Top O' Michigan Rural Electric

COMPANY PLANS STILL IN A FORMATIVE STAGE

A million dollar project to bring electric power to farm areas in Northern Michigan is under way through the Rural Electrification Administration.

While the project was started some time ago, there has been no official announcement of its organization and aims until the present, the Board of Directors just having authorized Leon Miller, of Petoskey, their attorney, to act as their spokesman for the purpose of giving out information for publication.

To begin with, some rumors as to where the lines are to run should be set at rest. While a two year tentative program has been outlined, no particular line has been finally approved for construction as yet. Plans are still in a formative stage, awaiting perfection of the organization and approval from Washington.

The Rural Electrification Administration is a federal agency set up to provide financing for construction of electric power lines in areas not now served. The agency is designed to supplement, not to compete with, existing lines.

To take advantage of the assistance offered by the REA, a farmers' co-operative organization has been set up, known as the Top O' Michigan Rural Electric Company. The REA has provided a partial allotment of $250,000 to start the work, with a top limit of $1,000,000 as the final investment.

Prior to the actual incorporation, much preliminary work was done by the present Directors and other interested persons. B. C. Melencamp, Charlevoix County Agricultural Agent, while he holds no official position in the Company, has rendered a service of great value in bringing the project up to its present stage.

Dr. Christian G. Jensen of Resort township, Emmet county, is President of the Company and with Frank Sluiter, also of Resort, represents Emmet County on the Board of Directors. Charlevoix County is represented by Calvin J. Bennett, Secretary, and LeRoy Rardy, Antrim County has Peter Wieland of Ellsworth, Vice-President, and Thomas A. Colter of Elmira, as directors. From Otsego County are Marin E. Schaff, Treasurer, and Herman Flott, both of Elmira.

For the present the Company's activities are limited to Emmet, Charlevoix, Antrim and Otsego counties, but the long range plans for the project call for extension of the lines of the company into a number of other northern Michigan counties.

The Company will execute a mortgage to REA for its loans. Terms of the mortgage provide no payments for 30 months and then monthly payments of $6.086 per thousand to be applied to accrued interest, current interest and amortization of principal. Interest at 2.88 per cent is charged and the mortgage provides for retirement of the loans in twenty years, with a provision for extension and renewal up to forty years.

The Company is a non-profit corporation with each member paying $5.00 for his participation. There is no further liability for the members other than paying their power bills. Should a member desire to withdraw his $5.00 membership fee is returned him, providing his power bills are paid.

Mr. Miller is attorney for the corporation and Roy White of Grand Rapids is project engineer. At present none of the officers and directors receive any salary.

The initial allotment of $250,000 is to cover the cost of construction of 225 miles of line. An additional 200 miles of construction is in next year's program. Just where the construction will go has not yet been determined.

The Company will purchase energy from existing utilities providing satisfactory arrangements can be made. If such arrangements cannot be made it may ultimately become necessary for the Company to erect power units of its own. At present 450 miles of line have been sketched out as being suitable. That is as far as present progress has definitely gone.

The underlying theory of REA was to create an agency to provide electric energy for rural areas not served by present utilities. It is not the aim of REA to run a power line to every house in the area, neither is it the intention to deny a certain district power simply because the present revenue from the line would not cover the cost. It is hoped to strike a happy medium which will bring energy to many farms now far from a power line, and still keep the company on an even financial keel.

Naturally progress on a program of this nature is slow for there are many conditions to be met, but the Directors hope to start building lines yet this winter.

The only other REA company in northern Michigan is now building lines in Presque Isle county. The work of setting poles there started five weeks ago.

Women's Health Classes Continued Next Week

The old-fashioned belief that every child must run the whole gamut of "childhood diseases" should be discarded, declares Dr. Block of the Michigan Department of Health who will lecture before the women's classes at the following places next week on the topic "Preventing Acute Communicable Diseases." The locations in this district will be—

Tuesday, November 9th, 3:30 p. m. — East Jordan Community Bldg.
Wednesday, November 10th, 3:30 p. m. — Ironton, Mrs. Ross Alexander's Home.

These diseases are recognized as preventable today if measures are taken before one comes into contact with disease carriers. These measures will be discussed by Dr. Block who will also describe how disease is spread, the necessity for quarantine and isolation, how immunity may be obtained, and the importance of prevention of disease in the crucial early years of childhood. Illustrating his talk will be a film on tuberculosis, loaned by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association.

Alderman J. F. Kenny Sailed Up The "Arm" Seventy Years Ago

In a recent visit with our old-time friend, Alderman J. F. Kenny, it developed that Mr. Kenny, accompanied by his parents, came to this section seventy years ago, sailing up the south arm of Lake Charlevoix and landing here on Oct. 10th. The family, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Kenny, sons John and Frank, and daughter, Angeline, came up from Northport on a 20-ft. sailboat. About Christmas time of the year they arrived the father and family located on a farm north of East Jordan, since known as the Kenny farm.

Mr. Kenny has compiled a list — from memory — of those who located in this region some seventy years ago and it appears at the bottom of this article. It is, of course, subject to correction and The Herald will be very glad to publish additional information along this line at any time.

Hunting Party Here From Ypsilanti

Hunting is good in this region with many "limits of take" being recorded. Woodcocks are plentiful, partridges good, cottontails scarce but plenty of jackrabbits. Many from the southern part of the state are visiting East Jordan and hunting in this territory. A party of hunters — cousins of Delbert Hale — are occupying the Shedina Cottages on the West Side and enjoying the sport. The members are from Ypsilanti and consist of Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Don Drew, Tom and Don Peebles.

ARMISTICE DAY

is a symbol that the American people love Peace. For nineteen years this day has been regarded as a holiday that advertises that love and our good will toward all the world.

In honor of this worthy custom, as Mayor of the City of East Jordan, I proclaim ARMISTICE DAY, Thursday, November eleventh, to be a civic holiday, and I request that all places of business be closed for the day.

For the accommodation of the public the stores which usually are closed on Wednesday afternoon will be open at that time.

November 4, 1937. KIT CARSON,
Mayor of the City of East Jordan.

Homecoming This Friday

IS ANNUAL BIG DAY EVENT IN OUR SCHOOL

Friday looms to be a big day here this week as the local high school footballers entertain the Blue and Gold of Gaylord at the West Side football field at 2:30. To start things off comes the big pep meeting at the high school at 11:15. This should be one of the peppiest of meetings ever pulled off here. This will be followed in the afternoon by the Homecoming tilt between two evenly matched teams. Schools will be dismissed early so they will be on time for the battle. Local merchants will close their business places and a huge turnout is expected.

As a sidelight to the Homecoming program Coach Cohn announced an All Star football squad for the Red and Black in the last decade, 1927 to 1937 inclusive. His selections were as follows: Ends, C. Lorraine, D. Clark, A. Quinn, Clifford Dennis, tackles, C. Strehl Jr., R. Barnett, F. Severance, M. Somerville. Guards, B. Lintner, Don Johnson, F. Sweet, Gilbert Joynt, Centers, Ira Weaver, C. Bowman Jr. Quarterbacks, J. Hignite, D. Pray, Halfs, F. Quinn, H. Somerville, Wm. Ellis, M. Cihak. Fullbacks, Chris Taylor and R. Somerville.

Many of the captains of the last ten years will be on hand. Leaders of the Crimson Wave of the past decade are as follows:—
1927 — W. Barnett.
1928 — R. Muma.
1929 — H. B. Hipp.
1930 — W. Halstead.
1931 — H. Somerville.
1932 — A. Brooks.
1933 — R. Somerville — D. Clark.
1934 — R. Scott — Wm. Swoboda Jr.
1935 — G. Walton — D. Pray.
1936 — C. Bowman Jr.
1937 — H. Porter Jr.

Charlevoix County Picks Potato Queen

Miss Jean Zeitler, of Charlevoix, was selected as the Charlevoix County Potato Queen at the ceremonies in the Temple Theatre here, Monday evening.

Seven candidates sought the honor. The others were Jean Blair, of East Jordan; Ruth Adams, Velda Adelbu, Ariene Brooks and Evelyn Hardy of Boyne City; and Ann Reinhert, of Charlevoix.

B. C. Melencamp, County Agr'l Agent, started the contest with a few short remarks after which he introduced the master of ceremonies, Wilson J. McDonald of Petoskey who conducted the contest. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wykes and Mrs. Wilson J. McDonald of Petoskey, were the judges.

Miss Zeitler will compete at Petoskey Thursday evening for the honor of serving as Northern Michigan potato queen, R. S. Lincoln, county agricultural agent of Emmet county, said that at least seven or eight candidates would seek the honor.

All parents of this years edition of the Crimson Wave will be guests of honor. Mr. Ter Wee will be out with his high school and possibly the Gaylord high school bands.

The Cohn men are now resting in third place of the Northern Michigan Class C Conference standings, which shape up as follows:—

	W.	L.	T.	Pct.
Boyer City	4	0	0	1000
Charlevoix	3	1	0	.800
East Jordan	2	1	1	.500
Rogers City	1	3	1	.200
Gaylord	0	2	2	.000
Harbor Springs	0	2	2	.000
Mancelona	0	1	0	.000

Let's all get together and make a big Homecoming day of it, meet the old friends and enjoy a marvelous day of entertainment. The Cohn men will have a slight edge over the Gaylord lads but when the Gaylord boys are under dogs they always put up a whale of a battle.

Able Bodied Men Must Seek Work

The Charlevoix County Relief Commission wishes to restate its policy in regard to the giving of relief to families containing able bodied men, who are legally responsible for the family's support. It is the policy of the commission that no relief shall be given in such cases until the applicants have produced satisfactory proof that a definite attempt has been made to secure work.

The relief office is charged with the responsibility of checking this proof to the end that no relief shall be given able bodied persons except in cases of extreme urgency.

Public Acts of '37 To Be Huge Books

Laws cost money; the more a legislature passes, the greater the cost to print the volumes of Public Acts at the end of each session.

