Shepard — Heaton

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shepard was the scene of a very pretty wedding Monday afternoon, Nov. 20 at 3:30 when their youngest daughter, Wilma M., became the bride of Boyd S. Heaton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hyland Heaton of Boyne City. Elder Hector McKinnen 'ormed the ceremony before a set ing of basketed flowers. Mrs. Kiley Bader played the wedding march.

The bride wore a very becoming own of Harding blue velvet and carried pink rose-buds. The bridesmaids. liss Doris Shepard and Miss Wanda Heaton, wore blue of harmonizing hades with corsages of baby mums. Walter Shepard and Melvin Somnerville attended the groom.

After the ceremony a three-course dinner was served to about twenty guests. A beautiful wedding cake centered the table, flanked by white apers.

Mrs. Heaton is a graduate of the Class of 1938 of East Jordan High School. Mr. Heaton graduated from Bovne City High School in 1934. Both have a large circle of friends who extend best wishes. Mr. and Mrs. Heaton left Monday evening for a short wedding trip in southern Michigan after which they will reside in Boyne City.

Free Christmas Trees Do Not Grow On Roadsides In Michigan

The cruising motorist who spies a Christmas tree he thinks would look well in his living room in season, and the trucker who wants to make some quick and easy money, alike are warned that removal of Christmas trees without the written consent of owner of the land is theft, for which the penalty is $25 to $500 fine and up to three months imprisonment

Any vehicle hearing a Christmas tree may be stopped by a conservation officer, an officer of the department of agriculture or a regular officer of the law, and inspection of the bill of sale or written consent of the owner demanded. Permission is quite as necessary in getting a tree growing on state-owned land as for one on private land. No Christmas trees are cut in state forests.

His career, from the start on down to his present fifty-ninth year, is a testimonial to occult guidance, in planting him always in the highway of Lady Luck. In Prague, his birthplace, his father worked in a bakery. One day, his mother gave his father money to buy wood. Fates or phantoms guided him instead to a pawn shop, where he made a down payment on a tiny piano. Rudolf's mother was so angry she wanted to chop it to pieces, but the boy persuaded her to let him keep it. One day the owner of the bakery passed by, heard the lad playing beautifully, and helped groove him into his musical career.

At the age of 10, he had published a barcarolle. In the musical conservatory of Prague, where he studied under Antonin Dvorak, he teamed up with Jan Kubelik. They were playing at a concert which Daniel Frohman happened oppor-tunely to attend. He took them to the United States for a tour of 80

Whether or not Mr. Friml was just an amanuensis for spirits, his compositions streamed along rapidly—"Glorianna," "The Firefly," "Katinka," "High Jinks," "Music Hath Charms," "The Vagabond King," and a whole album of others, none of them seeming to be of ghostly inspiration. Hollywood still keeps him busy and successful.

MARITIME:

Neutrality '

Having fought for and having won "cash and carry" neutrality, the United States promptly sought ways to circumvent it. While American vessels and seamen loafed along the waterfronts, crafty minds were thinking up at least two ways of maintaining maritime traffic despite neutrality: (1) chartering foreign ships, a perfectly legal method used almost certain to refuse requests for transfer of some 90 U.S. vessels to Central or South American registry. When the idea was first broached, President Roosevelt supported it. Later, after getting a lec-ture from Secretary of State Cordell Hull, he told reporters that the more he thought about it, the more convinced he became that it wasn't right. Reason: It would place sister American republics in a neutrality position different from our own.

Loud as the complaints of American ship owners were those of lesser European neutrals whose thriving U. S. commerce was stopped by the neutrality law. Two loudest objectors were Eire and Belgium. The former sent its minister, Robert Brennan, to tell the state department that Eire should be excluded from the "combat zone" be-cause she is neutral and will remain so; because Eire needs U. S. products; because Eire doesn't believe U. S. ships would be endangered visiting her ports. Belgium sent her Ambassador Count Robert Van Der Straten-Ponthoz to inquire about transferring U.S. ships to Belgian registry.

Certainly, commented the President, objections to Latin-American transfers wouldn't prevail in the case of European neutrals like Ireland. It was a pretty safe guess, therefore, that U.S. ships may soon sail under European flags.

EUROPE:

The War

Gone like sudden sunshine on a cloudy day was the Belgian-Dutch effort to make peace between Hitler and the allies. And after the sun came threats of rain, for it ended the last hope of armistice. There was still much saber rattling, such as Winston Churchill's speech call-ing Der Fuehrer a "cornered maniac," but the foes were ready to start slaughtering.

Sea and air warfare went ahead precipitously. One day Berlin announced (by inference) that henceforth all British-French merchantmen would be torpedoed. Reason: They're all armed. Next day, after a successful but pointless air attack on the Shetland islands. Berlin warned it would "show the British what it means to be at war with news stories emanating from offi-cial sources here recently that seemed to emphasize an unusual contradictory situation that obtains n present national government policies. One of the stories had to do with a projected expansion of our military services. Representative Vinson of Georgia is prepared to ask congress at its next session to spend an additional $1,300,000,000 on our navy. Other house leaders are submitting an army expansion pro gram that will cost a record-break ing $1,670,000,000.

