Sportsman's Club Rifle Pit Nearing Completion

The Jordan River Sportsman's Club, under the direction of G. E. Warren, executive officer, are preparing a modern rifle range on the old Government Range property.

This range, when completed, will be equipped for hi-power rifle, small-bore rifle, revolver, skeet and trap shooting. Work is going forward at present on the hi-power rifle pit which must be in readiness for the annual Turkey Shoot to be held Nov. 11th. Stub Bowman, Teddy Kotowich and George Ferris (a member of the Range committee) are assisting Mr. Warren in the completion of the pit, installation of telephone lines, erection of firing points, targets, butts, etc.

Women's Health Classes Continued Next Week

Dr. Block's women's health classes will meet next week at the following places for the fourth lecture in the series on maternal and child health programs sponsored by the Michigan Department of Health. The topic this week is "The Care and Training of Babies and Your Children." The locations in this district will be:

Tuesday, Nov. 2nd, 3:30 p. m. — East Jordan Community Building.

Wednesday, Nov. 3rd, 3:30 p. m. — Ironton, Mrs. Ross Alexander's Home.

Dr. Block is an exceptionally able and interesting speaker. Her health lectures provide an intelligent educational advantage in the field of public health.

The first year of a baby's life is the most important as far as his future health and development are concerned, declare public health authorities. That is one reason why the next meeting of the women's health class is significant, for Dr. Block of the Michigan Department of Health will discuss the most recent methods recommended for the "Care and Training of Babies and Young Children."

The average baby at birth weighs about seven pounds and measures 20 or 21 inches in length. By the end of the first year the healthy baby should have tripled this weight. This development of the baby, his early habits, and his feeding will be discussed by Dr. Block at the next meeting of the free health class.

Recommendations For Prospective Brides and Grooms

The Michigan Department of Health suggests that prospective brides and grooms should bear in mind the following points regarding the new antenatal physical examination law which becomes effective this Friday:

1. Both the bride and the groom must go to a licensed physician withing 15 days previous to applying for a marriage license to have the required physical examination.

2. It is not necessary to go to the county clerk first, for the required medical certificates may be obtained only from a physician.

Applicants should ordinarily consult the physician early in the 15 day period to save themselves possible embarrassment in keeping a definite wedding date.

4. The applicant should allow time for two visits to his physician, one for the clinical examination and the blood specimen to be taken, and one to obtain the medical certificate after the physician has received the laboratory report.

5. Reports on laboratory examinations may take from one to three days, and in exceptional instances may be delayed.

6. The applicant must sign the certificate in the presence of the examining physician. It is then ready to be presented to the county clerk.

7. The medical certificates of both the bride and the groom must be presented to the clerk of the county wherein one of the parties to the proposed marriage resides before a marriage license application may be made.

8. The usual five day period must lapse after application for license has been made. Once the license has been issued, it may be used at any time.

9. The law does not specify the fee which the physician shall charge for his services. Private registered laboratories will also charge a fee for their services. Laboratory tests performed by the Michigan Department of Health are free of charge.

Homecoming Day In E. J.

ANNUAL SCHOOL EVENT NEXT FRIDAY, NOV. 5th

Plans are now under way for another successful Home-Coming Day at East Jordan. The merchants have agreed to close their stores on the afternoon of the game. The school will close at 2:30 p. m. in order to get the game started early enough. All classes of the High School along with the newly formed "Peep" Club will have charge of arrangements for the day. This occasion is always the big day of the fall school calendar, both athletically and socially. The local chapter of the Future Farmers of America will have charge of the evening festivities and the big dinner and dance will be their share of the Homecoming program. Souvenir programs will be taken care of by the Freshman class through the willing co-operation of the merchants of the town. It is their contributions that makes it possible to take care of expenses of Home-Coming Day.

A big pep meeting will be held at 11:15 a. m. in the auditorium and all people of East Jordan are cordially invited to participate in the rousing send off of the football team for their big game. Home-Coming games are always important games to win.

This year our opponents will be Gaylord, one of East Jordan's most important rivals. Gaylord teams are always known for their "scrappiness" and ability to fight to the finish. So the East Jordan fans are sure of a real tussle when East Jordan and Gaylord meet.

Memories go back to 1930 when Gaylord gave East Jordan one of her worst defeats 53 - 0. Also in 1931 when the only touchdown scored against East Jordan was made by Gaylord and enough to beat her 7 to 6. Rivalry is very keen and a real fight can be expected on Friday, November 5.

The merchants of East Jordan are also being solicited to decorate their windows for the occasion and the girls of the Sophomore class, along with the girls of the Art Club and Home Economics Department will be glad to help them.

Anyone having athletic pictures of the football teams of the past and kind enough to lend them to merchants for their windows for the big week, will be appreciated.

The school is open for suggestions in how to make Home-Coming in East Jordan a gala affair. Please pass your ideas on to the committee of Miss MacDonald, Mr. Wade and Mr. Roberts.

This is the time now to get the stationary and write to your friends inviting them to come up to East Jordan for the big week-end.

The East Jordan Band which has the reputation of one of Northern Michigan's finest bands, will be out en-masse in uniforms for the occasion.

For the students, plans are under way for a big snake dance and huge bonfire and song fest back of the school house on Thursday night.

Remember — Friday, November 5th is Home-Coming Day!!!

The only way to distinguish good and bad advice is to use it.

Talk is cheap. Otherwise there wouldn't be so much of it sent out over the radio.

James Zitka, Sr., was born in Bohemia January 17, 1866 and died October 22, 1937, in his 71st year. At the age of two he came to this country with his parents living at Traverse City for about two years. Then they settled on a farm about eight miles south east of East Jordan where he was brought up.

At the age of 23 Mr. Zitka bought 40 acres of timberland which he cleared into a farm and where he lived the remainder of his life.

At the age of 24 he was married to Miss Fannie Josifek, and to this union fourteen children were born, six of whom are living. He is survived by his wife and four sons and two daughters, one brother and one sister. The funeral service was held at the home on Monday morning, conducted by Rev. C. W. Sidebotham.

It's Ladies Week at the Alibi Gun Club from Nov. 1st to 7th and in order to interest the ladies in the sport of shooting, inducements are offered that week in the way of prizes and membership cards. It is not necessary for a lady to be adept in marksmanship or hunting to enjoy the sport. Mr. Warren, the manager, will be present every day and will be glad to instruct anyone in the handling of firearms.

Fast Title Service Provided By Case

Time required to secure automobile titles from the Department of State has been shortened; care in making applications will make it still shorter, Leon D. Case, Secretary of State points out.

While the daily peak of from 8,000 to 9,000 titles mailed out to applicants, has passed for this year, the handling of the current volume of from 2,000 to 3,000 titles daily, has been greatly expedited by a change in routing and bookkeeping procedure within the Department.

In every case when correct applications for title are received in Lansing, titles are mailed out that same day. Approximately 20 percent of the applications are returned, however, for correction. The most frequent defect is failure of the applicant for title of a used car, to enclose the $1 fee for transfer of the plates.

This fee is imposed by law; no titles will be transferred until plates also are re-registered in the names of the new owners of the cars involved, Case has directed. In previous years, this collection was at times deferred until the new owner applied for his succeeding year's license plate. Case proceeds on the theory, however, that failure to transfer plates to the new owner's name, permits incorrect identification of the car until such transfer is made.

Big Meeting Set For PCA Members And Their Wives

Snow blocked roads will not prevent stockholders of the Gaylord Production Credit association from attending the big special stockholders' meeting to be held at Gaylord on November 9, plans for which were announced this week by Secretary-Treasurer A. J. Townsend.

Annual stockholders' meetings have been held in the past in the winter and many associations have found the roads impassable at that time of year. At conferences held last summer directors voted overwhelmingly in favor of having stockholders' sessions in the fall after the busy season is over.

This meeting is for the purpose of showing the members and their wives a record of the business done in 1937. It will begin at 11 a. m. and be concluded early enough so everyone can get home in time to attend to the evening chores.

There will be a good program of entertainment and short talks, and a chance to ask questions will be afforded the members in connection with 4 charts that will reveal the growth, financial condition and income and expense for the period from January 1 to September 30.

The association includes Crawford, Oscoda, Alpena, Montmorency, Osego, Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Cheboygan counties. It now has 693 members and has loaned them $187,000 in this 9-months period for live-stock, dairying, and general farm purposes.

The members now own $13,000 in capital stock, 14 per cent of the total capital, the rest of the capital being subscribed by the Production Credit Corporation of St. Paul, the supervising organization.

Annual Dinner and Dance of FFA Next Friday, Nov. 5

The annual dinner and dance sponsored by the local chapter of Future Farmers of America will be held at the High School building Friday, November 5, following the homecoming game between Gaylord and East Jordan.

In previous years these have been the finest parties and have had the largest attendance of any held during the year and elaborate plans now under way indicate that this will be better than any previously held.

Tickets for only 250 dinners are being printed. When those tickets are sold no one else will be allowed to enter, so those who do have tickets will be assured a good dinner. An excellent orchestra for the dance will be provided.

Don't Forget! The number of tickets is limited. If you want a dinner, get your ticket early.

Dinner will be served from 6:00 to 8:00 p. m. The dance will begin at 9:00 and continue until 12:00 p. m.

