Cooking School Meets Approval

LADIES ATTENDING GET MANY VALUABLE IDEAS

The Charlevoix County Herald's first Motion Picture Cooking School — "The Bride Wakes Up" — was well received by the large number of ladies attending during the three afternoons of last week. Excellent weather conditions prevailed and there were in attendance quite a number of ladies from the Ellsworth section as well as from rural sections around East Jordan.

Many of the ladies attending were good enough to tell The Herald publisher that they liked the motion picture form of a cooking school much better than the other varieties — that the close-ups explained the various processes of both cooking and washing quite satisfactorily.

Local merchants, together with national manufacturers, combined to offer some fifty gifts to the ladies for the three days. These proved to be an added incentive to be in attendance.

While it is too early yet to plan on the future, The Herald hopes to be able to present another of these educational features sometime within a year.

In passing The Herald wishes to thank the many persons for their help in making the School a success. Among those assisting were Manager Drew of The Temple; Atty E. K. Reuling, president of our Chamber of Commerce, who addressed the ladies on the opening day; and Miss Smitten, Home Ec. instructor of our public schools, who supplied four ushers for each day. The young ladies who assisted were the following: —

Wednesday: Suzanne Porter, Lois Graham, Marjorie Kiser and Betty Jean Hekox.

Thursday: Thelma Olson, Fay Barwick, June Ayers and Helen Shay.

Friday: Helen McColeman, Margaret Kaley, Jean Campbell and Mabel Clark.

Those who received gifts on the three days were as follows: —

Wednesday: Mrs. Vernon Vance and Miss Mary Frost each won a year's subscription to the Charlevoix County Herald.

Mrs. Jane E. Nice and Mrs. E. L. Willis each won a pound of butter from the Jordan Valley Co-op Creamery.

Mrs. Grace Vogel, Mrs. Herbert Holland, Mrs. Colter and Agnes H. Woodcock each received a 5 lb. sack of Pillsbury's Best Flour.

Mrs. Russell Barnett and Mildred L. Hudson each received a package of Pillsbury's Farena.

Mrs. Iris Jensen and Kathryn Gregory each won a box of Pillsbury's Sno Sheen Cake Flour.

Mrs. Leona Etcher won an assortment of three kitchen utensils from V. Whiteford.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sloop won a 6 qt. aluminum Kettle from the Healey Sales Co.

Mrs. John Ter Avest won two tickets to the Temple Theatre.

M. B. Palmeter received an assortment from Lever Bros., namely one large box of Rinso, one box of Lux Flakes two bars of Lux Soap and two bars of Lifebuoy Soap.

Mrs. Winifred Shaw received a 3-lb. can of Spry from Lever Bros.

Mrs. Violet Richards received one pound of Bokar Coffee from the local A. & P. Store.

Mrs. Darius Shaw won a box of fruit from the Lbr. Co. Store.

Thursday
Mrs. Gladys Holland and Miss Jean Blair: One year's subscription to the Charlevoix County Herald.

Mrs. Sonabend and Mrs. Dan Swanson: One pound of Butter from the Jordan Valley Co-op Creamery.

Newville — Boswell

Betty Newville, daughter of Mrs. Grace Newville of Boyne City, was united in marriage with Gregory Boswell, son of Mrs. Grace Boswell of East Jordan, Tuesday, January 25, at the home of the bride's mother, in the presence of the immediate families and a few friends.

The bride, who was attended by her sister, Mrs. Cole, was attired in a dark green chiffon velvet dress and carried an arm bouquet of white roses.

The groom was attended by Howard Darbee.

The ceremony was read by Rev. Guy Smock of the Presbyterian church of Boyne City.

A buffet luncheon was served the guests, the table being decorated with a centerpiece of flowers and candles, after which the young couple left on a wedding trip to Detroit and other points. Upon their return they will reside in the Boswell residence on Esterly St.

The bride is a graduate of the Boyne City High School.

The groom is a graduate of the East Jordan High School and of Ferris Institute, and he is employed at the State Bank of East Jordan, which position he has held the past few years.

Mr. and Mrs. Boswell have the best wishes of their many friends for a long and happy wedded life.

Canners Defeat Kalkaska

ELEVENTH STRAIGHT SHOWED POOR PLAYING

Still aloft their undefeated perch Coach Alex Sinclair's Canners whitewashing the Kalkaska Independents 49 to 31 here last Thursday evening, pushed the winning streak up to eleven consecutive wins. Far from the team that conquered the strong Petoskey Bon Ton's the week before, the locals, probably due to being a little overconfident, were far off form, displaying a wild and loosely connected brand of basketball.

After getting off to a long lead at the half time, the locals were forced to take a back seat after the intermission, as they were outscored by the fighting machine of the visitors.

Using a two team combination the Green and White had little difficulty to get out in front from the start and stay there. Starting for the locals were Capt. Cihak and Saxton as forwards, Spike Russell center, and LaPeer and Hegerberg guards. In the alternating lineup Stanek and Walton were forwards, H. Sommerville center with C. Sommerville and Bowman guards. Finch also was inserted into the lineup. Howard Sommerville, Guy Russell and Spin Cihak carried off the scoring laurels for the Green and White, scoring 12, 10 and 10 points respectively. W. Rowell was high man for the losers with 10.

In eleven games this season the locals have run up a total of 493 to 289 points for their opponents. Captain Cihak has carried the blunt of the scoring, coming in for 185 points in ten games, an average of 18.5 points per game. LaPeer and Hegerberg have been standouts in the local defense. The Sinclairmen are preparing themselves for a tough tournament schedule which is about due to start in a couple of weeks.

Roy Earl Denton, 39 Passed Away At Gaylord Sanitorium

Roy Earl Denton passed away at the Gaylord Tuberculosis Sanitorium Monday night, January 24th. He was taken there the previous Thursday for observation, it being thought he showed tuberculosis symptoms.

Mr. Denton was born at Ellsworth, Mich., 39 years ago, his parents being Thomas and Adella Denton. He left with his parents for Minnesota some 23 years ago where he remained for 21 years, returning to East Jordan two years ago. He was a farmer by occupation and a member of the Seventh-day Adventist church.

Deceased is survived by his mother, Mrs. Adella Denton of East Jordan; sisters and brothers as follows: — Mrs. Ira Lee and Mrs. Lester Burnforth, East Jordan; Mrs. C. W. Burnett, Bay Shore; Mrs. Gladys Pixby and Harry Denton, Lake-of-the-woods county, Minnesota; Ralph Irvin Denton of Bolton, North Carolina.

Funeral services will be held this Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the East Jordan Seventh-day Adventist church conducted by the pastor Elder L. C. Lee. Burial will be at Petoskey.

Standard Oil Company Now Distributors of Quaker State Products

Arrangements have been completed between Standard Oil Company of Indiana and Quaker State Oil Refining corporation under which the Quaker State oils and greases will be distributed by Standard in addition to the regular line of Standard products. The arrangement will be effective throughout the territory in which the Indiana company is operating and to some extent in the territory of subsidiaries. Retail distribution of the Pennsylvania lubricants through the Standard Oil dealers will begin Feb. 18, 1938.

Announcing the new policy, Standard officials stated that the move was made in recognition of a definite preference on the part of many consumers for a Pennsylvania crude oil base lubricant. Although the mid-continent base oils and greases which have been the regular line at Standard dealers' stations will continue to be handled and featured as before, the customer will be able to obtain the Pennsylvania product if he prefers it.

Standard will recommend the Quaker State products to dealers and customers as the highest quality Pennsylvania lubricants, best advertised nationally, most widely distributed and favored with the best public acceptance of any such products on the market.

Red Rayders Ran Wild Over Our Crimson Wave

In what proved to be just another game Coach Kipke's Red Rayders ran wild over the Crimson Wave 48 to 16 here last Friday evening. The towering Charlevoix veterans found the locals no harder than any other opponent they have faced this winter as they took command at the start and were never threatened. It was the winners seventh straight triumph and their last tune-up battle before they face the undefeated Big Reds at Boyne City this week end.

The Crimson Wave held high hopes that their effective zone defence might keep the Charlevoix score down, but men of the caliber of Richardson and Captain Carey are not easily stopped, as they tallied 16 and 15 points respectively for the winners. The Red and White had little difficulty in subduing the Jordanites, using their second string boys a good share of the time. The score stood 29 and 6 at the intermission.

R. Saxton with 7 points was high man for the Cohnmen. The locals put up a game fight but were just completely outclassed in all departments of play. The Jordanite reserves could do no better than their first string as they too met with defeat, losing to the Charlevoix seconds 24 and 16.

Harbor Springs will be here Thursday evening to play the Crimson Wave as a family night feature. The whole family will be admitted through the purchase of a 25c family ticket.

Two undefeated quintets will clash at Boyne City Friday night in what promises to be the basketball classic of Northern Michigan. Charlevoix, based on their previous season scoring, will be held as favorites but it still promises to be a great game packed with thrills aplenty.

Famous Stories and Color Combine At Temple

Entertainment at the Temple for the coming week merits special attention with an entire schedule of class A productions. The first bill, on Saturday only, brings one of Mulford's famous Bar 20 stories, "Hap A Long Rides Again," with Bill Boyd starred, to the local screen. Three short subjects, a comedy, news, and cartoon, complete the show.

On Sunday, Monday and Tuesday Robert Louis Stevenson's grand story of the South Seas, "Ebb Tide," is the featured attraction. Done entirely in beautiful Technicolor it marks a precedent in this treatment for sea stories. Oscar Homolka, Frances Farme, and Ray Milland are cast in the leading roles. Famous Eddy Peabody is featured in a musical short and a Pop Eye cartoon round out a splendid program.

Family Nights have been shifted to Wednesday and Thursday for the balance of the winter and a new Jones Family adventure, "Borrowing Trouble," is the first offering under the new schedule. To avoid disappointment it would be well to make special note of the above change and remember Family Nights are Wednesday and Thursday.

County Fairs "Big Business"

OVER $200,000 PAID ANNUALLY IN PREMIUMS

Pointing out that the county fair is "big business," with over $4,000,000 invested in fair property, exclusive of state fair grounds, and over $200,000 paid annually in premiums, Commissioner John B. Strange of the Department of Agriculture, in an address at the annual banquet of the Michigan Association of Fairs, warned that this business should be ever looking to methods of improvement.

"At a certain fair board meeting a few years ago," said Commissioner Strange, "under whose direct fair premium funds are allocated, changes in the by-laws were suggested. An elderly member remarked that the association had held a fair every year for 70 years under those by-laws and they are still good enough. A few years later the association failed and the grounds were sold to pay their debts. Fairs should change — progress to keep abreast of the progressive changes in agriculture and in our home and community life."

"The state is justified," declared Commissioner Strange, "in expending these sums for the institutions mentioned, only if they are of definite educational value. If a county fair is entitled to state aid, it is certainly entitled to support by its county government as well."

The first step in making it educational should be the careful scrutiny of the premium lists. Only articles of value in the home and on the farm should be recognized.

I know a woman who won prize on the same oil paintings at the same fair for years, — she was the only exhibitor.

Only those fruits, grains and vegetables as are best adapted to the county should be recognized. Favor might be shown to the breeds and classes of livestock which predominate and are of the greatest economic value to the area served by the fair.

Of the numerous breeds of poultry, it is probable that only a few are of sufficient economic importance to merit recognition. Where there is sufficient interest in new products which promise to be of value to the community, these should be recognized. An exhibit which is not meritorious should not be allowed.

