Postoffice Will Not Move Today

BOXES AND OTHER EQUIPMENT NOT YET RECEIVED

Since The Herald's announcement several weeks ago of the removal of the East Jordan Postoffice to the Peoples State Savings Bank Building on Dec. 1st, the question of removal on the date specified remained an open question.

At this writing, Thursday, Nov. 30, Postmaster Crowell has failed to receive notice of the shipment of the necessary new Postoffice Boxes and some other equipment. Upon its arrival here Mr. Crowell is instructed to notify the P. O. Department who will send men here for the installation.

As it now stands, Postmaster Crowell figures that it will take at least a week after the arrival of the necessary equipment before the Postoffice can be moved.

Until that time — "Business as usual" at the old stand.

Concerning Pneumonia

A review of the symptoms, causes and treatment of pneumonia is suggested by the high incidence to the disease to be expected during the winter season.

Pneumonia is caused by the pneumococci and streptococci organisms which are transmitted from person to person through coughing, sneezing or by means of droplets propelled by the carrier in the course of talking. These organisms invade and inflame the lung tissue.

While some individuals seem more susceptible than others, it seems probable that lowered general resistance paves the way for an attack. Resistance can be lowered materially by reason of influenza, measles, whooping cough, grippe, colds, under-nutrition, chronic wasting disease, over-work or over-fatigue, exposure and chilling, alcoholism, accidents and recent operations.

Prevention may be practiced to a degree, even though no vaccine is yet available. Good food, adequate sleep, moderate exercise and warm clothing are requisite. Prompt treatment and bed rest should be employed to cure colds and upper respiratory infections quickly and completely. Pneumonia patients should be avoided as far as possible. The hands should be washed thoroughly and often, especially after visiting a sick room, and should be kept from the face. Large gatherings of persons contribute to the spread of influenza and other seasonal infections and should be avoided.

When the cold sufferer exhibits a sharp rise in fever, a shaking chill, pain in the lungs, cough, breathing difficulty or blood-tinged sputum, it is high time to call a physician as pneumonia has made its appearance. Delay and home doctoring will result, when not fatally, in complications such as empyema, necessitating a chest operation, and in long hospitalization and convalescence.

When the malady has been diagnosed as pneumonia, the sputum is immediately typed and the physician administers the suitable serum. State laboratories supply serum for nearly all cases of pneumonia without charge. Many communities afford the services of a public health nurse when the family cannot engage a private nurse.

Special Winter Gas Announced by Standard Oil

Through advertising in Detroit and lower Michigan papers, Standard Oil Company of Indiana began today telling car-owners about a special winter gasoline designed to give cars a big "lift."

Another boost in anti-knock characteristics is featured in the copy along with promise of quick starts, fast warm-up, plenty of power and low cost per mile.

The gasoline advertised is Standard Red Crown, the company's regular, priced brand, as distinct from the premium brand Solite and low-priced Stanolind.

Announcement of the special gasoline was timed to coincide with arrival of colder weather in this territory. The gasoline is reported to be suited for extreme winter weather driving conditions.

Have You Cashed Your Fair Check Yet?

If you were one of the recipients of the approximately 24000 checks issued during the fair season in payment of premiums, Commissioner Elmer A. Beamer of the Department of Agriculture recommends that if you have not converted your check into cash that you do so at once. The checks become void after December 29th, under arrangements which the state shares 50 per cent of the premium funds with the local fair associations.

"Records interestingly disclose," said Beamer, "that the checks made to the members of 4-H and FFA clubs are delayed in clearing through banks more often than any other of these checks. Annually, it would seem, these boys and girls plan upon their premium winnings for Christmas money, and delay cashing their checks until during the holiday season, often crowding the deadline. The department would recommend that they do their Christmas shopping now, cashing their checks to avoid possibility of their loss or becoming void."

The department head said that report of the premiums paid, the condition of the state fund and matters pertaining to fair finances would be submitted at the annual meeting in January of the state association of fair secretaries.

Schedules of hours and age groups have yet to be arranged but will appear on the bulletin board at the Hall. The Hall is to be supervised by local WPA Recreational Leaders.

Homemakers' Corner

TAFFIED APPLES TICKLE APPETTITES

Taffy apples delight children; carry approval as a wholesome sweet, prove easy to make, and help consume Michigan's large 1939 harvest.

So home economists at Michigan State College have dug out this simple recipe.

"One needs one cup of sugar, two-thirds of a cup of water, one-third cup of white corn syrup, six medium sized red apples, 12 cinnamon drops and six wooden meat skewers. Being on good terms with the butcher will pave the way for getting the skewers."

Next the sugar, syrup and water is mixed and cooked, — stirring until the sugar is dissolved. In goes the cinnamon candy for flavoring and color and the cooking continues until samples dropped in cold water will form a hard piece that cracks easily.

Now place the pan containing the taffy mixture in a pan of boiling water to keep the syrup from thickening. Dip each apple quickly and whirl it on the skewer until the apple is covered smoothly. A wire cake rack makes a good resting place while the apples are cooling, the skewers can be stuck into the rack so that the apples do not touch anything until they lose their stickiness.

Experience shows there likely won't be any leftover apples. That's proper, good cooks report, for taffied apples should be eaten the day they are made.

Hush, little High Chair, don't you cry, you'll be an antique by and by.

Women live longer than men — they're bound to have the last word.

HARRY F. KELLY Secretary of State of Michigan

The meeting is strictly non-political and this opportunity has been arranged for the purpose of permitting the people of Charlevoix County to meet and become acquainted with the Secretary of State.

It is expected that the entire membership of all three sponsoring organizations will be present and that the general public will attend in such numbers as to tax the seating capacity of the school.

Mr. Kelly is a forceful speaker and is very well qualified to speak on the subject of "Americanism" inasmuch as he is a former member of the American expeditionary forces who made quite a name for himself in France.

He fought in the battles of Belleau Wood and Chateau Thierry, and was wounded and suffered the loss of a leg in the battle of Chateau Thierry, and was hospitalized in France for four months. He received the Distinguished Service Medal and the Croix de Guerre. He was known among his fellow officers as "Two fisted Kelly."

Mr. Kelly is an able statesman and one of the outstanding attorneys of the state. He has expressed a desire to become acquainted with the people in Charlevoix County. There will be no admission charge to this meeting. An interesting program has been arranged.

Mr. Kelly's presence was made available for this meeting due to the fact that he will be in the northern part of the state this week making official visits to his branch offices.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

DR. GODFREY LOWELL CABOT, donor of the Columbia university prizes in journalism, awarded to two South American editors, gets top rating in this department's war-time listing of men of good will, as against the disturbers and trouble-makers. Dr. Cabot, 78 years old, has all his life been a steady ground-gainer, in the cause of science and the humanities, a scientist and humanitarian in his own widely varied endeavors, not only banking progress but bringing it through by his own inventiveness and enterprise.

The experimental house, being pictured in the newspapers, as scientists seek to trap sunlight and store it in the cellar for winter use, is traceable to Dr. Cabot. In 1937, he gave Harvard university $615,773 to carry forward some of his ideas about storing solar energy. A year later, he gave a similar amount to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for the same purpose. And now Prof. Hoyt C. Hottel of M. I. T. has his sunshine bungalow built, with a heat trap on the roof, sluicing sunshine down into the cellar. Perhaps with a winter supply of sunshine, put up like jelly or preserves, nobody would want to start a war.

