LIBRARY NOTES

Our new books for the Rental Shelf have arrived! Here is the list of books:

"The Sea Tower" by Hugh Walpole.
"Death at the Bar", Ngao Marsh.
"Hawk of Detroit", Arthur Pound.
"No Arms, No Armour" by Robert Henriques.
"False Star" by Anne Duffield.
"Johann Strauss: Father and Son" by H. E. Jacob. An interesting book for all lovers of music. The tempestuous, urgent lives of these men make a book as romantic as fiction filled with a wealth of knowledge to bring the reader to a deeper appreciation of their music.
"This Isn't the End" by Agnes Turnbull.
"The Loon Feather" by Iola Fuller. A fine first novel that is the winner of the Hopwood Award at the University of Michigan. Mackinac Island with its traders, its voyageurs and fishermen is the scene for a story of the days when white men were steadily intruding themselves upon the Indian's ground. In the life of Oneta, an Indian girl, who grows up in her white stepfather's family, is reflected this conflict between ancient tradition and lore of her race and the new customs of the whites.
Another copy of "Gone With the Wind" has been ordered and will be placed on the shelves the latter part of this week. The patrons, whose names are on the reserve list for it, will be able to have their copy of the book much sooner.

Forestry Meetings Reflect Great Interest In Tree Planting

If the enthusiasm and interest shown in the recent series of four forestry meetings are any indication, then Charlevoix County is going to have more than twice as many young trees set out this year as was the case last year. The Road Commission has kindly offered to furnish windbreak trees to farmers if they set these out as per directions along their roads for snow protection. Within the next few days an order for twenty thousand young transplants will be sent in by the Road Commission which will assure a liberal quantity of trees for this purpose.

Any farmer interested in obtaining any of these trees for windbreak purposes should contact his Agricultural Adjustment Committeeman, the main office in Boyne City, or the County Agent. Further information will be given relative to where the trees must be planted and the amount of payment in recognition for this approved practice.

We are always greatly pleased when outside foresters tell us that Charlevoix County has a larger number of good farm woodlots than other counties in this section. Let's properly manage our woodlots and set out windbreaks which not only perform an important function along the road, but which add greatly to the enjoyment of the traveler. Be sure and contact the above mentioned parties and find out more about this wonderful opportunity.

County Agr'l Agent.

WHAT'S THE BEST TIME TO APPLY FOR A JOB?

There's a lot more to seeking employment than merely being willing to work. Do you know, for example, whether a college education pays? Or, if there's a shortage of brain workers? Or, where today's biggest opportunities lie? Lyle Spencer, famous employment authority who's making a science of job-hunting, answers these questions in an important series of articles. Be sure to read them every Sunday in This Week, the color magazine with Sunday's Detroit News.

To Herald Contributors and Advertisers

For some reason the past few weeks contributed articles and advertising copy seems to be coming in at the eleventh hour. This means a lot of night work or The Herald fails to get into the postoffice until late Thursday.

We have revised some of the Closing Time published elsewhere, and will strictly adhere to same. Co-operation in getting copy in as early in the week as possible will greatly facilitate matters.

Here's a hoping — and thank you, G. A. and PAUL LISK.

Enjoy Leapyear Birthday Anniversaries

A group of friends of Bert Hite met at his home last Thursday evening, Feb. 29, to remind him of the occasion of his 19th birthday anniversary. The evening was enjoyably spent in games after which a delicious lunch was served. Those present were Alex. Weldy, Mr. and Mrs. Edd Weldy, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Lenosky, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brintnall and Mrs. Brintnall Sr.

On Thursday evening, Feb. 29, about 20 friends and relatives of Mrs. Alonzo Shaw gathered at her home to help her celebrate her fifteenth birthday anniversary. The evening was spent in games and a delicious pot luck supper was enjoyed. Mrs. Shaw received many lovely gifts and best wishes for many more such occasions.

Helen Stephens Coming March 20

DATES ARE FINALLY IRONED OUT. BOOKER CHARGE ABLE WITH ERROR

The East Jordan Cannery received word from Helen Stephens Tuesday a. m. that her team would be here for sure Wednesday, March 20th.

A mix-up, on the part of the booker, in dates forced postponement of the game originally scheduled for March 7th. The girls are playing in Indianapolis on March 6th, and could hardly be expected to make a 500 mile jaunt in one day.

The Cannery are in tip-top shape and a great game can be expected. The main game will start at 9:00 p. m. instead of 8:30 p. m. as previously advertised.

So remember the East Jordan gymnasium — Wednesday evening, March 20th.

Extension Leaders To Hold Fourth and Last Lesson on March 12th

The fourth and last lesson in the present Home Management Project will be given to the group leaders on Tuesday, March 12th, in the Boyne City Library at the usual time of ten o'clock. It is gratifying to note that all thirteen groups are carrying on their projects satisfactorily and no doubt will finish all requirements.

As a result of the action taken at the third lesson, plans will be developed for a county-wide tour which will replace the old style achievement day program. Everyone seems to feel that a tour through the county will be a worthwhile change and will attract more attention and be of greater value to the membership.

Tentatively, we want to visit four or five locations in the county where we can see the results of landscaping, proper arrangement in the kitchen, the advantages of electricity, and other features of interest to all homemakers.

First Championship In Ten Years

E. J. H. S. CAGERS COP CLASS C HONORS AT HARBOR

Coch Ace Cohn's comeback Crimson Wave aggregation advanced toward greater basketball heights last week end by copping the District Class C Championship at Harbor Springs.

Thursday evening the Crimson's came from behind in the waning ten seconds of play to eke out a 22-21 triumph over the Harbor Springs Rams. Then the climax Saturday evening as they topped Boyne City 21 to 20 for the third time this season, bringing to East Jordan its first high school basketball championship in ten years.

The Harbor fracas was nip and tuck all the way and was anybody's ball game right up to the final gun. With but ten seconds remaining to play, few would have given a penny for the Crimson's chances. Harbor was awarded a free throw, but waived the try from the charity circle in favor of taking the ball out of bounds at midcourt, thus enabling them to protect their one point advantage. Harbor made a loose pass, Bulow nounced on it and let fly. Players and spectators stood fixed as the ball arched beautifully, falling cleanly through the mesh just as the horn signaled, ending the game with East Jordan the victors.

Bulow tallied 13 points to lead the locals offensively. McBride of Harbor nearly matched his performance with an even dozen. Antoine's play again warrants special mention, for he played one of the outstanding games of his four year career with the Red and Black.

BOYNE CITY GAME

Coch Earl Brotherton's Boyne City quintet advanced into the finals with a 41 to 25 triumph over the Charlevoix Red Rayers Friday evening.

A large and enthusiastic crowd turned out to witness the finals, and for three quarters the game was a run away, East Jordan leading all the way. At one time in the third stanza the Red and Black held a 17 to 5 edge. Boyne's attack, led by the Deitz boys Ernie and Wally, began to function in the final period and before the bewildered Jordanites knew it Boyne had tied the count at 20 all. Crowell was awarded a free throw with but 20 seconds remaining to play, walked up and scored his first point of the Tourney and clinched the victory for the Red and Black.

V. Gee counted 11 to lead the Jordanians. The Deitz boys split 14 points between them to tally high for the losers.

Thursday evening Frankfort plays Gaylord and Friday evening at 6:45 East Jordan will play Lake City in the Regional Meet at Petoskey. The winners will meet for the championship Saturday evening.

Shantytown Owners Asked To Co-operate

With the spring break-up in the near future, all owners of fish shanties on the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix are requested to make provisions for removal. Shanties must not be placed on private property without the property-owners permission. Unless taken care of by the owners, the shanties will have to be taken to the city dump at the City's expense.

Community Bldg. For East Jordan

IT IS WITHIN OUR REACH IF WE REALLY WANT IT

For several year East Jordan citizens have dreamed of an up-to-date Community Building. When the question has been asked "why don't we get one?" the answer has been "it is not possible just now."

But now it is possible if — if we really want it; if we want it to the extent that we will vote to do our part.

REASONS FOR WISHING A COMMUNITY BUILDING

The principal reasons given for wishing a Community Building are:

1. The welfare of the youth of East Jordan. The facilities of the School House are too limited to provide ample recreation for our youth outside of school hours. This reason is intensified by the growing number of our youth above school age who are desperately in need of a place for wholesome recreation. The record of East Jordan's Boys Club the past year emphasizes this.

2. Our adult population urgently needs an adequate place for social gatherings and recreation. Provision for adult activities is a growing problem all over the country. With the shortening of the hours of work there must be the possibility of an improved social life.