In stressing the educational features, the importance of amusements can not be overlooked. After several years on the board of a county fair, I am more reluctant to give advice on this feature than before I had this experience. As a general observation, we should keep out demoralizing shows, games and devices which defraud the patron.

Most fair managements have a real problem in selecting their special entertainment features and determining what they can afford to pay. They are not justified in permitting this feature to be a liability. No community is entitled to a better fair than it is willing to pay for. Contests and races by local participants may well supplement more expensive entertainment and command much interest.

Here's something few people have the opportunity to see — the Detroit Zoo in the winter! Three full pages of photographs tell the interesting story in the Pictorial Rotogravure Section of next Sunday's Detroit News. Don't fail to see this photo-feature!

All Michigan Storm Bound

THIS PART OF STATE BLANKETED WITH SNOW

East Jordan as well as practically every other section of Michigan, is slowly digging itself out of one of the worst blizzards in many years.

At East Jordan temperatures dropped from a high of 38° above zero in the late afternoon of Monday to three below zero Thursday morning. Late Monday night the blizzard broke and by Tuesday afternoon, roads began to fill up. In order that students coming in on buses to the East Jordan Consolidated Schools might get home safely school was dismissed and the buses left in the early afternoon. It was not until night that the last bus returned from the trip. Many rural students were unable to reach their homes and stayed at homes of friends nearby. Schools were closed Wednesday and Thursday and will re-open this Friday.

Rural mail carriers experienced the same troubles and were forced to cover only part of their routes — many places being still impassable.

State highway trunk lines were kept open fairly well throughout the storm. The mail bus, due in East Jordan from Grand Rapids at 6:30 A. M. was delayed some four or five hours.

The storm blocked the Pere Marquette R. R. south of Baldwin and train schedules were cancelled for Wednesday. This Thursday the Traverse City-Petoskey section is being opened and it is anticipated that train service, with mails, will be resumed this afternoon.

In East Jordan, with its many miles of streets to be kept open, it taxed to capacity the efforts of our snow plow and crews. As a result a mighty good job was accomplished.

This Thursday the sun is shining bright, clear and cold, and it looks as though we are through with one of our worst blizzards.

REA Will Erect Generating Plant At Boyne City

Rep. John Luecke, of the 11th District, has been advised by Rural Electrification Administration authorities that the sum of $55,000 was being allotted to the Top O' Michigan Electric Company for the construction of a generating plant. Of the amount awarded, $50,000 is earmarked for actual construction work and $5,000 for incidental expenses. This money is in addition to funds previously appropriated for the erection of transmission lines, equipment, etc. Thomas Colter, Boyne City, is superintendent of the Top O' Michigan Electric Company.

The plant will be a 300 k. w. horizontal unit generating. This plant will serve the 455-mile project for which the REA has made a partial allotment of $250,000.

Ice Fishing DeLuxe Is Offered In Michigan

When you stop at the Dilworth Hotel at Boyne City you get, not only a room with a bath, but a room with a fish shanty. Alert to the growing importance of fishing through the ice in Northern Michigan the hotel has built a fish shanty deluxe for the use of its patrons.

Boyne City is one of the smelt fishing centers of Michigan and recently has incorporated its fishing village on the ice of some 200 shanties as Smeltania with a mayor and complete set of city officials. The Dilworth deluxe is the finest house on the ice, with accommodations for six fishermen, completely equipped and heated so that no special equipment or clothing is necessary to enjoy an evening of fishing on the ice.

Boyne City is the scene of an annual spring celebration glorifying the lowly smelt and has announced the date for its Smelt Jamboree for March 24 and 26, when the annual spawning run of the toothsome delicacies is at its height in the Boyne River.

East Jordan celebrates its smelt run when the run is at its height which is before the Boyne City run. This extends the time which the dyed in the wool smelt dippers may spend in this region. — News bulletin from West Michigan Resort Ass'n.

Lost By Being A Beauty, Won By Turning Old And Ugly

Everybody was sure that an attractive girl's prize-winning face and figure would insure her career as an actress, but she couldn't even get started until she made up as a scrubwoman — and then became a success. Read about this girl in The American Weekly with the January 30 issue of The Detroit Sunday Times.

BUSINESS WILL BE AIDED

President Approves Suggestions of the Advisory Council . . . C.I.O. Blamed for West Coast Losses

Drag Wolf and Foolish Bear, aged members of the ancient water-buster clan of North Dakota's Gros Ventre Indians, are shown being greeted by "The Great White Father," President Roosevelt, whom they visited on a trip which they hope will bring a merciful rain to end the long drought in their parched country. The Indians were on their way to the Heye foundation of the Museum of the American Indian where George G. Heye was to return to them a sacred bundle, a "medicine" they believe will make their lands fertile again. Since the loss of the bundle in 1907, their country is slowly turning into desert due to lack of rain.

Business at White House

FIFTY members of the business advisory council of the Department of Commerce, all of them leaders of the nation's business and industry, went to the White House for a long conference with the President, and told him what they believed to be responsible for the current "recession." Then they promised to co-operate with him in combating the slump on condition that he made clear the course he intends to follow.

The business men specified that necessities to aid in the struggle were limitation to wage-hour legislation, a truce with public utilities, no general purge of holding companies and no further tinkering with the currency.

To these suggestions Mr. Roosevelt gave his approval. Others were heard by him without comment.

W. Averill, the council's chairman, issued a statement which embraced the views of his colleagues and which was read to Mr. Roosevelt.

The statement said re-employment in private industry is the critical problem now before the country and that uncertainties that exist in "the hearts of men" must be eradicated.

"We wish to record with you our faith in the efficacy of the principles of democracy, and yet our grave concern over the possible far-reaching effects of our present situation," the statement concluded. "Tolerance and understanding must be used by all sections and interests in the country."

At the conclusion of the conference the President announced that he will seek the formulation of a definite policy, designed to end the depression and create a framework for steady functioning of the nation's economic life through the appointment of a group representative of all the interests within the country.

The group would consist of as many as twenty-five or as few as five or six persons, who would be charged with the task of sifting over all proposals to aid business and unsmearing all conflicts existing among the various interests with a view toward perfecting an administrative and legislative policy for business.

Huge Loss Laid to C.I.O.

FROM the lips of Mayor J. K. Carson of Portland, Ore., the senate's joint committee on commerce and labor learned that the activities of the C. I. O. and Harry Bridges, its leader in that region, have cost the people there more than a billion dollars in the last three years. This was due to strikes and maritime tieups.

"Bridges cannot even vote in this country," said Mayor Carson, "yet he exercises more power over the maritime industry of the Pacific coast than all the ship owners and all the seamen combined."

Bridges, who came from Australia, is not naturalized. He is a Communist and his deportation has been requested by the inspectors of the bureau of immigration and naturalization, but issuance of a warrant has been prevented by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

Mayor Carson said the shipping and fruit industries of the West Coast had suffered not only because of maritime strikes but also because of tie-ups caused by the longshoremen's unions, which are controlled by Bridges.

"The fruit industry is endangered by the present attitude of maritime labor," Mayor Carson said. "The continued disruption of deliveries has resulted in a lack of confidence in our ability to fulfill orders, causing us to lose our European markets to Argentina and South Africa."

Choice of Reed Liked

NOMINATION of Stanley Forman Reed of Kentucky, solicitor general, as associate justice of the Supreme court met with general approval and it was predicted in Washington that he would be speedily confirmed by the senate with little or no opposition.

Republicans and Democrats alike were quick to praise the Kentuckian, who, while a defender of many New Deal measures, has acquired a reputation for being realistic and a liberal with "moderate" tendencies.

Senator Ashurst, chairman of the judiciary committee, named a subcommittee which approved the nomination after a public hearing.

Mr. Reed, who will fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Justice George Sutherland, is fifty-three years old and has never before been on the bench. In 1929 Herbert Hoover, then President, made him general counsel of the federal farm board. Later he was shifted to the same capacity in the Reconstruction Finance corporation. He retained his post at the outset of the present administration.

Then President Roosevelt picked him for solicitor general to defend the New Deal cases before the Supreme court. Of these he won 11 and lost 2.

Stalin Checks the Purge

NOT a single bit of legislative work was accomplished by the first session of the new parliament in Soviet Russia. But there was a lot of speech making, and external enemies, especially Japan, were denounced and defied.

Dictator Josef Stalin, through the central committee, ordered an end to the mass expulsion of Communist party members, which has usually been followed by death, banishment or loss of jobs.

Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, indicated satisfaction with the results of the purge, but assailed "rotten leaders" who played into the enemy's hands. "Under the mask of false vigilance agents of Fascism sought to break up and out from the ranks our bolshevist personnel," Pravda said.

Egypt's King Weds

FAROUK, king of Egypt, was married in Cairo to Miss Farida Zulfikar as 100 cannon boomed a salute. The city was thronged with natives, but they had no glimpse of the bride, because the Moslem clergy were in control and would not permit her even to be present at the ceremony. They did, however, consent to a semi-public reception afterward in the Abdine palace at which the seventeen-year-old queen made an appearance.

Tragedy in Canada

FIRE that destroyed the college of the Sacred Heart at St. Hyacinthe, not far from Quebec, resulted in the death of at least 47 persons and the injury of many others. The victims included members of the teaching staff as well as students.

Fourteen drums of gasoline housed in the four-story structure contributed to the speed with which the fire roared through the building.

Security Fund Shy

EXPENDITURES under the social security and railroad retirement acts were $294,681,344 more up to January 1, 1938, than was received by the treasury from taxes imposed to finance these programs. The treasury said this condition would not hold permanently, and that the social security taxes were being used primarily to build up a reserve for old age pensions which began operating the first of the year.

A great portion of the expenditures was used in grants to states to set up social security machinery.

Kidnaped Ross Was Slain

SCORE another for J. Edgar Hoover and his "G-men". They have solved the mysterious case of the kidnaping of Charles Ross, elderly retired manufacturer, in Chicago last September, arrested the kidnaper and obtained his confession that he killed both Ross and his own confederate after getting $50,000 ransom money from Mrs. Ross.

The murderer, Peter Anders, was taken at Santa Anita race track, near Los Angeles, where he had been passing some of the ransom money through the pari mutuel machines. Full details of his confession were not at once made public.

Every Tenth Worker Idle

STATISTICS released by Secretary of Labor Perkins showed that every tenth worker in the country is without employment. Her findings were disclosed as the senate unemployment and relief committee called state and local relief administrators to testify on increased demands for aid during the recession.

Approximately 1,162,000 persons filed unemployment compensation claims for benefits during the first week of January when 21 states and the District of Columbia began this new plan, the secretary reported.

Mexican High Tariff

FOR the purpose of "leveling the balance on international payments," Mexico has just put into effect virtually prohibitive tariff rates on items considered to be luxuries.

No details regarding the amounts and nature of the new rates were revealed, but the finance department indicated that Mexico desired to abolish the importation of almost everything except machinery.

The new rates will chiefly affect United States exporters, who already have complained of recent increases in Mexico's tariff schedule. Secretary of State Hull has said that the increases were contrary to the plan of removing trade barriers as advocated at the inter-American peace conference at Buenos Aires in 1936.

Chautemps in Again

FRANCE'S latest governmental crisis ended with the return of Camille Chautemps to the post of premier. He and his Popular Front cabinet had resigned because of financial and labor troubles. Several old timers tried in vain to form a new government and Chautemps was again called on for the job. His new cabinet was much like the former one and it would not need the support of the communists. Eighteen of the twenty ministers were Radical-Socialists. Chautemps was drawing up plans for extensive social reforms.