Now, no one can deny the impor tance of national defense. They may differ as to how much of a structure is required, but not as to the prin It always is well to remem ber that few nations, or individuals pick a fight when they know they are due to meet real trouble-which is to say that a strong army and navy are essential to peace.

These two announcements con cerning military plans were made known on different days. It so hap pened that on the day that the army program was given to the newspa-pers, the department of justice was distributing a statement telling of what it believed to be a great victory in court over a corporation. That story concerned the anti-trust action against the Aluminum Company of America. The department lawyers vere obviously in high glee because a New York judge had admitted some 36 documents into evidence in the proceeding. Mention was not made that the judge had rejected something like 140 other documents, or exhibits as they were called, but made that were alled to the something like 140 other documents. but much glory was claimed for the government's side.

It is not for me to say whether the gigantie Aluminum company has vi-olated a law; that is the function of the court. The thing that I object to is the apparent role of the government lawyers in this and numerous other proceedings. Their attitude is almost the same as though they were engaged in private litigation instead of serving and seeking justice in behalf of all of the people. It is an attitude that is dangerously near to persecution, rather than prosecution, and it is wrong.

Business Being Harassed By Whole Flock of Suits

The announcement regarding the Aluminum trial recalled that there were a whole flock of other suits being pressed against nearly every kind of business in the nation. The department of justice seems to be trying to get some kind of a record efforts to harass business, and this is not surprising when one considers that Thurmand Arnold, the former professor, is guiding this policy and that Attorney General Frank Murphy is more of a crusader than even the late Theodore Roosevelt.

Thus, upon examination I found that there were some 25 or more proceedings being pushed by the government, actions that may be called "major litigation" in that they involve some of the main units of American industry. I have no intention of offering a defense for any of them because I do not know the facts. It is, however, significant that these actions are going forward from one governmental agency while other groups are call-ing upon American business to make itself ready for wartime production in event of need.

It will be recalled how President Roosevelt told a press conference not so long ago that there were "raids" being conducted on our war resources by some foreign powers. That is, material usable in war was being bought here, and there was little control of these purchases by our military services.

Whether this condition brought about the creation of a control board within the army and navy, I do not know. It is nevertheless a fact that the control board soon was created and purchasing missions from Engand France have to consult with that board.

Mention should be made, in this connection, of the frequent state-

Long Range Planning for War Reserves Proceeding

ments from official sources of the long range planning for war reserves that has been going on. This program has been in process of development since 1921, but it obviously has taken on new impetus since fire broke out in Europe. Business has been advised repeatedly and in various ways that it must consider itself at the beck and call of its government in event of war. And that is thoroughly sound. But how, I wonder, can these two things go hand and hand; how can business be encouraged to make itself ready in case of national emergency and go about that job wholeheartedly while the same government, supposed to be operating as a unit, is attacking and seeking to destroy the very machin-

WASHINGTON.-There were two | ery which the national defense requires-even demands?

I used the Aluminum only as an illustration, and it hap-pens to be a good one. There are something like 50 army officers, concerned with inspection, consultation, guidance, in the various plants of the Aluminum company. There of the Aluminum company. There are dozens more, yes, several hundreds of army officers and naval officers doing like work in scores of other great manufacturing plants. You can see them crawling all over skeletons of ships in shipyards. They have to make inspections to make sure the specifications are met. They are to be found in experimental laboratories, using private funds and private facilities for tests looking to improvement of the various things used in war. All of which is fine; it is a co-operation business ought to give, but, again, there is posed that question of how can government get all of these things done while a group of theorists, paid by the same taxpayers, devote their time to prosecution of the most flimsy interpretation of law violations?

When I was digging around on the list of pending government prosecu-tions I found the so-called "big three," Ford, Chrysler and General Motors, in the automobile field, were being prosecuted for alleged viola-tion of anti-trust lews in automobile installment financing upon what surely is a strange basis. When the suit was started it was simply a charge of unfair competition in the matter of financing. The thing has simmered down now, however, and the issue actually is whether it is violation of law for using methods of financing installment buyers in a manner that results in less cost to

Hold It's Wrong to Provide For Cheap Auto Financing

That is to say, the present issue is whether it is a violation of law to set means of cheap financing. From all of the facts I have been able to gather, our government, through its department of justice, actually is asserting in court that it is wrong for the automotive companies to maintain financing corporations which will result in a saving to the pur-chasers of motor cars. If that is not silly, then I have a cock-eyed

One ought not pass over the tem-porary national economic committee which has been sitting, off and on, for more than a year. The comon, for more than a year. The committee is supposed to be leading the way to a new national economic policy, a new method of doing busi-ness in the United States. It may, but I doubt it. Thus far, about the most tangible results—certainly, the most important effect—of vestigation and hearings is the opportunity that has been accorded government theorists to expound their ideas. For them, it has been a great opportunity. Dozens of them have been able for the first time in their lives to see their oninions set down in printed form in the committee record of the hearings.