3. There is no place in East Jordan with adequate facilities for conventions and banquets. This year it would have been easy to have sold tickets for a hundred more for the Father and Son banquet had there been room to seat them. More and larger conventions can be held here if we have a good Community Building.

4. East Jordan has never been able to have a basketball tournament because we have no place to stage one. This is also true of other kinds of tournaments.

5. A certain amount of WPA labor has and will be used in the county. Why not use some of it in East Jordan for something that will be permanent and improve the city? This does not mean spending more money for labor; it means using the labor for what will be of the most value.

HOW THE MATTER HAS BEEN APPROACHED

The City Council is the body that has the original and final responsibility. A committee of the Council met with representatives of various civic organizations to talk about the possibility.

First there was the question of site. The old Russell Hotel which has been long unused was a hazard and a liability to Main Street, but on account of tax laws, it seemed destined to remain such for some time to come. However, what seemed impossible came to pass. The building has been torn down and the city owns the real estate. This is a site made to order, and a building there will be an asset to the city from every point of view.

The committee visited community buildings in many other cities, and the managers were all sympathetic, pointing out the blunders as well as the good points in their buildings.

The committee publicly asked for suggestions. They have been gone over carefully, and a good architect has so far as possible embodied them all in a tentative plan that calls for an expenditure of about $70,000. Nothing has been left undone to make the proposed building express the desires of the community in the fullest possible manner.

KIND OF BUILDING

The tentative plans call for a building of architectural concrete. A full sized gym will accommodate about 700, with size of floor about the same as in Boyne City. There will be a dining room, with fully equipped kitchen, available to organizations wishing to use it. There will be rooms available for boy scouts, girl scouts, recreational rooms, and showers and lockers. There will probably be ample space that can be leased by firms that have bowling equipment. The building is to be used by both men and women, and boys and girls.

HOW TO BE FINANCED?

An article next week will speak of the proposed method of financing and will explain why it will not be necessary to vote on a larger bond issue than $10,000 with the understanding that the tax rate of the city shall not be increased.

FULLEST INFORMATION DESIRED

The committee that is co-operating with the City Council is sponsoring this article and plans to have articles in the next two issues of The Herald. If anyone thinks of any question that should be brought up please write out the question, properly sign it, and hand to the City Clerk by next Monday morning. A representative of the committee will ask the clerk for all such questions before the article is

Judge Gilbert Addresses Joint Meeting of County Service Clubs

The three service clubs of Charlevoix county held their first joint meeting at the Jordan Inn Tuesday evening. The three clubs are the Kiwanis of Charlevoix and the Rotary Clubs of Boyne City and East Jordan.

About seventy sat down to the banquet served by the management of the Inn. Ed. Reuling was toastmaster and short speeches were made by the three Presidents: Floyd Supp of Charlevoix, B. C. Mellencamp of Boyne City and Howard Porter of East Jordan.

The address of the evening was given by Judge Parm C. Gilbert of Traverse City. His theme was "Youth- Problems and Good Citizenship." It was handled with understanding and with sympathy and showed a keen appreciation of present day youth. Those who heard the address well understood why Judge Gilbert is in great demand as guest speaker by gatherings that are interested in good citizenship.

The purpose of the meeting was two fold; sociability, and to talk over the wisdom of having a county committee selected from the three cities of the county to promote county wide interests.

Those present put themselves on record as favoring the creation of community committees, selected from various organizations, in each of the three cities with the hope that these in turn will select representatives to form a county committee.

It was tentatively agreed to hold another joint meeting in Charlevoix the second Tuesday of July.

Canners Salt Down Three More

TAKE VICTORIES OVER PETOSKEY, BOYNE CITY AND BENZONIA

The fast flying Cannery continued their merry pace the past week, as they salted down three more victories in their drive to defend their Northern Michigan Championship. They opened their week with a 48 to 41 win at Petoskey last Wednesday, added a 58 to 38 victory at the expense of Boyne City here the next night, and closed with a 43 to 24 win at Benzon Monday evening.

In the game with the Petoskey Merchants last week, the Red and White were caught off form as the Little Traverse boys jumped off to a quick lead. Petoskey was ahead 15 to 10 at the first quarter. The locals came back and outscored them 17 to 8 the second period, but lapsed badly in the final quarter till, with two minutes to play, Petoskey had forged into a 41 to 38 lead. Then Spin Cihak suddenly came to life and sank four successive long shots to put the contest in the bag. Hud. Sommerville also chipped in with a long tom in the final rally.

BOYNE CITY GAME

Thursday evening they met the Boyne City Mayors here and, after a close first half, (had no trouble winning 58 to 38.

Boyne played them fairly close the first half but, during the final two periods, the steady fast breaking pace of the Cannery wore them down. It was another of those games where the Red and White showed their scoring punch in the final periods. In five games this winter, the Cannery has shown a heavy scoring power in the last quarter, scoring twenty points or better. They missed at Grayling last week but sank 26 points in the third quarter to put that game (Continued on last page) written for the Herald next week. The citizens of East Jordan have dreamed of such a building for years, and until now it has seemed as far off as the fabled pot at the end of the rainbow. But the dream can come true; it will come true if we will that it shall.

To Discuss Potato Blight

PLANT PATHOLOGIST IN EAST JORDAN THIS FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Every potato grower in Charlevoix County should be interested in a series of three meetings arranged for Friday, March 8th, when J. H. Muncie, Plant Pathologist, will discuss the history of late blight, its seriousness, and means of control. Great losses were suffered last year in the majority of potato fields and we are faced with the problem of whether or not we should use blight infected seed.

The first meeting will be in the Charlevoix Co-op Co. at 9:30 a. m. on Friday, March 8th, the next meeting will be in the East Jordan Co-op Co. at 1:00 p. m., and the third in the Boyne City Co-op Co. at 3:00 p. m. These meetings are all on the same day. We have planned to hold these meetings at the above mentioned places as we will have a good many bins of potatoes that we can actually see and note the varying degrees of infection and what is happening to the potatoes that are badly infected.

These meetings will have to be somewhat brief and snappy so please be present promptly on time, as all meetings will start as per the announcement. Mr. Muncie, in addition, will discuss seed treatments and various diseases that are of interest to us at this time. Hope you will attend your nearest and most convenient meeting.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Merger of Two Wars Feared If Allies Send Aid to Finland; Poles Drill Big Army in France

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union

U. S. and the Wars: After Six Months

Six months had passed since Germany invaded Poland, since President Roosevelt summoned congress to safeguard U. S. neutrality. Good intentions notwithstanding, the U. S. found itself deeply concerned with Europe's wars—politically, financially, economically, socially. Items in a week's news:

Agriculture

During senate hearings on the reciprocal trade act, Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace hinted the U. S. may seek means to help the farmer, whose exports have been reduced since the war started. Main reason for war: Allies claim they need all their foreign exchange to buy munitions. One possible remedy is an excise tax on munitions exports which might be paid to farmers.

Trade

U. S. exports exceeded imports in January by $126,589,000, the largest margin in recent years. One unhappy trend: Gold and silver holdings of the U. S. piled higher and higher as foreign nations used this method to pay for their purchases.

Industry

Latest item in the $1,000,000,000 worth of allied war purchases in the U. S. was a $20,000,000 contract placed with Douglas Aircraft company for construction of bombers for Great Britain.

Civilians

A California youth, stopped at Rockford, Ill., admitted he and 20 other Americans had been recruited by one Col. Charles Sweeney (believed an American soldier of fortune) and ordered to report in Toronto for aviation training. The FBI went to work.

Maritime

The U. S. had two British blockade problems: (1) Britain sought Canadian co-operation in establishing a contraband control system in the Pacific to stop U. S. rubber and tin from reaching Siberian Russia, from whence it may be going to Germany; (2) Pan-American clippers, avoiding British mail seizures at Bermuda, decided to fly direct from the U. S. to the Azores and Lisbon.

Congress

Troned out were senate-house differences in the measure to raise the Export-Import bank's lending power by $100,000,000, thus providing $20,000,000 for non-military purchases by Finland.

WHITE HOUSE: Home Again

Outward from Panama into the Caribbean headed the cruiser Tuscaloosa, bearing Franklin Roosevelt home from a fishing expedition. South of Panama he had fished for fish; in the Canal Zone he had fished for information, getting himself convinced that America's Gibraltar is inadequately guarded.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT
He'll co-operate.

