NUMBER 23

Fifty Head of Choice Dairy Cattle and Sires Offered at 1st Stock Sale

JORDAN VALLEY LIVE-STOCK SALES ASS'N SPONSORING SALE

AT E. JORDAN FAIR GROUNDS THURSDAY, JUNE 16, AT ONE O'CLOCK

All indications point to a highly successful dairy sale at the East Jordan fair grounds on Thursday afternoon, June 16, when the Jordan Valley Livestock Sales Association will offer fifty head of choice dairy cattle and good dairy bulls and heifers. Already, consignments have been made by more than twenty breeders with others coming in daily. John Ter Avest states that this will be the best offering he has ever seen. Charles Murphy, President, announces that a special sales ring and platform has been constructed at the fair ground to accommodate the large crowd expected and to handle the cattle to good advantage. Advertising material has gone throughout the state.

It is hoped that through this medium that farmers can obtain better prices and better satisfaction than by individual effort. All the cooperative organizations in both Antrim and Charlevoix Counties are cooperating in every respect. When this announcement reaches you, you still have time to consign your cattle for this sale. See John Ter Avest at East Jordan or your local cooperative manager for all details. This looks like a huge success from every viewpoint. If the sales comes up to expectations, future sales on a much larger basis will be attempted. If you are in the market to buy, this will be a most wonderful opportunity as all cattle consigned will be fresh cows or close springers and will be free from Bang's Disease and T. B. Don't forget the date of Thursday afternoon, June 16. Remember you are not obligated to buy if you attend so come and see this choice offering.

B. C. Mellenkamp, County Agr'l Agent.

Frank D. Fitzgerald To Be At Charlevoix Next Wednesday Afternoon

Former Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald will visit Charlevoix and Grand Traverse Counties Wednesday, June 15, on his pre-campaign swing through Michigan in connection with his candidacy for the Republican nomination of Governor. There will be no ceremonies and no speeches on this visit, which is in the nature of an informal, friendly call. Arrangements have been made for him to meet the people of these communities in the lobby of the Lakeview Inn in

FRANK D. FITZGERALD

Charlevoix from two to three in the afternoon and in the lobby of the Park Place Hotel in Traverse City from 8 to 9:30 p. m. Wednesday.

At this time Mr. Fitzgerald will be glad to meet personally and talk with all citizens, who are interested in the governmental affairs of their state. One of the purposes of the tour is to gain the individual viewpoint of all citizens, regardless of party affiliation.

Fitzgerald's schedule for the week will include visits in Crawford and Otsego Counties, Monday, June 13, with informal meetings at Shoppington Inn in Grayling from 3 to 4 in the afternoon and in the Central Hotel in Gaylord from 8 to 9:30 p. m. He will move into Cheboygan and Emmet Counties Tuesday with meetings in the afternoon in the Ottawa Hotel in Cheboygan from two to three p. m. and in the Cedar Room of the Hotel Perry in Petoskey from 7:30 to 9 p. m. the same day.

What are the duties of a best man at weddings? One of his most important functions in some cases would seem to be to prevent the bridegroom from escaping.

Chamber of Commerce Meets Monday Night

The June meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be held at the High School Auditorium next Monday evening at 6:30. The supper will be served by the Presbyterian ladies. The program will consist of an address by Rev. C. R. Harper, who has been in educational work in Brazil for some years. Mrs. Harper, who is a musician, will probably sing some songs in the Brazilian language.

Rev. C. R. Harper of Brazil Is Here This Sunday

Rev. C. R. Harper, who represents the local Presbyterian church in Brazil, will speak at the church Sunday morning. He is President of a pre-theological college in Sao Paulo. He will be accompanied by his wife and two children. Mrs. Harper will speak at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Independents Take Opener

FROM BOYNE CITY BASE BALL TEAM. PLAY THERE COMING SUNDAY

The East Jordan Independent baseball club opened its season at the West-Side Ball Park last Sunday afternoon with a 4 to 3 triumph over the Boyne City Independents. It was the first game of the season for both teams, as L. Sommerville bested Goodrich in a pitchers duel. The former gave up 9 safe blows while the latter was reached for but 5. Bisque caught for the visitors, Bowman for the Jordanites.

H. Sommerville with 2 hits in 4 trips to the plate led the local batting attack. Hausler, Boyne's star high school athlete of the past season, collected 3 hits in 5 trips to the plate to lead the visitors.

The Jordanites play a return game at Boyne Sunday in what promises to be another close battle.

Snow White and Seven Dwarfs At Temple

With the regains of publicity, the oral bouquets of the radio, and the enthusiastic reviews of the press, very little has been left unsaid in praise of Walt Disney's technicolor masterpiece, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." The important thing is that this grand entertainment will start a four day presentation at the Temple starting Sunday. The following schedule should be observed closely to avoid disappointment: Matinees will be held on Sunday and Wednesday at 2:30 o'clock. Evening shows will start at 7 and 9 p. m. Admission prices are governed by producer contracts and will be 15c and 25c for all performances, both matinees and night. The Dionne Quints also appear on this bill in a new featurette, "Quintupland."

The full week for the Temple is below:

Saturday: Bill Boyd in, "The Heart of Arizona" a new Hop-A-Long Cassidy story.

Sun., Mon., Tues., Wed.: "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" with the Dionne Quints in "Quintupland."

Thur., Fri.: Alice Faye, Fred Allen, Jimmy Durante, Joan Davis in "Sally, Irene and Mary."

Because of the extended run of "Snow White" the management has suspended Family Nights for the week. The Lone Ranger episode will be run on Thursday only in addition to the regular program.

Local Students In M. S. C. Commencement

Six hundred thirty Michigan State College seniors today were listed by the registrar's office as candidates for degrees in the 80th annual commencement program here on Monday, June 13.

HARVEY HARRINGTON

Governor Murphy will be the speaker on the commencement program, beginning at 10:30 a. m. Monday, June 13, in Demonstration hall. A week of senior activities, including the senior play on Wednesday evening, June 8; the water carnival on Friday and Saturday evenings, June 10 and 11, and the baccalaureate service on Sunday, June 12, will precede the commencement program.

Coffee Cups Drop Second Game To Petoskey Team

The East Jordan Coffee Cup softball aggregation took its second successive defeat last Friday evening, dropping an 8 to 6 encounter to the Maus Store team of Petoskey. The Store men started fast, getting to "Spin" Cihak, local hurler, for 4 runs on 2 hits in the opening frame and from here on in were never threatened.

Wykes, leading pitcher of the Petoskey league, held the Jordanites to 6 hits, two of which were home runs by M. Cihak and Hegerberg in the final half of the seventh frame. Holben did the catching for the winners, with P. Sommerville handling the backstopping for the Jordanites.

L. Sommerville is leading the local attack in the first four games with 8 hits in 18 times to the plate for an even .500 average, followed by Hegerberg who holds a .375 hitting clip.

An Appreciation

Several of the heirs of the Pauline LaLonde Estate wish to take this method of expressing their appreciation of the able manner in which the administrator, Lawrence Addis, has handled and brought to a settlement this rather complicated estate. This estate, consisting of stocks, mortgages, real estate and personal property, has been brought to a final settlement in a remarkably short time considering the many details to be handled.

County Wide Road Improv'mt

WPA ALLOTMENT OF $189,333 TO CHARLEVOIX COUNTY

A telegram from our Congressman, Hon. John Luecke, at Washington to The Herald — received Wednesday afternoon — is of vital interest to every citizen of Charlevoix County interested in developing our highways. For some time past there has been (either justly or unjustly) an undercurrent of feeling among our citizens that Charlevoix County was not receiving its just share of state and federal aid in the building and maintenance of the highways in this county. Whether or not this is correct The Herald publisher is unable to say.

Below is the message from Congressman Luecke: Washington, D. C., June 8, 1938 G. A. Lisk, Publisher Charlevoix County Herald East Jordan, Mich.

"President signed WPA project on June 3rd carrying allotment of $189,333 for county wide road improvement. Sponsor, Charlevoix County Road Commission. Final approval by Comptroller General expected at early date."

4-H CLUB NEWS

4-H CLUBS AND SCHOOLS SET OUT 25,000 YOUNG PINE SEEDLINGS

Around 25,000 red and jack pine seedlings were planted in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan Counties by members of the 4-H clubs. In many cases a plot of ground, 40 or 80 acres, was deeded to the schools by the conservation department to be used as a school forest on which trees may be planted each year. The conservation department also gives each club from 2000 to 5000 trees each year.

This year, Michigan State College sent two of their men, Mr. Deters and Mr. Robbins from the Forestry Department, to instruct the members on the proper method of planting and caring for the trees. The conservation department also co-operated in obtaining the land and in helping to plant the trees.

Much interest has been shown by the boys and girls in the planting of the school forest. Each member placed a stake with his name on it at the head of the row which he set out. In the fall they plan to go back and check to see how many trees are living. The forest club activities do not end with the planting and checking of trees for during the winter a program of four meetings will be held for each club. Outside speakers, who are well-qualified to talk on conservation work, will be called in on these programs.

The schools which have organized 4-H school forests are:

Antrim County — Mancelona, Alba, Bellaire, and Ellsworth.

Charlevoix County — Boyne Falls and Walloon Lake.

Emmet County — Pellston.

Cheboygan County — Wolverine and Mackinaw City.

During the second week of September delegates from the various clubs will have the opportunity to attend a week at the annual conservation camp which, for the past two years, has been held at Pigeon River Camp. The camp this year might be held at Chatham — across the straits.

Grasshopper Campaign Will Be Started Week of June 13

The Grasshopper Control Committee has now made definite plans to start mixing poison bait the week of June 13. This year the bait will be mixed in the Snyder feed mill at Boyne Falls. After carefully totaling the requests for bait it was found that Boyne Falls reaches the most farmers at a minimum of distance.

