seen: the falling flood is not heard. Beautiful woods become mere cabbage patches. Hills and dales are flattened out. On the whole, the most interesting routes are those which skirt the sea."

"But flying among mountains often affords splendid views in quick succession, views which the climber wins only after terrible toil and at considerable risk."

Great Cultivated Plains

"For hours and hours the air traveler in the United States passes over the great cultivated plains, hundreds of thousands of patches, almost invariably rectangular, which, when I saw them, were all velvety greens and browns. They extend in all directions to the very distant horizon. So far below are the occasional ranch buildings that they look smaller than the smallest match boxes. The thin, black lines of a railway may be seen, but seldom a train."

"The mountains are always grand, and sometimes beautiful. In California, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico and Utah there are mighty cliffs of red and yellow and every conceivable brown and grayish blue and green."

"The liner flies majestically past or just over snow-clad peaks, and to an inexperienced eye it seems sometimes as if a wingtip must hit a rock. Unpleasant doubt assails one. Are those tiny-looking sprigs merely sprigs, and are our wings about to brush the tops of them, or are they big pine trees far below? They move slowly. If they were close they would streak along."

"The great mountains are stupendous, and exhilarating almost beyond belief. But at night the spectacle is, if possible, even more marvelous."

In the Moonlight

"Moonlight makes the airplane's wings like bright silver; to the right there is the green of the starboard navigation light, to the left the red port light gleams. Far below, every ten or fifteen miles the recurrent beam of a route beacon shines upward, and looking ahead or astern one can pick out two or even three at a time. Near a big route junction the beacons of other routes come into view."

Certainly one of the most impressive and beautiful experiences is that of approaching a great city at night. In the usually good visibility of the United States this is more often a satisfying spectacle than in Europe. Kansas City seen from afar and at night is a brilliant, many-colored jewel. Chicago and New York are too vast, and on the landward side too far-spreading to make the perfect picture."

"But for sheer, staggering magnificence Los Angeles and San Francisco are acknowledged supreme. I landed at San Francisco only by day, but on two occasions I descended at Los Angeles at night."

"The airliner approaches after several hours of mountain flying. Then comes a sudden moderation in the engine note and one realizes that the airplane is on a slightly slanting downward path, so gradual that there are still more than forty miles to go before the landing."

Solid Mahogany Bed

Gives Monkeys Fur Coats for Winter

Moscow.—The Moscow zoo will put pants, fur coats and gloves on its monkeys this winter to keep them warm. While polar bears thrive in the Russian winter, tropical animals suffer from being kept indoors.

Providing clothes for monkeys was comparatively simple, but when it came to the elephants the zoo was up against another problem. A huge light hall of 300 square meters was built for the pachyderms.

The monkeys, shedding their pants and coats, can come into an artificial tropical wood. Quarters for them have bathrooms, a dining room and hospital equipped with X-rays.

Other animals are equally well cared for, and evidence their satisfaction by hearing young for the first time in captivity.

HOT WATER ROBS WOOL OF SHEEN

Housewives need no longer dread the task of lanuering wool blankets or comforters if they follow the suggestions of Mrs. Lois Hays of the Home Economics department at Michigan State College.

"Preserving the lovely open texture of wool blankets at the same time keeping them soft," says Mrs. Hays, "is simply a matter of care and of two important don'ts. Don't use hot water and don't wring or rub the blankets."

Water above 100 degrees Fahrenheit tends to stiffen blankets marring the sheen of natural wool. Wringing or rubbing also has a disastrous effect upon blankets and comforters.

Dirt should be soaked out by at least two sudsings with any good quality soap. Rinse at least three times and place weights in the corners when drying. Blankets and comforters should dry slowly. Hang them in a room with good circulation or outside in a gentle breeze. The weights insure square corners.

Comforters and quilts are laundered in the same way. However, more care must be taken with quilts to keep the cotton or wool fillers from wadding. Also, because of their thickness, at least one more sudsing and two more rinsings are required.