At a press conference aboard the Tuscaloosa he gave reports some news which startled congressmen who read it in Washington next day. Not only must the present number of guns and planes at Panama be doubled, said the President, but a long-range defense program must be arranged to extend throughout Central America and as far south as Ecuador, Colombia and Venezuela.

Reason for this, he said, was the need for a better opportunity to discover an attacking force at a much longer distance from the canal. Even the new Caribbean fortresses were inadequate protection from the east, he maintained.

An interested observer was Augusto Boyd, president of little Panama, whose country will profit by heavy U. S. expenditures in the Canal Zone. Said he, after a conference aboard the Tuscaloosa: "I think we're all in the same boat. Latin America must co-operate with the United States in defense of the canal. We are in there 100 per cent as far as co-operation is concerned."

DOMESTIC:

Nose Count

Of all questions in the 1940 census, none has drawn more fire than those regarding personal income. When census takers begin their rounds April 1 many a citizen will probably refuse to answer these questions despite the threat of a fine. Adding weight to the G. O. P.-sponsored campaign of protest, Miss Catherine Curtis of New York appeared before the senate subcommittee on behalf of women investors. Said she: Congress will have to enlarge the jails to house protesting women if income questions are not stricken from the census.

Nevertheless Census Director William Austin went ahead with his plans, hoping his nose-count will not be completely sabotaged. Meanwhile the department of commerce announced creation of a new national income division which will "analyze and interpret the flow of income from various sources and its expenditure in the final analysis for goods and services." For its source material the division will probe every source of personal income data available, including social security records, bureau of internal revenue—and the 1940 census.

LABOR:

Biggest Election

At Washington the National Labor Relations board issued orders for the largest collective bargaining election ever held. "As soon as possible," approximately 150,000 employees in 59 General Motors plants in 11 states will cast their ballots, the principal issue being affiliation with C. I. O. or A. F. of L.

POLITICS:

Victory in Ohio

Both Republicans and Democrats conceded that Ohio's six-county seventeenth-congressional district was a sounding board for Ohio's political cross-currents. In that district, Republican J. Harry McGreggor was fighting it out with Democrat Byron Ashbrook, nephew of the late Rep. William A. Ashbrook.

In the twenty-second district a Republican victory was not unexpected, provided Ohio would send a woman to congress. Hoping it would, socially prominent Mrs. Frances Payne Bolton sought to succeed her late husband.

When the votes were in Mrs. Bolton found herself elected. So did Republican McGreggor, which was a significant victory if the prophetic district wasn't fooling. At Washington the G. O. P. congressional campaign committee hailed Ohio's results as a sign that "the tide of national sentiment continues strongly toward a Republican sweep next November."

Other political news:

Four Democratic senators (Massachusetts' Walsh, Iowa's Herring, Michigan's Brown and Indiana's Minton) indicated they could conceive of an international situation which would make it wise to nominate and elect Franklin Roosevelt for a third term.

Thomas E. Dewey had his name filed in the Nebraska G. O. P. primary, where he will fight it out with Michigan's Sen. Arthur Vandenberg. Vice President John Nance Garner let his name be entered in New York.

Navy Officers Bid for Power In Report to House Committee

Department's Policy-Making Board Recommends Taking Additional Control From Hands of Civilian Authorities.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART
WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON—The house committee on naval affairs made public a report the other day that recommends the delegation of further power to high officers of the navy. That proposition has been made before, but the current report came from the navy general board, the policy making agency of the navy department. It represents, therefore, an official move by ranking officers of the United States navy for greater concentration of power in their hands, as naval officers, as distinguished from the civilian control through the secretary and assistant secretary of the navy who always have been appointed from civil life.

The report failed to attract much attention. Certainly, it failed to receive the publicity that it should have had in the newspapers. The reason was, I believe, that many writers simply regarded the report and its far-reaching recommendations as an isolated instance. My feeling is, however, that the general board's views must be examined closely because to my mind they represent not an isolated instance but evidence, often repeated, of a general trend in governmental affairs that is highly dangerous.

This discussion must not be considered an attack on the navy. I have great respect for the navy and especially for the present personnel in the positions of policy determination. There are some quacks and hair-brained boys up near the top, recommendations as showing a row between the professional navy men and the civilian side. Secretary Edison disagreed with the board's findings, and so reported to the house committee. Unfortunately, however, Mr. Edison failed to hit the proposal a good stiff uppercut. He should have called attention that it was dangerous in that it represented another step in the direction of control by the military-minded servants of the people.

Army and Navy Affairs Need Careful Analysis

I doubt that the general board's recommendations are going to be followed by congress. It is time, however, to think over some of the things that have happened with respect to the navy and the army and in a few cases the marine corps and the coast guard. Moreover, it is time to remember what has happened to every single nation that has given its military services too much say about civilian affairs or affairs that we, in this country, regard as civilian affairs. It cannot be said with too much emphasis that our system of government must live or die by the measure of the power over national policy that is retained in the hands of elected officials.

The practice of appointing army and navy officers to civilian posts has been growing in recent years at an alarming rate. The usual practice has been to appoint retired officers. More recently, however, officers have been taken right out of the military services—detached from commands, etc.—and named to civilian jobs. I am not going to undertake to enumerate them. They are scattered hither and yon, like head of the WPA and head of the wage-hour division of the department of labor and that sort of thing. One of the army officers is serving as secretary to the President of the United States. I could go on and on and show where these men are functioning in strictly civilian posts.

Let me be misunderstood, I want to say that a couple of these army officers on civilian duty are doing splendid jobs. But I hasten to add that they are the exceptions. The reason is that a man from the military services is trained along a particular line of thinking. Briefly, that thinking calls for and enforces discipline, execution of orders, blind obedience—compulsion in all of its phases.

We might look back through 20 years or so and recall how the navy and the coast guard were used in prohibition enforcement. I cannot believe that job was a part of the military service. But they were so used, and that was that. In the space that is accorded me, I cannot make any pretense of recounting the numerous instances where the military services were ordered into duties that never were intended for them by the founders of our nation. One by one, these things have grown up and they are now accepted. Isn't it about time to call a halt?

Here's a Concrete Example Of How Plan Might Work

Let's carry this general board recommendation through to a conclusion that is much more real than apparent.

Assume we, as a nation, were having some hard feelings with one of our North or South American neighbors. Assume, further, that the other nation was doing us an injustice and was refusing to allow the matters to be arbitrated so that a show of force could possibly serve a purpose. Well, among our elected officials, there obviously would be differences of opinion. There always has been and there always will be. Does anybody think that the chief of naval operations with greater powers than he now has would be found on the side of restraint in dealing with such a problem? His train of thought would lead to the conclusion that some heavy guns should give the answer; he would believe in force to compel acquiescence, and he would never agree that compromise was the way out.

Probably, that is a far-fetched illustration. I agree that it is under the present powers that are vested in the hands of the professional navy men. I purposely used the exaggerated illustration because if there is added power in the matter of making policy granted now, there will be additional grants of power accorded later just as sure as little apples grow on trees. It is that "next step" that I have talked about in these columns so many times.

The whole thing can be summed up, I believe, in the conclusion that we are getting too many military-trained people in positions of responsibility. When they are transferred to civilian functions, however honest and sincere they may be, those officers naturally take with them the deep fundamentals of their training. It is not good. We have seen the answer written on the other side of the Atlantic ocean. I do not believe it is going to happen here, but it could if citizens who are jealous of our system of government fail to keep their eyes open.

EUROPE: The Wars

Finland Front. Around Viipuri on the Karelian isthmus and near Petsamo in the far north, Finland's defenders continued retreating before Russian pressure. But the Finns held their ground at the "waistline," halfway up the border.

Western Front. Increased patrol and artillery activity was acknowledged by both high commands. Heavy German troop movements were reported near Luxembourg, and the Nazis were said to be extending the Siegfried line along the Belgian and Dutch frontiers.

In the Air. British reconnaissance planes flew over Berlin two successive nights, while Nazi planes were chased away from Paris.

At Sea. Allied warships, massing in the Arctic sea to block Russian-German sea commerce, sank two Nazi merchantmen near the Finnish shore. An undenied report of naval activity off Petsamo was considered by observers as the first sign that Europe's two wars may merge.

Congress' Work

Passed by the House: (1) The senate-approved bill to give Finland a $20,000,000 non-military loan; (2) a $60,000,000 appropriation to keep crop control checks flowing to farmers.

Proposed: By Sen. Robert F. Wagner (D-N. Y.), legislation to regulate investment companies on behalf of the Securities and Exchange commission.