Of course in referring to the ' E. C., one surely ought to call attention to the great number of witnesses from commerce and industry and the gouging and sniping of them that has been going on by a group of "thinkers" who serve as lawyers for the committee. One ought to mention also to the halfbaked testimony presented in a number of instances by witnesses whose chief gripe seemed to be that they or their businesses were not making money. Lastly, reference should be made to the effort that has been made throughout the hearings to discredit every line of business that has grown big.

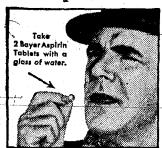

Lollypop Industry Actually Is Under Investigation

I have no way of knowing what the government is spending in all of these trials and investigations. Nor is it possible to know what the cost to business has been. The T. N. E. C. has had half a million dollars and it will get some more. The department of justice has been hiring lawyers by the bagfull. The federal trade commission likewise has been jumping onto business practices from great industries like steel and cement on through the list to the manufacturers of lollypops. (Don't laugh at that last one. The lollypop industry actually is under investigation, for some official believes that there is a large monopoly of lollypoppies.)

But to name a few others among the nation's industries that eager government prosecutors are using to make reputations for themselves as lawyers, we find these: milk oil, steel, building material in all phases, sulphur, rubber, glass, motion pictures, telegraph, telephone, utilities of all kinds, food distributors, tobacco, insurance, typewriters and trade associations. The effort to show that medical doctors are tradesmen, and subject to the antitrust laws also should be included.

THE WORKS OF THE MESSIAH

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 8:14-27. GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus of Nazareth went about doing good.—Acts 10:38.

"Does it work?" Modern man is not impressed by a thing simply because great claims are made for it or it is intricately organized. After all, the important thing is, does it really work? Such a test can be carried to an extreme and the finest and richest things of life to the threat and richest things of life. be thrown aside because they have no utilitarian value. But in general, the question is a good one, and especially is that true as it is applied to religious systems and philosophies of life. These claim to have power to deliver man from his sin and give him peace and rest. What we want to know is, do they actually do it, not only in the day of health and prosperity, but in the hour of death and devastation? The answer is that every one of them has failed and does fail, with the exception of Christianity, which comes "not in word but in power" (I Cor. 4:20). In Christianity is found the only real dynamic for daily living.

I. Personal Needs Satisfied (vv.

This entire section of the Gospel Matthew is concerned with miracles. It is interesting to note how many of these events concern personal needs. There is scant comfort to the needy one to speak to him in generalities about a great God who is ready to help people. When I am in need I want to know whether there is any help for me. Jesus healed Peter's mother in the home, and then He went out and healed multitudes in the throng, but in each case it was a personal in-terest which He took and a personal healing that was received.

Observe also that He met the need all whether they were sick in body, mind or spirit. Someone may say, "That is all very well, but that took place when He was here on earth." Well, He is here now, working in and through the power of the Holy Spirit and in and through His The Lord Jesus daily satisfies every need of His disciples, and often does so in ways which are miraculous in their

II. Sacrificial Service Exemplified (vv. 18-22)..

Following Jesus in discipleship is more than speaking sweet words of devotion or of taking part in the carrying out of some public wor-ship ministry. To really follow Him is to "follow one whose vocation is such that there are incessant demands compelling the renunciation of home and the comforts of a set-tled life. Only the call of God can make one equal to the demands of such a hazardous life" (Edward E. Anderson).

Observe that even the demands which love may present on behalf of an aged father must not be permitted to stand between the disciple and his Lord. There is no thought of unkindness or lack of considera-tion here, for as our Lord points those who are spirifually dead, although still physically alive, may well be called on to care for the physical needs of an aged parent, even in the hour of death, if the Lord Jesus has work for His disciple

There is no thought of neglect of the duties of life, but rather of a placing of the Lord first, whatever else may take the second place. The blight upon many a Christian experience is that almost anything else which is of interest is allowed to take first place and the must take second place if He is given any place at all.

III. Divine Power Demonstrated

There are those in the world who are unable to see the workings of God's power in the spiritual realm because they themselves have not been spiritually born again (I Cor. 2:14). For these the Lord here presented the working of His mighty power in the realm of nature.

Satan, who is "the prince of this world" (John (14:30) had evidently whipped the waves of the sea into a mighty storm, possibly thus hop-ing to drown Jesus and get rid of his divine adversary, but the Lord Himself speaks in the majesty of His eternal power and we read that "there was a great calm" (v. 26). Even His disciples were strangely astonished that the very "winds and the sea obey Him." Yes, the forces of nature respond to His slightest word. The winds and the sea obey Him. But what is even more wonderful is that the turmoil of a man's soul becomes a great Lord Jesus speaks the word of peace.

