Postoffice To Be Moved Dec. 1st

HERALD PRINTING OFFICE TO OCCUPY ENTIRE MAIN FLOOR OF BUILDING

After dwelling together in harmony for the past thirty years, the East-Jordan-Postoffice and The Herald Printing Office are to part company.

Arthur Seymour some time ago purchased the Peoples State Savings Bank Building. He leased the main floor to the U. S. Postoffice Department for the East-Jordan Postoffice for a term of five years. Since then Mr. Seymour and a crew of carpenters have been occupied in re-modeling the interior for the Postoffice.

Heretofore the lease included post-office boxes, fixtures, etc. In the new lease the Government will furnish new equipment throughout including the postoffice boxes. Many of these fixtures are already installed so that everything will be in readiness on Friday morning, December first.

In order to insure a permanent home for The Herald, the Publisher, aided by the State Bank, has purchased the two-story brick structure known as the Kenyon Building of Mrs. F. A. Kenyon. As soon as the Postoffice vacates its present quarters, The Herald plans to cut an arch in the wall separating the two places of business and move the printing office equipment forward with the office at the front. This will take some time but The Herald will probably be re-adjusted in its new-old quarters early in 1940.

In purchasing the building The Herald bought "blind" the postoffice equipment and as soon as an adjustment on the keyboxes can be obtained these and other fixtures, including the five R. F. D. sorting tables, will be for sale.

With the moving of the Postoffice, little change will be made among the various occupants of the building. The Michigan Bell Telephone Co. will continue to maintain their East Jordan offices on the second floor, as will also G. W. Bechtold, D. D. Milton Meredith continues his Barber Shop in the front part of the basement.

Thirty years ago your Herald Publisher, G. A. Lisk, leased the floor space of F. A. Kenyon before the floor-joists were laid. At three institutions moved into the building about the same time — the East Jordan Postoffice, the Michigan Bell Telephone Co's offices, and The Herald office.

It will seem odd to the other occupants of this building to go somewhere else after Dec. 1st for Post-office service.

Sun Oil Company Has Something New In Motor Fuel

The largest advertising campaign in the history of the Sun Oil Company was announced Monday by M. H. Leister, the Company's sales and advertising director, at Philadelphia, Pa.

"Newspapers will be a mainstay of this campaign," explained Mr. W. L. Stanek, manager of the East Jordan Co-operative Co., local distributor of Sunoco Products, "with more papers being used more frequently than ever before. This decision was made because we have a news story to tell and past experience has shown us that newspapers are one of the most effective means of reaching any predetermined market without delay. Incidentally, all of this advertising will be devoted to our new motor fuel which we have introduced as Nu-Blue Sunoco."

"This motor fuel has been made possible only by a revolutionary new process which has been hailed by the press of the world. Newspapers, magazines and trade-papers in such far distant places as South Africa and Australia, as well as in Europe and in the United States, have published lengthy articles upon the importance of this new process, substantiating the fact that it is a great discovery which may antique present refining methods and will give motorists a new kind of gasoline at no extra cost.

"Made especially for cars with high compression motors, it will give every car a bonus of high-test, knockless power, a surplus of sure-fire quick starting, and a dividend in economical mileage. Obviously, with all these advantages, we are justified in planning such an extensive advertising campaign in order that the motorists of America may learn that Nu-Blue Sunoco motor fuel is now available in every Blue Sunoco pump!"

FINDS EASY HUNTING
Iron River — Julius Lindsten got his bird early in hunting season with no effort at all. Returning from meeting an early morning train, he found a dead partridge on the porch of his home. Apparently the bird lost its bearings in the city and flew into the porch. Its neck was broken.

Judge Smith To Speak To P.-T. A. Nov. 14

Judge Smith of Alpena will speak Tuesday, Nov. 14, before the Parent-Teacher Association. This meeting will be held in the High School Auditorium at eight o'clock. Judge Smith is one of the most outstanding speakers scheduled to be in East Jordan this winter. The P.-T. A. wishes that a large number of the local people will avail themselves of the opportunity to be present. The public is invited.

After Judge Smith's lecture, Mrs. John Porter will direct a period of recreation during which a pot luck lunch of sandwiches, cake and cookies will be served. Coffee will be furnished by the P.-T. A.

Supt. E. E. Wade has announced that if enough of the people sign up that the school buses will run Nov. 14 for the P.-T. A. meeting. Signatures may be sent to the school office.

Inquest Findings Death By Suicide

GEORGE M. BALL, SELMA, IND., FOUND DEAD IN CAR.

The body of George M. Ball of Selma, Ind., was found in his car alongside of M-66 a few miles this side of Ironton, Friday last. He had been killed with a gun that was in the car.

Sheriff Floyd W. Ikens was notified, and, with Prosecuting Atty C. M. Bice, and Sgt. E. Stall and Trooper M. J. Kalker of the Gaylord state police post, started an investigation. A coroner's jury was impaneled and returned a verdict Tuesday afternoon of death by suicide.

A sister of the deceased, Mrs. Robert Wickens of Jackson was notified and she came to Charlevoix, Saturday. She informed the officers that her brother had left her home Wednesday noon to look for work in Lansing.

From the equipment found near the car it indicated Ball had planned an extended hunting trip. It is reported very little money was found on his person and that the car was empty of gas.

Ball, age 32, was not married and had been out of work for some time. Mrs. Wickens told officers he had resided at her home between jobs at Lima, Ohio, Jackson, and other places. The body was sent to Ohio for burial.

AWARDED 4-H CANNING MEDAL
Jean Kobel of Alba has been selected to receive the gold medal awarded to county winners in the national 4-H canning contest conducted for the eleventh season by the extension service according to Walter G. Kirkpatrick, County Agr'l Agent. The medal is a shield nearly one inch deep on which is embossed a horn of plenty and is provided by the Kerr Glass Corporation as an incentive to canning.

Ruth Davenport of Lapeer was named State winner and receives a trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, December 1-6, where five college scholarships of $200 each will be awarded to a selected group. Thirty-two counties participated in the state.

4-H LEADERS MEETING MONDAY

NOV. 13, AT BELLAIRE
The Fall 4-H Leaders Training Meeting for 1939 will be held in the basement of the Community Hall, Bellaire, Monday evening, Nov. 13, starting at 4:30 o'clock according to Walter G. Kirkpatrick, County Agr'l Agent.

Only Leaders or assistant leaders have been invited to this meeting as this meeting will be a special one for leaders. This is something new and promises to be very interesting. Plans for a very interesting program and banquet are being arranged.

New Curbing of Great Benefit

NEW "STEP" GREATLY APPRECIATED BY AUTOISTS — PEDESTRIANS

When the E. J. Lumber Co. Hdwe., the Quality Food Market and the Gamble Store recently rebuilt the sidewalks in front of their places of business they installed a step on the curb that made it much handier for parallel parking by autoists as well as pedestrians, many an auto door having been damaged by this high curb. Following this plan, the City installed similar curb facilities along the entire block from the State Bank to the Jordan Inn, all of which is greatly appreciated by our citizens. The City also made repairs on other spots of sidewalk along Main-st that made walking much more convenient.

American Legion In New Quarters

Rebec-Sweet Post No. 227, American Legion, moved their headquarters first of the week to the Whittington store building next to the Library, on Main St., which they have leased.

Season Closes On Nov. First

FOR HOOK AND LINE FISHING OF STEELHEAD TROUT IN LAKE CHARLEVOIX

Conservation Officer Pat Robinson was a Herald caller Monday forenoon and wishes to correct a misunderstanding among fishermen as to when the season for hook and line fishing for rainbow or steelhead trout closes in Lake Charlevoix. The "open" season for this sport is during September, October, November, and closes on Nov. 30th of this year.

The misunderstanding arises out of a paragraph in the 1939 synopsis of non-commercial fishing regulations put out by the State Department of Conservation.

On page 8 it reads: — "Charlevoix County: Personal limit of five rainbow trout per day from Lake Charlevoix until Jan. 1st, 1940."

The above paragraph refers only to when the Conservation order ends. It has nothing to do with the "open season" order. The first order merely limits the "take." The "open season" is covered on page 3, paragraph (d).

Mr. Robinson, who is a free-lance officer out of the Conservation Department's Regional Headquarters at Roscommon trusts that this explanation will answer and that there will be no violations of the law after Nov. 30th.

MARRIAGES

Stone — Malpass

Mary Glenna Stone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ferris D. Stone of Grosse Pointe Park, Mich., and William Malpass, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Malpass of East Jordan, Mich., spoke their vows on Saturday morning, Nov. 4, at ten o'clock in the Rectory of St. Clare Parish, Grosse Pointe, Father B. J. McConville officiating.

The bride wore a smoke blue crepe dress with blue hat trimmed in wine velvet and wore a corsage of lilies of the valley.