Sent to the Senate: The house approved resolution to extend for three years the administration's reciprocal trade program.

Argued in Both Houses: The 1940 census, scheduled to start April 1. While Census Director W. L. Austin moaned, Republican orators urged constituents to risk penalties by not giving census takers "personal" information which is "none of their damned business."

Maginot line already well manned, observers had reason to wonder where Poland-in-exile will send its first five divisions which will be ready for action by midsummer. Finland seemed the best bet, for behind a ceaseless barrage of rumors and counter-rumors flooding Europe this month, could be seen an ever-narrowing breach between the two wars.

Both London and Paris reported it was certain the allies would land an army at far-north Petsamo, supplementing spasmodic aid which has dribbled to the Finns through Norway and Sweden. In the light of this possibility, German overtures in Scandinavia seemed ominous.

The overtures: Nazidom has sought a Finnish-Russian truce to stop consumption of Russian war materials and thus get more for herself; Hitler has also threatened intervention on Russia's side if an allied expeditionary force is sent to Finland's aid. He had also hinted to Norway and Sweden that it would be best for them to block allied aid to the Finns if they wanted to escape the war. But at the same time he had not overlooked the value of Scandinavian friendship, for Swedish iron ore would be cut off if the northern countries joined Britain and France.

Peace Gesture

Despite gloomy news, irrepressible peace rumors still bobbed to the surface. In London Lord Tavistock, chairman of the British council for Christian settlement, said he had received a set of peace terms through Germany's legation in Dublin. These he had passed on to Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax. The terms: (1) Independence to Slovakia; (2) independence to Poland, with an outlet to the sea; (3) a plebiscite in Austria, maybe; (4) disarmament, if others will do likewise; (5) German re-entry to the League of Nations, provided Britain doesn't continue to run the show. To most observers, they looked like the same old set of peace terms brightened with a new coat of paint.

Mr. Welles Goes Calling

Hastily concluding his preliminary discussions in Rome with Benito Mussolini, Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles hurried to Switzerland and thence to Berlin. What had been advertised as a pure-and-simple fact-finding expedition was developing (as everyone had expected) into a queer peace offensive. Premier Mussolini had evidently told Mr. Welles his terms, and it was widely advertised that Adolf Hitler would do likewise. Everyone, obviously, would talk tough.

MRS. BOLTON
Ohio accepted her.

NAMES in the news . . .

At Little America, Adm. Richard E. Byrd reported he and two assistants had mapped the long-unknown South Pacific coast of Antarctica, discovering a vast mountain range and an ice-covered island 80 miles offshore.

At London, ex-Premier David Lloyd George scored England's woefully poor food production, claiming that two and a half million acres which produced 1,000,000 tons of food in 1914 are now overgrown with weeds.

At London, it was rumored Maj. Kermit Roosevelt, son of the "Roughrider," would leave his British army post to lead an international brigade against Russia in Finland.

Arriving in the U. S. for a three-week visit, Archduke Otto of Austria hoped to arouse sentiment for his enthronement—provided Germany loses the war and Austria is restored.

Died: Gen. William Graves, 74, who commanded U. S. expeditionary forces in Siberia from 1918 to 1920.

Beetles on Pay Roll

Several cottonseed oil mills in the South still use the coarse hair of Chinese women to weave the mats through which the oil is separated from the seeds after they have been mashed by hydraulic process. One large mill in Memphis purchases 2,000 heads of such hair a month for this purpose.

The Japanese hold the world's most sentimental ceremonies—Buddhist masses for the "souls" of such objects as ships that have been sunk, oysters that have been eaten, dolls that have been smashed and needles that have been broken in the past year.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—"Gentle Breeze" is a loose translation of the name of Paraguay's new dictator, Jose Felix Estigarribia. On September 13, 1935, this department observed, "It is possible that a new iron man is checking in, in Paraguay, with the emergence of the shrewd, resolute General Estigarribia." It appeared to be a wrong guess, until recently, when the general announced his dictatorship, having assumed the presidency last August.

Graying, handsome, austere, just turning 50, he is the smallest of dictators—130 pounds, five feet, six inches tall. He was a Napoleon addict in his youth, but is said to have abandoned such attitudes and interests in later years. Of remote basque ancestry, he is the descendant of a wealthy Paraguayan family, educated for the army at home and in Paris. He entered the Gran Chaco war as a lieutenant colonel, gained a generalcy in a year and emerged as a national hero.

The U. S. A. has a stake in his new dictatorship. When he entered his brief turn as minister to Washington, he lunched at the White House and was extended generous credits for the "re-building" of Paraguay.

"Extrasensory perception" has been fading rapidly after its sudden burgeoning of two years ago, but here it is again, with Professor J. B. Rhine, its high priest at Duke university, making a study of

Expert Studies Mental Powers Of Girl Marvel
Faith Hope Charity Harding, the little Pennsylvania girl who has been calling the future the way a pool-player calls his shots. Now 4½ years old, she has been making bull's-eye prophecies since she was 18 months old; so naturally they get Professor Rhine on the job.

He has kept right on running his parapsychological laboratory at Duke, since his 2,500,000 tests of University students there convinced him of the reality of mental telepathy, and the possibility of our peeping into the future, as well as into the minds of our neighbors. He said it would take 1,600 digits to express the mathematical degree of improbability in his tests.

Professor and Mrs. Rhine began exploring the spook world when they were getting the doctor's degree at the University of Chicago. Among other such phenomena they examined the feats of "Margery," the Boston medium and reported that the "whole game was base and brazen trickery." They repeatedly have assailed fake occultism. As to mental telepathy, they lay it on the line, but they're still working on the prophecy business. They started the latter inquiry in April last year.

For the last year, knowing observers of European war and politics have warned the world to keep a sharp eye on Col. Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, commander in chief of the German army. His tracks usually lead in the direction of the next German lunge, and, controlling the army, he makes as well as executes decisions.

Army General Gets Credit for Nazi-Russ Deal
General Von Brauchitsch is a member of an old east Prussian feudal family, a conservative by instinct, education and tradition, but politically malleable. A distinguished officer in the World War, he hated the republic, but went along with it, alienating his stiff-necked Junker colleagues, and became head of its armed forces. From 1922 to 1932, he delivered many scholarly denunciations of bolshevism, but, perhaps more than any other man, put through the interchange of officers, technicians, fabricated goods, munitions and raw materials between Germany and Russia during this decade.

Weighty opinion from the other side is that General Von Brauchitsch, rather than Hitler, Goering or Rosenberg, schemed the Russo-German deal and forced it to a conclusion through his unquestioned hold on the army.

To him is also attributed the plan, the decision, the timing and the start of the drive into Poland. In several instances there have been indications of hostility between the general and Goering, with the betting on the former, if it ever comes to an open break. The general was born in Berlin in 1881 and has been in the army since his early youth. He is handsome, imposing and brilliantly educated, within the limits of the old army caste, and has employed power in a manner to make him an ace exhibit in Dr. Rauschning's "revolution of nihilism."

A foreign military observer estimated that 100,000 Russian soldiers lost their lives in bending the Mannerheim line far enough to threaten the city of Viborg. Finnish newspapers report that Russian material losses so far have amounted to 473 planes, 1,193 tanks, 392 field guns, 399 guns, 630 motor tractors, 117 field kitchens, 1,560 horses and much other miscellaneous equipment.

Zealous Photographer Was Looking Ahead

Photographs had been taken at the wedding, and the happy pair were assured that proofs would be sent to them so that the best might be chosen for delivery.

Some days passed, and the looked-for envelope arrived.

All agog, the young couple opened the envelope. But instead of pictures of the bridal group they were confronted with studies of a two-months-old baby.

The bride nearly collapsed. So did the bridegroom—when, on looking at the back of one of the proofs, he read: "Please state clearly when ordering which size you want, and how many."

They spent the evening together and Mr. Lane had him to breakfast. Mr. Lane is very much crippled up with rheumatism.
The adult class of Star Sunday school took supper with John Seiler in East Jordan, Tuesday evening. Garden Gossip

Edited by Caroline Harrington

Letters and questions on garden topics will be welcome. They will be published and discussed in this column.

Dear Mrs. Harrington:

Now that the year is turning towards spring, I'm wondering what plans the members of your Garden Club have in their bonnets for the arboretum. Such an unusual and conservative measure for wildlife must be a constant source of pleasure and pride to all East Jordan. It is an indication of real foresightedness to see the soil thus used for educational and recreational purposes.

