Dairy Feeding Schools

FIRST SCHOOL SCHEDULED AT EAST JORDAN, OCTOBER 28

This is the time of year when all dairymen should be considering the quantity of feed necessary, the quality of feed and the type of feed most profitable to be used this coming winter. Each year presents its unusual problems. It is felt that dairy men will deeply appreciate having the opportunity to meet and talk over their feeding problems, and what better time than now to reserve for this purpose.

These meetings will consist of three and all be completed before the first of the year. The first meeting will be held in the I.O.O.F. Hall, East Jordan, beginning promptly at 11:00 o'clock a.m., Thursday, October 28. Use the side entrance which is located just east of the bank building.

Here is some good news. The Jordan Valley Creamery is co-operating by furnishing coffee and donuts to supplement the lunch that you will bring for the noon hour. Also we are very fortunate in having Mr. J. G. Hayes, specialist in the dairy department, to present the material. Hayes is noted for not only his knowledge of subject matter, but for his wit and comedy. Believe me it will be a most interesting and instructive session.

The first meeting will be on the general requirements for a feed program reviewing the special feeding conditions which exist during the fall and winter, and explaining prices of pound of nutrients, adjustable protein, balanced rations, etc.

I am sure you will want to attend this dairy meeting to be held on Thursday, October 28, beginning promptly at 11:00 o'clock, and extending until possibly 3:00 or 3:30 in the afternoon. Bring your own lunch with you and we will supplement that with coffee and donuts.

Public Health Institute At Boyne City Saturday, Oct. 30th

This year the public health institute which has been formerly a Charlevoix County affair has now been enlarged so as to include the four counties of District No. 3, namely, Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego Counties. We are very fortunate this year in obtaining a group of interesting speakers for this institute which will be held at the School House in Boyne City, Saturday, October 30th, commencing at 10:00 o'clock and lasting until 3:00 p. m. Included in this list of speakers are Dr. Joseph Egle, Superintendent of the Northern Michigan Tuberculosis Sanatorium; Dr. William R. Davis, Director of Health; and Professor J. Muyskens of the University of Michigan. At the present time Professor Muyskens holds the position of Associate Professor of Phonetics in the Department of General Linguistics and Speech. Professor Muyskens possesses the faculty of making his lectures highly interesting and understandable to his audience. He possesses a charming and magnetic personality in addition to a pleasing voice and impressive delivery. This institute is free to the public and they are cordially invited to attend. Be sure not to miss this excellent opportunity of hearing this fine group of speakers.

X-Ray Clinic Here Next Wednesday

An X-Ray Clinic will be held Wednesday, Oct. 27, at the City Building. Appointments for X-rays must be made with Mary (Buser) Muma, County Nurse.

These X-rays are made possible by the sale of Christmas Seals put out by the Michigan Tuberculosis Society.

State Ram Truck In County Wednesday Afternoon, October 27

The state ram truck has been definitely scheduled to make its annual appearance in this county on Wednesday afternoon, October 27, at the farm of Fred Willis, commonly known as the Orchard Bay Farm. You will have the opportunity of seeing some very high quality rams of all leading breeds and with different price tags attached to them.

Mr. Delmer H. LaVoi, specialist from the Michigan State College, will be present and will discuss how to select the proper ram. He will also show the various points in judging rams and in the development of better fleeces. The load will be unloaded so that everyone can make a more thorough study of each individual.

The public is invited to bring in a purebred ram for exchange if they desire. Every ram on the truck is purebred and will be transferred to the new owner immediately. It is hoped that all farmers interested in sheep will plan on seeing this truck load of high quality rams. The prices will probably vary from maybe $25 to $60.

Potatoes Must Be Federally Inspected For Interstate Shipment

Two important changes affecting handling of the 1937 potato crop were called to attention of potato handlers today by John B. Strange, commissioner of Department of Agriculture. Under order by United States Department of Agriculture, all interstate shipments of potatoes must bear federal grading certificates while under state law all graders of this product must pass examination conducted by federal inspectors, according to Commissioner Strange.

Official stations to serve various potato growing sections have been established by the department. Lawrence Stover has been assigned by the department to East Jordan, this station to serve East Jordan, Boyne City, Ellsworth, Central Lake, Boyne Falls and vicinity.

Inspector Stover will be available only for the grading of the tuber crop but will conduct examination for graders in this district. Commissioner Strange pointed out that the grader's application must bear inspector's approval when received in the Lansing office as well as the endorsement of the references. Upon receipt of properly approved application, the department will issue to the grader a license, bearing his number. All closed containers of potatoes must carry the grader's number, the card or tag or branding reading, "The contents of this package have been graded by Michigan licensed grader No. _____." Improperly graded potatoes may result in revocation of the grader's license according to Commissioner Strange, which may be readily traced by the license number.

More Land For Bridge Park

SPORTSMEN'S PARK BEING EXTENDED AND DEVELOPED

Additional acreage has recently been secured to enlarge Sportsmen's Park — East Jordan's "front door." The newly-acquired land is that of Block H, purchased by the City for park purposes of the East Jordan Lumber Co. Block H is just west of the bridge at the head of the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix, and adjacent to Sportsmen's Park.

Additions from time to time are being made by those interested in this Park's development to its wild life. Just recently there has been added a pair of "Muscovy" ducks, the gift of Robert Anderson of Rapid City who has been raising a few. With the fall migratory bird season here this "game sanctuary" is being visited daily by ducks, mallards, pheasants, etc. Visiting the Sportsmen's Park is becoming quite popular among nature lovers.

THE MUSK DUCK

"Musk duck, erroneously called Muscovy duck. This well-known bird is the largest of the duck kind, and approaches nearly to the size of a goose. It has obtained its name from a strong smell of musk which exhalates from its body, and not because it comes from Russia, as has been supposed, since it is a native of South America. The musk ducks are tamed in great quantities in the West Indies, and are found wild in Guiana, where they nestle on the trunk of trees, close upon the water's edge. They feed much upon a plant called wild rice and are difficult to approach." — The Americana.

Annual Convention Tuesday, Nov. 2nd.

The Charlevoix County Council of Religious Education will hold their annual convention on Tuesday, November 2nd, 1937, at the Bay Shore Presbyterian Church. The main theme of the convention will be "Living Religious" and will be discussed under the various topics, "The Church and the Social Tasks," "The Christian Home, the background of the Sunday School," "The great need of the Sunday School Today." The topic will be discussed by the following speakers: Linnell Matthews and Mrs. John Rogers of Bellaire. This is the afternoon program. The evening program will be in charge of E. S. Marks, State Supt. of the Christian Endeavor Society. At 6:30 p. m. will be a pot luck supper, each bringing their own dishes and silver, some sandwiches and a dish to pass. The entertaining church will furnish coffee, sugar, and cream.

The full program will be published next week. May all Sunday school and church workers plan to attend the convention.

Refrain From Shooting Within Range of C.C.C. Camps

Don't be the cause of the first "CCC hunting accident" in Michigan, is the appeal now going out to hunters.

No accident due to hunting has ever occurred to a CCC enrollee in this state up to this season. As in previous year, signs have again been erected in the vicinity of CCC camps and work projects, warning hunters of their proximity.

Appreciation for the care exercised by hunters in past seasons is expressed by Robert Fechner, Civilian Conservation Corps director, in a request issued from his office in Washington, for hunters to refrain from shooting while within range of CCC sites.

A total of $3,006,202.51 is being sent to county treasurers to be distributed to school districts in every county of the state. The total amount is 30 per cent more than last year, Dr. Elliott announced.

Charlevoix county's share will be $16,188.52. Antrim county, $14,563.79.

The old belief that it is necessary to be very quiet in order to have good luck fishing is usually more superstition than fact. Fish have no external ears and can hear few sounds made above the water.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN BOYS ENJOY TRIP TO NATIONAL DAIRY SHOW

Two Emmet County 4-H Dairy Club members, Howard Stolt and Ralph Eppler, enjoy the distinction of being the first 4-H club members in this section of the state to ever win a trip to the National Dairy Show at Columbus, Ohio. In winning this trip the boys won the elimination contest in county, district and state. The boys enjoyed a full week of activities while at the show. They gave their demonstration along with 36 other state championship teams. The Massachusetts team won first place which gave each member a $400.00 scholarship.