Margaret Stone of Washington, D. C. sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and wore a wine crepe dress and hat with blue accessories and a corsage of sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Ferris D. Stone wore a grape colored costume suit and hat and a corsage of yellow tea roses.
Mrs. William Malpass, Sr., wore a moss green dress and hat and a gardenia corsage.

William Porter of East Jordan was the best man.

Following the ceremony a reception and breakfast was given at the Detroit Yacht Club to the relatives and friends.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Malpass will be at home in East Jordan. Their many friends wish them much happiness.

Boggs — Hignite

(From Midland, Mich., News, Nov. 6)

The Baptist parsonage was the setting Saturday afternoon at two o'clock of the quiet wedding of Miss Vera Boggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nate Boggs of 505-Benson st. to James Hignite, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hignite of Grave st. Rev. Howard A. Webster performed the services with only the attendants to the couple present.

The bride wore a teal blue afternoon dress cut on princess lines with a corsage of baby mums and roses. Attending the bride was Miss Elizabeth Smith, who also wore a teal blue afternoon dress with a corsage the same as the bride's. David Hignite, brother of the groom attended him as best man.

Immediately following the services, the couple left on a one week wedding trip to northern Michigan. They will live in a new home just completed on R. F. D. 2.

The bride is a graduate of Midland high school and the groom of the East Jordan high school.

The newlyweds were East Jordan visitors last Sunday afternoon.

Bridal Shower

A number of friends gathered at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Ransom in Wilson Twp., Nov. 5, the occasion being a shower for Miss Ora Knapp, of Boyne City, whose marriage will take place in the near future.

The afternoon was spent in visiting, games, and music. The honor guest received many lovely and useful gifts and a delicious pot-luck supper was served.

New Auto Licenses On Sale Here

WM. ALDRICH IS THE EAST JORDAN DISTRIBUTOR

The 1940 auto licenses went on sale throughout Michigan on Oct. 28. Local Distributor Wm. Aldrich for the Secretary of State's office, issued that day auto licenses TP-33-01 to Alfred Walden and shortly thereafter the Northern Auto took out a license on a car. The new plates have an aluminum background with black figures and are somewhat larger than the previous plates. No "trick" numbers are to be allowed this year — the numbers to be sold in their order of application.

Avoid Complications

Harry F. Kelly, Secretary of State, has requested all purchasers of new 1940 license plates to surrender their 1939 plates at the time of purchase. Mr. Kelly has deemed it advisable to make this request because of the fact that 1939 license plates if not turned into the Branch Office might be used by an unlawful owner. Many persons in the past have been careless about the disposition of the old plates and have become involved in complications resulting from that carelessness.

Much time can be saved in the issuance of your new license plates by having the old plates ready to turn over to the licensing officials at the time of purchase.

Good News For Our Proposed Summer Colony

Word has been received from a Detroit man who writes that he expects soon to bring an architect with him to go over the lake property proposed for a Summer Colony, with the idea of developing it if conditions are favorable. With a little local co-operation this project may be put across and, if so, will mean a big start in making East Jordan a popular summer resort in the near future.

Pure water, electricity, good roads, fishing, hunting, good boating and bathing, and fine scenery, combine to make East Jordan an ideal place for vacationing.

This means more business and a healthy growth for the community. Let's encourage this in every way possible and have it a going concern by early summer.

More Young Men Haled Into Court

NINE YOUTH GANG UP AND NOW FACE TROUBLE

Chief of Police Harry Simmons has been quietly ferreting out the cause of a number of depredations to property in and around East Jordan for some time past. Locks on bathhouses and boats have been systematically smashed and boats piloted most of the summer months. Several cottages have been broken into.

Crux of the matter came when the E. P. Dunlap Cottage was broken into, Saturday, and some $200.00 worth of furnishings stolen.

As a result, nine boys have been rounded up — seven from the West Side and two from Antrim County. They were picked up Sunday. Four of these youths have been held at Charlevoix for examination before the Probate Court, and there is the probability of some of the others being taken to the County Seat for further examination.

Among our young incorrigibles there seems to be a feeling that there is always an "open season" on summer resort homes and property — not only near East Jordan — but, throughout Northern Michigan as well as elsewhere in the State.

It is certainly discouraging for any person to invest in a summer home and furnishings only to find their property is a prey to vandals. A concerted effort should be made to stamp out this lawlessness.

Rainbow Party Held At Methodist Church

The Methodist Epworth League enjoyed a lovely party Monday evening in the church parlors. The party was given by the Red Team in honor of the Blue Team who won the recent Membership Contest.

The church was decorated in the rainbow colors and also at one end of the room a beautiful rainbow was fashioned with crepe paper.

Several Rainbow Games were played among them Finding the Pot of Gold, and seeking Rainbow fortunes, making wishes on a rainbow.

Following the games refreshments were served to the 35 League Members who were present.

Lice, Mites Cut Poultry Profits

Lice and mites know all the tricks necessary to put a poultryman's books into a maze of red ink, but an entomologist at Michigan State College knows how to take care of the pests.

Two treatments a year, fall and spring, are recommended, although commercial poultrymen find that it often pays to take necessary precautions more frequently.

Remember that lice live on the birds and that mites inhabit the coop and the roosts, suggests C. B. Dibble, extension entomologist at Michigan State College, for this means that two separate treatments are required.

A simple control for mites after a coop is thoroughly cleaned is to spray the interior with half crankcase oil and half kerosene. The spray must penetrate cracks and crevices and cannot be applied with a paint brush.

Lice are controlled by treating the birds. The simplest method, says Dibble, is to place a thin line of nicotine sulphate on the clean perches just before roosting time. The body heat of the birds releases the nicotine which penetrates the feathers. This treatment must be repeated in 14 days but it will kill all forms of lice found living on Michigan flocks. The repeat treatment is necessary to kill those that hatch from nits or eggs present at the time of the first treatment.

Auto Accident Near Gaylord

CHARLEVOIX GIRL IS KILLED. EAST JORDAN LAD GETS BROKEN LEG, LACERATIONS

Helen M. Foster, 17 year-old Charlevoix high-school senior, was killed and four other young people were injured when their car left the highway five miles west of Gaylord and struck a tree about midnight Sunday.

Miss Foster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Foster, of Charlevoix, suffered a broken neck.

Marion "Bub" McGhan, 17, of Charlevoix, driver of the car, suffered severe bruises. His twin sister, Marie, had two broken legs. Tom Carey, 18, of Charlevoix, suffered minor bruises and James St. Arno, 18, of East Jordan, had a broken leg and a badly lacerated foot.

First aid treatment was given at Gaylord and the injured were taken to Charlevoix Hospital except for Carey whose injuries did not demand hospitalization.

Miss Foster was born June 19, 1922 and attended St. Mary's parochial school in Charlevoix. She was a popular member of the Class of 1940. Surviving are: her parents; five brothers, William, of Petoskey; Bernard, of Detroit; Robert and Maurice, of Kalamazoo; and Jack, who is attending Michigan State Teachers College at Ypsilanti. — Petoskey News.

Several persons from East Jordan attended the funeral of Miss Foster at Charlevoix Wednesday forenoon.

Cohnmen Get Fourth Setback

LOSE TO HARBOR SPRINGS BY CLOSE MARGIN OF 7 — 6

The East Jordan Crimson football squad suffered its fourth setback of the season at Harbor Springs last Saturday afternoon, dropping a 7 to 6 decision to the Harbor Springs Rams.

Harbor counted within the first three minutes of play, recovering a costly Red and Black fumble on the 6 yd. stripe. Herrick went over two plays later and Backus' kick from placement went squarely through the uprights to give their team its margin in victory.

Using an effective aerial attack the Cohnmen brought the ball to the Harbor 9 yd. stripe as the third quarter came to a close. Crowell hit the line three times to reach the pay dirt. Kosirnik came through to block the Crimsons attempted kick from placement and his efforts kept his team out in front giving them that one extra point, enough to spell the difference between a tie and victory.

The Jordanites gave a good account of themselves all afternoon, but lacked the dynamic scoring punch which was theirs the first three games this season when Glen Gee was totting the ball, and leading his team to victory.

K. Backus and Davert played leading roles in the Rams' victory, with Earnett, Crowell and St. Arno sharing the limelight for the Jordanites.

The game of the season will take place at Boyne City Saturday afternoon when the Jordanites will lock horns with Coach Earl Brotherton's Boyne High Ramblers, in its annual rival city engagement. The Boyne machine with a reported powerful aerial attack will be favorites to topple the Jordanites, but don't count the locals short for when East Jordan plays Boyne City almost anything is liable to happen. St. Arno, hurt in an auto mishap, will be replaced in the local backfield by either Hayner or Woodcock.

Gaylord's Blue and Gold showed Northern Michigan fans that they have what it takes to be champions when they ran over the Charlevoix Red Rayders 32 to 0 in the final game of the season for both elevens at Gaylord last Saturday afternoon. Lovelace, Glasser, Butters and Hains strengthened their bids for All Northern honors as they led Coach Brotherton's champions to the title in humiliating Charlevoix warriors.