Homemakers' Corner

Home Economics Specialists Michigan State College

EXTENSION WORK PROTECTS HEALTH

Better methods of feeding, families and better usage of Michigan grown foods are results counted in thousands of farm homes in the state as a result of home economics extension work in the past year.

As a new year starts with additional rural women enrolled in extension projects for communities, a summary of last year's results in food facts alone indicates the scope of the work.

More than 3,500 women report that they now know better vegetable cooking methods. Men often frown upon salads. Yet Michigan vegetables and fruits can supply many combinations for salads that help protect health. In this part of the campaign the summary shows 1,616 families have learned to like raw foods. Carrot sticks, cabbage, apples and tomatoes are the favorites.

Even that scoffed at vegetable, spinach, was included in one lesson. An uncovered kettleful was cooked for a short time without water other than the drops that cling after washing. The proof of this lesson was in the attractive green color and in the tenderness.

Undernourished children or grown-ups without good health often can blame improper food selection rather than lack of sufficient quantity of food. Better use of Michigan grown foods including fruits, vegetables, milk and meat, can add to better health.

Roberta Hershey, nutritionist at Michigan State College, which is the center of the state-federal extension work in the state, advocates the use of Michigan grown foods. Variety leads to good appetites, she says. Another reason is that most farm families in this state can grow nearly all foods necessary for a well balanced diet.

2 1/4 Acres Cleared In Three Hours By Big Caterpillar

The land clearing demonstration held last week Thursday proved beyond a doubt that the latest methods are far ahead of the old systems. A person can hardly believe that big stumps could be removed as easily as this 13 ton caterpillar did the job.

Even in the case of green elm stumps, this machine did the job. Of course it took a few minutes to remove the stump and in many cases the side roots had to be sheared off, but apparently no job was impossible for this latest equipment.

Another important consideration is the fact that an acre of stumps can be cleared very inexpensively. In the upper peninsula several counties have purchased this machinery to rent out to the farmers at $5 an hour. This means that under ordinary conditions an acre of land can be cleared for from $5 to $10 an acre.

Over 50 per cent of those in attendance commented very favorably on the desirability of having one of these machines. While there is no need for any big land clearing program, many farmers have two or three acres that they want to clear up to straighten out fields, or for various reasons. If there are enough people interested something may be done to have one of these big caterpillars available to rent out at $5 an hour. Talk with someone who saw this demonstration so that you will know first hand just what can be done.

B. C. Mellenkamp, County Agr'l Agent.

Charlevoix Defeats Crimsons

FOOTBALL FANS WATCHING BOYNE CITY'S WRECKING MACHINE

Coach Abe Cohn's Crimson Wave came in contact with their first defeat of the season Saturday, as they were washed out 26 to 0 by Coach Kipke's Red Raiders at Charlevoix. Game conditions were very poor, the field being muddy and a regular snow squall prevailing throughout the entire encounter.

The Charlevoix men opened up with a varied passing attack early in the second period and as the half ended the Red and White were out in front by a comfortable 19 point margin. The Charlevoix lads handled the ball as if it were a piece of hot iron Saturday, as they connected with long gains through their aerial bombardment. They worked forward and lateral passes alike, keeping the locals constantly in trouble. Plenty of credit goes to a young lad, Gallagher, who performed with brilliance, Saturday, for a tackled blocked, ran, threw and caught passes with equal ability. This lad has all the qualities of a fine college prospect. The Red and White tallied their marker in the fourth period as a result of a blocked punt.

The Crimsons will be at home, Saturday, when they will lock horns with a big and powerful Rogers City eleven at the West Side football field at 2:00 p. m.

The cry of Northern Michigan football circles is "Who will stop the Boyne City Big Reds?" These boys treat foes, class B and C alike, as they are going through a very successful drive which began last season. Last season they went through their scheduled 8 games winning 7, while tying 1, and were unscored upon. And as if that wasn't enough they have already beaten Rogers City 7 to 0, Potosky 31 to 0, Charlevoix 33 to 0, Harbor Springs 40 to 0, and to top that off Saturday they ran wild over St. Ignace winning 72 to 0. All eyes are turning to the remaining Boyne schedule which includes Gaylord, Cheboygan, and East Jordan. Will any team score on them? This powerful eleven is led by two seniors in Captain Kanipe and Hausler, who carry the burden of the offensive attack. Just to refresh your minds of the last time a Boyne team has been scored upon, a member of The Champion-Crimson Wave of '35" turned the trick. George Walton scored the final 7 points to clinch the Championship for the Crimson Wave, and in thirteen games since, no one has yet tumbled the ball over the final barrier.

LANDON RALLIES G. O. P. Calls on the Republicans to Put Curb on Roosevelt's Demands for Increased Power

Pack train starting the long trek down the mountainside in the Uinta range, Utah, with the bodies of 19 persons who met sudden death when a United Lines airliner from Chicago to the West Coast crashed in a storm. The bodies and baggage of the victims can be seen in the foreground. In the background lies the twisted plane wreckage.

Landon Calls on G.O.P.

ALF M. LANDON came to the surface in a radio address to 17,000,000 Americans who voted for him in the last election, and especially to the Republican party as a whole. He said he had called this "radio meeting" to suggest ways and means by which "we, the minority party," can be of outstanding service to the country.

The Kansan declared President Roosevelt had failed as an administrator, had failed to follow the Constitution, and now was demanding increased power.

"What he really needs is less power," Mr. Landon asserted, "a position that will force him to take the advice and counsel of other men of both parties—men whose hearts also are in the right place, but men who have had more experience and who know more about the practical application of government than he does."

It is up to the Republicans, he said, to curb Mr. Roosevelt in his demands. He also discussed the war talk prevalent after the President's Chicago speech and said: "We are faced with a situation where he may make a mistake that would indeed be tragic, that might lead to war. Close observers have increasing doubt if he thought his recent declaration through to its logical conclusion."

In conclusion Mr. Landon said: "We have had a New Deal. Now what we most need in America is a new yardstick—a yardstick to measure the ability and the accomplishments, as well as the good intentions, of public officials."

"It is time to put a solid foundation of workable legislation under the air castles which the President forever is blowing."

"It is time to realize that we must apply the resources of the mind if we are to make the wishes of the heart come true."

Farmers Warned on Loans

EDWARD A. O'NEAL, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, headed a group of farm leaders who called on the President for the purpose of asking loans of 60 cents a bushel on corn to improve prices. It was understood Mr. Roosevelt warned that crop loans should not be pushed so high that the drain on federal revenues would become too heavy; and that he intimated that the budget would not permit great extension of loans at this time.

However, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace subsequently told a press conference a government loan on this year's large corn crop "should be exceedingly desirable." He declined to say what loan rate he favored, but conceded that a corn loan of about 46 cents a bushel would be comparable to the government's 9 cents a pound loan on this year's cotton crop.

Credit System Praised

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, speaking at the opening of the new Federal Reserve building in Washington, gave full praise to the federal reserve system as a most important part of the government's plans for economic stability and security. He said disastrous depressions and booms could be avoided only by the development of the credit and monetary machinery of the nation.

That machinery, he continued, "must be steadily perfected and coordinated with all other instruments of government to promote the most productive utilization of our human and material resources. Only in that way can we hope to achieve and maintain an enduring prosperity, free from the disastrous extremes of booms and depressions. Only in that way can our economic system and our democratic institutions endure."

Mr. Roosevelt avoided mention of the jittery condition of the stock markets, but before delivering his address he had seen Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and learned that the market was recovering, due to heavy buying by bargain hunters and perhaps to recovery of confidence by investors.

Among the many notable persons on the platform with the President was Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, who fathered the federal reserve system during the Wilson administration. The veteran senator was loudly cheered.

Roper Has a Program

DANIEL C. ROPER, secretary of commerce, also made a speech in Washington, under the auspices of the Rotary club. His subject was the economic relationships of the nations of the western hemisphere, and he proposed this four-point program which he believed would benefit the entire world:

1. United action throughout the Americas for the publication of verified facts about every country, stressing constructive events and objectives rather than prejudice, crimes, and disrupting events.

2. The introduction into the educational system of every country study of other languages so that each country would be better prepared in attitude and knowledge to help develop its own country. "This means," he said, "that no country will exploit the resources of another country."

3. Encourage tourist travel among all the Americas by truthful advertising and better travel facilities.

4. Broader studies by the countries in the western hemisphere of each other's economic and social needs in the light of the individual country.

New Budget Figures

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT found his estimate of $418,000,000 as the probable deficit for 1938 fiscal year was much too low. So he gave out new budget figures putting the probable deficit at nearly 700 millions. And it admittedly will be much greater unless the executive and congress achieve very considerable economies.

Felix Warburg Dies

FELIX M. WARBURG of New York, one of the country's foremost financiers and philanthropists, died at his home at the age of sixty-seven. He was senior partner of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., international bankers. Between 1920 and 1930 he gave at least ten million dollars to various philanthropies, and for years he was active in the efforts to aid the Jews in Palestine and those driven from Germany by the Nazis.

Airliner Wrecked; 19 Dead

SMASHING against Hayden peak, in the Uinta mountains of Utah, a big transcontinental airliner of the United Air Lines was totally wrecked and its passengers and crew, numbering 19 persons, were killed. The debris was sighted by scout planes some 10,000 feet up the mountainside, but efforts of rescue parties to reach the scene were hampered by heavy snow.