He has been a generous patron of aviation, learning to fly a seaplane in his late years, inventing a system by which a plane can pick up fuel in flight, and is now governor and former president of the National Aeronautic association. He has endowed various branches of research, including botanical studies.

A native of Boston, he attended M. I. T. two years, was graduated from Harvard in 1882, and laid the basis of his fortune manufacturing lampblack in Worthington, Pa., in 1887, branching out in gases and carbides.

DONALD WILLIS DOUGLAS, president of Douglas Aircraft, Inc., of Santa Monica, Calif., says war orders for American planes, and the spurt in building, won't end with a bursting "boom-bubble."

Our War Boom No Bubble, Says D. W. Douglas. He and other plane builders tackle $140,000,000 worth of orders and promise they can deliver 8,000 planes a year.

"Who knows what will come next after the European nations settle their own quarrels?" says Mr. Douglas.

Mr. Douglas is in the midst of a strictly orthodox aviation career, without any stunting or barnstorming. A Brooklyn boy, he was grooved quietly through the M. I. T. and into the Glenn Martin plant, as chief engineer. He will get an important niche in aviation history as the designer of the first plane to lift its own weight. That proved him an expert on the pay-load, an advantage which he has pressed hard.

He was in the U. S. signal corps at the start of the World war. In 1920, he founded the Plane Manufacturing company which later became Douglas Aircraft.

GYPSY SMITH, a full-blooded Roman Gypsy, born under a hornbeam tree in England 78 years ago, is the world's most famous evangelist, now preaching in New York.

Gypsy Smith, Once Militant, For Persuasion. He turns from militancy to persuasion. He says he has given up "scolding and frightening" people. On this, his thirty-fifth visit to New York, he preaches "love and hope."

For 60 years he has carried a clothes-pin as a symbol of his personal salvation. He and his father made clothes-pins. An old lady bought some and gave him a Bible. He was 18 years old then, had never slept under a roof, and was unable to read, but he taught himself with the Bible. He is a small, spruce, compact man, with broad shoulders and the general look of a successful business man. He thinks the great evangelists, Dwight L. Moody and Charles G. Finney, helped to end other depressions and that the way out of this one is the path of a new faith for the multitude.

His name was Petulengro, and he couldn't spell it when he first learned to read. He believes great wars and disasters will end when we have become "masters of small things," but that faith and religion must be of ever widening scope. It must be persuasive rather than militant evangelism, he insists. (Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Battle to Raise National Debt Makes New Taxes Impossible; Touchy Topic in Election Year

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union.

HARRISON

WHITE HOUSE: Budget

Next spring the national debt will reach its $45,000,000,000 legal limit. To circumvent the issue or force an increase through a hostile congress during an election year will provide such a test of political etiquette that the New Deal will have little stomach for a tax-raising campaign. If anything, it will be smart politics to slash expenditures.

There were signs in late November that such attempts might be made. One by one, administration spokesmen purred for the press:

Said Mississippi's Pat Harrison, chairman of the senate finance committee: "Receipts are showing up fine. The way they are coming in gladdens our hearts. If we can cut down expenses somewhat, we may get along without a tax bill."

Said Utah's Sen. William King, fresh from a White House conference: "The President evinced great interest in a policy that would prevent large deficits."

Next came White House Secretary Steve Early, who has been reborn lately as a "spokesman." While Budget Director Harold D. Smith nodded his assent, Steve Early pointed out that the President is considering sharp economies next year. Other leaders hoped to trim the deficit to between $2,000,000,000 and $2,500,000,000. (Last fiscal year's deficit: $3,500,000,000.)

Aside from all-important political considerations, prevailing whether the President sought a third term or tried to name his successor, there were some honestly promising factors in the picture. WPA rolls stood at 1,930,463 against 3,360,000 a year ago; business was better; tax income, if the present rate of increase is maintained, would be $1,000,000,000 higher next year.

But there was a less pleasant side to the picture. National defense, which last year cost $1,500,000,000, may easily reach $3,000,000,000 this year and would thus wipe out the boost in tax receipts. Relief costs are projected at $1,000,000,000 against $1,400,000,000 this year, a comparatively small cut. Summed up, the budget will probably hit a rough $9,000,000,000, which still fails to reverse the spending trend.

EUROPE: Mad War

Spies, parachutes and trade conversations made bigger news than actual warfare as Europe ended the third month of its strange war. And if any deduction could be drawn from this mad sequence of illogical activity on a hundred fronts, it was that Europe is already pretty sick of war, more and more convinced that nobody wins.

The new "weapon" Adolf Hitler threatened during his speech at Danzig took form in a new sea mine parachuted from airplanes. Presumably scores of these were dropped in the English channel, the parachutes dissolving. In one week they took a toll of 25 allied and neutral vessels, Britain retaliating by strengthening its blockade against the Reich. This was not too smart, for London soon had the wrath of Netherlands, Belgium and Italy on her shoulders.

NAMES ... in the news

Senator Carter Glass of Virginia told reporters: "I know of no man better qualified for the presidency than John N. Garner or Harry Byrd (his colleague from Virginia)."

Wilhelm Hohenzollern, ex-Kaiser of Germany, narrowly missed injury when a sudden windstorm uprooted a tree one minute after he had passed the spot.

Tom Pendergast, ex-Kansas City boss now in Leavenworth for evading income taxes, was denied parole.

Mohandas Gandhi, Indian leader, demanded freedom for his followers before India will aid Britain in the war.

Louis Taber was re-elected master of the National Grange as its convention closed at Peoria. Chief resolution: To force suspension of the U. S. reciprocal trade program.

The allies were more successful in their branches of warfare. No one knew how many French-British planes had been lost, but 20 Nazi airships were allegedly shot down in two days' warfare over the Western front. At sea the French destroyer Sirocco sank two German submarines within three days.

While Berlin was genuinely worried by disorders in the Czech province where eight students had been purged, the Nazis were making the most of another disorder. Heinrich Himmler, chief of the feared Gestapo, announced simultaneously that a German named Georg Elser and two British intelligence officers, Mr. Best and Captain Stevens, had been arrested in connection with the Munich beer hall explosion which almost cost Hitler's life. Elser is charged with the crime, while the Britishers were said to have financed it. Direct leadership, say the Nazis, came from exiled Otto Strasser, pioneer Hitlerite who soon became his bitter foe. Britain kept its tongue in cheek throughout the affair, for Germany was obviously making the most of this detective thriller. Biggest mystery: Why should the British instigate a plot that would martyrize Hitler?

German activity also had repercussions in the Balkans. When Rumania's cabinet rejected Nazi demands for a virtual monopoly on Rumanian oil and raw materials, Premier Constantin Argetoianu resigned. His successor, whose appointment was hailed as an allied victory, is George Tatarescu, former premier and a strong Francophile.

AGRICULTURE: Farm Vote

In at least one man's opinion, 1940's presidential campaign will be won or lost in the farm vote. Addressing the National Grange convention in Peoria, Oregon's Republican Sen. Charles L. McNary (himself a potential candidate) outlined a three-point program on which he said the G. O. P. could win:

(1) Equalize AAA benefit payments. One weakness in the present plan, he maintained, is its discrimination favoring a few commodities (wheat, cotton, corn, tobacco, and rice). Four other products ranking ahead of these in production are dairy, live stock, poultry and eggs and hogs.