Confused and troubled man or woman who reads these words, will you not now by faith submit your self to the One who can speak to you, who can meet and satisfy every one of your needs, and who can give you the blessed privilege of sacrificial service on His behalf in a needy world?

Mr. Looze went deer hunting on Tuesday and had not yet returned so he was not of the party. They spent a very pleasant day. There were 12 for dinner. Lightning struck the big elm in Whiting Park Nov. 11 but was not noticed for several days. The monarch of Whiting Park, while it looks so stern and rigid, on closer examination it shows the scars of many conflicts with one thing and another which has left only a shell, but has been a landmark since the rest of the heavy timber was cut in 1887 and 1888 and later. The scars show it has withstood the elemets for at least a half century in this weakened condition and gradually strengthened with time. It can hardly be hoped it can withstand this last onslaught. It is a loss to the whole community as it can be seen for miles.

NINE GOOD POINTS FOR ADVERTISING IN NEWSPAPERS

A big retailer who has spent the greater part of his advertising appropriation in good newspaper copy gave ten points which had helped him to become a successful business man through advertising. The nine points:—

1. I advertise regularly. Every issue of the paper takes my story to its readers.

2. I make every ad look like mine. Years ago I adopted a ve style, and have stuck to it. I use plenty of My ads are never hard to read.

3. I put into my newspaper advertising a definite proportion of my gross sales. I fix this at the beginning of the year. My rule is to make it three per cent of the previous year's gross, with more if special conditions justify it.

4. I brighten my ads with frequent illustrations, either humorous or practical. (The Charlevoix County Herald invites all advertisers to use its free cut service. All cuts must be chosen by Tuesday noon of the week of publication of ad.)

5. I am careful never to over-promise. When I make claims I back them up with reasons. Then when I really have an unusual bargain, people believe me when I "whoop 'er up a little."

6. I THINK advertising all the time, I buy goods that will advertise well. Sometimes I buy goods just for their advertising

7. I get good display for my ads by seeing that the copy is in the newspaper office in plenty of time. DO THIS BY HAVING A DEFINITE HOUR TO WRITE THE COPY.

8. Whenever possible, I carry the nationally advertised goods. I feature them. Sometimes they give me a smaller margin than fly-by-night concerns, but I find that I sell faster and make more money in the end, besides pleasing more customers.

9. My salespeople back up my advertising. They often help with suggestions for it, and I see to it that they always read it.

Gay Scottie Pattern For Pillow or Toy

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS BY FAR the most admired toy D in a gay and modern nursery was a red and black striped Scottie with a gleam in his button eve. This pattern was used for an applique for Sonny's pillow which met with enthusiastic approval. By this time it seemed obvious that a Scottie might solve the Christmas gift problem for any number of people. So here he is.

You can make a pattern for him yourself by following the diagram. By ruling the paper in either larger or smaller squares, you may make a dog any size desired. A tiny applique is amusing for a bathrobe or jacket pocket.

The babies, arriving presently in a rollicking state of excitement over the advent of Auntie Jane, showed themselves delightful and adoring.

"Junior," said Jane, "are you glad I'm here?" "Did you bring me anything?"

"Something-wonderful-"What?"

She opened her bag, and produced owne's box of sweets. "May I Towne's box of sweets. "A give him a chocolate, Judy?" "One little one, and just a taste for baby. Jane, where did you get "Frederick Towne."

"Really? My dear, your letters have been tremendously interesting. Haven't they, Bob?"

Her husband nodded. He was sitting by the bedside holding her hand. "Towne's a pretty big man." The nurse came in then, and Jane went with Bob and the babies to the dining-room.

After dinner, Junior went to sleep in Jane's arms, having been regaled on a rapturous diet of "The Three and "The Little Red Hen."

"They're such beauties, Judy," said Jane, as she went back to her sister. "But the "But they don't look like any

"No, they're like Bob, with their white skins and fair hair. I wanted one of them to have our coloring. Do you know how particularly lovely you are getting to be, Janey?"

"Judy, I'm not." "Yes, you are. And none of us thought it. And so Mr. Towne wants to marry you?"

"How do you know?"

"It is in your eyes, dear, and in the cock of your head. You and Baldy always look that way when something thrilling happens to you, You can't fool me.'

"Well, I'm not in love with him. So that's that, Judy."

"But—it's a great opportunity, isn't it, Jane?"

"I suppose it is," slowly, "but I can't quite see it."

"Why not?" "Well, he's too old for one thing."

'Only forty-? Rich men don't grow old. And he could give you everything—everything, Janey." Judy's voice rose a little. "Jane, you don't know what it means to want things for those you love and not be able to have them. Bob did very well until the slump in business. But since the babies came—I have worked until—well, until it seemed as if I couldn't stand it. Bob's such a darling. I wouldn't change any-thing. I'd marry him over again tomorrow. But I do know this, that Frederick Towne could make life lovely for you, and perhaps you won't-get another chance to marry a man like that."