It is expected that the material will arrive this week. This year the poison bait will be given out free. This is done with the intention of encouraging more farmers to spread this material where grasshoppers will be apt to be most abundant. A notice will be sent from the County Agent's office to each farmer who has requested bait, notifying them when it will be available but I think it can be safely announced that the forepart of the week of June 13 can be planned. A count made on Monday, June 6, indicates that the grasshoppers are only about sixty per cent hatched and it is thought that another weeks delay will give the maximum control. The better the job is done on the first treatment the less trouble will be encountered later on.

Fire Destroys Power Plant

M. P. S. CO. PLANT NEAR BOYNE CITY DAMAGED $100,000

During a heavy electrical storm about 2:00 a. m., Monday, the power plant of the Michigan Public Service Company on the Boyne river near Boyne City was struck by lightning, followed by a gaseous explosion that ignited the entire building. Fire fighting equipment of the Department of Conservation was rushed to the scene but could accomplish little owing to the intensity of the blaze.

Newberry Jensen, operator of the plant at the time of the fire, had been accompanied to his work that night by a relative. It is said the relative was around the machinery at the time — was stunned by the shock — and was taken to a place of safety by Mr. Jensen.

The same morning officials of the Michigan Public Service Company were on the scene and, it is said, estimated the loss at $100,000. Plans are now underway for construction of a new unit. The plant destroyed is one of a chain of plants operated by the Company and service was disrupted for only a brief period.

Only about a week ago the spillway on this same power dam went out, causing damage estimated around $5000.00.

Atwood Candidate For State Office

Former Secretary of State Orville E. Atwood of Fremont is definitely in the race for the Republican nomination for the office he held during 1935 and 1936, according to Don Vander Werp, publisher of the Fremont Times-Indicator and senator from the 26th district. Senator Vander Werp said that Atwood's one term as secretary of state had proven his fitness for the job and that the public would welcome a return to the Atwood type of service furnished by the department of state during his two-year term.

In the election of 1936 Atwood demonstrated his popularity with the people by leading the state ticket. In the landslide of that year he was 6,600 votes nearer to election than any other Republican candidate for state office. Atwood carried 62 of the 83 counties which was more than were carried by any other Republican candidate. He was the only Republican candidate for state office who received a majority in Kent, Ingham and Mason counties.

Vander Werp further stated that Atwood is needed in the office to re-establish prompt and courteous service to the public. His trained leadership is necessary to eliminate the chaos that now exists.

In 1931 Atwood was appointed Director of the Motor Vehicle Division of the Secretary of State's office. Through his organizing ability, this office was soon able to render quick and efficient service to the motorist and motor vehicle dealers of the state.

Atwood was appointed director of the Michigan Safety Council made up of organizations and individuals. After a careful study of the subject, the Council's recommendations were put in a bill which was unanimously passed by the 1937 legislature. As a result Michigan is leading the nation in the reduction of highway accidents.

During his several terms in the legislature Atwood was a member of the committees which had consideration of motor vehicle legislation. He was the father of the gasoline tax for highway construction.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—President Getulio Vargas of Brazil was a far-western frontiersman in his youth, still wearing "bombachos," or gaucha trousers, for informal dress, and quite in character pumping a six-gun at the palace, and putting down a Graustarkian revolt.

A swarthy, stocky little man, quick on the draw, he has never been gun-shy, and impromptu shooting has been an occasional obligato in his rise to supreme power.

When he established his totalitarian state on November 10 of last year, there were those who said he was dealing in the dark of the moon with the green shirts—that here was where Germany and fascism got a toe-hold on this continent.

The green shirt revolt and its vigorous suppression by Sr. Vargas seems to be an answer to that, even if he had not previously made it clear that his authoritarian state was not of the European model.

Brazil has a complex racial makeup which provides no proscribed group or racial myth, the first requirement in fascist technique, and furthermore, when it comes to strong-arm government, all South American countries have plenty of home talent and indigenous skill.

Sr. Vargas recruited his political following as a liberal. He denounced monopoly and promised the overthrow of the "coffee plantation kings."

He seized power in 1930 by the overthrow of President Washington Luiz, with the aid of his lifetime friend, old General Aurelio Monteiro. Luiz had won the election against him, but Vargas raised a cry of fraud.

From the first he ruled partially by decree, now entirely, since the adoption of the constitution of November 10. His reorganization of the country followed established dictatorial practice in the formation of labor "syndicates," the fixing of maximum and minimum wages, and the denial of all rights of free press and free assemblage.

He is a famous orator, speaking a fluent and flowery Portuguese, using the radio a great deal in national appeals. He is credited with just about the shrewdest political intelligence in South America. In his prairie town, he attended a private college, later enrolled in a military college, but was diverted to the law.

His rise through minor offices to the national congress parallels the standard career chart of our congressional record biographies—district attorney, state legislature and all the rest of it.

THE make-believe war in which the eastern seaboard was defended against "black" expeditionary forces from overseas was the first large-scale working-out of our "flying fortresses" under a unified command. Major General Frank M. Andrews, running the show, is one of the few flying generals.

He gathered up the strands of the unified service when the GHQ air force, which he commands, moved into the huge air base at Langley field, March 1, 1935.

Called the "handsomest man in the service," he is quietly effective and the last man in the world to be called a swivel-chair officer. He warns the country against a shortage of fliers and urges civilian training. He was not an A. E. F. flier.

In 1934 he made the unusual jump from lieutenant-colonel to brigadier-general and was made a major-general in 1935. He was graduated from West Point in 1908 and was with the cavalry on the Mexican border, before he found his wings.

The Mayflower Party
The Mayflower brought 41 men and their families—102 in all. The Speedwell, which set out with the Mayflower, proved unseaworthy and turned back. The Mayflower was followed the next year by the Fortune of 55 tons, which arrived at Plymouth in November, 1621, with some 30 additional emigrants. In 1623 the Ann and the James of 140 and 44 tons, respectively, arrived with 60 more members for the colony. The passengers in these vessels completed the list of those who are usually called first-comers.

NEW SEAWAY PROPOSAL

Secretary Hull's St. Lawrence Plan Arouses Strong Opposition in Congress . . . Wallace Again Rebuffed

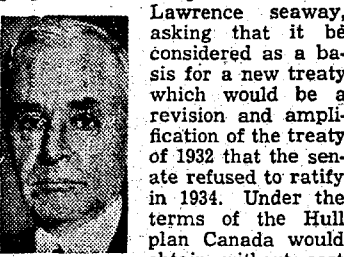

Adolpho Echagaray Somohano, commander of the Mexican federal troops engaged in suppressing the revolt in San Luis Potosi state led by Saturnino Cedillo, is here seen, right, giving orders to two of his officers.

Edward W. Pickard SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

Hull's St. Lawrence Plan

PRESUMABLY by direction of the President, Secretary of State Hull submitted to Canada a new proposal for development of the St. Lawrence seaway, asking that it be considered as a basis for a new treaty which would be a revision and amplification of the treaty of 1932 that the senate refused to ratify in 1934. Under the terms of the Hull plan Canada would obtain without cost a completed St. Lawrence deep waterway, ready for power development, and also other valuable concessions. The United States would obtain the privilege of building the seaway at its own expense, increased power development at Niagara Falls, and the recognition by Canada of American sovereignty over Lake Michigan.

Secretary Hull

Immediate and vociferous opposition to the plan broke out in congress, both Democrats and Republicans characterizing it as a scheme to buy the support of the Dominion for a gigantic water power development planned by the New York state power authority.

From the State department leaked information that not even Canada was expected to approve the proposed treaty. Canadian officials have repeatedly doubted whether recovery from the depression would be promoted by spending millions on a waterway for which there is not sufficient commerce and for development of surplus water power for which there is no demand.

Hull's plan provides that the United States shall develop the international rapids section of the St. Lawrence river at an estimated cost of 400 million dollars. This was denounced by Senator Wagner of New York. Senator Copeland, also of New York, announced he was against the seaway project "1,000 per cent." He called it "an all-British canal."

Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee having jurisdiction of treaties, said the new proposals would not have a chance of ratification unless materially modified. Senators and representatives from the Middle West were especially aroused. Senator Clark of Missouri pointed out that the treaty would permit diversion of only 1,500 cubic feet of water per second into the Chicago drainage canal. He said the Mississippi river must receive more water than that from the canal in order to fill a nine-foot channel.

Representative Claude Parsons of Illinois was even more emphatic in disapproval. "This proposed treaty," he said, "is about the worst mistake Secretary Hull ever made. Under the terms of his proposal to set up an international commission for the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence basin, Canada would be given control over our all-American Lake Michigan."

"Furthermore, the treaty would prohibit any further diversion of water from Lake Michigan at Chicago of more than 1,500 cubic feet per second. The Illinois and Mississippi rivers must have at least 5,000 c.f.s. to insure a dependable waterway."

Wallace Slapped Again

STERNLY chastising Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson for making assertions that were unwarranted and wholly unfounded, the United States Supreme court rejected the government's petition for a rehearing of the Kansas City stockyards rate case.

Twice before the court had rebuked Wallace in the stockyards case and had set aside his order fixing maximum rates which commission men might charge for services because, the court said, they had been denied a full, fair, and open hearing by Secretary Wallace.

Justice Hugo Black, who was the lone dissenter when the case was decided in April, ran true to form, again being the only member of the court to dissent.

New Food Act Passed

WITHOUT a record vote the house passed the new pure food and drug bill. The senate had passed a similar measure and the differences were to be reconciled in conference. The act brings drugs, therapeutic devices, and foods under regulation of the Department of Agriculture. It prohibits alteration or misbranding of cosmetics, 94 foods and drugs, requires adequate tests of products before they are placed on the market, provides for license restrictions to control bacterial contamination of foods, requires warning labels on habit-forming drugs, and provides for factory inspection.