Some of the outstanding features of the show that were enjoyed were the two banquets that were given to over 400 boys from 37 states. They also saw the champion cow which produced 81,635 lbs. milk and 1346 lbs. of butterfat. A herd of 10 cows that had produced over one million lbs. of milk created much interest as well as the cow which gave birth to six calves at her last freshening date, of which five are living.

On Sunday afternoon the club delegation was conducted through the Ohio State University after which a box lunch was enjoyed.

On the trip home a stop was made at Jackson where the boys were shown through the Southern Michigan Prison.

O. F. Walker, District Club Agent.

Showing Much Better Form

E. J. H. S. FOOTBALL SQUAD WIN FROM MANCY BY SKIN OF TEETH

In a breath-taking finish, the Crimson Wave topped the Orange and Black of Mancelona 13 to 12 there Saturday. The Jordanites outgained the inexperienced Mancy boys, making 14 first downs to 5.

Mancelona took the lead within the first two minutes of play as they pushed a surprising pass from their own 40 yd. marker, netting them a touchdown as Turnipseed nabbed a 20 yd. toss and went unmolested 40 yds. to score. Their try for the extra point on a kick from placement failed, leaving the score 6 to 0 just as the encounter was getting nicely under way. A fighting Red and Black came right back to score as Gregory lunged over from the 5 yd. marker, following a series of fine end run plays. Gregory also plunged over to score the extra point to put the Jordanites out in front 7 to 6 at the end of the first period. Neither machine were able to score in the second period although the locals threatened to score three times, and as the half ended found the locals with possession of the ball on the 1 yd. line.

Taking the ball on the opening kick off of the third period, the Orange and Black took possession of the ball on their own 38 yard line. After two plays into the local forward wall which were stopped cold, Webster, Mancelona's quarterback outwitted the local defence, as he broke through the line from a punt formation to score after a 68 yard run in which he evaded the local secondary by some beautiful running. Again they try for the extra point failed and Mancelona took the lead 12 to 7. The Jordanites were still trailing with but 4 minutes to play as they took possession of the ball on their own 15 yard line. At this point most teams would have given up, but not the Crimson, for they unleashed a battering-ram attack that cashed in. With but 14 seconds remaining to play, Gregory, big local fullback carried the brunt of the drive as he smashed and ripped the opponents line to shreds. It took the Jordanites but 18 plays to take the ball over, Gregory carrying the ball 15 times, picking up 76 yds. The local line worked as a unit to give openings for their ball tooters, and this, boys, is what pays off in the long run.

The student body and townspeople rightfully held up their own Saturday as their numbers outnumbered that of the Mancelona backers. The Jordanites showed a marked improvement in their blocking ability this week. Their thrilling final minutes drive showed they have what it takes, so boys, keep it up. The Mancelona lads, a totally inexperienced crew, put up a whale of a fight and should give tough competition to their coming opponents, as they are picking up fast.

This week end Saturday, will find the Jordanites in Charlevoix to battle it out with Coach Kipper's Red Raiders.

Hull, Davis and Welles Going to Confer With President.

Edward W. Pickard SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

Special Session Called

CONGRESS was called in extraordinary session to start November 15, and immediately afterward President Roosevelt explained in a "fireside chat" over the radio the necessity for this as he sees it.

Crop production control to "build an all-weather farm program so that in the long run prices will be more stable."

Wage and hour standards to "make millions of our lowest paid workers actual buyers of billions of dollars of industrial and farm products."

Regional planning to conserve natural resources, prevent floods and produce electric power for general use.

Government reorganization to provide "Twentieth century machinery" to make the "democratic process work more efficiently."

Stronger antitrust laws in furtherance of "a low price policy which encourages the widest possible consumption."

Chairman O'Connor of the house rules committee predicted the house would pass a farm bill in the first week of the session and then take up the wage and hour measure.

Some Democratic leaders said the labor bill, which was passed by the senate in the last session but held up in the house rules committee, would probably be the only one of the five measures to get through congress in the special session.

Even that is strongly opposed by southern Democrats and has been condemned by the American Federation of Labor.

SEVERE condemnation of the federal labor relations board was voiced in a resolution adopted by the American Federation of Labor in the Denver convention.

C.I.O. Upholds Contracts

IN A tumultuous session at Atlantic City 150 leaders of the C. I. O. routed a "left wing" movement and went on record in favor of a policy condemning "quickie" strikes, supporting the sanctity of collective bargaining contracts and pledging co-operation in safeguarding the operation of these agreements.

The delegates also condemned recent decisions by the national labor board as being contrary to the provisions of the Wagner-Connelly act by which the board was created and approved a four-point federal legislative program. This program called for a wages-and-hours bill, licensing of all industries operating in interstate commerce, appropriation of sufficient WPA and PWA funds to provide jobs for every American worker, and expansion of the social security act.

No Peace for Labor

WAR between the rival factions in American organized labor is not going to cease in the near future.

The C. I. O. leaders gathered in Atlantic City for their first "war council," and John L. Lewis, their chief, revealed plans for setting up a permanent dual organization. He condemned the C. I. O. unions from the American Federation of Labor as "cowardly and contemptible" and said those unions considered themselves now out of the federation and awaited any further action by the federation with complete indifference.

May Meet in Brussels

HOW far President Roosevelt is willing to go in the effort to stop Japan in China is what other powers, especially Great Britain, are eager to know.

Mr. Roosevelt, who conferred with Secretary of State Hull, Undersecretary Sumner Welles and Norman Davis, his roving ambassador, was represented as being strongly averse to taking a solitary lead in the action to check the Japanese.

In his radio talk the President alluded to the conflict in China rather vaguely, reiterating that "America hates war" and stating that the United States is going to co-operate with the other signatories to the nine-power treaty in an effort to find a "solution of the present situation in China."

The National Council for Prevention of War, representing a part of the extreme peace sentiment in the United States, announced that its annual meeting had declared for immediate invocation of the neutrality law which the President has not seen fit to put in operation.

Italy Supports Japanese

THERE was considerable doubt whether Italy would take part in the Pacific treaty conference, but it was assumed that if it did, it would defend the course pursued by Japan in China and would do what it could to frustrate the designs of the other conferees.

This was assured by the message conveyed to the Tokyo government by Giacinto Auriti, Italian ambassador to Japan. According to agency, Auriti promised Kenseke Horinouchi, Japanese vice foreign minister, that "Italy will never spare general support to Japan."

Japan Denies Violations

IN A formal reply to the charges of treaty violation the Tokyo foreign office flatly denied responsibility for the Sino-Japanese conflict and asserted that China, not Japan, had violated the treaties.

Court Upholds Black

FOR the present, at any rate, Hugo L. Black's seat on the Supreme court bench is secure. The court refused to permit Albert Levitt, former federal judge in the Virgin Islands, and Patrick Henry Kelly of Boston to contest the legality of Black's appointment.

OGDEN L. MILLS, who succeeded Andrew Mellon as secretary of the treasury and for years was a leader in the Republican party, died of heart disease at his home in New York.

Divorce Rule Stands

CHURCH laws against remarriage of divorced persons by Episcopal clergymen stand unchanged for at least three years. Proposed liberalization of the rule was defeated by the house of deputies of the church at the general convention in Cincinnati.

U. S. Consul Murdered

J. THEODORE MARRINER, American consul general at Beirut, Syria, was assassinated by an Armenian who had been refused a visa for travel to the United States.

Washington Digest National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART

Our Foreign Policy

Washington.—I doubt that there is any phase or function of government that is less understood by the people at large than questions or actions relating to foreign policy.

This brings us to the President's Chicago speech and the announcement by the State department of American conclusions that Japan is the aggressor in China.

Many observers and many individuals have indicated their surprise at the President's speech which, by the way, was the most distinct pronouncement of any that he has ever made.

The reason that I say there should have been no surprise concerning the final position which our government has taken traces back to the administration of President Hoover and Henry L. Stimson, then secretary of state.

What that change in policy did is plain now. It was the beginning of the end of the isolationist program which followed the bitter controversy over President Wilson's proposal that the United States affiliate with the League of Nations and adhere to all phases of the program embodied in the league covenant.