Life for Evans Follette after Jane went away became a sort of game in which he played, as he told himself grimly, a Jekyll and Hyde part. Two men warred constantly within him. There was that scarecrow self which nursed mysterious fears, a gaunt gray-haired self, The Man Who Had Come Back From the War. And there was that other, shadowy, elusive, The Boy Who Once Had Been. And it was the Boy who took on gradually shape and subdark giant who held desperately to his own. Yet the Boy had weapons, faith The little diary became in a sense a sacred book. Within its pages was imprisoned something that beat with frantic wings to be Evans, shrinking from the program which he compelled himself to follow, was faced with things like this. "Gee, I wish the days were longer. I'd like to dance through forty - eight hours at a stretch. Jane is getting to be some little dancer. I taught her the new steps tonight. She's as graceful as a willow wand."

Well, a man with a limp couldn't dance. Or could he?

A Thomas Jefferson autograph went therefore to pay for twenty dancing lessons. Would the great Democrat turn in his grave? what were ink scratches made by a dead hand as against all the meanings of love and life?

Evans bought a phonograph, and new records. He practised at all hours, to the great edification of old Mary, who washed dishes and scrubbed floors in syncopated ecsta-

He took Baldy and Edith to tea at the big hotels, and danced with Edith. He apologized, but kept at it. "I'm out of practice."

Edith was sympathetic and interested. She invited the two boys to her home, where there was a music room with a magical floor. Sometimes the three of them were alone, and sometimes Towne came in and danced too, and Adelaide Laramore and Eloise Harper.

Towne danced extremely well. In spite of his avoirdupois he was light on his feet. He exercised constantly. He felt that if he lost his waist line all would be over He could not, however, always control his appetite. Hence the sugar in his tea. and other indulgences.

Baldy wrote to Jane of their afternoon frivols.

"You should see us! Eloise Harper dancing with Evans, and old Towne and his Adelaide! And Edith We're a pretty pair, if I do say it. We miss you, and always wish you were with us. Sometimes tis seems almost heartless to do things that you can't share. But it's doing a lot for Evans. Queer thing, the poor old chap goes at it as if his life depended upon it.

"We are invited to dine with the Townes on Christmas Eve. Some class, what? By we, I mean myself and the Follettes. Edith and Mrs. Follette see a lot of each other, and Mrs. Follette is tickled pink! You know how she loves that sort of thing—Society with a big S.

"There will be just our crowd and Mrs. Laramore for dinner, and after that a big costume ball.

"I shall go as a page in red. And Evans will be a monk and sing Christmas carols. Edith Towne is crazy about his voice. He sat down room, and she heard him. Jane, his voice is wonderful-it always was, you know, but we haven't heard it lately. Poor old chap-he seems to be picking up. Edith says it makes her want to cry to see him, but she's helping all she can.

"Oh, she's a dear and a darling, Janey. And I don't know what I am going to do about it. I have nothing to offer her. But at least I can worship . . . I shan't look beyond kiddies. And a kiss or two for my own Janey."

Jane, having read the letter, laid it down with a sense of utter for-lornness., Evans and Eloise Harp-Towne and his Adelaide! A Christmas costume ball! Evans singing for Edith Towne!

own letters told her little They were dear letters, giving her news of Sherwood, full of kindness and sympathy, full indeed of a certain spiritual strength—that helped her in the heavy days. But he had sketched very lightly his own activi-ties.—He had perhaps hesitated to let her know that he could be hap-

But Evans was not happy. He did the things he had mapped out for himself, but he could not do them light-heartedly as the Boy had done. For how could he be lighthearted with Jane away? He had moments of loneliness so intense that they almost submerged him. =

Evans frequently played a whimsical game with the old scarecrow. He went often and leaned over the fence that shut in the frozen field. He hunted up new clothes and hung them on the shaking figure-an overcoat and a soft hat. It seemed a charitable thing to clothe him with warmth. In due time someone stole the overcoat, and Evans found the poor thing stripped. It gave him a sense of shock to find two crossed sticks where once had been the semblance of a man. But he tried again. This time with an old bathrobe and a disreputable cap. "It will keep you warm until spring, old chap--

The scarecrow and his sartorial changes became a matter of much discussion among the Negroes, Since Evans' visits were nocturnal, the whole thing had an effect of mys-tery until the bathrobe proclaimed its owner. "Mist' Evans done woh' dat e'vy day," old Mary told Mrs. Follette. "Whuffor he dress up dat ol' sca'crow in de fiel'?"

"What scarecrow?" Old Mary explained, and that night Mrs. Follette said to her son, "The darkies are getting supersti-tions. Did you really do it?"

His somber eyes were lighted for a moment. "It's just a whim of mine, Mumsie. I had a sort of fellow feeling—" "How queer!"