Reform Bill Shelved

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT accepted the advice of congressional leaders and consented to the shelving of his bill for reorganization of the executive government. This was announced with the approval of the President by Senator Barkley. At the same time it was made known that the administration would attempt to get the measure through congress early in the 1939 session. Sen. Hiram Johnson of California said the opponents of the bill would be ready to resume their battle against it next year.

Tax Bill Unsigned But Law

FOR the first time since he entered the White House, President Roosevelt permitted an act of congress to become law without his signature.

President Roosevelt

He took this course with the tax revision bill in order to emphasize his objection to "those unwise parts of the bill" which removed all but the skeleton of the undistributed profits tax and drastically modified the levies upon capital gains.

The President announced his action in a speech delivered to 148 mountain families of the New Deal-sponsored rehabilitation community of Arthurdale, W. Va., at the graduation exercises of 13 high school students. His words, however, were carried to the nation by radio networks.

"I call the definite attention of the American people," said Mr. Roosevelt, "to those unwise parts of the bill I have talked to you about today—one of them which may restore in the future certain forms of tax avoidance, and of concentrated investment power, which we had begun to end, and the other a definite abandonment of a principle of tax policy long ago accepted as part of our American system."

The President declared that he had no objection to removing any obstacles to little business which might be contained in the revenue laws but he reiterated the administration's determination not to allow the use of corporate forms to avoid what it considers legitimate tax burdens.

Mr. Roosevelt made plain that he hoped for a future revision of the revenue laws in line with the objectives he seeks. Such revisions, he said, should be designed to encourage new investment and the entry of private capital into new fields.

Another Recovery Plan

A BANDONMENT of experiments by the government and adoption of an industrial program based on experience was advocated by Charles R. Hook, president of the National Association of Manufacturers before a meeting of the Chicago Association of Commerce. "A return to sound economic reasoning and a common sense diagnosis is the sure solution to the problems of America today," Mr. Hook said.

Emphasizing that industry has a definite program for industrial recovery, Mr. Hook, who is president of American Rolling Mill company, outlined three cardinal points, including revision of the Wagner act, revision of the tax structure and banishment of existing and threatened government competition with private enterprise. "Remove these causes of fear and uncertainty," Mr. Hook said, "and private savings will rush back into the channels of private productive enterprise."

"We specifically urge amendments to the Wagner act to correct its one-sided character, to enforce responsibility on labor organizations, to separate the functions of fact finding, prosecution and judicial decision, and establish impartial administration by the national labor relations board."

Twenty More Federal Judges

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT signed the bill creating 20 additional federal judges throughout the country. The measure is the largest judgeship bill passed by congress since 1921.

Five additional Circuit Court of Appeals judges at $12,500 a year each and 15 additional district judges at $10,000 a year each are authorized by the act.

Strike Back at Morgan

TESTIFYING before the joint congressional committee of investigation, David E. Lilienthal and Harcourt Morgan, directors of the Tennessee Valley authority, accused Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, their ousted colleague, with trying to sabotage the TVA's legal defense in a court case involving the constitutionality of the authority. They said, too, that he had engaged in a campaign of dissent and obstruction.

These charges, together with a general denial of Arthur Morgan's accusations against themselves, constituted in the main their defense statements.

Referring to the trial last winter of the suit of 18 private utility concerns against the TVA, Lilienthal said: "It is a record which suggests that he was seeking to find a way to obtain a judicial decision against his own agency. It is a record of tampering with prospective witnesses for the government and of obstructing and harassing counsel and witnesses in the very heat of the trial of a crucial constitutional case."

Concerning the Berry marble claims, Lilienthal said: "Any assertion that we (Harcourt Morgan and himself) by word or attitude encouraged any one to pull punches on Berry's claims is an outright falsehood. There was absolutely no evidence upon which any charge of fraud could have been based; there were only rumors and suspicions."

Dean Mumford Dies

DEAN HERBERT W. MUMFORD of the University of Illinois is dead, following an automobile accident, and the country loses one of its best agricultural educators and marketing experts. Mumford was a product of Michigan. In 1901 he became professor of animal husbandry in the university at Champaign. Then he was made dean of the college of agriculture and director of the agricultural experiment station and extension service. He was sixty-seven years old at the time of his death.

Sweepstakes Winners

BOIS ROUSSEL, a French bred horse, won the English Derby at Epsom Downs, and four sweepstakes ticket holders in the United States won $150,000 each. Scottish Union, second, won $75,000 each for 11 United States ticket holders. Pasch, the favorite, finished third, returning $50,000 each to seven ticket holders in the United States.

Defies Harry Hopkins

VICTOR A. Christgau, Minnesota WPA administrator, quarreled continually with Gov. Elmer Benson and the Farmer-Labor party leaders in that state. So Harry Hopkins, national head of the WPA, notified him he was ousted. Christgau refused to quit his position, contending that only President Roosevelt, who appointed him, had power to dismiss him.

War Pensions Boosted

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT signed a bill to increase the pensions of certain soldiers, sailors and nurses who served in the Spanish war, Philippine insurrection or China relief expedition. The act provides a $40 monthly pension for veterans sixty-five years old who served at least 90 days and to those who served less than 90 days and were discharged for disability incurred in service.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart
National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington.—Congress is packing its duds. It doesn't know exactly what date it will go home, but go home it will, in just a few weeks.

Want to Go Home

There is nothing more contagious than homesickness among congressmen when primaries are in the air and votes around the grass roots await to be garnered.

I suppose that when they go, there will be a certain amount of criticism about the do-nothing congress. Particularly will they hear barks that they have left the nation's most important problem unsolved. They will be told how they should have charted a course to lead the country out of the depression and how they failed to do anything towards restoring unemployed to permanent jobs.

The prospect of this condition, it seems to me, warrants a general discussion without pulling punches. Congress is supposed to formulate national policies. It, therefore, must accept some blame for its failure. But it is not alone to blame, and the voters ought to know it. There are some other spots to which attention should be directed—in all fairness to the members of the house and senate.

Let us look back a bit. It must be agreed, I believe, that recovery is the foremost problem. Recovery plans must be divided. Attention must be given, first, to relief of the destitute, the unemployed. Secondly, policies must be laid down that will permit business, big and little, to take on workers—or obviously they will remain on the relief rolls. Since last November, there have been pleas, threats, argument—all seeking establishment of policies that would permit business to have confidence. There has been nothing from President Roosevelt in the way of suggestions or proposals along this line, and congress refused, cowardly enough, to lead the way.

As the session wore on, unemployment increased until the other day the social security board made public figures showing that about 19,900,000 persons were receiving government assistance of one kind or another—almost 6,300,000 families. And during the same period, the volume of business fell further into new low levels. The whole picture undeniably has grown worse.

Then, there came from the President; the request for the use of further money, some six billion dollars of it. It was the so-called lending-spending program that has just been enacted and the congress, anxious to avoid conflict with presidential will, rubbed its collective hands and said, in effect, "There! That takes care of the unemployed."

So we will have new post offices, new bridges, new roads, new this and new that—some time. Those things can not be put over on a day's notice. It takes time to get them started where they will employ workers. The portion of the six billions allocated for relief, of course, can be used at once because Mr. Harry Hopkins can have his boys and girls write checks at a rate which is positively amazing. The public construction phase will be valuable, or ought to be, to the candidates because the candidates can say to their political meetings: "Here it is—and from my hands, too."

After that money is spent, then what? My conviction is that we will be just where we started. That is to say, we will be just where we were three years ago. Every one recalls, of course, how there was a pump priming of business then. It cost $4,880,000,000. The result was some very nice postoffices and other public buildings and an addition of $4,880,000,000 to the national debt. The administration tried some other pump priming, too, and succeeded in building up the national debt still higher. It is now pushing right up to the forty-billion mark.

Since the pump priming and the other spending ideas failed to accomplish anything in the other trials, there seems to be no reason to expect the new outlay of cash to do more than create a new high record for the national debt. It will do that, beyond question.

Spending Fails

But I said at the outset that there were others to blame. This fact has been brought to the fore by the condition lately much publicized in Chicago and Cleveland. Scenes distressingly reminiscent of the lines of starving in 1930 were re-enacted in Chicago and Cleveland within the month. The cities were out of cash and the relief lines became riotous. There is not much to be done about starving people but to feed them. That is accepted. Yet, how did that happen? Why was the condition allowed to reach that stage? Here is the fact that will make me very popular, I am sure, in the areas where the shoe fits: The states have failed to assume their proper share of the responsibility. Let me repeat that: The states have failed to assume their proper share of responsibility! They have consistently done so, and the reason they have been chiseling and pulling at the federal teat is because they have been taught by the Washington government through six or eight years that they could do it and get away with it. The politicians within a state can not be blamed wholly, because they are politicians, seeking election or seeking to hold office or party power or what have you. It was so much easier to bring pressure to bear in Washington, go home with big checks, shout to the folks that they were bringing home the bacon—without adding to the tax of their home folks. That is, they said there was no additional tax because it was a federal tax that had to make up for what the states drew out and the federal taxes are not as easily seen as taxes in a state, a county or a city.

It has come to such a pass these days that few state politicians dare to suggest at home that they raise the relief funds locally. It would be political suicide, they feel. So they follow the beaten track to Washington, and the Washington politicians from President Roosevelt down haven't the courage to send them back home without some token of appreciation—something of a minor character like a check for a few millions and a promise of more.

If one is really going to trace this thing down to its start, I believe it has to go back to Herbert Hoover's administration. It will be recalled that Mr. Hoover proposed and obtained congressional action on a plan by which the Reconstruction Finance corporation was created. It was to loan money to tide business over until the depression had worn itself out. It was not a sound plan then; it is not sound now. It was opposed by Democrats then but it has been expanded and enlarged and glorified by them since. But the fact that it was created constitutes the tragedy. The fact that there was a spot where government cash could be borrowed started politicians looking to Washington. It was a pretty soft touch for them. The LaFollette type of mind and the group of professors who figured the nation could spend its way out of the depression moved right into the long halls and took over desks in every place they could find chairs. The thing spread like wildfire and it is still in going, as witness the latest program involving six billion dollars.