There are indications that copies of the 1937 Public Acts may break several records. Each of the 13,500 volumes will contain approximately 1,000 pages, almost twice the size of the Public Acts of 1935. The 1937 book will include the four statutes passed at the special session of the legislature which followed the regular session immediately.

Paper for the 1935 volumes cost the state $2,439; printing and binding came to $9,995. The books for years have sold within Michigan for $1.50, postage paid. According to Leon D. Case, Secretary of State, the size of the 1937 volume may involve an increase in the customary price because of the greater costs of paper, binding and postage.

The books will be available about December-1.

Rural Teachers Meet At Boyne City This Friday Night

A series of three teachers' meetings have been scheduled in the northern part of the state within the next few days by officers of the Michigan Rural Teachers Association. They have been arranged to acquaint the rural teachers of this section with the aims and objectives of the organization, which is affiliated with the Michigan Education Association.

Speakers include Donald L. Baker, Gratiot County Commissioner of Schools, who is president of the Michigan Rural Teachers Association, and A. Clark Kerr, Chairman of Publicity and former president of the association. Baker will speak on "The Aims and Objectives of the Michigan Rural Teachers Association" while Kerr's topic will be "The Professionalization of the Rural Teacher."

The schedule follows:—
Friday evening, November 5, 7:30 p. m., Boyne City; Mrs. Josephine Rehkoff, Bayshore, chairman. Saturday morning, November 6, 10:30 a. m., Manistique; Mrs. Ada Watson, Schoolcraft County Commissioner of Schools, chairman. Saturday afternoon, November 6th, 2:30 p. m., Escanaba; Mr. C. P. Titus, Delta County Commissioner of Schools, chairman.

Wm. Powell and Myrna Loy In New Show Starting Sunday

The new week for the Temple Theatre is replete with special entertainment and novel features that continue through Armistice Week. With each program packed with unusual high-lights perhaps the two outstanding programs are the Sunday and Monday bill, "Double Wedding" with William Powell and Myrna Loy, and the Armistice Day program for Thursday and Friday, "The Singing Marine" with Dick Powell, Allen Jenkins and a great comedy cast in the stellar roles. It would be well to note that a special Armistice Day matinee will be held Thursday starting at 2:30 and at the usual matinee prices of 10c and 15c. The complete week for the Temple is as follows:—
Saturday only: Smith Ballew, Heather Angel in "Western Gold" by Harold Bell Wright. Laurel and Hardy comedy, "Beau Hunks." Latest News.

Sunday and Monday: William Powell and Myrna Loy in "Double Wedding." Pete Smith specialty. Musical Comedy.

Tues., Wed., Family Nites, two for 25c: Ralph Bellamy, Marian Marsh in "The Man Who Lived Twice." Charlie Chase Comedy. Color Cartoon.

Thursday, Friday; Armistice special: Dick Powell and Allen Jenkins in "The Singing Marine." Matinee Thursday at 2:30.

What your tonsils are for! A distinguished English physician explains the reason for these troublesome glands in an illustrated feature of the American Weekly, the magazine distributed with Next Sunday's Chicago Herald and Examiner.

Jordan Boys Hold Line

DEFEAT ROGERS CITY 6 TO 0. GAYLORD HERE THIS FRIDAY

The local Crimson Wave in winning 6 to 0 over the Calcites of Rogers City here Saturday, now have a record of three wins, one loss, and a tie for the season to date, and should be an inspired eleven to wind up the season with games against Gaylord and Boyne City. The Jordanites scored early in the Rogers tilt as they advanced the opening kickoff from their own 30 yard line to score in the first three minutes of play. W. Bennett, after a series of line plays lugged the ball over from the 5 yd. marker of the encounter.

The boys from the Huron side of the state came close to scoring on several occasions but each time the local line was able to hold them off. On one instance the Orange and Black fullback fumbled as he was going over to score, the locals recovering in the end zone. All the visitors threatening drives came as a direct result of the locals weak and ineffective pass defence, for some unknown reason the Red and Black are unable to knock the ball out of the air when opponents put on aerial attacks. The locals did a much better job in their blocking and this should help a good deal in the two remaining games.

The Big Homecoming Game will be played here Friday when the Cohn men entertain the scrappy Blue and Gold of Gaylord at the West Side Football Field at 2:30. A full days program is in store for all. Let's all come out and cheer our boys on.

Missionary From Japan Will Speak

Dr. James Detweiler, who has served 12 years as a missionary in Japan, will speak at the Presbyterian Church next Sunday morning at 10:30. Dr. Detweiler will speak in connection with the Centennial of Presbyterian Foreign Mission work. Dr. Detweiler is an exceptionally pleasing speaker and for the present is representing the Foreign Mission Board in the Central Area. In the evening at 7 o'clock he will present colorful and interesting moving pictures taken of mission work in foreign countries.

Fishing on The "Arm" Still Holding Good

Good fishing still prevails on the south arm of Lake Charlevoix off the East Jordan bridge. Last Sunday C. C. Walker of Hamtramck and Teddy Kotowich of East Jordan took ten fine steelheads out of this water, each fish ranging in weight from 3 1/2 to 6 pounds.

NO LABOR PEACE YET

A. F. of L. and C. I. O. Reject Each Other's Proposals . . . Japs Drive Back Chinese . . . Will Not Attend Parley

The news camera man took his life in his hands to secure this excellent photograph of Japanese "mopping up" operations in the Chapel district of Shanghai. "Mopping up" is the military euphemistic term for stamping out whatever life is left after the artillery bombardment has done its work.

Edward W. Pickard SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK © Western Newspaper Union.

Labor Parley Deadlock

LEADERS of the American Federation of Labor and the C. I. O. couldn't get anywhere in their peace conference in Washington. So they adjourned temporarily, and some of them said the parley might not be resumed.

Philip Murray

Both sides had made offers, but these were scornfully rejected by the opponents.

The A. F. of L. proposed that the fate of the C. I. O. affiliates organized since the split be decided at an immediate conference "between representatives of organizations chartered by the A. F. of L. and organizations chartered by the C. I. O. and which may be in conflict with each other, for the purpose of bringing about an adjustment to bring the membership into the A. F. of L. on terms and conditions mutually agreeable."

This clause of the federation proposal brought a denunciation from Philip Murray, chairman of the ten-man C. I. O. peace committee, who asserted that it asked "desertion and betrayal" of these unions.

The C. I. O. proposal was that its unions should return to the federation and that a new autonomous department should be created, to be known as the C. I. O., to have complete and sole jurisdiction over its policies and operations. This plan represented no concessions.

John L. Lewis called Murray and others into a strategy meeting to consider whether a new proposal for a truce should be offered by the C. I. O.

James Dewey, Labor department conciliator, and Senator George L. Berry of Tennessee were busy trying to find a way to peace. The position of President Roosevelt was unknown, but it was believed he would continue his hands-off policy.

Japs Smash Chinese

JAPAN officially declined the invitation to the nine-power treaty conference in Brussels, and her forces went ahead fast in their operations in China. They had been checked by a desperate stand of the Chinese defenders of Shanghai, but launched a new offensive that forced the Chinese to abandon Chapel, the native section, and fall back to a new line to the west of the international settlement. They then entrenched with their backs to the Soochow creek on the other side of which were the United States marines. These American troops had orders from Admiral Yarnell to shoot at any planes attacking them or at non-combatants.

The British troops in Shanghai had similar orders, and the international tension was brought nearer to the breaking point when a Japanese tank fired on a British infantry detachment of which Brig. Gen. A. P. D. Teifer-Sollett, British commander in chief, was a member. A few days before a Japanese machine-gunner in a plane had killed a British soldier.

In refusing to send a delegate to Brussels the Japanese government said the conference was inspired by the League of Nations and would "put serious obstacles in the path of the just and proper solution of the conflict."

Japs Mobbed in Frisco

FIVE eminent Japanese citizens, sent out on a good will mission to the world, arrived at San Francisco and were at once besieged on their steamship by a howling mob which struggled with the police for two hours.

The demonstration was sponsored by the district council of the Maritime Federation of the Pacific, comprised of seagoing unions affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization. But about a third of the crowd was comprised of Chinese, who streamed out from the city's vast Chinatown to vent their rage at things and persons Japanese.

Help for Stock Market

EVER since the slump in the stock market began the government has been urged to do something about it. Finally the administration yielded to the demands and the federal reserve board of governors reduced margin requirements on stock purchases from 55 to 40 per cent and imposed a 50 per cent margin on short sales. The new requirements went into effect November 1 and are not retroactive.

No official explanation was given for the board's action but it was understood that it was designed to adjust the margin requirements to current stock market conditions.

Imposition of the increased margin requirements on short sales was an innovation from the board's standpoint, a stock exchange rule requiring only 10 point protection on short sales. It was understood that before arriving at its decision the reserve board consulted with the securities and exchange commission.

Many brokers were doubtful that this action would stabilize the market; but the immediate effect was to give stock prices a start upward.

Yardstick for Power

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, in conference with J. D. Ross, administrator of the Bonneville dam project on the Columbia river, established the "yardstick" rate by which the charges of privately owned utilities for electric current are to be judged.

The formula is to pay operating charges, amortize the federal investment in power generation in 40 years and provide a net return of 3 1/2 per cent. For the present the formula is to apply only to the Bonneville project, but Ross recommended that the same principle be followed with respect to power from the TVA and other government plants.

Miss Roche Quits Treasury

MISS JOSEPHINE ROCHE, first woman to be an assistant secretary of the treasury, has resigned that post and returns to the presidency of the Rocky Mountain Fuel company of Denver. The position will be left unfilled, for the administration hopes she will resume it later. She was appointed by President Roosevelt three years ago and has been in charge of the treasury's public health and other welfare activities.