(2) Repeat the reciprocal trade pact. Said Senator McNary: "While some industries may have profited by these agreements, it has been at the expense of products of the soil."

(3) Liberalize the public land policy to give the 14 land states a greater share of revenues from sale of forests and grazing on the public domain.

SENATOR McNARY. He had points.

European War Doing More Damage To American Industry Than Good

Some Lines of Business Are Profiting, While Others Are Declining; Efforts to Boost Cotton Exports Fail; American Merchant Marine Affected.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—Although our nation is not mixed up in the European mess, and its people will not permit any administration to drag us in, it strikes me that the war on the other side of the Atlantic already has done a lot of things which ought to be reviewed. There has been much laughter about the "phony" war and the "sitdown strike" of the enemy armies, because thus far there has been no real fighting. I do not propose to discuss that phase of the situation. There are some things which have happened and are happening here at home, however, that surely are worthy of consideration.

When steel began to flash abroad, there were thousands, if not millions, of Americans who believed a conflict overseas would pull us out of the depression. Visions of exports amounting to millions of tons were seen by many of the unthinking and misinformed persons. Higher prices—it is hardly necessary to recall how excited some folks got about the prospects of higher prices and there was talk about shortages and all of that sort of thing. There was the usual effort of a certain type of business interests to grab off extraordinary profits. Most of the price hysteria has collapsed and quite a few persons lost their shirts in the speculation to which they turned with the excitement of war talk.

It is true that there are some industries which are profiting from the war. Some, but not very many. Statistics are tiresome, but close examination of them does reveal, in this instance, how thoroughly spotty the anticipated war boom actually is. In my own appraisal of the situation, based on all of the facts I can obtain along with opinions of experts, I have come to the conclusion that the war thus far has done our American business—agriculture, commerce and industry—more damage than it has done good. That is to say, if it were possible to balance the increase due to the war against the further decline in other lines, the total business of the United States would show an actual loss.

Airplane Manufacturers And Rail Lines Benefited

It can be pointed out, for example, that airplane manufacturers are doing a thriving business. They are selling airplanes for war purposes and they are selling them here, as well. Likewise, the official reports show how the industries producing airplane parts and equipment and certain other types of war material are rushing their products through to a finished state.

The rail lines have benefited. Through a stretch of six consecutive weeks, car loadings—an accurate business barometer—have exceeded 800,000 cars for each seven day period, and then dropped off. In this case, car loadings have shown a vast bulk movement but one must examine the commodities hauled to calculate what conditions are. It is to be noted that there were exceedingly heavy shipments of stuff usable in war included in the 800,000 total. A good deal of this had been ordered previously. It could not be sent out until the so-called arms embargo was removed. Experts appear to believe that a large portion of the shipments may not be repeated. At least, not in such quantities. All of which is to say that shipments of normally domestic products, consumer goods, must still be very much below par.

Respecting the market for so-called consumer goods, mention may be made of apples and what a drug they are on the market these days. This may not be the same in all parts of the United States, but it certainly is true in the great apple growing sections of Virginia. One large grower told me that he had not sold a single apple for the British market where he usually is able to ship several hundred carloads in the course of a season. Imports of all fresh fruits have been banned in England.

The industrial conference board, a private organization which is quite accurate in its reports on business conditions and trends, said lately that our exports to Canada are due to fall with a dull thud. In 1938, Canada acquired 68 per cent of all of the things she imported right across the border in the United States. It is to be remembered, too, that about 40 per cent of all exports from the United States in normal years go to Canada.

What Has War Done to American Merchant Marine?

But the situation is changing rapidly. Canada is going industrial as rapidly as she can under the stress and strain of war. Being a part of the British empire, does any one think that the British war office is going to seek supplies in the United States that can be bought in Canada? Obviously not. To show how Canada has developed her capacity to take care of empire requirements, I believe it is necessary only to report that the Canadian industrial capacity was 67 per cent greater in 1937 than 20 years earlier, or in the midst of the World war. The World war started the trend in Canada; the present European war has given it new impetus and the indications are that exports to Canada hereafter will continue to get smaller.

And what has the war done to the American merchant marine?

Our government has spent a good many hundred millions in building ships and in helping private shipping companies to build ships. It has been a policy of subsidy. But about the same time our ships begin to attract attention on the high seas and in international trade, along comes new war conditions and our flag is forced to stay out of the trade routes that produce the greatest revenue because traffic is heaviest. Of course, it is a policy of the administration that has brought this about. President Roosevelt has felt that adoption of a system of selling goods to belligerents upon the docks of this country—come and get it, pay cash and carry it away in your own ships—is wise. Congress agreed with him.

The same legislation provided that no ships flying the American flag may enter what is called combat zones. So, trade in our ships is confined to those nations not engaged in warfare. It happens, however, that the three greatest buyers who use ships (since Canadian exports are largely by rail) are the three nations now fighting in Europe.

Transfer of Ship Registry Raises Stink in Washington

The latest development with respect to the shipping industry is the effort of one of the great shipping companies to transfer the registry of its ships to Panama—to fly the Panama flag. That action, of course, is like changing your own American citizenship and becoming the subject of another nation. It can be done under the law, but it has raised quite a stink in Washington, because this course of action simply circumvents the so-called cash-and-carry law. Under the Panama flag, those ships could sail into war zone ports which they cannot do as long as they fly the Stars and Stripes from their masthead. It does not mean a great deal, I believe, except it shows the influence of the European war. (Incidentally, the fuss about those ships recalls how difficult it is to make a law that will not have loopholes in it or means of getting around it.)

The war in the Far East has upset practically all trade relations between the United States and Japan and China. There is a quantity of exports yet moving in that direction, but I am told by persons who know the facts that when that war is over, Japan will be without any money and her purchases in the United States will be next to nothing for years to come.

Citation of example and trend and opinion could go on quite at length in this situation. Taken all together it seems to be one of the really important things, next to our own unemployment rolls, because it looks from this date as though the United States is face to face with the necessity of a gigantic readjustment. It seems to me the problem cannot be dodged. Changes must come within our own national economy. We will have to learn just what to produce and how much, because I fear that a large chunk of our export market is gone forever.

Our Cotton Exports Are Continuing to Decline

We have witnessed the spectacle of our secretary of agriculture seeking to get our cotton or some other farm product into foreign markets by use of various forms of cash payments to the producers. While he has been passing out checks, our exports have declined and are continuing to decline, and there is nothing that can be done about it. Other folks have learned to grow cotton and they are not going to stop. We cannot control them by a law saying a farmer must plant only so much, or that there must be six million little pigs killed off.

I was asked recently for my own opinion on the outlook for business. My reply was that I disliked making gloomy predictions. Pollyanna stuff is much more pleasant. On the other hand, President Hoover tried hard to get prosperity to come around the corner, and he looked rather ridiculous when she stayed just around the corner through more than nine years up to the present time. Secretary Hopkins, of the department of commerce, is trying now to induce the coy young woman to come around the same corner. His department has been issuing statements about bulges in production and in sales and in shipments. But I could not read the figures the same way the secretary read them.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

A shiny coat collar can be cleaned by sponging with a cloth moistened with ammonia or vinegar.