I was extremely sorry to hear of the fire last summer. But sometimes a calamity is a good deed in disguise. This one may renew vigor and interest in making outstanding in the state this sanctuary for our native trees and shrubs.

What are the plans for the coming season? I know other communities aiming toward similar goals will welcome any new ideas you may have. I should like to give the sanctuary project some publicity in my outdoor column in the Detroit Free Press.

I still recall that lovely summer day we walked over the grounds and how thrilled I was to see the extent of the replanting of pines and hardwoods. What a forest for the children of tomorrow! I remember the cooling stream in the ravine, the carpet of mosses and the song of a field sparrow echoing to us from a distance. A beautiful spot! A rare privilege, that of sharing the green places with others, has the East Jordan community.

With continued best wishes, Grace V. Sharritt.

Right now (March 3rd) the arboretum lies under a foot or more of snow and for the past month has been inaccessible except on snow shoes. I have walked there often and am glad to report that many little pines survived last summer's ghastly fire. Two things must be done if the arboretum is to survive, — fences must be repaired to keep out the cows, and a fire lane must be made around the necessary but not harmless dump.

Soon the arboretum committee will meet and Mr. E. E. Wade, Superintendent of our schools, expects to tell us of the school's plans for this project. I will be glad to write you then in more detail, for we do appreciate your interest.

Dear Mrs. Harrington:

The Civic Committee of the Garden Club noted with interest T. J's letter in Garden Gossip of Feb. 23rd regarding beautifying that section of lake frontage near the bridge where the swans are fed. A decorative background would add much to the attractiveness.

An open shore line and a spacious driveway to accommodate cars and trucks must be maintained, as this is the landing for row boats. Interested active and experienced folks of our community have been approached on the matter, and, as soon as the snows have melted, a survey will be made. I walked there this morning (March 1st) but the snow is still very deep. The Civic Committee of the Garden Club welcomes helpful constructive suggestions.

M. B. Palmiter, Chairman, Civic Comm., Garden Club.

Thank you, Mrs. Palmiter. Garden Gossipers will be watching with interest for a report of the survey of the spot where, as you say, "a decorative background would add much to the attractiveness."

Please read the following note from "Citizen."

Dear Mrs. Harrington:

Wish you would follow up that idea of T. J's. Hope we can get the spot where ducks and swans are fed cleaned up. It sure is a mess down there in the summer time.

Citizen.

Thank you, Mrs. Palmiter. Garden Gossipers will be watching with interest for a report of the survey of the spot where, as you say, "a decorative background would add much to the attractiveness."

Dear Mrs. Harrington:

Wish you would follow up that idea of T. J's. Hope we can get the spot where ducks and swans are fed cleaned up. It sure is a mess down there in the summer time.

Citizen.

And summertime is the time when we should look our best, isn't it? If you will read Mrs. Palmiter's letter (above) you will see that T. J's idea is due for an active "follow up."

Thank you for expressing an interest in the project. It means you think the idea practical, and that is encouraging. The snow is melting fast (today) and only 17 days of winter are left (on the calendar) . . . so write in your suggestions now. Everyone must help if we are to have satisfactory results.

Hope you have seen the red tulips on exhibition at Clark's store. As one reporter said, "They light up the whole store." This pot of tulips is only one of a great company of blooms "out of season" — hyacinths, tulips and narcissus — which Mrs. Clark has successfully forced, according to the directions she gave to the Garden Club last fall. Mrs. Clark has promised us a letter about bulb forcing to be published soon.

Hinged Curtains for Window Cupboards

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS
 WHY not build cupboards at each side of a pair of windows and a comfortable seat between? This takes very little space and adds useful storage room; as well as a cozy place to sit. The cupboards are hidden by hinged curtains that are a part of the general window treatment. The chintz for the valance and seat pad is in tan, yellow and blue-green. The blue-green edges the curtains and valance and is used also for the two cushions. The frilled glass curtains are clear yellow. The closet curtains tacked to a hinged arm may be swung back just as you would open a door.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears has prepared four booklets for our readers containing a total of 128 thrifty homemaking ideas; with step-by-step illustrated directions. Each book contains an assortment of curtains; slip covers; household furnishings; rag rugs; toys; gifts and novelties for bazaars. Books may be ordered one at a time at 10 cents each; but if you enclose 40 cents with your order for four books (Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4) you will receive a FREE set of three quilt block patterns of Mrs. Spears' Favorite Early American designs.

AROUND THE HOUSE

When cleaning celery, use a vegetable brush. It gets into the grooves and cleans the celery better than it can be cleaned otherwise.

Use Dry Holder.—Never use a damp or wet cloth or holder in removing a hot dish from the oven or stove. A dry one prevents the heat from penetrating and scorching the fingers.

Hooked rugs will lay flat if they are dried properly. Place them, top side down, on papers spread over the floor. Allow them to dry thoroughly.

Cooking Pork Sausage.—Pork sausage requires slow cooking. If much fat collects, drain it off—to prevent greasiness. Pierce link sausage several times with a fork to prevent them from bursting while cooking. To form a brown, crusty covering on sausage sprinkle them with flour just before they are cooked.

Wash dully-waxed furniture with a chamoux skin that has been rinsed frequently in warm water. Doing so will remove the dirt film. Then rub the furniture thoroughly with a soft cloth saturated in furniture polish. Afterwards wipe the furniture dry with a clean soft cloth.

EAST AND WEST

BY TALBOT MUNDY

TALBOT MUNDY—WNU SERVICE

THE STORY THUS FAR

Captain Carl Norwood has been sent from his native England to the Kadur River district in India, along with his indispensable manservant, Moses O'Leary, soldier of fortune. Norwood's job is to survey the district to determine whether a valuable secret diamond mine belongs to the temple priests or to the ruler, the Maharajah of Kadur. Norwood calls on the British Residency to pay his initial respects. On his way he catches a glimpse of two women in a palace carriage, one of whom is young and beautiful. The other woman he knows to be the Maharajah's Kadur. O'Leary later tells him that the young woman is an American girl named Lynn Harding, who with her aunt, Mrs. Deborah Harding, is a guest at the palace. On a sightseeing tour Mrs. Harding sprains an ankle, and sends to the palace for aid. Prince Rundhia, handsome, spoiled nephew of the rulers, comes to her rescue, and takes her back to the palace where he meets Lynn. At a banquet that night in the palace, attended by Captain Norwood, Mrs. Harding takes one of the native doctor's pills, and becomes violently ill.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

Lynn laughed: "That's a testimonial for me! But thank you, I'll take care of Aunty."
 "No," said the doctor. He caught Rundhia's eye. Rundhia came to his rescue and made signals to the Maharajah, who wanted nothing better than to have Lynn under her own roof.
 "Lynn, dear, please do as the doctor tells you. Please, please."
 Aunty groaned and protested that it was a shame to inflict Lynn on the Maharajah, but she was overruled. She was carried out on an improvised litter and rushed to the guest-house, where Lynn's belongings were collected by the servants and conveyed to the palace.

CHAPTER V

Rundhia was puzzled and Lynn knew it. She enjoyed it. It was cool and beautiful beneath the moonlit trees in the garden.
 "You are the strangest mixture of intelligence and innocence that I have ever met," said Rundhia. "You are in love with all this. You are thrilled by the exotic strangeness. But it's all old stuff to me, remember. I'm a babe in the woods, too, in a certain sense. I'm as lost as you are. Things and places don't make life worth living. It's the people in the places, and the things they do together. If you loved me and I loved you—"
 "But neither of us does," Lynn interrupted. "We are East and West. Europe delights you because you can't ever really understand it. And the East enraptures me for the same reason."
 "So we've that much in common," said Rundhia. "Let me tell you something else we have in common. We like each other."
 "Do we?"
 "Yes. One would have to be blind, deaf, demented, not to like you. What's wrong with me?"
 Lynn's defensive tactic was a thousand times more shrewd than Aunty would dream of giving her credit for:
 "Well, for instance, why do you dislike Captain Norwood?"
 "For the same reason that he doesn't like me," said Rundhia. "Cherchez la femme. Thank the father and mother who bred him, he's only an Engineer. If he were Cavalry, I might feel jealous. Lynn, I love you."
 "How many women have you said that to?"
 "Hundreds. But I lied to all the others."
 "I have sometimes had to lie to Aunty. But I'm not nearly as practiced a liar as you must be. Let's be truthful."
 "I am telling you the truth. I have always thought myself a cynic. I didn't know I had a heart until I met you. I have found and lost it in the same moment. It is yours. What will you do with it?"
 His arm crept around her. He hardly knew how she slipped away from him. She waltzed away. She ran along the path, her arms extended to embrace the moonlit luxury of hue and view and perfumed flowers. By the time he overtook her, her retort was ready:
 "Perhaps you don't like men with red hair?"
 "I am looking," he answered, "at your hair. I want to bury my hands in it, bathe my face in it, breathe it—"
 "Borax! I washed it and the water's terrible!"
 She escaped him again. Her black pajamas vanished into shadow; she became a beautiful, disembodied head in a golden aureole that asked:
 "Is Captain Norwood married? I didn't ask him."
 "Well, why didn't you ask him?"
 "I didn't care."
 "Good!" said Rundhia. "I'm going to make you care about something else. Come along. I'll behave. Come this way."
 He led her up steps to the top of the ancient garden wall. There was a summerhouse on the wall, a sort of kiosk; it had been swept and provided with cushions by a servant who crouched in shadow. Rundhia ordered the servant away. He went and lurked at the foot of the steps, but Rundhia shouted at him and he fled. Rundhia led Lynn into the open-sided kiosk.
 "You have promised," she said, "to behave."
 "Do you believe men's promises when they're in love? Are you as naive as that?"
 "Yes. Don't be silly. Let us look at the view."