The one thing that really represents an important change of policy that Mr. Roosevelt enunciated at Chicago is his view of neutrality. Without making any particular reference to the neutrality statute enacted last winter under the sponsorship of Senator Pittman of Nevada, Mr. Roosevelt announced without equivocation that the United States will do everything it can, short of military force, to curb the Japanese course in China.

I have been asked several times recently concerning the possibility that the United States may engage in actual war in the Far East. I think that eventually it is very far removed.

Keep Out of Far East War

Possibilities always exist for a nation to get tangled up internationally under conditions such as obtain throughout the world today, yet I do not believe that the United States ever will do more in the Far East than exert moral pressure upon the Japs.

From all of this it must be plain that our national course in the next few months will have to be determined largely by the other fellow. Or, to state the proposition in another way, the lengths to which the United States will go in punitive action against Japan is likely to be determined, first, by the reaction of our own citizens to Japanese barbarism and, second, the moves by other dominant nations of the world.

Mr. Roosevelt was returning from an 8,000-mile trip when he delivered his Chicago speech. That trip was announced in advance as being for the purpose of an inspection—to see how the country was taking the New Deal. That, however, was not the whole truth.

The information that filters back from observers aboard the President's train presents something of a paradox. Almost unanimously, the observers found that Mr. Roosevelt was still immensely popular personally. Concerning his various programs, including crop control legislation, the observers report that they found conditions ranging from violent opposition to plain apathy or complete lack of interest.

It is a most confusing situation from a political standpoint. I have found few individuals able or willing to attempt an analysis of it. Generally speaking, lack of enthusiasm for a program, sooner or later will kill off politically the individual who sponsors the program.

But the political effect of his Chicago speech must not be minimized. Whether Mr. Roosevelt so intended or not, his speech demanding that Japan respect treaties and observe the rights of other nations and his pointed criticism of policies such as those employed by Mussolini, Hitler and Stalin, have the effect of rallying the people behind him.

Black Klan Affair

Some persons who are opposed to the New Deal have been mean enough to say that Mr. Roosevelt took his trip West in order to get away from Washington until the incident involving Associate Justice Black had blown over.

Mr. Justice Black has now taken his seat as a member of the court. He told the country in a radio speech before assuming the robes of office that he had resigned from the Klan and that, as far as he was concerned, the incident was closed.

The reason for advertising again to the Black Klan affair is to make a prediction. That prediction is: as long as Mr. Black sits as a member of the Supreme court of the United States, he will receive repercussions of the case. I will wager now that regardless of what position Mr. Black takes in deciding any future litigation, there will be those who will point to him and remark that "he was once a member of the Ku Klux Klan."

Take it any way you like—the appointment and the confirmation of Hugo Black as a member of the Supreme court under the circumstances now known and affirmed by Mr. Black himself constitutes one of the worst situations yet recorded on the appointive power of the President and the power of the senate to approve presidential nominations.

But laying aside all of these things, there is a real tragedy resulting from the circumstance. If there is one branch or agency of our government in which it is necessary for the people as a whole to have faith, it is in the judiciary. I think I can foresee that the Black appointment and its attendant features will shake the faith of many individuals in courts.

It ought never to have happened.

The Place of Radio.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.— "Deke" Aylesworth says radio can never displace newspapers. "Deke" is with Roy Howard's newspapers now and naturally wouldn't care to have his job shot out from under him by a loudspeaker.

Radio never can displace newspapers any more than milk-tickets can displace milk.

The newspaper reader chooses what he pleases from the day's coverage—gratifying obituary notices of people he didn't like; convincing statements from financial wizards explaining why his investments turned sour after he'd bought them on advice of aforesaid wizards; and, about once in so often, exciting special articles about the Hope diamond or the William Desmond Taylor case or the lure of Mr. Robert Taylor.

So long as you can't wrap up a picnic lunch in a radio or use short wave sets to line pantry shelves with, we'll have newspapers.

Thanks, "Deke," I'm working for a string of newspapers myself.

THE League's New Head. I TAKE back all I ever said about the League of Nations being as futile as a fly swatter in a saloon brawl.

The league has a new president—the Aga Khan, who has the largest private income on earth because 40,000,000 Mohammedans regard him as divine and pay for the privilege, often going hungry in order to do so.

Well, to celebrate his election, the Aga Khan gave the most gorgeous banquet ever staged in Geneva—1,500 bottles of champagne and 300 pounds of caviar.

Thus did the league justify its right to existence. There were but few flies in the ointment. Ethiopia's delegates were either deceased or missing, the league having drawn the color line, so to speak, which was more than Mussolini did when he wiped out their country last year.

Sick Calls De Luxe. PAT O'BRIEN, the actor, tells this one about an Irish cop at the crossing who waved a car containing three priests to proceed after the stop signal had gone up and then, with harsh words, checked another driver who sought to follow along, too.

"But you let that other car with those three clergymen in it go through," protested the halted one.

"They was on their way to a sick call," stated the officer.

"Now wait a minute," said the citizen. "I happen to be a Catholic myself and I know about those things. Who ever heard of three priests going on one sick call?"

For a moment only the policeman hesitated. Then he snapped: "Say, young feller, tell me this, you that knows so much—did you never hear of a solemn high sick call?"

POLICE are still trying to round up the slickers who, in one day, raided twenty-nine banks scattered all over France. This reminds a fellow of 1931, when the bank examiners were coroners simultaneously sitting on the mortal remains of an even larger number of American banks, the main difference being that these French banks were looted by outside parties.

According to dispatches, this job was accomplished through fraudulent credentials for strangers presenting forged drafts. But I beg leave to doubt that part, remembering when I turned up at various outlying points over there with proper identifications and a perfectly good letter of credit.

But should it develop that any of these recently stolen francs were earmarked for payment to us on account of that war debt—brethren, that would indeed be news.

Household Questions

A Delight for the Children.—Next time your children want a party, cook a cornstarch custard and fill cones. Alternate every spoonful or so with currant jelly and finish with jelly on top.

Orange Fritters.—Separate two large navel oranges into sections. Dip sections in batter and fry in deep fat. Serve as accompaniment to roast lamb or braised pork chops.

Cauliflower and Eggs.—Butter a pie dish and break into it 4 eggs. Half cook a small cauliflower and break into neat pieces. Arrange these round the eggs and season with salt and pepper. Pour over 4 tablespoonfuls milk and place 1 ounce butter in small pieces on the top. Sprinkle 2 ounces grated cheese over, and bake 15-20 minutes in a moderate oven.

Two Buttons and a Hair Pin.—In most cases that's all you need to keep the loose pieces from falling out of a shattered window pane in your home or car. Put one button on each side of the hole in the glass, run the hair pin through the buttons and twist the end until it is tight.

Saves Time on Wash Day.—An old wood plane is just the thing to convert bar soap into shavings that dissolve quickly. Turn the plane upside down over a large jar or other container and work the soap back and forth across the sharp edge.

Good Airing.—When you have the windows open in the morning to air the beds before making, open the clothes closet doors wide and let the current of air run through them. It will prevent them from getting that close stuffy odor so undesired where our clothes are concerned.

To Wash Curtains.—Lace curtains before being washed for the first time should be soaked for an hour or two in cold water to which two tablespoons of table salt have been added. This removes dressing in curtains and makes them much easier to launder.

Lattice-Topped Pies.—Fruit and berry pies with lattice-style tops require less baking time than the regular full-crust toppers.

EUROPE GIRDS FOR BOMBING RAIDS

Good Offense Is Best Defense Against Aerial Attack, Nations Believe; Race Is On to Build Planes, Train Airmen.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

ALL Europe has glued its attention to the Far East—to Shanghai, Tientsin, Nanking and the other great Chinese metropolises now forming targets for deadly Japanese bombs. Europeans are watching the ruthless attacks upon civilian populations, and the wanton destruction of homes and public buildings occupied by noncombatants in something of the manner of the football scout watching this week's game to perfect the defenses of his own team for the big game that looms in the future.

The World war gave Europe, and particularly England, a glimpse of what might be expected in a few years, after aerial bombing had perfected the efficiency lacking in its infancy. Air bombers extend the theater of war into the civilian populations of the great cities, reduce to a mockery the territorial boundaries on a continent peopled by many small nations and threaten, when coupled with other agencies of modern warfare, to wipe out European civilization.