Spots and stains in either blankets or quilts are quickly removed by commercial solvents. Rubbing with olive oil before washing is another good way to remove grease spots. For stains caused by rust, Mrs. Hays advises a dilute solution of oxalic acid.

Bean Plowing Should Be Early To Insure A Good Crop

For best results in the 1937 bean crop bean growers are advised to get their spring plowing of last seasons seeded sweet clover done as early as possible.

Experiments conducted over a three year period by H. R. Pettigrove, farm crops department, and C. E. Millar, soils department of Michigan State College, show that growers planning to plow under sweet clover for this seasons bean yield should get their plowing done early in May, before the fifteenth if possible.

Tests prove that those who wait for a larger growth and plow late in May are likely to have an exceedingly dry, loose seed bed on which beans yield poorly.

While the advantage of late plowing was not so great in wet seasons the experiments show that there never has been any advantage. Many late plowed sweet clover fields in Michigan's best bean sections gave a total bean failure last year because of the prolonged drought.

Delayed plowing, the recent proved, can cut bean production in half. Beans planted late in May will lie in the ground for as long as 20 days without germinating, while those planted on earlier plowed land will sprout in four days.

CHANCERY ORDER

State of Michigan, In the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, In Chancery.

Lennah Lee, Plaintiff, vs. Donald H. Lee, Defendant, Order of Publication.

At a session of said Court held on the 19th day of April, A. D. 1937. Present: Hon. Parm C. Gilbert, Circuit Judge.

In this cause, it appearing by the affidavit of Lennah Lee, the above named Plaintiff, on file in this cause, that the above named Defendant, Donald H. Lee, is a non-resident of this State; that it cannot be ascertained in what State or Country the said Donald H. Lee now resides; and that the said Lennah Lee has been a resident of the State of Michigan for the past six years and upwards.

On motion of Edwin K. Reuling, attorney for Plaintiff, it is ordered that the appearance of the said Defendant, Donald H. Lee, be entered within three months from the date of this order; and that in case of his appearance he cause his answer to the bill of complaint to be filed and a copy thereof served upon Plaintiff's Attorney within fifteen (15) days after service on him or his attorney of a copy of the said bill of complaint, and, in default thereof, that said bill of complaint be taken as confessed by the said Defendant, Donald H. Lee.

It is further ordered that the said Plaintiff cause this order to be published in the Charlevoix County Herald, a newspaper printed, published and circulated in said County; and that such publication be commenced within twenty days from the date of this order and be continued once in each week for six (6) weeks in succession; or, that the said Plaintiff cause a copy of this order to be personally served on the said Defendant, Donald H. Lee, at least twenty (20) days before the time prescribed for his appearance.

GASOLINE MILEAGE FACTS RELEASED BY STANDARD OIL, SHOW YOU WAYS TO SAVE AS YOU DRIVE

THE STANDARD OIL DEALER NEARBY SELLS STANDARD RED CROWN GASOLINE

Bundling into one pocket-size book all the dollar-saving facts about gasoline mileage gleaned from the World's Greatest Road Test last summer, the Standard Oil Company released today the results of millions of miles of test car driving by thousands of motorists like yourself.

Remarkable possibilities for increased economy in the public's consumption of gasoline are revealed in the statements of the test car drivers themselves:

Standard Oil Company has long felt, and the World's Greatest Road Test definitely proved, that many motorists are not enjoying the gasoline economy they might. Encouraged by the records of many drivers who were able to show savings ranging as high as one gallon in every ten, we are going to do everything possible this summer to help individual drivers help themselves to more miles per gallon.

GET THIS BOOK — USE IT DAILY and you may save 1 gallon in every 10!

More than 23,000 Standard Oil Dealers have just been provided with initial allotments of the book "How to SAVE AS YOU DRIVE!" These, together with complete details of Standard's SAVE AS YOU DRIVE plan, will be distributed, starting today, to all interested drivers who request them. The books are free—while they last.