Bela Kun Seized

ACCORDING to an official communist publication in Moscow, Bela Kun, Hungarian who has stirred up lots of trouble in the past, has been arrested by the Russians and charged with "Trotskyist" activities, which usually means the death penalty. Kun was dictator of Hungary during the short-lived communist republic after the conclusion of the World war.

Rebels Take Gijon

GREAT BRITAIN, France and Italy—with Germany on the sidelines—were still trying to come to agreement for the removal of volunteers from Spain, but Generalissimo Franco wasn't waiting. His forces in northwest Spain pushed forward to surround Gijon, last important loyalist seaport in that area, and insurgent warships blocked escape by way of the sea. The commanders of the defending loyalist troops realized their predicament and surrendered the city unconditionally. The place was crowded with 130,000 half-starved refugees. The loyalists still were in possession of some strategic points in that sector.

Occupation by the Italians and Germans of two island groups off the coasts of Spain was reported in Paris newspapers.

It was alleged that the Italians had occupied the Columbretes islands only 40 miles off the east Mediterranean coast and had established a submarine base there. Normally the islands are occupied only by members of a lighthouse crew.

Germans were alleged to have occupied Alboran island, 50 miles off the south Mediterranean coast and directly in the path of all shipping to and from Gibraltar. The Germans were said to have established a submarine base on the island, likewise used principally heretofore as a lighthouse station.

Davis Sent to Brussels

NORMAN H. DAVIS is on his way to Brussels, Belgium, as head of the American delegation to a conference of the signatories of the nine-power treaty which, the optimists hope, will put an end to the warfare between Japan and China. More realistic observers of the course of events have no such expectation, for the pact has no "teeth" and the conferees can do little except talk.

Norman H. Davis

Associated with Mr. Davis, the administration's roving ambassador, are Dr. Stanley K. Hornbeck and Pierrepont Moffat as advisers. Robert T. Pell is the press officer and C. E. Bohlen is secretary of the delegation.

Before sailing for Europe the delegates received instructions from President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull, but these were not revealed to the public.

The invitation to the conference was issued by the Belgian government "at the request of the British government and with the approval of the government of the United States." China and Japan are both signatories to the treaty. The former accepted the invitation to the Brussels meeting, but it was believed Japan would not be represented there. Tokyo has maintained the policy that the Sino-Japanese troubles must be settled without the intervention of other nations.

Russians in West China

TOKYO newspapers stated that 15 Soviet Russian planes, co-operating with Soviet land forces, had bombed Kashgar, Yarkand, Karghalik, Khotan, Gumer, and other cities of Sinkiang, westernmost province of China, in a battle against Mohammedans. The troops were said to have occupied several of the cities.

Mine Disaster

COAL gas exploded in the Mulga mine in Alabama 12 miles from Birmingham, and the lives of 33 miners were snuffed out. Five hundred men were at work in the mine at the time, but fortunately the explosion was four miles from the entrance. The blast was the first since the operation of the mine was taken over by the Woodward Iron company, large producers of merchant iron in Birmingham. However, 56 men had been killed at Mulga in former years.

"Lindy" Still American

RUMORS that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was planning to become a British subject seem to be false, for he has just accepted a five year renewal of his commission in the United States army air corps. Army officers expressed the belief privately he would not have renewed his air corps tie if he intended changing his allegiance. The airman has retained his military status since his graduation in 1925 from the air corps flying school at Kelly field, Texas.

Palestine Terrorism

BRITISH military authorities took stern measures to suppress the violence in Palestine, but apparently without success. The Arabs continued their attacks on the Jewish people and buildings and in Jerusalem began using bombs.

Gen. A. P. Wavell, commander of the 10,000 British troops in Palestine, ordered the homes of Arab terrorists burned, following the destruction of Kalandia airport, near Lydda, with an estimated loss of $50,000.

Sixty persons were arrested for breaking the twenty-four hour curfew which amounts to virtual martial law.

If this sort of thing keeps up, Great Britain is likely to make Palestine a crown colony instead of a mandate.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Relief for Aliens.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—If an American were dependent on public charity in any continental country, he'd be out of luck and out of that country, too, as quickly as they could him out.

If, in addition, he openly attacked the government of that country, he'd still be out of luck because he'd be in jail.

Hundreds of thousands of aliens are on relief here. Many of them slipped across the borders through leaks in our immigration laws—and brought their folks with them, also to be cared for at the taxpayers' expense. Some are avowed enemies of our form of government.

Steps to oust such parasites are balked on the ground that to do so would work hardships on their families. You could say the same thing for bedbugs.

We're starting to register these non-residents. But it's to be a "voluntary" registration, not compulsory. Any person in the audience, besides Madame Perkins, who believes the undesirables will come a-running to list themselves, and risk deportation thereby, kindly raise the right hand.

Champion Crooks.

TRUST California to turn up with a world's champion of something. They arrested a man on suspicion of burglary and forgery and organizing a training school for juvenile criminals and first one little thing and then another.

Surely that would seem to be career enough, but this party had additional claims to recognition. He admitted he had been sentenced to forty-nine terms in various jails and penitentiaries, which in itself would seem to constitute an international record, and said that in forty-three of these cases he had been paroled. He didn't explain how the big hearted parole boards failed to turn him loose before he finished those remaining six sentences.

It must be profound regret to the boys in Alcatraz and other bid-a-wee homes conducted by the federal government that, owing to the cruel refusal of Uncle Sam to go into the paroling business on a wholesale basis, none of them, however ambitious, has a chance to equal this splendid showing.

The honor remains where properly it belongs, constituting a magnificent tribute to the beautiful mush-headed theory that a state's prison should be a clearing house and not a strong-box with a time-lock on it.

Nazi Influence.

I'VE been talking with a friend just back from Germany. In old days, I liked Germany as a land flowing with gemuetlich and good beer and a superior line of liverwurst. I wonder whether I'd like it so well now. Because this fellow says every minute everybody must give the Nazi salute and say, "Heil, Hitler!" If a citizen wants his eggs fried, he says first to the wuiter, "Heil, Hitler!" If he wants 'em turned over, he says it twice—once for each egg.

There's a swastika flag flying over practically every house. Absence of a swastika flag signifies that the folks who used to live there are now in the hoosegow for failing to fly same.

My friend may have exaggerated somewhat, but, I think, not much, because while talking we came abreast of a Leidekrantz cheese in a delicatessen store window and involuntarily he said, "Heil, Hitler!"

Nominating Barkley.

CANVASSES show Senate Leader Alben Barkley gaining as a possible Democratic nominee in 1940.

It's high time we had somebody from Paducah for President. For a hundred and fifty-odd years this republic has fooled along without one of our local boys sitting up there in the White House, writing messages to congress condemning the use of sugar in cornbread and proclaiming that, if any traitor dares to pull down fried catfish, shoot him on the spot.

With Alben on the job, we'd not only have homegrown statesmanship in job lots, but silver-throated oratory, which, by comparison, would make Patrick Henry seem like a tongue-tied man suffering from chapped lips. For Al can talk an hour and never use the same word twice or the letter "r" once.

Nominate Barkley and that night there won't be a dry throat in McCracken county. Elect Barkley and—well, I always did think I'd make a middling fair Secretary of the Interior; certainly nobody could botch up the Indian bureau worse than it is.

Washington Digest National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart

National Press Building

Washington, D. C.

Washington.—There is much talk among the Republicans, both for and against, concerning the proposal to hold a general party conference early next year. The plan projected would bring together delegates from every state just the same as the convention that is held every four years for nominating the presidential and vice presidential candidates and formulation of party policies through adoption of a campaign platform.

G. O. P. Conference

The question has many angles and in consequence many pros and cons already have been advanced. In natural consequence also, some very well-known Republicans have taken definite decisions, either for or against the plan which has the approval of men like John Hamilton, chairman of the Republican national committee, and former President Herbert Hoover. Some very splendid men find themselves honestly in opposition and have said so in unequivocal terms.

The issue will be fought out at a meeting of the national committee early in November and probably there will be such a convention early in 1938. As I have said, there is argument on both sides but after discussing the situation with many Republicans, it appears to me that the advantages outweigh the disadvantages. I say this from the standpoint of the country at large. Many times in these columns, I have expressed the conviction that a strong minority party, whether that party be Republican or Democratic, is a very healthy condition for the country as a whole. A political party with too great a majority is likely to run away with itself and do many unsound things. We have had proof of this during the Roosevelt administration and we had proof of it during the administrations of the late President Harding and President Coolidge when Republicans had too many members of the house and the senate and the Democratic minority was impotent. I cannot speak from a Republican standpoint any more than I can speak from a Democratic standpoint. Nevertheless, from the position I attempt to follow as an observer of national affairs and long range national policies, it does seem that the Republicans ought to quit fighting among themselves and get together to oppose that which the present minority in this country finds objectionable in President Roosevelt's policies. They ought to determine on a set of principles and stick to them. It is their obligation and if they fail to fulfill that obligation, it seems to me they had best disband, get rid of those who attempt to be leaders in the Republican party and let somebody else organize the minority faction in the United States—and it is to be remembered that even in the last election there were almost 16,000,000 Republican voters.

In advocating this action, I am not motivated as much by my belief in and support of some of Mr. Roosevelt's policies as I am in my disagreement with others of the program to which the New Dealer has adhered. A strong and vocal minority will insure the retention of rights and powers in the hands of the people where they belong and at the same time it will compel Democrats to stick together in carrying out sound policies proposed by the President. That latter statement may sound paradoxical. I think it is not. I make the statement because I know how many times the gigantic Democratic majority in congress has fought over trivialities and because I know how many times sincere opposition to unsound policies has met with defeat without the country knowing the reasons for that opposition.

