If inclement weather prevails the program will be held at the School Auditorium.

The ceremony at Sunset Hill will follow immediately after the above program.

Mortimer Tyner Well Known Barber Laid To Rest

Richard Mortimer Tyner passed away at a Charlevoix hospital, Monday, May 20th, following an illness of about a year from Bright's disease.

Mr. Tyner was born May 19th, 1869, at Tamworth, Ontario, Canada. He came to Michigan in 1889 and in 1898 located in East Jordan where he engaged in barber work which he continued up to a few years ago.

In 1903 he was united in marriage to Louise Blake. Mrs. Tyner passed away Nov. 29, 1929. Mr. Tyner was a member of the Methodist church.

Deceased is survived by a sister, Mrs. William V. Cahill, of Waterford, N. Y.

Funeral services were held from the Watson Funeral Home, Wednesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. James Leitch of the Methodist church. Burial was at Sunset Hill.

As a mark of the esteem held by his associates throughout the years of business contact, the places of business were closed in East Jordan during the funeral hour.

"Legal" Advertising A Constitutional Guarantee of Security

Plaintiffs in court proceedings should be "most thankful" for the Michigan statutory provision for service of notice by newspaper publication, in the judgment of Henry L. Woolfenden Jr., executive secretary of the State Bar of Michigan, state organization for attorneys.

"The person who usually 'kicks' about the necessity for the 'legal advertisements' and its costs is the plaintiff," states Mr. Woolfenden.

"Too infrequently does he realize that if it were not for the substituted service of notice which is made available to him by the legal advertisement, his hands would be tied when he came to prosecute his right of action against a defendant unless he could find the defendant and serve him personally.

"In many cases this would be impossible — in others very slow and very expensive. The plaintiff should be most thankful for the statutory provision for service by publication.

"In the recent era of mortgage foreclosures under the statute, I

Charlevoix Pomona Grange Meets Saturday, May 25

Charlevoix Pomona Grange will meet with Boyne River Grange at their hall, Saturday evening, May 25, 1940, at 8:00 o'clock.

Co-operative supper will be served from 6:30 to 8:00. Come and enjoy a fine supper, and a pleasant evening. The worthy Lecturer, Mrs. Hazel Murray, is preparing a good program with several surprises.

At our last Pomona all granges in the county were represented but one, which is very good. Let's make it 100 per cent at this meeting.

War Victims Need Your Aid

RED CROSS WANTS YOUR HELP. MAKE YOUR GIFTS AT STATE BANK

In a campaign launched by Norman H. Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross, the Red Cross is gathering funds to be used to alleviate the suffering of victims of the recent German invasion of those innocent and inadequately prepared small countries, Belgium and Holland. This is a campaign in which all of us may help if we have the will to do so. No gift is too small to be acceptable. Remember that these people, — the aged, women and children, invalids, the helpless, suddenly find themselves homeless without even the commonest necessities for life. Many are suffering and dying from the illness of exposure and lack of rest. Frequently even the "cup of cold water" is lacking, for along with all the other destruction, water supplies have been destroyed. All the able-bodied men are mobilized, fighting together to drive off the enemies of their country. They can do nothing for their families, scattered far and wide by hideous aerial bombing. A great army of bewildered civilians wanders in sad plight across the smoking ruins of Belgium and France, desperately seeking a safety which they cannot find, may never find except in death.

We are safe here, but our neighbors across the sea are in distress. They need food and clothing, and from our abundance we can share with them through the agencies of the Red Cross which enter war torn countries to aid the civilian populations.

The State Bank of East Jordan will accept your gift, record it, and forward it to the National Red Cross Headquarters for immediate distribution through our own agent in the stricken countries who will see that the money is used only for the purposes for which you intend it. Please send your contribution at once. Perhaps it is smaller than you wish, but remember how valuable in the eyes of the Lord, was the "widow's mite." There is no time to lose if we would avail ourselves of this privilege — the privilege of every man, woman and child in the United States of America — to help those who through no fault of their own must have immediate aid if they are to survive.

heard several mortgagees 'kick' about the length of notice required and the number of times it must be run. In the first place the mortgagee is fortunate to have this means of foreclosure without having to go to court with the increased cost and usually greater delay of a chancery suit. He should be thankful for it, not critical of it.

"In the second place any reduction in the number of publications reducing the cost of the publication would facilitate still more the foreclosure of mortgages, and that is contrary to the whole trend of legislation which is aimed to help not the mortgagee but the man on the other side of the fence, the mortgagor.

"The wise mortgagee will be content to retain the present mortgage law, rather than commence a change which will probably result in a law less favorable to himself.

Mr. Woolfenden points out that newspaper advertising of legal notices "furnishes the only means of fulfilling in a practical way the constitutional guaranty of security to every citizen."

Meguzee Ass'n Hold Annual CONVENTION AT EAST JORDAN. MORE THAN 300 IN ATTENDANCE.

Mark Chapter No. 275, O. E. S., entertained the Meguzee District Association of Northern Michigan at its 37th annual meeting, on Wednesday and Thursday of last week.

Laura Courier, Charlevoix, President of Meguzee, had prepared an interesting program. Local arrangements were under the direction of Lorene Wade, Worthy Matron of Mark Chapter, and Helen Cohn, General Chairman for the event.

Despite inclement weather more than 300 people attended the various sessions.

Wednesday afternoon and evening sessions were held at the Temple Roof, whose blue-shaded walls formed an effective background for the baskets of white narcissi and yellow forsythia used in the decorations.

The meeting was opened by Past President Ruth Walbrecht Smith of Central Lake.

Charlevoix Chapter presented the Association Officers and Elk Rapids Chapter presented the Past Presidents of Meguzee.

Marion Carey, Charlevoix, Meguzee Chaplain, gave the Invocation after which Beryl MacDonald, soloist of Mark Chapter, sang the verses of "God Bless America" with the audience joining in on the chorus.

Waldo Chapter of Bellaire presented the flag in the East with an impressive service.

The following Grand Officers were then presented:

Ethel B. Koronski, Worthy Grand Matron, Bessemer.
Eloise E. Rowlee, Associate Grand Matron, Battle Creek.
Margaret W. Jones, Grand Conductress, Otsego.
Frances R. Glover, Associate Grand Conductress, Midland.
Viola I. Gram, Grand Marshal, Lansing.

Rhea E. Cashman, Gladwin, Grand Esther, Detroit.
Anna C. Ross, Grand Electa, Midland.
Ada Richards, Grand Warden, Detroit.

The guests were welcomed by Past President Amanda Shepard, assisted by a group of little girls, attired in the Star Colors, who sang and recited as they displayed the word, "Welcome."

Quinton Stone of Petoskey responded briefly.

Musical numbers included singing of the Meguzee Song, a harp solo by Suzanne Porter, and two vocal solos by Marguerita Jones. The afternoon session was closed with a beautiful Memorial Service, given by Evangeline Chapter of Boyne City.

A delightful banquet was served at 6:00 p. m. in the High School Gym by the ladies of the M. E. Church to 225 guests.

The evening session was called to order by Past President Gladys Bechtold and Charlevoix Chapter again escorted the Association Officers to the East. John TerWee and John Pray played two clarinet duets.

Mark Chapter then opened the Chapter in regular form and after the introduction of Grand Officers, Past Grand Officers, and other Honored guests, Columbia Chapter of Kalkaska exemplified the degrees of the Order, with Sarah Netzorg and Millicent Reiley of Traverse City as pro tem candidates.

An address by Worthy Grand Matron Ethel Koronski was followed by brief greetings from other honored guests.

A pleasant surprise was given Mark Chapter when Sister Anna C. Ross, Grand Electa, of Midland approached the East and presented the Chapter with two white Bibles for the altar, the gift of Minnie Shepard, formerly of East Jordan and former Secretary of Mark Chapter.

Mark Chapter closed the meeting in regular form and it was adjourned until 9:00 a. m. Thursday, Thursday morning the Association convened in the Masonic Temple for its business session.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:—
President, Esca Rosenbrook, Grand Rapids and Elk Rapids.
First Vice President, Elva Noll, Kalkaska.
Second Vice President, Julia Porter, Petoskey.
Third Vice President, Rev. John C. Mathews, East Jordan and Elk Rapids.

Secretary, Ruth Larsen, Pellston.
Treasurer, Maude Kightlinger, Boyne City.

Appointive officers are:—
Chaplain, Sarah Netzorg, Traverse City.
Marshal, Mina Morrison, Elk Rapids.
Pianiste, Lottie Clyde, Bellaire.

The 1941 meeting will be held in Elk Rapids.