MICHIGAN INDUSTRY
Michigan has a share in one industry that is 100 per cent American. It's the business of making maple syrup and maple sugar, all of which is produced in the United States and Canada.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK. — This department flushes a swarm of rumors about drastic changes in our naval building plans, said to have been induced by new problems of defense against planes and subs as disclosed by British disasters.

So far as we can learn, there are impending some possible changes in personnel, and a general check and overhauling of work on new ships to date, but nothing revolutionary. It is indicated that there will be intensive studies and training in co-ordination of ships, planes and submarines.

At the highest peak of American naval construction in peacetime history, Rear Admiral Alexander Hamilton Van Keuren is made chief of the bureau of construction and repair. That puts him right in the wheelhouse of the navy efficiency drive, as this is the acid-testing bureau for fighting ships, and it bears the responsibility for their being sound and fit, structurally and in design. Defects have been found, and are being remedied in several 10,000-ton cruisers.

Admiral Van Keuren, a navy technician for 36 years, is one of the most highly rated specialists in naval construction. He smokes a drop-stem pipe, carries on easily and informally, and marshals engineering data with a precise mastery of detail. His previous post has been that of industrial manager at the Philadelphia navy yard. He is a dependable safeguard against pitted or pithy armor plate, such as we heard of years ago. He is a native of Michigan, graduated from Annapolis in 1903. His predecessor in the bureau, Rear Admiral W. G. Du Bose, becomes commander of the new model basin at Carderock, Md.

MAJ. GEN. DANIEL VAN VOORHIS, assigned to the supreme command in the Panama Canal Zone, is an officer up from the ranks who has been entrusted with many critically important assignments in the past—among them the guardianship of the bulk of the nation's $17,000,000,000 gold reserve, at Fort Knox, Ky. The fact of his selection is evidence of the crucial importance of the canal defenses, in the eyes of the high command.

From Zanesville, Ohio, he enlisted in the Tenth Pennsylvania infantry in 1898 and won a commission as second lieutenant in the Philippine insurrection. He is the army specialist in mechanized defense and attack, and just now the canal is a concentration of swift mechanization. In the world war, he was chief-of-staff at Brest, and holds the Distinguished Service medal, the Navy Cross, the Silver Star and the Legion of Honor decorations.

IN HIS new book, "The Defense of Britain," Capt. Liddell Hart, the British military expert, says, "Our chief risk of losing a war lies in trying to win the war." His general finding is that modern war cannot be supported in the style to which it has been accustomed, and observes that "War will only be ended when the power-lusting nations recognize its futility. The growing power of modern defense is bringing that prospect in sight."

In his preceding book, "Europe in Arms," published in August, 1937, he thought there was hope of ending war in the limitations of the military mind. Fat-headed generals would cling to gaudy mass attack and make war so stupid and ridiculous that anybody surviving would just forget it. But the trouble with a war expert is that you can't bottle him up, and other nations in the past have used him as a military consultant.

In the world war, a strippling just out of Cambridge, a captain and a war correspondent, he gave the generals a facing to the limit of the censorship, and, although they growled menacingly, they took him into their counsels. He invented a lot of new trick plans, including the "indirect approach" and the "expanding torrent" system, and his reputation was well on its way before the war ended.

He has scolded many of the main panjandrums of the big war, in the post-war years, apparently with public approval, judging from the sale of his books. He was a war buddy of Lawrence of Arabia and insisted that this human cryptogram knew more about war than all the generals put together.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Soviet-U. S. Relations Strained By Molotov's Attack on FDR; Italy Protects Her Neutrality

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

EUROPE: Double Feature

All Hallow's eve found every European ear cocked to Moscow, awaiting history-making utterances from Premier Vacheslav Molotov. Adolf Hitler had 1,500,000 men poised at the front; so did the allies. But war hung in abeyance. For as Russia swung so would the war, because every other European state had declared its status, neutral with leanings, either toward Germany (like Italy and Hungary) or toward the allies.

Stolen Thunder

A few short hours before Molotov's speech, Il Duce Benito Mussolini pulled a coup that must have stunned his erstwhile colleague in Germany. Ousted was Propaganda Minister Dino Alfieri, close friend of Nazidom's Propagandist Paul Joseph Goebbels. Ousted were Fascist Secretary Achille Starace, close friend of Deputy Fuehrer Rudolf Hess and the man who gave a signal for the Italian chamber's demonstration against

His demotion...

France last winter; Gen. Alberto Pariani, friend of Hitler's Col. Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch and author of the Italian "blitzkrieg" plan for a German-Italian-Spanish drive against France; Gen. Giuseppe Valle, friend of Field Marshal Hermann Goering. Replacing them were middle-of-the-roads like Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, chief of staff. Retained were other favorites like Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano (Mussolini's son-in-law) and Count Dino Grandi, minister of justice.

In Paris there was a feeling of the Rome-Berlin axis had broken down completely. London was also happy, for a few hours earlier Italy's Ambassador Giuseppe Bastianini had made a strong anti-Communist speech. In the Balkans it was thought Mussolini disapproved Russia's expansionist policy, especially since Il Duce did not even wait until Molotov spoke. But in Italy it was a simple indication that Mussolini had his ear to the ground: Italians wanted no pact with the allies, they merely wanted strict neutrality.

Ominous Talk

First allied reaction to Premier Molotov's speech was relief over his failure to declare a military alliance with the Reich, even though he did charge Britain and France

RUSSIAN DEMANDS

The Soviet would give Finland part of Karelia (1) in exchange for moving back Finnish frontier northwest of Leningrad (2); Russia wants (3) islands of Seiskari, Hogland, Lavansaari and Tyrsaari; would lease land (4) at mouth of Finnish gulf for naval bases; asks for Finnish part of Rybachii peninsula (5).

were warring not to preserve democracy or restore Poland, but to safeguard their world empires. But sober reflection made the allies worry about:

Finland. Molotov revealed, much to the Finns' chagrin, the stalemate proposals which have occupied these two countries for the past month. Besides a mutual assistance pact, Russia wanted territorial exchanges (see map) which Finland declared would "rob us of the chance of defending the independence of our land."

Germany. He said Nazi-Russian friendship was getting thicker. Next day it was revealed trade discussions were going forward successfully. One report from Stockholm said Russian submarines would be given the Nazis in exchange for German merchant ships, providing a subtle way of staying "neutral."

Poland. He said there can be no question of restoring Poland and that it was absurd to continue the war for that cause. Two days earlier, Britain's Prime Minister Chamberlain had acknowledged Russia's right of invasion to "protect" her Polish blood brothers from Germany.

Balkans. He gave no hint of expansion there, but shook a nasty finger at Turkey for signing mutual assistance pacts with the allies after shunning a treaty with the Soviet.

United States. He precipitated a heated argument which observers thought might end with severance of Soviet-U. S. diplomatic relations. Commenting on President Roosevelt's earlier note expressing hope for continued amicable Finnish-Russian relations, Molotov said: "One finds it hard to reconcile that with the American policy of neutrality. . . . One might think that matters are in better shape between the United States and . . . the Philippines . . . than between the Soviet Union and Finland, which has long ago obtained both freedom and political independence . . ."

Next day, while Massachusetts' Rep. John McCormack demanded from the house floor that Ambassador Laurence Steinhardt be recalled from Moscow, the President dug from his files an exchange of notes with Soviet President Michael Kalinin last April, when Kalinin cabled an unsolicited "expression of profound sympathy" with the President's efforts to safeguard peace. This cable had come one day after Mr. Roosevelt sent peace pleas to Dictators Hitler and Mussolini. Thus the U. S. put Kalinin on record as supporting the President's peace efforts in contrast to Molotov's declaration. Suggested White House Secretary Steve Early: "It would seem that he (Molotov) had the embargo in mind rather than what he termed the President's moral support of Finland."

(Unpublished, the neutrality bill wormed its way through the house which voted 237 to 177 for sending it to conference with the senate, conferees to have definite instructions. One instruction: To repeal the arms embargo, by a vote of 243 to 181. This congress expected to get out of town immediately. Britain hailed the repeal: Nazidom was enraged. One suddenly discovered danger of cash-and-carry is that the allies will indeed buy more arms but will cut other imports from the U. S. One Britisher thought imports of U. S. industrial products and foodstuffs may fall off $150,000,000 a year.)

Western Front

Abandoning purely defensive positions, German "shock troops" stormed the French frontier at scattered points as murky weather gave way to sunshine. Fears grew that Belgium and the Netherlands might be invaded. The Dutch proclaimed a state of siege in eight provinces, flooding frontier positions to check any Nazi advance.

At Sea

While the embattled U. S. S. City of Flint steamed carefully down the Norwegian coast to Germany under a Nazi prize crew, the U. S. asked both the Reich and Britain to protect her interned American crew. Washington also reported 27 U. S. ships have been detained by belligerents since the war began. The war at sea came too close to American shores when the British freighter Coulmore was reportedly torpedoed 450 miles off New England. Nazi planes and U-boats continued successful raiding of allied shipping, but Britain retaliated by naming Lord Nuffield (her "Henry Ford") to a key post in the air ministry. His instructions: To intensify the Navy's North sea blockade against Germany.