"Look at me."
 His eyes were hardly less fiery than the glowing end of his cigarette. They made Lynn's flesh tingle. He threw away the cigarette.
 "Lynn, you romantic girl, this scene enchants you because love has stolen on you unaware. Neither of us until now has ever known what love is."
 "Do you think you know now?" she retorted.
 "You know I know it. You are cruel."
 "I wish you'd sit farther away," she interrupted. "Why don't you make love to your own countrywomen?"
 "There isn't in all India such a lovely girl as you are."
 "How do you know? It's true, isn't it, that most of them are kept in seclusion and you're not allowed to see them? Is that why you make love to me? Why not burgle a zenana?"
 "Lynn," he said, "I don't make love. I am love. And you also. We are love itself, as a musician becomes music. Why waste the glorious hours?"
 "What do you know about music?" she retorted. "Can you sing Indian songs?"
 "Yes, love songs! I play the guitar."
 "You can? What fun! Why not get it? There couldn't be a more perfect place for singing than this garden wall in moonlight."

 Rundhia sensed that he had cast his fly too boldly. She wasn't hooked. She needed more subtle persuasion. He shouted to the servant to fetch the guitar. There was no answer; the servant had taken him too strictly at his word, he was out of earshot. Rundhia shouted again and again. He swore under his breath. Then he governed his anger and smiled at Lynn:
 "Will you wait here if I go and get it?"
 "Yes, but—"
 "What?"
 "You look murderous. Don't whip the servant!"
 His undercover man was waiting for him in the usual place, by the gate in the wall that separated the Maharajah's palace from Rundhia's—an unimportant-looking but peculiarly unmeek Hindu, who spoke in a low voice without preliminary gestures of respect.
 "The priests have learned of Captain Norwood's arrival. They sent me to speak with his Eurasian spy, O'Leary, who is a reptile. O'Leary has already detected the opening of the mine."
 Rundhia thought swiftly, and spoke slowly: "Go and tell the priests that Captain Norwood is here to line his own pocket. Say he is in debt and seeks an opportunity to pay his debts. His secret report will be in favor of the highest bidder. But don't say you heard it from me. Say O'Leary was drunk and you heard it from him. Make it perfectly clear to the priests that any other officer than Norwood would be scrupulously fair, so let them think about it."
 Then Rundhia found a servant in the garden of his own palace and sent him running to fetch the guitar.

The palace front gate clanged behind Norwood. The sullen sentry stood at ease, then easy and resumed his snooze. Norwood turned his horse along the road by the palace wall, riding slowly because the sahis was following on foot. He had ridden about fifty yards to a curve in the road when O'Leary stepped forth from a shadow. He didn't look like O'Leary. He was wearing a turban, and dressed like a dripping wet, dirty Hindu of no caste or ostensible occupation. Norwood drew rein and listened, watching the road for pedestrians.
 "I didn't stable the mare in the city. She's back in camp. I'll need her later."
 "What for?"
 "As soon as I'm dressed decent again, I'll go back to the bazaar. I told a yarn about coming back to camp for more money. I'm going to need it."
 "What happened?"
 "Plenty. I was right about Noor Mahlam. They've ditched him. So I did too. He was only ground bait. He talked too much, then tried to have me knifed to stop me talking. They'd a trap set for me and I walked straight into it. A woman. I'll tell you about her later; she'd fill a dictionary."
 "Never mind about the woman. What happened?"
 "Nothing happened there. It couldn't. I left your mare tied up to the veranda railing, military saddle and all, and your initials on the bridle. So they couldn't take chances. And I could. And I did."
 "That's enough about you. What happened?"
 "Kindergarten stuff. Confidence game. The woman's bully flattered me. I knew the woman's sister in Lahore, and he said the woman's sister'd given me a rep for being smarter than most, and a man o' my word. Then he introduced me to the woman. She's all honey and poison. Sister my eye. Two words, and I knew she was lying about that."
 "Never mind her lies, or whose sister she is. How much truth did she tell you?"
 "Not much, barring that I'm the most exciting man she'd ever seen. She was true enough excited, so I knew the bully was listening in; and he weren't her proper bully neither; he was someone who'd been rung in on her, and she scared o' him and not used to his ways. She said there'd be a thousand rupees for me if I'd act discreet."
 "Whose thousand rupees?" asked Norwood.
 "Trust you Moses O'Leary. I asked her that quick. She said it was Prince Rundhia's thousand rupees. So I knew it wasn't."
 "What does she want you to do?"
 "She told me a mess o' lies about Prince Rundhia having quarrelled with the temple Brahmins, and him wanting to get back at 'em, to spite 'em. She told me, and I acted surprised, that there's a diamond mine in the temple area. There's a thousand rupees for me if I persuade you to run your survey line slap through the temple area, so that the mine will belong to the Maharajah instead of the temple priests."
 "What did you tell her?"
 "I said you're easy, but you're honest. I said I'd have to find some way of artfully deceiving you if you're to do what's needed. I said I'd have to look into it, and I made her tell me where the mine is and how to get a look at it. She came clean."
 "How did she know?"
 "She'd been told. And she was out of her depth already. She wanted word with the bully, and she tried to get me to stay where I was. But I thought of the bay mare standing outside in the alley, and she fidgety, and you fond o' the mare and liable to find fault with me if she should come to harm. And I guessed it 'ud be wise to look into the woman's story first."

"You'd better leave that woman and her bully guessing, and show me the mine. Where is it?"
 O'Leary pointed: "Two hours from now, when the moon's about there, I can guide you to a place where you can see along under the apron of water."
 "Very well, O'Leary. Which way did you come?"
 "Short cut. Don't you try it. Horse might break a leg."
 "All right, I'll follow the road. Meet me in camp."
 O'Leary vanished. Norwood had ridden another fifty yards when he heard angry shouting, several times repeated. He wasn't sure, but he thought he also heard a girl's voice. He rode forward slowly and then, a bit alarmed by the ensuing silence, stirred his horse to a canter. He drew rein, looking upward at Lynn, not much more than two or three minutes after Rundhia had left her. She was sitting in full moonlight on top of the wall, on a cushion, with one foot hanging over the wall and her back against the kiosk.
 "Hello!" he remarked. "Did Rundhia leave you all alone here?"
 "He said he'd come back."
 "Well, he'll keep that promise. How well do you know him?"
 "I met him for the first time this evening."
 "Like him?"
 "Shouldn't I?"
 "At your age, there is danger in exotic likes and dislikes."
 "I'm twenty-two."
 "You don't look it. I had guessed you as eighteen. However, no doubt you know how to take care of yourself among men of your own race. I'm taking it for granted that you're a nice girl with a sense of humor but a bit rebellious against certain sorts of restraint. All this is new, and you're enjoying it. You like the Indian setting, and the novelty and the moonlight and all that stuff."
 "Don't you?"
 "Yes. And I like you. I would not like to hear of you making a mess of your life for the sake of a spot of excitement. You don't understand India. You don't understand Rundhia."
 A shadow moved. Someone chuckled.
 "Doesn't she?"
 Rundhia loomed on the wall with a guitar in his hand. He smiled down at Norwood. The moonlight shone on his teeth.
 "We were reaching a beautiful understanding," said Rundhia. "Are you on your way to camp? Well, it's a grand night for a ride. Sorry you're tired and sleepy."
 Norwood eased his horse a little nearer to the wall. He gave the reins to the sahis. In another moment he was standing upright on the saddle, with his head within six inches of the top of the wall:
 "I am not so sleepy as perhaps I look," he answered. "Give me a hand up, Rundhia."
 Lynn watched. This was something altogether new in her experience. Rundhia hesitated. Moonlight betrayed him. Rundhia felt tempted to refuse. But he hadn't the iron. He could have scared the horse and made Norwood look ridiculous. But he hadn't the nerve. Lynn felt sorry for him. With a shrug he handed the guitar to her, in order to use both hands to help Norwood scramble up the wall.
 "You weren't invited," said Rundhia.
 Norwood stared. "No. I noticed it. Can you strum on that thing?"
 Lynn spoke with all the malice she could put into her voice:
 "You like music, Captain Norwood? I supposed your line was engineering and ordering people about."