Steiwer to Retire

TWENTY years of public service is enough for Senator Frederick Steiwer of Oregon, Republican. He has announced that he will not seek re-election next year, but will return to the practice of law. Steiwer was the keynoter of the Republican national convention of 1936.

Mussolini's Bold Talk

NEARLY a million Italians gathered in Rome to celebrate the fifteenth anniversary of the Fascist march on the Eternal City, and heard Mussolini declare that bolshevism must be driven out of Europe, meaning primarily that the rebels must win the Spanish civil war. Among the invited guests was a delegation from Nazi Germany, and for their benefit Il Duce asserted vigorously that Germany must obtain colonies, peacefully or otherwise.

"The motto of the sixteenth Fascist year is peace," shouted Mussolini. "There has been much use and abuse of this word by the bleeding of the so-called reactionary democracies. But when it comes from our lips—the lips of those who have fought and who are ready to fight again—this word attains its real, solemn, original, human definition. Because to obtain a durable, lasting peace it is necessary to eliminate bolshevism from Europe. It is necessary that some absurd clauses of the treaties of peace be revised. It is necessary that great peoples like the German people have again the place to which they are entitled, and which they once had, under the African sun."

The presence of the official Nazi delegation, led by Rudolph Hess, deputy leader of the party, demonstrated "the ever closer political bond uniting the two people," Mussolini said.

Chautemps Gives Warning

IF THE necessity arises, France is prepared and ready to employ force in defense of her vital interests. At the same time she offers peace to all nations that will prove by their acts their desire to keep their engagements loyally. Such was the warning, evidently directed especially to Italy and Germany, which Premier Camille Chautemps uttered before a congress of the central federation of his Radical Socialist party. "I hope especially in the grievous and courageous action will succeed in cutting short the violations of justice which cannot be renewed without constraining France and Britain to renew their liberty of action," Chautemps said.

M. Chautemps

The premier's declaration recalled French insistence that unless the nonintervention committee soon pulled foreign troops out of Spain France would open her frontier to aid the Spanish government.

Franco's Progress

GENERALISSIMO FRANCO, having completed his conquest of Gijon and the rest of the loyalist territory in northwest Spain, began moving his insurgent forces eastward to the Aragon front, where his officers said the "decisive offensive of the war" would be begun.

Windsor Talks of Trip

THE duke of Windsor, speaking at a dinner of the Anglo-American Press association in Paris, said that he wanted to make it clear that "in any journey I have undertaken or may plan in the future, I do so as a completely independent observer without political considerations of any sort or kind and entirely on my own initiative."

He added that "I am a very happily married man, but my wife and I are neither content nor willing to lead a purely inactive life of leisure. We hope and feel that in due course the experience we gain from our travels will enable us, if given fair treatment, to make some contributions as private individuals to solving some of the vital problems that beset the world today."

Noted Editor Dead

DEATH chose a shining mark when it removed George Horace Lorimer, retired editor of the Saturday Evening Post. He succumbed to pneumonia at his home in Wyncote, Pa. Honorary pallbearers at his funeral included former President Herbert Hoover and other men distinguished in public life. Mr. Lorimer became editor in chief of the Saturday Evening Post in 1899 and developed it from an obscure weekly to its high position in its field.

Ecuador Coup de'Etat

GEN. ALBERTO ENRIQUEZ, war minister of Ecuador, and officers of the army executed a coup d'etat which forced Provisional President Federico Paez to resign and leave the country. Enriquez at once assumed power as "supreme chief" with a cabinet composed largely of army officers. He decreed the establishment of a popular tribunal to deal with persons accused of tampering with public funds and announced "a national political purge." The people accepted the change of government quietly.

John Roosevelt to Wed

MRS. FRANCES HAVEN CLARK of Boston announced that her daughter, Anne Lindsay Clark, and John Roosevelt, youngest son of the President, will be married in Nahant, Mass., next June, shortly after Mr. Roosevelt is graduated from Harvard.

Washington Digest National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington. — In this so-called modern civilization of ours when we are supposed to keep pace with progress, every one of us is confronted every day with some sort of government regulation or restriction. We are told what to do and what not to do and a good many politicians want to increase the number of things we are told to do.

Included in this modern civilization is a perfect network of spies who bear official titles of one kind or another, and probably the most insistent of these spies are the agents of government who look after taxes. All of which is necessary because tax payers undoubtedly will dodge a little if they can get away with it. The federal government has a good many thousands of them; state governments have them and county and city governments maintain a veritable army of employees whose job it is to check up on taxpayers. They do their job thoroughly. Make no mistake about that. If the taxpayer does not come through in accordance with the orders of the tax collectors, there is plenty of punishment.

Which brings us to the point of and the reason for this discussion. It sets the stage for the question: If the government, national, state or local, is so punctilious about tax collections, the gathering in of people's money, why is it that government is not equally punctilious about the way the money is spent? This question is very much to the forefront now. It is a question of paramount importance because of a proposal for governmental reorganization which President Roosevelt insists must be considered by the forthcoming session of congress. The federal government must be reorganized, according to the President's argument, is that the present structure is inefficient, wasteful, and generally quite unwieldy.

It is to be granted, I think, that much of the present federal government structure is inefficient, wasteful and unwieldy. Throughout the government one will find various agencies charged with the same responsibilities, doing things in opposite directions, winding and binding red tape around the citizens until some of them scarcely can get a hand free to mark their ballots. The whole thing needs a thorough going over but, as I see the picture, this going over should be done with a view to making governmental machinery workable and rebuilding only where hastily conceived governmental agencies and functions have demonstrated that they are acting as a deterrent rather than an encouragement to the nation as a whole.

Changes Proposed

I have no quarrel with Mr. Roosevelt concerning the need for changing some parts of the governmental machine. I have a very definite objection, however, to some of the changes he proposes. I object strenuously, for example, to his move to destroy the present setup for protection against improper spending of the taxpayers' money. Specifically, I can see no possible excuse for Mr. Roosevelt's demand that the general accounting office be made subservient again to the whims of politicians by placing that agency under the control of a political appointee, namely, the secretary of the treasury. That is exactly what is proposed, and if the President's governmental reorganization program is accepted by congress in its present form, the President of the United States, whether Mr. Roosevelt or his successor, again will be able to determine to a large measure how the taxpayers' money is spent.

That may appear to be an exaggerated statement. One may ask about the constitutional provision which requires that all appropriations shall be made by congress. This would seem to prevent executive mismanagement of the taxpayers' money. Such, however, unfortunately is not the case because we have had proof under President Roosevelt's administration what can be done when one political party has such complete control of the machinery of government. Congress appropriated billions. True. But had there been no general accounting office in existence, I doubt if anyone could have even guessed what would have happened to those vast sums of money.

It has been my privilege to watch operation of the federal government almost 20 years. Because of that experience, I think I am able to say that I am more conversant with the tricks to which politicians resort in getting money out of the treasury than persons who have not had an opportunity to study the government as it actually functions. And because of that experience, I am going to make the unequivocal statement that unless congress repels Mr. Roosevelt's plan to destroy the curb on trick and illegal spending, this nation and its citizens will pay for the folly in waste not now conceivable.

Someone might arise and say that my statement is unjustified because there was not such a terrific drain on the treasury before the general accounting office came into existence in 1921. My answer to that is that there was a tremendous drain on the treasury before 1921 when the accounting, auditing of bills and checks, was done by individual agencies of the government. The difficulty is that, except for war time agencies, the cost of running the federal government before the general accounting office was established was only about one-seventh of what it is now. None of the federal agencies then in existence were as large then as they are now; none had as much authority nor as great a scope of operations, and the bulk of the new agencies have been born in legislation that is haphazard and undigested to say the least. The older agencies of government have scores of workers who know how to handle their business. Regrettably, it must be said that most of the new agencies are controlled by, completely filled up with, men who are unfamiliar with the gigantic problems their jobs entail.

Drain on Treasury

Public sentiment is a thing difficult to understand. For example, millions of people became wrought up when President Roosevelt sought to increase the membership of the Supreme court of the United States by the addition of six judges of his own choosing. They rightfully fought back against the destruction of our judicial system. Fighting words characterized the criticism of Mr. Roosevelt and his New Dealers who sought to break down the system of checks and balances created in our government by the founding fathers when they provided for executive, legislative and judicial divisions of governmental authority.

So, I am wondering why thus far there has not been an outburst of vehement criticism of Mr. Roosevelt with reference to the proposed destruction of the check on spending. I am wondering, too, why people who complain so violently against spies in the form of tax investigators should not demand of their government equal protection for the funds after they have been taken away from the taxpayers.

Two Good Ones Doomed

There are two other agencies of the federal government which Mr. Roosevelt's reorganization plan will eventually destroy. Each has proved its worth. Each has a record of service to the nation and protection for individual citizens that cannot be ignored. I refer to the interstate commerce commission and the federal trade commission. The ICC has supervised the railroads nearly half a century. It has compelled them to be fair when some individuals in the railroad industry were inclined to cheat or take advantage of an unorganized segment of the population. Sometimes there has been criticism of the commission for placing the railroads in a strait-jacket, but the good that the ICC has done far outweighs any damages it has caused.

Yet, it is proposed in the President's reorganization plan to take away the independence which has characterized the history of the operations of this agency. The President wants to place over the commission a political appointee responsible only to the Chief Executive. Through all of the years I have worked in Washington, there has been a never-ending effort on the part of politicians to get their hands on the agency that controls the railroads. It takes no stretch of the imagination to see what would happen if the politicians were able to succeed in this direction. I am quite convinced that if the ICC is subordinated to the political philosophy of a presidential appointee, every one of us who uses the railroads will be paying toll. The toll will not go to the railroads but to the politicians.

With respect to the federal trade commission much the same can be said. Like the ICC, the trade commission is quasi judicial. It is an independent agency. Times unnumbered, it has stepped on crooked business and has forced business of this stripe to play the game within the regulations. On occasion, I have criticized specific actions by the commission as lacking in judicial consideration. By and large, however, I think no one can say unqualifiedly that the federal trade commission has failed to do its job in the interest of individual citizens—which, after all, is what government is supposed to do.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Intriguing Construction.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.— Downtown I saw some sort of siege-wall going up. At first I thought it must be a part of the proposed plaza leading from our new terminal.