Long Road Ahead

It is going to require many years of effort to restore states to their own boundaries. They have got themselves into debt with the federal government; they have found how easy it is to do that and they will do more, unless the people themselves realize what it means. Unless the states again take control of their own affairs, state lines will mean nothing. The nation will be run from Washington bureaucrats' desks and good government by the people themselves will be a thing of the past.

There is a phase of this control from Washington upon which I want to record a few especial observations. I refer to the great waste that occurs when the federal government attempts to handle such a delicate and direct proposition as relief. This phase irks me and it ought to irk every one who hates to see stupid administration use up so much money needlessly. My morning paper a few days ago carried a dispatch from Cleveland announcing that public funds—from Washington—were going to be used to give work to four hundred men for six months. They are going to count the trees in Cleveland. Think of it—counting trees as a means of giving work! Surely, it is possible to create some other kind of work. I believe it would be better to give that money outright for the construction of some homes for fifty families, or any one of a hundred thousand things.

Such things as this are bound to happen, however, when the states, counties and cities lean so heavily on Washington. Citizens lose control when they let their politicians dodge responsibility by calling on Washington for everything. And there is no doubt in the mind of any one who has studied the problem but that the citizens will pay more when their relief needs are met from Washington than if they forced their own officials to assume the responsibilities of their offices.

I suppose, however, that it is not in the interest of the politicians to bring about recovery in a normal way, whether they are local or state or national politicians. If they can accomplish election the way it is now being done, they may as well continue. Each one has only one political life to give to his country and if he can make that political life a good long one by kidding his constituents—well, why not? I repeat, however, and there can be no denying the fact, that relief is going to cost each citizen more because the money is being chiseled out of Washington rather than the state or local treasuries.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Warns Against Food Fads and Fallacies

Nationally Known Food Authority Explains How They May Endanger Health

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 39th St., New York City.

AS SCIENCE and civilization have progressed, painstaking investigators have sought to replace ignorance with knowledge, to substitute truth for superstition. But in spite of their efforts, our eating habits are still influenced by a multitude of food fads and fancies, which should have no place in this enlightened age.

Some of these are harmless; others may endanger health. And the homemaker must learn to distinguish between fact and fancy.

utes. And in both cases, the curds were of practically the same consistency.

Fish Is Not a Brain Food

One of the most persistent fallacies is the notion that certain kinds of food are especially beneficial for certain parts of the body. Many people believe that fish is a brain food and celery a nerve tonic. Lettuce is thought to be a soporific. None of these things is true.

The idea regarding fish probably arose because fish contains phosphorus and the brain also contains phosphorus. How simple it would be if one could increase brain power merely by eating fish. Unfortunately, there is nothing to it! The brain, like other parts of the body, requires a balanced diet. No case has ever been reported of a man soothing the irritated nerves of his wife by feeding her celery. And as for lettuce, it is a fine source of minerals, vitamins and gentle roughage, but it does not contain any narcotic drug that induces sleep.

Other Fallacies Disproved
Science has exploded many common notions about vegetables which may change your ideas of what is best to buy and eat. Many homemakers prefer lettuce that is light green in color and they believe that string beans which snap are superior in quality. But it has been demonstrated that deep green lettuce is much richer in vitamins and that a snap in string beans merely indicates that the beans have been kept in a cold, moist place.

False Notions About Fruit
A score of superstitions cling to the eating of fruits. There is a false notion that acid-tasting fruits cause or aggravate rheumatism, because they produce "acidity." The truth is that most fruits, regardless of their acid taste, leave an alkaline ash following digestion. One often hears that fruit should not be taken at the same time as milk because the fruit acids will cause the milk to curdle. But the fact is that milk is always curdled in the stomach by the hydrochloric acid.

Not Necessary to Sip Milk
Another false idea is the widespread notion that milk must be sipped slowly or it will be difficult to digest. This has been refuted by a widely known investigator who made many tests. One day he fed a man a pint of milk in 10 seconds. The next day the same man was fed the same amount of milk in 10 minutes. On both occasions the contents of the stomach were examined a half hour later. It was discovered that the milk which was drunk in 10 seconds had formed smaller curds than the milk which was sipped in 10 min-

Water With Meals?
It is widely held that water should not be taken with meals, the argument being that it dilutes the gastric juice and thus interferes with digestion. This sounds logical and many people have been fooled. But the truth of the matter is that water stimulates the flow of the digestive juices and careful research has established that normally, water taken with meals in reasonable quantities aids digestion.

Danger of Half Truths
The most insidious food fallacies are those which contain some portion of truth—for example, the belief that cooked fruit is more wholesome than raw fruit. It is true that cooking increases the digestibility of some fruits and also has a sterilizing effect. On the other hand, most fruits are easily digested in the raw state, are more palatable and richer in vitamins.

A widespread belief which has a small portion, but only a small portion of truth, is that whole wheat bread is vastly superior to white bread. Whole wheat bread contains more minerals, vitamins and roughage than white bread. But the minerals and vitamins lacking in white bread can easily be supplied by other common foods, and there is no justification for going to the extreme of omitting white bread entirely from the diet.

Fad Diets Lack Balance
Far more harmful than the fallacies regarding individual foods are the fad diets constantly put forth by those who seek to exploit the homemaker's desire for dietetic knowledge.

Foods Not Incompatible
A fad diet which has gained a large number of adherents in recent years is based on the notion that certain foods—notably starches and proteins—are incompatible and should not be consumed at the same meal because they cannot be digested at the same time. It is interesting to note that this fad has been condemned by the medical profession and that a physician of the highest standing has proved clinically that starches and proteins do not interfere with one another in the stomach.

The fallacy of this theory is further appreciated when one realizes that there are few pure proteins or pure carbohydrates, most foods containing varying proportions of protein, carbohydrate and fat. Such foods as dried peas and beans and whole grain cereals contain a substantial percentage of both starch and protein.

Dangers of Fasting
Fasting is urged by some fanatics as a means of "detoxifying" the body. Advocates of this practice claim that it is nature's method of housecleaning. As a matter of fact, fasting for any length of time may be dangerous to health, because it may result in the accumulation of incomplete oxidation products of fat, and the development of acidosis.

Homemakers must put aside superstitions, half-truths and food fallacies if they are to nourish their families properly.

Put your faith only in established food facts. Remember that upon your knowledge and breadth of vision depend, to a great degree, not only the health but the happiness of your family.

Questions Answered

Mrs. A. F. R., Jr.—Light corn syrup yields nothing but energy values, but dark corn syrup is a good source of iron. Pure molasses is rich in calcium and iron.

Miss M. F.—Nut protein is similar to the protein of meat and fish and nuts may be used in place of these foods when desired. They should not replace milk and eggs, however, as with few exceptions, they are low in minerals and cannot compare with eggs or milk as a source of vitamins.

GARDEN GOSSIP

EDITED BY CAROLINE HARRINGTON

Letters and questions on garden topics will be welcome. They will be published and discussed in this column.

Dear Mrs. Harrington:

We are looking forward with pleasure to a peony meeting at Mrs. Lisk's garden the latter part of this month. Mrs. Palmer, representing the Program Committee, has invited Professor L. B. Taft to be present, he has accepted and will talk to us about peony culture. As I think you know, Professor Taft was for a long time Michigan State Horticulturist and is an authority on flower culture.

The Board of Managers of the Garden Club has postponed the proposed train ride to Pine Ridge until early fall on account of the mosquito menace.

Program Committee Chairman.

Now all we need is one of those "rare" June days to make a perfect setting for our club meeting in Mrs. Lisk's garden. The exact date will be announced when the peonies are just right and the weather favorable. Perhaps Mr. Taft will tell us some of the secrets of Mrs. Lisk's success with peonies . . . if there ever is a secret to success!

I have talked with Mrs. Alice Erwin of Harbor Springs who was to have conducted the trip to Pine Ridge. She is disappointed, of course, as we all are, at the postponement, but thinks the mosquito menace a very real one, says the peonies in the fall will afford as interesting material for study as now, and promises to save a date for us.

Dear Mrs. Harrington:

In answering the question, "What kind of soil is best for growing peonies in flower boxes?" we would say: First, it MUST be fertile. A black soil is not necessarily fertile. It may be high in some of the fertilizing substances, but to be a good plant box soil it must contain sufficient quantities of all elements that plants need, — particularly nitrogen, phosphorus, potash and lime. Many other elements are necessary in smaller quantities.

Many people will go into a garden where plants have been growing well to get their plant box soil. Very few of the garden soils of this locality, REGARDLESS OF THEIR FERTILITY, will make good plant box soils because they are too sandy. A plant growing in a garden has no restrictions placed on the size of its root system. In a plant box it must get all of its nutrients from a small area during the whole season. Light sand does not contain enough plant food nor enough organic matter to hold moisture.

Much soil and leaf mold contain large amounts of nitrogen which makes extremely tall and tender growth, but they do not contain enough other foods to strengthen the stems and roots of plants grown in boxes. Remember that in the garden or woods soil roots of plants can go many feet in search of nourishment.

A desirable soil can be easily mixed by stirring together three shovels full of fertile clay loam (a mixture of clay and enough sand to keep it from being too sticky when watered) and one shovel full of well rotted leaf mold from a maple or beech wood. We say maple or beech wood because those trees are usually found growing on our better soils that are not extremely acid. In this mixture the clay loam had best be taken from an upland soil and not from low wet land which might be acid. The clay will supply the plant nutrients and the leaf mold retains moisture and prevents the soil from getting too hard when it is watered.