Those in charge of the convention wish to extend heartfelt thanks to all

Legion Commander Requests All Citizens To Observe Poppy Day

Call for every Veteran of the world war and for all other patriotic citizens to wear a memorial poppy on poppy day, Saturday, May 25, was issued today by Thomas St. Charles, Commander of the Rebec-Sweet Post No. 227 of the American Legion. Wearing that little flower will show that we still are devoted to the ideals for which our war dead gave their lives so gallantly twenty-two years ago. Contribute for your flower as liberally as your means will allow and help make the poppy a symbol of hope for the living as well as of honor for the dead.

MARRIAGE

TerAvest — Osterbaan

Hermine Katherin TerAvest, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John TerAvest of East Jordan, and Kenneth Osterbaan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Osterbaan of Ellsworth exchanged their nuptial vows at 8 o'clock, Friday evening, May 17, in the home of the bride's parents.

Rev. J. T. Holwerda, pastor of the Ellsworth Christian Reformed church performed the ceremony in a setting of spring flowers. The bride was attired in a gown of white marquisette and lace over satin modeled with a sweetheart neckline and a full skirt. Her necklace was of white pearls and her corsage of pink hyacinths.

Jennette TerAvest, assisting her sister as bridesmaid, wore a gown of pink taffeta. Her necklace was of pink pearls and her corsage of hyacinths. Wesley VanderArk of Ellsworth, acted as best man.

The bride's mother chose an aqua silk dress. Mrs. Osterbaan, mother of the groom, wore a blue and white crepe.

The bride was feted at a miscellaneous shower in Ellsworth, April 30, at the home of Mrs. Louis Osterbaan. Mrs. Koo Klooster entertained with a shower May 13 in her home in Ellsworth. Thirty-five guests were present at the shower given May 14 at the home of Mrs. Delos Poole in East Jordan. The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts.

The bride was a member of the E. J. H. S. 1936 graduating class. For the past two years she has been employed in the office of the Michigan Public Service Company. Mr. Osterbaan is employed by the Shaw Crane Works, in Muskegon.

The bridal couple will be at home to their many friends at 441 Apple Street, Muskegon, Michigan.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Farnham F. Dudgeon

President Asks Billion Dollars For National Defense Program; Nazis Smash at Maginot Line

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union

The above map graphically reveals how close German bombing wings are to England's coast should the Nazi war machine continue to hold The Hague, capital of the Netherlands. As indicated, it is only 125 airline miles from this point to Harwich, England, and London is only 100 miles southwest of Harwich. Lower arrow points to Sedan, where Germans launched their first attack on France's famed Maginot line.

THE WAR: On Schedule

Since the outbreak of war last year, the prediction that with the coming of spring fighting would "open up," has been on the lips of observers everywhere. As Adolf Hitler's military machine thrust itself across The Netherlands, into Belgium and France, these predictions were at last coming true. For the world was witnessing what was hailed as "the greatest battle in history."

As in 1914 the German forces were making the most impressive showing in the first few days of the fighting. This time fortifications are believed to be stronger and less open to attack but the Nazi army and air force has developed offensive war to the point where no defense appears to be impregnable.

In The Netherlands, the Dutch army was ordered to cease firing, thus ending resistance to Germany's swarms of bombing planes and motorized troops.

Scope

This intensive fighting along the 200-mile front from the North sea to Saarbruecken was of utmost importance to the allies and Germany alike. This was indicated by the staggering amount of force each side whipped into the fray. Some experts claimed that this first great battle might be the most decisive of the war. It appeared that Adolf Hitler, firmly believing that "the Hour" had come, or forced through Germany's internal situation, had decided to stake all in one gigantic gamble.

As thousands of Nazi planes rained bombs upon military objectives and communication lines, England's royal air force flung back the challenge by loosing ton after ton of high explosives in areas near important munitions plants along the Rhine and upon large German troop concentrations.

Objectives

What the aims of the German high command in the great land offensive actually are, of course remain a closely guarded military secret. But in general it appeared that with The Netherlands at their mercy and with key airports in that country available to the Nazi air force, intensive bombing of the British Isles was an ever-present threat.

QUOTATIONS

... on the war

Robert Ley, Nazi Labor Front leader, speaking of Adolf Hitler said that he is waging war, "in God-given natural mission" to "bring Europe and the world to reason and thereby make Europe and the world happy."

Viscount Gort, commander of the British expeditionary forces in France, "We are now on the eve of one of the great moments in the history of our empire. The struggle will be hard and long but we can be confident of final victory."

Paul Van Zeeland, former Belgian premier, speaking in Des Moines, Iowa, said the small nations of Europe hope "that the might of the United States will sooner or later be felt in favor of right."

Sen. Arthur Capper (R., Kan.) while discussing possibility of war developments shutting off U. S. access to staple stocks such as rubber and tin from the Dutch East Indies, stated that "we would be better off if we were getting our rubber from Brazil." He urged using U. S. capital to develop the rubber industry in South America.

TREND

How the wind is blowing
NYLON—Heralded for several months as the answer to milady's plea for a superior stocking, hose made of Nylon, a synthetic fabric developed by duPont chemists, went on sale throughout the country. Nylon, a tough yet sheer product, is spun from air, water and coal.

POLITICS—In Atlantic City, supporters of a woman candidate for city commissioner, armed themselves with 200 candid cameras in efforts to keep "repeating" voters from the polls. "Every person" whose right to vote was in doubt was due for a snapshot and subsequent check-up.

BUILDING—In the 37 states east of the Rocky mountains, residential building contracts, last month, were highest since 1929. Eighty-eight per cent of the total $135,420,000 in contracts so awarded, was in private ownership construction as distinct from projects financed from public funds.

BUSINESS: Confusion

"When business is good with us, it indicates an upswing in business conditions throughout the country." So said none other than Postmaster General James A. Farley as he announced that postal revenues reached an all-time high at the close of the last fiscal year. He also ventured the prediction that the current year would see an even larger increase in postal returns. In such increased revenue he observed a general improvement in business conditions.

James A. Farley

For some time business analysts have been in accord with Mr. Farley in his thought that business was fairly good and getting better. Now the pattern of war is beginning to stamp itself in the industrial and agricultural fields and these impressions are sure to be felt.

Foreign markets for farm goods will probably be lost for the time being at least, but there will be a shift in the demand for manufactured goods from the warring nations. In particular the allies will no doubt be forced to speed up their purchases of war supplies, mainly fighting planes and equipment.

Whether the ultimate result will be a loss or gain for industry in this country is still uncertain. One thing was certain, however, confusion was the byword on the stock market. Up went some stocks, down went others.

Best guess was that the war would tend to accelerate U. S. trade with our neighbors in the Western hemisphere. And if demands for large U. S. home-defense supplies materialize, war equipment manufacturing firms should register neat gains.

POLITICS: Inside Track

For a long time New Dealers have been claiming that their champion, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, could have the Democratic nomination for the presidency for the third time if he wanted it. Fact now is that with 499 delegates solidly pledged for him and with New York's 94, practically his for the asking, he will have enough votes to be nominated on the first ballot come convention time.

And the third term tide was rising with the war. Many Washington politicians have felt for months that the President's decision to become a candidate hinged largely upon the development of Europe's conflict. With the outbreak of the "big battle" it appeared to them that he would decide to make the race. Other observers felt he would withhold accepting or rejecting the nomination until it has actually been tendered.

Cordell Hull, secretary of state, appears to have the inside track for the nomination if President Roosevelt refuses it. Montana's Sen. Burton K. Wheeler seems to be running second only to Mr. Hull in the Democratic "if-he-doesn't-want-it" club.

MISCELLANY:

FIRE destroyed $1,500,000 in war goods stored in the National Guard arsenal at Montgomery, Ala. An investigation was ordered as Adj. Gen. Ben. M. Smith reported he saw flames break out at the front and near the back of the building at about the same time.

Back to the United States from the Antarctic came Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd. He said he was back because he had been ordered to return, being under navy orders. His expedition has already charted about 900 miles of unknown coastline in Little America, according to Byrd.

"Daughters of the American Depression," some several hundred strong, assembled in Washington for a conference on unemployment. Claiming to be a cross-section of 3,000,000 unemployed women of America, they planned public meetings and hoped to obtain restoration of a last year's WPA wage reduction for women workers.

A contract for continuing Italy's exhibit in the New York World's fair was signed with the provision that "if future international events render it advisable" the exhibit may be withdrawn.

Intelligent Political Opposition Results in Better Government

Republican Party Is Beginning to Realize This Fact and Has Started a Move to Put Its 'House' in Order.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART
 WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—Early in Mr. Roosevelt's first term as President, Democratic Chairman Farley voiced a thought that his party, then preponderantly in control of the machinery of government, would be much better off if the opposition was stronger. Later, he amplified that thought with a statement to the general effect that intelligent opposition always made for good government.