Continuation of France's vast armament program seemed assured, what with Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos and Defense Minister Edouard Deladier retaining their posts in the new cabinet.

More Woe for Jews

RUMANIA'S government, headed by Premier Octavian Goga, is so anti-Semitic that thousands of Jews are seeking means of escape from the country. Jewish committees visited foreign consulates in Bucharest to ask about the possibility of emigration to Brazil, Ethiopia, Madagascar, Mexico, or Australia. One of the latest moves of the government is the issuance of orders that make virtually impossible the intermarriage of Jews and gentiles.

All alien Jews not engaged in farming were given 30 days in which to quit Ecuador, under a decree by the provisional military government of Col. Alberto Enriquez. Hundreds of Jews permitted to colonize in Ecuador to escape persecution in Central Europe entered business instead of agriculture, as the government had expected them to do, the decree said.

Tax Changes Planned

CHAIRMAN DOUGHTON and his house ways and means committee began hearings on proposals for 63 changes in the revenue laws which would exempt small corporations, constituting 90 per cent of American business, under the undivided profits levy and grant large enterprises only part of the relief demanded from harsh rates.

These changes were formulated by Fred Vinson's subcommittee, which in a long report defended them as fair and predicted they would stimulate business without reducing the federal revenue.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRUCKART
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—Many times, I have written in these columns about the confused state of affairs in the federal government and the Roosevelt administration. I wish I were possessed of sufficient wisdom to undertake an analysis of them, as they exist now, for it probably would be helpful to all. But having no such vast wisdom, I shall have to content myself with the service of reporting on several circumstances of recent development and let it go at that.

For several weeks now, we have witnessed a steady stream of callers at the White House. There have been some labor leaders but mostly the list of callers whom the President invited were the greatest of American industrialists, the "economic royalists" whom Mr. Roosevelt has so roundly denounced from time to time, or whenever it served political purposes to attack them publicly. The purposes of having these men visit the President, as announced at the White House, were to consult and try to find ways and means of checking the current depression.

As I said, these White House visitors were the very "economic royalists" whom Mr. Roosevelt has attacked with such apparent satisfaction throughout the last five years. Indeed, among their number were some of the "sixty families" upon whom Secretary Ickes of the Interior department, and Robert H. Jackson, trust busting assistant attorney general, have been heaping abuse as the folks who "control" America. Anyone who will take the trouble to review the President's speeches and the more recent barrage of attacks by Messrs. Ickes and Jackson cannot help wondering if those men are crooks and if they crush the "common peep-ul," as charged, why their advice can be any good now.

Nextly, it is hard to understand why or how anything is to be gained by consulting with men of that type in a serious effort to solve the problems of the current depression and set off dynamite under them at the same time. That is what happened. Mr. Roosevelt announced with vehemence at a press interview that all holding companies "must go." They must be eliminated from American economic life and at once; there can be no toleration of corporations that are organized to hold the stock of other corporations, etc., etc. He has taken a definite position on that before as regards power companies and drove a bill through congress to eliminate them. This time, he wants to go much further. Which is proper, if that be his policy. But here is the peculiar thing. Two hours after he made his announcement, he had a dozen men in conference who represented the very thing he was denouncing and was seeking their advice. It seems paradoxical, to say the least.

On top of these conferences that have brought scores of prominent industrial captains to Washington at the President's invitation, there is to be noted an entire absence of any administration action looking to release of business to do its part in taking on unemployed workers. I have talked to men in congress of every shade of opinion and they are all awaiting some word as to the President's views. Their position is that the President wants to take the lead in mapping a program and most of them, I believe, will help him carry it out. They feel also that for them to start development of a program of their own makes them subject to White House criticism if the legislation fails to meet New Deal specifications. So they simply wait!

In the meantime, the depression has sunk deeper and deeper. I frankly believe that in some localities it is right now as bad as anything we saw in 1932. Business men are frightened to death and will not expand their businesses because of the danger that they will lose everything they have, and individuals are frightened and will not spend more money than is absolutely necessary. In other words, there is again a lack of confidence that is appalling. It seems to center on Mr. Roosevelt as it centered on Mr. Hoover in 1930 and 1931.

I can judge the whole situation only by attempting to compose the observations that I gather from countless conversations. If this consensus be accurate, then it would appear that current fears result from an inability of anyone to know what Mr. Roosevelt will do next. That is to say, the expressions stressed statements that his policies "lack continuity;" that he changes "overnight;" that he "attacks business with one hand and kicks it in the pants with one foot and asks it to take the load off of the government at the same time;" that he takes advice "of a lot of incompetents" on finances who can't even balance their own household budgets;" that he "won't let private initiative do anything without having a flock of government spies on our trails," and so on. I could supply fifty more from my notes, but they would be of the same tenor. And mind you! a large percentage of these came from representatives and senators in congress, Democrats and Republicans alike.

Another phase of the general situation:

There has been a tremendous drive against monopoly. This was led largely by Assistant Attorney General Jackson, but Mr. Ickes and lesser lights have helped carry the ball. The attacks have been general. There has been no distinction between good business and bad business. The result has been that every man who has some money tied up in business is wondering whether he is going to have to defend himself in some way, however careful he has been about complying with the federal laws.

The fact was called to my attention also that many of the businesses charged with monopoly are doing just what the government forced them to do. The unaimed NRA can be recalled without effort. Under the NRA, every unit or every line of business was told what to do and how to do it. Codes of business practice were laid down for them, bearing the approval of the President. Since NRA was relegated to the ashcan, we find a dozen suits being prosecuted against businesses for continuing to do the things they were forced to do when NRA was the law of the land.

Then, I would like to ask what is wrong that real trusts are not being broken up. The Department of Justice has some able lawyers who have been assisting Attorney General Cummings since the inception of the New Deal. It appears to a layman like me that five years ought to be ample time in which to make some headway against trusts and monopolies. I am moved to ask, therefore, can this new outburst against monopoly be a bit of politics?

But the turning of the New Deal wheel has brought one magnificent appointment to the Supreme court of the United States. I refer to the nomination of Stanley Reed to succeed the retiring Justice Sutherland. Mr. Reed has been solicitor general of the United States and as such has directed the nation's legal affairs under Attorney General Cummings. His service there, and before that with the reconstruction finance corporation, has been meritorious. There has been nothing but praise of his ability and of his character. He stands out as a great lawyer and fine personality.

The appointment is worthy of considering from two standpoints. Justice Sutherland's resignation and the subsequent appointment gives the present President control of the court. That is to say, the known division of the court between conservative and liberal thought has been switched from the conservative side to the liberal side. Actually, it accomplishes for Mr. Roosevelt the very purpose he sought to accomplish by demanding of congress that it pass the so-called court reform bill a year ago, a piece of legislation on which the President received the worst licking of his political career.

The second important consideration in the appointment is the high type of man named by the President. Mr. Reed is progressive in thought. The New Dealers always have counted him as one of their number, but I find many people who contend that Stanley Reed believes first in the law of the land and in obeying it, rather than indulge in wishful thinking on a lot of silly, untried schemes. The country is fortunate, indeed, to have a man like Mr. Reed on the court.

And, continuing the theme of unusual circumstances, I think reference ought to be made to the terrific beating that is being handed the southern Democratic members of the senate. They have been making a brave fight against passage of a piece of utterly assinine legislation—the so-called anti-lynching bill. Men like Harrison of Mississippi, Byrnes of South Carolina, Connally of Texas, and others, have been holding the fort against this vicious legislation. They ought to win, but they probably won't.

I have seen something of the race problem in the South, and I can understand what the basis of southern objection is. On the other hand, there is only one basis for the pressure which Senator Wagner, New York Democrat, is putting on the bill and the reason why the senate was tied up in a deadlock of the filibuster type for days. That reason is that Senator Wagner is trying to get control of the negro votes in New York city's Harlem area.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK...
By Lemuel F. Parton

NEW YORK.—It seems possible that Rockefeller Center was trying for a delicate cultural balance in getting three alien artists to do its murals. Right, left and center, in the order named, Jose Rivera and Frank Brangwyn, were the muralists.

There was an inevitable clash, and now, after five years, a compromise. Lenin's head, by the hard-boiled, hard-bitten Mexican Rivera, blocked out in 1934, has been replaced by a conventional mural by the Spanish Sr. Sert, with the orthodox theme of America's continuing development along the old lines. The compromise appears in Sr. Sert's restrained sepia monochrome, instead of his usual lavish outpouring of gold and scarlet, verdant green and ecstatic blue.

Sr. Sert is the most millionairish of all living painters. Here he pipes down. If we didn't go left with Lenin, our new era isn't going to be as gaudy as the last one.

It will be a sober, industrious, thrifty, monochrome age, with no more high kicking and low thinking. That seems to be what Sr. Sert and the Rockefeller Center people are saying.

When the big, booming, sixty-one-year-old Spanish painter is going strong, he makes Veronese just a wet wash with a touch of bluing. He was a regular stand-by and emergency painter for his friend, King Alfonso. "Con mucho gusto," he can swing the whole spectrum, with bold, regal effects which are the delight of kings.

He has done many magnificent rooms in Europe, including the Madrid chapel of the duke of Alba, now Franco's commercial envoy to England, and Sir Phillip Sassoon's residential ballrooms. His first exhibition in this country was in 1924, when he received prolonged critical salvos.

He was born in Barcelona of the ancient Spanish gentry, and studied in Paris in his early youth.

Sert Swings Spectrum With Gusto

From the first, he developed boldness and exuberance, both in color and technique. Briffault's pre-war Europe—which was to have gone on forever, but didn't—knew him for its very own. His new monochrome fits an age "sickled o'er with the pale cast of thought."

In the current argument between government and business, it is interesting to note that the temple of business gets back to the Muses and the classical symbols of work and labor, after its brief leftward deviation in 1933. In Washington, such bold innovators as Henry Varnum Poor and George Biddle still state tortuous new themes in the government murals. But there's not so much splash in those Rockefeller Center murals as there might have been in, say, 1928.

YOUNG BURGESS MEREDITH, at the age of twenty-eight, is picked to run Actors Equity association, for a time at least. A star on Broadway, a country squire, a Hollywood success, he has had more toiling around than a roller-coaster addict, with the up-grade all in the depression years.

In Lakewood, a suburb of Cleveland, his father was a doctor and his grandfather an evangelist. His Uncle Joe, whom he greatly admired, was in vaudeville. He washed dishes and tended furnaces during one sad and lonely year at Amherst, ran a haberdashery shop with his brother in Cleveland, went bankrupt, was a reporter on the Stamford Advocate, until they caught him at it, sold roofing, vacuum cleaners and cosmetics, worked in Macy's department store, sang in church choirs for $4 a Sunday, lived a week on breakfast food samples, and was for a time one of the migrant army of jobless youth.

The depression brought him luck. In 1929, he got a letter of introduction to Eva Le Gallienne and a payless job as an apprentice actor. His climb was slow.

Depression Was Really Lady Luck

He first attained high visibility in "She Loves Me (Not)," in 1933. He clinched his gains in his three Maxwell Anderson plays, "Winterset," "High Tor," and "Star Wagon."

His estate is near that of Mr. Anderson in Rockland county, New York, where he is very busy with house-building, dogs, and books. He has an eager, avid mind, buzzing with new ideas.