Taken all in all, therefore, I believe it is an obligation upon me as an observer of national affairs to declare in favor of a movement by the minority party that will result in a concentration of its power for the good of the nation. And what, one may ask, should be the creed of the minority party next year? Well, as I see the picture, the Republican party must be the conservative party in the United States. President Roosevelt and his New Dealers cannot avoid being the radical party. I have said this many times in these columns and it is more evident now even than when I reported upon the situation earlier. The conservatives can and should have a voice in their government even if it is only an opposition voice that constitutes a balance-wheel.

Proceeding from that premise, therefore, there can be little argument that the principles which the Republicans advocate should be drawn from principles of governmental policies that have proved sound. That is to say, the Republicans cannot afford to attack Mr.

Roosevelt on everything he has done, but they can tear him politically limb from limb with constructive proposals to take the place of those things he has done which represent discouragement, deceit and disaster to the country's economic life.

There will be no gain for the Republicans in 1938 elections if they attempt to ride two or three different horses as they did in 1936. For example, they cannot do as Candidate Landon did, to wit, call for a balanced budget in one speech and advocate being Santa Claus in another; they cannot blow hot and cold, and, therefore, they must be either conservative or radical.

It seems to me the Republicans can probably plan for an immediate balancing of the national budget. In that connection, they can with justification demand curtailment, if not entire elimination, of many governmental functions inaugurated under the New Deal. They can offer constructively a proposal to legislate out of existence some 20 or 30 federal agencies for which there never has been and is not now any excuse for their existence.

Another question that is crying for attention is the huge national debt, now at $37,000,000,000, the highest in history. That debt must be reorganized and placed on a basis that will permit gradual liquidation of it. The Roosevelt administration has done nothing regarding the debt except to build it higher and higher.

National Debt

If the Republican party wants to do a constructive job it ought to set to work to examine all of the statutes enacted by congress in the last ten or twelve years and especially those enacted in the haste of the emergency with a view to repealing of many of them. Some can and should be rewritten to make them workable. Those statutes placed on the books by the Roosevelt administration constitute outstanding evidence of the lack of opposition. We all know many of those bills were written in executive departments and sent to congress with instructions to pass them unchanged. Bad legislation has resulted many times and a checkup surely is indicated.

As regards legislation now on the statute books, it seems to me we will never have sound prosperity until certain laws that increase production costs are eliminated. I mean by this that there are numerous laws which have the effect of widening the spread between the price of the raw materials and the price of the manufactured products. Legislation of this kind is bound to force down the prices paid to the producers and, in my opinion, the results are beginning to be reflected on products of the farm. Probably the most delicate question with which the Republicans are confronted relates to wages and hours of labor. Business interests have been shortsighted. Too many times employers have overworked their employees and have shown but little consideration for the rights of labor. The result is that labor is demanding consideration in the shape of protection at the hands of its national government and the Republicans, whether they desire to or not, must take a stand.

Among other principles upon which I think the Republicans as the conservative party surely can agree is that there is too much government in business. The government itself is engaged in many lines of commerce and industry and it is breaking down private enterprises in countless ways. I regard the function of government as a thing to be confined to matters and enterprises which individuals cannot do as individuals. We might use the postal service as an example. No one would be so silly as to say that the postal service could be operated satisfactorily in any other way than as an agency of the federal government. In contradistinction to the postal service, however, we can point to such things as the building of model homes for private citizens. I think the government has no business at all in that field. This is so, first, because of the tremendous waste accompanying any governmental operation and, second, for the reason that private persons who are holders of funds whether the amount is great or small recognize real estate mortgages as sound investments. I need not mention the red tape or the politics that can choke up any such thing as a government housing development.

I could go on and mention numerous other general principles upon which there can be honest differences of opinion. It is upon these questions where differences are honest and not created for political reasons that the Republican party should express itself. It ought to do this if it is going to be representative of opposition sentiment.

FIRST OF 'TUGWELLTOWNS' IS BORN

Families Start Moving Into 885 Houses of Model Community Built by Resettlement Administration at Greenbelt, Md.

Greenbelt, Md., as seen from the air. Here the first of Tugwell's visions may be realized.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

ONE of Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell's principal Utopias is now open for business, and some say it's good and some say it's bad. At any rate, the first families have moved into Greenbelt, Md., "model town" of the resettlement administration formerly headed by Tugwell, and perhaps we shall one day see just how effective the co-operative, slumless community can be.

A year ago this time Greenbelt was the target of much criticism concerning high costs, waste and venture of the federal government into "collectivism," "communism," and other horrible social and economic isms which, during the heated days of the last presidential campaign, were grouped under one general head—"Tugwellism." Friends of the project usually had defenses for these charges; what you believe is probably greatly influenced by the trend of your politics. The important thing today is that the experiment is definitely under way, and is soon to be followed by counterparts in other sections of the nation.

Greenbelt, with its 885 housing units, rests on a crescent-shaped plateau, 12 miles outside Washington, D. C. Standing sentinel over the town is a belt of green trees from which it gets its name. Mirroring it is an artificial lake of some 25 acres.

Here 885 families, hand-picked to give the project the greatest chance of success, will find homes at rents varying from $18 to $41 a month. Their local government will be run by an ultra-modern city manager, under the first city manager charter to be granted by the state of Maryland. All the community's business will be directed and conducted by a Rochdale co-operative, which was sponsored by the late Edward A. Filene, Boston merchant. Settlers who buy shares in the "consumer distribution corporation" will receive rebates at all the stores in the community.

Inhabitants Carefully Selected.

It is not easy for a family to be admitted to life in Greenbelt. The resettlement administration has taken every precaution in selecting the tenants and, purportedly, political "pull" doesn't mean a thing. First, all persons with incomes of $1,000 to $2,100, who were interested, were asked to register with RA, giving name, residence, income and other information; hundreds were dropped immediately on the basis of this preliminary data. Those whose applications survived were asked for more detailed information about themselves, and this was checked by officials. The candidates were then visited in their homes, their character and credit ratings investigated and their references verified. The final selections were made on the basis of a summary of all these findings. If Greenbelt is to succeed, the durability of its buildings must be matched by the integrity and sincerity of its inhabitants.

These tenants will be living in the most completely planned community in America. Where they may have lived in city slums, with poor environment for their children, they are now set down in the rolling green hills of Maryland, where fresh air is plentiful, where there is a good school, where their budgets will allow them to live as well as their much wealthier city neighbors.

Greenbelt's citizens can go to and from work in the city, if they like, by bus. At home in the evening after the day's labors they can putter around in a garden. They will have a real share in the community life, the opportunity to enjoy lake sports and free range of several thousand beautiful acres of town land.

The houses are white with ensemble grouping and harmonizing architecture. The drive and walks are flanked with trees, most of them still young. There are as few traffic hazards as possible, with every imaginable precaution for safety having been taken. All highways are crossed by means of underpasses, so that the children who attend the two schools will not find it necessary to watch out for automobiles.

Queer at first do Greenbelt's houses appear to the uninitiated, for the front doors are at the back, if that is not taxing the reader's logic. In other words, they face on the open space at the rear, rather than on the street. They are durable and attractive, but not ornate.

Kitchens Are Sensibly Modern.

Foundations are of concrete and roofs of tinted slate. Broad casement windows assure plenty of sunlight, and plenty of air. In this climate the summers are likely to be hot, but ceilings of poured concrete, reinforced with steel rods, keep the rooms cool. Brass-capped door sills combine with copper weather sheathing to banish drafts. Foundations and walls have been built to last a hundred years, but they have not been foolishly planned to outlast the Coliseum in Rome. Closets are of knotty pine, and oak is used on stairways only where they are most likely to be trod upon.

Kitchens are modern, compact, economical—but not faddish. There are metal cupboards with deep shelves and smooth, easy-dusting doors. Sinks are of enamel and bathroom walls are covered with inexpensive waterproof paint. All fixtures are sturdy and in good taste.

Greenbelt's business and community center at the head of the residential crescent, includes a mercantile building, a municipal garage, a fire-house, a town inn, a restaurant and a school. The latter is perhaps the most remarkable building. Gray concrete pilasters flank its sides like inverted flying buttresses. There is a chiseled frieze of cubist characters. Interiors are the ultimate in scientific design. The buttresses support the walls of a spacious gymnasium. Light brown plaster help to diffuse the plentiful sunlight which enters corridors and school rooms through windows and glass brick panels built into the walls. Students keep their belongings in individual lockers. The outer wall of each classroom is of transparent glass, stretching almost the entire height of the room. Conditions such as these are about all a teacher could ask for.

All commercial operations are conducted by the consumers' corporation. Two per cent of the gross revenue will be turned over to the federal government as rent; any remaining profits will be returned to the customers as dividends. Operated on this plan will be a general merchandise store, a drug store, a food and meat market, a motion picture theater, a barber shop, a beauty parlor and a garage and service station. When and if the community decides it does not like this system, it may adopt a new one.

There are no churches in Greenbelt but free land is available for them if community groups desire to build them. Greenbelters are given plenty of opportunity to contribute their share toward the beautifying of the town. Anyone may secure the head gardener's advice at any time free of charge. Trees or bushes for landscaping may be obtained free from the town nursery to which they were transplanted when the land was cleared.