The thing that Mr. Farley feared was that the overwhelming Democratic strength in the house and senate would run away with itself—would get out of hand. That happened. Not exactly in the way, perhaps, that Mr. Farley had suggested, but the majority did get out of hand to the extent that congress became known for at least six years as a rubber stamp. Almost any sort of legislation that was conceived within the administration became "must" legislation. The result was, of course, that there has been a pile of laws passed and a good many of them are so impossible and so unworkable that they will rise to haunt the political party that sponsored them as time goes on.

Paradoxically, this discussion about Mr. Farley's views and the developments that followed is only a prelude to some observations and reports of what is going on within the Republican party these days. The facts that have come from the situation of the last six or eight years ocratic majority, the program of revived party activity will work. If, for example, the Democrats should control the house, there will be that "intelligent opposition" which Mr. Farley suggested as necessary to good government; if, on the other hand, Republicans win control of the house, there will be well-trained men in the posts of leadership that are represented by chairmanships of important committees.

This job, of course, is attributable directly to the brains and the political capacity of one man. He is Representative "Joe" Martin of Massachusetts, Republican leader of the house. It has taken him quite awhile to accomplish the end that is now visible, because for some months there were not enough Republicans in the house to form a bucket brigade. But the fact remains that Mr. Martin has laid his plans well, and I think the Washington writers almost without exception give him credit for a job well done.

Veteran Party Workers Should Get Preference

Back of these efforts of Mr. Martin, however—way back in the hinterland, the prospects of Republican victory, or partial victory, this fall, have brought out the usual number of seekers after the spoils when the sense of smell tells of possible pie counter membership. Now, I don't care whom voters may select but, being a believer in party responsibility for governmental administration, I always have felt those fellows who have done the work in bad times, politically, should be allowed to have more voice in party affairs than the Johnny-come-lately type when the harvest is to be reaped.

To state a specific case as an illustration of many such instances that have been reported in primaries, let me refer to an Indiana contest. Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana's second district had opposition for renomination. It is to be assumed that his rival was a capable young man, but the thing struck me as rather sour because Halleck had fought through the days when a Republican member in the house could count on being nothing more than a piping voice in the wilderness. But when the prospects were such that many looked upon a house seat as a plum, up jumps opposition to a man who has learned much about handling legislation and who stands in a position that will give him a strong say-so about national politics in event the house is controlled by his party after election.

To have upset Halleck in the primary would have gone entirely contrary to good politics. Mr. Farley's assertion applies again. In event of victory for Republicans, a man that is capable and informed is available to help in party leadership; in event of continued control by the Democrats, the needed "intelligent opposition" is provided. Mr. Halleck won his primary battle and it is a tribute to his district's voters as well as to him that he was victorious.

G.O.P. Presidential Aspirants Are Using Wrong Tactics

On the other hand, it begins to appear that supporters of some of the candidates for the Republican presidential nomination are not to be commended in the same fashion. Supporters of the three best known candidates—Taft, Dewey and Vandenberg—are using some tactics that do not make for sound government. That is to say, there are some things going on within the ranks of each candidate's backers that likely will rise up one of these days and smear somebody with a beautiful coat of tar.

As these lines are written, it is scarcely a month until the Republicans hold their convention at Philadelphia. Chairman Hamilton of the national committee has called for the delegates from the several states who are to serve as members of the convention committee on resolutions to get together ahead of time. He has asked them to start work so that the party platform will not be a claphouse through which the winds of opposition charges can sift snow. But there has been objection to that. I regard it as a good move. On the other hand, there are those politicians who are shooting at Mr. Hamilton about it and they are stirring up quite a stink. Their attitude simply reflects a greedy desire to get in on the backdoor at hog-killing-time when there had been no hog killing to speak of for several years.

From conversations I have had with politicians who know from experience, I have a feeling that the Democrats also are going to have trouble in promoting "intelligent opposition" if there should be a Republican victory. There is the same greed, the same conviction of great capacity, on the part of many men now in official position, that constitutes the bone of contention among the Republicans. It looks like a hectic campaign, a year of ruffled feathers and, perhaps, a year when some well known political heads will fall.

REP. JOSEPH MARTIN—He is getting credit for a job well done.

shows what things are engendered by success or prospects of success. Republican wheelhorses tell me with great enthusiasm that this is certain to be a "Republican year." The voters will determine the answer next November, of course, but it is only a reporting job to repeat that the Republican leadership is expected to control the house of representatives after January 1, 1941. It is only a job of reporting to say also that within the Republican party there are some factions that are snarling and baring their teeth at each other because each side thinks their party will run the show for the next four years.

House Committee Lists Are Being Renovated

One of the things that is happening within the Republican leadership, however, displays none of the signs of the scrap for nominations or places of control. It reflects probably as nearly the true type of political intelligence as Mr. Farley had in mind.

In the house of representatives these days, plans are going forward for renovation of Republican lists on house committees. There have been many changes, usually made singly and without apparent relation to each other. But the shifts have been going on for several months and they have attracted little attention, generally. Yet, they make a pattern. The pattern obviously is predicated upon a desire of the mainstays of the house Republicans to see the best men they can guide their party policies.

Now, it may be that that represents the peak of optimism. The explanation given me, however, was that whether the Republicans control the house or whether, after next January, there still will be a Dem-

POLITICAL INTELLIGENCE

William Bruckart explains in his current dispatch that big-time politicians realize that intelligent opposition makes for good government. Democratic Mr. Farley voiced this idea at the beginning of the present administration. Now the Republicans, who believe they will be in the saddle come next January, are reorganizing their forces along more intelligent lines.

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

PARAMOUNT is paying out quite a lot of money because it's not safe to take a chance on an elephant—or rather, on a herd of elephants. You see, though Hollywood has plenty of practically everything else, it's short on elephants; rounding up a thousand unusually pretty girls would be child's play compared to putting your hand on a dozen of the animals just when you wanted them.

That's why O. C. Stratton, Paramount property department head, has arranged to feed 12 of them from now until next summer, when the filming of "Moon Over Burma" is scheduled to begin.

The elephants belong to the defunct Hagenbeck and Wallace Circus, whose receivers agreed to keep the stock on the West coast if the studio would foot their board bill. So the pachyderms are quartered at Camarillo, Calif., devouring dollars' worth of hay daily—and it is hay—while preparations for "Moon Over Burma" goes on. The story opens in Mandalay and shifts to the teak plantations of Rangoon, where the elephants will be shown hauling the heavy wood, while Paramount forgets about buying hay and just pays rental fees.

When you see "Comin' Round the Mountain" you can close your eyes and pretend you're at home listening to the radio—there are eight well-known radio names in the cast. Bob Burns, of course; Pat Barrett, whom radio fans know as "Uncle Ezra"; William Thompson, the "Old Timer"; and Harold Peary, the "Gildersleeve" of "Fibber McGee and Molly"; Don Wilson of Jack Benny's program; and Jerry Colonna of Bob Hope's; Marjorie Bauersfeld, the air waves' "Mirandy"; and Cliff Arquette, who's likely to bob up on almost any broadcast.

PAT BARRETT

Bill Phillips, of the Warner Brothers studio, reduced 27 young girls to tears the other day, and got paid for it. You've guessed why, of course—he's the makeup man on "All This and Heaven Too," and they were shooting the scene in which Bette Davis tells her puppets the sad story of her life and makes them cry. So Phillips stood off at one side and blew menthol fumes at the girls, and they wept buckets-full of tears, right on schedule.

If you're going to New York for the World's fair this summer, remember Metro's Information Centre, located in the city—on the little island at Forty-sixth street between Broadway and Seventh avenue. The attendants will supply you with information about the city and the fair, (last year they helped more than a million persons,) give you free guide books and guide pamphlets, and speak to you in any one of 11 different languages if need be. Also, there is a visitors' registry at the booth—you can put your New York address on file so that your friends will know where to find you. Metro deserves a lot of thanks from its friends all over the country for this.

Del Sharbutt, announcer for Lanny Ross, is being ribbed by his friends because of a mishap while playing softball. He was playing first base with a team composed of members of the staff of Columbia Broadcasting System. A ball was hit slowly to him, and Del whirled to throw to third base for a double play. The throw was wild; it hit the pitcher on the shoulder, bounded back and struck Del on the head. Wonder why softball seems to have such a fatal lure for radio announcers.

ODDS AND ENDS

Truman Bradley, announcer on the Burns and Allen program, was signed recently for his most important screen role; he'll portray one of five millionaires in RKO's "Millionaires in Prison."

Paramount will make "Alma of the South Seas" with Dorothy Lamour in the role created for Gilda Gray—though it wasn't a good picture when the shimmering Gilda did it, years ago.

Oscar Levant, of "Information Please," has a featured part in "Ghost Music," Bing Crosby's next.

A GET-TOGETHER FOR THE GANG

(See Recipes Below)

Whether it's games for two or the whole crowd, you can flatter the going-on-19 set by serving unusual refreshments that carry an air of sophistication. They needn't be a burden on the chief cook, either, if she masters a few short cuts in preparing them.