Zoo Animals Turn Popular Beliefs to Fables

An elephant's memory is no longer than its tail. Humming birds, so fragile that they seem winged insects, are greedier than pigs. Monkeys prefer popcorn to bananas. The house cat is more cruel than a beast of the jungle.

In fact, name any popular belief about animals and it's a good two to one bet that it is wrong.
 That's the conclusion of experts after actual observation at the Chicago Zoological park at Brookfield. Consider the elephant, most maligned of the animal kingdom.
 He is supposed to live the 999 years of Methuselah, but instead lives only the three score and ten of man. The female is said to breed at the age of 40 or 50; in reality, she breeds at six and eight years. Her pregnancy is said to endure seven years; as a matter of fact, it is 19 months, which is short enough, considering the size of her offspring.

And the elephant's memory! Legend says it is enduring, tenacious. Do an elephant an injury today and he will repay you in kind 15 years later. Brookfield officials say this is applesauce.
 "An elephant's memory probably is not as good as that of other animals," Robert Bean, assistant director and curator of mammals, declared.

 "I never heard anyone who worked with them say their memory amounted to anything. Take Honey and Tembo, the baby elephants that Christoph Schulz captured and brought here.
 "When he found Honey, she was a baby, half starved and wandering in the jungle. He brought her here, feeding her by bottle, and she would follow him everywhere. When he left, she tried to trumpet, but when he came back eight months later she didn't remember him at all. Schulz," he added, "was very disappointed."
 Elephants, too, are said to be afraid of mice. The truth is, Mr. Bean says, that they ignore them, making the pachyderm house at Brookfield the hardest in the park to free of mice. Elephants like cats, however, and allow them free access to the stalls. The only animal most of them despise, Mr. Bean says, is man.

Some Ideas for a Party

Shur-r-re an' in the mer'y month o' Mar-arch, it's St. Patrick's day we're thinkin' of when we pass along these ideas for a party.

Parties seem to move along more smoothly after a bit of fun—and fun it is to find an Irish Paddy's Pig at your place at the table! Small Irish potatoes, scrubbed until they shine, make the fat bodies of the pigs. For the head, fasten a large round gum drop to one end of each potato, with a toothpick. Make the snout from a small gum drop pinched to the proper shape, and fasten it to the head with a toothpick. Insert whole cloves for "facial features." Cut ears and a curly tail from jelly strings and fasten these in position with toothpicks too. Small gum drops, fastened to the body with toothpicks, make the legs.

Nut cups which look like Paddy's clay pipe, can be made from marshmallows, green cellophane soda straws, and a bit of green ribbon. With a pair of sharp-pointed scissors, hollow out the center of the marshmallow slightly, to form the bowl of the pipe. Tie a green ribbon (with a jaunty bow) around the pipe bowl, and insert a cellophane soda sipper low in one side, for the stem.

Refrigerator Cloverleaf Rolls.
(Makes 3 dozen)

2 cups water (boiling)
1/2 cup and 1 teaspoon sugar
1 tablespoon salt
6 tablespoons shortening (part butter for flavor)
2 cakes yeast
1/2 cup water (lukewarm)
2 eggs (beaten)
8 cups flour

Mix together the boiling water, 1/2 cup sugar, the salt, and shortening. Cool slightly. Dissolve yeast and 1 teaspoon sugar in the lukewarm water, and add to the first mixture. Add eggs and half of the flour. Beat well. Add remaining flour and mix thoroughly.

Place dough in greased bowl, grease the top lightly and cover the bowl. Store in refrigerator. Before using, let the dough stand at room temperature to warm up, before shaping the rolls. To shape cloverleaf rolls, brush very small balls of the dough with melted butter and place three balls in each section of a greased muffin pan. Let rise until light and bake in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees) for about 20 minutes.

Cooked Mayonnaise Dressing.
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 eggs (beaten)
1 cup salad oil
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
1/4 teaspoon paprika
1/2 teaspoon salt

Add vinegar gradually to the beaten eggs, and continue beating until blended. Cook in a double boiler, stirring constantly until the mixture thickens. Remove from flame and cool. Then slowly add the oil, beating constantly. Combine seasonings and fold into the dressing.

Fruit Salad Dressing.
While making your favorite boiled salad dressing recipe you'll undoubtedly want to reserve half of the dressing "as is" for use on vegetable salads. However, to the remaining half—which should be hot—

Are "left-overs" a problem in your household? They needn't be! There are clever, unusual ways of using them. Next week Eleanor Howe will give you some of her own favorite recipes and suggestions for using odds and ends of vegetables and meats, and even a hint or two for using stale cake and pie.

add a few quartered marshmallows and fold until melted. This dressing will be sweeter and fluffier than the original and is perfectly delightful to keep on hand for fruit salads of all kinds.

Angel Food Snowballs.
(Makes 16)
1/2 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup sugar
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
4 egg whites
1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Heat milk and butter to scalding point. Add sugar and dissolve. Sift flour, baking powder and salt, and combine with the milk and sugar mixture. Beat well. Beat egg whites until frothy, add cream of tartar, and beat until the egg whites stand up in points. Fold into the batter and add vanilla. Pour into greased muffin pans and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for about 20 minutes.

St. Patrick's Lime Pie.
(Serves 6)
4 eggs (separated)
1/2 cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1/4 cup lime juice
Pastry cut in shamrock shapes and baked
Rind of one lime (grated)
Green vegetable coloring
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 baked pie shell

Beat the egg yolks until thick and light-colored. Mix 1/2 cup of the sugar and the flour, add lime juice and grated rind, and combine with the egg yolks. Cook until thick, over very low heat, stirring constantly. Cool. Add just enough green coloring to tint the filling slightly. Add salt to egg whites and beat until stiff; gradually add the remaining 1/2 cup of sugar, and beat until very stiff. Fold into the yolk mixture and pour into baked pie shell. Place pastry shamrocks on top. Bake in a moderately hot oven (415 degrees) for 5 to 7 minutes, or until the filling is set. Cool.

St. Pat's 'Hats.'
Using a large round slice of bread (buttered) for a brim, build up a hat crown with a layer each of tuna fish salad and sliced tomato, placed between 3 smaller bread circles. Stick a toothpick down through center. Spread entire sandwich with green-tinted cream cheese. Add green pepper hat band. Chill. Serve on shredded lettuce.

GETHESEMENE: TRIUMPH THROUGH SURRENDER

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 26:36-46.
GOLDEN TEXT—Not as I will, but as thou wilt.—Matthew 26:39.

Surrender brings victory. The world would say that our statement is not true; surrender is the mark of defeat. It is the final chapter in a story of struggle against impossible circumstances, against a stronger power, and finally of giving up to accept the bitter sorrow of subjection and sometimes destruction. But again we say, the way of strength is through surrender, for we speak of the spiritual realm and of our relationship to God. Here there is no victory until there is surrender. In fact, the measure of victory is the degree of surrender. Full submission to Christ means complete triumph for the Christian. The Lord Jesus does not ask His disciples to walk a way which He has not trod Himself. He went the way of full surrender to the will of God in the garden of Gethsemane. We observe five things about this way of "triumph through surrender." It was

I. A Way of Sorrow (vv. 37, 38).
He was exceedingly sorrowful unto death. It was not an easy thing that the Saviour did as He fulfilled the will of God the Father in the garden. We know that no man ever sorrowed as He did on that day, for only He bore the sins of the world. There is, however, a lesson here for us who are His disciples. If this is the road the Master trod, should not His servants tread it still? The way of victory for us is through surrender.