"Not as queer as you might think." He went back to his book. No one but Jane should know the

And so he played the game. Working in his office, dancing with Edith and Baldy, chumming with the boys, dressing up the scarecrow. It seemed sometimes a desperate game—there were hours in which he wrestled with doubts. Gould he ever get back? Could he? There were times when it seemed he could not. There were nights when he did not sleep. Hours that he spent on his

So the December days sped, and it was just a week before Christmas that Evans read the following in his little book. "Dined with the his little book. "Dined with the Prestons. Told father's ham story. Prestons. Told father's ham story.

Great hit. Potomac frozen over.

Skated in the moonlight with Florence Preston.-Great stunt-home to hot chocolate."

Once more the Potomac was frozen over. Florence Preston was married. But he mustn't let the thing pass. The young boy Evans would have tingled with the thought of that frozen river.

It was after dinner, and Evans was in his room. He hunted up Baldy. "Look here, old chap, there's skating on the river. Can't we take Sandy and Arthur with us and have an hour or two of it? Your car will do the trick."

Baldy laid down his book. "I have no philanthropies on a night like this. Moonlight. I'll take you and the boys and then I'll go and get Edith Towne." He was on his feet. "I'll call her up now-"

The small boys were rapturous and riotous over the plan. When they reached the ice, and Evans' lame leg threatened to be a hindrance, the youngsters took him between them, and away they sailed in the miraculous world—three musketeers of good fellowship and fun.

Baldy having brought Edith, put on her skates, and they flew away like birds. She was all in warm white wool—with white furs, and Baldy wore a white sweater and cap. The silver of the night seem to clothe them in shining armor. The silver of the night seemed Baldy said things to her that made her pulses beat. She found herself a little frightened.

"You're such a darling poet. But life isn't in the least what you think

"What do I think it?" "Oh, all mountains and peaks and moonlight nights."

"Well, it can be—"

"Dear child, it can't. I have no illusions.

"You think you haven't." It was late when at last they took off their skates and Edith invited them all to go home with her. "We'll have something hot. I'm as hungry as a dozen bears.

The boys giggled. "So am I," said Sandy Stoddard. But Arthur said nothing. His eyes were occunied to the exclusion of his tongue Edith looked to him like some angel straight from heaven. He had never seen anyone so particularly lovely.

CHAPTER X

So Christmas Eve came, and the costume ball at the Townes'. There were, as Baldy had told Jane, just six of them at dinner. Cousin Anna-bel was still in bed, and it was Adelaide Laramore who made the sixth. Edith had told Mrs. Follette frankly that she wished Adelaide had not

"But she fished for it. She always does. She flatters Uncle Fred and he falls for it."

Baldy brought Evans and Mrs. Follette over in his flivver. They already in the drawing room. Edith had not come down.
"She is always late," Frederick complained, "and she never apolo-

Baldy, silken and slim, in his page's scarlet, stood in the hall and watched Edith descend the stairs. She seemed to emerge from the shadows of the upper balcony like a shaft of light. She was all in silvery green, her close-clinging robe girdled with pearls, her hair banded with mistletoe.

For a moment he stood admiring her, then: "You shouldn't have worn it," he said.

"The mistletoe? Why not?"
"You will tempt all men to kiss

"Men must resist temptation." His tone was light, but her heart nissed a beat. There was somemissed a beat. There was some-thing about this boy so utterly enthing about this boy so utterly engaging. He had set her on a pedestal, and he worshiped her. When she said that she was not worth worshiping, he told her, "You don't

She was unusually silent during linner. With Evans on one side of her and Baldy on the other she had little need to exert herself. Baldy was always adequate to any conver-sational tax, and Evans, in spite of his monk's habit, was not austere. He was, rather, like some attractive young friar drawn back for the moment to the world.

He showed himself a genial teller of tales-and capped each of Frederick's with one of his own. His mother was proud of him. She felt that life was taking on new aspects—this friendship with the Townes her son's increasing strength and social ease—the lace gown which she wore and which had been bought with a Dickens' pamphlet. What more could she ask? She was serene and satisfied.

Adelaide, on the other side of Frederick Towne, was not serene and satisfied. She was looking particularly lovely with a star of diamonds in her hair and sheer draperies of rose and faintest green. "I am anything you wish to call me," she had said to Frederick when she came in—"an 'Evening Star' or 'In the Gloaming' or 'Afterglow.' Perhaps 'A Rose of Yesterday'--" she had put it rather pensively.

He had been gallant but unin-spired. "You are too young to talk of yesterdays," he had said, but his glance had held not the slight-est hint of gallantry. She felt that she had, perhaps, been unwise to remind him of her age.

She was still more disturbed, when, towards the end of dinner, he rose and proposed a toast. "To little Jane Barnes, A Merry Christ-

Then Edith said, "It seems almost heartless to be happy, doesn't it, when things are so hard for her? Adelaide interposed irrelevantly, should hate to spend Christmas in Chicago.