Sandwiches, salted nuts, olives and radishes, little cakes and coffee make a spread that appeals to any age, and that is sure to be acclaimed by enthusiastic youngsters. Serve decaffeinated coffee, so that youthful enthusiasm needn't be checked in a demand for second cups; and pass lengths of stick cinnamon instead of spoons to stir this tempting brew. By all means flatter the sophisticated teensters by using your best demi-tasse cups.

An assortment of sandwiches can be made in short order if you cut the bread lengthwise, after removing the crusts, and buttering. Spread the filling on one big slice, top with another, and cut into half a dozen small sandwiches. You can make attractive little cakes that will look as handsome as the French chef's "petit fours" by cutting a plain loaf cake or plain layers into small shapes. Then cover with frosting, and decorate with candied fruit.

After-Dinner Coffee or Demi-Tasse.

(Extra Strength.)

Use 1½ heaping tablespoons decaffeinated coffee, regular grind, for each cup (½ pint) of water. Make by any method desired. If using decaffeinated coffee drip grind, measure well-rounded tablespoon instead of heaping tablespoon.

Rolled Sandwiches.

1 loaf bread (very fresh for rolling)
¼ cup butter (thoroughly creamed)
2 packages cream cheese
2 tablespoons cream
¼ teaspoon salt
Red and green liquid food coloring

Remove crusts from a fresh loaf of bread. Cut entire loaf in thin slices lengthwise. Butter each long slice and spread ½ of each slice with a filling made of cream cheese moistened with cream and tinted pink with red food color. Spread the other half with moistened cheese tinted with green food color. Roll like a jelly roll and wrap in a tea towel wrung out of cold water. Chill and then cut into thin slices for serving.

Orange Jiffy Cakes.

¼ cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1½ cups cake flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup orange juice
Grated rind—1 orange

Cream butter and add sugar slowly while beating constantly. Add eggs, one at a time, mixing thoroughly. Mix and sift together the flour, baking powder, and salt, and add alternately with the orange juice and grated orange rind. Bake in greased muffin tins in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees) for approximately 20 minutes.

Cornucopia Sandwiches.

Slice fresh bread in ¼-inch slices. Trim off crusts, so that each slice is about 2½ inches square. Spread with softened butter, and any desired sandwich filling. Roll, to form a cornucopia or horn. Fasten with toothpicks. Chill well before serving.

Fort Atkinson Ginger Creams.

(Makes 3 dozen 1½-inch squares)

¼ cup shortening
2 tablespoons sugar
2 cups flour
¾ teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ginger
1 cup dark molasses
1 egg (separated)
1 cup boiling water

Cream shortening and sugar together. Sift flour, soda, salt and ginger, and blend with the creamed mixture using a pastry blender or a fork. Add molasses and egg yolk and beat well. Then add boiling water, gradually, and beat well. Fold in stiffly beaten egg white. Spread batter in greased jelly roll pan (about 11 by 16 inches) and bake in a moderately-hot oven (375 degrees) for approximately 18 minutes. Cool and frost with boiled icing.

College Cakes.

¾ cup shortening
1½ cups granulated sugar
2½ cups cake flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup sour milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 egg whites

Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, and beat well. Sift the flour, baking powder, soda and salt together, and add to the creamed mixture alternately with sour milk and soda. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into the batter. Spread in shallow, greased cake pan and bake in a moderate oven (365 degrees) for about 25 minutes. Cool and cut cake into fancy shapes with cookie cutters. Ice with pastel-tinted College Icing.

College Icing.

2 cups granulated sugar
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cup hot water
1 pound confectioners' sugar (approximately)
Cake coloring

Cook sugar, cream of tartar and water in a saucepan until a thin syrup is formed (220 degrees). Cool slightly. Then add confectioners' sugar to make an icing of pouring consistency. Add coloring, then pour icing over the cakes, covering them entirely. Decorate as desired.

Old-Fashioned Filled Cookies.

(Makes about 30 cookies.)

1 cup shortening
2 cups brown sugar
4 cups rolled oats
1 teaspoon soda
½ cup boiling water
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1½ cups flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Cream shortening and add sugar gradually. Add rolled oats. Dissolve soda in hot water, and add to creamed mixture with the vanilla. Add flour and cinnamon, and mix well. Chill, roll out very thin, and cut into rounds. Place a teaspoon of date filling between 2 cookie rounds and press edges together with a fork. Place on greased cookie sheet and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees) for about 15 minutes.

Date Filling.

1 cup dates (chopped fine)
¾ cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup hot water
1 teaspoon lemon extract

Combine ingredients and cook until thick. Cool.

JEREMIAH ANNOUNCES THE NEW COVENANT

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 31:31-37. GOLDEN TEXT—I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts; and will be their God, and they shall be my people.—Jeremiah 31:33.

God's law written in the hearts of all men—surely that is the ultimate goal of all of our efforts, and therein we will find the solution of all of our problems. Jeremiah the prophet, in the midst of a despairing people with only captivity and sorrow before them because of their sinful rebellion against God, gives a prophetic foregleam of the day when all Israel and Judah should know God. Sin was to be forgiven, fellowship restored, and men over all the earth were to know God. Obviously, that prophecy is still future for Israel, but in the meantime God has permitted us to enter into the enjoyment of our covenant of grace.

I. The Old Covenant (vv. 31, 32).

The promise of a new covenant at once raises the question, "What was the old covenant?" We do not have space to make any complete study of it, but we note that while God did make a great covenant with Abraham, founding the nation of Israel (Gen. 17:1-14), the reference by Jeremiah is evidently to the covenant with Moses (Exod. 20-23). We observe that it was

1. National (v. 32). The old covenant was made with Israel only, and could bring blessing to the other nations of the earth only indirectly, as they might share the peace and prosperity which would have come to Israel had they been obedient to God. God was here dealing with a chosen nation for whom He had a specific plan and purpose.

2. Limited (v. 32). The blessing of the old covenant was limited not only in the sense that it was national, but also in that it was conditional. God's promise hinged on His word in Exodus 19:5: "Now therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people." In other words, the fulfillment of this covenant was dependent on the faithfulness of the people. We know that they failed.

3. Broken by Israel (v. 32). God was like "an husband" (v. 32) unto Israel. He was patient, tender, forgiving, always trying to restore them to Himself. He used His great power on their behalf as He "took them by the hand," and yet we read "my covenant they brake" (v. 32). Human failure in spite of God's promise and goodness, that is the history of man under law. Now, however, we turn to the new covenant of grace.

II. The New Covenant (vv. 33-37).

Jeremiah looked forward to the day when there was to be a covenant that is

1. Personal (v. 33). The reference here is not to a law written in a book, which may be neglected or forgotten, or broken because there is no power in man to keep it. This new law is to be written in the hearts of men. It is personal—not something which he shares as a member of a great nation.

2. Universal (v. 34). From the least to the greatest, every man shall know God. That promise awaits its future complete fulfillment to Israel (and remember that God has not forgotten His people). Even now, however, we have the spiritual fulfillment of the promise in the Church. It is true now that, regardless of nationality, education, wealth, or position, the grace of God is made manifest in the hearts of men and women everywhere.

3. Assured by God (vv. 35-37). The old covenant of law failed, for it hinged upon the faithfulness of undependable man—"If ye will" (Exod. 19:5). But the new covenant of grace rests upon the "I will" of God (v. 34; see also Heb. 8:10-12). This is indeed "a better covenant, which was established upon better promises" (Heb. 8:6). It is an "everlasting covenant" (Heb. 13:20).

Be Satisfied

I say to thee, be thou satisfied. More Trim, Trig Slack Suits Being Worn Than Ever Before

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AT FIRST popularized by women at swank summer and winter playgrounds, then spreading like a banyan tree to include women everywhere, the vogue for slacks has been growing until this summer more trim, trig and versatile trouser suits are being worn than ever before in fashion history.

It is no wonder that women the country over have adopted slacks as the most sensible costume ever invented. For housework they are a sheer delight, likewise for driving, for long cross-country trips, for golf, tennis, picnicking, marketing and for informal dining, slacks have become an enthusiasm that knows no bounds.

Designers who have always had their ears to the ground to catch the trend of women's likes and dislikes have caught this sweeping approval of slacks and have set about creating new and fascinating styles. This has added to the growing demand for American designers—designers who understand the psychology of the American woman. It is interesting to note that Ruth Wade Ray, director of the Vogue School of Fashion Design in Chicago, says that the greatest number of calls they have for graduate designers comes from manufacturers of sports wear. This, of course, includes slacks and shows the nation-wide trend toward simplified smart attire.