This Is "Tugwelltown."

Greenbelt epitomizes Professor Tugwell's philosophy. He said its aim was:

"To obtain a large tract of land and thus avoid the complications ordinarily due to diverse ownerships; in this tract to create a community, protected by an encircling green belt; the community to be designed primarily for families of modest incomes, and arranged and managed so as to encourage a family and community life which will be better than they now enjoy, but which will not involve subjecting them to coercive or theoretical and untested discipline.

"The dwellings and the land upon which they are located are to be held in one ownership, preferably a public agency to which the federal government will transfer title, and which agency will rent or lease the dwellings but will not sell them; a municipal government to be set up, in character with such governments now existing or possible in that region; co-ordination to be established, in relation to the local and state governments, so that there may be provided those public services of educational and other character which the community will require; and, finally, to accomplish these purposes in such a way that the community may be a taxpaying participant in the region, that extravagant outlays from the individual family income will not be necessary, and that the rents will be suitable to families of modest income.

"To develop a land-use plan for the entire tract; to devise a system of rural economy co-ordinated with the land-use plan for the rural portions of the tract surrounding the suburban community; and to integrate both the physical plans and the economies of the rural area and the suburban community."

Whether or not the model town can be regarded as the answer to the low-cost housing program, even if Greenbelt succeeds as a happy, prospering community, depends on how you look at it. It has been pointed out by opponents that the project cost far too much and that there were too many delays, allegedly attributable to "government inefficiency," in its construction.

What Sponsors Contend.

Only 885 families may be housed in Greenbelt, opponents point out, yet the cost is $14,227,000, or more than $16,000 a house. The government's estimated net return on the investment, they say, is less than 1/2 of 1 per cent. Even if interest were waived, it would take 237 years to repay the cost.

Against this the sponsors reply that it is unfair to pro-rate the cost among the houses alone, for it includes the business buildings, landscaping and many other things. Presumably their answer would have been the same if the cost had been regarded $16,000 per family.

Also there is the argument that the "made work," transient relief labor and such, skyrocketed the cost. They contend that low-cost housing is spreading and that repayments under the Wagner act will be more generous than those at Greenbelt. They attempt to show that costs of slum conditions are indirect but that they are even greater than the cost to the government of subsidizing model communities; that well-built homes are in the long run cheaper than flimsier dwellings built for sale; and the Greenbelt accountants write off a third of the total cost as excess labor costs, more directly chargeable to work relief than to the Greenbelt residents.

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

Crazy Patch Work at Home in a Modern Setting.

THE crazy patch is the oldest of quilt patterns, yet there is something amazingly modern in its angular lines. So whether your living room is traditional in style or newer than tomorrow you will be interested in the revival of crazy patch work for what our grandmothers and great-grandmothers called a "slumber throw."

A corner of one of these old silk crazy quilts is shown here at the lower right. The pieces were small—many not more than 1 1/2 inches wide or long. A variety of embroidery stitches joins the pieces. Both plain and figured silks were used, the plain patches often being embroidered with flowers, fans and other amusing motifs—note the beetle embroidered on one patch. Several colors of silk embroidery thread were generally used but in the most artistic of these quilts one color predominated in the embroidery.

Larger patches with simple feather stitch and herring-bone stitch at the joinings also give a good effect. The pieces are sewed to a foundation of some firm soft material. Outing flannel or an old wool blanket are good. Pin a piece in place over the space to be filled, trim the edges to the right shape, as at A, allowing enough to turn under, as at B, where the patch laps over the one next to it. Baste the turned edges down as shown. When a number of patches have been basted in place, sew them down to the foundation with the embroidery stitches and then remove the basting. The backing is tied to the front with silk embroidery thread as comforters are tied. Little or no padding may be used and a plain band around the edge is effective.

GET READY FOR WINTER DRIVING

No section of our population is more dependent upon the automobile as a means of transportation than the residents of the smaller communities and rural districts.

Yet each Fall, many car owners cause themselves a great deal of trouble and expense by neglecting one or all of the simple yet necessary steps to assure proper operation of the car in Winter weather.

A minimum Winter protection program should cover:

1. Complete change to correct grade of lubricants for motor, transmission and differential.
2. Motor tuned up, including adjusting of carburetor, valves, distributor, sparkplugs, generator and all electrical equipment.
3. Drain and flush cooling system. Refill with suitable anti-freeze solution.

Selection of motor oil and greases for Winter driving is particularly important. You must select an oil which will permit easy starting, that will lubricate the motor throughout the entire driving range of speeds and will continue to do so for a reasonable mileage.

For many years Quaker State Winter Oils and Greases have been recognized as the highest quality and most generally satisfactory Winter lubricants on the market.

Through Quaker State's highly developed methods and equipment it is possible to produce a motor oil which will have a satisfying body over the 400-degree range of temperature it will meet. That is, when the motor temperature is way below zero, the oil will still be fluid enough to allow the motor to turn easily and also to flow freely to all the bearings. Yet this same oil has enough body to stand up and to give the motor proper lubrication when the temperature inside the cylinder wall reaches 400° and over.

As with any other product you buy, you get what you pay for. An oil of Quaker State quality is necessarily expensive to make. This does not mean, however, that Quaker State is more expensive to use. Being pure, concentrated lubrication, it stands up longer in service. It gives more miles per quart and at the same time gives the bearing surfaces safer protection.

You will want to step into the car, even when the mercury is hiding in the bulb and press the starter with every expectation that the motor will start off with its usual Summer zest. This sure starting, plus motor protection, is only possible by preparedness.—Adv.

New Pest Weed Threat In State

Like an everchanging battlefield, the fight of farmers in Michigan to curtail weeds finds a new enemy of crops and efficiency. The pest is downy brome, a grass that crowds out more desirable alfalfa in hayfields and pastures an whose barbed spikelets cause sheep to go blind and irritates the mouths of cattle.

Studies of the downy brome problem by farm crops department men at Michigan State College indicate possible solution of how to fight the spreading weed. The downy brome should not be confused with its desirable relative, the smooth brome grass.

H. C. Rother, head of the farm crops department, offers the college findings in the hope that sufficient farmers in the state will give the method a more thorough field test. Early pasturing apparently proves a control. Putting animals in on a downy brome infested alfalfa field as early as the last part of April has been tried with good results and even earlier grazing may be advisable.

That early in the season the alfalfa is not especially palatable and the grazing animals munch on the downy brome, preventing it from forming seed heads that later would further infest the field. The early pasturing seems logical even when the field is to be cut for hay.

Rapid spread of the weed is being found in the most productive farming areas. Many farmers incorrectly call the pest wild oats instead of downy brome. Where the infestation takes over all of the desirable seeding, the crops department at the college recommends shortening of the rotation. Chivivion then controls the downy brome.

Tiger, Zebra Butterflies Named Because of Color

Butterflies were given their name because of the yellowish color of so many of them, making them look like butter.

Besides the yellows, there are many other families of butterflies. Among these are the meadow- browns, the longbeaks and the swal- lowtails.

The swallowtails are so named because of the points which jut out from their hind wings. These points have been thought to resemble a swallow's tail.

The swallowtail family is itself di- vided into many branches. The ti- gers, the blues, the blacks, the ze- bras and the giants are some of the branches, according to an authority in the Detroit News.

The black swallowtail is found in almost every section of southern Canada and the United States. When eggs of the blacks hatch, the cater- pillars feed on the leaves of such vegetables as carrots, parsnips, and parsley. After becoming butterflies, they flit about for two months or so before death overtakes them.

The blue swallowtail is one of the prettiest butterflies in North Amer- ica. The hind wings are largely covered with blue-green scales which glisten in the sunlight. The front wings are darker, and have white spots on them.

Tiger swallowtails are striped yel- low and black. The "zebras" are striped with green and black and have longer "tails" than most mem- bers of the group.

The giant swallowtail is the larg- est in its family. It sometimes has a wingspread of close to five inches. There are larger butterflies in the world.

FOUR ESSENTIALS of Safe Lending . . .

1. Borrowers should be responsible firms or individuals with reputations for meeting their obligations;
2. The proposition, in each case, should be one which will automatically repay itself within a short time after the bank loan starts "the ball to rolling".
3. Business conditions, public confidence and buying spirit should be such as to favor the success of the enterprise;
4. Loans should be so "spaced" on the bank's lending calendar that new loans being made will be largely offset by old loans being repaid.

CHAPTER X—Continued

She had run along the lake shore and insisted on being brought here to serve Shaw when, the last time he had seen her, she was lavishing her arms and lips on Burke Rickman! It was too much for the old fellow to fathom and he did not have in him the impulse to ask of her the questions which would relieve his perplexity. So long as she was of aid to Shaw, he was satisfied.

She sent men into the forest searching for the herbs her midwife aunt had used. Leaves and stalks to be cooked to pulp and bandaged over the gaping wounds in Shaw's flesh.

Quietly, he lay there. Now and again, at first, he moaned. Occasionally his eyes would open and his brows gather as though he struggled with some complicated problem. He licked water, dropped from a cup to his lips, with growing greediness, and that was his first word:

"Water!"—faintly, but with desperate need.

"Fever!" Annette moaned, looking hard at Basile and helpless appeal was in her eyes.