Our new terminal has been under construction almost as long as New York's unfinished Cathedral of St. John. Inch by inch it progresses, giving creeping defiance to those critics who say that what Los Angeles needs is not any additional entrances, but more exits.

Irvin S. Cobb

On second glance I decided the owner of the business property behind this strange rampart probably made the same mistake I did. I saw a picture in the paper and I said, "Pretty late to be printing a photograph of Fifth avenue showing how it appeared when the World's war heroes got through pranking last month." I looked again and saw it was only a scene in Shanghai after the Japanese finished bombing.

So I figure this forehanded Los Angeleno is just getting ready for next year's convention of the vets out here. When his wall is absolutely impregnable against assault, he'll no doubt paint a big sign on it reading: "Welcome, American Legion."

Kindness for Reptiles.

UNDER the slogan, "Kindness for reptiles," the National Park service discourages people from destroying every creature they encounter, merely because it wriggles or crawls.

I'm what you might call an occasional snakist, indulging in snakes only in moderation. In other words, I can take my snakes or I can leave them be. But realizing that practically all snakes destroy noxious vermin, I refrain from murdering every passing snake, regardless of his private habits and personal disposition, just for being a snake.

I was raised in a locality where moccasin snakes were so numerous the Republicans used to accuse us of voting them at county elections. Yet I recall only one instance of a moccasin snake biting anybody, and it must have been tempted beyond all power of self-control, for the fellow bitten was a pious party who didn't think little children should be suffered to believe in Santa Claus. I regret to state that he recovered. It was the snake that died.

Movie Prefereces.

I DON'T like movies about hospital where an impossible young surgeon performs impossible operations, in four strokes under par, using his irons all the way 'round; and then, while replacing the divots, makes love to an impossible although beautiful nurse. But between operations he washes his hands. Daddum him, he's always washing his hands! Who does he think he is, Pontius Pilate?

I don't like movies about newspaper offices where the hero is a drunken reporter who behaves in a manner peculiar to newspaper reporters (in the movies); which is so darned peculiar that, in a real newspaper office, somebody'd beat out his brains with a wet towel. I like movies showing Myrna Loy, when not playing nurse; and Spencer Tracy, when not playing reporter.

Anyhow, nothing could be an absolute failure that has a Walt Disney short separating the ultra-colossal or regular feature from the extra-special four-star absolutely unparalleled super-stupendous preview feature.

Gossip About Cobb.

JUST a little effort to trace down gossip now going around: (I) The claim that I am going to play Scarlett in "Gone With the Wind" is absolutely unfounded. Latest word is that the coveted role will go to Fannie Brice, although the Ritz brothers are being mentioned. If they should be chosen, Scarlett will be played as a three-handed quartette.

(II) Dame Rumor hath it that the Atlantic sperm whale will be renamed the Justice Black sperm whale. Not yet confirmed, but sounds sort of plausible. The Atlantic sperm whale has a hide almost two feet thick.

(III) The statement that Charley McCarthy may join the reorganized brain trust at Washington remains unsettled. Probably without foundation. For while Charley is trained to sit upon his master's knee, he cannot be depended on to keep silent and has too many brains to be trusted.

(IV) Stories to the effect that Representative Ham Fish will be Republican nominee for President in 1940 may be regarded as absolutely authentic so far as Representative Ham Fish is concerned.

INFANTS' UTOPIA Youngsters Play at Will While Students Peek

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

IF LITTLE Johnny Jones next door makes up his mind that your youngster's sled is a prettier red and therefore more desirable than his own, and proceeds to appropriate it through the simple expedient of biffing your youngster in the eye and taking it away from him, don't tell your boy to turn the other eye and regard his neighbor only with humility. Tell him to biff right back—maybe twice, just to emphasize his point.

If your daughter insists on playing with her dolls so long that she is late for school, let her be late; she'll soon find out she can't get away with it.

And if you don't agree with these suggestions, you're probably not the only one. Nevertheless, they are characteristic of the New Deal in child psychology which is being given exhaustive "laboratory tests" for the first time in America at Fordham university, New York city's seat of higher education in the Bronx.

Frisch Had the Idea.

Fordham, distinguished as the alma mater of Frankie Frisch, is not accustomed to training her young hopefuls in unorthodox ways. Frankie, who used to play a whale of a lot of second base before aging legs forced him to the sidelines as manager of the garrulous Gas House Gang representing St. Louis in the National league, once gave managers heart failure by sliding into bases head first. All the laws of decency decree that it is far more desirable to slide feet first, so that your spikes may make hamburger of a stubborn baseman, than to come into the bag head first, making it a cinch for the same baseman to plant a hard sphere none to gently in the center of your physiognomy. But Frankie insisted on sliding his own queer way, just like he had been taught at Fordham, and lo! year after year he was discovered to lead the league in stolen bases when the annual statistics were compiled.

Now comes the Rev. Walter G. Summers, S. J., head of Fordham's department of psychology, with the announcement that the university is testing methods of child training which may appear to the average parent just about as practical as sliding head first appears to the average baseball coach.

The experiments are being conducted with ten bright-eyed youngsters, five boys and five girls aged three to five, sons and daughters of college graduates, and "signed up" by their parents for a year's study. For the babies, known at Fordham as the "Control Group for Study," it looks like a pretty slick deal, for they do nothing but have one grand time. The happier they are, the more successful is the course. They are perfect physical and psychological youngsters, normal in every respect.

Talking harshly to them is strictly taboo. No one will punish them; no one will say, "Ah, ah, mustn't touch!"; no one will "mama" them to the Nth degree; no one will hurry them up to eat their meals; no one will nag them, and no one will make them cry. In short, this is an infants' Utopia.

"Talent in Every Child."

Fordham's pre-school nursery is directed and maintained according to the teachings of Dr. Charlotte Buhler, of Vienna, world-famed exponent of child psychology. It is under the immediate direction of Mrs. Emilie D. Schloemer, assisted by Mrs. Anna Blitz.

Dr. Buhler's principles are simple enough. Expressed fundamentally, they are:

"Don't force a child's development—let it come naturally. There is talent in every child. Guide it when it arrives. Nature varies the pattern of every individual."

Students of the course will be able to follow closely, under ideal conditions, the normal development of a child's behavior. Focal points are reaction to language growth, physical development, intellectual development, emotional reactions and socialization.

On the third floor at Keating hall, Fordham's new graduate school building, is a specially constructed nursery. Every day at nine the children arrive and every day at noon they are taken home. So far as the children ever suspect, they are being brought simply to a pleasant nursery where there are lots of interesting playthings, a place to rest and no one to spoil their fun.

How to Stop "Gimmies."
But they are not so isolated as they think. On four-foot-high stools behind a one-way screen, students of child psychology watch their actions, unobserved.

The onlookers will be able thus to learn first hand why babies cry; why they shouldn't be nagged to eat their food; why they should be encouraged to take off their own hats, coats and rubbers; why they should not be rushed through their meals; why they should be encouraged to return a blow struck intentionally; why they should not be rushed into walking; why parents should not be over-anxious about the early expressions in a child's talk; how to stop a five-year-old youngster with the "gimmies" (one who says "gimme this" and "gimme that").

To put it briefly, the observers may learn how to be better mothers and fathers.

"After all," says Mrs. Schloemer, who interprets the Buhler theory in the nursery, "you have to live with your children 25 years, and a few common sense applications in bringing up a youngster might make the difference between a life of happiness and one of regret." This does not mean a few "common sense applications" on the seat of the pants, either, she says, and she has personally given individual training to 500 children.

Parents Are Impatient.
"Don't hurry your youngster," says Mrs. Schloemer. "Too many mothers rush their children through breakfast, rush them off to school and pepper them with a barrage of 'don't's' only an adult could remember. Let your child be late to school once in a while, but show him calmly that he did the wrong thing. The average parent has not enough patience. Any normal child wants to do the right thing and will, if he is given proper directional stability. Rushing children through breakfast results in nervous indigestion, and forcing them to eat cultivates it. I have seen children two to three years old vomit when food is put before them. Cause—too much nagging by the parents. The sight of food has become revolting.

"When one youngster hits another, let him strike back. Up to a certain age, all arguments should be settled this way. It creates independence, assertion and ultimate understanding. Please do not misunderstand that we advocate sponsoring hand to hand engagements. To children two, three and four years old, words mean little. It is action that registers here. Naturally, in adults it should be a battle of words to settle a misunderstanding.

"Don't over-mama your child. It robs him of self-development. There's too much mama-ing from grandmother, sister, aunt and cousin. The child's mother should be the mother."

Keep Promises to Children.
She stresses the importance of adults' building respect through integrity.

"Don't change your mind," she warns. "If you promise to take your child for a walk in the park—do it. Don't say, 'I've got to do something else.' A child wants to respect you. Before you promise something stop and figure out if you will be able to keep that promise."

"Don't spank your child—it is only an extreme measure.

"Don't give your children trick toys, such as balls that roll back when they should go ahead or gas balloons that go up when they should come down. This is unnatural; a young child cannot understand it. Let him play with toys that exemplify such things as rolling down an incline when pushed, rubber balls that bounce, project blocks that teach formations. Let him play with sand, and with paint—he'll figure things out for himself very quickly.

"Don't rush your child to walk. As soon as the organs are sufficiently strong he will be impelled to walk. A child seven to eight months sits up and starts to roll over; at ten months he'll pull himself up on a crib and shortly after that he'll start to attempt the first steps at locomotion.

You Can't Know Everything.
"Don't rush your child to talk; either. He'll talk when ready. If he pronounces words incorrectly, don't attempt to correct him. Do that in later years. You can't speak a foreign language correctly the first time you understand what words mean and later on you correct your mistakes in pronunciation. Language development in a child is similar."