POLITICS:

Candidate-of-the-Week

Rooseveltian third-term talk which took a back seat in early days of the war crisis, loomed again in San Francisco when Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace boomed the President for re-election. Next day Secretary Steve Early made it clear that Franklin Roosevelt wanted no boom, and Iowa's Sen. Guy Gillette left a White House conference where the President had reportedly asked that Iowa's delegation to next year's convention go unpledged. The deduction: That Mr. Roosevelt will not seek re-election, and certainly wants the matter hushed for the present.

But Henry Wallace had started the political pot boiling again. Into the Republican picture jumped Oregon's Sen. Charles McNary, who tentatively consented to run. Into the Democratic picture jumped a brand new name, Montana's Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, who tried to win the vice presidency with the elder LaFollette in 1924.

next month in Salt Lake City, C. I. O.'s John Lewis gave, among other reasons: "The slight to Senator Wheeler and other great liberals of the west, who have not been consulted . . ."

Lewis apparently considered the meeting (some of whose participants may be violating the Hatch "no politics" act) as a third-term boom. Certainly it was made clear that Senator Wheeler should be consulted in any future "liberal" discussions about 1940. Washington observers, realizing that Lewis support may be a kiss of death to any political aspirations the senator may entertain, nevertheless admitted he has A. F. of L. backing, a big railroad following and plenty of friends in the senate.

Investigation of Un-American Activities in U. S. Bearing Fruit

Gives New Perspective on Foreign Influences at Work in Our Midst; Shows How Our Citizens Are Used To Promote Ends of Dictatorship.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON. — The long, and sometimes wearisome, investigation by the special house committee on un-American activities, headed by Rep. Martin Dies of Texas, has begun to bear fruit. It is not yet clear whether all of the fruit will be good. But there surely is reason to believe that, even with some of that fruit slightly decayed, a great deal has been accomplished that will be helpful in retaining America for Americans.

I have a feeling that when the committee's work finally is brought to a close, most of us will have a new perspective on the foreign influences that have been at work in our midst. We will know more about the "isms" that have been transported to our shores and spread among us under organization names that are designed wholly to conceal the purposes of a controlling clique which gains its strength and its money, to a considerable extent, from foreign lands.

For another thing, it is now evident that whatever else the Dies committee has done, it has disclosed how thoroughly easy it is for a few rat-eyed, scheming foreigners to feed upon American resources and use our citizens to promote the ends of dictatorship. Moreover, the testimony thus far taken has shown how these weasels operate, the methods they use.

The testimony has brought out the fact again that one of the simplest things in the world is to "organize" Americans. Some vague promises, delivered with oratorical fervor; citation of some wrongs and theories for correcting them, stated only in generalities, and a group of active organizers, working for pay—that is what you have to have to "organize" in the United States. And the tragedy of it is that thousands of individuals will part with coin "for this great movement," or that one, without knowing that the leaders are using the membership only for whatever crooked purposes will serve their own interests.

Activities of Nazis and Communists in U. S. Revealed

The committee has been attacked, threatened. Even President Roosevelt characterized some of its operations as a "sordid procedure." Members of the groups whose history and purposes have been laid bare have shouted their heads off about "unfairness," and "injustice." But I repeat, the Dies committee has served a useful purpose and the public should remember that the stuck pig squeals the loudest.

Let us look back over the record. It shows that the "German-American Bund" is a tool of the Nazi leaders, if not directly of the German government. It shows that communists have been and are operating in countless "cells" in the United States, and because of the record the committee made, Earl Browder, the boss communist in the United States, is under indictment charged with having forged passports that enabled him to make frequent trips to Russia without the facts being known. It shows also that there are numerous organizations in this country which are simply the catspaw of the communist party of Russia.

It appears there is more scandal, more evidence of violation of law, yet to come. Largely because of the committee's exposures there probably will be prosecutions of various foreigners or officials of so-called American organizations because they have failed to comply with our law. They have not registered with the department of state showing their connections with foreign governments or foreign groups.

In addition to all of these, the committee has made a ghastly expose of communists within the offices of our own government. It published the names of 563 persons, on the government payroll, who are members of the American League for Peace and Democracy, with the assertion that part of them, at least, were avowed communists.

Publication of Names

Considered Grave Mistake

Publication of the list stirred official Washington. It was an action that was undoubtedly a grave mistake, because anyone can examine the list and find "victims" of the racketeering organizers — persons who were misled, persons who believed they were serving a sincerely fine purpose. Many of them are likely to lose their jobs in the government—minor clerks, messengers, stenographers—because of their alleged connection with an outfit whose motives, unknown to most of the members, were designed to destroy our form of government.

It was about this action that President Roosevelt spoke, although it has been known for months that he had little respect for the Dies committee program. Chairman Dies undoubtedly deserves censure for publication of the entire list. Common-ordinary horse sense ought to have shown him and his committee that only a comparatively small number of those people were "guilty." It would have been so easy to have rooted out the real crooks and no one could have had sympathy for them. But the others were just victims and pught to have been treated as such.

In other words, this bad mistake by the Dies committee has done much to nullify the good it has done, otherwise.

I am hopeful that the department of justice will be forced into the position where the real leaders, behind the scenes, will be kicked out of their government jobs from which they have been promoting destruction. But leniency is called for with respect to those other stupid, but sincere, individuals who make up the majority of the list. Their only blame is that they were so gullible that they did not attempt to find out who was behind the "great movement."

Operations Are Directed From Moscow and Berlin

But how did the Russian "Comintern" operate to get into these various organizations and promote its nefarious schemes toward world revolution in a so-called intelligent race of people here?

The processes, according to the testimony by Browder and others before the committee, were very simple. The American Communist party sends delegates to the Communist Internationale in Moscow. Decisions are made by the Moscow group. Browder explained that the delegates came back with these decisions and policies but he described them as only "voluntary agreements" between the Americans and Russians. The Americans were not "compelled" to observe the Russian-made rules or follow Russian-made orders, according to Browder. But the head-communist in this country was squeezed into a corner by committee questions and finally explained that it was "customary" for American members of the party to "part company" with the group when they failed or refused to agree with the imported schemes. And thus voluntary action was forced action, directed from Moscow, as far as I can understand words.

American "Fuehrer" Kuhn, of the German-American Bund, appears to have had something of the same system. He nevertheless insisted before the committee that his organization had no connection with the Nazi party leaders and was not guided in any way by them. This statement was made despite testimony, some from Kuhn, himself, that he had many close contacts in Berlin and that he had made recent visits to Adolph Hitler.

There has been considerable suspicion that both Browder and Kuhn have many men and women in their organization who can be described only as racketeers. That is to say, they have numerous "workers" who are fully aware of the general purposes but who are willing to engage in the "movement" solely because they have well-paying jobs within the ranks—which, in my opinion, rates them as completely dirty crooks.

Confidential Information Available to Foreigners

But to get back to the Dies committee list of alleged communists, or fellow travelers, within the government itself. Those of us who have been in constant contact with individuals in various official capacities recognize the dangers that are inherent in their situations. I, for one, am genuinely fearful of them. Any government worker comes into possession of vast quantities of highly confidential information. It is information that belongs to you and to me and to others, because we are compelled by law to supply to the government all records and facts which the government seeks.

It is not information that belongs to any one government employee or official and that person has no right to use it or disclose it to others, except as the laws require.

I believe, therefore, it does not take a vivid imagination to see how such information can be used destructively by one of the rats who secretly owes allegiance to the Soviet or the Nazis or to the Fascists, of Italy. America long has proceeded upon faith. If that faith is breached between individuals, our laws and our courts are available for correction, for damages, for enforcement of rights. But what, I ask, are any of us going to do when, within the offices of the government itself, there are concealed men and women who descend below the level of common thieves and secretly supply facts about our nation to foreigners whose purpose is to destroy us? Who knows but that this sort of thing goes on within our army and our navy?

Michigan Mirror
Non-partisan State News Letter
By GENE ALLEMAN
Michigan Press Association

Lansing — Effective in Michigan this week is a new statute which strives once more to untangle the aged problem of land.

It mirrors a major part of the history of Michigan itself. This history is written in the terms of human use of land and of exploitation by outside interests of the land's natural resources and byproducts such as fur, timber, iron, copper, oil and gas.

It recalls the hey-day of greedy speculation of land in the Detroit metropolitan area during the boom years of 1924, 1925 and 1926 when a wave of excessive and poorly controlled subdividing swept over the city and its environs, leaving in its wake a trail of tax delinquencies and overdeveloped reality.

It reveals a shameful neglect and indifference by state and local government in intelligent planning and conservation.

It reviews a reoccurring cycle of human ambition and disillusionment, success and failure, happiness and heartaches.

Here is a subject so commonplace that it is almost prosaic.