Lime water will sweeten jars and jugs which soap and water fail to cleanse. It is admirable for cleaning milk and nursing bottles.

A teaspoonful of lemon juice added to the water in which eggs are poached will make them firmer.

When Washing Gloves.—If a few drops of olive oil are added to the water when washing chamois leather gloves, they will not become hard or stiff.

Tarnished table silver may be revived if placed in a quart of boiling water to which a good pinch of washing soda has been added. After boiling for a few minutes remove and dry thoroughly with a soft cloth.

Soiled Linoleum.—Grease marks and dirt can be removed from linoleum by washing with warm water to which a little paraffin has been added. Dry with a cloth and afterwards polish with a good floor polish.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood. You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pain, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination. Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. Between April 1 and September 1 he can purchase one shirt, two collars and a suit of underwear. Purchase of a suit would cost 60 units.

SPAGHETTI WITH CHIPPED BEEF

Old Fashioned Hospitality

With Thanksgiving back of us and winter ahead perhaps this is an excellent time to ask ourselves some searching questions—to be answered just by ourselves.

Do we as homemakers really enjoy neighbors and friends? As they pass our house on our street do they think of us with a friendly warmth? Or have we, perhaps unknowingly, allowed ourselves to be so busy, so concerned about the tasks of the day that we have forgotten that after all the biggest joy in living comes because it is the privilege of each one to "live in my house by the side of the road and be a friend to man."

Let's entertain then, but let's entertain simply, informally, inexpensively. And thinking that you might like to do just this, I have collected for you this week a number of my favorite recipes for just such easy entertaining. Please note the little hints that are attached to each of the recipes.

Spaghetti With Chipped Beef. (Serves 4)

This recipe is particularly nice for a one-dish meal when guests arrive unexpectedly.

1 large (24-ounce) can cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce
1 5-ounce jar chipped beef
1 cup fat

Heat spaghetti. Frizzle the chipped beef in the fat until crisp and brown. Then place the chipped beef in a border around the platter and pour the spaghetti in the center. Garnish with parsley or watercress.

Oven Fried Chicken. (Serves 4)

Oven fried chicken is one of the dishes that is particularly simple to prepare. After the preliminary browning, all that remains to be done is simply to put the chicken in the oven where it takes care of itself and cooks beautifully until you are ready to serve it.

1-2 or 3 pound chicken, cut for frying
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
2 eggs
1/4 cup water
1 cup fine cracker crumbs
Fat for frying
1 onion, chopped fine
1 cup cream

Dip pieces of chicken in flour to which salt and pepper have been added; then dip in beaten egg to which water has been added and finally roll in cracker crumbs. Brown in hot fat (1 inch in depth). Place in baking pan, sprinkle with onion, and top with cream. Cover and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) until tender, approximately 1 1/2 hours.

Baked Stuffed Pork Chops. (Serves 6)

These baked stuffed pork chops are a favorite with any man. Try them.

Purchase thick pork chops and cut a slit in them from the fat side of the chop through to the bone. Spread inside surface of chop with prepared mustard and fill with any desired bread dressing. Brown lightly in hot fat in a frying pan. Remove to greased baking pan. Bake slowly in a moderate oven, (350 degrees) for approximately 2 hours, or until meat is tender.

Hasty Oven Baked Beans. (Serves 6)

And as for baked beans—try this 30-minute method and if you don't confess, I defy the guests to guess that they are not home baked beans.

1 large can baked beans
1/4 pound bacon
1/4 cup light brown sugar
2 tablespoons tomato catsup

Pour 1/2 can of baked beans into greased baking casserole. Dice 2 or 3 slices bacon and sprinkle over the beans. Add catsup, and then cover with remainder of baked beans. Sprinkle with brown sugar, and top with bacon strips. Bake in hot oven, (400 degrees) for 30 minutes. Serve at once.

Escalloped Potatoes and Ham.

Guests or no guests this escalloped potatoes and ham dish is deliciously simple and simply delicious.

Slice potatoes very thin and place layer by layer in a buttered baking casserole. Dot each layer with butter and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Add milk, sufficient in quantity to just cover the potatoes. Top with a one-inch slice of ham. Bake in a slow oven, (325 degrees) until both the ham and the potatoes are baked to a stage of perfect doneness, approximately 1 hour and 15 minutes.

My Best Chocolate Cake.

All the world loves a chocolate cake and I suppose there are almost as many recipes for chocolate cake as there are women who make them. This recipe, however, remains my favorite.

2 ounces bitter chocolate
2/3 cup butter
1 1/2 cups sugar
3 eggs
2 1/2 cups cake flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Melt chocolate carefully over warm water. Cream butter thoroughly and add sugar slowly. Separate eggs, beat egg yolks, and add to butter and sugar mixture. Add the melted chocolate.

Mix and sift together the flour, salt, and baking powder and add alternately with the milk and vanilla extract. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into the cake mixture.

Place in 2 well-greased, 8-inch layer cake pans. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for approximately 30 to 35 minutes.

Chocolate Cream Pie.

And speaking of chocolate—this chocolate cream pie has that just right combination of ingredients that makes it neither too thick nor too thin; too sweet nor not sweet enough. Furthermore, it is just as great a favorite with men as with women; with boys as with girls.

2 1-ounce squares unsweetened chocolate
2 cups milk
3/4 cup granulated sugar
1/4 cup cornstarch
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 egg yolks
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 baked pastry shell

Shave the chocolate and place it together with 1 1/2 cups milk in top of double boiler; heat until chocolate is melted. Mix the sugar, cornstarch, and salt with the remaining 1/2 cup milk, and to it add the melted chocolate mixture. Return to double boiler and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Then beat the egg yolks slightly and slowly pour the chocolate mixture over them. Return to double boiler and cook 2 minutes longer. Add vanilla extract and pour in baked pastry shell. Cool, and top with whipped cream to serve.

WINTER TRAFFIC TOLL SPURS DRIVE TO REDUCE SLIPPERY PAVEMENT ACCIDENTS

Above: Accidents like this, in fearful number each winter, have focused attention on methods of prevention.

Top right: The National Safety Council secured stopping distances at various speeds on a frozen lake last winter.

Lower right: Skidproofing icy pavements with calcium chloride treated sand or cinders cut stopping distance in half, Iowa researchers found.

REMEMBER the days when R automobiling was almost strictly a summer sport? The days when muddy roads in spring and fall, and snow-jammed roads in winter, kept motor cars in their garages from November through to May? The motorist who operated his car the year-round then was really a bear for punishment.

Paved roads, the tremendous increase in car ownership, social and business growth, have changed all this. Today the one who "puts his car up for the winter" is the rare exception. Winter use of highways has brought many advantages but along with the benefits has come an alarming increase in traffic fatalities. So serious has come the winter accident record because that safety engineers and highway departments throughout the country are uniting as never before in a determined drive to reduce the heavy casualty toll.

The most treacherous road condition the winter driver has to face is icy pavements. Snow-bound roads may stop or slow up travel, but icy roads spell danger with every revolution of the auto's wheels. Tests and research studies to determine ways and means of reducing the hazards of icy pavements have been conducted during the past winter by the National Safety Council, the Iowa Engineering Experiment Station, the University of Michigan and others. As a result of these tests and similar ones now under way, engineers are developing methods of ice control that will place winter driving on a much safer basis in the future. The effectiveness of tire chains, skidproofing icy pavements with sand or cinders, and means of removing ice where possible are included in the projects.