Mrs. Schloemer declares no ordinary father or mother knows everything about a baby, and advises that a doctor be consulted occasionally, especially in preference to experimenting when there is any doubt.

"Don't give your children too much money for toys," she continues. "Even ten cents a day is too much. A daily contribution is a short cut to creating the 'gimmies' in your child. If he gets into tantrums say 'no' and mean it—he'll get over it."

Fordham's class was besieged with babies for the special nursery when the tests were being made, but the instructors are still looking for a healthy pair of twins to add to the class. In fact, they'll be doubly welcome at Keating hall.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for November 7 CHRISTIAN CHARACTER AND PEACE

LESSON TEXT—Colossians 3:1-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—And let the peace of God rule in your hearts, to the which also ye are called in one body.—Colossians 3:15.
PRIMARY TOPIC—In His Name.
JUNIOR TOPIC—In His Name.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How May I Have Peace?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian Cure for Strife.

Armistice day is but a few days away, a fact which was probably in mind when the title of our lesson was chosen, for while it speaks of "Christian character" it also refers to "peace." But the peace spoken of here is the peace of God which is the result of peace with God and which issues in holy living. The only hope of this world for a real and lasting peace is in the winning of men and women to glad allegiance to the Prince of Peace, our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ.

Altogether proper is the close connection in Scripture between the most profound spiritual truth and practical holy living. Whether it be done in a land of enlightenment or in the midst of heathen darkness the teaching of the deep things of God brings forth in the receptive heart an appreciation of God's provision for our redemption, a consciousness and hatred of sin and an appropriation of victory in Christ. All three of these factors emerge in the study of our lesson.

I. "Seek Those Things Which Are Above" (vv. 1-4).

Faith in Christ makes us one with him in his death and in his resurrection. We are therefore to live in resurrection power. Our Lord has entered into heaven, and is there seated at God's right hand. If we are in him, if we have died and arisen with him, we are dead to the things of this world and our one desire is to "seek those things which are above."

The mystic union of the believer with Christ brings us so close to God our Father that we may say with the poet:

"Near, so very near to God,
Nearer I could not be,
For in the person of His Son
I am as near as He."

We are "hid with Christ in God." He is our very life. Note however that this union with Christ expresses itself in a most practical manner for we as Christians are admonished to

II. "Mortify Your Members . . . upon the Earth" (vv. 5-9).

The most spiritual Christian is the one who is most sensitive to sin and most earnest in his purpose that it should be mortified—which means "put to death." We may not temporize—we must not compromise with sin. Put it to death. The list of things which are to be put away include a number of sins which we recognize at once as utterly inconsistent with a Christian profession. But note also that there are a number of them which are all too common among Christian people—covetousness, anger, wrath, malice, and so forth. Lying and shameful talk are condoned by some (and practiced by many).

III. "Put On the New Man" (vv. 11-17).

Christianity is positive. We put off sin—we put on righteousness. Knowing no lines of racial or creedal distinction we recognize Christ as "all and in all." Then as "God's elect, holy and beloved," we are clothed with the Spirit of Christ. Tenderhearted, kind, lowly, meek, of a forgiving spirit, long-suffering; all these Christlike ways of living should appear in those who are hid with him in God. As the encircling band which holds together these beautiful and precious virtues, we have love, "the bond of perfectness" (v. 14).

These outward manifestations of our oneness with Christ have an inward controlling power—for in our hearts "the peace of Christ" is to "rule." The word means to serve as "umpire," as a referee in times of difficulty. There in the Christian man's inmost being we also find the "word of Christ" dwelling, really abiding, and not in scarcity but "richly." Small wonder that there is in such a heart a never-ending song which glorifies God's grace and which helps and admonishes others.

Our final verse sums up the life of the Christian, for in whatsoever he does there is but one motive, one purpose—a willing thankful response to the will of God. He does nothing that he cannot do in the name of the Lord Jesus.

The Thought of God
The thought of the Divine excellence and beauty, how far it is exalted above us and yet how sweetly it shines upon us.

Result of Experience
Experience is a grindstone; and it is lucky for us if we can get brightened by it, and not ground.—W. H. Shaw.

Victory belongs to the most persevering.—Napoleon.

Favorite Recipe of the Week

Dinner-in-a-Pie

1 veal kidney 2 small carrots
1 cup pearl onions 1 cup tomato soup
1 small white turnip 1/2 cup liquid cr.
1 1/2 cups cooked gravy
meat, diced 1/2 cup peas

Trim and dice kidney. Prepare onions, turnips, carrots. Cook kidney and vegetables 10 minutes in boiling salted water. Drain, saving 1/2 cup liquid to thin soup. Fill baking dish (1 1/2 quart) with meat and vegetables. Add pepper and salt. Add tomato soup and 1/2 cup liquid. Cover with your favorite pie crust.

I WAS NEVER SO EMBARRASSED

-FOR I KNEW THAT ACID-INDIGESTION WAS DISTRESSING TO ME AND OFFENSIVE TO OTHERS BUT NOW—I JUST

ALKALIZE THE EASY PHILLIPS' WAY

The quick way to alkalize is this: Take two teaspoons of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia 30 minutes after eating and drinking. Or, when among others—take two Phillips' Tablets that come in a small flat tin you carry in purse or vest pocket.—You do it unnoticed. Relief is almost immediate. "Gas," nausea, acid breath and other offensive symptoms leave.—That "stuffed" feeling and pains from "acid indigestion" cease to annoy. You feel great. This is the way, we believe, more doctors use than any other when alkalizing upset stomach.

TIME

Works With You When You Save

Time passes and you cannot stop it. The years never come your way again.

What a wonderful thing it is that you can do with money what you cannot do with Time. You can save money. You can put it in your bank account and have it grow at interest. And later, when perhaps you are not so well able to work, you will have these young dollars—for dollars never grow old—ready to serve you and keep you in comfort and independence.

Let Time go. But deposit regularly now some part of what you are earning.

TELEPHONE SERVICE HAS INCREASED IN VALUE; RATES HAVE DECREASED

Michigan today is enjoying really remarkable values in telephone service.

The Company's material and labor costs have increased substantially since reductions in rates were made in 1934, 1935 and 1936. In 1934 rates for service to farmers and for long distance service were reduced; in 1935 the long distance night rate was made effective at 7 o'clock every night and was extended to all day every Sunday; in 1936 further reductions were made in the rates for long distance and for various other services and items of equipment, and the charges for installing and moving telephones were drastically cut.

At the same time the average individual's income has improved, and prices asked for many other items and services have gone up.

Yet telephone service is still available at the reduced rates; the quality of the service never was higher; and its value to the community is increasing daily, as indicated by the increasing number of calls made per telephone.

Model for Silver Coin

The model for the head of Liberty on the peace dollar of 1921 was Mrs. Anthony de Francisci, the wife of the sculptor who designed the coin. The sculptor has declared that the face on the coin is a composite face typifying something of America.

Miss Anna D. Williams of Philadelphia was the model for the profile of Liberty on the silver dollar minted from 1878 to 1904; no silver dollars were coined from 1905 to 1920. The number of stars appears to have no particular significance, except that as there were 15 states in 1794 when the first silver dollars were minted, 15 stars appeared on these coins. In 1797 a star was added for Tennessee, but later dollars had only 15 or 13 stars.

Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a tumbler of water.
By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating.
This speed of disintegration enables genuine BAYER Aspirin tablets to start "taking hold" of headache and similar pain a few minutes after taking.

All people who suffer occasionally from headaches ought to know this way to quick relief.

At the first sign of such pain, take two Bayer Aspirin tablets with a half glass of water. Sometimes if the pain is more severe, another dose is necessary later, according to directions.

If headaches keep coming back we advise you to see your own physician. He will look for the cause in order to correct it.

The price now is only 15¢ for twelve tablets or two full dozen for 25 cents—virtually, only a cent apiece.

Dad's Birthday Party Raises Note Problem

DEAR Mrs. Post: Will you please write a form of invitation for us under the following circumstances? I am one of four children, only one of us married, who want to give a party in honor of my father's birthday, although I suppose it would be better not to mention the occasion. We would like to write the invitations by hand on small sized note paper stamped with our house address. While we are asking at least 75 people we want the invitation to sound as friendly and informal as possible.

Answer: I would suggest that each one of you write notes to your own personal friends, and that whoever has most time and perhaps neatest handwriting also write those to your father's friends and relatives, following this general wording: "Mary, Jim, Bob and I are having a party for father, on Sunday afternoon, January 31st. Won't you come in between four and six o'clock?" As you notice, I have left the birthday out, but this does not mean that I think it improper to write, "Mary, Jim, Bob and I are having a birthday party for father" because those who know him very well and know it is his birthday will probably bring him a present, and this might make others who are very fond of him and would have liked to remember his birthday feel that they have come empty-handed. On the other hand, in going to a birthday party of any size no one should feel obliged to take a present.

Are Parents Obligated for Children's Visits?

DEAR Mrs. Post: What is my position regarding the parents of friends of my daughter? She is at college far away and goes home frequently with the girls whose homes are closer to the school. She sometimes mentions in her letters home that these girls' parents are going to New York on a holiday, and as we live in the environs of New York I'm wondering whether it is expected that we extend some kind of hospitality to the parents at such times.

Answer: Your real obligation is in encouraging her to invite these girls home with her when they have longer recesses or perhaps to let her ask them to come between school terms when they can stay longer. But why don't you ask her whether she wants you to show particular hospitality to the parents she knows especially well, and what she suggests. She knows what type of people they are and whether they have friends in New York, or on the other hand, whether they are going as strangers or whether the mothers are likely to be alone while their husbands attend to business, or just what the individual situations are.