The three-piece style we are illustrating is becoming almost a universal favorite in that it is so eminently practical, including, as it does, both skirt and slacks. Yvonne Andersen, a Vogue school pupil, designs this utilitarian threesome of soft yet firm gabardine in a lovely shade of desert green (gabardine comes in a whole list of other delectable colors). The smart lumber-jacket shirt blouse can be worn outside with the slacks (shown to the left) or tucked in and worn with a narrow belt when a more tailored appearance is desired. A multiple duty feature is added with the skirt (centered in illustration) which, worn with the blouse, becomes a costume for shopping, bridge or almost any place you desire to wear it.

An idea gaining popularity this season is a new version of the lounging pajama. But they're slacks just the same! The trousers are very wide looking, almost like a skirt until the wearer moves about. These are made in soft materials, often with contrasting blouses as shown to the right in the group. In this instance the trousers are in a most attractive clay red and the blouse is of sun-yellow crepe, a coloring in keeping with the environs of a California living room, the theme of which includes a gay sombrero on the wall, a basket to match and candelabra of glittering tin, something very new in household decoration.

So completely have women become converted to the trouser-costume idea, slacks in more or less colorful and designful mood are considered quite proper, have, in fact, become very popular as an informal dinner costume. Certainly they are vastly becoming and have lots of appeal in their accents of gay color. Some of the slack suits have cunning little jackets to be worn with a sheer blouse and they are smart enough for informal dining or dropping in on your neighbor for an evening of bridge. Ceramic Jewelry

Something new in the jewelry realm! Authentic copies of genuine old china for necklaces, bracelets, lapel pins and gadgets. Marion Weber, American artist, is the ceramist that is modeling and enameling ceramic charms that bear every resemblance to their originals. In this most attractive ceramic motif, authentic copies of fine old American, English and French pieces are achieved such as one sees in collections at private and public museums. These, interspersed with miniature gold cups, spoons, knives and forks, are suspended from a gold chain or otherwise cleverly assembled to form stunning necklaces and bracelets in the manner pictured.

Shawls for Sports New Fashion Trend

The fashion for wearing shawls has advanced from suits and evening gowns to dresses for spectator sports wear. A gray linen outfit that buttons up the front has a matching gray and white linen shawl with a deeply fringed border.

White Accessories On Style Program

White hats, white shoes, foamy white neckwear, white gloves, buttonieres, and loads of white jewelry, such is the program for the coming weeks.

For flattery try one of the new white chenille dotted white veils. Glorify your navy straw hat with an exquisite realistic huge white rose. Trim your new gray felt hat with white violets repeating the violets on your lapel.

Be sure your white handbag is immense (the larger the smarter) and see to it that your white gloves go elbow length—and so on and so on, for the story of "white" is too lengthy and rife with brilliant high spots to condense in a few paragraphs.

Jeweled Ear-Hooks New Paris Fashion

Newest Parisian earrings hook over the top of the ears and drip chains of diamonds or other precious stones. The hooks are designed of fine gold wire shaped like spectacle frames. They hold a large round diamond against the lobe of the ear, and pendants of pear-shaped jewels over the top of the ear, close to the hairline.

Jersey Slack Suit Has Strong Appeal

Brown and white jersey, in a half-and-half arrangement, is used for an attractive slack suit that may also be worn for lounging. The back of the suit and one sleeve and shoulder are brown, while the rest of the suit is white. The jersey jacket is long and very fitted and has two patch pockets that extend all the way across the front.

FARM TOPICS

HIGH-GRADE HAY SAVES FEED COST

Fertility Value of Legumes Is Also Beneficial.

By W. B. NEVENS

(Professor of Dairy Cattle Feeding, Illinois College of Agriculture.)

Producing and feeding high-quality hay is one of the best ways to lower live stock feeding costs.

To make the present conservation program of growing more acres of soil-building legumes and fewer acres of soil-depleting cash crops more effective, high-quality hay for live stock feed and the poorer grades for bedding, which can be returned to the soil in the form of manure, should be used. On most farms material savings in the cost of producing live stock and live stock products result from feeding more high-quality hay and less grain for each animal unit.

Then too only high-quality legume hay sells for more than the value of the phosphorus, nitrogen and potassium it contains. The fertility value of alfalfa, clover and soybean hay is $8 to $9 a ton. This means that a profit is possible only on the highest grades when one is raising hay for market.

Quality in hay really means feed value. The factors which affect quality include maturity or ripeness, percentage of leaves, color, foreign material such as weeds mixed with the hay, soundness or condition, size and pliability of the stems, and the aroma.

From the standpoint of the chemist who analyzes hay samples, quality in hay refers mainly to its protein, carbohydrates, mineral and vitamin content. From the feeder's standpoint, the extent to which these nutritive elements are present is represented by the quality factors, such as maturity, leafiness, and green color, that can be judged by examining the hay.

New Cheap Treatment Preserves Fence Posts

Farmers in the past have been forced to shy away from pine, poplar and some of the common hardwoods when they selected trees for fence posts, but Parker O. Anderson, extension forester, Minnesota university farm, says that a new "tire tube" method of treatment is going to change all that.

It has been known for many years that if preservatives were used, posts would last much longer. Former methods of treatment were slow, awkward and expensive, however, and never received popular approval.

The new plan involves the use of a cheap preservative, zinc chloride, which is applied to green posts through inner tubes tightly stretched around the large ends of the posts. The preservative is measured and poured into the tubes while the posts lie at an inclined angle. Eight to 24 hours are needed for the chloride to seep into the wood and replace the sap.

Cheap, practical and efficient—the new method is bound to prove a big source of savings to farmers, says Anderson. By using it, abundant, fast-growing trees may be converted, into posts that will last about as long as cedar. Cost of the materials used will vary with the variety of wood, also the size and condition that it is in, but for ordinary posts it averages about six cents each.

Wild Game on Farm Can Be a 'Pay' Crop

Farmers who support game on their farms are just as much justified in expecting some return from it as for their crops of oats, beef or corn, says Donald Hatfield of the University of Minnesota. He suggests farmer-sportsman cooperatives to protect the farmer against trespass abuse and to give the hunter more land to shoot over.

Michigan, Ohio and Iowa are some of the states where cooperatives have been set up. By this plan, the farmer furnishes the land and grain and the sportsman contributes cash either directly to the farmer or toward increasing the game supply.

The best plan, says Hatfield, is for several farmers to form an association aggregating not more than 4,000 acres in a solid block. Post the area and make rules regarding the number of hunters per unit of area. From one to three hunters for each 50 acres probably is the best number to start with. Keep the price low but high enough to support improvements.

Farm Notes

One ton of grain to each cow each year is a good general formula for dairy cattle.

Last year bankruptcies among farmers dropped to the lowest point in almost two decades.

If a cold chisel becomes mushroom-headed, reduce the turned edges with a grinder until the driving end is slightly smaller than the haft of the tool.

Garden Gossip

Edited by Caroline Harrington

Letters and questions on garden topics will be welcome. They will be published and discussed in this column.

Dear Garden Gossipers:

Because I have been so dismayed to see the burning over of the fields in spring, I am publishing for you the following bulletin, issued by the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan. Please read every word of it, think about it as you work, and talk about it when you meet your friends, particularly talk about it when you see the grass fires creeping over the meadows and hills, or when you see the blackened acres where a fire has scorched away so much that it is valuable to the soil.

It takes nature many, many years to build up a single inch of the top soil necessary to grow our food, and this top soil must constantly be replenished in order to maintain fertility. What does nature use to make this top soil? Chiefly she uses the decaying vegetation of previous years. The ashes that remain after a fire are not enough. The fire removes vital soil elements, releases them into the air in the form of gases. Fire is a weapon to be used with the utmost caution. Not all "burning over" is good. "Burning over" accounts for much impoverished soil.

Following is the article:

SPRING BURNING

Spring burning of the dry grass and brush of marshes, fence rows, and roadsides is such an established tradition in some parts of Michigan that too often we no longer think of why we set the fires. We simply go out in the spring when things are dry enough, and teach a match to them.

It will pay us to stop and think about why we do spring burning. When we know more about it, perhaps we'll do less of it, if we do not stop it altogether.

A common notion that prevails in our minds is the idea that burning somehow does the land some good. That notion must puzzle the soil chemist, who knows that even the so-called "light" fires burn much fertile material off the top layer of soil. For soil enrichment, the prevention of fire is a method that has far more to recommend it.

It's common knowledge that the "duff" of the forest floor burns readily in a forest fire. In fact, a ground fire in this loose material is one of the most difficult kinds of fire to put out. Dead organic material that is on the way to becoming soil in marshes and fence rows and roadsides will burn, too, and when conditions are dry enough for good burning, considerable richness is burned right out of the topsoil.

A fair test of the richness of soil is the variety and the abundance of vegetation it supports, in a natural state. It is an established fact that burned-over woods areas have fewer plants and less variety of plants than areas that have long been undisturbed. And the more delicate plants, like trillium and hepatica, are usually lacking entirely from areas severely or repeatedly burned.