"Fever follows wounds," the man said and shrugged slowly, in something of a shudder. "It's upon Rickman one would wish fever!"

"Rickman!" The name, repeated in that strained echo of Shaw's voice, was startling.

His eyes were open, he frowned upward blankly and his fingers worked, worked.

"Rickman!" he said in a high pitched monotone. "They're my hunters, it's my trade. You can't have any of them, any of it, Rickman! You're a braggart, Rickman, but you've parts. You're no fool, you've eyes and ears and wit! But . . ."

But . . .—trying to rise as Annette on her knees, arms about him, strove to prevent the struggle which set him panting. "But it was that a vixen!" he behind you!" he screamed. "I told my secrets to her and she told . . . I tell you . . . Let go . . . Let me go, Rickman, or I'll send your heart, smoked and cured, back to Astor himself!"

"Water from the spring!" Annette said to Basile.

She stroked Rodney's brow soothingly and he smiled, closing his eyes.

"Crooks gave . . . me . . ." His voice was only a murmur. "Crooks . . . black feather . . . Crooks said . . . said . . . Crooks gave it to me, Rickman . . . As a jest . . . But . . . I've held it!"—pawing weakly at the blankets. "I've held the black feather against your damned company! . . . They can't . . . take it from me . . . He didn't know . . . his jest stood for . . . surrender . . . Where'd it . . . go? Where'd I . . . put . . ."

He struggled to sit up, searching his bed, and Annette, slipping a hand into her bosom, brought out, folded in thin cloth, what remained of the black feather she had picked from the sand at Mackinac after Shaw's arrest.

"Here, Rodney!"—breathlessly. "You have the black feather. Burke Rickman hasn't taken it! We'll keep it safe . . . safe for you, Rodney! See? It is here!"

Something in the nature of a smile twitched at his cracking lips as she thrust the feather into his hands. Fingers closed on it; he relaxed and lay mumbling in whispers, no longer striving to rise.

The water came. Cloths were soaked in it and placed across his brow, about his wrists and ankles, changed and rechanged to cool the fevered blood.

Wordlessly, the girl worked after the routine was established. Now and then she gave an order by gesture, unspoken. When he tried to rise, she held him back; when he rolled in torment she kept him on his pallet. Now he slept heavily, unmoving, his breath alarmingly loud; again he mumbled incoherently; on occasion he cried out sharply and fought them.

Dawn, and they did not notice; and dusk again and still the girl sat there, changing her compresses, dribbling herb teas into his mouth, holding him quiet. Toward morning she slept, fallen to her side, curled close to his blankets like a bride, half repulsed. But before sunrise he was raving again, and she was up, refusing food which Basile tried to force upon her until he said that, perhaps, the master's life depended on her strength. Then she ate, though they could see that the sustenance was repulsive to her tongue.

Day and night, night and day, with his eyes giving birth to an orange flare, skin of his face stretching tight over the bones, dyed with the stain of fever, with his wrists shrinking and his body trembling.

Chills came, and the hot stones were snuggled close to him again; and once more the fever and then one afternoon a queer, sudden tranquility.

Basile and Annette knelt there as Shaw drew a deep sigh, and raised a hand to his brow and opened his eyes. The fevered flare was gone. "Basile!" he whispered and smiled. He closed his eyes and sighed deeply in relief. "After all these . . . these dreams!" he said and feebly groped for the man's hand. "Good Basile . . . My friend, Basile!"

Annette had not moved, except to work the fingers in their tight clasp against her breast. Hope rode with the achievement in her eyes and her breath was quick. She had brought him back from death, this man she had loved and wrangled and lived to save.

"I must've been here . . . for long," he whispered, looking again into Basile's face. "I . . . I remember Little Duck and . . . and being cold . . . and hot. I . . ."—face clouding—"I've had dreams, my friend . . . Terrible dreams . . ."

Still Shaw had not looked at Annette.

"Those dreams. Must . . . 've been fever. I . . . I dreamed that damned vixen was here, Basile,"—

Basile and Annette Knelt There.

making a wry face. "I dreamed I saw her, felt her . . . touch me, even! . . . Ugh! . . . such a dream . . ."

The old man holding his hand stirred uneasily. His quick glance went to the girl and Rodney, seeing, moved his head slightly. Then stared, eyes upon her, as if transfixed.

"Is this another dream?" he cried brokenly. "Is this more torture, still? Are you real? Do you . . . live?"

"Rodney!" the girl broke in. "Rodney! It is I! It is no dream! And I came this way to beg you to forget the terrible thing!"

"Forget?" he cried, struggling to sit up. "You ask me to forget? . . . Ho! . . . Things come back, now. The pain in my back . . . A bullet, that must have been Rickman's. Whose else? Your sweetheart's bullet, eh? Dear God, to awake to find you here . . ."

Basile, alarm stamping his face, gestured her to leave them and Annette slipped from the tent, standing alone in the dappled sunlight, eyes closed against tears, pulse faint and slow.

Tears had blinded her and she brushed them away to see that she had come near to Jacques, sitting cross legged mending a moccasin.

"The trader lives!" she said tremulously and in patois. Jacques exposed his white teeth in a magnificent grin. "We will want, now, partridge. You go, Jacques." He went at her command, as they all had obeyed her orders. And Mongazid, living in a spruce thicket across the stream where he could see and could hear, wriggled softly backward into a shallow ravine where he had come . . . the way he had been coming these many days, now, to see what he could see and hear what he could hear.

A jagged man, Burke Rickman, after that first night that Shaw was known to be lying with life in the balance. Did he leave his fort by canoe and head up the lake, another canoe from Shaw's establishment, appeared, menacingly.

When he went down the lake, away from Fort Shaw, in a direction opposite that where the little trader lay, none followed. The westward courses, only, were watched and forbidden him.

Mongazid had come, demanding his three packs of beaver, but this was after Basile's messengers had returned for what was needed from Fort Shaw, bringing word that their master lived.

"Skins for you!" Rickman scoffed. "When your hand trembles, when your eye goes blind? No, Mongazid, Flat Mouth's vengeance is still a shadow across your path. But there may be a way . . . may be . . ."

And so Mongazid, unsuspected by

Shaw's men, went about rousing no suspicion, keeping safe for long hours in his concealment across the river from where Annette made her fight for Rodney's life, and reporting nightly to Rickman what transpired.

He came this evening. "The little trader will live," he said and shifted his gaze from Rickman's face. "The white woman speaks it. I heard her words."

Heavy drinking, then, in the trader's quarters; mutterings and mummings, and Rickman paced the room like a wolf dragging an iron trap, back and forth, up and down.

And once, stopping, he snatched the girl's cloak from the peg where it had hung this fortnight, and ripped the fabric to shreds, silently, more terrible in his silence than he would have been shouting threats.

Annette did not again enter Shaw's tent. Another, which she could occupy, now that delirium was gone, was at a little distance. She lay there sleepless that night and, at dawn, was up.

Partridge were dressed and from the breasts she made a broth, cooked slowly, thick with the nutriment of succulent flesh. When Shaw roused she heard and gave Basile a jot of the broth in a cup to carry to him.

Shaw slept quietly most of the day, rousing thrice for more doles of nourishment and the morning found him with renewed vigor, but before he drank broth again he asked the question that had been on his mind.

"Basile, is she . . . is the . . . is the ma'm'selle still in camp?"

"Yes. She stays."

Rodney's face clouded.

"I felt it"—with an uneasy movement, like an abortive shudder. "She came from . . . where?"

"The company fort. As we had the word of you she came. Running. She . . . One did not want a woman here but she commanded that she come and . . ."

"—shrugging—"one does not deny a woman like that who demands."

"From the company fort, eh? . . . She'd been there, before me. I saw her cloak . . ." Shaw swallowed slowly. "She'd come to him, who refused to stay with her, eh?"

"The gift of God, her coming," the old man said earnestly. "She has healing powers from her aunt. Without her we would have been helpless. She . . . she cheated death of you, master."

"Errand of mercy, eh?" Shaw asked bitterly. "She'd do that for a . . . dog. A dog . . . or her sweetheart's rival." He drew a great and weary breath. "Get her away, Basile. Get her away! I say!" and he closed his eyes wearily.

So Basile went to Annette. Words at first stuck in his throat and then emerged in volleys of unfinished sentences. "One humors the sick," he protested, as if she had hurled argument at him, when she had only stood silent. "When the body is weak thoughts have no health . . . But he is not a man for woman. He is a trader, married to trade . . . Truly the mademoiselle has cheated death of him but he will not grow strong again with her about."

"I will go, Basile," she said quite simply when he, having heard much and known little about women, had expected an outburst.

This overwhelmed the old man, made him jubilant and engendered a feeling of great friendliness for her. He would return her to the company fort in an hour, he declared.

"But I do not go to the company fort," she said.

"Eh Dieu! Where, then, mademoiselle?"

"I have my own encampment on an island nearby. My men are there. Or should be . . ."

She smiled wanly. So little had she thought of self in these days!

"But you came from there?"

"But I cannot return there, Basile." His fingers fumbled at his lips, wondering at her manner, so low spirited and hopeless. "May I . . . Would it not . . . Could one stop at Fort Shaw and prepare for the homeward journey?"

Yes, she could. Indeed, she could! Shaw would not need to know and she would be out of this encampment, with the trader threatening to fall into heavy sickness again at thought of her presence. Within the hour he would take her there.