Yet there probably is no one other thing in Michigan which affects so many people. Consider then for a few minutes this paramount problem of land and how our state government is trying to solve it.

The New Land Plan

Confronted with the cold fact that 1938 advertising of delinquent land in Michigan had disclosed the existence in tax default of approximately 1,500,000 acres in northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula and literally millions of dollars in undeveloped residential and business lots in the Detroit metropolitan, the 1939 state legislature arrived at this solution:

(1) Tax delinquent land north of the south line of Arenac, Midland, Isabella, Mecosta, Newaygo and Oceana counties would go to the state conservation department for disposal through its land division. Thus, suitable forest land (and unsuitable agricultural land) could be added to the state forests. Municipalities would be given an opportunity to acquire lots within their boundaries for purpose of school sites, playgrounds or parks.

(2) Tax delinquent land lying south of the above line which extends generally from Muskegon to Bay City would be offered for re-sale by a state land board at a "salvage" auction in May, 1940. All such land will be offered for sale at a minimum of 25 cents on the dollar of assessed valuation. Disposed owners may have the privilege of matching the highest bid and of obtaining title again. Former title-holders may enter into an agreement with the state land board to pay such a redeeming price over a period not exceeding 10 years.

If the lands are not redeemed by former owners within the 30 day period, a deed will be issued conveying absolute title to the "salvage sale" purchaser.

Northern Michigan

In Northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula the state conservation department may dispose of the delinquent tax lands in one of three ways:

(1) Reserve the land for state forests and other conservation units. This would recognize the character of the land as being unsuitable for agricultural use. Speculators could not obtain the land for exploitation after which the land likely would revert to tax delinquency and thus proceed once more through process of being advertised, offered for sale, and so on.

(2) Offer at public auction after appraisal and establishment of minimum prices — owner at time of tax sale having 30 days following the auction to redeem for the amount of the auction bid. This corresponds with the plan for southern Michigan with one exception that while sale is discretionary in northern Michigan, it is mandatory in southern Michigan.

(3) Exchange with the United States and individuals when such procedure is for the best interests of the state.

In the place of speculation and spoilation, through which hundreds of millions of second-growth trees might be stripped by lumbermen and "timber skimmers," Northern Michigan land is to be carefully administered by a state department created in 1921 for the purpose of fostering conservation of natural resources.

three-fourths of all advertised lots were tax delinquent for five or more years.

The commission concludes: "The return of this land to private ownership, unencumbered by delinquent taxes, will not assure the payment of taxes in the future, unless the return is accompanied by a program which will bring this land into proper use." It would only mean a repetition of existing abuses, another turn in the land merry-go-round.

Responsibility for prevention of such abuses should be vested, the commission continues, with "legally constituted planning authorities having jurisdiction broad enough in scope to encompass the overlapping interests of municipalities, townships, and counties in the area affected by the plan."

Land Grants
Originally all land in Michigan belonged to the Federal government, and prior to that, of course, to the Indians.

In 1837, when Michigan was admitted to the Union, section 18 of every township was turned over to the state with the stipulation that sale proceeds would go to a state primary school fund. Later, the state colleges were given a grant of 30,000 acres for every representative in Congress. In 1850 Congress passed a swamp land act whereby six million acres came into state ownership for drainage development. The state would give swamp land script in payment for the building of roads and bridges, such script being discounted at banks and purchased by land speculators.

Then came federal land grants to builders of railroads, whereby belts of land six to eleven miles in width were granted outright to railroads. (1866, Lansing to Traverse Bay railroad.) Builders of the Soo ship canal and the Keweenaw ship canal, for example, were given a choice of desirable timber lands.

Between 1870 and 1890 came the timber-cutting boom when lumber interests stripped much of the land of valuable pine and then left the idle cut-over land, tax delinquent, for the state to worry about.

It was not until the 1893 depression that the state, after trial and error process, established a sound general tax law which provided that five-year tax default lands could be sold to homesteaders and land companies.

Into the modern picture comes the 1929 oil and gas discovery in Midland and Isabella counties — an interesting story in itself.

Tax Moratorium
In 1933, the year of the bank moratorium, the state legislature enacted a tax moratorium for relief of distressed property owners.

In May of 1936 a tax sale was to have been held to sell 1933 tax default land and any unpaid installments (10-year plan) on 1932 and previous tax years. The legislature later delayed the tax sale to May, 1938, when the accumulation of all tax defaults were compiled into one gigantic tax list. In metropolitan areas the tax delinquencies had mounted to astounding proportions, and the cost of publication in these counties (despite a 50 per cent reduction by the 1937 legislature) was abnormally large for reasons found in simple arithmetic.

The present grand jury investigation at Lansing into possible mishandling of state funds through the office of the 1937 and 1938 auditor general, George Gundry, and his assistant, Martin Lavan, attorney at Brighton, involves the metropolitan tax lists.

Thus, the land story unfolds a history of Michigan from the era of Indian fur trade to the present week. The state once again seeks a solution for an old problem in which speculation and exploitation have had such a prominent place.

Jane smiled at him with her chin tilted in her bird-like way. She was really having the time of her life. She was thrilled and fascinated by the beauty of her surroundings, and gradually Frederick began to take on something of the fascination. After dinner they sat in the great drawing-room—a portentous place—with low-hung crystal chandeliers—pale rugs—pale walls—with one corner redeemed from the general chilliness by a fireplace of yellow Italian marble, and a huge screen of peacock feathers in a mahogany frame.

"I call this room the Ice Palace," Frederick told her. "Mother furnished it in the early eighties—and she would never change it. And now I rather hate to have it different. I warmed this corner with the fireplace and the screen. Edith always sits in the library on the other side of the hall, but Mother and I had our coffee here, and I prefer to continue the old custom."

Jane's eyes opened wide. "Don't you and your niece drink your coffee together?"

"Usually, but there have been times," he laughed as he said it, "when each of us has sat on opposite sides of the hall in lonely state." Jane laughed too. "Haily and I do things like that."

They finished their coffee and he smoked a cigar. Edith and Baldy telephoned that the thing was more serious than they had anticipated. That perhaps he had better send Briggs.

"So that means I'm going to have you to myself for an hour longer," Frederick told Jane. "I hope you are as happy in the prospect as I am."

"I am having a joyous time. I feel like Cinderella at the ball." He laughed at that. "You're a refreshing child, Jane." He had never before called her by her first name.

"Am I? But I'm not a child. I'm as old as the hills."

"Not in years."

"In wisdom. I know how to make ends meet, and how to order meals, and how to plan my own dresses, and a lot of things that your Edith doesn't have to think about."

"And yet you are happy."

"I'll say I am."

He laughed but did not continue the subject. "I've a rather wonderful collection of earrings. Would you like to look at them? Queer fad, isn't it? But I've picked them up everywhere."

"Why earrings?"

"Other things are commonplace—brooches, necklaces, tiaras. But there's romance in the jewels that women have worn in their ears. You'll see."

He went into another room and brought back a tray. It was lined with velvet and the earrings were set up on tiny cushions. It was a unique display. Cameos from ancient Rome, acorns of human hair in the horrible taste of the sixties—gypsy hoops of gold—coral roses in delicate-fretted wreaths—old French jewels—rubies, emeralds, sapphires, and seed pearls, larger pearls set alone to show their beauty, and a sparkling array of modern things, diamonds in platinum—long pendants of jade and jet—opals dripping like liquid fire along slender chains.

She hung over them.

"Which do you like best?" he asked.

"The pearls?"

He was doubtful. "Not the white ones. These—" he picked up a pair of sapphires set in seed pearls—rather barbaric things that hung down for an inch or more. "They'll suit your style. Have you ever worn earrings?"

"No."

"Try them."

He helped her to adjust them—and his hand touched her smooth warm cheek. He was conscious of her closeness, but gave no sign.

There was a little ringer above the mantel. "Look at yourself," he said.

She tilted her head so that the jewels shook. The blue lights of the stones made her skin incandescent. Frederick surveyed her critically. "You ought to have a more sophisticated gown. Silver brocade with a wisp of a train."

"It changes me, doesn't it? I am not sure that I like them."

What a joy she was after Adelaide. As if the name had brought her, a voice spoke from the door. "I wouldn't let Waldron announce me, Ricky; may I come in?"

"Really?" Adelaide Laramore was appraising Jane. A shabby child. From the threshold she had had a moment of jealousy. But the moment was past. Frederick was extremely fastidious. He adored beauty and this Barnes child was not beautiful. Jane was unfastening the earrings. "Aren't they heavenly, Mrs. Laramore?"

"The sapphires?" Mrs. Laramore sat down on the couch. Her evening wrap slipped back, showing her white neck. Her fair hair was swept up from her forehead. She had a long face, with pink cheeks and pencilled eyebrows. She was like a portrait on porcelain, and she knew it, and emphasized the effect. "The sapphires? Yes. They're the choice of the lot."