Note Is Mandatory

DEAR Mrs. Post: A man I know spent a week-end at my married brother's house. My sister-in-law had let me ask him so that my visit would be more pleasant. She and my brother certainly put themselves out to entertain us. I feel that the least my friend can do is write her a note, which I happen to know he hasn't done. Is there a way I could remind him to write her, because his thoughtlessness certainly puts me in a bad light?

Answer: I can think of nothing else to do except say to him, "I hate to ask you to write another one, but my sister-in-law never got your letter." Then he will probably say, "What letter?" and you answer, "Why, didn't you write and say anything for that pleasant week-end we had?" And that is that!

Butter Balls Remain

DEAR Mrs. Post: Has the vogue for "butter balls" gone out? Several years ago it seemed that every hostess served fancy designs of individual butter portions but today I never see them anywhere.

Answer: No, I think butter balls are still seen in many houses although it is true that in quite as many others butter is simply cut neatly into squares. The reason is probably that of time saving since very few of us have as many servants as we used to. One might, in fact, say that comparatively few have any.

Better Late Than Never

DEAR Mrs. Post: Is one supposed to be able to hold over social obligations from one season to the next? I should have entertained several new friends last spring but had no money to give a party of any kind then. I'm wondering if now, which is the first it has been possible, would be considered too late to repay these kindnesses?

Answer: Not at all. There is no time limit on any return you want to make. After all, there are so many reasons why we may not be able to do what we want to when we want to.

Strange Pals of the Animal Kingdom

Picture Parade

Animals, like human beings, often make strange friendships for which there is little explanation. For instance, a cat usually looks upon Nellie was a New York spaniel. She roamed the streets homeless and hungry. Her eight puppies all died shortly after they were born, because the poor thing had been undernourished. But in a home for stray animals Nellie found eight new-born kittens who had lost their mother. She adopted them and they adopted her, proving that there is always an outlet for mother-love.

Pictured below Nellie and her feline brood is another odd animal affection. The Bible says that there'll come a time when the lion and the lamb shall lie down together, and here is the King of Beasts practicing up for the occasion with his bosom pal, a little black dog. Their owner is Mrs. A. J. Nannetti, of Oakland, Calif.

Furs or feathers, it really makes little difference. Above, an Australian Tabby throws a paw about her pal, the cockatoo. At right is a hen in a Chicago suburb. Deprived of her chicks, she adopted a brood of collie pups.

And just to prove once more that mother love knows no bounds in animal life, we present this kind-hearted kitty who adopted a brood of frisky yellow chicks.

Enemies by tradition, this dog and fox are friends in fact.

There May Be Many Reasons for Making Quilted Chair Pads.

IF ALL the reasons for quilted chair pads were lined up in order of their importance the most intangible reason of all might head the list. Yes, it is quite likely that any decorator, amateur or professional would place atmosphere at the top. But then it is also possible that first rating might be given to the reason that the pressure of slats across the backs of chairs is softened by quilted pads. Then, though it might not be mentioned, it is a known fact that worn out cane seats are sometimes replaced with inexpensive composition seats which may be disguised by gay quilted pads. Chintz, calico or gingham chair pads are in fact one of the simplest and most inexpensive ways of adding color and charm as well as comfort to a room. Such pads are often used on the backs of chairs and not on the seats, and especially for side chairs, the seat pads used without any back covering. In making such small things as these it is quite easy to do the quilting on the machine. Or, if you wish to take the other point of view about it, the work of quilting them by hand would not consume an unreasonable amount of time. There is no doubt that handwork has a certain quaintness that machine work lacks.

The pads shown here are made with one layer of sheet wadding between the two layers of the chintz. The edge bindings and ties are made of bias tape. Cut the three layers of the pad material exactly the size and shape you want them to be when finished.

Place the sheet wadding between the two layers of covering material as shown here at A. Either pin or baste in this position, and then quilt as shown here at B. Make the ties by stitching the lengthwise edges of the bias tape together, and then tack them to the corners of the pad as at C before it is bound. Now, bind the edges, sewing the ties right in with the binding as shown here at D.

Every Homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' new book, SEWING. Forty-eight pages of step-by-step directions for making slipcovers and dressing tables; restoring and upholstering chairs, couches; making curtains for every type of room and purpose. Making lampshades, rugs, ottomans and other useful articles for the home. Readers wishing a copy should send name and address, enclosing 25 cents, to Mrs. Spears, 2110 South Desplaines St., Chicago, Illinois.

OF INTEREST TO THE HOUSEWIFE

Towel Holders.—Either a spring-type clothespin, or the paper clamp from a loose-leaf notebook, properly nailed to the wall makes a satisfactory towel hanger for the basement.

Cooking Doughnuts.—Doughnuts will crack and brown before they are thoroughly cooked inside if they contain too much flour or if the fat in which they are fried is not hot enough.

Save Stale Bread Crumbs.—Bread that has become hard and stale can be ground into crumbs, browned in the oven, and used for improving the flavor and appearance of many dishes. Store in an airtight tin.

Uses for Beef Marrow.—Beef marrow is very nutritious. Add it to the suet for meat puddings and forcemeat, and to stews and soups. Mixed with tinned tomato puree, or haricot bean puree, you get excellent mixture for a savory toast.

Tomato Marmalade.—Half cup vinegar, one cup sugar, one quart chopped tomatoes, one teaspoon mixed spices, one teaspoon salt, spices. Cook together until thoroughly dissolved. Pour into shallow pan and cook in slow oven for one and a quarter hours. Turn into sterilized jars and cover with paraffin while hot.

When to Add Salt.—Salt will curdle new milk. In preparing porridge, gravies, etc., salt should not be added until the dish is prepared.

Keeping Boards From Warping.—Warping of long boards can be prevented to a considerable extent by standing them on end or on one edge so both sides are equally exposed to the weather.

'Tis Said Arithmetic Is a Science of Truth

"Figures can't lie," said the professor earnestly. "For instance, if one can build a house in twelve days, twelve men can build it in one."

"Yes," interrupted a quick-brained student. "Then 288 will build it in one hour, 17,280 in one minute, and 1,036,800 in one second. And I don't believe they could lay one brick in that time."

While the professor was still gasping, the smart one went on: "Again, if one ship can cross the Atlantic in six days, six ships can cross it in one day. I don't believe that either; so where's the truth in arithmetic?"

Still Coughing?

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Cromulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Cromulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm. Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Cromulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Cromulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Cromulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

CHAPTER X—Continued

Almost daily canoes linked the trading post with the camp where Rodney Shaw recuperated. He had been sitting up, came the word; he had stood on his feet, later. He had walked a few steps. He was eating as a man should eat. Basile came, an uneasy light in his eyes.

"The trader may return any day," he said, watching her face.

"What delays him, Basile?" she asked pointedly.

"My firmness. I plead and argue. I invent delays. For a week he has been going about from lodge to lodge, gaining strength rapidly but, as well, gaining impatience to return here. I must prevent that return until . . . until the place is as he left it . . . But, mademoiselle!—quickly when she swayed as from a blow. "He has forbidden mention of you! Such a man! One does not know . . . One knows he is in your debt . . . One feels he should not think such thoughts . . . But what does one do?"

Yes, what did one do? Too long in the forest, this Basile, to determine the strategy which would have brought him and these others peace. He was in distress. He knew the hotness of young blood should not frustrate the longings of young hearts. But how to arrange such matters: how to temper prejudice and arrange better understandings, he did not know.

A word to her would have sufficed; the repetition of Shaw's declaration that he had seen her cloak in Burke Rickman's quarters, and way to the goal would have been achieved. But he had not the fineness of perception, the insight into the complexities of youth to realize that. He was accustomed to obey Shaw's orders. Shaw had banned talk of the girl. He could not reason behind that command. On such disabilities, at times, do destinies hinge.

Slowly, as one in physical pain, Annette made her final preparations for departure. She prolonged each small operation as one will when loath to leave a place behind and it was near dusk when she finished and closed the small chest and with a deep sigh tossed her head.

She turned, then, to Rodney's table and, taking ink and quill and paper, sat for long, writing slowly, painstakingly, weighing each word she inscribed. Finished, she folded the paper and left it there and, dusk having fallen, she told her boatmen to be ready an hour before dawn and until the appointed time she lay staring at the glowing logs in the fireplace, numb and resigned.

During her weeks at Fort Shaw she had thought now and again of Rickman's menace. She was not particularly concerned, not afraid. Still, she had chosen such an hour for departure because none would know and she could be well on her way before the news had even a slight chance of spreading up and down the lake.

Still, as they breasted the point where Rickman stalked she felt a tensely creep through her body and when they were beyond a sense of relief made itself known.

They stopped but shortly for food after daylight and then kept on going down the slow flowing tributary to the great Mississippi. Later they met a canoe paddled by two women who had been gathering rice. They were not pillagers, not people of Shaw's domain, though living and hunting on its edge.

Around the bend, the woman in the stern said:

"That was the white medicine woman. It was she who cured the little trader of his sickness."

"She is the one the woman who married a company runner says that Flaming Hair boasts he will take when he has had rum."

"It is said that both Flaming Hair and the little trader want her for a wife."

"She has the sign of running away."

"She has that sign."

The woman in the stern chewed tobacco rapidly.

"Flaming Hair would welcome word of her."

"It is so."

"And with only two skins of rice to trade he may open his hands wider if we give him that word."

"You are swift of thought, Wabegum. Let us go faster!"

"Yes, it will be good. My thoughts are like spring water."

CHAPTER XI

So Rodney Shaw came home to his fort, gaunt and still a bit pale, but erect in his canoe.

The wind blew chill that day but he had refused the capote which his men urged him to wear. He was not cold, he declared; the new life in his veins had plenty of warmth.

This was true. His splendid vitality had rebounded amazingly from the depths to which Mongazid's bullet had reduced it and his body felt no discomfort from the autumnal wind.