Within the hour, then . . . She gave Basile minute directions for the preparation of other foods, naming the days when Rodney might taste the flesh of fowl and have fish. She told him what to expect by way of good sign and bad in his condition.

"I will be near for a few days," she said, "if he should not grow steadily strong . . ." She did not finish that. Her lips trembled and she turned away.

She embarked, with Jacques and another in the canoe but as they prepared to shove off Basile ran back and whispered a delaying word.

"But wait!" Here, mademoiselle! This was found in his blankets. It was yours. I saw you give it to him to quiet his fever . . ."

Strange creatures, women. She'd taken the remnant of a black ostrich plume from her bosom and pressed it into Rodney's hand. It must be something of value, to be carried so. It had served its purpose. It should be returned . . .

Annette took it with an odd smile and turned her face away. The canoe slid out into the current . . .

Shaw roused and drank a more generous portion of broth and smiled at Basile.

"What happened?" he asked. "Just what . . ."

The other told, piecing the tale together as well as he could from the time the fabricated story of Rickman's flight to Black Beaver was spread until they found him there.

"The mademoiselle took command," Basile said gravely. "She gave the orders; she . . ."

He stopped as Shaw turned his face away.

"Has she gone?" he asked. "Yes. While you slept. She went . . ."

"Then she is wholly gone. We will not even speak again of her."

And so at Fort Shaw a woman slept in the trader's bed, slept long and heavily and awoke still weary. Her boatmen were summoned from their island and brought within the enclosure. Jacques took command and tended her solicitously. Had she not saved the life of his idol? His trader who had humbled even his mighty back on the portage?

Basile came on the second day, staying but briefly to secure needed articles.

Yes, he reported, Shaw was stronger. He had a great hunger, now. His smile flashed through a set perplexity. He was uneasy, anticipating the time when Rodney would demand that they bring him here. He did not want him to find the woman here, but said no word of leaving . . .

A great lethargy settled upon Annette. She had no hope; she was hurt and bruised beyond hoping. Neither did she have resentment because, she reasoned, nothing that she ever could do would offset the injury she had brought to Rodney.

So she stayed on, not because she lived in her heart, she told herself, but because she was inexpressibly weary and the thought of embarking for the long homeward journey—with nothing for her when she reached her destination—was too much to face.

Mystery "Diseases" of Bridges Solved by Two United States Bureau Scientists

Like physicians patiently seeking the cause of some puzzling human ailment, two Bureau of Standards scientists have spent more than eight years investigating the cause of a mysterious "disease" that attacks great suspension bridges.

Successful in their quest, William H. Swanger and George F. Wohlge-muth achieved recognition when they were awarded medals by the American Society for Testing Materials.

In February, 1929, the Mount Hope bridge on the main highway between Bristol and Newport, R. I., was nearing completion. The cables were spun, the floor was being laid, traffic was soon to flow.

Then it was found that the small metal threads forming the cables were disintegrating. The whole structure had to be dismantled and begun anew.

Samples of faulty cable were sent to the Bureau of Standards, and Swanger, head of the mechanical metallurgy section, and Wohlge-muth, also in that division, began their research. The cable met every test heretofore known. It withstood the greatest strains.

The two scientists thereupon invented a new instrument of "diagnosis" which gave the wire not merely the burden of great weight but a pulsating stress such as it endures from wind while under construction and later from traffic. With this new instrument it was determined that "heat-treated" metal will not bear pulsation, while "cold-drawn" wire will.

This knowledge has been of immense value to "bridge doctors." Work on the Ambassador bridge, between Canada and the United States at Detroit, was halted and reformed. Bureau of Standard officials said that undoubtedly construction of the Golden Gate bridge in California was radically affected by facts determined by these experts

Home Heating Hints

By John Barclay
Heating Expert

THERE is an easy way to keep dust from sifting through the cracks of the ashpit door when shaking furnace grates. Quite a few readers have asked me how it can be done, and I'm sure many more of you will be interested. Here's how:

Have a spray made of small pipe, connected with the cold water system installed in the ashpit of the furnace. Only a short length of pipe will be needed. In it have small holes drilled and cap the free end.

Just before shaking the grates, turn on the spray. It will throw a fine mist over the whole ashpit, wetting down the ashes as they drop through the grate openings and settling the dust immediately. Then remove the ashes from the ashpit. They will be sufficiently wet to prevent the dust from rising and settling in the cellar. The cost and installation of such a spray will be but little, and it certainly will save you considerable work in dusting off things on which the dust would otherwise settle.

Lesson for October 31

THE MORAL ISSUE IN THE DRINK PROBLEM

LESSON TEXT—Romans 13:12-14; I Corinthians 6:9-11; Galatians 5:16-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the lust of the flesh.—Galatians 5:16.
PRIMARY TOPIC—My Neighbors.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Greatest Law.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Is It Wrong to Drink Alcoholic Beverages?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Moral Issue in the Drink Problem.

The title for our lesson is well-chosen—"The Moral Issue in the Drink Problem."

First, let it be clear that there is an issue. Those who have business, social, or political connections with the liquor traffic would like to have us believe that the repeal of prohibition settled the matter once for all. But let us be sure of this fact—the liquor problem is at our very door, and it must be met.

In the second place, many would have us think that the matter of drunkenness is a social, political, or even a physical problem, without any moral implications whatever. But those who are informed know that even the supposedly innocent beer is inextricably tied up with vice and crime. A prisoner in a federal penitentiary writing before prohibition was repealed said, "Criminals hail with delight... the return of liquor via the beer route and the greater license that the return of the saloon will inevitably bring. With the return of beer will come open prostitution and gambling." His words were true.

I. Drunkenness Is a Work of Darkness (Rom. 13:12-14).

Just as there are darkness and daylight in the physical universe, so there are two contrasting spiritual realms, of darkness and light.

Men "loved darkness rather than light because their deeds were evil," according to the Lord Jesus. (See John 3:19.) This spiritual realm of darkness is directed by "rulers of the darkness of this world" (Eph. 6:12), and their purpose is "spiritual wickedness." With the "works of darkness" the believer is to "have no fellowship" (Eph. 5:11), but is to "reprove them" and bring them into the light where their true nature is made manifest (Eph. 5:13).

"God is light, and in him is no darkness at all," and those who have fellowship with him "walk in the light." (See I John 1:5-7.) Drunkenness is a work of darkness. It separates man from God and makes him fear the glorious light of his countenance. The solution for that awful condition is revealed in v. 14. "Put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ."

II. Drunkenness Is a Work of Unrighteousness (I Cor. 6:9-11).

No drunkard "shall inherit the kingdom of God" (v. 10), and the man who takes his first drink has put his foot on the path that leads to the drunkard's grave. Of course no man plans to go that far, but the fact is that such is the tragic conclusion for hundreds of thousands of men and women—damned for time and eternity by drink.

Again in this passage we have the answer to our problem. Not reformation, not education, not culture (desirable and useful though we recognize these things to be), but being "washed," "sanctified," and "justified" in "the name of the Lord Jesus and in the Spirit of God." Try that on your town drunkard. Thank God, it works!

III. Drunkenness Is a Work of the Flesh (Gal. 5:16-24).

The flesh—that is our bodies ruled over by self-will as opposed to God's will—is revealed in the Scriptures to be thoroughly bad, and in opposition to God. Consider the appalling list of the works of the flesh in verses 19 and 20. And note that in the midst of them stands drunkenness.

It is the lowest in man that responds to intoxicants. Little wonder that the Brewers' Journal came out right after the election of 1932 with the statement that "not one tenth of one per cent of American youths know the taste of real beer. We must educate them." In other words the normal taste of an intelligent person would revolt at the stuff, but once give it a chance to stir the lusts of "the flesh" and the victim is caught.

Once again, note the antidote—live in the power of the Holy Spirit, and the flesh with its lusts is crucified (v. 24). How shall we have the Holy Spirit and his power in our lives? By taking the Lord Jesus Christ as personal Saviour.

Words Without Action
Few men suspect how much mere talk fritters away spiritual energy—that which should be spent in action, spends itself in words.

Killing Time
People partial to this crime of killing time might be pardoned if they'll only kill their own.

Kindness is a language the dumb can speak, and the deaf can hear and understand.—Bovee.

A Trio of Triumphs

THE way to day-in, day-out chic for the woman who sews is shown in today's attractive new three-way plan. It goes deeper than the surface, you see, in the presentation of a sleek new slip. Ah, and it gives great thought to the surface, too, as you can't help but note in the two wing-side models. This is one triangle every woman who sews should want to know all about.

Spicy New Model.
As shipshape as a Parisian streamline fashion and, in its own role, as important—that's the little number at the left above. It does wonders to give one that up and doing feeling that's handy to have around the house in the morning. You can repeat it time and again without fear of being repetitious; without losing your fondness for it. Anything in gay cotton: shantung, print, gingham, crash, will do nicely for this one.

A Congenial Slip.
Beneath a well-groomed surface hangs a perfect fitting slip! That's an old and honest notion and one Sew-Your-Own abides by religiously. Today's five piece version is as easy to put together as it is congenial to your comfort and outward superbness. Make two while you're about it: one with a plain top for everyday, the other with a bit of frou-frou for dress-up occasions.