It has been said that the best evidence against spring burning is a immediately after the fire has swept through it. Looking closely, one can count the birds' nests, some with eggs in them, that have been destroyed. Many weed-seed and insect eating birds are lost to the farmer for the coming season. In southern Michigan, young rabbits are often burned alive in their nests, and the nesting places destroyed. Farmers who have come to realize the value of pheasants and rabbits as a crop, both for their own table and for the entertainment of their friends from neighborhood or town, will see what a waste of this wildlife asset spring burning causes.

Much of the misunderstanding about spring and fall burning comes from the use of fire on the blueberry plains. Wild blueberries, as you know, aren't worth pruning, as a gardener would prune bushes in his garden. But fire can be used as a pruning agent, to burn off the woody growth and confine the plant's substance to new, productive stems. In a wet season, fire may do a good job of pruning blueberries, at the expense of every other kind of plant and animal life, of course. In a dry season, fire burns roots as well as tops, and then it's years before there are blueberries in that spot again.

Light fires in the right spot, at just the right season of the year have sometimes opened pine cones to give the seeds a good start on bare ground. But only where the land is can one risk using such crude, uncertain methods.

Those who do set fires in fence-rows should remember that fire is no

DUMB? YOU'LL PROBABLY NEVER HAVE STOMACH ULCERS

How worry, fear, anxiety and too much mental activity bore the often fatal holes in the duodenum, is explained by Dr. H. I. Goldstein, noted stomach specialist, in an article which is one of many features in The American Weekly, the great weekly magazine, with the May 26 issue of The Detroit Sunday Times.

respector of fences, but often goes through the fences to destroy the plantings that the highway department has set out to serve as snow fences, to prevent soil erosion, and to improve the appearance of the country roadside.

And those who are regular burners can expect to find plenty of insects in their gardens and orchards, and weed plants in their truck patches, and no small game on their farms. As always, of course, when using fire, there is the risk that the flames will get out of control, to endanger crop lands and farm buildings. In 1938 a grass fire near Lapeer did get out of hand, and burned over about 1500 acres before the damage was halted.

Says "Louise" of the two happy little wrens who are her neighbors this spring: "There are two happy little wrens, living in our apple tree, just outside the kitchen window, and they are such a joy to me. I hear them sing in the morning, and all through the livelong day, whether it rains or the sun is shining, they warble their carols gay. I watched them carry grass and twig, plus feathers and strings with a zest, up into their modest house where they are building a nest. Sometimes it seemed a hopeless task, to get the twigs through the door, but they would pause and sing a song, and then fly back for more. Now, whenever you are feeling blue, or fate seems so unkind like the wrens, try singing a happy song, it will lighten the load every time. It's one of the lessons we call can learn, little child or the wisest of men, from the birds that live in our apple tree, the two happy little wrens."

By Decoration Day Mrs. Votruba expects to have at least 1000 tulips in bloom. Last fall she put in 300 new bulbs, bringing the total of tulip bulbs in her garden to not less than 1300. Already she has picked (May 17th) three dozen blooms. Her hyacinths, in all colors and shades of colors, are blooming, and she has picked four dozen. On May 7th she planted 300 new gladiolus corms and during the season will plant 700 or 800 more, making 1100 new corms planted this season besides 1000 old ones, saved from other years. She will be able to display many interesting new varieties. Mrs. Votruba urges that you plant gladiolus in your vegetable garden. Here they take up little room and require no extra time, except for planting. And they benefit by the care given the vegetables. And remember, — Mrs. Votruba plants gladiolus corms at regular intervals of two weeks, during the summer putting in the last batch the first week of August. This insures blooms until late fall. Already she has planted calendula, annual phlox, carrots, beets, radishes and her annual baby's breath is "in and up." The latter she plants, like the glads, at regular intervals during the summer, thus making sure of plenty of the delicate lacy flowers for her bouquets.

Experimenting, striving for new effects, — that's how to make gardening ever more interesting. Don't stick to the conventional. Don't follow the old pattern in all that you do. Think up something different, and then don't be afraid to try it. Mrs. Swoboda put her imagination to work and is going to have a red, white and blue border this summer — a combination of salvia, ageratum and alyssum. What are you going to do to pep up your garden this year?

In your herb garden plant sage, summer savory, thyme, mint, chives, catnep, saffron, anise, sweet basil, sweet marjoram, rosemary. You'll find uses for all of them not only during the summer, but during the winter in your baking, cooking, and for packet gifts that can be enclosed in letters to far away friends who'll cherish a bit of your garden.

Home for the summer from school, Jean Bugai is going to improve the shining hours by having a garden again this summer.

SURVIVES DEATH BLOW

Mt. Pleasant — Henry Jennings, Lincoln township farmer, decided he would have to put a deformed calf born on his farm out of its misery. A blow on the animal's head from a three pound hammer was thought to have done the deed. Later, children returning from school found the calf in good health, with the deformity apparently remedied.

"No Child of Mine will ever get WORMS!"

That's what YOU think, Mother!

Nobody is immune to round worms. Children can pick up this nasty infection from uncooked vegetables or bad water; from other children or dogs.

Here are some of the danger signs that may mean living, crawling round worms are inside your child: Fidgeting and squirming. Uneasy stomach. Itching nose and seat. Restless sleep. Biting nails.

If you even suspect that your child has round worms, get JAYNE'S Vermifuge right away! Jayne's is known throughout America for its ability to drive out large round worms. It has been used by millions of mothers, for over a century.

Jayne's Vermifuge is a pleasant tasting worm medicine that does not contain castor oil. It expels those dreadful large round worms without upsetting the child's digestive system. And if no worms are there, Jayne's acts merely as a mild laxative.

CHAPTER XVIII—Continued.

Norwood drew rein beneath the baobab tendril. He didn't even have to stand in the saddle to reach it. The sais rode forward and took the reins. Norwood climbed the tendril, hand over hand, swung himself on to the wall, and walked forward. As he emerged out of the shadow of the overhanging trees, he saw O'Leary looking backward toward him. Norwood extended both arms and moved them slightly up and down. That was an order to O'Leary to patrol the road. Norwood wanted no witnesses. He walked forward along the wall, toward the kiosk, where Rundhia stood talking to Lynn.

Lynn saw him first. She looked startled and Rundhia faced about for a moment speechless. "You, is it!" he said. "What the devil do you mean, climbing walls at this hour of the night?"

"I came looking for you. No, it isn't my ghost. They missed me. Did you hear the shooting? Aren't you rather a duffer at choosing marksmen?"

"I don't know and I don't care what you mean by that remark," said Rundhia. "Get off the wall."

"When I'm ready. Rundhia, what have you been saying about me?"

"You flatter yourself. I don't care to talk about you."

"What did you say to the Resident? He mentioned that you had called to see him."

"Did he? Well, my conversation with the Resident was confidential." "So was mine, Rundhia. Say to me what you said to him."

"You may go to the devil." Rundhia glanced backward at Lynn, then sneered at Norwood: "People who pocket bribes are not entitled to—"

It wasn't exactly a haymaker. It was a right-handed wallop without any ringside pedigree, but with all the strength, contempt and anger of a clean-living man behind it, that landed on Rundhia's chin like a gun going off. It brought a laugh from O'Leary, who couldn't possibly have seen it. Rundhia reeled backward toward the garden as if poleaxed, out for the count. He did a forward knife-bend on the edge of the wall, and toppled backward into the darkness. The crash of shrubbery announced that he had fallen soft. Norwood glanced at Lynn then:

"Just a minute, please."

He ran down the steps to take a look at Rundhia and dragged him out of the shrubbery on to the path. He made a rough estimate that no bones were broken and let him lie there. He returned up the steps and confronted Lynn.

"I suppose you've killed him."

"Oh, no."

They could see each other almost as distinctly as in full daylight. Lynn's hair was a mass of spun gold. Her emotions, revealed on her face, her parted lips, her startled, questioning, proud eyes drove out of Norwood's mind the few terse phrases that he had prepared. He said suddenly, because he couldn't think of anything else to say:

"What are you doing in that make-up?"

"You should have hit me," Lynn answered. "That was a cowardly blow. You gave him no warning. Are you sure you haven't killed him?"

"I'm afraid he'll live. Is it true, Miss Harding, that you told Rundhia about a packet of diamonds that you saw drop from my pocket this morning?"

"Yes."

Norwood stared at her. She didn't flinch. She continued speaking after a moment:

"That is why I wrote inviting you to come and see me. I wanted to tell you what I had done, and to explain how I came to do it, and to apologize."

"I didn't believe you had said it," Norwood answered. "I came to—"

Lynn interrupted: "I did say it. It was my fault. I wish you had hit me, instead of Rundhia. I would have preferred that to the humiliation of being despised and of being—"

Rundhia moaned on the path in the darkness below. "Captain Norwood, I must go and help Rundhia. Will you please let me pass?"