There was no response, so she turned to Frederick. "Couldn't Miss Barnes leave her sister for a few days?"

"No," he told her, "she couldn't."
She persisted, "I am sure you didn't want her to miss the ball." "I did my best to get her here Talked to her at long distance, but she couldn't see it."

"You are so good-hearted, Ricky."
Frederick could be cruel at moments, and her persistence was irri-tating. "Oh, look here, Adelaide, it t entirely on her account. I want her here myself (TO BE CONTINUED)

Distance Computations in Astronomy Explained

measurements of the distances of the stars disturbs us, writes Isabel M. Lewis in Nature Magazine. One of the most difficult facts for the human mind to grasp is the im-mensity of space and the difficulty that we encounter when we attempt to measure it in ordinary understandable terrestrial units. It is an easier matter when we deal with our own little family of planets and their satellites.

The distance from the earth to the sun, only 93,000,000 miles, furnishes an excellent yardstick. The outermost planet, Pluto, is only about 391/2 of these units distant from the sun and light, with its velocity of 186,000 miles a second, comes from the sun to the earth in about 8½ minutes. It reaches the orbit of Pluto about 5½ hours after it leaves the sun. But 41/3 years pass before that beam of light reaches the nearest star, and the distance of that star from the earth is as great as the distance, in general, that other stars are from their nearest neighbors. That is why so few stars have close heavenly encounters even though they are all in motion.

Two units are used in measuring

Sometimes the uncertainty in the | star distances. One is the light year -the distance that light travels in a year at the rate of about 186,000 miles a second, which is about 63 290 times the distance from the sun to the earth. The other unit is the parsec, which is 3.26 light years. The word is a combination of the first syllables of "parallax" and "second," and expresses the thought that it is the distance of a star with a parallax of one second of arc. No star is close enough to the earth to have a parallax that great. ma Centauri, a faint star a fraction of a light year closer than the well known star of first magnitude, Alpha Centauri, has a parallax of only 76 hundredths of a second of arc, which means that if at the distance of this star, we could view our solar system and see our planet earth-which, course, we could not possibly do even with the aid of any telescope in existence—then the distance between sun and earth would be this fraction of one second of are in angular measure.

-DOLLAR MAKERS-Clean Store Will Attract More Business

By GEORGE T. EAGER

WHEN the youngest son of a retail grocer went to work as a filling station attendant for a large oil company the father little thought that the event would increase the sales and profits of his grocery store. The boy had brought home a company sales manual to study in his spare time and the father in glancing through it found a money-making idea for his own business. Lavish Embroidery Bespeaks Fashion Trend to Elegance

. By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THIS is a season of elegancies and niceties such as bespeak gracious-lady fashions. One of the surest signs that the luxury note is being sounded is the lavish use designers are making of rich embroidery and other fastidious surface decorations, such as intricate applique design, exquisite beadwork and resplendent sequin embellishment, also (very important is the news) latest costume collections declare the revival of handsome old-fashnow new-fashioned, passementerie.

Been treasuring for years a bit of precious passementerie that adorned grandmother's wedding gown, or perhaps her best Sunday-go-to-meet-ing dress? Now's the big moment fo bring it out. If it is just a single ornament, applique it near your heart on your smartest blouse or frock and it will serve as effectively as a jewelry gadget. If it's two motifs of a kind you've hoarded, one style prestige to your best gown.

Embroidery is wielding its magic in every direction, enhancing with gaily decorated sleeves afternoon gowns of silk crepe, sheer wool or velvet, electrifying the formal evening gown with resplendent glittering note, adding intrigue to sports sweaters with yarn-worked posies, stressing the sumptuous trend in formal evening sweaters (now so stylish) with all sorts of dazzling gadgetry.

Speaking from the accessory standpoint, ornate with embroidery will your gloves and your handbag be this year, your mittens and your scarf, your wide corset-like girdle and even your chapeau will not be immune from the epidemic of em-

★ Picturing Thomas Edison

★ Great Picture to See

★ O'Brien Rates Contract By Virginia Vale

HERE are two new books that should greatly interest you, one if you like the movies. the other if you are interested in radio serials in general and two in particular, "Pepper Young's Family" and "When a Girl Marries.' The book for movie fans is by an ex-motion picture actress, Patsy Ruth Miller; its title is "That Flan-agan Girl." Patsy Ruth made a name for herself on the screen in the days of silent movies, although she's very young to be a veteran of that era. Some of you old-timers may remember her as the girl in the Lon Chaney version of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame.

She gave up the movies for the stage, after a while—she's one of these girls who want to take a shot at everything. Simultaneously, and very successfully, she tried her hand at writing short stories. Then she went back to Hollywood and wrote scripts for the movies, also successfully.