The Iowa experiments revealed, along with other significant data, that the distance required to stop a motor vehicle on icy pavement can be cut in half by spreading a thin coat of calcium chloride treated sand or cinders over the icy surface. The calcium chloride treatment was found necessary to melt the sand or cinders into the ice, as otherwise the dry materials are easily whisked off the road by traffic and wind.

While skidproofing treatment of icy highways decreases the possibility of accidents, the measure must be looked upon as a means to accident prevention and not a cure. Along this line, a note of caution is sounded by the National Safety Council in stating, "In the final analysis, good, old-fashioned, careful, common sense driving is the best antidote for skidding and accidents on icy roads."

Engineers and highway officials are extending ice control measures as fast and far as possible to reduce the hazards of winter driving but the cause of safety will always depend to a large extent upon the headwork of the individual driver.

Nigerian Law

Going to law among natives in northern Cameroon and Nigeria, West Africa, means going to the nearest crocodile pool. Disputes are settled by the disputants entering the pool, in the presence of witnesses, and trying to swim across. The truthful man, the natives believe, will succeed; the other will either refuse to swim or be eaten by a crocodile.

Adelaide sat motionless, eyes on her plate. When she spoke again it was of other things. "Did you hear that Delafield is coming back?" "Who told you?" asked Frederick. "Eloise Harper. Benny's sister saw Del at Miami. She is sure he is expecting to marry the other girl."

"Bad taste, I call it." "Everybody is crazy to know who she is."

"Have they any idea?" "No. Benny's sister said he talked quite frankly about getting married. But he wouldn't say a word about the woman."

"I hardly think he will find Edith heart-broken." Towne glanced across the table. Edith was not wearing the willow. No shadow marred her lovely countenance. Her eyes were clear and shining pools of sweet content.

Her uncle was proud of that high-held head. He and Edith might not always hit it off. But, by Jove, he was proud of her.

"No, she's not heart-broken," Adelaide's cool tone disturbed his reflections, "she is getting her heart mended."

"What do you mean?" "They are an attractive pair, little Jane and her brother. And the boy has lost his head."

"Over Edith? Oh, well, she plays around with him; there's nothing serious in it."

"Don't be too sure. She's interested."

"What makes you insist on that?" irritably.

"I know the signs, dear man," the cat seemed to purr, but she had claws.

And it was Adelaide who was right. Edith had come to the knowledge that night of what Baldy meant to her.

As she had entered the ballroom men had crowded around her. "Why," they demanded, "do you wear mistletoe, if you don't want to pay the forfeit?"

Backed up against one of the marble pillars, she held them off. "I do want to pay it, but not to any of you."

Her frankness diverted them. "Who is the lucky man?" "He is here. But he doesn't know he is lucky."

They thought she was joking. But she was not. And on the other side of the marble pillar a page in scarlet listened, with joy and fear in his heart. "How fast we are going. How fast."

There was dancing until midnight, then the curtains at the end of the room were drawn back, and the tree was revealed. It towered to the ceiling, a glittering, gorgeous thing. It was weighted with gifts for everybody, fantastic toys most of them, expensive, meaningless.

Evans, standing back of the crowd, was aware of the emptiness of it all. Oh, what had there been throughout the evening to make men think of the Babe who had been born at Bethlehem?

The gifts of the Wise Men? Perhaps. Gold and frankincense and myrrh? One must not judge too narrowly. It was hard to keep simplicities in these opulent days.

Yet he was heavy-hearted, and when Eloise Harper charged up to him, dressed somewhat scantily as a dryad, and handed him a foolish monkey on a stick, she seemed to suggest a heathen saturnalia rather than anything Christian and civilized.

"A monkey for a monk," said Eloise. "Mr. Follette, your cassock is frightfully becoming. But you know you are a whitened sepulchre."

"Am I?" "Of course. I'll bet you never say your prayers."

She danced away, unconscious that her words had pierced him. What reason had she to think that any of this meant more to him than it did to her? Had he borne witness to the faith that was within him? And was it within him? And if not, why?

He stood there with his foolish monkey on his stick, while around him whirled a laughing, shrieking crowd. Why, the thing was a carnival, not a sacred celebration. Was there no way in which he might bear witness?

Edith had asked him to sing the old ballads, "Dame, get up and bake your pies," and "I saw three ships a-sailing." Evans was in no mood for the dame who baked her pies on Christmas day in the morning, or the pretty girls who whistled and sang on Christmas day in the morning.

When all the gifts had been distributed the lights in the room were turned out. The only illumination was the golden effulgence which encircled the tree.

In his monk's robe, within that circle of light, Evans seemed a mystical figure. He seemed, too, appropriately ascetic, with his gray hair, the weary lines of his old-young face.

But his voice was fresh and clear.

And the song he sang hushed the great room into silence:

"O little town of Bethlehem, How still we see thee lie, Above thy deep and dreamless sleep, The silent stars go by; Yet in thy dark streets shineth, The everlasting light, The hopes and fears of all the years Are met in thee tonight."

He sang as if he were alone in some vast arched space, beneath spires that reached towards Heaven, behind some grille that separated him from the world.

And now it seemed to him that he sang not to that crowd of upturned faces, not to those men and women in shining silks and satins, not to Jane who was far away, but to those others who pressed close—his comrades across the Great Divide!

So he had sung to them in the hospital, sitting up in his narrow bed—and most of the men who had listened were gone.

"And—I told him he must not, Miss Towne."

As the last words rang out his audience seemed to wake with a sigh.

Then the lights went up. But the monk had vanished!

Evans left word with Baldy, that he would go home on the trolley. "I am not quite up to the supper and all that. Will you look after Mother?"

"Of course. Say, Evans, that song was top notch. Edith wants you to sing another."

"Will you tell her I can't? I'm sorry. But the last time I sang that was for the fellows—in France. And it got me—"

"It got me, too," Baldy confided; "made all this seem—silly."

It was just before New Year's that Lucy Logan brought a letter for Frederick Towne to sign, and when he had finished she said, "Mr. Towne, I'm sorry, but I'm not going to work any more. So will you please accept my resignation?"

He showed his surprise. "What's the matter? Aren't we good enough for you?"

"It isn't that." She stopped and went on, "I'm going to be married, Mr. Towne."

"Married?" He was at once congratulatory. "That's a pleasant thing for you, and I mustn't spoil it by telling you how hard it is going to be to find someone to take your place."

"I think if you will have Miss Dale? She's really very good."

Frederick was curious. What kind of lover had won this quiet Lucy? Probably some clerk or salesman. "What about the man? Nice fellow, I hope—"

"Very nice, Mr. Towne," she flushed, and her manner seemed to forbid further questioning. She went away, and he gave orders to the cashier to see that she had an increase in the amount of her final check. "She will need some pretty things. And when we learn the date we can give her a present."

So on Saturday night Lucy left, and on the following Monday a card was brought up to Edith Towne.

She read it. "Lucy Logan? I don't believe I know her," she said to the maid.

"She says she is from Mr. Towne's office, and that it is important."