He is five feet, seven inches tall, weighs 135 pounds and is no matinee idol—listed briefly at booking agency as "blond and homely!" when he first went after a job in the theater. His wife is the distinguished actress, Margaret Perry.

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm. Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

CALL RECRUITS IN SYPHILIS WAR

Call for "recruits" in the "War Against Syphilis" by Gen. John J. Pershing and Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur will be heard throughout the country. General Pershing is chair-broader interest in the fight on syphilis and the conditions which favor its spread with a war fund of $500,000 contributed by volunteers," says Doctor Wilbur, who is also president of the association.

Several Colleges Join War to Check Syphilis

Stimulated by the national campaign to control venereal disease, a few colleges and universities are making syphilis tests a part of the routine examinations required of incoming students. Judging from a survey made by the Chicago Tribune, serological diagnosis for syphilis is not a common regulation among student health services, however.

Instruction on the sexual and social hazards of the disease is far more common. Many universities, in fact, require their freshman men and women to take courses in health or hygiene revealing the character of the disease. Others confine this instruction to medical and sociological courses beyond the reach of most students.

University presidents, deans, and health directors questioned were unanimous in declaring that syphilis does not constitute a major health problem on American campuses.

Most of them agreed that students found to have syphilis and gonorrhea should be kept in school where they could have adequate treatment. Prep school leaders, dealing with younger boys, were just as certain that all syphilitics should be barred.

The University of Chicago, University of Iowa, and Dartmouth college are schools which have elected to give Wasserman or Kahn tests to all newcomers. New York university offers free tests to all students, but does not require them.

Testing began on the Midway with the winter quarter this month, taking advantage of the Chicago board of health's program of free and secret examinations, since the university health service lacked funds for this purpose.

Dartmouth college began routine Wassermans last fall and found one case of congenital syphilis among 650 incoming students.

The University of Iowa started serological testing of freshmen in 1924 and continued until 1930, reported Dr. M. E. Barnes, head of the department of hygiene. It ceased, he said, because of many objections. The university then confined its testing to food handlers, employees, and others.

"Fid. Def." on British Coins
The title "Fidei Defensor" (Defender of the Faith) was conferred on the English King Henry VIII by Pope Leo X, in 1521. It was his recognition of Henry's reply to Martin Luther. When Henry quarreled with Rome, in 1533, the Pope then in power, Paul III, deprived him of this title. But in 1544 it was confirmed by the English parliament, and has ever since been borne by all British sovereigns. Now it refers to the Protestant faith, and not, as at first, to the Catholic religion.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

A Slip Cover With Welt Seams.

IN THE sketch at the upper left you see the pieces of a davenport slipcover fitted with seam lines pinned. The material is wrong side out as the welt or corded seams must be stitched from the inside of the cover.

Before the seams around the front of the arms are pinned as at A the arm cover edge of the seam must be gathered as at B. It is important to allow just enough material so the arm cover fits easily.

The cable cord that is covered with bias material and fitted into the seams to make the welt may be purchased at any notion counter. The material to cover it must be cut on a true bias and stitched in place as shown here at C. The cording foot attachment for your machine must be used for this stitching so the sewing will come close to the cord. The next step is to either baste or stitch the covered cord to one edge of the right side of the seam as shown here at D. Then, using the cording foot again, stitch the seam as shown. Clip the seam edges around curves so they will not draw.

It will be necessary to leave an opening in the back to be fastened with snaps. Openings must be arranged on the underside of the seam cushions as shown here at E.

Every Homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' new book, SEWING. Forty-eight pages of step-by-step directions for making slipcovers, dressing tables and curtains for all types of rooms. Making lampshades, rugs, ottomans and other useful articles for the home. Leaflet of patchwork stitches now included if requested. Readers wishing a copy should send name and address enclosing 25 cents (coins preferred) to Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Obituary — Thos. J. Wood

Thomas J. Wood was born March 14, 1856, in Lelanau county, and passed away at East Jordan, January 3rd, 1938. The cause of his death was valvular heart disease. Mr. Wood was married to Roxana Carus at Elk Rapids.

He came to Charlevoix county in 1916 and was located at Boyne City for some time. Later he came to East Jordan where he opened a second-hand store business which he operated up until recently when failing health interfered with his work. Deceased was a member of the F. & A. M.

Surviving the deceased are two daughters — Flossie Taylor of Iron Mountain and Roxanna Fahey of Detroit; a brother, Andrew Wood of Elk Rapids, and a sister, Flora Ellis of California.

Funeral services were held from the Watson Funeral home the forenoon of Thursday, January 6th conducted by Rev. James Leitch. Burial was at Sunset Hill.

Some Seek Drivers' Permits Too Soon

Indications that many motorists of Michigan are seeking to evade the coming examination for operators license are offered from applications received from persons whose present license will be valid for some time to come.

Leon D. Case, Secretary of State, has warned that the state's licensing act prohibits the issuance of a license to any applicant whose present license does not expire in less than six months. Several thousand premature applications have been returned to applicants in the past few weeks. This process adds to the cost of administration of the license law because of the involvements of the procedure. Credit of 15 cents to local governments for each license, has already been posted on departmental books when applications are checked; in instances where applications are rejected, such credits must be withdrawn. The entire refunding process to the counties is slowed up by the increasing volume of such operations.

ECHO

Mr. Ben. Bolser of Echo Dist. was surprised Sunday, Jan. 23, when all his children and families that live in the northern part of the state came to help celebrate his 65th birthday anniversary, they all brought well-filled baskets and he received a number of fine gifts. It also being near Mrs. Otto Bolser's birthday anniversary, she also received gifts.

Charlevoix Co. Republicans To Hold Lincoln Day Party and Dance

Charlevoix county Republicans will be host at a Lincoln Day Birthday Party benefit dance for the Red Cross to be held at the Hotel Dilworth in Boyne City, February 12.

The event, sponsored by the young Republican Club and the County Committee is to be a non-political gathering staged for the purpose of assisting local Red Cross organizations.

Dancing will start at 9:00 p. m. A special buffet luncheon will be held at ten o'clock and a full half hour feature floor show will be presented at eleven o'clock. A special radio hook-up will bring all the important Lincoln Day addresses to non-dancing attendants who wish to gather in the lobby to listen to the national Lincoln Day programs.

The affair will be informal with dancing lasting until 1:00 a. m. The sponsoring clubs wish to emphasize the fact that the party will be primarily a benefit dance and that no politics will be connected with the meeting.

Mayor Carson appoints William Bashaw city assessor for the ensuing year. Motion by Bussler and supported by Lorraine that the appointment be confirmed—carried, all ayes.

Motion by Shaw and supported by Bussler that the following resolution be adopted, viz:—Be it resolved that the Common Council views with alarm the threatened change to route the present mail service over the East Jordan and Southern Railroad to some other Common Carrier which would thereby increase the inconvenience of the Railroad and threaten the city with the loss of said railroad and further that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the U. S. Postmaster General and accompanied by the necessary petitions signed by members of East Jordan protesting against any such threatened change to the present mail service.

Council adjourns.

W. N. LANGELL, City Clerk.

NOT IN THE UNION

"Woman's work is never done."
"And she doesn't get time and a half for overtime, either."

"You needn't worry, darling. From his expression when he was dancing with you, you made an impression all right, all right."

"I certainly did," gasped Sylvia.

"That he is THE Micky Mickle. All-American halfback. Phi Beta Kappa man, president of the university's most exclusive fraternity, heir apparent to the Mickle millions."

"Never mind the bluff, Miss Innocence. I know you must have recognized him. According to Mrs. De Stiguer, he's spent his last three summers at that Maine resort where your parents take you. Prince Incognito stuff. Working his way through college. Catching lobsters or codfish or crabs, or something. He even dodges the reporters—but he didn't dodge you. Why what's the matter?"

"Nothing," gasped Sylvia faintly. "You needn't worry, darling."

"YOU may be a mystery man," smiled Sylvia, with her favorite wide-eyed stare, half-innocence, half audaciousness, "but I know one thing, at least, about you: you can dance, Mr.—er—"

"Mickle is my name," her tall partner informed her. He adjusted her wrap, and the feel of his arm across her shoulders sent a delicious little shiver down Sylvia's spine. She recognized the symptom. This man had "it."

"Mickle is not a very high-sounding name, is it?" he was apologizing. "I'm usually called Micky—by folks who like me."

"Is that so—Micky?" purred Sylvia. She was not surprised to find the arm that had adjusted her cloak was still about her.

She supposed he was a college man. Most of the crowd were. What was it Marian Maxson had said in introducing him? A "mystery man."

Then he kissed her. "I've been waiting for that kiss," he told her, "for eight long months. The first one I had from you was only a tempting sample."

Sylvia stiffened. A premonition of disaster was upon her. When before had her lips been bruised in this fashion?

She was reminded—rudely reminded.

"You weren't so dressed up that day," the bronzed young man was telling her. "But you were just as lovely. Anger is becoming to you. You were like Aphrodite rising from the foam. Aphrodite with a scarlet bathing suit—and a chip on her shoulder."

"How amusingly you recall the situation," applauded Sylvia icily. "Please take your arm away."

The scorn in her voice was such that she had no need to struggle. The man stepped back before her blazing eyes.

"So that is why your face was so familiar," she said in calm anger. "To think that I could ever forget the one and only Micky. Micky, the invaluable, Micky, mower of lawns and digger of clams. Micky of the Outlook House, handy man of Outlook village. After seeing you for three summers in overalls, I hope I'm to be forgiven for failing to recognize you in evening clothes."

"Sylvia—" he stretched out a placatory hand.

"Miss Selkirk, please. You have presumed far enough. I suppose you think you saved my life that day in the surf. How dare you? Who asked you to row out after me—with your smelly old fish scow? Who asked you to haul me out of water like a haddock or a lobster pot or something? I'd have got ashore somehow."

"I'm afraid I have made a mistake," he said. "But it was to see you again—Miss Selkirk. You never gave me a chance to explain before."

"No explanations are necessary—or possible. You acted like a yokel last summer, and tonight you have acted like a cad."

"Is a stolen kiss so grievous a sin?"

"It is an insult—from a man who is practically a servant."

"So you really are a snob at heart, Sylvia, after all? You judge a man by how he earns an honest living—and how much he earns?"

Sylvia had gathered her wrap around her, and was at the door leading back to the dance floor. She was wholly mistress of herself now.

It was hours later that she had her first chance to confide in Marion Maxson. Marion's first question was an opening.

"Whatever became of the handsome Mr. Mickle?" she demanded. "I haven't seen him since he danced with you."

"I think he has left the party," Sylvia informed her, "and it is just as well he did."

"Don't tell me you didn't fall for him. He was the prize package of the evening."

"Yes?" Sylvia was prepared to triumph. "Do you know who the 'prize package' is?"

"I should say I do. You and I may be strangers in town, but we learn fast, don't we?"

"What do you mean?"

Marion smiled wisely. "You grabbed him quickly enough," she told Sylvia. "I guess you knew your garden truck. Well, Mrs. De Stiguer told me."

"About this man? That he is—"

"That he is THE Micky Mickle. All-American halfback. Phi Beta Kappa man, president of the university's most exclusive fraternity, heir apparent to the Mickle millions."

"But he can't be. He—"

American Legion Endorse Measure For Universal Service Legislation

Citizens of East Jordan, Michigan who believe in protecting and preserving American Democracy are urged by Gaius Hammond, Commander of Rebec-Sweet Post, No. 227, The American Legion, to sign petitions being circulated by American Legion members in this city in support of the Shepherd-Hill measures in Congress for the enactment of Universal Service Legislation.