She went on to speak of Eloise. "She is simply hopeless. She has told the most hectic tales and all the papers have sent men out to the Inn."

"Well, they escaped. They started early and have been hung up at Alexandria."

"Eloise and Benny and the Captain dined with me. She was still telephoning when I left. I told her that I did not sanction it, and that I should come straight over and tell you. But she laughed and said she didn't care. That she thought it was great fun and that you were a good sport."

"I shan't see her," shortly; "she ought to know better. Setting reporters on Edith like a pack of wolves."

"I told her how you would feel," Adelaide reiterated.

"I should see her if I were you, Mr. Towne," said a crisp, young voice.

Adelaide turned with a gasp. With her slipped feet crossed in front of her, Jane looked like a child. For the first time Mrs. Laramore got a good view of those candid gray eyes. They had a queer effect on her. Eyes like that were most uncommon. Fearless. The girl was not afraid of Frederick. She was not afraid of anyone.

"Why should I see her?" Frederick demanded.

"Won't it just add to her sense of melodrama if you don't? And why should you care? Your niece is coming home. And that's the end of it."

"You mean," Frederick demanded, "that I am to carry it off with an air?"

Jane nodded. "Make comedy of it instead of tragedy."

Adelaide slipping out of her wrap was revealed as elegant and distinguished in silver and black.

"May I have a cigarette, Ricky, to settle my nerves? Eloise is tremendously upsetting," Adelaide was plaintive.

Jane watched her with lively curiosity. The women she knew did not smoke. Baldy's flappers did, but they were abnormal and of a new generation. Mrs. Laramore was old enough to be Jane's mother, and Jane had a feeling . . . that mothers . . . shouldn't smoke.

But none the less, Adelaide Laramore and her exotic ways were amusing. She had a brittle and artificial look, like the Manchu lady in the Museum, or something in wax.

Jane was brought back from her meditation by the riotous entrance of Eloise and the two men.

"I knew Adelaide was telling tales."

"I told you I was coming, Eloise," Eloise started at Jane when Frederick presented her. "You look like your brother. Twins!"

"No," Jane decided that she liked Miss Harper better than she did Mrs. Laramore—which wasn't saying much.

"The reporters are on their way back tonight. Miss Barnes' brother is bringing her."

in a classic coiffure, was like some radiant witch, exultant of evil. "You mustn't scold me, Frederick. It was terribly exciting to tell them, and I adore excitement."

"They aren't there."

"Where are they?"

Frederick chanted composedly, "We three know . . . but we will never tell . . ."

"Adelaide will, when I get her alone."

"I will not."

"Then Miss Barnes will. Do you know how young you look, Miss Barnes? I feel as if you'd tell me anything for a stick of candy."

They roared at that. And Jane said, "Nobody ever made me do anything I didn't want to do."

And now Benny and the Captain looked at her, and looked again. What a voice the child had, and eyes!

Eloise, on the couch, hugged her knees and surveyed her gold slippers. "They are putting my picture in the paper and Adelaide's. They saw one on my desk."

Mrs. Laramore cried out, "Benny, why did you let her do it?" and there was a great uproar—in which Eloise could be heard saying:

"And they are going to have a picture of the Inn, and one of your brother if they can get it, Miss Barnes."

Jane began to feel uncomfortable. She was, she told herself, as much out of place as a pussy-cat in a Zoo. These women and these men reminded her somehow of the great sleek animals who snarled at each other in the Rock-Creek cages.

Frederick did not snarl. But she had a feeling he might if Eloise kept at him much longer.

It was in the midst of the hubbub that Edith entered. She walked in among them as composedly as she had faced them at the Inn.

"Hello," she said, "you sound like a jazz band." She went straight up to Frederick and kissed him. "I suppose Eloise is shouting the news to the world." She tucked her hand in his arm. "There are more than a million reporters outside. Mr. Barnes is keeping them at bay."

"Where did they find you?"

"Hear of us, I suppose, at the Alexandria hotel. We didn't realize it until we reached here, and then they piled out and began to ask questions."

Frederick lifted her hand from his arm. "I'll go and send them away."

Eloise jumped up. "I'll go with you."

And then Frederick snarled, "Stay here."

But neither of them went, for Baldy entered, head cocked, eyes alight—Jane knew the signs.

"They've gone," he said. "I told you I'd get rid of them, Miss Towne."

He nodded to them all. Absolutely at his ease, lifted above them all by the exaltation of his mood. Finer, Jane told herself, than any of them—his beautiful youth against their world-weariness.

Edith was smiling at Jane. "I knew you at once. You are like your brother."

They were alike. A striking pair as they stood together. "It is because of Mr. Barnes and his sister that we got in touch with Edith," Frederick explained. He had regained his genial manner.

"Oh, really?" Adelaide knew that she and her friends ought to go at once. Edith looked tired, and Eloise at moments like this was impossible. But she hated to leave anyone else in the field. "Can't I give you a lift?" she asked Jane, sweetly, "you and your brother."

But it was Frederick who answered. "Miss Barnes lives at Sherwood Park. Briggs will take her out."

So Adelaide went away, and Eloise (and the two men, and Edith turned to her uncle and said, "I'm sorry.")

Her face was white and her eyes were shining, and all of a sudden she reached up her arms and put them about his neck and sobbed as if her heart would break.

And then, and not until then, little Jane knew that Edith was not like one of the animals at the Zoo.

In Jane's next letter to Judy she told her how the evening with the Townes had ended. And that she had invited the Townes and Follettes for tea the next afternoon.

When she had written the last line, Jane sat very still at her desk. She was thinking of Evans. She hadn't seen him for three days. Not since the Sunday night she had gone to the Townes. That night in the fog had impressed her strangely. She had felt for Evans something that had nothing to do with admiration for him nor respect nor charm. His weakness had drawn her to him, as a mother might be drawn to a child. His struggle was, she felt, something which she must share. Not as his wife! No . . . That kind of love was different. If only he would let her be his little sister, Jane.

He had not even called her up. When she had invited him and his mother to tea with the Townes, Mrs. Follette had answered, and had accepted for both of them. Evans, she said, was in Washington, and would be out on the late train.

When he arrived ahead of the others on the afternoon of her tea, Jane said, "Where have you been? Do you know it has been four days since we've seen each other?"

"Weren't you glad to get rid of me? I've thought of you every minute." He dropped into a seat beside her.

She was gazing at him with lively curiosity. "How nice you look."

"New suit. Like it?"

"Yes. And you act as if somebody had left you a million dollars."

"Wish he had. I bought this outfit with a first edition 'Alice in Wonderland,'" he laughed and explained. "I've been getting rid of some of our rare books. I feel plutocratic in consequence. Five hundred dollars, if you please, for that old Hogarth, with the scathing Ruskin inscription. And I'm going to open an office, Jane."

"In Washington?"

"On Connecticut Avenue. Same building, same room, where I started."

"Evans, how splendid!"

"Yes. You did it, Jane."

"I? How?"

"The night of the fog. I never realized before what a walking-stick I've been—leaning on you. Henceforth you're the Lady of the Lantern. It won't be so fatiguing."

He was smiling at her, and she smiled back. Yet quite strangely and inconsistently, she felt as if in changing his attitude towards her, he had robbed her of some privilege. "I didn't mind being a walking-stick."

"Well, I minded. After this I'll walk alone. And I'm going to work hard, and play around a bit. Will you have tea with me tomorrow, Jane? At the Willard? To celebrate my first tottering steps?"

She agreed, eagerly. "It will be like old times."

"Minus a lot, old lady."

That was the way he had talked to her years ago. The plaintive note was gone.

"Take the three-thirty train and I'll meet you. I'll pay for the taxi with what's left of 'Alice.'"

"Don't be too extravagant."

Campfire Girls, Girl Scouts Like Nature Study

"Smaller than a robin—gray, a black cap, a black chin." What is it? "A chickadee, of course."

"A flag of Belgium on each wing, from the cattail hear him sing!" What is it? A red-winged blackbird, as any Camp Fire girl or Girl Scout who has followed nature trails at the Cleveland Museum of Natural History will tell you, says a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Guided by the animal highway charts, they go from bats to butterflies. They play a game with the charts, and find out what kind of an animal a mouse is, or a grasshopper or a snake.

Or they go to the insect room on the second floor and learn the eight orders of insects, count insect legs and discover that "an insect is an animal without bones and has six jointed legs." Perhaps they go to the tanadocia room and learn that "some trees, like some people, are easy to tell by their shapes." Or perhaps they visit the rock room and discover a few of the elements of which minerals are made.

Then they go to the Hanna star dome on the second floor and sit on the floor in group of 25. When they are able to point out and name seven constellations, seven stars, the constellation in which they appear and an interesting fact about each one, as well as a variable star and the time that elapses between its two periods of greatest brightness, they have earned three different honors. If they can tell the difference between a comet and a shooting star and four points of difference between a star and a planet, they have earned two more honors.