A chill, however, lay upon his heart and in his eyes as they stared across the water to his establishment was a bleakness. He felt as he had felt for days; as if the sun were permanently gone. In the beginning he had attributed the sensation to physical weakness but realized that this was an error. Toughened to hardship, with the splendid foundation of vigor on which to rebuild strength, his body had regained much of what had been lost. Not all, of course, but much. He could walk and paddle; his heart no longer pounded his ribs at slight exertion; his voice had recaptured its vibrant timbre. Still, he felt cold.

He stepped ashore, now, without the feeling of achievement which he had anticipated.

Men left tasks and ran to greet him, shouting and laughing. A halt dozen Indians loitering about the place stared. One of the engages had taken a native wife and Rodney stopped to speak to the girl and bid her welcome and try to make a joke about her husband.

"You Are Swift of Thought, Wabegum."

He stood a moment before his quarters, looking about. A great flock of red-winged blackbirds, ready for their annual leave taking, rose and dipped and whirled above the fort like soot flakes tossing on a gale.

He was back, safe, alive, treading the ground of his stronghold, and it was good.

Good to be there? A tingling stab ran his breast as he told himself it was good to be back within that stockade. He had ached and hungered to be back, thinking return would bring relief from the pall which hung above him. He would have been back days before had not Basile persisted in his argument that the trade, after all that had happened, demanded that Rodney be seen among the scattered hunters. This was reasonable and Shaw had yielded to the old man's nagging, restless though he had become.

That feeling of being under a cloud had increased with the days. He knew its beginnings, the time and the reason, but he would not let himself dwell on those. He knew it dated from the moment he had sent Annette Leclere away.

He had sent her away in bitterness, but he had not wanted her to leave. His heart had wanted her to remain close to him, to comfort him, to hear the questions he ached to ask. But his mind would not permit that heart to have its way. She had been in Rickman's quarters here, after pleading in the streets of Mackinac with Rickman not to leave her. Surely, then, she had come to Rickman. She had served him, Shaw, but only as any woman would serve any man, wounded and in need.

A gnawing wonder harried him. Had she not, once or twice or thrice, actually felt the things her looks and touches told him she felt back there at Mackinac? Was there not, after all that had happened, a chance that her blood might call to his as his once had to hers? He'd wanted to ask her those things. His heart had. But his mind, filled with animosity and doubt, would not let his heart have its way; would run no risk of letting that heart demand its way. So he had banished her and the pall had settled.

Fish were smoking on racks of wickets over a fire. A hunter was just then unloading the carcasses of two deer from his canoe. Rice was heaped yonder on an oilcloth. Against the wall were newly delivered packs of fur from some native who was already discharging his debt. A well-stocked, profitable establishment, this; the sort of domain free men dreamed of building in the wilderness. It was his, despite opposition. It was his to hold easily, now.

And yet, despite all this, it was not good to be here. The place was filled and yet it was empty; the fort had permanence and instability together; he had a feeling of homecoming and departure; much lay ahead but more behind, irrevocably behind.

He walked into his quarters where Jacques was making a fire and again that feeling which had swept and rocked him at Mackinac reasserted itself. Again he thought what it would be for a trader, coming home to lips and arms and eyes like hers. Again he saw loneliness and hardship without mellowing tenderness stretching before him down the years.

"Voilà!" muttered Jacques, rising from the hearth as flames crackled. Jacques went out, closing the door. Rodney moved slowly about. He stopped beside the table, staring down at the paper folded there. His name was inscribed on it in a fine and delicate script.

Trembling, he snatched up the paper, opened its folds, sank to the bench and began to read:

My Dear Rodney:
When this comes to your attention your wish that I be gone will be wholly granted. I have spent days here unknown to you and I pray you will not be harsh with Basile when you become aware of it.

One of the objects of my coming here was to say to you that nothing you can ever think of me for the mischief I did will be undeserved. I attempted to say this at your bedside but you would not hear me out. I bear you no resentment for that dismissal.

I beg of you to consider this. When I betrayed your plan to Burke Rickman I was a girl, plucked and hurt. I have matured, I believe, in the months that have passed and this maturity has only increased my perception of the enormity of my misdeed. I shall carry my regrets throughout life.

This is all I have to say, dear Rodney. It would have been a privilege to say it rather than write it. But, being the transparent, I can ask no favor.

I wish you only health and happiness and good fortune.

Annette Leclere.

He looked slowly up from the paper, his mind completely in a swirl. She here? She . . . preparing for return? Return where? With whom? His heart pelted at his ribs and his throat swelled. A letter such as that, sweet, gentle, humble. . . . But her cloak had been in Rickman's quarters! She had come to him from the company fort!

"Jacques!" he called, lunging for the door. "Jacques!"

Jacques was there. Not in answer to his call. But there, eyes large and excited and strained words on his lips.

"The clerk, Rich, from the company, awaits at the gate!" he blurted.

"Clerk? Rich? Company? Devil take him! . . . Jacques, what of the ma'm'selle? Was she here? When did she leave? What was . . ."

A rising clamor of voices and pound of feet broke his question down. He moved slightly to look past Jacques and saw Conrad Rich racing toward him.

"Forgive this, Shaw!" Rich panted, coming to a halt. "They wouldn't let me in. . . . But it's more'n life and death that fetches me here!"

Rodney was struck by the genuineness of the man's emotion. "Annette!" he finally got the word out explosively. "She's on the way out and Rickman . . . he's hard after her!"

Cold within Rodney turned to warmth, to heat, to fire.

"Is this another wild scheme?" he snarled. "Is this another attempt by you company hirelings to suck a man into a trap where he—"

"Shaw, leave off! It's no time for talk such as that! D'you think I'd be here if—that was so? D'you think I'd risk my skin comin' here for trade? It's a woman this time, I'm to say, and there's none at our establishment to stand by her! Listen!" he said as Rodney's hold re-

Hiking Is Not Lost Art; Many People Average More Than Five Miles a Day

Hiking for health and pleasure is not a lost American habit. It persists in spite of what many believe. There are those who decry the automobile as being responsible for the public's lack of interest in this most healthful exercise. They say where once we would walk a dozen blocks to keep an appointment, we now hop into a cab. Instead of walking two or three miles to work in the morning, we grab the nearest bus.

Yet with all this pessimism, writes Albert Stoll, Jr., in the Detroit News, the American public is just as much a race of walkers as it was in the days of "Old Dobbin." Although the automobile has changed the walking habits of many, it has not brought any change in the daily footsteps of a multitude of workers. The plowman behind his team still walks many miles a day. The postman contributes his 10 miles. The patrolman, night watchman, surveyor and school children still add up their daily foot mileage and what of the golfer who does at least laxed. "It's all he's planned on for days. It's all he's lived for, this chance at her! It drove him wild when she came, callin' the military back. 'Nd he schemed to kill you so's he could have not only the trade but her!"

"Military? She called them back?"

"Fore-God, Shaw, didn't you know? But how could you? No, you couldn't! . . . Listen! Rickman sent back for the military to come 'nd drag you out of here to stand trial. They come. Capes. But Annette knowed it. She'd worked for you back yonder. She'd got Leslie's Giles to take your part so's they'd kill the warrant. But Capes was on th' way and there was nobody else to send to call him back. So she come . . . th' night we fired your place, here. That's what touched Rickman off, I tell you, mani! It drove him wild. She, standin' tellin' him as how she was 'tyin' when she begged him to stay at Mackinac; as how she only done it to give you a chance to get free and here ahead of us. He went mad, I tell you, man, 'nd ripped her cloak off and she had to run for it. . . ."

He paused again, panting, and Rodney stood before him, jaw loose.

"She didn't come . . . to him?" he asked in a whisper.

"Eh? Him? You didn't know? She didn't tell? When she was nursin' you she didn't give it away? Him?"

"Was you she come for, Shaw; it's you she loves! And she's goin' back and he's after her and it'll be like devils from hell tearin' at her tender flesh if he ever gets—"

Shaw was past him, then, spinning him to one side with an arm thrust, jerking open the door, crying:

"Jacques! . . . Jacques! . . . Two men and a light canoe! Now, Jacques, now!"

An hour's start, miles of advantage, had Burke Rickman.

As Rodney set his course to the southward to have the strategic shelter of the chain of islands, he made the other out, far, far off.

An hour passed, and two, without further sight of Rickman. The last island of the chain was a full league in length and beyond lay much open water. When they breasted this final shelter he cursed his boatmen and the canoe quivered as they drove blades deeper.

Jacques, in the bow, spoke guardedly:

"They have not passed beyond."

Out there was steel-blue water, sullen under clouds the hue of new iron. Upon it, as far as they could see, floated no other craft.

"Turn . . . so . . ." Rodney extended his left hand; the bow swung toward the red bed at the foot of the island. He picked up a rifle and examined the priming critically. Reeds hissed against the birch bark as they slipped into their cover, making out toward the far edge where, from concealment, he could watch for approach.

The channel between island and mainland was narrow. This oncoming canoe would pass within a stone's throw.

"Be ready!" he muttered, slowly lowering his head for better screening. . . . "Ready, Jacques. . . . The paddle on the bottom. . . . So! . . . Silently, at first. . . . Now. . . . Now!"

The bow swung outward; with stout shoves of the paddles they followed the point of the red bed, out toward deeper water, out to cross the course of that other canoe.

They glided from their shelter into full view and Shaw rose to his knees, swinging the rifle to his shoulder, and in the split instant consumed by this movement he saw Rickman's face; amazement, bewilderment, high fright and venomous hatred.

Friendly Talk

BUT after all, the very best thing in good talk and the thing that helps it most is friendship. How it dissolves the barriers that divide us, and loosens all constraint—this feeling that we understand and trust each other, and wish each other heartily well! Everything into which it really comes is good. It transforms letter-writing from a task into a pleasure. It makes music a thousand times more sweet. The people who play and sing not at us, but to us—how delightful it is to listen to them!

Yes, there is a talkability that can express itself even without words. There is an exchange of thought and feeling which is happy alike in speech and in silence. It is quietness pervaded with friendship.—Van Dyke.