Commander Gaius Hammond, stated that since 1922 The American Legion has been definitely committed to a policy of securing the adoption by Congress of an adequate Universal Service Law.

"Increasingly thruout the years," the commander declared, "more and more support has been forthcoming from the American Public for a Universal Act. And it appears as though finally in 1938 The American Legion will see its desire fulfilled by this law being approved. The principal reason why success has not greeted Universal Service Legislation thus far is that the public has not been informed generally of the meaning of such a statute, nor has it been aroused to the primary necessity for universal service as the best practical means along with an adequate national defense in keeping this nation out of war."

Public Health's Strive To Conquer Syphilis

At the present time the subject of syphilis is the great question of the day. It is now a question of prevention, of eradication, of the protection of the well against the contamination of the sick. It is a question for the sanatorium, the philanthropist, the legislator, the statesman. It is one of public health and public health is striving to meet it. We can no longer close our eyes to its severity. But we must deal with it precisely as we do with other evils that effect the health of the people. Syphilis at the present time is included in the great family of contagious or communicable diseases and it is subject to the same laws and regulations that we possess for their management. But we still hold a more important method of securing the decrease in the amount of infection and that is an aroused public sentiment.

Each year more than 500,000 new cases occur in which medical care is sought. According to our best estimates 60,000 children are born each year with congenital syphilis. The disease causes from 10 to 12 per cent of all the deaths from heart disease.

We know what treatment will accomplish. From the standpoint of spread, treatment is prevention. Physicians must look for syphilis in their general practice. Every pregnant woman must have a serodiagnostic test in as routine a matter as urinalysis. Every hospital admission, every case of doubtful diagnosis, every physical examination, every life insurance examination should include a serodiagnostic test. Medical examination before marriage should be required by law. One to five men and three to five women coming for treatment were unaware of their disease until it was recognized in the course of some other examination.

Every physician who undertakes the treatment and examination of syphilis owes two general responsibilities to the patient: (1) He must either inquire diligently concerning the source of the infection and contacts, get them under treatment and inform the health officer that he has done so, or (2) He must permit the Health Department itself to do this essential public health job. The patient who continues treatment faithfully need not have his privacy invaded as much as a scarlet fever patient for example. The syphilis patient who stops treatment while still potentially infectious, however, violates all privileges of privacy. Syphilis is kept alive and spreads in a population by a series of small epidemics. The earlier the source of these epidemics can be obtained and controlled the less number of people infected. The control is one of the activities of your District Health Department.

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR MONEY IN THE BANK

Men and women often suffer heavy losses in making investments. They play with future uncertainties which seem to promise joy and profit, but which too often deliver only grief and loss.

After all, there is no substitute for money in the bank, which today offers security and certainty, instead of uncertainty. Money in the bank is readily available; it is protected by the bank's own resources, with the added protection of Federal Deposit Insurance up to $5,000 for each depositor.

CHAPTER VII—Continued

They lunched in a small tea room in the shopping district and worked over their shopping list while they waited, discussing the different makes of typewriters, the different kinds of carbon paper and pens, the best kind of filing cabinet for their purpose.

But Margaret's pleasure came when they chose rugs and chairs for the offices.

"It wouldn't be necessary to have rugs," said Margaret practically. "The rooms have lovely hardwood floors, and an office doesn't need to be furnished like a parlor, unless you want to make it luxurious."

"I think I do," said Greg thoughtfully. "I've never had much of that sort of thing. I have a notion it's an asset in some ways to have things beautiful and restful. I had a couch once. I always meant to get it a new cover. It's too late now, but I think I'll have some leather-covered chairs instead. Big deep ones. I've been to two or three really fine offices this last week, and I'd like to have a room like them. I have a notion we could work better."

So Margaret reveled in lovely old oriental rugs, and finally selected two Serapis, lovely in soft pastel blendings of old blue and coral and jade and white. The leather chairs they chose were dark blue and deep with comfort. There were two desks, one for the front room for Margaret, one for the back room for Greg.

"And when I'm not here you will sit in the front room and receive any callers," he said. "The back room will be for work of course."

So the desk for the back room was arranged to drop its typewriter down out of the dust when not needed, and the desk for the front room was large and polished and had many deep drawers.

The filing cabinets matched the desks, and everything was quite like a dignified office. There were raw silk sash curtains for the windows in deep cream. It did something sweet and satisfying to Margaret's artistic soul to have the pleasure of selecting these things and she went back to her boarding house that night feeling that she had been on a pleasure excursion.

The next day seemed almost like her childhood's anticipation of Christmas with all those packages coming. It all seemed a lovely dream in which she was moving, everything delightful, if only she had not that pang at her heart about her dear grandparents.

She was eating the fat of the land, doing only pleasant things, and they were living mostly on cornmeal mush and—did they even have milk with it now if Sukey was sold?

Then her heart would cry out. Oh, if only this wonderful position had come a little sooner, and she might have saved Sukey! Perhaps too, even the $25 had not been enough to make up the necessary interest.

Perhaps they had failed in some of their calculations; some of the furniture didn't sell, or the man hadn't paid for the cow yet. She must find out exactly how much she was paying for her board and parcel out her money. Perhaps she might dare to spare five or ten or even twenty more dollars before Thanksgiving, just in case they might need it. Of course she must keep enough on hand in case Mr. Sterling asked her to get something else. He would not like it for her to take the money he expected her to use in clothes and spend it on her relatives, and she must not risk her position even for them, for in the end if this lasted she could help them more abundantly of course.

So she went about arranging the offices, even singing a line of an old song as she polished off the tops of the desks with an old bit of silk from a worn-out slip she had discarded.

Then came Greg breezing in happily, smiling good afternoon. He had been off on some business that morning and came in now with papers and a big bundle under his arm.

But he stopped at the door and exclaimed: "Say! This is great! I wouldn't have believed it would turn out this way."

He went from one new article to another, admired and touched it. He sat down in all the chairs, felt the leather, delighted in the colors of the rugs.

"I'm going to enjoy these a lot!" he said with his face a glow of pleasure. He was pleased as a child.

"I certainly selected the right assistant," he said with a look that made her glad. "You have made a picture of these rooms."

"But what are we going to put in all these?" she asked. "That's what I want to know."

"Oh, I'll show you!" said Greg. He went to the big bundle and took out a lot of pamphlets and little paper-covered books.

"These are to be put on the shelves in those glass-front bookcases," he said, "and there'll be more tomorrow. And here is a list. I was fortunate in getting it. It has the names and addresses of all the ministers and churches in the city. We're going to send out some little pamphlets."

"But what is it about?" asked the girl, picking up the list. "Is it an advertisement of something you are going to sell?"

"No, not at present. We're going to give these away first and then if people want more we'll help them get them. They are little books that the world needs. Are you acquainted with things like that?"

"I certainly am!" said Margaret with a ring in her voice.

There eyes met and there flashed between them something, a bond that seemed to bring them nearer to one another.

"Oh, this is wonderful!" said Margaret. "But Mr. Sterling, how are you going to make it pay? You can't really make money selling these things, can you? At least there must be a very small profit in it."

"I'm not trying to make money," said Greg. "I've got enough of that for the present at least, for all I need and a lot over."

The next day Margaret started in to work in earnest, with piles of envelopes and a long list of addresses.

Greg was in and out a couple of times during the day, but seemed busy and a trifle distraught. Margaret wondered, but worked on happily, and life seemed settling down into a delightful routine with an ideal employer.

Then the second morning about ten o'clock a smart cream-colored car trimmed with lines of scarlet drew up before the house and a startling little lady with golden hair and very red lips got out and came in. She was presently ushered by the disturbed Mrs. Harris into the front office.

"I'll Wait a While."

Margaret came from the inner office to greet her.

The visitor turned a sharp, curious gaze on the secretary and put on her most offensive air.

"Who are you?" she asked disagreeably.

"I am Miss McLaren, Mr. Sterling's secretary. Is there anything I can do for you?"

"No, certainly not. I wish to see Mr. Sterling."

"Mr. Sterling has not come in yet," said Margaret.

"How soon will he come?" asked the visitor. "Doesn't he have regular hours?"

"I am not sure. He is very busy outside of the office just now. But can I give him a message?"

"Of course not!" said the invader, flinging herself into a big chair and taking out her cigarette case. "I'll wait awhile."

Margaret went back to her typewriter in the other room. Presently the visitor got up and went over to the desk, pulling open a drawer and peering within. She picked up the booklet on the top, read its title and flung it down.

"Holy cats!" she exclaimed amusedly. "can you beat it! Greg Sterling! My word!"

Margaret was just arranging carbon paper for a duplication and heard her words and wondered. Was this one of her employer's intimate friends? If not how did she dare go through his desk this way? For now the visitor was opening every drawer and laughing immoderately.

But the morning hours went by and the visitor stayed on. Still Gregory Sterling did not come.

Several times the lady got up from the chair where she was sitting and pranced restlessly around the room examining things in detail, feeling of the quality of silk in the curtains, of the leather of the chairs, turning over the silver desk set to look for the hall-mark, even stooping down to look at the rug on the floor, turning the corner of it over to examine the back.

Margaret happened to notice that and wondered. She knew that was the way an oriental rug was judged, by the closeness of its knots, the number to a square inch. But even if she was interested in fine old rugs she was rude. One could see that at a glance. Or else she must be a very close friend who felt privileged to do what she pleased here. She couldn't be a relative for he had said he hadn't any living relatives that he knew of.

About half-past two she whirled on her heel and went to the desk, sitting down and taking a sheet of paper out of the drawer. She wrote rapidly for a minute, and then, flinging the pen down on the blotter, took an abrupt leave.

Margaret had been working steadily all the morning ever since her arrival. She had not stopped for lunch. Mr. Sterling might blame her if she left her alone. So Margaret stayed.

When the lady at last took her leave, and she heard her car start away from the house, she sat back in her chair and drew a sigh of relief. Then she got up and went into the office. There on the desk lay the paper the lady had written and without intending to read it her eyes took in at a glance the few words it contained:

"Darling Greg:
"Come for a cozy little dinner tonight at 8 entre deux. I need you! Am in awful trouble!"

"Love, ALICE."

Margaret went to the window and stood looking out with troubled eyes for a minute trying to think what was her duty. Then she came back, folded the paper and slipped it inside an envelope, laying the envelope on the blotter where Greg would not fail to find it. Now he need not know that she had seen it.

Presently Mrs. Harris came in. "Well, is she gone at last?" she peered cautiously into the other room and finding it empty stepped through and went and looked out the window. Margaret was glad she had put the note decently into an envelope.

"Yes, she's gone," she said, trying to make her tone casual. She would protect her employer as far as she could.

"Do you know who she is?" Mrs. Harris came back to the inner room.

"No," said Margaret, still brightly casual. "I think somebody perhaps come for advice. Maybe somebody in trouble. She seemed awfully restless."

"Oh," said Mrs. Harris, considering that view, "you don't think then that she's any of his friends—or relatives?"

"I shouldn't suppose so," said Margaret, "she doesn't look like his kind."

"Well, I should hope not," said the little old lady setting her lips firmly. "I certainly never had a woman like that in my house! She didn't really look respectable."

"People do dress that way nowadays," said Margaret thoughtfully. "A great many people do."

"Not nice people!" said Mrs. Harris. "My! I can't see how they can bear themselves! I think they look just grotesque, don't you?—You don't wear paint!"