II. A Way of Self-Denial (vv. 39, 42, 44).
Self-denial does not consist in depriving one's self of some little cherished luxury. It means the denial of self, namely, that self-will is put aside and God's will is supreme. It was no "easy thing for Jesus to carry out the Father's will and to go to the cross. He was submissive to that will; yet in this hour of anguish in the garden, when the unspeakable horror of what lay ahead almost overwhelmed His soul, it means much to say, "Not as I will but as thou wilt" (Dr. E. L. Olmstead). It may be a hard thing to do, but by His grace we too may say, "Thy will be done."

III. A Way of Loneliness (vv. 36, 37, 40, 41, 43).
There were three disciples with Him as He entered the garden, and their very presence reminds us how very much alone Jesus actually was. There were twelve with Him in the upper room, but one went out into the darkness to betray Him. Eleven came with Him to the gate of the garden, but only three came into the garden with Him. Even they could not go all the way with Him. He prayed and agonized alone, and the three who were near at hand failed Him and slept through the dark hour when He most needed their fellowship in sympathy and prayer.

Alone? If the Master had to walk the way of surrender alone, let no Christian expect that it will be otherwise for him. Let us thank God for every blessing of true fellowship, but let us not be surprised if we are often called to walk alone—with God.

IV. A Way of Betrayal (vv. 45, 46).
"He is at hand who doth betray me" "into the hands of sinners." One feels that the cup of the Master is already overfull without adding betrayal by one of His own, but there it is, a dark and tragic reality. Note with what peace and assurance Jesus goes to meet it. The victory has already been won in prayer, in communion with the Father, and in submission to His will.

No one of us will ever know such a betrayal as that of our Lord, but we do face similar crises as we go on in a life of devotion to God's will. We do well to remember the experience of Christ that we be not overwhelmed by the treachery of men and that we prepare ourselves to meet it with the power and grace of our God.

V. A Way of Divine Fellowship and Blessing (vv. 39, 42).
The way of surrender is a glorious and delightful way to go. But, some one may ask, have we not been talking of sorrow, self-denial, loneliness and betrayal? Yes, but even these things may become the means of blessing if God is in them.

Though no man stood by our Lord in His experience in Gethsemane, the Father was there. Jesus talked with Him, prayed to Him, trusted Him, yielded fully to His will, and the result was peace and blessing.

We read in Luke 22:43 that an angel also came and strengthened Him.

Fabric Alone or With Straw Is Millinery Theme for Easter

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ONE glance at the new hat fashions for spring, year 1940, and forthwith you feel your spirits mount high for you know in a flash that milliners are turning out creations of the flattering sort.

Perhaps the most outstanding news in regard to hats that will grace the Easter millinery picture is the wide use being made of fabric, especially jersey (for wrapped turbans and snoods) and silk prints as gay and colorful as an artist's palette. See the hat centered below in the illustration. Here is a bright and shining example of what is being done with silk print. This wondrously chic little pillbox with shirred crown is made of a bordered silk print scarf. Its patterning of overlapping disc motifs achieves a dashing color alliance. The manner in which the draped matching scarf is attached to the back of the hat by means of snaps so that it can be removed at will is both unique and practical. The fact that the hat can be worn alone with its detached scarf translated into a neckerchief, knotted in place or held with a gay pin, adds greatly to its interest.

One of the big attractions offered to style-seeking women this season, is the print dress and hat ensemble with a matching turban. You will find as the season progresses that the theme of the matching hat of printed silk will prove fashion's favorite spring song.

Now that the pastel color craze is taking the world of fashion by storm it has become a reigning vogue to wear a classic draped turban made of the identical pastel material that fashions the dress. The striking dinner gown pictured in the inset oval illustrates this new trend. Sand beige silk jersey is the fabric that fashions this charming costume. The bodice is softly gathered from high neck to high waistline. The flowing skirt is pleated into a wide wrapped girdle. An elaborate ornament set in gold trims the rajah turban of self silk jersey in the manner of a regal potentate.

Sailors are with us again. Milliners report they are better than ever this season. Dusty pink suede forms the bandeau of the navy blue straw sailor shown at the top to the right. The ends of the suede jut through the crown and are stitched to give stiffness. A lovely model this, to wear with the very new and smart navy costume on Easter day.

Another type that maintains style prestige is the postillion. Lime green straw and a cactus blossom trim gives a springtime air to the postillion illustrated below to the right. This simple model will make an excellent fashion "first" to initiate your spring style program.

The new collections include many hats that are made of ribbon. A high-crowned chapeau of golden mustard-colored ribbon swathed in black net veiling, as shown above to the left, is a youthful headpiece that tunes ideally to midseason and early spring wear.

Cellophane black straw and felt combine to produce the smart turban pictured below to the left. A fan-shaped end of the felt mounting from the crown gives a note of height.

Day and night, stripes continue active in the fashion realm. A handsome silk in stripes that adopt a color scheme of Quaker gray, pink and white is the fabric choice for this tailored jacket designed for dinner wear. The leg o' mutton sleeves, box-plated (at the back) pleum, the zippered front fastening are important style details. Taffeta is becoming increasingly important for formal evening gowns and daytime costumes as well.

The Basic Coat
A perfect foil for magnificent fur accessories is the simple untrimmed black cloth coat.

Ask Me Another A General Quiz

The Questions

2. Is it true that each star in our flag stands for an individual state?
3. Why is the Arctic ocean so named?
4. Where is the largest jail in the world?
5. How did the word colony originate?

The Answers

1. Vast excavations extending under the city, formerly subterranean quarries which furnished building material for the city.
2. No, the stars collectively represent the 48 states of the Union.
3. "Arctic" is from the Greek arctos, a bear, the reference being to the northern constellation of the Great Bear.
4. The largest jail is in Ward road, Shanghai, with accommodations for more than 7,000 prisoners.
5. The Romans made settlements of men to cultivate the soil, these being known as colonia; hence the origin of the word colony.

Startling Color Schemes Are Seen

Daring is the word for the startling color schemes that are carried out to a nicety by designers this season. It is really a revelation that colors so intensely "contrasty" can resolve into a symphony of color loveliness under the touch of an artist style creator.

Navy for the skirt, old gold for the blouse, bright red for the wide corsete girdle and the entire sums up to color perfection as a charming dress in sheer wool recently displayed bears testimony.

Clever two or three-color alliances are being handled with brilliant and decidedly novel technique. A dark dress takes on a front panel of vivid tone, such as red with navy, fuchsia with turquoise. An evening gown in blackberry tone has a long train starting between the shoulders of bright fuchsia red.

Dual Personality In Jacket Outfits

Bright print jacket costumes possess a dual personality which more than doubles their practicality. While they may be worn on coatless spring days they also present a smart late winter appearance under fur coats.

A print with a white pattern on pearl gray makes an ideal background for bright-colored accessories. With a gray or black fur coat your accessories might include a gray hat with a red feather trim, and red gloves and bag.

High-Color Gloves Match to Jewelry

A new move in the fashion realm is that of bright gloves that sound the key color for the rest of the accessories. Especially effective is this color treatment when gloves match the color of the enamel flower necklace worn.

More Stripes

Day and night, stripes continue active in the fashion realm. A handsome silk in stripes that adopt a color scheme of Quaker gray, pink and white is the fabric choice for this tailored jacket designed for dinner wear. The leg o' mutton sleeves, box-plated (at the back) pleum, the zippered front fastening are important style details. Taffeta is becoming increasingly important for formal evening gowns and daytime costumes as well.

CRYSTAL BEE GAME

Monday evening the Canners travelled to Benzonia where they played the Crystal Bees, a two city team of Benzonia and Beulah players, in a feature show. The Benzonia-Beulah school district has just completed a fine new gymnasium and the Canners were given the privilege of being the first so-called power aggregation to play in it. After the game the squad agreed it will rank with any floor they have appeared on this winter.

As to the game, they won 43 to 24. A mishap with one of the cars necessitated traveling in one car from Benzonia to Benzonia. They did not arrive till after 9:00 p. m. and, of course, had to dress immediately for the game. After the cramped trip, they were not able to give the first class passing and shooting show they had hoped to give the large crowd on hand.

Their passing was erratic, the snap and drive was lacking, and many of their dog shots missed the mark. However, this does not mean that the Crystal Bees were a poor team by any means.

Despite the fact the Canners gradually lengthened their lead the final two quarters, the Bees never stopped plugging and made a game of it all the way. The Bees had a nice passing game and broke up many of the Canners erratic passes. They also sank several fine long shots.

The five foul rule was not used in the game.