1,334 . . . twelve juniors and seniors, five sophomores, and eight freshmen wear glasses . . . there are over one thousand eight hundred window panes in the high school building?

THE SOPHOMORE PARTY

In a class meeting October 26, the sophomores decided to have an invitation party Friday, November 12. There were three committees appointed as follows: Entertainment, Eldeva Woodcock, Bill Chanda, Keith Rogers, Archie Nemecek, Marie Gunolus, and Dorothy Thomas; Clean up, Rex Gibbard, Irving Bennett, Bill Politt, LeRoy Sloop, Thelma Olson, Madeline Shay, Gladys St. Charles, Shirley Sturgell and Marjorie Mayville; Refreshment, Dorothy Stanek, Clifford Ayres, Ada Metcalf, Doris Holland, Alice Clough, John Pray, Francis Kaley. The chaperons invited were Miss Mary C. King, Miss Mary E. Finch, Merton G. Roberts and John B. Smith.

PING PONG

Although the ping pong tournaments are as yet quite distant, already some contestants are practicing for them. Every morning, noon, and night after school the balls go "pinging" and "ponging" back and forth across the nets.

CAFETERIA OPENED

On Friday, October 29, the school cafeteria under the direction of Mrs. Thomas Whiteford and Miss Marjorie Smitten, started serving hot lunches to 202 students of the elementary grades and to the thirty-seven high school students who are underweight. This practice, as in other years, is to continue throughout the winter months.

4-H CLOTHING CLUB

The 4-H winter club organized recently with Mrs. Leitha Larson as leader. The officers were elected as follows: President, Betty Strehl; vice president, Barbara Bader; secretary, Thelma Brown; and treasurer, June Ager. The club has a total of twenty-eight members. There are three fourth year members who are working on room projects. The one third year member is making a wool dress. The three second year members have a cotton clothing project, and the twenty-one first year members are making dish towels. (These evidently are not for their hope chests, or can they be?)

CHATTER

"Chit and Chat of This and That"
 Resurrections of past glories were observed adorning the gym for Friday night's frolic. Remnants of J-Hop decorations for many years back were utilized — creating a dazzling and startling effect.

We find the juniors very much concerned these days. The selection of the annual Junior play is causing many an aspiring actor's heart to beat faster.

Have you noticed that at the request of Coach Cohn he had paraded in full uniform? (That is, if a cap and cape can be considered a uniform.)

Our janitors should be complimented on the fact that the tunnel between the two buildings is now neat and ship-shape — and we don't need a road-map in the store-room either.

There is one compensation for all the rainy days we've been having recently during inclement weather — we may dance at noon.

Captain Bud Porter is well started on his pre-medic course. He applied first-aid to his own victims on the football squad.

The "boos" and "bahs" have been changed to "Raahs" since the explosion at the pep meeting preceding the Charlevoix game.

From far and near members are rejoining the class of '38. The names of Betty Cook of Washington, D. C., and Frank Strehl of Flint, Mich., are the latest to reappear on the class roll. "Old High School We're Loyal — We'll Stand by you Always."

We sure you have a pompon for the homecoming game!

GRADE NEWS

False-faced ghosts, goblins, cats, and witches capered in all the grades school rooms last Friday afternoon. Each room had its own separate Halloween party with games, entertainment, and refreshments.

The students of the sixth grade are making health posters showing the five classes of food.

Their museum still is the center of attraction, and additional interesting articles have been brought in by the students. Among them is a cup and saucer brought from Norway, which is inscribed with Norwegian writing.

FOOTBALL BOYS ENTERTAINED

The football boys were guests of the Board of Education at the supper sponsored by the ladies of St. Joseph Catholic Church Tuesday evening, October 26.

A special table had been prepared for them, nicely decorated with the school colors, a football, and goalposts. But due to a misunderstanding of the time, their table was taken and they were forced to separate and eat at different tables.

Despite the obstacles, the boys enjoyed their chicken suppers.

THE NEW RECORDS

Sixteen new records were bought for the school. They are: Danse Macabre, In a Clock Store, Hunt in the Black Forest, Shepards Hey, Narcissus, Serenade, Peter the Vagabond, Rhythms for Children, Norwegian Bridal Procession, Swedish Wedding March, A Deserted Farm, Brier Rabbit, Bunch of Roses, Wedding of the Winds, El Capitan, Stars and Stripes Forever, The Glow Worm, Blue Danube Waltz, Country Gardens, Parade of the Wooden Soldiers, To a Wild Rose, In the Hall of the Mountain King, Anitra's Dance, Valse Triste, In a Persian Market, In a Chinese Temple Garden, Hearts and Flowers, A Legend, Instruments of the Orchard, and The Jolly Coppersmith.

TWINS IN PUBLIC SCHOOL

There are six pairs of twins in the public school this year.

In the second grade are the Umlor girls, Sue and Mary. They are now six years old and will be seven November 18.

Albert and LeRoy Touchstone, another pair of twins, are now nine years old and will be ten January 14. They are in the fourth grade.

The fifteen year old boys, Clyde and Clifford Green, are in the ninth grade. Their birthday is April 18.

The eighth grade twins are Betty and Bobby Strehl. They are thirteen years of age and will be fourteen June 30.

Minnie and Anna Nelson are in the eleventh grade and were sixteen October 30.

The twelfth grade twins are Wilma and Walter Shepard. They were seventeen years old October 21.

PEP CLUB

The Pep Club again swings into action by formulating plans to be carried out at the Homecoming, November 5.

The club appointed a committee of five to arrange for the special pep-meeting preceding the game. They are: Kathryn Kitsman, Raymond Richardson, Bob Crowell, Betty Cook and Marty Clark.

The members are selling novelties and school emblems.

An agreement has been made with the business men of East Jordan who will close Friday afternoon from 3:00 o'clock until 5:00 o'clock during the homecoming game with Gaylord.

Invitations to past foot-ball captains of East Jordan to attend the home-coming have also been issued by the club.

GALA HALLOWEEN PARTY GIVEN BY PEP CLUB

A "sho-nuff" negro mammy (Harry Watson) and a tattered old hobo (Louise Scott) won the costume prizes at the Halloween party last Friday night.

One-hundred seventy-three celebrants-crowded the gym which was gaily decorated in every color of the rainbow. At each black board orange and black crepe paper was hung with figures representing Halloween.

Almost everyone now knows what the future holds in store for him, thanks to the fortune tellers who were present. And while ghosts and goblins haunted the air, a ghost story was told by Mr. E. E. Wade, making shivers run up and down the spines of the listeners.

The floor show continued with a tap dance by Peggy Drew. Clare Wade played a saxophone solo. Bud St. Arno sang cowboy songs and played his guitar.

Everyone joined in dancing. The Grand March was led by Clare Wade and Arthur Rude. Prizes were given to the funniest costumes.

For those who did not enjoy dancing, bingo games, checkers, and ping pong provided entertainment.

E. JORDAN - ROGERS CITY GAME

East Jordan won over Rogers City here Saturday 6 to 0. The score was made by Bennett after a series of fine plays by Gregory.

Runs were made for Rogers City by Schultz and Newhouse.

In the third period Rogers City completed a pass bringing them on East Jordan's three yard line, but fell short of a score because of a fumble.

East Jordan recovered, placing the ball on the twenty yard line. Rogers City made attempts to score in the fourth period but were held because of downs.

IN THE WAKE OF FLOOD

This scene was enacted many times in refugee centers established by the Red Cross during the Ohio-Mississippi Valley flood. Inevitably floods bring the danger of disease as drinking sources become contaminated and large groups of people are thrown together. The medical-health service of the Red Cross serves thousands each year, and is maintained by membership funds contributed to the organization at the time of its annual Roll Call from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving.

YOUR ELECTRIC COMPANY helps to build your community . . .

The Michigan Public Service Company is vitally interested in the development of each community it serves, as it has hundreds of thousands of dollars invested to serve you.

It is one of the largest taxpayers in your community, paying out for taxes approximately 10% of what you pay it for your electric service. Your company serves you at low rates and in addition helps to share your tax burden.

The modern servant "Electricity" helps to develop this Resort Region, thus assisting to attract thousands of dollars in business to local merchants.

More than one hundred and fifty employes who operate this system are your friends and neighbors and do their part to bring progress to your community.

The welfare of your electric company is also the welfare of yourself and your family.

A Year of Record Service

More than a million persons, flooded out of homes and livelihood by nation's greatest flood catastrophe in Ohio-Mississippi Valleys, rescued, fed, housed, clothed, and given medical care.

A quarter million families rehabilitated in homes, farms and small businesses in flood zone.

Relief fund of $25,000,000 contributed by the public, expended for food-stricken families.

Relief given in 115 additional disasters; 50 in the United States, 70 in insular possessions and 6 in foreign nations.

Red Cross public health nurses made 1,000,000 visits to the sick; 35,000 persons taught Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick.

220,000 persons taught First Aid; 30,000 persons taught Life Saving; 50,000 C.C.C. enrollees taught both courses.

1,600 Emergency First Aid stations established on highways to cut motor accident toll; Mobile First Aid units put into operation.

7,000,000 homes and farms self-checked for accident hazards.

8,000,000 school boys and girls enrolled in Junior Red Cross.

Aid given disabled veterans, their dependents and men now in active service; Civilian Relief given by Red Cross Chapters in 725 communities.

Service given by half million volunteers in flood; making garments; transcribing braille books for the blind; motor corps and canteen services.

The Red Cross operates through 3,700 Chapters and their 9,000 Branches. Every one who joins through the local Chapter supports these services to the public.

WHAT IS YOUR PROBLEM?—War veterans, their dependents, and service men, in hospital or out, are aided by Red Cross in solving their difficulties.

SWIM WITH SAFETY—Eighty thousand taught annually Red Cross methods of rescue and resuscitation of the drowning; Pensacola aviators demonstrate "carry" of unconscious victim.