There are few qualified authorities who believe that bombing expeditions on large cities could bring an entire nation to surrender by shattering its morale and upsetting the structure of government. The cities of Shanghai and Madrid still stand, if their heads be bloody, after months of ruthless, coldly-planned attacks from the air. But there is always the possibility that the next time may be different, and for this reason the race among European nations to build air forces and defenses against air forces of their enemies has been heightened of recent days to a fever pitch.

There are perhaps 20,000 military airplanes owned by the nations of Europe today, and more thousands are being turned out every month. The same nations are pressing plans of defense to completion among both military and civilian branches of the population with a speed born of genuine fear.

Britons Excel Technically.

England, not soon destined to forget the terrifying Zeppelin and Gotha raids which drove London into a state of panic in 1917, is one of the foremost in building her air defenses and realizes that the best defense is a good offense, as they often say in football circles. Her first-line strength (at home, with the feet-and-abroad numbers about 2,000 planes, and her reserves, called the best in Europe, raise the total to 3,000.

For a time England had difficulties in production, but is now building about 175 planes a month, and production is on the upswing, indicating that perhaps these difficulties have been straightened out. Technically, her air force is head and shoulders above the rest of the continent. Her airplanes are far better than any of those operated or under construction by any other European power. Her supermarine Spitfire planes do 346 miles an hour and she has bombers capable of nearly 300.

Measures taken to defend England from air raids exemplify almost every precaution known upon the continent. London is the heart of the empire and, from the air, its most vulnerable point. There 10,000,000 persons live within an area of 2,000 square miles.

England's ring of volunteer observers to warn in case of air raids extends out into France and Belgium and is backed up by naval patrols in the Channel. This serves to give London an hour's warning to mobilize her defenses if a raid is coming; were the lookouts stationed at the mouth of the Thames there would be but 10 or 15 minutes to prepare. A few flying ships are based along the coast for purposes of reconnaissance. These are supplemented by a Volunteer Observers' corps of workers and other civilians equipped with airplane detecting instruments. All file reports with a central office to chart the course of invaders.

Nets Hang From Balloons.

The first stationary line of defense is the outer artillery ring of guns and searchlights. Inside this is a fighting zone in which squadrons leave their airdromes within 90 seconds of receiving an alarm; searchlights and a few fighting planes which constantly patrol the city point their way to the enemy.

Most sensational of all London's defensive measures is its next line, the mobile balloon barrage. Steel cables are hung in the air like a net from a series of blimps, offering both a psychological and a physical obstacle to the invading airman. The last line of active defense is a string of 125 three or four inch guns and 150 searchlights across the city of London itself.

The Home Office has undertaken to unite the people in passive defense schemes. One, aimed chiefly to allay the fears of air raids is to provide 40,000,000 persons with free gas masks, now being manufactured at the rate of 300,000 to 400,000 a week.

Booklets issued by the government teach citizens to organize neighborhoods for practice in the issuance of gas masks and otherwise reduce the holocaust of wholesale air raids. Fire-fighting squads are being readied to minimize destruction by incendiary bombs; other groups are being organized to repair damaged public utilities and clean areas left contaminated after gas attacks.

Civilians are also being instructed in ways of making at least one room of each house gasproof. Architects are also being advised to include gasproof shelters in all new buildings. The subways were looked to for shelter in the World war, but officials today warn that they are more likely to be traps than shelters, being not far enough underground.

Russia Supreme Numerically.

In the case that raids become so terrible that the plans will not hold up, the only alternative is to get the population out of London. Railroads are now offering plans for rapid mass evacuation.

Numerically, Russia has the most powerful air force in the world. She owns about 3,000 first line planes and about 1,500 to 2,000 other planes, mostly training ships. Her aerial personnel of 50,000, including 7,000 or 8,000 pilots is well-organized and effective, but not well equipped.

Russia is said to have no more than 400 or 500 first class planes, imitative of American and French planes; the others are obsolescent.

despite their recent successes in Spain. However, Russia has the benefit of capable foreign designers, engineers, foremen, metallurgists and mechanics, and has shown marked imitative ability. She is willing to spend money and her labor is cheap. She builds foreign airplane engines under license. And of recent months her airplane production has speeded to the point where it is the greatest in Europe.

Despite the fact that 9,000 civilian pilots were trained last year, that gliding and parachute jumping are now popular sports, and that Russians are the most air-minded people on earth, the program is just getting under way. The Reds expect to have 150,000 pilots, a production of 20,000 planes a year and a fleet of giant ships. Russia's chief weakness is that she depends too much upon foreign assistance, having few skilled mechanical people of her own and as yet having failed to produce a good engine.

Italy's Air Force Is Flashy.

Russia's soldiers, children and civilians are being trained in defense against aerial and chemical warfare with school and factory drills. Her anti-aircraft guns are not so numerous or well-developed as those of her neighbors, but great flying distances and snow-covered mountains are a real protection against invading planes.

Italy has some 2,250 first-line planes in operating squadrons, with another 1,500 in reserve. Her aerial exploits, such as General Balbo's armada and the more recent performances in Ethiopia, have gained her fame, but her air force still fails to measure up to that of some of her competitors in quality. She has failed to develop a good air-cooled engine.

Shortage of fuel supply has been a real obstacle to Italian aerial development, and has prevented her fliers from obtaining sufficient flying time to qualify them. They are said to have an average of but 70 hours in the air. Lack of raw materials, as demonstrated when sanctions were applied in the Ethiopian war, renders her incapable of sustained high-speed production, although she is now building planes at the rate of 200 a month.

For protecting Italian citizens in the larger cities, Il Duce has chosen to depend chiefly upon rapid evacuation in the case of air raids, leaving only those absolutely necessary to government and to war industry remaining in the industrial centers of the Po valley to the north. Within three or four years he expects Rome's first subway to be completed; it will also be used as an auxiliary air raid shelter. A royal decree has made it compulsory that all new buildings be supplied—at the builders' expense—with a standard underground shelter which, it is claimed, adds no more than two per cent to the cost.

Germany is the great mystery among European powers in the air. Her extremely rapid growth, coupled with the obvious friendship between the Reich and Italy, is said to have Britain quaking. No one can be sure, but it is a good guess that Germany's first-line planes are more than 2,000 in number. Her fine factories can turn out new ones as fast as those of any other nation on the continent if they can obtain enough raw materials, and right now she is believed to be producing between 200 and 300 a month. Like some other countries, she has not produced a really top-notch motor.

French Prestige Slips.

Germany's aerial forces are under command separate from the army. Air Minister Wilhelm Goering has developed his command so rapidly that, for the time being, it probably is not well organized, but some day soon it will be in good working order. Her air defenses are under the same command, and are probably the best co-ordinated in Europe. Her anti-aircraft artillery line boasts 480 guns and new ones are being completed at the rate of one battery a day. Cheap civilian gas masks are being rapidly distributed among the populace. Shelters are being constructed. But the real defense of Berlin, the capital, is its relatively great distance from any frontier.

France has slipped from her one-time position as the leading air force of Europe. She has now only about 2,000 front line planes, including those within her borders, with the fleet and abroad, and 1,000 training and reserve planes. About two-thirds of all French planes are obsolescent. And production of late has been halted to a virtual standstill by internal economic and political strife. There are plenty of good pilots, the air force is competent technically, and the French have produced good motors.

Much of France's aerial defense is centered in Paris, as might be expected. This city is particularly fortunate in that thousands of cellars made famous by "Les Miserables" have been inspected and pronounced excellent air raid shelters capable of giving refuge to 1,720,000 persons. Other precautions—searchlights, guns, civilian drills and education—are being undertaken.

Anti-aircraft guns are said to be eight times as efficient today as they were in the time of the World war, and with the wholesale defense measures, both active and passive, it is hardly probable that Europe's next war will be won in the air. It just means that the greatest human suffering will not necessarily take place upon the fields of battle.