"No," said Norwood. "I will shout for servants presently, to carry him to bed."

herself and looked straight in his eyes:

"Captain Norwood. If you please, I must go and look after Rundhia. Will you let me get by?"

Norwood didn't move: "What did you say in your letter?" he asked.

"If you despised me too much to read it, why ask that now? I know you got the letter. It was sent by one of the Maharajah's messengers, who came back and said he had given it to you. He said you tore it up; he saw you do it."

"Did the messenger tell you that?"

"He told Rundhia."

"Oh," said Norwood.

O'Leary whistled, in the distance, somewhere between the kiosk and the palace front gate. Rundhia groaned again. By the noise, he appeared to be helping himself to his feet by holding on to the shrubbery. Norwood called to him:

"Are you all right, Rundhia?"

"None of your business!" said Rundhia's voice from the darkness. "I'm going to have you arrested."

Rundhia's footsteps went staggering away in the direction of the palace.

Norwood faced Lynn again: "Sorry, I'm in a hurry. Would you like me to see you as far as the palace steps?"

"Oh, no. Thank you."

"Well, look here: I wrote you a letter, just in case I didn't find you."

Lynn interrupted: "I did say it."

I brought it with me. Will you take it now and read it later? It's quite important. Perhaps you'll give me an answer next time we meet."

"If we do meet," Lynn answered. "Why should we? Good-by."

"So long. Don't forget my letter, will you? I didn't expect to find you alone, so I wrote what I thought you wouldn't care to have me say in other people's presence. I said exactly what I think."

Lynn paused on her way to the head of the steps. O'Leary whistled again, twice this time.

"So long," Norwood repeated. "See you as soon as I can."

Lynn spoke abruptly: "One moment, Captain Norwood. You say you have said what you think of me in this letter? I said what I thought of myself, and of you, in my letter to you. You tore mine up."

She tore up Norwood's letter. She scattered its fragments into the darkness.

"Good-by!"

"Careful down those steps," said Norwood. "See you later."

"Why?" Lynn answered.

Norwood swung himself down from the wall, by the baobab tendril. He swung himself on to his horse and was off at a gallop. O'Leary had whistled three times. That meant "urgent."

CHAPTER XIX

The horses and their riders were invisible in the shadow where the high wall curved away from the moonlight. O'Leary spoke hoarsely:

"That must ha' been a snorter! You could ha' heard that punch half-way to Delhi. Who did you hit?"

"Mind your own business. Why did you whistle?"

"Stoddart sent a man from camp to overtake you. He gave the message to me. He said there'd come a sweeper, running like hell, from Mrs. Harding in the guesthouse. She says she has to see you in a hurry, it's important, and won't you come quick?"

"What's become of the sweeper?"

"He lit out. He said all's quiet at the palace."

"Nothing else new?"

Norwood thought a second: "You go to the Residency. Ask to see the Resident in person. Give your message to nobody else. Here—here's my card. Send that in. Ask the Resident to stand by the phone and expect a call from me at any minute."

"Do I know anything, if he asks?"

"No. Look here, O'Leary: I know what I'm going to do, but I don't know what will happen. You follow the Resident to the palace. Slip in through the gate after him and watch for that Bengali doctor. Hold him, if you catch him coming out or going in. When you see me coming out of the palace, if I hold up my right hand, let him go. If I hold up both hands, turn him over to the gate guard. You've no police power, remember. So be careful."

Norwood was off at full gallop, with the sais hard after him, before O'Leary could answer. He drew rein at the palace gate and was delayed there for a moment or two by an argument between the commander of the gate guard and an Indian contractor, who had turned up with a motor truck for Mrs. Harding's luggage and a car for Mrs. Harding. Because Norwood was in uniform, the contractor appealed to him:

"Sir, I am refused admission. Sir, I have an order from the American lady, Mrs. Harding, to collect her luggage and to convey her to the station. It is a long way and a bad road. She has already paid me. I fear we shall not catch the midnight train unless—"

The commander of the gate guard drew Norwood aside: "It is his honor the Resident's wish," he said quietly.

"No business of mine," said Norwood. "May I leave my horses inside the gate?"

The great gate clanged behind him. He walked to the guesthouse. Mrs. Harding was no longer recumbent on pillows on the chaise longue. She seemed even to have partially recovered from her lameness. She was seated bolt upright on one of her trunks, on the garden path, in front of the veranda door.

"There's no understanding you English," she remarked. "Why don't you use your title?"

"I haven't one."

"But your brother is an Earl, isn't he? So you're an Honorable, aren't you?"

"That is not what you inferred at our last interview."

"Well, I didn't know who you are. How could I? I have a letter for you, from Lynn. But the envelope was addressed to me. I have thought it over, and I suppose she must have put it into the wrong envelope by mistake, because I have received no answer to my letter to her. Here it is."

Norwood stepped on to the veranda to read it by the light from the window.

"Dear Captain Norwood,

"I am feeling ashamed and so sorry that I hardly know what to write. Won't you please call as soon as you can and let me explain. I mentioned, without thinking, something that occurred this morning. To my horror, I have now learned that what I said has been repeated, and that the result may be—I can't write it! Please, Captain Norwood, please believe that what I said was merely thoughtless; and that what I have heard about you I refuse to believe. I know you are an honorable man. Please help me to undo my very bad mistake. I will be waiting for you at the palace. Won't you call as soon as possible?"

Lynn Harding."

Norwood returned to Mrs. Harding. "How long have you had this?"

"Don't try any of that hoity-toity arrogance on me!" she retorted. "I'm a Harding, I'll have you understand! I sent a messenger for you because—"

Norwood was gone before she could answer. He dashed into the house, seized the phone and gave the Residency number. Then he lowered his voice:

"That you, sir? Norwood speaking from the guesthouse. Can you come to the palace? . . . Yes, I know you told me to keep away. But I'm a ghost, I'm supposed to be dead. . . . You say you'd heard it already? My God, they were quick! . . . No, no, I wasn't hurt. The point is this, sir: they are betting even money in the bazaar that the Maharajah won't outlive the night. I suspect poison. . . . What's that? . . . Well, for one thing, I know for a fact that Mrs. Harding has been given poisoned toast to make her vomit. . . . Well, sir, obviously to keep her away from the niece. . . . Yes, yes, I have that letter. I've just read it. . . . If I'm not too late, and I don't think I am, I'm going in to upset someone's apple-cart."

He hung up, thought for a couple of seconds and then returned to Aunt Harding.

"Thanks," he said. "Good night. I'm in a hurry."

"Stop! Come back. Captain Norwood, I didn't send for you to use my telephone! Here are my trunks, and I can't get anyone to wait on me. I can't get away and I can't go back in! I paid a contractor in advance, and he hasn't turned up. Please do something."

"Were you running out on Lynn?" Norwood asked her.

"Captain Norwood, how dare you say that!"

"Were you?"

"No, I was not! I was bluffing."

"Uh-huh. Shall I tell her you were bluffing?"

"Don't you dare! If you know where she is, you bring her here."

Rundhia was punch drunk. All the physical fight had been knocked out of him. He knew his nose was bleeding. He knew Lynn was in Norwood's grasp. That Norwood had escaped death was a staggerer almost worse than the punch on the jaw. For the moment, he could think of nothing but Norwood. Like a man in the ring, who is almost out on his feet, he obeyed the instinct to deliver a foul blow.

He reeled and staggered, gradually recovering, along a short cut toward his own palace. As his nerves and muscles recovered, so did his brain. He began to think a little clearly. By the time he reached his palace and had sent for the Bengali doctor, his nose had ceased bleeding and he needed nothing more than a bath and a change of clothing. There were plenty of servants to lay out clean clothes. He talked to the Bengali doctor in the bathroom, where the shower drowned the sound of their voices. Even so, he spoke English, lest one of the valets should overhear.

"Now listen. Don't answer me, or I'll have you hanged. Damn you, I mean that. I'm desperate. Thanks to your letting me down in a pinch and refusing to have anything to do with it, the attack on Norwood was bungled."

"He is alive? I heard they killed him."

"Do I look as if they'd killed him! He's on the rampage. I'm going to get him."

"Careful!"

"Watch your own step. If you fail to kill your man tonight, up goes your number! Is the old fool mulling over his stamp albums?"

"Yes. His Highness is studying stamps. He has with him that stamp salesman from Lahore, who can speak nothing but Punjabi, but can swindle without speaking at all."

Government Scientists Record Speed of Bird Flight

The swiftest birdflight ever recorded accurately is in the neighborhood of 175 miles an hour. Ordinary, unhurried flight averages from 20 to 40 miles an hour, according to the species.

The United States Department of Agriculture has compiled a complete record of the measured flight speeds of North American and European birds. The swiftest denizen of the skies, according to this compendium, is the California duck hawk whose speed, measured with a stop watch from an airplane, was found to be between 175 and 180 miles an hour. The eagle is relatively slow. The Department of Agriculture compiler, found one rather questionable recorded speed of 120 miles for a golden eagle. Only two entirely trustworthy records of eagle speeds were found—one of 30 and the other of 60 miles.