"Miss Towne," Lucy said as Edith approached her, "I have resigned from your uncle's office. Did he tell you?"

"No. Uncle Fred rarely speaks about business."

With characteristic straightforwardness Lucy came at once to the point. "I have something I must talk over with you. I don't know whether I am doing the wise thing. But it is the only honest thing."

"I can't imagine what you can have to say."

"No you can't. It's this—" she hesitated, then spoke with an effort. "I am the girl Mr. Simms is in love with. He wants to come back and marry me."

Edith's fingers caught at the arm of the chair. "Do you mean that it was because of you—that he didn't marry me?"

"Yes. He used to come to the office when he was in Washington and dictate letters. And we got in the way of talking to each other. He seemed to enjoy it, and he wasn't like some men—who are just—silly. And I began to think about him a lot. But I didn't let him see it. And he told me afterward, he was always thinking of me. And the morning of your wedding day he came down to the office—to say 'Good-by.' He said he—just had to. And—well, he let it out that he loved me, and didn't want to marry you. But he said he would have to go on with it. And—and I told him he must not, Miss Towne."

Edith stared at her. "Do you mean that what he did was your fault?"

"Yes," Lucy's face was white, "if you want to put it that way. I told him he hadn't any right to marry you—if he loved me." She hesitated, then lifted her eyes to Edith's with a glance of appeal. "Miss Towne, I wonder if you are big enough to believe that it was just because I cared so much—and not because of his money?"

"You think you love him?" she demanded.

"I know I do. And you don't. You never have. And he didn't love you. Why—if he should lose every cent tomorrow, and I had to tramp the road with him, I'd do it gladly. And you wouldn't. You wouldn't want him unless he could give you everything you have now, would you? Would you, Miss Towne?"

Edith's sense of justice dictated her answer. "No," she found herself unexpectedly admitting. "If I had to tramp the roads with him, I'd be bored to death."

"I think he knew that, Miss Towne. He told me that if he didn't marry you, your heart wouldn't be broken. That it would just hurt your pride."

Edith had a moment of hysterical mirth. How they had talked her over. Her lover—and her uncle's stenographer! What a tragedy! It had been! And what a comedy!

She leaned forward a little, locking her fingers about her knees. "I wish you'd tell me all about it."

So Lucy told the simple story. And in telling it showed herself so naive, so steadfast, that Edith was aware of an increasing respect for the woman who had taken her place in the heart of her lover. She perceived that Lucy had come to this interview in no spirit of triumph. She had dreaded it, but had felt it her duty. "I thought it would be easier for you if you knew it before other people did."

Edith's forehead was knitted in a slight frown. "The whole thing has been most unpleasant," she said. "When are you going to marry him?"

"I told him on St. Valentine's day. It seemed—romantic."

Romance and Del! Edith had a sudden illumination. Why, this was what he had wanted, and she had given him none of it! She had laughed at him—been his good comrade. Little Lucy adored him—and had set St. Valentine's day for the wedding!

There was nothing small about Edith Towne. She knew fineness when she saw it, and she had a feeling of humility in the presence of little Lucy. "I think it was my fault as much as Del's," she stated. "I should never have said 'Yes.' People haven't any right to marry who feel as we did."

"Oh," Lucy said—aptly, "how dear of you to say that, Miss Towne. I always knew you were—big. But I didn't dream you were so beautiful." Tears wet her cheeks. "You're just—marvellous," she said, wiping them away.

"No, I'm not." Edith's eyes were on the fire. "Normally, I am rather proud and—hateful. If you had come a week ago—" Her voice fell away into silence as she still stared at the fire.

Lucy looked at her curiously. "A week ago?"

Edith nodded. "Do you like fairy tales? Well, once there was a princess. And a page came and sang—under her window." The fire purred and crackled. "And the princess—liked the song—"

"Oh," said Lucy, under her breath.

She stood up. "I can't tell you how thankful I am that I came."

"You're not going to run away yet," Edith told her. "I want you to have lunch with me. Upstairs. You must tell me all your plans."

"I haven't many. And I really oughtn't to stay."

"Why not? I want you. Please don't say no."

So up they went, with the perturbed parlor maid speaking through the tube to the pantry. "Miss Towne wants luncheon for two, Mr. Waldron. In her room. Something nice, she says, and plenty of it."

Little Lucy had never seen such a room as the one to which Edith led her. The whole house was, indeed, a dream palace. Yet it was the atmosphere with which her lover would soon surround her. She had a feeling almost of panic. What would she do with a maid like Alice, who was helping Josephine set up the folding-table, spread the snowy cloth, bring in the hot silver dishes?

As if Edith divined her thought, she said when the maids had left, "Lucy, will you let me advise?"

"Of course, Miss Towne."

"Don't try to be—like the rest of us. Like Del's own crowd. I mean. He fell in love with you because you were different. He will want you to stay—different."

"But I shall have so much to learn."

Edith was impatient. "What must you learn? External? Let them alone. Be yourself. You have dignity—and strength. It was the strength in you that won Del. You and he can have a life together that will mean a great deal, if you will make him go your way. But you must not go his—"

Lucy considered that. "You mean that the crowd he is with weakens him?"

"I mean just that. They're sophisticated beyond words. You're what they would call—provincial. Oh, be provincial, Lucy. Don't be afraid. But don't adopt their ways. You go to church, don't you? Say your prayers? Believe that God's in His world?"

Lucy's fair cheeks were flushed. "Why, of course I do."

"Well, we don't—not many of us," said Edith. "The thing you have got to do is to interest Del in something. Don't just go sailing away with him in his yacht. Buy a farm over in Virginia, and help him make a success of it."

"But he lives in New York."

"Of course he does. But he can live anywhere. He's so rich that he doesn't have to earn anything, and his office is just a fiction. You must make him work. Go in for a fad; blooded horses, cows, black Berkshire."

The Better Way to Correct Constipation

One way to treat constipation is to endure it first and cure it afterward. The other way is to avoid having it by getting at its cause. So why not save yourself those dull, headache days, plus the inevitable trips to the medicine chest, if you can do it by a simple common-sense "ounce of prevention?"

If your trouble, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, "the better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy, toasted, ready-to-eat cereal has just the "bulk" you need. If you eat it every day—and drink plenty of water—you can not only get regular but keep regular, day after day and month after month! All-Bran is sold by Kellogg's in Battle Creek, Mich. by every grocer.

LET US TELL YOU MORE ABOUT IT

CHRISTMAS MAIL.

● Uncle Sam has a big job this Christmas—he even delivers Santa's mail!

Last year's Holiday mail was the biggest ever handled by the United States postoffice, and this year's will probably be bigger. Cards, childish letters to Santa Claus, carelessly wrapped and addressed packages and the always-present human element of waiting until the last minute complicate the job. First mail to be handled each year is that for foreign countries, shown above being placed aboard a transatlantic liner. Such packages must be mailed early.

Towns bearing Christmasy names like Santa Claus, Bethlehem, Nazareth and Christmas (they're real towns, too) always have a land-office business in re-mailing cards and packages forwarded from all parts of the country. Above, at Bethlehem, Conn., Postmaster Earl S. Johnson stamps the special postmark used last year. It is the shape of a Christmas tree with the words, "Greetings from the Little Town of Bethlehem." He handles about 80,000 pieces of mail each season.