Unexpected Visitors Must Take a Chance

DEAR Mrs. Post: My husband and I were planning to go with another couple to a big dance in town when the day before out of town relatives just arrived without any notice at all. We tried to persuade them to go to the dance with us but they said they did not care for dancing and also they had not come prepared with evening clothes. We even tried to supply the clothes, but no, they would not go. We felt that we should go since we had promised our friends. We explained the situation and they seemed very sincere in wanting us to go without them. They stayed home with the radio and the dog. Next day they acted hurt and before leaving remarked that they were glad their visit had not interfered with our pleasure. I certainly feel that they have branded me as a discourteous hostess and can't help wondering whether I was wrong.

Answer: A question like this is so hard to answer because if I say you were perfectly right in going out, the chances are that some of my readers would feel about it as your guests apparently did. And yet the real fault was that of your guests who came without asking you if it would be convenient to have them. And this is a thing which in my opinion no one should take for granted—not even a nearest relative, unless she knows there is plenty of room and also that her hostess will feel free to do just as you did.

ABC's in Manners: Invitations and Greetings

IS THE tissue paper left in commencement announcements or invitations when they are mailed? And why your answer?

Answer: It is correct to remove the tissue paper before mailing the announcements or invitations. But if you think the ink has not dried sufficiently to prevent the clean page from getting smudged, then this is a sensible enough reason for leaving it.

Use Double Sheets.

DEAR Mrs. Post: I have always been under the impression that correct writing paper for a man was cut in single sheets, but recently you suggested to a reader that in his particular case the paper should be double. Has the style in men's writing paper changed or is it that I have been under a wrong impression?

Answer: I am sorry but I am afraid you have been under the wrong impression. Social paper, or at least that which can be used for formal occasions such as notes of invitation, answers to invitations, etc., should never be on a single fold paper. Of course when file copies need be made of personal letters then they as well as long business letters are necessarily written on single paper of typewriting size.

Junior Bridesmaid

DEAR Mrs. Post: I have a sister only eleven years old, but big for her age. She is my only sister and at an age that seems to make it impossible to include her in my wedding party either as a flower girl or as a bridesmaid, and yet I know the poor child will be heartbroken if you can't find some place for her.

Answer: Make her a junior bridesmaid. That means that she wears a dress as nearly as possible like those worn by the bridesmaids, but modified to suit her age. If you have a maid of honor, your sister should follow the ushers either walking alone or else walking with another junior bridesmaid. If she walks immediately before you, this would make her your maid of honor, which she can perfectly well be if you have not already invited your best friend.

Deaths in Business

DEAR Mrs. Post: At various times our company receives notices of the death of people who are connected with business firms with which we do business. We don't know whether we should make any acknowledgment of this announcement or not, and if so, what.

Answer: This is probably only intended as a notification so that you will no longer address business letters to this name, and no acknowledgment is necessary. On the other hand, if you happen to know someone in the company whom you feel will be really upset by the loss of this associate, it would be kind to write to him.

Drinking Your Bouillon

DEAR Mrs. Post: Is it proper to pick up the wide bouillon cups and drink from them? They seem almost too large, but my husband insists that their handles are no only intended for ornamentation.

Answer: Your husband is quite right. Moreover, you use both handles, one held in each hand.

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste

Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—fast work, nervous, all played out.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has a country-wide reputation than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful voices recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor.

"Mr." Alf Schmidt Waxes Poetic In Greetings to Buddies

The following poem was written by the band leader of old Headquarters Co., Alf Schmidt, in response to an invitation sent to him to attend the Headquarters Co. or old Co. I reunion held here, Sept. 26.

Dear Buddies: You know, I got your letter,
And nothing could have pleased me better!
But why, so long you wait to write
I "nich fershtay" try as I might
You say to Jordan, soon you'll go
And meet with Kamradt, and Joe,
And other toughs, who years ago,
Made up our old Headquarters Co.
I wish that I could be there too —
More than you really know—I do.

Time passes by, on fleeting wings,
And oft, it golden memory brings
Of other days, and other scenes
When we ate "tack" and guzzled
beans;
When for a bed, we used a ditch,
And thought that we were passing rich
When we drew down our 30 yen —
Oh we were flush as Croesus then!
Except that I drew down a hundred;
What's that? you say that someone
"blundered"?

I spent three years in that there state
And just now learned (it's pretty late.)
That once a year, you get together,
Come rain or snow, or frosty weather,
You gather there in Joe's home town,
To testify to his renoun,
And quaff the cup that cheers, and no doubt
You will have a feed of trout!
These truly—are the things worth while,
And bring to my old mug — a smile.

I can't be there —and mores the pity
That is why I write this little ditty.
I hope the boys note, in their pad
That Old Chief Schmidt was not so bad;
That everywhere, asleep, awake,
He gave to all the boys a break.
Time passes on, alas, alack!
And I maintain this very fact:
That old Headquarters Co., me lad
The best men in the army had.
So when you fellows get together
In fair or warm or chilly weather
Please think of me a little bit
I'm most sincerely yours—Schmidt.

Cause of Hail.

Hail, differing from sleet, is not an exclusive by-product of winter. It results when an upward gust of wind carries raindrops high enough to freeze. They fall, pick up more water, are again lifted, frozen. A little more of that and the stones are heavy enough to fall straight to earth.

The most severe hailstorms have occurred in tropical countries. South Africa probably has the most dangerous. Stones weighing more than 1. pounds have bombarded Natal.—Washington Post.

Black FEATHER

"The little trader!" she mumbled. "He came floating down the river dead in his canoe. I put him out before your lodge. On the grass before your lodge. With these hands, I put him out. You leave me alone when there is whiskey and—"

That was all they wanted from her, now. They turned away, with much to tell, not heeding her chatter of explanation. Little Duck had come, saying Shaw was dead.

It was a time of death. Flat Mouth's son was dead and now their friend, the trader, was dead.

They spoke rapidly and loudly; word ran from group to group until it reached the knot of hunters about Rickman, smoking his tobacco but contemptuous of a man who had been driven out of his lodge.

Then, after a time, he began to talk. He was their friend, he said. If the little trader was dead, the band would not lack a fort for trading. He would welcome them to his lodge; they would find his hands full and his heart generous.

Conrad Rich had put in a day of desperate suspense. His mind accustomed to figures and thoroughly comfortable only when concerned with figures, had been whipped to a frenzy by the multitude of fantastic happenings since last night-fall.

He had fussed about, watching the lake, eagerly listening to those men who came and went and had contact with others and who might have learned something that would shed light on the many matters which baffled him.

In late afternoon he abandoned attempts at puzzling matters out and sought solace with the familiar. Ledgers and invoices spread before him, he tried to work but he was so harried that his mind would not even find peace in the familiar.

So he was in a fit mood to be startled when Annette spoke to him from the doorway. "Oh!" she cried. "Did I frighten you?"

"Fri—Lord, ma'am! Lord, ma'm—selle!" Oh, Lord, miss. Annette! he gasped and went to her quickly and took both her hands and drew her within the room.

"I heard what Rickman said to you here 'nd what you said to him."

Lieutenant Capes. I attempted to persuade him to stay on until Rodney should at least be warned of the threats made against him. But the major's orders were beyond mistaking. The lieutenant was distressed to leave me, but I assured him that with Rodney Shaw here I was in no danger.

Again the flush showed in her lovely cheeks and she dropped her gaze. "But I have been unable to see Rodney. All the day he has been absent from his post."

"All night he was here! All night he waited, ready to shoot Burke like a man 'd shoot a wolf!" "Conrad? Do you suppose he's in danger now?"

"Danger's all about. But Rickman, he's with the Indians. He's be'n there all day." "True. It comforts me. I . . . You see, Conrad, it is necessary that I talk with Rodney at once. There are so many things for me to say. I harmed him grievously and I want him to know it and my regret from my own lips. And, also, he must be warned of the threats Burke makes against him."

"It's no warnin' he needs! Why, they've be'n like hostile dogs ever since Mackinac. Rickman's tried Shaw once and last night Shaw comes here ready to blast our trader into kingdom come."

He broke short, jaw sagging. Over his shoulder he could see Rickman entering the gate. "He's comin' now!" he rasped. "Rickman! At th' gate!"—dragging her from the doorway. "If he found you here, there's no guessin'! Here! This window! Outside, and leave him to me 'til you get a chance to slip away!"