Deft Design.
The "girl in the little green hat" wears a dress with many tucks in this her latest picture. It is the dress for you, Milady, to star in at familiar Fall festivities. Deftly but definitely it gives you emphasis where you want it; soft pedals worry-areas. No more willing and able frock than this was ever designed and it can be yours so easily. Thin wool is a smart material and it fits this frock's personality to a T. Let's sew and be seen places this Fall. Okay?

The Patterns.
Pattern 1389 is designed for sizes 36 to 52. Size 38 requires 4 3/4 yards of 35-inch material, or 4 1/2 yards, with long sleeves. Pattern 1388 is designed in sizes 34 to 46. Size 36 requires 3 3/4 yards of 39-inch material, plus 1 yard of ribbon for shoulder straps, and 1 1/2 yards of edging for finishing upper edge. Pattern 1392 is designed for sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 42 bust). Size 16 requires 2 3/4 yards of 54-inch fabric.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

THE REASON BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST
Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a tumbler of water. By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is dissolving.
This speed of disintegration enables genuine BAYER Aspirin tablets to start "taking hold" of headache and similar pains a few minutes after taking.

All people who suffer occasionally from headaches ought to know this way to quick relief.

At the first sign of such pain, take two Bayer Aspirin tablets with a half glass of water. Sometimes if the pain is unusually severe, one more tablet is necessary later, according to directions.

If headaches keep coming back we advise you to see your own physician. He will look for the cause in order to correct it.

The Early Bird Gets the Worm

...If he knows where to look!

WATCH a robin on the lawn some sunshiny morning. A few hops, then a pause. A few more hops, and he listens again. Then, triumphant, he pulls out a fat, wriggling worm. A silly bird, you would say, if he merely pecked here and there, hoping to strike it lucky.
Reading the advertisements is for you what cocking his head is for the robin. Advertisers tell you just where are the justest bugs. Cock your eye on the advertisements in this newspaper. They may save pecking on barren ground.

Reporters — Members of News Staff

Students! Old students, young students, large and small — AND teachers, here is the chance of a life time. For the first time in the history of the news staff you are being offered the opportunity of having an edition of the school news dedicated to you.

All you have to do is to think of a new name for the school news instead of "The School Bell."

Put the name you select in the envelope on the bulletin board of Room 13 before Friday, November 5. All entries will be judged by a committee of faculty members. Don't delay, think!

Pep! That's what we need, and that's what we're getting. A high school Pep Club was organized Monday afternoon, October 18, for the purpose of creating added enthusiasm in high school activities. This movement is being sponsored by Miss Behyl MacDonald.

The membership is elective and already the students pledged have shown a keen interest in carrying out the plans for which the club has been organized. The members are confident of filling the long felt need of PEP in assemblies and athletic activities.

The following officers were elected at the Monday meeting: President, Kathryn Kitsman; Secretary, Shirley Bulow; and Treasurer, Rebecca Bowman.

The organization has already formulated its plans to increase school spirit by taking charge of pre-game pep-meetings.

A second session was held Thursday afternoon to rehearse Varsity songs for the Friday pep meeting.

Just how much this club will mean to the high school in the future depends wholly on how much effort each member puts forth and how valiantly the high school backs it.

WE WANT PEP!

What Goes On In The CLASS ROOM

Now that the school year is well on its way, it is interesting to find out what various classes are doing.

Mr. John Smith has turned author, and is writing a myth for the Latin II class to translate every day.

If you hear one geography student ask another, "How's your cotton crop?" — don't be alarmed. They're not as crazy as you might think. Each one in Mrs. Leatha Larsen's geography class received four or five cotton seeds to plant — and the plants are really growing.

The abstract expressions on the faces of Sophomore English students characterizes budding authors. Each is absorbed in thinking up a plot for the story he is writing.

In Russell Eggert's biology class the students are studying the lower forms of animal and plant life dealing with their structure and methods of food getting.

The inviting rows of apples are not for eating purposes, but are being studied and judged by the boys in the farm crops class.

Students in soils class have been finding new methods of conserving soil and moisture, and studying problems of getting seed bed for various crops.

MUSEUM

Miss Bertha Clark's room has been turned into a museum! The sixth grade is studying Europe in geography. Each pupil brought an article which is representative of Europe. With these things they made a museum.

Some of the contributions are: A German belt and helmet, Russian Bible, Latin book, Kindo book from India, French book, incense burner, coins from European countries, Brazil nut and its husk, wooden shoes from Holland, oxygen tank from World War, Walrus tooth from Alaska, beads from Norway, musical instrument from Holland, handkerchief from Japan, a Chinese cooking utensil, Chinese handwarmer, old daguerro-type of pictures, handwork seventy years old, oyster shell, and many other very interesting things.

A COLLECTION OF TOYS

and pets, about which they are studying.

Some of them include: A doll, fifty-six years old; Indian doll, a Dutch doll, Cowboy doll, a cat, and a dog. In this same room for nature study the pupils have brought to class an eatable chestnut with its husk and leaves, walnuts, acorns, and a collection of stones. Some of the children have also brought potatoes out of which they will carve figures.

CALICO CAT

"Calico," a kitten which has made its home in the grade building, has been adopted for the week by Miss Mildred Kjellander's third grade. The children have all the responsibility of caring for it, and Calico has been literally stuffed with food.

NEW BOOKS RECEIVED

The school library has received seventy-five new books for use in the elementary grades and five copies of "Progressive Methods of Teaching" by Martin J. Stormzand to be used as teacher reference books.

Among the books for juveniles are the always popular "Best Short Stories" by Carol Rycik Brink; "The Red Book of Birds of America;" "Three Little Kittens" by Ruth E. Newton; "Little Friends from Many Lands," Mary Windsor; "Uncle Wiggly and His Muskrat Lady Housekeeper," Howard R. Garis; "Treasure Island," Robert Louis Stevenson; "Cinderella," Ann Darley Merrill; "The Parade of the Animals," James Abell Wright; "Poems for the Very Young Child," Dolores Knippely; "Famous Indian Chiefs," Ben Ely; "Sammy Goes Around the World," V. R. Lowe; and "The Swiss Family Robinson," by Johann R. Wvys.

FRESHMAN PARTY

The Freshman class will swing into activity this Friday with a Halloween party. It is to be an invitational affair. At a class meeting held October 20 the party date, October 29, was chosen and committees were appointed. They are as follows: Entertainment, Desmond Johnson, chairman, Darwin Penfold and June Ayres; refreshment, Nancy LaLonde, chairman, Lawrence Stanek and Evangeline Cutler; clean up, Clifford Green, Billy Best, and Dick McKinnon.

As chaperons John Smith, Miss Marjorie Smitton, Miss Mary Elizabeth Finch and Miss Mary Carolyn King were asked to attend.

CHATTER

You really should have seen the faculty roller skaters at Walloon Lake last Thursday night. A few of the dozen managed to sail along on even keel.

Do you have all the mud cleaned off your shoes — after trudging in the Charlevoix mud? And what about your car running boards?

Speaking of the Charlevoix game—the Pep Club's red and black chrysanthemums were about the only cheerful things there!

We wonder how many BUSHELS of apples the teachers have been given to them by enterprising students — probably could keep the canning factory going.

GLEE CLUB

Both Boys and Girls Glee Clubs have been organized this year under the direction of Miss Beryl MacDonald.

The Boys Glee Club, composed of thirty members, held its usual meeting Wednesday, October 13. Before the practice began officers were elected. They are: President, Sherman Thomas, and secretary-treasurer, Burl Walker.

The club is now practicing the "Russian Sleigh Song" and "Without A Song."

The Girls Glee Club is composed of thirty-five members. Jean Bartlett is president; Jane Ellen Vance, vice-president; and Dorothy Stanek, secretary-treasurer.

The girls are now practicing "Shortnin Bread," "The Blue Danube," "Cerberibim," and "Country Gardens" for an assembly program soon.

CHARLEVOIX GAME

Playing in intermittent snow furries Charlevoix defeated East Jordan 26-0, Saturday.

East Jordan just could not stop Gallagher of Charlevoix from grabbing passes which netted them two touchdowns. Two others were made by line plunges by Carey and Gengle.

East Jordan's boys went deep into Charlevoix territory in the fourth quarter but fell short of a score in the final minutes of the game.

Next Saturday East Jordan will play Rogers City on its own field.

DANCING

Noon dancing has begun again this year. Students may dance in the auditorium after lunch from 12:30 to 12:55. Students also may sit in the back of the auditorium to watch the dance. Music is furnished by the electric victrola purchased last year. Dancing is scheduled to be held once a week.

SIDELINE JABBER

Russell Shay has been kept from practice because of a leg injury he received several weeks ago. Shay was a regular on the line. We hope he will be able to play again soon.

East Jordan surely took a beating at Charlevoix last Saturday. With their pass attack clicking, the Charlevoix team really went to town, taking the ball over East Jordan's goal line four times and making two of the extra points. Although there were one or two touchdowns they really shouldn't have had, there is no one to blame for this defeat. The East Jordan eleven gave their best — what more could you ask?

It's the sub on the bench that really has to have what it takes to stick it out the whole season. Perhaps he knows there is very little chance that he'll get in a game before the season is over, but still he keeps plugging along, not realizing that by making the competition stronger he is making the first team a better team. Every year when the season is about half over, the attendance of the squad drops four or five. This is usually due to a number of things, one of which is laziness. If you're looking for someone who takes a lot of punishment without getting any of the glory see the sub who lasted the whole season.