Pity the poor postman at a time like this! Small town postoffices usually add more clerks at the holiday season. In big cities additional mailmen like these are pressed into service. Uncle Sam does a good job of it—just so your cards and gifts will be delivered by Christmas morning!

Plan Songs, Games To Combat Dullness After Heavy Dinner

For that "stuffy" feeling after a heavy Christmas dinner there's nothing better than a few games to clear the atmosphere. Or, for that matter, any of the following:

Jot down a few parlor games and get together (in advance) whatever paraphernalia you need for them.

Give charades. For this plan what kind (words, proverbs, etc.) and collect some gadgets or "properties" or sketchy costume material—and do it the day before if not sooner.

Let the children give a little play or a little entertainment of singing carols and reciting.

Give a Christmas pageant or dramatize a Christmas carol. This can be done easily in an informal way.

Have a candlelight procession with singing.

Give a little party or invite a few outside grownups and children in for simple refreshments.

It's a Blouse, Chic and Lovely, That Gives 'Oomph' to the Suit

By CHÉRIE NICHOLAS

SUITS are in! And now for the upkeep in the way of one flattering blouse after another to wear with the suit of your choice. For as we all know it's the blouse that gives "oomph" to the suit.

One among many of the likable things about the blouse is that it so graciously fits into the scheme of things, enters, so to speak, into the mood of its wearer, being formal or informal, sporty or dressy to suit time and occasion. One good-looking suit and a wardrobe of versatile blouses and your clothes problem is solved, for via a proper blouse one can meet almost any emergency in dress.

The world of fashion has gone wildly blouse-conscious this season. About the most exciting spot in shopping districts these days is where blouse displays hold forth.

The revival of sterling quality white satin for the blouse marks a significant highspot in the present program. See the smart white silk satin blouse pictured below to the left in the illustration. Note that the sleeves are long and full, gathered into a snug-fitting band at the wristline. Sleeves in the new blouses trend in three directions: short, bracelet length or long, as here shown. The silver necklace and jewelry worn with this blouse add a note of formal elegance.

Not only is white satin a favorite in the blouse realm, for satin blouses in pastel tones are being shown in tempting array.

Many of the latest models have a yoke at the back with a gathered-in full blouse effect below. With the voluminous graceful long sleeves and self-satin buttons down the front a youthful soft styling is achieved.

For dinner or daytime "dates," a pale pink silk chiffon over-blouse (the very new and smart type finished with band that fastens over the skirt belt line)—is shown above to the right. A solid tucking back and front, together with gold-embellished glass buttons, bespeak style for this dainty blouse. A rooster head in gay colors with coq feathers trim the pill-box hat, which is significant in that wing, feather and bird trimmings, milliners tell us, are quite the smart idea this season.

Regarding the blouse shown below to the right, the spontaneous impression one gets at first glance is the formal elegance of this model, and rightly so, for it is just that, elegant and formal. It glorifies a black velvet daytime suit. In the evening wear it with a copper-colored metal cloth skirt and you will be dressed to the queen's taste. It is made of sumptuous white satin, patterned with a delicate tracery done in copper. The perky bow ties, the long fitted sleeves and the deft use of shirred fullness are distinctive style touches.

In the panel to the left behold a costume of the present suit and blouse trend. The jacket and skirt are of black wool with nubby self-stripe. The blouse is of fine faille silk in the new blue that reminds of royal. It has a clever group-shirring down each side of the front stressing the current trend to achieve soft fullness through artful shirring.

Her Plaid Coat

Of course little daughter must have a winter coat of gay plaid wool, for fashion simply adores plaids this season. The new wool plaids are the handsomest ever and the winter landscape, wherever young folks congregate, is ablaze with colorful plaids. A scotch cap of velvet with crown of matching plaid adds the finishing touch to this stylish outfit.

New Jewelry Ideas Are Cropping Out

Gold jewelry accents on black are still the outstanding fashion. However, new jewelry trends are developing. One of which is the increasing favor expressed for silver necklaces, bracelets, clips, buttons, belt buckles and other gadgets. Huge silver-wrought locket suspended from silver chains are especially good style.

There is also a tendency to wear white jewelry, moonstone settings being in high favor. Many style-alert women are wearing exquisite diamond or rhinestone pieces especially with black or the new rich wines and greens. As for pearls, they have held good right along and still remain first choice with women who dress quietly and with un-failing good taste.

Sadly enough our own knowledge of ourselves confirms his dismal judgment.

SPREADING THE GOOD NEWS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 10:24-30. GOLDEN TEXT—Let him that heareth say, Come.—Revelation 22:17.

"Bewilderment." That is the word which the president of a great American university recently said accurately described the present condition of the minds of men. Little wonder that the men of the world are bewildered, for they are like mariners who sail an unknown sea after having thrown away map and compass. Without Christ and without God's Word men cannot be anything but bewildered.

That which gives us even greater concern is that many who are Christians, who really know the Guide and who have the Guidebook, are also declaring themselves to be utterly bewildered. What is the reason? Obviously that they have not read the Book and have not talked with their Lord.

Our lesson for the coming Lord's Day touches on one of the problems which causes many Christians to question God's love and care. They find that their efforts to testify for Him by word or life meet with a violent reaction from a bitter world, and they discover that such a life involves personal sacrifice and frequently results in even the members of their own families turning against them. Can this be God's way of dealing with His people? The answer is found in His Word. The Christian is to be:

I. Fearless in a Hostile World (vv. 24-28, 32, 33).

Note carefully that he is not to be silent (vv. 32, 33). We deny our Lord when we fail to speak for Him when we ought to do so. Christianity is not something to be hidden in one's own bosom, a fire to warm one's own soul. It is good news which is to be proclaimed even from the housetops.

But, someone will say, when I do speak there is opposition; they call me names, they threaten to kill me. Yes, and what of it? "The disciple is not above his master, nor the servant above his Lord" (v. 24). They called Jesus a devil. They even crucified Him. Should we then expect to be borne to glory on flowery beds of ease? God knows all about this, yes, even about the hidden and whispered plottings of evil men (v. 26). He will deal with them and judge them in due season.

We need not fear men. The most they can do is to kill the body. Let us consider the eternal God, who not only may take the life out of the body, but is also able to cast both soul and body into hell (v. 28). God is not as a theory, a bit of pious imagination. He is real, He is all-powerful. Why then should we be fearful if we serve Him in faithful devotion?

II. Fearless in Personal Life (vv. 29-31).

It is one thing to be bold in the midst of battle. It is quite another thing to be fearless in the quiet of one's own room, or of one's own heart. Satan is expert at that point. He comes to us with his humiliating accusations of our unworthiness, yes, of our worthlessness. Sadly enough our own knowledge of ourselves confirms his dismal judgment.

But wait! If we are Christians we are not our own. We are bought with a price, the precious blood of Christ. We belong to Him. He is our advocate with the Father. Let Him meet our accuser. What does He say? He tells us that He has numbered the very hairs of our head (v. 30), that even a dying sparrow concerns Him, and that we are worth more than many sparrows (v. 31). We are His and He is our Saviour, Friend and Brother. Let us look up and be without fear.