"No, I don't care for it," said Margaret.

"Did you see her car?"

"Why, no! I didn't happen to go to the window. Did she have a nice car?"

"Nice! Well, it wasn't ladylike. It was painted white with a red stripe around it, and it was one of those queer low kind of cars that sporting men drive. I really felt kind of ashamed to have a woman like that coming out of my house and driving away in a car like that. Did she say she was coming again?"

"She didn't say," said Margaret. "She asked when Mr. Sterling was coming back and I told her I didn't know."

"H'm!" said Mrs. Harris. "Well, I'm glad she's gone! Poor thing, you look all beat out!"

Greg came in about four o'clock. Margaret told him about the caller, gave him the note, and he looked annoyed.

He applied himself to the telephone and Margaret vanished into the other room trying to rattle her machine so that she wouldn't hear the conversation.

And then she heard Greg's voice booming out clearly over her machine's clatter.

"That you, Alice? Too bad you had such a long wait this morning, and I'm sorry, but I can't make it to your dinner tonight. I've made other arrangements for the evening. No, I can't make it tomorrow evening. You'll have to excuse me. I'm awfully busy these days, and I don't fit into that kind of thing any way. . . . What's that? . . . No, not then either. . . . I just haven't time for social affairs. What is the trouble? Debts? Debts of honor? What does that mean, gambling? Sorry, but I have no money to pay anybody's gambling debts."

Suddenly Margaret heard the sharp peculiar click of the telephone, and then she heard Greg chuckle amusedly and sit back in his chair.

Margaret went on with her work, an undertone of relief in her mind. Nevertheless she wondered who was this lady to whom he had talked so frankly, obviously admitting a past in which he had known her well. A wild idea that perhaps she had once been his wife and was divorced, came to her. Greg had told her his brief story, but hadn't mentioned girls. There hadn't been any place in that brief autobiography he had given her in the tea room for any episode of this sort. Had he been merely reassuring her? Yet he seemed so frank. Well, it was none of her business of course how many wives and sweethearts he had. He was only her employer, and as an employer she had no fault to find with him. What did it matter? She would just forget it and do her work and be happy.

But the subject would keep coming back, and troubling her. It wasn't just curiosity. She wanted her Mr. Sterling to be all that he seemed to be.

Of course she knew that there were men who had a great many girl friends of different kinds and thought nothing of it. But a friend like the woman who had been in his office that day was not consistent with his profession of Christianity, or with the unique business he was trying to establish. Still, he couldn't help how old friends turned out of course.

Well, he hadn't gone to her dinner anyway! He had told her plainly that he didn't like her crowd, and wouldn't drink! What more did she, a mere secretary, want to reassure her?

So she tried to put the subject away from her mind.

Mrs. Harris tapped at the door just as dusk was coming down to bring a special delivery letter that had just arrived, and Greg looked up from his book to thank her.

Making Winter Hours Count

SEW - YOUR - OWN

means most at this season of the year when dark and long winter days make time hang heavy on your hands. You can get your Spring wardrobe well started by making these days count. This is the time to sew and sew—and then when the first crocuses show their heads, you will be all ready for Spring; your wardrobe in order and the right clothes to wear.

With sew-your-own patterns and a few yards of material, you can make short work of this whole business of sewing.

Practical Slip.

This four-gore slip is the choice of every woman who likes comfort. The side panels prevent the slip from twisting and turning and keep it comfortably in place on the most strenuous day. The pattern includes built-up and strap shoulder—and you can make it for your own wardrobe in a few hours at a fraction of what you would usually spend. Keep the pattern, you will use it again and again once you see how really comfortable this dress is.

Cheery Morning Frock.

No matter how many of these informal dresses you have, you never have enough. So start right in to sew now and make two or three of them for Spring. This dress (the one in center) is designed on clever shirt-waist lines and buttons from neck to hem. Piping is used at edge of collar, cuffs and pockets. It's the neatest, trimmest little frock you have ever seen. You'll enjoy it all through the summer.

Sweet and Simple.

The figure at right is wearing an afternoon frock that is as fresh and new as a daisy. The gored skirt flares like a ballerina's and the bodice is smoothly fitted, closing with two wide scallops trimmed in smart ruffling. Wear this dress for bridge parties now—and wear it all through the Spring and Summer. It is one of the most popular silhouettes—nicely made up in silk or cotton.

Pattern 1437 is designed for sizes 14 to 46 (32 to 46 bust). Size 16 requires 3 yards of 39-inch material and 5/8 yard ribbon for shoulder straps.

Pattern 1440 is designed for sizes 12 to 40 (30 to 40 bust). Size 14 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39-inch material and 2 yards of binding or braid to trim—as pictured. For collar and cuffs in contrast 5/8 yard fabric is required.

Pattern 1341 is designed for sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 38 bust). Size 14 requires 4 1/2 yards of 35 or 39-inch material plus 2 1/2 yards of machine-made pleating to trim.

An erect posture is closely associated with self-respect. We know that any physical expression tends reflexly to produce that emotion. Therefore, not only does self-respect naturally tend to brace a man's shoulders and straighten his spine but such an attitude tends to brace up a man's mind also.

Those who have lost their self-respect nearly always slouch. The Pharisee, the bully or the dandy strut or swagger. There is a golden middle road that stands for self-respect and self-confidence which combined with courtesy and consideration for others, we all should acquire.

Pituitary Gland Was Known More Than 300 Years Ago; Given Little Attention

Although it was discovered more than 300 years ago little attention was paid to the pituitary till 1886, when a French physician, Pierre Marie, discovered that the disease of acromegaly was due to it—and then himself died of acromegaly. A few years later two Englishmen found that control of the blood pressure was dependent on the pituitary and called it the "brain of the endocrines." Later work has shown that they named more wisely than they knew and that there is scarcely an action performed by the body which is not influenced by this gland, writes Darwin Vexler in the Scientific American.

Like most scientific problems, that of the pituitary is basically quite simple. We know that something is produced by it, and wish to know what that something does and what it is, so that we can make it ourselves and find out just how it acts. It is partly curiosity and partly immediate usefulness that dictate the study and there is always the knowledge that the mere curiosity may lead into finding something of great immediate importance. The method of going about the work is almost self-evident; either remove from the animal all the substance which is to be investigated, and see what he does without it, or add more of it to a normal individual and see what that does. Then take it all away and give this animal the artificially prepared substance. In actual practice of course this becomes complicated.

There is the question of devising a method of completely removing the substance from the animal. That, in the case of the pituitary, involves an operation for the removal of the gland, which lies close to the brain in a well-protected bony box. The chemist is drawn into the work because his is the job of preparing the extracts and isolating the pure hormones. Different kinds of specialists have their fields in following the effects upon various systems of organs, the heart, blood-vessels, sex glands and others.

Are Women Better Shoppers than Men?

GRANTING a woman's reputation for wise buying, let's trace the methods by which she has earned it. Where does she find out about the advantages and details of electrical refrigeration? What tells her how to keep the whole household clean—rugs, floors, bathroom tiling—and have energy left over for golf and parties? How does she learn about new and delicious entrees and desserts that surprise and delight her family? Where does she discover those subtleties of dress and make-up that a man appreciates but never understands?

Why, she reads the advertisements. She is a consistent, thoughtful reader of advertisements, because she has found that she can believe them—and profit thereby. Overlooking the advertisements would be depriving herself of data continuously useful in her job of Purchasing Agent to the Family.

For that matter, watch a wise man buy a car or a suit or an insurance policy. Not a bad shopper himself! He reads advertisements, too!

DORIS DENE'S COLUMN

Young Couple Require a Home of Their Own for Happiness.

DEAR MISS DENE: I am twenty-five years old and the girl I love is very anxious to get married. Her people have money and we can go to live with them after our marriage but I am against this. However, my fiancée insists and says she will not wait to marry me if I don't agree. Actually I couldn't give her a home of her own for two or three years and she knows this. But she is keen on my living with her parents, and for some reason I cannot look to the future with any enjoyment. I am worried and upset about this affair. Give me your opinion.—D. R. K.

ANSWER:—When a maiden is so determined to marry that she actually forces her young man to the altar against his wishes and against all rules of common sense, she is demonstrating clearly the fact that she is more in love with the idea of marriage than with her future husband.

And she is also showing a lack of character which bodes ill for her matrimonial future. It is sheer weakness to rush into marriage when there isn't sufficient capital to finance the undertaking. It argues that the impatient lady is over-anxious to attain to the dignity of being a "Mrs."—that she is perhaps too much concerned with showing her friends that she's captured her man—or that she fears ridicule if she sticks too long to a suitor who is unable to offer her an engagement ring and a smart little apartment on the right side of town. Her cry is therefore: "Give me marriage at any price—even at the cost of my husband's self-respect!" What kind of love is this—which demands such a sacrifice from the beloved?

And what kind of woman is this who welcomes the prospect of living in somebody else's home? Show me a woman who doesn't want a home of her own—who doesn't long to be mistress of her own domain—and I'll show you a lazy little bride who prefers to have mother do all the working and worrying. Once this type of damsel becomes snugly ensconced in mother's nice comfortable home, it will take more than a mere man's wish to pry her out. Let her get used to having somebody else do the planning and budgeting and she'll refuse to change the state of affairs so long as she lives.

Her family and her husband suffer the consequences. A too indulgent father and mother let their declining years be burdened with an extra family around the house. And a patient long suffering husband has to get used to being a permanent guest in the home of his wife's people.

However kind his in-laws may be, they cannot help showing some resentment over the situation.

DEAR MISS DENE: I have been in love with a boy for years. He is popular with the girls, and although he says he loves me I have caught him cheating on several occasions. I have forgiven him, and taken him back time after time. I have gone looking for him, when he has not been around to see me. He earns practically no money and is not a good worker. I want to help him as I know his upbringing was unfortunate. Sometimes he seems to care for me, and other times he doesn't write for months or come near me. I would be heartbroken to go through life without him. Whenever I try to reason with him he reminds me that I haven't as many boy friends as he has girl friends. That is true as I am naturally shy and reserved. Please help.—M. V. H.

ANSWER:—You're too young to go in for reforming an indolent youth who uses your affection and your good-nature as a pleasant refuge from the cares of his crowded life. The fact that he is still adolescent enough to gloat over the number of girl friends he's able to annex means that he can't be taken seriously by anyone. Obviously the reason he's treating you so badly is that he feels it would injure his reputation as a Don Juan if he were to show one girl too much attention. You can do him no greater harm than by encouraging him to believe your sympathy and devotion are always on hand when he becomes a little weary of his round of pleasures.

You strengthen his conceit and his belief in himself when you take snub after snub and doggedly pursue him with the determination to reform him at whatever cost.

No weak sinner was ever reformed by being spoiled, flattered and humored. Life must teach him some sharp lessons before he understands clearly the error of his ways and the necessity for repentance.

So if I were you, M. V. H., I should give your wandering hero a long rest and plenty of time in which to stand on his own feet and face his own problems without the comforting assurance in his heart that you're just around the corner waiting to spoil him to death when he is in need of sympathy.

No lazy, shiftless boy ever resolved to do better things because his sweetheart made it clear that she was an ever present source of affectionate sympathy. The wise girl knows when to withhold forgiveness in order to strengthen the character of the man she loves.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, © Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for January 30

MINISTERING TO SPIRITUAL NEEDS

LESSON TEXT—Mark 2:1-12. GOLDEN TEXT—Son, thy sins are forgiven.—Mark 2:5. PRIMARY TOPIC—When the House Was Crowded.