He lifted her, thrust her feet through the window in the rear wall and let her down outside against the building, turning to confront Rickman as he approached the doorway.

The trader stopped on the threshold. He put one hand against the logs and smiled at his clerk. "Shaw," said Rickman, "Shaw is dead!"

Shaw was dead? Rodney dead? Annette swayed against the wall, coldness enveloping her, and raised hands to her mouth to stifle the cry her throat could not stop.

"He's dead, I tell you, Rich, and there's none to babble that I had a part in it. The trader's mine, now. It's mine, at last, for the company. He's no bourgeois to collect his furs! His Basile's like a faithful dog, but he's no head for trade. . . . But that's a bauble, a trinket, Rich! There are other things a man values higher even than this trade and go for one of these now!"

He reached beneath his bed and dragged out a jug and lifting it to his lips drank deeply. . . . Annette slipped around the building and fed for the gate.

"I'll pull her claws, now!" the trader boasted. "Impose a fraud on me, eh? She's here, alone with her boatmen. Capes is gone and all day, Rich . . . all day I've waited . . . waited."

He drank again, lingeringly, and the liquor mingled with the intoxication engendered by his passion and his sense of achievement.

"Capes is gone and Shaw is dead and she's a woman without a protector in the interior!" "Sleep with the men, Rich. Tonight, this"—with a sweeping gesture—"becomes a bridal chamber!"

As Annette ran through the gateway her boatmen, lounging by the canoe, rose. But she did not go to them. She stood a moment, staring up the lake, shielding her eyes from the descending sun. She saw men gathered before Fort Shaw, saw others running from the stockade with burdens and began again to run herself.

"Yonder! If he lives, he has lain alone since noon. We go to—" "I go . . . with you!" she sobbed, all but collapsing into the canoe.

"Oars!" Basile growled, and the four blades caught the water in unison. Good men at the paddles; the best the fort boasted, with Basile at the steering oar, goading them on.

Annette's hands were clenched in her lap, her face white, and, rousing after a time, she stared ahead, unmindful of the occasional slap of spray which came scudding past the men to drench her face. On they went into the sunset, into the cool of evening.

Basile had called the stroke and barked for speed. Shoulders and backs and arms worked in swift cadence; the canoe leaped and lunged on its way. But it was not enough.

"Faster!" the girl called suddenly, half rising to her knees, throwing a look of appeal upward at the startled Basile. "Faster! He may be yet alive—but dying for want of your speed!"

And the backs bent further, the arms swept harder; they boiled on their way. They grunted under the strain to which she forced and held them.

In the stream, though, they slowed their stroke, groping through darkness, cautious of snags and shallows. A deer splashed from the water before them; ducks rose with a clatter of wings.

"It was beyond the marsh, their lodge." "No. Below. I remember." "Still three bends to go." So, the boatmen, arguing in whispers.

Stars shone above; them, river mists enshrouded them. "Hold! I see!" Basile, standing, could catch the loom of the lodge against ghostly birch trunks.

"Ay! We arrive!" The canoe grated the sand and it was Annette's foot that first trod the bank.

"Rodney?" Her voice, that, pinched and shrill, like the cry of some hurt bird. It made the men mutter. "Rodney . . . Oh, Rodney!" Her call caught in a sob as she went forward, and then she gasped. "Here! Basile!"

She was on her knees beside him, as they pressed about her, palms on his cheeks. "Rodney! Rodney! We have come! Can you not hear? . . . Oh, he lives!"

She sat there, feverishly chafing his wrists as the remains of fire were found, as lusty breaths blew life into the ash-covered coals.

Shaw turned his head and moaned heavily. "We cannot all return with him," Basile mumbled.

"Return? With him?" Annette, hands busy with Shaw's shirt, questioned in contempt. "When the spark in him is duller than the spark was in the fire? You'd carry those coals back to the fort to blow life? No . . . Here! I know. From my aunt, I have learned much."

They pegged a blanket to the ground and secured its other edge to a pole held lashed to two saplings to shelter him; on the opposite side of the fire they raised another blanket to throw the heat against his couch. This much they knew how to do.

Reeks were rolled into the fire to warm at Annette's order, his leggings and moccasins stripped off and hard hands set to chafing the flesh, as cold as the flesh of the dead. But he was not dead; not yet. From time to time he moaned lightly.

Carefully, tenderly, Annette soaked the bloodied shirt from his skin and bared the gaping wound in his back and its companion close to where neck and chest joined.

She straightened, still on her knees. A hand went within her gown, in against her bosom. Her fingers twined and she tugged, ripping out tatters of soft cloth, soft and clean from washing, clean and warm from her clean, warm body.

She pressed them against the wounds, holding them close, calling out to him that she would stay the ebbing life, that she had arrived in time.

For an hour she sat so, Shaw's head in her lap, pressing the cloths that had been her garments against the bleeding wounds. Then, satisfied, she bound them close and turned him to his back.

Heated stones were wrapped in skins and placed at his feet and his sides; the fire was kept going with meticulous steadiness. At first Shaw was restless, mumbling, trying to turn, to shove himself erect, but Annette called out to him, held him close, telling him that to move would start the bleeding afresh. He gave no evidence of hearing, of understanding, but sank back and after a time slept heavily.

Yes, she remembered much from those heedless days when life was life and there was no death; when her old aunt went about, caring and curing, and muttering betimes because a girl's thoughts could only be of light, inconsequential affairs. Another, that must have been; another to be so heedless. It was she, Annette, her true self, who had remembered what, tonight, stood her in such stead!

Two men put out for the fort to fetch a tent and blankets and utensils and the dozen other items which Annette demanded.

And to deliver orders, whispered at length by Basile. When they were gone Basile, turning to her, said: "Ma'm'selle must rest. I will watch."

"Rest?" — startled. "Oh . . . rest," — contemptuously as though rest were the least important item. She did not rest. She moved away into the shadows. She was gone for long and Basile, bending to peer beneath the shelter, saw her on her knees under the birches, face uplifted, lips moving as she begged for aid . . .

CHAPTER X Days, now, of desperate watching beside that pallet about which hovered the shadow of death.

A tent was up, sheltering Rodney, its flaps wide to the fire. Another tent was pitched for the men and the stores but Annette, when she slept, slept on robes beside the trader.

From the moment she stumbled on Rodney there in the darkness, she had assumed command.

She arranged the camp, she announced the routine. Never before had those engages taken orders from a woman; but never, also, had they encountered a woman such as this.

She did not direct them to do this or that without reason. She demonstrated that for such a task she was far better equipped than they, and they obeyed without dissenting look or word.

Old Basile, when not thinking about his unconscious master, pondered deeply in his simple way on this girl. She had come to them from the company fort. From no other place could she have come. (TO BE CONTINUED)

Wise and Otherwise

"No, I'm sorry I can't marry you," said the lovely miss to the ardent suitor. "but I'll always admire your good taste." Sunny smiles are sometimes worn by shady people. Should sportsmen show emotion? Well, after a day's fishing the angler often has a catch in his voice. If half the world doesn't know how the other half lives, it is because they have never traded cooks.

Few American Mirrors Made in 18th Century; the Best Work Was Imported

Save for a few crude examples some of them home-made, there is little indication that mirrors were made in America to any extent before the second half of the Eighteenth century, writes Richmond Huntley in "American Collector."

Even then, though the silvering process might be done here and probably was, the glass itself was imported.

Although American glass houses were early on the scene, they made neither the plate glass nor the thin clear mirror glass of a later day. After the Revolution much French glass was imported; and when in 1812 the unpopular embargo laws interfered, John Doggett, of Roxbury, Mass., gallantly stepped into the breach for his section of the country and quicksilvered native window glass.

But back to the Seventeenth century colonist and his "large-looking glasses" just over in the frail boats of less than 200 tons burden. These same boats had from the beginning brought artisans and craftsmen of all sorts. Many of the cabinetmakers were versatile men, able and willing to do anything for their patrons from taking down and setting up beds, making and repairing furniture, to fashioning the coffins for their last journey. One is not surprised to find men among them who knew how to resilver mirrors, copper wheel-cut a design with diamond dust; or make and carve a frame.