When the "Pretty Kitty Kelly" cast assembled recently they found a large sign on the studio wall. "This is NOT the Floyd Bennett Air Port!" it sternly announced. Diamonds have entered a new era of popularity, both as jewelry and as personal possessions of marketable value. In several style shows recently staged many of the manikins wore this sparkling type of jew-elry in preference to the spectacular gold effects.

New ear-rings from a noted Paris house are called "opposites," in that one earring is a diamond flower set with sapphires, the other a sapphire surrounded by diamonds. Which do you wear in which ear? Well, that makes no difference, but to have a touch of sapphire blue repeated in your dress somewhere scores high in allure.

Diamonds can be worn for day or evening. One fine piece such as a or a clip can be used on the coat lapel, at the neckline of a dress, at the center of the velvet neckband or even in the coiffure.

Families Scan Exit of Dollars

Where does a family's money go for living expenses and what are the Gerences in such expenditures or the farm and in the city?

Answers to these questions have een ferreted out from family ac count books kept by typical rural and urban families in Michigan in cooperation with the home management department of Michigan State College in extension service to the state

On the farm the average family says Julia Pond, home managemen specialist, spent $814.39 for living but the average in town was $1,690.

Farms contribute large amounts to a family's living. For food the farm family spent cash totaling $223.82 while the town dwellers were spending $466.10. Farm families do eat well, however, for the farms contribute $207.43 to the family larders. In fact the average farm contributed $413.16 to the family living, when housing and fuel are figured.

Automobiles take seamd place in a year's demands on pocketbooks Farm families averaged $127.08 spent on cars, but town families more than doubled this with an average of $271.21. Townspeople spent two dollars for each one spent by farm families as gifts or contributions. Rural expenses for entertainment and education were but half, for home-made fun proved less expensive and more commonly employed in the country.

Clothing bills were $125.09 in the country but were $308.47 in town. Medical costs in the city averaged $61.57, but were $44.80 for farmers Farm families averaged four persons, city families 4.2 persons. Counties represented are Menominee, Delta Genesee, Kent, Kalamazoo, Wavne, Sanilac, Lanawee, Saginaw, Ogemaw and Calhoun.

MOISTURE RUINS PAINT IN KITCHEN

Another job for electricity is be ing applied by housewives in Michigan as they learn the advantages of reducing condensation of moisture on painted walls, woodwork and wall

Or if electricity is not available, information provided by the home economics extension service of Michigan State College shows other methods which reduce troublesome dampness in kitchens, laundry rooms or bathrooms.

Gas, kerosene and gasoline used for cooking or emergency heating give off combustion products that add to the amount of moisture in rooms in the house. All stationary heaters or cooking stoves should be connected to chimneys, and hoods over cooking stoves using oil or gas should be conected to vents if this is possible.

With or without exhaust fans to blow out moisture laden air, Michigan housewives are learning it pays to shut kitchens or laundries off from the rest of the house while meals or clothes are being boiled. Opening windows and doors to blow the moisture away helps cut down effect on floors, walls, woodwork or wallpaper.

In winter when open windows are unpopular, some of the excess moisture_condensing_on_windows-can-be checked by opening the top and bottime of the sash slightly, to permit circulation of air across the glass. This keeps windows clear, as well as reducing wood rot and discoloration from the drip off window panes.

Non-partisan State News Letter By GENE ALLEMAN Michigal Press Assaciation

Lansing - Increase of Michigan iquor sales for 1939, as compared with 1938, has far exceeded the rise in farm and industrial purchasing nower.

According to latest statistics, Michigan's buying income has soared $306,000,000 since Jan. 1, 1939, due chiefly to the revived automobile industry, and the resultant demand for parts and accessories much of which are made in this state. In fact, Michigan leads the U. S. A. in point of new buying power. New York is next with $245,900.000, while Ohio is third with $236,000,000.

Putting this into percentages Michigan workers have 11.4 per cent more payroll dollars to spend they had a year ago.

Yet they have been spending (January through September) 18.6 per cent more money for alcoholic bev-erages. Translate all this into dollars (1938 liquor sales totaled over sum of close to seven millions

In the opinion of many observers, this number is excessively high. Too many liquor dealers invite winking at the law because of intense competition and resultant lessened net profit per outlet. On the other hand, to re duce the number below reasonable needs would only invite the return of the "blind pig" of prohibition days.

Second, when should such place be required to close? The present clo sing hour is 2 a. m. but there been some agitation for a midnight limit. This matter is complicated in some places by night work shifts in mass production industry. There is also the "blind pig" alternative.

Third, how can sale of liquor to minors be prevented? The state law forbids sale or serving of drinks to minors 18 years old and under. How is the bartender to know the youth's age? Should the state issue license cards to drinkers? (The tax implication of this one evoked a cloakroom tempest at the 1939 legislative session.)

Politics Again

Fourth, how can politics (or favor-37 millions) and you have a pretty itism) be eliminated from the state's handling of liquor goods?