Probably the most fun of all is the "nest hunt." The nests of seven birds, their location—whether on the ground or in a tree—the number of eggs, and the color of the eggs, all will entitle them to another honor.

More than 1,000 Camp Fire girls and Girl Scouts follow these trails annually on Saturdays throughout the winter. They earn their honors, learn a great deal about nature, which they can follow with actual outdoor study the next summer and, incidentally, have a very good time, especially while they play nature games and eat their lunches in the auditorium at noon.

Learning and Thought
Learning without thought is labor lost; thought without learning is perilous.—Confucius.

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And, favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, allayed out. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

DOLLAR MAKERS Ask Questions To Get Ahead In the World

By GEORGE T. EAGER

HOW little we use our opportunities to absorb information that is helpful in our work," said a business man in discussing the success of John Graham, the president of an important bank.

"I remember when John started at the mail desk as a boy just 30 years ago. He hadn't been there three months before he knew more about postal regulations than our lawyers, seemed to be friends with everybody at the post office, could tell you in a minute just when you had to mail a letter so as to have it in Buffalo next morning. Any one with any question about the mail soon found it easier to say 'Get Johnny' than to bother to look it up. As he was promoted from one department to another it was still the same story.

"People say he is the best informed banker in this section. The reason is that he never stops asking questions. I've gotten in a taxi with him and before long he has found out how much a driver makes a day, what share the company gets, whether the company is fair to its employees, how long a cab will last and so on. A week later the head of that taxi company may be asking for a loan and wonders where John Graham ever learned so much about his business.

"In one way or another the average business man comes in contact with at least 50 people a week. Most of us never think of asking them questions. But think of the information a man like John Graham accumulates, and stores away each week."

No wonder this whole community says "Get Johnny," when there is a tough business problem to be solved.

PUBLIC TREND IS IMPORTANT

A GREAT textile manufacturing business that once employed 15,000 has been ordered liquidated by a federal judge. Thirty years ago it was a leader in its field, a power in the industrial world. Today it is nothing but an assortment of buildings and machinery to be sold to the highest bidder.

As a rule the cause of the failure of many a business is the inability of its management to sense public trends, to study the speed with which they develop and then quickly adapt products to these trends.

A large manufacturer of umbrellas foresaw the adverse effect of closed automobiles on umbrella sales. Sensing the great future growth of aviation the company quickly dropped out of the umbrella business, and devoted its entire efforts to the manufacture of parachutes. Today it is a going business.

When the automobile business was in its infancy the United States was dotted with wagon and carriage manufacturers, many of them large and well financed. Out of all of them only one foresaw the trend from horses to gasoline motors clearly enough to see the advisability of becoming an automobile manufacturer. The rest have fallen by the wayside.

Business men have been known to get visions of the future from small incidents. One of the financial powers in the aviation business was asked why he had dared risk so much capital in the industry in its early and hazardous days. "I just looked around at the youngsters in my neighborhood and saw them discarding fire engines and trains for model airplanes," he replied. "That's when I became convinced the aviation business had a great future."

Smart Neckwear With Simple Foundation Dress Is 'Style'

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHEN you go shopping keep repeating over and over to yourself these words—"simple foundation dress of fine sheer wool, flattering seductive neckwear to add the sweetly feminine touch." Follow this style formula and you can't go wrong in matter of smart apparel selection.

You see it's this way, current fashion is in a be-a-lady mood and it follows as the night the day that when it comes to ladylike dress lovely seductively feminine neckwear is inevitable. So, apropos of present fashion trends, the paragraphs following, together with the accompanying illustration, will carry the message of what's showing these days in the way of delectable collar and cuff sets, sports scarves and jewelry to wear with the new dress of bright sheer wool.

Did you know that a cunning collar made of lustrous gold kidskin is one of the newest neckwear notes? Well it is! See the "darling" one shown above to the left in the illustration. This little two-bow gold kid collar worn as it is with a sheer wool, moss green dress, is the sort that dolls you up in the twinkling of an eye. And isn't the little Sally Victor sweetheart toque with its velvet applique hearts winsome? We think so. By the way, speaking of gold kidskin, you can buy little bows of it to wear in your hair or clip to your pocket, or anywhere it shows off to the best advantage.

Venise lace revers, snow white and starched to crispness and with lovely Val edging, as illustrated to the right at the top, give the perfect answer to what to wear with your stylish basic wool frock. A diamond brooch and a suede bustle hat complete the accessory ensemble.

A demure collar and cuff set of handsome Venise lace, finished with a pique fold, as pictured below to the left, with your neatly styled daytime frock label you as "a lady" anytime. The gold clip and the massive finger ring, the visor shaped hat with its gold ornament are also fashion highlights.

Fresh and crisp is the Venise lace collar and cuff set with its embroidered pique flowers as shown below to the right. It will give added dash to your new wool dress. Wear it with a corded felt toque with velvet binding as pictured.

War Creates Novel Styles in Britain

The war has already killed the bustle and the crinoline and all the eccentricities of dress that marched in their wake.

These may be revived later when the men returning from the front demand that women shall be 100 per cent feminine, but for the moment the whole trend of dress is to be "sensible." Subdued colors, outfits that match up with khaki uniforms, high collars and long sleeves (even for evening frocks) have replaced the frills and flounces of the last few months.

For the hour of the raid has been designed the "air raid siren suit," a form of super workman's overall combining slacks and tunic. Step into it, zip it up and you can hop out of bed and remain in cold and drafty places looking smart.

Gorgeous Handbags For Autumn Season

You can't "get by" with an ordinary handbag this season. Even the bag you carry with your daytime tailleur will have subscribed to some sort of fancy stitching, or shirring and will show a novelty touch in its mounting.

As to bags with dressy afternoon costumes you will want one of the dressmaker types of moire silk; not plain tailored but with a fussy little pleating or a jewel mounted frame, or something to give it the feminine touch. Newest thing is the handsome black velvet bag carried with the velvet hat to match. Mayhap it will have a rhinestone clasp, or glittering rhinestone accent is latest fashion. Evening bags are gorgeous—glittering sequins, brocades, ostrich feathers, rich embroideries and all that sort.

Velveteen Vogue

Velveteen is regarded as one of the smartest fabrics in use this season. Everything that can be made of velveteen is being made of velveteen. It is so satisfactorily workable and comes in such fascinating colors and now that designers have taken up the idea of velveteen they are playing it up for all it is worth. The two-piece afternoon dress shown is of royal blue velveteen, the top stitched in Chinese red and closed with silver buttons. The heart-shaped felt chapeau is also in Chinese red. This jacket can be worn with different skirts.

PUTTING GOD'S KINGDOM FIRST

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 6:19-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness.—Matthew 6:33.

Said the Robin to the Sparrow:
"I should really like to know
Why these anxious human beings
Rush about and worry so."

Said the Sparrow to the Robin:
"Friend, I think that it must be
That they have no Heavenly Father
Such as cares for you and me."
—Elizabeth Cheney

Most men are rushing about madly. Worry presses them down. They wonder whether life is worthwhile, whether somewhere there is not relief from this nervous tension that is destroying mind and body. Well, there is relief and it consists of but one ingredient. Give God His proper place, the first place in your life, and "all these things" (Matt. 6:33) will take their rightful places. Seeking first the kingdom of God will settle every problem about money, about food and clothing, and about the future.

1. Money (vv. 19-24).
The word in our text is "treasures," and we know that it has a broader meaning than money, but since in our day men seem to translate all values into dollars, we feel free to use that word "money" to express our thoughts.

The treasure is something that one has placed somewhere in order to keep it for himself. It is not a thing gathered for the purpose of using it to serve others or to serve God, but something put away on the shelf to be kept for one's own enjoyment.

There are two places in which a man can lay up treasure, on earth or in heaven; but it is only as he hoards treasure on earth that he becomes selfish. That which he sends on to heaven by his devotion of life and in service to Christ, by his sacrificial giving to the cause of Christ, by his encouragement of those who are witnessing for Christ, all this is done for the glory of God and without hope of reward. How great will be the surprise of some when they come to heaven and find what they have thus laid up for eternity.

Laying up treasures on this earth, on the other hand, leads to covetousness, to enslavement to one's possessions (be they great or small), and to the evils that follow like a train in the wake of a love of money.

II. Food and Clothing (vv. 25-32).
Some who have no great desire to amass riches are nevertheless in constant anxiety about food and raiment for the morrow; in fact, it is true of some who have great riches that they live in fear lest next month or next year or ten years from now they may be in need.

What is the answer of the Lord Jesus? Consider the birds. They are not able to work nor are they able to pray, but God feeds them. Consider the glory of the flowers of the fields, for not even a king can dress himself in such beauty. "Are ye not much better than they?" (v. 28).

"As far as known, no bird ever tried to build more nests than its neighbors; no fox ever fretted because it had only one hole in which to hide; no squirrel ever died of anxiety lest he should not lay up enough nuts for two winters instead of one; and no dog ever lost any sleep over the fact that he did not have enough bones laid aside for his declining years" (Public Health Service).