Here are a few additional suggestions: 1. Be sure to provide a drain in the bottom of the box for excess water which would kill the roots if it accumulated. 2. Water thoroughly when you water your box but not too frequently. Add water only when necessary. A plant box growing out of doors will require more frequent watering than one grown inside the house. 3. Do not try to use plant box soil more than one season. It usually will not work. 4. If the soil gets hard on top after watering you will save time and trouble by taking out your plants and adding more rotted leaf mold.

We hope there will be many beautiful plant boxes around our homes this summer.

R. L. Eggert.

There will be many beautiful plant boxes in East Jordan this summer if your concise and thoughtful directions are followed, Mr. Eggert. It seems to me that you have thought of everything to grow all flower box plants successfully — not just petunias — and I am sure it is unnecessary for me to add a word of caution against putting the boxes in a too shady location.

Dear Mrs. Harrington:

Improvements, painting and planting are still the order of the day in East Jordan.

White paint seems to be much in vogue. The following residences have been painted — the Lyle Persons white, the Merle Thompson cream color, the Pat Foote (a brick house) red, the Richard Malpass cream with green and gray trim, the Lisk white.

Also the John LaLonde business block is being painted cream, and the Co-op Gas station and the Standard Oil station have had their annual coat of white.

Mr. Drew has installed two new electric signs on the Temple block, and the theatre is now the most brilliantly lighted in the North. A coat of aluminum paint gives it a most modernistic look.

Flower boxes and hanging baskets are appearing on the various porches. The Leo LaLondes have boxes of geraniums and white and purple petunias on the west side of their house. Mrs. Howard Porter's hanging baskets are lovely. Mrs. Sidebotham's boxes are beautiful with ageratum, red geraniums, white and purple petunias.

The Civic Committee Chairman.

A splendid report, Mrs. Chairman, but we will need still another one to include all of the good works that are going forward. Please may I have another report for next week's Garden Gossip?

Bismarck, No. Dakota.

Dear Mrs. Harrington:

I have read your garden column with interest. I believe that Dr. Gilmore has a few other articles which might work in with the one you mention in your column, and if you will write to him at the Museum Building, University of Michigan, he can doubtless give you a list of other useful papers along that line.

My interest in the Indian agriculture has been primarily in connection with the Great Plains area, and I am not so familiar with it as it applies in your section of the country. If there is any way I can help you, however, in promoting a project along the lines you suggest, I shall be very happy to do so.

George F. Will.

Thank you, Mr. Will, for your good letter and for your offer of assistance in promoting an Indian Garden project in this vicinity. I hope that some day soon we may need to call upon you to make good your offer. Indeed, I think you could help us now, if you are willing, by telling us something of the agriculture of the Plains Indians as distinct from that of the Woods' Indians who lived in this region.

There is a story told among the Indians near Harbor Springs that long ago a conquering tribe of Plains Indians came into Northern Michigan and made their home near what is now known as Cross Village. Whether this is truth or legend, I do not know.

I do have a great curiosity to know the story of the cleared land north of Little Traverse Bay which is known as "Indian Gardens." It is said that no trees have grown on this smooth tract in the memory of white men even when the surrounding land was thickly wooded with hardwoods and a sprinkling of pines. I have already written Dr. Gilmore asking for information about these gardens, and probably will hear from him soon.

Dear Mrs. Harrington:

Yesterday (June 5th) as we were driving by the German Settlement the road was full of goldfinches which scattered as we passed. I cannot imagine how many there were. I wonder if they were eating the tiny grasshoppers of which there are so many just now?

An Observant Bystander.

I hope they were eating the grasshoppers which threaten to be such a pest this summer, but bird authorities say that goldfinches live "chiefly" on seeds. That "chiefly" looks like a loop hole . . . may be the authorities are not sure. Let's give the goldfinches the benefit of the doubt. The goldfinches do not settle down to family cares until the thistle-down ripens. Then it is said that they clip and eat the seeds from each floating piece of down before using it for their nests.

Dear Mrs. Harrington:

I find that our snapdragons did not winter kill. They are now eight or nine inches tall, and before very long will be in bloom. I did nothing to help them through the winter although they did catch a few leaves which with the snow that covered them probably protected them somewhat.

W. Hunsberger.

Last spring I planted some snapdragon seeds of which not one came up, but much to my surprise this spring three little seedlings appeared. Those seeds had lived for a whole year in the ground without germinating. I am sorry now that last summer I was so careful to keep my snapdragons from going to seed. I might have had a row of thriving plants instead of a bare space where now I must set out plants. This summer I shall allow some of my snapdragons to seed themselves, protect them during the winter, and see if I, too, cannot have early snapdragons.

Dear Mrs. Harrington:

Here is a poem I composed while

Tests Prove the Power of Food
Demonstrate a Vitamin-Rich Diet is Vital to Health

By C. ROBERT GOUDISS

MANKIND owes many things to the animals which have been used as test subjects in laboratories all over the world. As doctors and scientists have waged their war against disease, as they have made great strides forward in the study of foods and nutrition, they have carried on many of their experiments with rats.

The rats pictured here drank food to illustrate the power of food to influence growth. Although these two rats are exactly the same age, one is twice that of his brother. Where one animal is puny and underdeveloped, the second is fat and sleek and full of vitality.

What has produced such a difference in weight and general physical appearance? Merely a slight difference in diet. The two rats have lived under identical conditions, but the smaller animal on the left has received food lacking in sufficient vitamins, while the other rat has been fed the same diet reinforced with vitamins.

If a well-balanced food ration is vital to the health of animals, how much more vital it must be for human beings. Surely the lesson is plain to see. If a mother wants her children to thrive she must feed them adequately. The child who is receiving a diet lacking in vitamins has no chance to grow and develop properly. Nor will the adult on a deficient diet attain or maintain optimum health.

EDITOR'S NOTE: To plan a diet which will give you the maximum amount of vitamins, you must learn to utilize the discoveries of science. We must keep abreast of the newer knowledge of nutrition as it is presented by wise, unbiased interpreters such as C. Robert Goudiss, nationally known food authority, who each week offers his "What to Eat and Why" column in this newspaper. In this column Mr. Goudiss translates the latest developments into simple, non-technical language. By following his articles regularly, it is easy to keep in step with the most up-to-date findings of nutritional science.

DOG OWNERS NOTICE TO DOG OWNERS

Pursuant to request of the Board of Supervisors I am publishing herewith resolution of Claims Committee, adopted by Board of Supervisors at the April Session, relative to unlicensed dogs in Charlevoix County.

RESOLUTION

"WHEREAS a large majority of Owners of dogs annually neglect and refuse to pay their dog tax, AND WHEREAS the neglect and refusal has caused a serious condition, due to the small amount of revenue collected and the large expense of dog tax, this Board of Supervisors has voted with this condition for the payment of damage done by dogs. This Board of Supervisors has voted with this condition for the payment of damage done by dogs. This Board of Supervisors has voted with this condition for the payment of damage done by dogs.

BE IT RESOLVED, that the County Treasurer furnish to the Prosecuting Attorney and to the Sheriff on June 15th, a list of all owners of dogs that are delinquent under the dog law, and that the Prosecuting Attorney issue warrants under the law and that the Sheriff be instructed to serve same, and

RESOLVED, that the Prosecuting Attorney have a notice of this action published in all the papers of the County stating these facts and that the dog law will be strictly enforced."

On and after June 15th, every unlicensed dog which was 3 months old or over on June 1st, and otherwise subject to license, is considered a public nuisance, and may be located and killed by the Sheriff or any member of the Department of Public Safety. Any owner, harboring or keeping an unlicensed dog after June 15th is liable to a fine of not to exceed $100.00 or imprisonment not exceeding 3 months or both. A license tag must be kept on the dog at all times except when engaged in lawful hunting accompanied by its owner or custodian. Dogs must be confined upon the premises of its owner or custodian at night except when otherwise under the reasonable control of some person.

Please see that your dog has a license before June 15th. The Board of Supervisors has cut the fee of late years to a minimum to make it possible for everyone to pay. Let us try to co-operate with them. Licenses are obtainable now only from the County Treasurer.

Respectfully,
C. M. BICE,
Prosecuting Attorney.

Nora laughed, and Jim Perkins, finding his voice at last, exploded: "Well, I'll tell the world you can play, Mis' Mason! I never heard nethin' like it except over the radio; and if you ask me, you've got that feller named Hoffmann beat to a frazzle!"

Leonora arose from the packing box to acknowledge his honest tribute with a curtsy; while Don suggested: "Give them some more, Nora, before they leave," and for twenty minutes Nora played to an appreciative audience as any artist could desire. Indeed, the Portland men would accept only the minutest payment for their services.

"It wa'n't nothin'," declared the older man as they arose to go. "Nothin' at all; and the music was pay enough anyhow. Wasn't it, Joe?"

"Joe," still dazed, assented with a mute nod. They departed munching Nora's molasses cookies, and Don told her (when Tom Littlefield had returned to the box stall which he was converting into the north end of a "banquet hall"), with "their souls refreshed."

And next morning, as if Fate were really trying to make up for past unkindnesses, Don received a note from the editor of an American weekly, to whom he had sent one of his "Letters from Cape Town." The article, it seemed, had filled a long-felt want. Check for American magazine rights was "herewith enclosed," and they would be glad to run the entire series during the coming year.

The check, compared with those received from England for the same material, was almost dazzling; and they both appeared to go a little mad. Nora rushed to the piano, while Don, to the exceeding joy of his small sons, proceeded to dance the Highland Fling.

When the music ceased and he dropped breathless into the red lacquer chair, Tom Littlefield, who had arrived during the commotion, inquired if he should call the doctor, "or are you comin' out o' that conception fit all right alone?"

In answer Don tossed him the incredible check.

"That's yours, Mr. Littlefield. You can blame that innocent strip of paper for this vaudeville act of mine which was put on merely to celebrate the fact that, for the time being, anyhow, the dark cloud of financial worry has vanished from the horizon. We're sane again now, and I'll get back to the shingling if that's what you want."