"Looking glasses of all sorts," read an advertisement in the Boston News Letter, April 25, 1715, "old glasses never silvered. Done and sold by William Rundle at the sign of the Cabinet, a looking Glass Shop in Queen Street." Further mirror styles had changed. The glass was still cast in one piece of limited size; but instead of the slightly rectangular picture frame effect of previous years, long frames with two glasses, one above the other, were in vogue. They were often elaborately carved as to frame with a double cyma curve at the top. The upper glass was usually decorated with an engraved design, inaccurately termed "diamond-cut."

Such a mirror was a superior and much coveted wall decoration. In addition to importing them it became the fashion to remodel the old ones.

As the century wore on there were undoubtedly men in America capable of making just as fine mirrors, from silvering and cutting the glass to carving and gilding the frames, as any imported from England or the continent. But the general public, then as now, considered an expert "some one from out of town."

Consequently, those who could afford to still looked across the ocean for the "newest and neatest fashion" in mirrors. As late as 1767 the following wall of protest appeared in the Boston News Letter as part of an advertisement: "Said Whiting does more at present towards manufacturing looking glasses than any one in the province, or perhaps on the Continent, and would be glad of Encouragement enough to think it worth while to live."

Tenacious Glacier The Fox glacier of New Zealand defies the general rule that glaciers never reach out beyond the limits of the snow fields surrounding them. Some of the rivers of ice from the Fox extend down to 670 feet above sea level, winding over wooded slopes to end among tree ferns and other subtropical vegetation.

FARM TOPICS

PASTURE GOOD FOR HENS, DUCKS, PIGS

Turkeys Also Improve When Allowed Greens.

By Prof. D. B. Johnstone-Wallace, Agronomy Dept., Cornell University.—WNU Service.

Pastures have so long been associated with dairy stock that the value of pastures for other kinds of live stock, such as hens, ducks, geese, turkeys, fattening cattle, sheep, horses and pigs is often forgotten.

Young birds depend on something similar to milk in early growth, and the value of milk in their diet in later life is well known. Young cattle, sheep, horses, and pigs depend on milk for their early support and growth.

Perhaps the nearest approach to milk in its chemical composition is young leafy pasture herbage from a good pasture. Such material is not the equivalent of hay and water, but rather the equivalent of a concentrated dairy or poultry feed and water.

Turkey growers should find the use of pasture helpful. When the amount of milk fed to turkeys is considered, it becomes evident that turkey growers are missing a fine opportunity if they do not use pasture herbage instead of milk which is so largely produced from it.

Turkey growers in the West and Midwest have been using pasture for some time and thus have been able to compete successfully with New York turkey growers.

Pre-Cooling Table Fowl

Particularly Important

The pre-cooling and proper handling of poultry killed on the farm or at a packing plant is particularly important because the bloom will be quickly lost if the birds are not pre-cooled without delay and also handled properly, asserts a writer in the Montreal Herald. Most of the farm poultry is killed in the fall when cool temperatures prevail. If proper care is then observed in assembling and packing the birds they can be placed on the market in the best of condition. Wherever poultry is handled, the temperature of the pre-cooling room should be checked frequently with a reliable thermometer. A temperature of 32 degrees Fahrenheit is the best for pre-cooling and handling dressed poultry. Fresh poultry can be handled satisfactorily in a temperature a few degrees higher than 32 but never higher than 40 nor less than 32; if less than 32 the birds will freeze. Every effort should be made to pack the birds quickly and if intended for cold storage they should be frozen without delay. If they are intended for immediate consumption or for sale as fresh birds, they should be held at a temperature of 32 degrees.

Some of the chief essentials in handling dressed poultry are: See that all birds are bled and plucked properly and that the feet and the mouth are washed clean. Birds should be hung up by both feet and allowed to pre-cool for twenty-four hours. The temperatures should be checked frequently with a thermometer. In transporting poultry to assembling or selling points it should be held at the temperature at which it was pre-cooled.

Milk by the Box

Modern milkmen drive rubber-tired wagons or trucks; even the horses wear rubber shoes. Enter now the noiseless milk bottle—rather paper box. The dairy department of the University of Illinois has developed a machine which folds pieces of heavy paper into boxes, coats them with hot paraffin, cools the paraffin, fills the cartons with milk, hermetically seals and staples the top. The process is sanitary, saves space in the refrigerator, and there are no bottles to return or get broken. A case of boxed milk weighs only 27 pounds against a weight of 63 pounds for a case of bottled milk.—Country Home Magazine.

Swap Day in North Carolina

A reader writes from Dallas, N. C., about a near-by town which has set aside one day a month for farmers who have something to swap. Cows, mules, pigs, tools, guns, seed, old cars—anything of value which isn't needed—are brought to town at the appointed time and parked on a vacant lot. A lively time ensues while the bargaining is on, and anyone who has something left over may have it auctioned off, usually at a fair price.

Sand for Litters

Sand is one of the most satisfactory litters for turkeys that growers use, according to a poultryman. If covered with burlap or papers for the first few days until the turkeys are well started on feed, there is very little danger that the turkeys will develop the habit of eating the sand. Sand is safe to use in brooding turkeys because there is very little danger of the birds becoming crop bound or it clogging the intestines.

MASKS

—no longer the badge of the evil-doer

ANOTHER "PICTURE PARADE"

IN THE not-so-dim-and-distant past the mask was accepted as a symbol of evil, the hiding of the face being regarded as sufficient proof that the owner of the face was a person bent on a guilty mission.

In this scientific age, however, the mask is in more general use than at any time in history. In sport, in industry, on the stage, in medicine, aviation and the beauty parlor, the mask has its important niche. Here we present a few pictorial examples submitted by expert cameramen throughout the United States and Europe.

Once the court gallants of Elizabeth's time wore masks when they kept illicit love trysts. Statesmen, too, while engaged in intrigue, resorted to this camouflage. Today a steel worker wears a mask to protect him from the glare and super-heat of an oxy-acetylene torch.

Even animals wear masks in Europe to protect them from gas attacks in warfare. At left, a German dog with its mistress, and above, an American military horse.

Throughout history, the mask has been the symbol of the theater. In ancient Greece, all actors wore masks. Theatrical masks of pure gold have been found in the tombs of Egypt's princesses and pharaohs. At the right is seen a Benda mask, used in the theater of the present day.

This mask is unusually mobile and, expertly used, appears extraordinarily lifelike.

Nowadays masks protect citizens from dust storms (left), guard football players against facial injuries (center) and protect surgeons and their patients from infection. Even hay fever sufferers can get almost complete relief by wearing masks which filter the irritating pollen from the air.

Masks, once used to thwart society may now save it, thanks to science

Lesson for October 24

CHRISTIAN RENEWAL

GOLDEN TEXT—Titus 3:1-11. GOLDEN TEXT—For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men.—Titus 2:11. PRIMARY TOPIC—The Good Shepherd. JUNIOR TOPIC—In His Likeness. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A New Life in Christ. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Renewed Life Through Christ.

The pastoral epistles, of which Titus is one, were written by Paul to his young brethren in the faith who had been called to the ministry of the gospel to instruct them concerning three important matters—(1) Church order and organization, (2) sound doctrine and (3) holy living.

The third chapter of Titus, our lesson for today, deals with the life of believers in Christ in their relation to unbelievers. The great underlying reason why Christians should conduct themselves in meekness and humility toward others is that except for God's grace who hear the name of Christ would be, and indeed were before our regeneration, just like the unbeliever.

We shall best study our lesson, therefore, by considering first of all v. 3 which indicates the lost condition of man by nature, then follow him through the miracle of redeeming grace, vv. 4 to 7, and finally see him as a living testimony in vv. 1, 2, and 8 to 11.

I. Lost—by Nature (v. 3). It is not a pleasant picture that is painted in the graphic words of this verse, but, remember, it is God's picture of the unbeliever. He is said to be "foolish"—that is, irrational and senseless in his course of living. He is "disobedient" to the law of God. He is "deceived," literally "out of the way," misled by Satan. He thinks his pleasures and lusts are serving him, but alas, he is only a slave in bondage to and serving them. Such a life can only result in a man's becoming hateful to his fellowmen. They in turn are hateful to him, and so he hates them. Thus the whole world becomes a hateful place where men are "living in malice and envy."