TWIST TOPIC—Who Can Forgive Sin? INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Bringing People to Christ. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christianity's Concern for Spiritual Health.

Man is so constantly concerned with his physical nature, the needs and interests of his body, that he is prone to forget that there is within him a spiritual nature which is in fact his real self. The body which is the temporary dwelling place of the soul is most important—but relatively it is of but slight significance when considered alongside of the spiritual life of man.

Our lesson presents the Lord Jesus as being rightly concerned with the needs of the palsied man's body, but his act of healing was incidental to the infinitely more important act of forgiving his sins. Consider him, for his was indeed

I. A Hopeless Case (v. 3).
"Incurably afflicted and helpless physically, but far more deeply afflicted spiritually was this poor man, for he was still in his sins. No man was able to heal his body, only God could heal his soul. He was indeed hopeless until he met Jesus. He knows no hopeless case. With God all things are possible, and Jesus Christ is God.

We are even as was this man, for without God we too are without hope (Eph. 2:12). Let us face the facts and admit that unless we are saved through Christ we are eternally and completely lost.

II. Impossible Conditions (vv. 1, 2, 4).
We say that the circumstances surrounding this man were such as to make it impossible for him to reach the Lord, for so they would have been apart from the spirit of divine urgency which impelled his helpers to cut through every excuse and brush aside every hindrance.

"Where there's a will there's a way." Had these men been controlled by convention they would never have put their friend at the feet of Jesus. But note that before taking up the roof they tried the door. They tried to use the proper entry, but it was blocked. It often is—sometimes by customs, sometimes by religious ceremony, often by vain philosophy.

III. Immediate Conversion (v. 5).
At once Jesus sees their faith and forgives the man his sins. God always welcomes and honors faith. Note that Jesus—who as God had the power to forgive sins—immediately cleansed him from all unrighteousness.

This man's affliction proved to be his greatest blessing. If he had not had the palsy he might never have met the Lord. Suffering properly borne may be a means of grace.

IV. Secret Criticism (vv. 6, 7).
What a serious thought it is that the unspoken word which we think we have hidden away in the heart or mind is known to God. "All things are naked and opened unto the eyes of him with whom we have to do" (Heb. 4:13). "There is nothing hid that shall not be known" (Luke 12:2). What does the Lord see when he looks into your heart and mine?

Their theology was faultless—their reasoning was logical, but their premise was wrong. They were right in saying that only God could forgive sin. But they were wrong in assuming that Jesus was not God, and therefore a blasphemer.

V. Miraculous Confirmation (vv. 8-12).
Forgiving sins was harder than healing the body, but these enemies of Jesus lived so much in the realm of the physical that they missed that important truth. He meets the challenge of their unbelief by going into their own limited field of observation. They were not able to test the effectiveness of His forgiveness of sins. They did not believe in Him, hence they would not receive it by faith.

Let us remember that the incident took place in the early days of our Lord's ministry. While we do not condone their hostility to the tender and loving service of our Lord to humanity, we can understand their slowness to accept his claims to divine power. In our day we have no such excuse, for all gospel history is available to us. God help us that we may not sit in the seat of the scornful and "demand a sign" before we will believe.

Harmonies of Nature
There are but few souls who perceive how far the harmonies of Nature resound in accordance with ours, and how much the great whole is but one Aeolian harp with longer or shorter strings, slower and quicker movements, breathed upon by the Divine Being before Whom it rests.—Richter.

Strange Facts
Cavalry Captured Dutch Fleet

A FEW men on horseback once conquered the Dutch fleet. The crews of the well-armed battleships were so surprised when they found their ships surrounded by a troop of cavalry that they surrendered without a fight.

This happened during the cold winter of 1794-95. In France there had been a revolution and the king, Louis XIV, was executed. The French, already at war with Austria, now found themselves forced to fight England, Holland and Spain.

Most of the fighting took place in what is now Belgium. The Dutch were protected until the winter of 1794-95. Then the French generals drove the Austrians across the Rhine, the English soldiers under the duke of York embarked for home. The army of the French general Pichegru crossed frozen rivers, a country bare of supplies, densely intersected with dykes to conquer Utrecht and finally Amsterdam.

North of Amsterdam is the long thumb-like peninsula of North Holland and that great inland sea, the Zuider zee. Between the islands and the tip of North Holland the Dutch fleet had anchored for the winter. The winter of 1794-95 the fleet was frozen in at Texel.

Shortly after Christmas 1794 a small troop of Pichegru's cavalry rode out across the frozen waters. A handful of hussars surrounded the battleships. The Dutch fleet, though well-armed, surrendered to a few Frenchmen on horseback.—© Britannica Junior.

A committee of four has been chosen to cooperate with Mr. Eggert in choosing the play. Irene Brintnall, Kathryn Kitsman, Arthur Rude, and the president, Bud Porter are on the committee.

GRADE NEWS

The children in Miss Gertrude Morrison's first grade room have become interested in out-door sports, especially skating, and have made posters showing out-door sports scenes. The love making posters, and are also making a brightly colored one of fresh fruits, to tempt them to eat more fruit. They are now planning to make a poster of vegetables. At the same time that the posters are being made they are writing stories about fruits and vegetables.

Another project proves to be of absorbing interest, feeling sorry for orphan dolls, they are, besides their poster making, construction a doll house.

FIFTH AND SIXTH GRADE

In Mrs. Frances Benson's room the children have made posters showing winter sport scenes which might occur on the East Jordan skating rink or on the hills surrounding the city. On these posters they attempted to draw figures in correct proportion. We know that they will be good cooks in this room because they made and bottled delicious chocolate milk. In fact the room had quite a banquet last Thursday, with the chocolate milk, crackers, and butter which they churned themselves.

Miss Sylvia Niemi's third grade room has begun a health project. The pupils are making notebooks in which they are collecting pictures, magazine articles, and health stories which they themselves write. The book is also illustrated by the pupils own drawings.

Miss Clark's pupils have a chart upon which they record the times they clean their teeth. If one has cleaned his teeth well, a red star is placed after his name; if he cleans his teeth just once in a while he receives a blue star; and if he hasn't cleaned them at all, a green star is put beside his name.

Mr. DeForest's sixth grade pupils are studying South West Africa. The fifth graders in his room are learning to spell the names of the capitals and provinces in Canada.

REBECCA ANN BOWMAN

California, the land of orange blossoms and perpetual sunshine, is the state where Miss Rebecca first took a real view of the world. The sunshine still expresses itself in her amiable disposition and we feel sure that the orange blossoms will not pass her by.

January 6, 1920 was the date of her arrival, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bowman are her parents. No other school has ever played any part in Rebecca's education thus far, since she has always attended school in East Jordan.

Rebecca has been active in many phases of school activities. For the last three years she has played the saxophone in the band, and has been a member of the glee club. She is a charter member and treasurer of the newly organized Pep Club. Last year she was a member of the Etiquette Club.

Rebecca has a great deal of initiative which was proven by her work on the Freshman Fair, Junior play and hop committees.

Rebecca is a striking blond — blue eyed, tall, and graceful. She is a typical out-door girl and enjoys swimming, skating, skiing, and hiking.

When confronted with the question, "What is your favorite subject?" she laughingly replied, "I'll have to flip a coin to find that out."

Rebecca expects to enter nurse training after graduation. The selection seems a wise one, for she has every qualification to make a success of this profession.

STUDENTS STUDY STUDIOUSLY

MRS. BARTLETT TELLS OF TRIP
Mrs. Edith Bartlett returned to school last week after a month's vacation in Florida. This is how she described her trip to a News Staff reporter.

"My trip South was all so very wonderful to me, that it is hard to make any one part of it to interest you.

"In the first place, it was hard to decide whether I should go or not. There were several discouraging features about it. One party stated that it would be very hard to return to the ice and snow; another that the mountain roads were very dangerous and that I must watch for signs and shift when necessary. So I was quite nervous about starting.

"We were very anxious to get down to the sunny South, so only stopped a few hours at Lookout Mountain out of Chattanooga. We had a guide drive our car up this mountain for us and he told us all the history about it. There was a museum on top of the mountain. In it we saw Governor Cass' one-horse shay and a chair from General Grant's headquarters and many other interesting things pertaining to the war. Going across Georgia, we saw where the cotton fields had been picked, and all along the highway were bags of pecans for sale. As we reached Florida, we began to see the razor back pigs and a few scrawny cows and some goats.

The day we arrived in Daytona, the temperature was around 85 degrees, so we were very glad to get down to the ocean beach. The temperature changed, however, and was 70° and 75° most of the time while there.

On Christmas morning, we drove for miles on the ocean beach, and then on out to Rockefeller's home. The caretaker gave us some oranges from his garden.

We always bought our oranges and fruit at packing houses or road side houses. We were interested in the orange, grapefruit, guava, komquat, papaya and avocado pear. The orchards were ready for harvest.

We stayed at Daytona Beach a week, then went across to St. Petersburg "The Sunshine City."

In crossing Florida we stopped at Lake Wales to hear the carillon recital at 12 o'clock from the Bok, or Singing Tower in Mountain Lake Sanctuary.

It was warmer on the Gulf than on the ocean. We stayed here a week and enjoyed the sunshine and drives around Bococeiga Bay, Treasure Island, Pass-A-Grille Beach, and Clearwater Beach.

On leaving, we stopped at Tarpon Springs where they bring the sponges in in their natural state. Our next stop was at Warm Springs where Franklin Roosevelt has a "Little White House" to live in during his visits.

One of our most interesting stops was at Berea College, which is made up of 90 per cent students.

Back north again, we spent a day in Cincinnati and visited the Rockwood Pottery, Taft Museum, and Union Depot.

Then it was time to come skating home on the ice, into the snow.

SENIOR PARTY

Although the Seniors are allowed two school parties a semester in order that after graduation they may think back of the good times they had during their last year in high school, the first senior party this year is being planned for this Friday, January 28, the day after exams.

Definite plans for the occasion were drawn up this week. The chairman of the entertainment committee is Rebecca Bowman. The others are Stanley Hale, Anna Jean Sherman and Arthur Rude.

The refreshment committee has Clarac Wade for chairman with Shirlee Bulow and Kathryn Kitsman as helpers.

Chaperons are Miss MacDonald, Miss Finch, Mr. Smith, Miss Smitten, and Mr. and Mrs. Eggert.

Last but not least comes the cleanup committee which consists of Mike Hitchcock, Ray Hott, and Galen Seiler with Tom Breakey as chairman. The girls who are to help the refreshment committee in the kitchen are: Artie Houtman, Faith Gidley, and Frances Lenosky.

AMATEUR HOUR

An amateur hour was held last Friday noon from 12:15 to 12:55. Ragged, bearded hillbillies predominated as they sang and twanged their guitars.

Many students took part in the program and revealed their talent. The German band, composed of seven members of the large band, played several pieces. Bud St. Arno played and sang "When Father was a Little Boy" and "Swiss Boy." Then the "Hillbillies" composed of Bud St. Arno, Charles Burbank, Gerald Simmons, Marlin Ingalls, and Edward Bishaw sang and told jokes. Their theme song was "I see a Candlelight in the Valley." They also sang "You Can't Stop Me from Dreaming."

Then Burl Walker sang and played two songs. Duets were sung by Charles Burbank and Bud St. Arno "Old Pal of Yesterday" "Blue Horizon." Leon Peterson played his guitar and sang "Blue Eyes." Edward Bishaw sang two numbers.