Not until the last possible moment did they leave the place. Never had they left any place with such regret. The weather had been almost miraculously perfect for that time of year, a fall long remembered by the natives. Tom Littlefield, possessed of minute directions from Leonora, planned to go on with the work when other jobs were scarce.

"I'll be a real life-saver to me, Mis' Mason," he assured her. "There ain't much doin' here comin' wintertime, and I get restless. I'll be more'n glad to keep an eye on the place and do a day's work now and then; and when you come back next spring things'll be ship-shape. I declare, I—I'm downright sorry to see you go."

"And I'd give almost anything to stay, Mr. Littlefield," Nora confessed. "After all, there's no place like home, is there?—and I've never had one of my own before. Not for worlds would I have Mr. Mason suspect it, but I don't mind owning up to you that I dread to leave."

She did; yet a happy winter with Constance Venable (who had sold the ill-fated island where Carl met his death, and for financial reasons was staying abroad indefinitely) lay just ahead. Things were going extremely well when they returned to Maine for another summer; and as a complete surprise Nora discovered not only running water in her box stall kitchen, but a small and shining bathroom, the result of an intrigue between her husband and the old Maine builder.

Not until that summer did she hint to her father of this permanent abiding place. Going to the beautiful antique desk which they had purchased of "our egg lady," as the boys called her ("Because," the woman explained when Don told her honestly that it was worth much more than he could give, "them antique dealers is makin' my life miserable anyhow, and Mis' Mason never forgets to ask after my sick boy")—going to that desk Nora constructed the postal card that was to play an important part in her life some three years later. Glancing over her shoulder as she finished it, Don smiled a bit sadly at what he feared was merely another disappointment.

It was, he observed, a fantastic postal. First came the verse from which the old notary had quoted the day they signed the deeds. Below this Nora had written her address, followed by: "If taxi is unavailable, take trolley car to end of line and proceed as follows," after which was a tiny map drawn in red ink.

She said, turning to look up at Don: "That verse about the shining palace is an invitation, and if it arrives when Dad's in a relenting mood, he may accept it."

Don said nothing. It sometimes troubled him that in all these years Nora had never lost hold of the conviction that her father would reach a moment of surrender. Personally, Don didn't believe it, not after the old man's silence when informed of the arrival of his namesake, James Lambert Mason. It was hard for Don to forgive that silence when he recalled how, spent with the hours of fear and anguish, Nora had looked up at him from her narrow berth on that storm-tossed ship, to say: "If—if it's only a boy, dear, so we can name him for Father, I sha'n't mind—anything. It—it will bring us together."

Well, mused Don, turning away from his wife's eyes, it was a boy, and it had not brought them one inch nearer. Jimmys was more than three years old, and his grandfather had not expressed the slightest interest in his existence. It wasn't in Don to comprehend how anyone could be so stubbornly resentful—so unkind. Impatient at the situation he once said as much, and Nora answered:

"It's not just that, Don. You see, he loved my mother above anything on earth, yet she hurt him unspcakably. And, though it wasn't my fault, perhaps, I hurt him, too. I think he doesn't dare let me get near him any more. Don't you understand? He's afraid of being hurt again."

So she mailed her postal, hoped for a time, and then decided that the hour of relenting had not come. But despite this disappointment Nora was very happy that summer. Don was always glad to remember how happy she had been. As the months passed, her new home became almost as perfect as she dreamed it could be; and even Tom Littlefield admitted that the "ball room" was not too big.

"And it's cozy, isn't it?" prodded Leonora, determined to make the old carpenter give in.

"O, it's cozy enough," he assented, albeit grudgingly; "but I still think, if you was to ask me, Mis' Mason, that it's all out o' proportion to the size of the kitchen."

"But we don't live in the kitchen," Nora retorted.

"And I ain't ever heard o' anybody livin' in a ball room, either," snapped the old man.

He was a frequent caller, as was the notary at the Port. The latter had a standing invitation to Sunday dinner, which was quite as likely to be served on the beach as in the banquet hall. Afterwards he would find his way into the big living room and browse among the books, sometimes reading aloud from his beloved poets to Nora, sometimes reading from "Peter Rabbit" to the boys.

"He's as good as a grandfather," said Don one Sunday afternoon when he found the old man with both children in his lap; and then wished he hadn't spoken because Nora's face clouded at the words.

The summer drifted by. September came, and with it the chance Don was hoping for, something he had kept secret from his wife fearing to cause her disappointment should it not work out. For Nora had hinted to the little boys that Santa Claus might possibly bring them a "baby sister," and Don was determined that their mother should not be dragged to Europe if such a step could be avoided. He knew that the "Letters from Cape Town" had proved even more popular than the American editor expected.

There was no reason to think he would not be amenable to the suggestion that there was a vast amount of interesting material on their own West. Don planned a series of articles called "Seeing America First," submitted the idea, and waited impatiently for the verdict.

Not knowing that the great man was away on a vacation, the letter seemed long in coming; but it brought good news. The editor considered this plan "most interesting," and requested that Don stop off in Chicago on the way West to consult a personal friend of his who had been over the ground recently and might give him some valuable data. . . . And would he plan so that the first article could be run in February?

Nora wept with relief when she heard the news—Nora, who so seldom gave way to tears.

"I've been dreading so awfully to start out again," she told him, "but this is different. If, as you say, we can stay at San Diego until after New Year's, everything will be easy. I can settle you somewhere, and then go to a hospital for the event. And next spring we can come home for a long summer. Don't mind my crying, Don. It—it's only the heavenly relief."

"You poor dear nomad!" said Don tenderly. And then added: "If all goes well, darling, we'll install a furnace here next summer so we can stay as late as you want to in the fall."

"I believe," smiled Nora, winking away the last of her foolish tears, "I believe you've discovered the advantages of a home yourself, Don!"

CHAPTER XII

They reached Chicago on a bleak November morning. Wind was blowing across Lake Michigan in wintry gusts, and the weather man predicted snow. It came, a blizzard out of the north. For two days they were storm-bound in a boarding house run by an old nurse of Constance Venable's—one of the many whom Carl's unflinching generosity had helped.

On the third afternoon when the city was digging out of snow drifts and the sun was making a half-hearted effort to show its face, their hostess said: "Why don't you two go for a little walk? I'll look after the children. I'd really like to; and a breath of outdoor air will do you good."

"Come on," said Don, brightening at the prospect of some activity. "If you get tired, Nora, we'll drop in at a movie for an hour."

"That's right," urged the woman, glad to be of service to these friends of her beloved Venables. "You'll find a theater three blocks down. It's a cheap place, opened only a week ago; but it'll do to get warm in."

"Sure!" agreed Don, "and a lurid picture won't hurt old folks like us!" The wind sprang up again as they started out; and the sun, discouraged, retired behind a cloud.

"I guess three blocks'll be about enough!" Don laughed as they ducked their heads against the weather. "Those Italian winters have spoiled us, Nora; but I hear we're liable to fry in Arizona. That's one place I haven't been, my dear, and I'm crazy to see it. There's our theater ahead now. Looks cheap all right. I bet the snow's packed solid behind that false front roof. There's weight to this snow, Nora. I hope—"

What Don hoped was lost in a gust of wind that fairly blew them into the lobby of the theater.

"Perhaps we'd better go right back," gasped Nora. "The wind is certainly getting worse. It wouldn't surprise me if it stormed again."

"Me, either; but you're completely out of breath, dear. Let's get inside and rest for a few minutes. It'll be easier going home with the wind at our backs, you know. We can sit in the last row, Nora, and slip out any time we're bored. You need to rest after that fight with the elements."

This was sane logic, so they went inside.

"Looks as if all the kiddies of the neighborhood had come in out of the storm," Don whispered as their eyes grew accustomed to the dimness. "Why didn't we think to bring the boys?"

Nora smiled. Don always regretted his sons' absence when other children were in evidence. She said, softly: "They're better off where they are. There's such a crowd, and the air is terrible. Why!—Why what—"

Her voice rose a little. Her head lifted. Later Nora was to remember that she had thought herself ill because the whole building seemed to tremble and the roof looked as if it were crumbling up, slowly. The most curious sensation, a sort of chill, ran over her—all in a second, of course, for Don was already on his feet, holding her wrist in a grip that tortured. Just as they reached the lobby the crash came. And then a cry went up behind them—a cry that was to ring in Nora's ears for months. It sounded, she thought, like an awful and terrifying wave of protest from a single throat.

They were in the street. . . . Already a throng of morbid onlookers had gathered. . . . People (Oh, fortunate people!) were pouring out of the doomed theater. . . . Policemen, dozens of them, it seemed to Nora, sprang up like magic. . . . Firemen were there, trying to rope off space. . . . pushing them back.

It was then that Don, who had been stunned into a horrified silence, roused himself with a convulsive shudder. He turned to Nora—looked down into her upturned face—stared into it so curiously that she grasped his arm, crying: "Oh, thank God we are safe, Don!"

And still he looked at her. . . . An ambulance gong sounded. . . . Somewhere beyond the rope a woman screamed. . . . A man pushed by them, wild-eyed, dishevelled. . . . Above the tumult a child's terrified voice cried out: "Mother! Where's my mother?"

Don said, still staring down with that extraordinary gravity: "But I must go back, Nora. Those children. . . . They might be ours. . . . I've got to help. . . . You must go home now, darling. Go home to the little boys. They need you. . . . Don't you see that—that I have got to help?"

Before she could say one word, he stooped—kissed her—was gone, eluding the quick grasp of a fireman—unheeding the shout of protest from another. Those feet, those buoyant feet which had borne Don so joyously on his adventures, were bearing him now on still another, bearing him swiftly, swiftly, lest they falter. . . .

Nora was standing there three hours later when they brought him out. Three hours of horror—three hours of numbing cold—three hours of torment. He was the last to come, his broken body carried tenderly by two firemen. Nora, close to the ropes, cried out at sight of him: "Don! Dearest! I'm waiting for you. I—I am here, Don!"