Proper forethought is good and right for we are intelligent beings, but anxiety about our daily needs is always dishonoring to God.

III. The Future (vv. 33, 34).

Why will we fret ourselves about the future? It is in God's hands, and even if it were in our hands, what could we do about it? Even tomorrow, with its needs and its blessings, with its joy and its sorrows, is not yet here, and when it does come, there will be God's gracious provision for each passing hour.

Unsaved friend, will you not take the Lord Jesus Christ just now as your personal Saviour and let Him solve the problems of your life as you put the kingdom of God first? Christian friend, if you too have been bearing burdens which are not honoring to God, will you not tell Him just now, and put them down at the feet of the Lord Jesus? "Casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you" (1 Pet. 5:7), which might properly be translated, "Casting all your worries (or distractions) on Him, for He worryeth about you."

Be Still Then and Know
Only in the sacredness of inward silence does the soul truly meet the secret, hiding God. The strength of resolve, which afterwards shapes life and mixes itself with action, is the fruit of those sacred, solitary moments when we meet God alone.—F. W. Robertson.

Garden Gossip

Edited by Caroline Harrington
Letters and questions on garden topics will be welcome. They will be published and discussed in this column.

The oriole's nest which Mrs. Blanche Carney brought me is a proper oriole's nest — a country oriole's nest — for it is built on a foundation of horsehair. Yes, sir, regular horsehair from Dobbin's tail. Town orioles may build of twine picked up here and there, — a country oriole scorns anything short of horsehair.

Of course, a town oriole should have credit for adaptability. There is genuine virtue in making the most of what you have. And country oriole or town oriole, both birds make clever use of their material. The perfect cradle they weave from wood-fiber, the perfect balance with which the cradle is hung — these are amazingly skillful feats of craftsmanship and engineering. And, by the way, just how do they get that wood fiber? Just to gather their materials requires patience and industry.

And to think that orioles are hatched knowing all these skills. Without tools and without teachers, they build their nests, rear their young (and it is no cinch to fill those widely gaping mouths), and when the right time comes (i. e., closing of bug season) they fly unerringly to another home in the south where the season on bugs is still open. And that isn't all! Barring accidents, they just as unerringly fly back, without compass or chart, to the spot where for them life began in the swaying, leafy top of some tall tree. They may even repair the old home and use it again. Mrs. Carney knows of a nest that was used three summers hand-running before it fell apart.

Orioles are not the only birds that make use of old nests, or, if they do not use the same nest, they make use of the same site. I have seen several vacated phoebe nests in a row

Charlevoix Farm Day Is Success

86 DIFFERENT EXHIBITS, OF POTATOES, CORN, BEANS, FORESTRY AND APPLES

The first Charlevoix Farm Day Program and exhibit sponsored and developed by the Kiwanis Club was a great success in every respect. Never before has as large a number of farmers attended a potato show as was the case last Saturday, Nov. 4th. All through the afternoon and evening they viewed the wonderful exhibit consisting entirely of displays of farm products raised here in Charlevoix County.

The quality of the exhibits as well as the quantity greatly exceeded the expectations of those in charge. In spite of a rather poor quality potato crop, the exhibit of potatoes was of the highest standard. In fact, there were 43 pecks of potatoes which included our standard varieties. Without a doubt our better exhibits will give a splendid account of themselves at Traverse City on November 8th, 9th and 10th, where they will compete with some thirty counties in Northern Michigan.

In the open class, Russel Rural Pecks, Lee Sneathen, Charlevoix, won first with a beautiful exhibit, Charles Withers, Charlevoix came in second followed by Charles Cellner of Charlevoix and Wm. Behling of Boyne City. In pecks of Chippewas and Katahdins, Elmer Hott, East Jordan, has as nice a sample of Katahdins as one could ever see. This sample should go a long way in state-wide competition. He also had the second prize with a peck of Chippewas, likewise very good. In the pecks of Any Other Variety, Curtis Nicloy, East Jordan, won the blue ribbon with a splendid peck of Russet Burbanks, with Harry Behling, Boyne City, winning second and third places.

In the 4-H Club competition, made up of 12 pecks of Russet Rurals, first prize went to Delmer Lyon, Charlevoix, followed by Albert Routley, Charlevoix, Albert McDonald of East Jordan, and Iver Lyon of Charlevoix. Two club exhibits from this class will be shown at Traverse City where they should be a strong competitor. In the Smith-Hughes competition in pecks of Russet Rurals, Clarence Staley, East Jordan, won first, followed by Marlin Ingalls, Donald Shepard, and Albert McDonald, all of East Jordan. In Smith-Hughes competition in Any Other Variety, Wm. Behling, Jr., Boyne City, won first with a wonderful exhibit of Katahdins, closely followed by Curtis Nicloy, East Jordan, with a peck of Russet Burbanks and LeRoy Nicloy, East Jordan, and Albert Behling, Boyne City. The competition was very keen and Robert S.

with the current nest, over a porch doorway. Robins' nests seldom hang together for more than a season, but the same site is used over and over again. Bluebirds seldom overlook a likely site, once it has been used. Swallows use the same chimney year after year . . . so do not collect the birds' nests exposed to view when the leaves fall from the trees, unless they have fallen to the ground as did this one which Mrs. Carney brought me. Some accident of wind and weather snapped the twig on which it was hung or it might well have served for another brood of young orioles. Now . . . if I knew as much as an oriole I could hang it up in our apple tree, and maybe entice a pair of orioles to fix it up and move in next spring. But only an oriole can hang an oriole's nest. Strange isn't it, the difference between the instinct of a bird and the intelligence on which human beings pride themselves?

FROM THE DIARY OF A PLAIN COUNTRY WOMAN

November 5th: Sunday and we slept late. The Smiths called up and said they would be over for dinner but after everything was ready and we were waiting they called up to say they could not come. So we asked Max and Mary over. Later the Smiths came after all and we had a good visit, Grandma and Auntie washing all the dishes.

November 6th: A real fall day — cold, cloudy. To town with Dad who bought red plaid pants, a cap, and gloves for hunting. I bought a miscellaneous assortment including stockings, mittens and warm caps for the children. In afternoon I had a lesson driving the new car, and Auntie baked cookies and a pan of apples.

November 7th: Snowed some in night and hurries all day. Lovely letter from Marie. Did odd jobs of mending and finished third quarter of trip-around-the-world quilt. Dad took me for a ride in evening while children were at dancing class. Grandma received a letter from Grandpa.

November 8th: Snow covered ground in a. m., and snowed most of day, and this evening children went coasting for first time this season. I went to town with Dad and bought two lovely woolen blankets. Max and Mary invited us over to a chop suey dinner.

There is something very special about a tamarack when autumn turns its leaves to yellow . . . perhaps to make up for the way it looks after its leaves have fallen.

Lincoln, County Agr'l Agent, Petoskey, had a real job in making his decision. In connection with this Smith-Hughes exhibit, Mr. Thacker, Instructor at East Jordan, justly deserves our thanks for his splendid cooperation and help throughout the afternoon.

In the 4-H Club corn displays, first place went to Demar Lyon, Charlevoix, followed by Iver Lyon, James Hamlin, and Keith Ager, all of Charlevoix. In the bean exhibit, first place was won by Clair Williams, East Jordan, followed by Stanley Dean, Charlevoix. In the 4-H Club forestry competition two classes were developed. In the wood panel display, first place was won by Felix Wasylewski and Walter Kipiaz of Boyne Falls, and second place was won by John Hauser and Eddie Skop, also of Boyne Falls. In the school competition, first place was won by Clarion and second by Hetrick.

The apple division was featured by eleven bushels of beautifully prepared exhibits and fifteen plates. This sample display received a great amount of favorable comment. In the plate competition, A. L. Darbee, East Jordan, walked off with five first places and one second place. D. D. Tibbits, Boyne City, won three first places and two second places. Frank Courier, Charlevoix, won a second place in the plate division. Robert Vratanina, Charlevoix, won a first on a plate of Wolf Rivers. In the bushel competition, Mr. A. L. Darbee, East Jordan, made a clean sweep of the top three awards.

Never before has as large a crowd viewed a crops display or enjoyed such a splendid program. The Kiwanis Club of Charlevoix deserves a world of praise for its fine help. It is impossible to give proper credit to all of the many individuals who helped to make a success of this venture but certainly Oscar P. North, Frank Bird, and Clarence Meggison contributed more assistance than any other group. Also, the City of Charlevoix contributed $25.00 for the show which is greatly appreciated. The dairy demonstration team, made up of Lawrence Eklund and Clare McGhan, probably made its last appearance. This demonstration was splendidly carried out and I am sure that there is no doubt in the mind of anyone but what they were deserving of the high honors and recognition extended them in the National competition.

A most wonderful show and program has ended. Let us plan for a similar event another year with possibly several added attractions and a real exhibit of Charlevoix County Products.

B. C. Mellencamp,
County Agr'l Agent.