Benny Clark acted as snake charmer, complete with snake and all!

The program was closed with the school song "On East Jordan" played by the German band and directed by Arnold Carney, the audience joining in. Abe Cohn was chairman of the program arrangements.

HOME ECONOMICS NEWS

If you would have glanced in the home economics room, No. 12, last week you would have seen a cot crowded between the tables. The tenth grade home economics girls are taking a short course in home nursing. Every girl is trying to develop the qualities of a good home nurse. They don't expect to become second Florence Nightengales, but are resolved to become good home nurses.

If one should visit this room, one would see various posters, which were made by the girls, hanging on the bulletin boards and walls. Each poster represents a phase in home nursing.

Some of the girls acted as patient last week. The others performed demonstrations such as washing a patient's hair, moving patients, and various back rests. If any of the students get injured this week during the third and fourth period, rush them to the home economics hospital where they will be tended to by the many nurses.

SCOUTS SEW

The East Jordan Girl Scouts are making their own scout ties out of red material. Miss Marjorie Smitten is going to help them applique a trefoil on one corner of them. If any of these ties are good enough, some of the girls will be able to pass the scout sewing test.

Although the different patrols are busy among themselves, last Tuesday night the whole troop met for a game of basketball in which Suzy Porter's team won.

NEW BOOKS ORDERED

Approximately fifty new books have been ordered for the school library. Each teacher made out a requisition for his department. When the books arrive they will be placed in the high school library and catalogued. They will be for use in the science, commercial, history, Latin and English departments.

TOM BREAKEY

Tom Breakey, another one of those tall senior boys, was one of the two students who rendered such "invaluable" assistance to Armand, the mathematician, in his box trick. Unlike most other seniors Tom wasn't born in or near East Jordan, but in Pontiac, Michigan. He has brown eyes and hair and lacks just one inch from being six feet tall. He weight one-hundred and sixty pounds.

Tom has two favorite sports: Swimming in the summer, and skating in the winter. He had planned to enter races at the winter carnival, until the weather upset plans.

When asked if he had a hobby Tom replied, "Just stamp collecting."

Tom is known to be a good trackman. Last year he showed himself efficient in broad jump, pole vault, and low hurdles.

Tom was born December 2, 1919 and attended the Pontiac school for eight years. He came to East Jordan in 1934 and started school here in his freshman year. He lives on the edge of the city limits, but nevertheless you may see him in town a great deal, and not always at the skating rink.

Tom "never lets any studies bother him."

When he was asked what his favorite subject was, he said he didn't know of any unless it was American History.

NEW SCHOOL BUS

Since several of the school buses are growing old and feeble from that common ailment, old age, the School Board in a recent meeting decided to get one new bus to take some of the strain off the older buses.

Instead of getting either a Ford, Chevrolet or Dodge as has been done when buying new buses in the past, the Board decided on an International bus this time. Its capacity is forty and it is painted red, white, and blue.

The bus has been ordered for some time and will probably be here this week. It is not decided who the lucky man will be who gets to drive the new bus, but it will probably by Gib Sturgell, who is in charge of all the buses.

CARL A. BEYER

One couldn't identify Carl Beyer by saying he just lacks one-half inch of being a six footer, but to say that he strolls around the halls quite frequently with that little freshman girl in the red sweater might help do so. Carl is a quiet sort of boy with an engaging grin. He is the type who talks little and says a whole lot.

Carl was born November 1, 1920, near East Jordan. He attended the Chaddock School for three years, which then consolidated into the East Jordan Consolidated Agricultural School. He has three brothers, and four sisters. His Brother John graduated in '36. Carl is next to the youngest. His middle name begins with A. (but we promised not to tell what it is.)

This year Carl is taking physics, American government, animal husbandry, and soils. His favorite subject is mathematics. "I wouldn't mind if ALL my subjects were math," he said.

"Favorite sports? Well, fishing and hunting. I guess, and baseball! I like riding around in an automobile to see the country too, but I guess that isn't exactly a sport."

Carl's other favorites are "Chop suey" for food, Charlie McCarthy on the radio, and Oliver Hardy and Stanley Laurel in the movies.

He is uncertain as yet what he will do when he graduates. Good luck in whatever it is, Carl.

As we reached Florida, we began to see the razor back pigs and a few scrawny cows and some goats.

The day we arrived in Daytona, the temperature was around 85 degrees, so we were very glad to get down to the ocean beach. The temperature changed, however, and was 70° and 75° most of the time while there.

On Christmas morning, we drove for miles on the ocean beach, and then on out to Rockefeller's home. The caretaker gave us some oranges from his garden.

We always bought our oranges and fruit at packing houses or road side houses. We were interested in the orange, grapefruit, guava, komquat, papaya and avocado pear. The orchards were ready for harvest.

We stayed at Daytona Beach a week, then went across to St. Petersburg "The Sunshine City."

In crossing Florida we stopped at Lake Wales to hear the carillon recital at 12 o'clock from the Bok, or Singing Tower in Mountain Lake Sanctuary.

It was warmer on the Gulf than on the ocean. We stayed here a week and enjoyed the sunshine and drives around Bococeiga Bay, Treasure Island, Pass-A-Grille Beach, and Clearwater Beach.

On leaving, we stopped at Tarpon Springs where they bring the sponges in their natural state. Our next stop was at Warm Springs where Franklin Roosevelt has a "Little White House" to live in during his visits.

One of our most interesting stops was at Berea College, which is made up of 90 per cent students.

Back north again, we spent a day in Cincinnati and visited the Rockwood Pottery, Taft Museum, and Union Depot.

Then it was time to come skating home on the ice, into the snow.

SENIOR PARTY

Although the Seniors are allowed two school parties a semester in order that after graduation they may think back of the good times they had during their last year in high school, the first senior party this year is being planned for this Friday, January 28, the day after exams.

Definite plans for the occasion were drawn up this week. The chairman of the entertainment committee is Rebecca Bowman. The others are Stanley Hale, Anna Jean Sherman and Arthur Rude.

The refreshment committee has Clare Wade for chairman with Shirlee Bulow and Kathryn Kitsman as helpers.

Chaperons are Miss MacDonald, Miss Finch, Mr. Smith, Miss Smitton, and Mr. and Mrs. Eggert.

Last but not least comes the cleanup committee which consists of Mike Hitchcock, Ray Hott, and Galen Seiler with Tom Breakey as chairman. The girls who are to help the refreshment committee in the kitchen are: Artie Houtman, Faith Gidley, and Frances Lenosky.

AMATEUR HOUR

An amateur hour was held last Friday noon from 12:15 to 12:55. Ragged, bearded hillbillies predominated as they sang and twanged their guitars.

Many students took part in the program and revealed their talent. The German band, composed of seven members of the large band, played several pieces. Bud St. Arno played and sang "When Father was a Little Boy" and "Swiss Boy." Then the "Hillbillies" composed of Bud St. Arno, Charles Burbank, Gerald Simmons, Marlin Ingalls, and Edward Bishaw sang and told jokes. Their theme song was "I see a Candlelight in the Valley." They also sang "You can't Stop Me from Dreaming."

Then Burl Walker sang and played two songs. Duets were sung by Charles Burbank and Bud St. Arno "Old Pal of Yesterday" "Blue Horizon" Leon Peterson played his guitar and sang "Blue Eyes." Edward Bishaw sang two numbers.

Benny Clark acted as snake charmer, complete with snake and all!

The program was closed with the chool song "On East Jordan" played by the German band and directed by Harold Carney, the audience joined in. Abe Cohn was chairman of the program arrangements.

HOME ECONOMICS NEWS

If you would have glanced in the home economics room, No. 12, last week you would have seen a crowded table between the tables. The tenth grade home economics girls are taking a short course in home nursing. Every girl is trying to develop the qualities of a good home nurse. They don't expect to become second class Nightingales, but are resolved to become good home nurses.

If one should visit this room, one would see various posters, which were made by the girls, hanging on the bulletin boards and walls. Each poster represents a phase in home nursing.

Some of the girls acted as patients last week. The others performed demonstrations such as washing a patient's hair, moving patients, and putting on back rests. If any of the students get injured this week during the third and fourth period, rush them to the home economics hospital where they will be tended to by the many nurses.

SCOUTS SEW

The East Jordan Girl Scouts are making their own scout ties out of red material. Miss Marjorie Smitten is going to help them applique a trefoil on one corner of them. If any of these ties are good enough, some of the girls will be able to pass the scout sewing test.

Although the different patrols are busy among themselves, last Tuesday night the whole troop met for a game of basketball in which Suzy Porter's team won.

NEW BOOKS ORDERED

Approximately fifty new books have been ordered for the school library. Each teacher made out a requisition for his department. When the books arrive they will be placed in the high school library and catalogued. They will be for use in the science, commercial, history, Latin and English departments.

TOM BREAKEY

Tom Breakey, another one of those tall senior boys, was one of the two students who rendered such "invaluable" assistance to Armand, the magician, in his box trick. Unlike most other seniors Tom wasn't born in or near East Jordan, but in Pontiac, Michigan. He has brown eyes and fair hair and lacks just one inch from being six feet tall. He weighs one hundred and sixty pounds.

Tom has two favorite sports: swimming in the summer, and skating in the winter. He had planned to enter races at the winter carnival, until the weather upset plans.

When asked if he had a hobby Tom replied, "Just stamp collecting."

Tom is known to be a good track man. Last year he showed himself efficient in broad jump, pole vault, and low hurdles.

Tom was born December 2, 1919 and attended the Pontiac school for eight years. He came to East Jordan in 1934 and started school here in his freshman year. He lives on the edge of the city limits, but nevertheless you may see him in town a great deal and not always at the skating rink.

Tom "never lets any studies bother him."

When he was asked what his favorite subject was, he said he didn't "know of any unless it was American History."

NEW SCHOOL BUS

Since several of the school busses are growing old and feeble from that common ailment, old age, the School Board in a recent meeting decided to get one new bus to take some of the strain off the older busses.

Instead of getting either a Ford, Chevrolet or Dodge as has been done when buying new busses in the past, the Board decided on an International bus this time. Its capacity is forty and it is painted red, white, and blue.

The bus has been ordered for some time and will probably be here this week. It is not decided who the lucky man will be who gets to drive the new bus, but it will probably be Gib Sturgell, who is in charge of all the busses.

CARL A. BEYER

One couldn't identify Carl Beyer by saying he just lacks one-half inch of being a six footer, but to say that he strolls around the halls quite frequently with that little freshman girl in the red sweater might help do so. Carl is a quiet sort of boy with an engaging grin. He is the type who talks little and says a whole lot.

Carl was born November 1, 1920, near East Jordan. He attended the Chaddock School for three years, which then consolidated into the East Jordan Consolidated Agricultural School. He has three brothers, and four sisters. His brother John graduated in '36. Carl is next to the youngest. His middle name begins with A. (but we promised not to tell what it is.)

This year Carl is taking physics, American government, animal husbandry, and soils. His favorite subject is mathematics. "I wouldn't mind if ALL my subjects were math," he said.

"Favorite sports? Well, fishing and hunting I guess, and baseball! I like riding around in an automobile to see the country too, but I guess that isn't exactly a sport."

Carl's other favorites are "Chop suey" for food, Charlie McCarthy on the radio, and Oliver Hardy and Stanley Laurel in the movies.

He is uncertain as yet what he will do when he graduates. Good luck in whatever it is, Carl.