Smart Crow Often Has to Fight Other Birds, but He Always Calls for Help

The natural enemy of the crow is the hawk. Blackbirds, bluebirds, swallows, and at times robins, will fight them viciously. However, the crow is smart—smarter than most of the feathered world—in that he will fight only when backed by a company of his kind. Virtually all other birds and animals hunt alone.

The crow will feed alone, but when trouble arises he begins calling for help and a whole platoon of his companions is soon on the scene to help. Because of these gang methods, however, the crow furnishes excellent sport for the shooter because he is easily decoyed.

Anyone armed with a crow call can have excellent sport calling and shooting the black robbers. There are several ways in which to hunt them, advises a writer in the Chicago Daily News.

A stuffed or live hawk or owl is an excellent decoy. The decoy should be placed in the open and the gunner should hide in nearby woods. Then he should blow his crow call lustily. He soon is rewarded by the approach of crows. Another method is to locate a roost, where the crows come in by the thousands for the night. This takes some time and quite elaborate preparations. Once the roost is located the shooter should watch the line of flight of the crows and build himself a blind in a woods or field in line with this flight. Then around the blind he should stake out decoy crows, silhouettes or stuffed imitations of the black birds.

When the flight to the roost starts in the afternoon the shooter occupies the blind, calls lustily at the approach of the crows, and decoys and kills them much as a hunter kills waterfowl.

Crows, conservation departments declare, are excellent eating.

Grant Not Interested in War

Ulysses S. Grant, one of the strangest characters in all history, made a mess of everything he undertook till near middle-age, to become commander in chief of the Union armies and President. And perhaps the oddest thing in the odd story of an odd nature was his lifelong distaste for the military life in which his reputation was made. He always disclaimed the calling of warrior, and when visiting Europe after the war he told the astonished Bismarck that he took no interest in military affairs.

Dog Man's Friend, but—

No one likes to quarrel with the statement that the dog is man's best friend. In fact, we all like to believe it without question. But neighborhood dogs that insist on staining prized ornamental evergreens and shrubbery certainly do put a heavy strain on friendship. Home owners have faced this problem sadly, angrily and ineffectually—until recently a very simple solution came to light.

All that you do is spray the lower branches of your evergreens and shrubs with a little nicotine sulphate mixed in water. It's harmless to plants—harmless to the dogs—and brings a tremendous relief to frayed tempers. You see, the desired result comes because dogs do not like the nicotine sulphate odor and give a wide berth to any spot where that odor is found.

ARE YOU ONLY A 3/4 WIFE?

Men can never understand a three-quarter wife—a wife who is lovable for three weeks of the month—but half-crazy the four weeks. No matter how your back aches—no matter how loudly your nerves scream—don't take it out on your husband. For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND!

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may clog the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's has been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for June 12

FACING THE SUPREME TEST OF SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:32-36. GOLDEN TEXT—Not what I will, but what thou wilt. Mark 14:36. PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus in the Garden. JUNIOR TOPIC—In Gethsemane. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Courage in the Face of Danger. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Challenge of God's Will.

No man has ever faced such a crisis as Jesus met in the Garden of Gethsemane, for He was the Son of God incarnate in order to bear the sins of the world. No one can ever fully understand the agony of soul involved when God "made him to be sin for us, who knew no sin; that we might be made the righteousness of God in him" (II Cor. 5:21). It is, therefore, true that we may never say that we have gone "through Gethsemane." But there is a very real sense in which our Lord's experience is shared by His disciples, in a lesser degree and as ordinary human beings.

Our lesson brings before us the closing scene of Thursday before the crucifixion. The day has been crowded with important events, among them the eating of the Passover, the revelation that there was a traitor among the twelve, the institution of the Lord's supper, the precious words of the upper room, the intercessory prayer in the garden.

I. Exceeding Sorrowful (vv. 32-36).

The text uses many words to convey the depth of His soul's agony, as though it were impossible to express it in the faulty medium of speech. So it is, for our Lord here experienced something far more serious than a dread of physical death. He was not a coward. He was not afraid to die. His soul was about to have put upon its spotless sinlessness the stain and dishonor of the world's sins. Little wonder that He was "sorrowful even unto death" (v. 34).

Since this was the road the Master trod, should not His servants tread it still?

II. Alone with God (vv. 37-41).

Jesus took with Him into the secluded place in the Garden the three who were closest to Him in the circle of disciples. He counted on their fellowship and sympathy in His hour of anguish. Merely to have them near Him, to know that they were there to watch and pray even though they could not share His holy burden, was to be a comfort to Him. We try to do as much for one another in hours of bereavement and disappointment, but how much greater was the opportunity of these three, and how ignominiously they failed. The spirit was willing (v. 38), but the flesh took the upper hand, and they slept! He was alone with His Father, when He prayed that if it were possible the hour might pass from Him, but in true and beautiful submission said, "not what I will, but what thou wilt."

The follower of Jesus will know this experience, too. While he will ever find it to be true that there is nothing more precious than the friends God gives him, he should prepare himself to expect the arm of flesh to fail him. There is no more bitter experience in human relationships than to count on those who should stand by, come what may, and to find that they have slept through our hour of soul-struggle.

III. Betrayed by a Kiss (vv. 42-46).

To betray the one who had done nothing but good, who had loved him and served him even in the washing of his feet, this would have been far more than one could have expected of even the sin-blackened heart of a Judas. But he fills the measure of his ignominy to overflowing by betraying his Lord with the sign of affection—a kiss.

We know full well that we may not stand on the same ground as our Lord even here, for, whereas He had done nothing to merit betrayal, we at our best are not able to stand forth without fault. Nevertheless, great is the hurt when we face the betrayals of life. It may be one whom we have befriended, who has been the object of our loving thought and care, and who in the hour when he thinks to gain himself some advantage or avenge some fancied wrong strikes us in the back, even as he smilingly professes to be a friend. Shall we be embittered in soul and give like for like? God forbid! Let us rather say as Jesus did to Judas, "Friend, wherefore art thou come?" (Matt. 26:50.)

IV. We Knew All

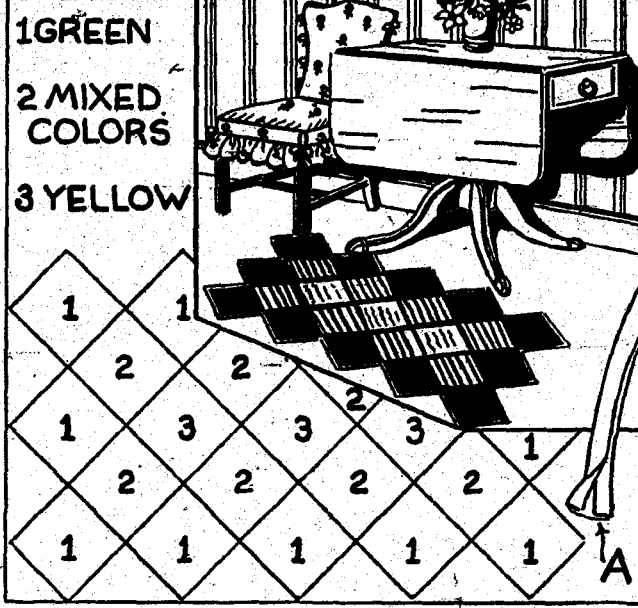

The righteous perisheth, and no man layeth it to heart: and merciful men are taken away, none considering that the righteous is taken away from the evil to come. He shall enter into peace.—Isa. 57:1, 2.

Secret of Holiness

They ask me for secrets of holiness. For myself I know no secret than to love God with all my heart and my neighbor (who is all mankind) as myself.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

Rag Rug Crocheted in Squares.

THE diagram shows how the contrasting squares are arranged to give the rug its interesting design. Whatever color scheme you use, black will be most effective for joining the squares and for an edging of single crochet around the outside of the rug. If the materials you have are not the colors you want, don't forget there is always the dye pot. Producing your own colors may be the most exciting part of rug making.

A crocheted rag rug like the one shown here uses odds and ends. Wool rags make a nicer rug than cotton, or rug yarn may be substituted if desired. Either a wood or large steel crochet hook is used. The rug shown here measures 36 by 21 inches. The 5-inch squares are made separately in single crochet stitch and then joined with crochet slip-stitch. If rags are used, tear or cut the strips not more than 1/4 inches wide, and work with the raw edges turned in as shown here at A. Measure each square carefully so they will all be exactly the same size. Full instructions for slip covers for side chairs like the one shown are in the book offered below.

NOTE: Every Homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' book SEWING, for the Home Decorator. Forty-eight pages of illustrated directions for making slip-covers and curtains; also dressing tables; lampshades and other useful articles for the home. Price 25 cents postpaid (coin preferred). Be a Treasure House

Make yourselves nests of pleasant thoughts, bright fancies, faithful sayings; treasure-houses of precious and restful thoughts which care cannot disturb, nor poverty take away from you—houses built without hands for your souls to live in.—John Ruskin.

AROUND the HOUSE Items of Interest to the Housewife

Sparing the Tablecloth.—Use white waxed paper under the child's tray on table. The paper saves the tablecloth and is barely noticeable.

For Light Muffins.—When making muffins in iron pans, grease the pans and heat them in the oven before putting the batter in. Your muffins will then be much lighter.

Firm Pie Crust.—To prevent the lower crust of a fruit pie becoming soggy, brush it over with the white of an egg before putting in the fruit filling.

Pressing Pleated Skirt.—Wire paper clips may be used very successfully to hold pleats in position when pressing a skirt.

Protecting Hat Band.—A strip of cellophane, folded and placed under the inside hat band, will prevent perspiration and oil from staining the outside ribbon or band.

To Stiffen Meringue.—A generous pinch of soda added to the egg whites before they are beaten will make meringue stand up better.