III. Fearless in the Family Circle (vv. 34-39).

Here, after all, is the acid test of discipleship. Christ did not come in order to stir up needless strife between members of the family, but He well knew that divisions would come as the result of true discipleship. Men who are ordinarily kind and cultured in their dealings with their friends and families but who do not know Christ, can become like veritable demons against any one in that circle who hears the call of Christ and follows Him.

No human tie, no matter how intimate or precious, is to be permitted to stand between the individual and his devotion to Christ. If it does, Christ is evidently no longer first. He is no longer Lord of all in the life, and if He is not Lord of all, He is not Lord at all.

While it seems almost paradoxical to say it, Scripture teaches and experience demonstrates that if you keep your life for yourself and your own interests, it will die in your very hands and you will lose it. If you give your life in glad abandonment to God, on the other hand, you will receive it back from Him transformed, enriched, and glorified by His grace and blessing.

WITH the holidays almost at hand everyone seems to be giving curtains a thought. An enthusiastic reader of Sewing Book No. 3 writes, "I have a bay window in my dining room that has always been a problem to curtain. Right now I would like to make pinch pleated drapes of figured damask to hang from cranes to the floor. I would also like a valance." With this letter all the window dimensions were given.

The sketch at the lower right reveals the difficulty. The space between the top of the windows and the top of the bay made it impossible to hang the draperies as desired. A 1 by 2-inch strip of wood nailed next to the ceiling

Non-Partisan State News Letter By GENE ALLEMAN Michigan Press Association

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles on Michigan's new milk price-fixing act.

Lansing — A peek into the Michigan milk picture is like Alice's first visit to Wonderland.

You run into some unexpected things.

First, is a somewhat paradoxical situation whereby Detroit drivers of milk trucks receive as much out of the consumer's bill for home delivered milk as do the farmer-producers themselves.

Considering the point that labor has no investment at stake for the distributor furnishes the motor equipment and maintenance, it would appear at first thought that labor was better off than the farmer who must invest and risk money in cows, land, building, equipment and who must dig into the purse for taxes and transportation and so on.

But don't rush to any conclusion. You'll quickly find yourself in a daze; milk economics are not simple as the ABC's.

Murphy's Speech

The state's present venture into milk price-fixing had its beginning, so it is confided, in a speech-making jaunt of Governor Frank Murphy to Uby. The year was 1937, the campaign was on, and the occasion was the dedication of a federally-financed electrical co-op.

Thumb farmers listened to Murphy's oratory with stolid indifference. But when the governor chanced to utter a pledge to provide relief to the dairy industry, the crowd cheered.

The result? A milk study commission. Republicans, not to be outdone, promptly pledged assistance.

The Walsh-Patterson bill, creating a milk marketing board with authority to fix producer and retail prices for market areas was then passed by the 1939 legislature.

Setting the Pace

Because the Detroit milk market directly affected farmers in 20 counties and indirectly affected those as far away as near Grand Rapids, Flint, and Lansing, the metropolitan

ANTRIM BOY TO INTERNATIONAL LIVESTOCK EXPOSITION

Ivan Hooper of Rapid City, Milton Township, has been chosen by the Michigan Horse Breeders Association to attend the International Livestock Exposition as their guest, according to word just received by Walter G. Kirkpatrick, County Agricultural Agent.

Ivan is one of two boys in Michigan that is being accorded this honor by the Michigan Horse Breeders Association through their outstanding record in 4-H Colt Club work. Ivan has been a member of the Milton 4-H Colt Club for four years and has been its leader during the past two years in which the Club has been the second largest Colt Club in Michigan.

While at Chicago he will get actual experience in the fitting and showing of horses at the International as he will assist those in charge of the Michigan State State College Horse Herd. This experience will be of much value to him in his future Club work and farm life.

center has set the pace for Michigan's milk industry.

Last May the price of milk in Detroit was 10 cents a quart. Farmer-producers were paid $1.90 per hundredweight for fluid Grade A milk, delivered in Chicago.

The state board held public hearings. A composite audit by Roy I. Brown, certified public accountant in Detroit, showed that Detroit distributors lost $44,415.34 during the first six months of 1939. Retail prices varied throughout the state from 7 cents in Lansing to 12 cents in Kalamazoo, Battle Creek and Saginaw. A breakdown of the dairy industry seemed imminent.

On Sept. 1 the state board raised the farmer-producer price to $2.08 and reduced hauling rates 5 cents, making an increase in revenue of 23 cents per hundred weight. (Producers had asked $2.49).

Then on Oct. 5 the board lifted the consumer price one cent to 11 cents a quart, home-delivered, and 10 cents a quart, "cash-and-carry"; a price differential of one cent.

The increase of 1 cent a quart, effective Oct. 5, was split one-half between the farmer-producer and the distributor. Labor received 28 per cent of the distributor's additional revenue.

Who Gets What?

Now comes an illuminating analysis, made by the state board of agriculture and the state milk marketing board, on who gets the 11 cents: To Producer, income for milk

hauled to Detroit04

To Labor, wages for milk delivery04

Distributor, income for plant maintenance, delivery trucks, etc.08

Yet the Detroit price, home-delivered, is under Chicago and Toledo prices. Toledo consumers pay 12 cents a quart, while Chicago consumers pay 13 cents. (New York prices are 18 cents; Jacksonville, 16 cents.)

In Chicago, where milk prices have gone up recently, the city is experimenting with paper containers as substitute for glass bottles which must be returned, cleaned and replaced if broken. New York distributors are experimenting with two-quart containers, thus affecting a saving in delivery costs.

Labor's Share

The milk driver, whose hours of work are conceded to be abominable, receives $12 a week plus 14 per cent commission on his sales. On his "day off", a substitute worker, known as the "swing man," takes over the route for approximately $12 a day. (Union drivers in large cities make from $40 to $50 a week.)

When the Walsh-Patterson bill was pending last spring, labor was actively for it. Likewise, labor has consistently opposed "cash-and-carry" stores and milk depots because of the obvious threat to employment, eliminating the need for home delivery.

And so the state board was a bit miffed when the Non-Partisan Labor League in Wayne county came out recently, following the footsteps of the county prosecutor in condemnation of the milk price rise. Later it was explained privately that the statement was "unauthorized." Complicating the picture are the existence of four different viewpoints. While producer, distributor and labor divide the revenue, it takes the consumer to pay the bill. Other complications have been a steady drop in milk consumption and a surplus in production. While consumer earnings decline, milk consumption falls. Premium-priced gasolines are good... but why pay the premium?

When 1333 out of 1475 motorists, all users of premium-priced fuels, got the same, or better road performance with

NU-BLUE SUNOCO

The new miracle of gasoline chemistry

yet it sells at regular gas price

Within the last two months, 1475 users of premium-priced gasolines were asked to test an unidentified, colorless gasoline which was really Nu-Blue Sunoco with the coloring left out. From Florida to Canada, these tests were conducted, not by us, but by independent, unbiased research authorities, and when the returns were summarized, it was found that these motorists voted 9 to 1 in favor of Nu-Blue Sunoco! 9 out of 10 proclaimed it equal or superior to the premium-priced gasolines in road performance.

To make a fair test, don't dilute Nu-Blue Sunoco with other gasoline. Let your tank run practically empty. Then put in Nu-Blue Sunoco. Compare it particularly with premium-priced gasolines. We'll rest our case on your findings.