How we thank God that we need not stop at this point. Man is by nature lost in sin—but he may be II. Saved—by Grace (vv. 4-7). How sweet are these three words in the sinner's ears! Saved by grace, not works, and made heirs of eternal life.

1. "Not by works" (v. 5). Someone has said that man is determined by one means or another to claim salvation by his good works. To do so may flatter the flesh, but it surely finds no support whatever in Scripture. We are to work for Christ because we are saved, and after we are saved, but no man can be saved by works.

2. "By his grace" (v. 7). God shows his unspeakable kindness and love toward man—saving him by grace, through Jesus Christ. Grace has well been defined as "unmerited favor." We deserve but the just condemnation of our sin, and God in his mercy saves us, through faith in his Son.

3. "Made heirs" (v. 7). Saved now? Yes, thank God! Satisfied? Yes, praise his name! But there is more yet to come. We who deserved only God's judgment are now made heirs of an eternal hope. 'Tis indeed no small thing to be a child of God.

Now—we are ready to approach in the right spirit the admonition to live out our salvation as a daily testimony to others.

III. Witnessing, by Holy Living (vv. 1, 2, 8-11).

The young preacher Titus is told to "put them in mind" to be

1. Subject to rulers (v. 1). True patriotism (and we did not spell it "pay-riotism") stands very close to godly living. National leaders would do well to recognize that the decay of our national life will follow the decadence of spiritual life. A man who is right with God will be right with his fellowmen, and a noble and useful citizen.

2. Meek and kind to all men (v. 2). Meekness is not weakness. Gentleness is the attribute of strong men and women.

3. Maintaining good, avoiding evil (vv. 8-11). It is the tendency of man to divorce morals from religion, to profess a faith which does not touch his daily life. Let us affirm "constantly" and "confidently" (as the R. V. has it) that those who believe in God should "be careful to maintain good works"—yes, and at the same time to "avoid" that which is "foolish," contentious, "unprofitable and vain."

Knowledge and Ignorance

The best part of our knowledge is that which teaches us where knowledge leaves off and ignorance begins.—O. W. Holmes.

Justice

Justice is the idea of God, the deal of man, the rule of conduct writ in the nature of mankind.—Theodore Parker.

The Test of Truth

The truth makes free, brings joy, hope, encouragement.

Six new faces appear on the faculty this fall. The new teachers, all feminine, are equally divided between the high school and the grade school.

Among the new high school teachers is Miss Mary Carolyn King, from Wheeling, West Virginia, who you find in Miss Elizabeth Davis' place in the English department. Miss King is a graduate of Albion College.

All history students have become acquainted with their new history teacher and debate coach, Miss Mary Elizabeth Finch, who is a graduate of Indiana University. Miss Finch, who is also from the south, is from North Liberty, Indiana. She is taking the place of Leslie Oldt, now teaching in Traverse City.

Miss Anne Goss, of Ann Arbor, who was teaching commerce in the place of Thelma Westfall, resigned, and her position has been filled by Miss Frances Wheeler of Chicago. Miss Geraldine Palmeter substituted in the Commercial Department until Miss Wheeler's arrival this week.

From the northern peninsula come the other new teachers, Miss Beryl MacDonald, Miss Lela Muck, and Miss Sylvia Niemi. They are all graduates of Northern State Teachers College.

Miss MacDonald is taking the place of Miss Helen Raatikainen in the music and art department. She is from Ironwood where she formerly taught. The other senior officers are Bill Bennett, vice-president; and Mary Lilak, secretary-treasurer. Russell Egert was selected as adviser. He has served in this capacity for several years.

The juniors chose Elaine Collins as vice-president; and Esther Stanek, secretary-treasurer. Miss Mary Elizabeth Finch was chosen as adviser. Both junior and senior classes are very active during the school year. Each class gives a play, and the Senior Prom and J-Hop are the big social events of the school year.

Serving as sophomore class officers are Sonny Bulow, vice-president; and Doris Holland, secretary-treasurer. Doris has served her class in that same office for the past two years. John Smith is class adviser.

Mason Clark is serving his class as president for the second year in succession. Other freshman officers include Roland Woodcock, vice president; and Peggy Drew, secretary-treasurer. Miss Mary Carolyn King was elected class adviser.

Added Attractions for 1937 and 1938
Many new improvements welcomed back the students of '37' and '38'. Those who started school September 13 found the outside appearance of the buildings about the same as usual. But, entering the school, students found that instead of long rows of hooks, shiny new green lockers lined both sides of the halls.

Enough dishes have been ordered for the Home Economics department to serve 150 people. The dishes will be white bordered with red, and the letters E. J. H. S. printed on them in black. A new Frigidairs has already been installed in the cooking room.

For the use of the school a new automatic hectograph and poster machine has been added to the office equipment.

In the science department a new combination electric vacuum pump has been installed for the use of the students in the physics class. More modern lamps are being used in the chemistry classes.

A number of new books are now on the reading list in the library. Most of them are for the elementary grades. In the elementary building itself is a new modern lighting system.

The cement tennis courts have been completed in back of the school for use this spring.

SIDELINE JABBER

After the hard fought battle between East Jordan and Frankfort, all black eyes and sprained fingers were forgiven and forgotten while the fellows sat down to enjoy a potluck supper served by the freshmen on the East Jordan squad. For many years now each team has always given the other a supper before their long journey homeward. Let's hope this fine show of sportsmanship may continue for many years to come.

Herbert Kemp has been kept from practice because of a sprained knee which he received during the Frankfort game. He seems to be recovering rapidly, however, and you can expect to see him back in there in the near future.

pect to see him back in there in the near future.

If it hadn't been for those Harbor Springs girls on the sidelines, the East Jordan team might have gotten somewhere last Saturday a week ago. No wonder there were so many fumbles.

Of course football practice has been continued despite the snow storms and cold weather last week. Signal practice was held in the gym Wednesday but outdoor practice was resumed again Thursday.

Before each home game a group of boys are excused from their classes to make improvements on the football field. These boys with Gayle Saxton in charge deserve much credit of its excellent condition. This year the field is in better condition than it has been for years.

You've probably heard some of the reports going around to the effect that the East Jordan team lacks the "pep" and "fighting spirit". Perhaps they've got some of this coming to them, but you've got to admit that a team that can smash 80 yards down the field to a goal in the last four minutes of play has got something, anyway.

REPORT CARDS

Report cards this year will go out at the close of the six week period instead of the four, as has been the custom in the past. This plan is both for the high school and junior high school classes. It will divide the school year into six equal periods. This plan has proved successful in many other schools. The first report cards will be handed out Wednesday, October 27.

DEBATE TRIP

The newly organized debate teams with Miss Mary Elizabeth Finch, coach, are attending the Regional Practice Debate tournament at Pellston this afternoon and evening. Practice debates will be held at the afternoon meeting. The evening's program will consist of an open forum discussion of the debate proposition—Resolved: That the several states adopt the unicameral form of legislature. Miss Finch will act as judge at some of the debates.

The students attending from East Jordan include Irene Brintnall, Ruth Blate, Peggy Drew, Benny Clark, Tom Joyn, Douglas Johnson and Desmond Johnson.

CHATTER

Did you happen to notice one fine September morning the beaming smile on the physiognomy (better add his word to your vocabulary lists, freshman and sophomore English students) of one Mr. Harry Jankoviak, and notice his attempt to pass cigars to faculty members? All was occasioned by the arrival of baby Jon at the Jankoviak home. The future basketball star and manual training teacher arrived September 20, and is doing fine, thank you.

Members of the student body wish to congratulate you, Mr. and Mrs. Jankoviak!

What is this rumor we hear of an East Jordan High School Pep Club? According to advance information it is going to be "really something."

Have you noticed the fun the faculty members are having running the new Ditto machine in the office? And WE have fun taking the resulting tests and drills.

We wish to take this opportunity to welcome our new commercial teacher, Miss Frances Wheeler, of Chicago, Illinois.

How many miles have you put on your new Pontiac, Miss Finch, since you've been in East Jordan?

That pep meeting last Friday before the Mancelona game was what we would call "short and sweet." Let's have more of them.

When are we going to have a fire drill? The new teachers would like to hear the bell ring four times!