Improving Meat Flavor.—The flavor of boiled ham, salt beef or tongue which is to be served cold is much improved if meat is left in the water in which it was boiled until it is cold.

Cleaning Upholstered Pieces.—Heavy upholstered pieces that cannot readily be taken outside can be freed from dust by placing over them an old sheet wrung out in hot water and then beating well with a cane. The sheet will absorb the dust.

When Tying Bundles.—Twine used in tying bundles should always be dampened. It will tie much tighter and will not slip when knots are made.

When Fat Catches Fire.—Never throw water on burning fat. Use flour instead. Water only spreads the blaze.

WITH THE ANTRIM COUNTY AGRICULTURAL AGENT

FINAL INSTRUCTIONS FOR GRASSHOPPER BAIT

The actual spreading of grasshopper bait will soon commence. The most comprehensive control program ever attempted in Antrim County has been under way for six weeks. With practically six hundred applications for bait to spread nearly forty thousand acres of land, it is necessary that a very definite program be worked out and followed concerning the mixing and distribution of bait in the various Townships.
 The Antrim County Grasshopper Control Committee met several days ago and thru the County Agricultural Agent, Walter G. Kirkpatrick, the final arrangements covering the handling of the bait as has been established by them, is being announced.
 The mixing station has been established at the warehouse of the Mancelona Co-operative Mktg. Ass'n. The station is of sufficient size to allow the mixing of sufficient bait to care for one Township each day. Notices will be sent to each applicant within the Township several days prior, informing the applicant when bait will be available. This system will enable spreading to be conducted thruout the entire Township on the same day.
 The committee estimates that approximately five thousand bags will be needed to care for all the poison bait. This item alone amounts to two hundred fifty dollars. In view of this fact, a limited number of bags have been purchased and each applicant receiving bait will be required to exchange bag for bag, or to pay for same at the rate of five cents each (actual cost). All bags accepted in exchange must be of standard size, reasonably clean, and free from holes. Figure your bag requirements on the rate of one bag to every seven acres to spread. Get your bags ready now!

Where To Get Your Bait

People living in Mancelona, Custer, Chestonia and Star Townships are to get their bait directly from the mixing station. Do not call for it until you are notified. Residents of Jordan and Echo Townships will have their bait delivered directly to their farm, thru arrangements of the Township Boards. In Warner Township bait will be brought to the Warner Township Hall at Elmira and must be called for there. In Banks Township the bait will be delivered to the Ellsworth Farmer's Exchange. Those residing in Central Lake, Forest Home, Kearney and Helena Townships will have their bait delivered to the Bellaire Farmer's Mktg. Ass'n and will get it from that point. Bait will be delivered to the above stations in accordance to the acreage that applicants have indicated in signing up. Be sure to get what you have coming and SPREAD it.

Remember

1. Get your bags ready to exchange for those received.
2. Do not bother the mixing station or your Township Supervisor for poison. You will receive notice just as soon as the bait is ready.
3. Be prepared to obtain ALL the poison bait you have signed up for and need when notified and spread the first warm dry morning.
 Save the bags the bait comes in and return them at the time you get more bait, or if no more bait is needed, return them to your Township Supervisor, who will destroy them. Empty bags and even ashes from them are poisonous. We want to protect you and ask that you follow out this method.
5. Properly sown bait never killed any animals. It's the bait that was not sown.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT FOREST PLANTING DEMONSTRATION

Approximately one hundred fifty people attended the three forest plantings made the last week of May in various parts of Antrim County, according to Walter G. Kirkpatrick, Co. Agr'l Agent. The plantings were made on the Martin Madison farm Thursday, located one and one-half miles north of Atwood on US 31; the Elmer Murray farm Friday, on M 66 about three miles south of East Jordan; and the Jerry Dewey farm on Saturday morning, located about four and one-half miles southeast of Bellaire on M 88. A crew of twenty-five men from CCC Camp Kalkaska made all the plantings. The plantings at the Madison farm were made by scalping, those at the Murray farm were made on a well fitted piece of ground while those on the Dewey farm were made by furrowing. No more plantings will be made this spring. Several plantings will again be made this fall including one for Thomas Buell of Elmira and Merritt Fox of Milton Township. Much interest was indicated by those in attendance and it is expected that many private plantings will be made in the future as a result of these demonstrations.

ORGANIZE FIRST 4-H COLT CLUB IN NORTHERN MICHIGAN

When twelve boys and girls met Friday evening with the County Agricultural Agent, Walter G. Kirkpatrick, at the home of Ivan Hooper of Milton Township and organized a 4-H Colt Club, the Club became not only the first Colt Club to be organized in Antrim County but in Northern Michigan. This Club is also one of the largest Colt Clubs in the entire state. This is just one of the many Clubs that have been organized for summer Club work in the county, helping to make an unprecedented enrollment in the history of Club work for Antrim County. Indications are that all previous records for enrollment will be broken even including winter enrollment. All previous summer enrollments have already been broken with many more Clubs still to get their entries filed. Much credit is due to O. F. Walker, District 4-H Club Agent.

RISKING IT

A small boy at a party had been eating steadily for an alarming length of time. When he asked for another helping the hostess spoke to him earnestly.
 "Willie," she said, "I'm quite serious. If you take another helping of tripe you'll burst."
 Willie listened, alarm spreading over his features. He hesitated, and gazed at the dish of tripe. Finally, he sat erect, a study of heroic resolution.
 "A right, then," said he, "gie's another helpin' and stam' clear."

Clever Pup

The battleship captain was eager to teach his young son something about geography with a view to getting him interested in the navy. He described the United States and the wide reaches of the Pacific ocean and their relative positions in regard to each other, and then asked: "Henry, if I stood on the beach in California, facing north, what would I have on my left hand?"
 "A wart," promptly replied Henry.

Some Dig

Navy Bill had broken with his girl. After ignoring several letters requesting the return of her photograph, one came threatening to complain to the captain. Deciding to squelch her for all time, he borrowed all the pictures of girls available on the ship, sending them to her in a large bundle with the following note: "Pick yours out, I've forgotten what you look like."

Compliments

Friend—Does your wife ever pay you any compliments?
 Man—Only in the Winter.
 Friend—In the Winter? How do you mean?
 Man—When the fire gets low, she says: "Alexander, the grate!"

JUST-SLIPS ALONG

"Ever notice what a light step that cop has?"
 "Oh, yes, he wears cork-soled shoes."

Thrifty Tip

Hal—How can you afford to take so many girls in such expensive restaurants?
 Sam—Easy! Just before we go in ask each girl if she hasn't been putting on weight.

His Lucky Day

Man—Do you believe in luck?
 Friend—Well, I should say I do. That fat woman in the big hat and the red dress? Well, I once ked her to be my wife.

"When the teacher asked you what you knew about history, what did you say?"
 "I said history repeated itself."

Two-Sided

Son—Dad, what does seeing the humorous side mean?
 Dad—Well, I'll illustrate. A banana skin has two sides. The person who slips down on a banana skin sees the serious side and the one who laughs at him sees the humorous side of it.

Alternative

Father was standing at the edge of a cliff admiring the sea below, the sandwiches clutched in his hand. His son approached him.
 "Mother says it isn't safe here," said the boy. "And you're either to come away or else give me the sandwiches."

Charlevoix Co. Residents Recently Examined For Tuberculosis

Twenty-nine Charlevoix county residents recently were examined by means of the diagnostic chest X-ray for any evidence of tuberculosis. The Christmas seal tuberculosis clinic was conducted in Charlevoix county by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association in cooperation with the Dist. Health Unit No. 3, under the direction of Dr. Carleton Dean.

Christmas seal pennies raised in the local sales of seals financed the clinic almost entirely. X-ray films were taken by Arnold J. Linden, technician in charge of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association's portable X-ray unit. The films have been sent to Gaylord where they will be read and interpreted by tuberculosis specialists.

The purpose of the Association's state-wide tuberculosis clinics is to provide modern examination for all who have been exposed to an active case of the White Plague. Early check-up, the Association explained, helps to prevent the spread of the disease among contacts—a group in which there are many potential cases. Discovery of early tuberculosis is almost impossible without the X-ray. Although the warning symptoms are so slight that they often pass unnoticed, the X-ray can detect this disease in its earliest stages. Then the observance of simple health rules will help to halt the onset of the dangerous adult type of the disease. Modern weapons of discovery have given many the opportunity to check tuberculosis.

WHEN LIFE DEPENDS ON TIRE SAFETY

IT'S ALWAYS Firestone

FOR 19 CONSECUTIVE YEARS THE WINNERS OF THE INDIANAPOLIS 500-MILE RACE HAVE PROTECTED THEIR LIVES WITH FIRESTONE GUM-DIPPED TIRES

On May 30, Floyd Roberts shattered all track records for the 500-mile Indianapolis Race, averaging 117.2 miles an hour using Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires.

THEY said it couldn't be done — that tires could not withstand the torture of the new high speeds. Yet Floyd Roberts set a new record, at this year's Indianapolis Race, averaging 117.2 miles an hour for the 500 miles on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires.

With the sun-baked brick of the straight-away and the granite-hard surface of the turns pulling and grinding at their tires, 33 daring drivers, every one on Firestone Tires, waged a thrilling battle for gold and glory. Never before have tires been called upon to take such punishment. Never in all the history of the motor car has tire safety been put to such a grueling test. Yet not one tire failed — not one single cord loosened — because Gum-Dipping, that famous Firestone patented process saturates and coats every cotton fiber in every cord in every ply with liquid rubber counteracting the tire-destroying internal friction and heat that ordinarily cause blowouts.

Why risk your life and the lives of others on unsafe tires? Join the Firestone SAVE A LIFE Campaign today by equipping your car with Firestone Triple-Safe Tires — the only tires made that are safety-proved on the speedways for your protection on the highways.