Bird speed records more than 20 years old are worthless, the report explains, because any possible means of measurement was quite inaccurate, and some fantastic estimates were made, ranging up to 5 or 6 miles a minute. Most such guesses, and by far the most trustworthy, were made by hunters. A hunter, aiming at a bird in flight, had to make three subconscious estimates—the distance of his target, the speed at which it was moving in order that he would know how far ahead to aim and the speed of his bullet. The skilled marksman learned to make allowance for these three factors instinctively, but never could explain satisfactorily how he did it. Only one of these elements of marksmanship, the velocity of the bullet, could be measured accurately.

But, says the report, "it has been found recently by experiment that there is an appreciable loss of time in pulling the trigger. Against the sky it is practically impossible to gauge the exact distance of the bird, and the distance it travels may be exaggerated because momentum will carry a shot bird some distance before it falls. An overestimate of a very few feet in these figures will result in the computation of very high speeds for game birds. Gunners have been prone to attribute speeds of 100 or even 150 miles an hour to ducks."

You Can Make Your Own Summer Shade

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS
MR. AND MRS. NEWHOUSE looked out over their backyard and were in no mood to plant an acorn and wait for it to grow up to give them summer shade. Mr. Newhouse bought some second-hand pipe for a song and made a sketch for the frame of a shelter like the one I have shown at the upper right. He had a plumber cut and thread the pipe so it could be put together easily.

colorings. The pipe frame was painted bright blue. Then she selected green and white striped awning material for the top. This material was 30 inches wide and 12 yards were needed. About 15 yards of bright blue bias binding were used for the scalloped edge. The method of fastening the awning to the frame is illustrated. The fabric loops were made of the awning material stitched in place through heavy woven tape.

Cheapest Light

The most efficient source of light in the world is the glow-worm. Chemical changes on the sugar absorbed by the insect produce the light from which it gets its name.

In this process only 3 per cent of the potential energy is lost, the remaining 97 per cent being given out as light. Compare this to the 12 per cent given by electric bulbs.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—due to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.
Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

LARGE GROUP ATTEND WOMEN'S ACHIEVEMENT DAY

At least one hundred twenty-five ladies from all parts of the county attended the Annual Women's Achievement Day that was held Friday, May 17, at the Community Hall, Bellaire.

In the morning the group listened to a very interesting talk on "The Legal Side of the Home" by Judge Parm C. Gilbert, of Traverse City. This was followed by a summary of the year's work by Miss Helen Noyes, Extension Specialist in Home Economics, Michigan State College.

A most bountiful cooperative dinner was enjoyed by all at noon.

The afternoon program consisted of several films by the County Agricultural Agent, Walter G. Kirkpatrick and featured an illustrated talk by Mr. Hans Kardi, Co. Agr'l Agent of Eaton County on his recent European trip including Denmark. The days program was completed by a skit from each of the Groups participating in the work and was featured by the "Little German Band" as was presented by the Mancelona Group.

windbreaks two rods wide on the Merrill Sherman farm, just west of Mancelona on M-88, now owned by Ed. Mills of Custer Township, were made recently by boys from CCG Camp Kalkaska.

Windbreaks for every farm thru the Mancelona, Alba and Elmira areas are being recommended by the Soils Dept. Michigan State College, as a means of effectively checking the erosion of surface soil and at the same time the severe loss of moisture. Experiments indicate that fertility can be better maintained and crop yields increased thru an effective windbreak protection for all farm fields in this area. The Forestry Division, Michigan State College, thru trials made have determined that a two row windbreak is generally sufficient to provide adequate protection, however, Mr. Mills planting is even more elaborate. This is the first large windbreak planting to be made in the Mancelona area and Mr. Mills is to be complimented for his most progressive step. Other windbreak plantings throughout the county have been made by Jerry Dewey of Bellaire, planting made two years ago, Orville Walker of Alba and Thos. Buell of Elmira. A number of other windbreaks on a smaller scale are being planted in various parts of the county this spring. The encouragement given this program through the AAA has been of much assistance in getting county wide action.

J. T. Sheafor Elected Secretary - Treasurer Mich. Bell Telephone Co.

Jean T. Sheafor, assistant to president of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company and long prominent in Detroit civic life, was elected secretary and treasurer of the company by the board of directors Thursday. He will assume the position at once, succeeding the late George J. Brett, who died April 18.

Sheafor will be succeeded as assistant to president by W. Calvin Patterson, the company's commercial superintendent in its southern division, with headquarters at Grand Rapids, effective June 1.

As assistant to president, Sheafor has had executive supervision over the company's advertising and information departments. His elevation to the important post of secretary and treasurer of the corporation follows the well-established "up-from-the-ranks" promotion policy of the Bell System.

Born at Richland Center, Wis., Sheafor received his Bachelor of Arts degree at the University of Wisconsin in 1911. After a period of graduate study, he engaged in public school administration a few years and then went to the Michigan Bell Company as a student clerk in its Detroit business office. He became, successively, district manager, special agent, and, in 1921, assistant to president.

Sheafor has been identified with the Detroit Community Fund throughout its existence; he has served as general chairman of its campaign organization and is a member of the executive committee of its board of directors. He has long been associated with patriotic and national defense movements. He is a former chairman of the Detroit Council of National Defense and has been general chairman both of Army Day and Navy Day celebrations in Michigan. He is active in the Detroit Board of Commerce and a member of the Detroit Athletic and University Clubs. Mr. and Mrs. Sheafor reside at 36 Renard Road, Grosse Pointe Shores.

Patterson is a native of College Park, Md., and received his Bachelor of Arts degree at the University of Michigan in 1927. That year he joined the advertising staff of the Michigan Bell Company, following previous telephone work with the Chesapeake & Potomac Company in Washington, D. C.

In 1929 he was appointed sales engineer for the Michigan Bell, advanced to general sales manager the year following, and was named commercial superintendent in the southern division in January, 1938. Mr. and Mrs. Patterson will return to Detroit shortly after June 1 to make their home.

4-H CLUB NEWS

4-H SCHOOL FORESTRY CLUBS PLANT 55,000 TREES IN ANTRIM, CHARLEVOIX, EMMET, AND CHEBOYGAN COUNTIES

During the past two weeks approximately 600 club members, enrolled in fifteen 4-H school forestry clubs, have been busy planting pine trees in their various school forests which at the present time cover 1361 acres of land. In practically all cases, the land has been obtained from the Conservation Department for the sum of one dollar. The Conservation Department also supplies up to 5000 trees for each club.

Ira Bull, Extension Forester, spent nearly one week working with the groups and demonstrating the latest methods to be used in planting. Mr. Bull was very much pleased with the large number of trees that are living from the past two years' plantings. In all except one or two cases, the percent of live ranges from 75 to 94. Some of the five inch seedlings that were planted two years ago are now twenty inches tall. After the trees were planted, many of the clubs held a picnic or weiner roast. It is very gratifying to see the amount of interest that is being shown by the boys and girls as well as many adults in the various communities.

Later in the year delegates from each of the clubs will be chosen to represent the various clubs at the Conservation Camp which will be held across the Straits at Chatham. This Camp is held the week of September 14th.

The following schools are now carrying on the 4-H tree planting projects: Mancelona, Alba, Elk Rapids, Bellaire, Central Lake, Ellsworth, East Jordan, Boyne Falls, Melrose Twp., Alanson, Pellston, Harbor Springs, Wolverine, Mackinaw City, and Afton.

District Club Agent.

REA BULLETIN BOARD

Hundreds of ways of putting electricity to productive work on the farm will be demonstrated at the big REA farm equipment tour at the C. N. Powell farm, near Torch Lake, on U. S. 31, Thursday and Friday, June 20 and 21.

This traveling exhibit sets up its demonstration with a huge tent, electrical lunch stand, demonstration equipment, and trailer and stationary exhibits. It is brought here through the cooperation of the local project the State Extension Service, the neighboring cooperatives in Grand Traverse County, and the Rural Electrification Administration. The program will start Thursday evening at 7:30 p. m., with talks and demonstrations in the big tent. Demonstrations of feed grinders, milking machines, ensilage cutters, cream separators, cream coolers, water systems, household refrigerators, ranges and small home appliances, will be held the next afternoon and evening.

Mr. R. A. Dell and Mrs. Enola Retherford, REA representatives, will share the program with State Extension Service representatives, D. G. Ebinger, who will present much educational material at these meetings on costs of electric power and its use in farm operations. Until rural electric lines were constructed through the enterprise of the members of the Top O' Michigan Rural Electric Company and the Cherryland Rural Electric Cooperative, work-saving electric dairy equipment and household appliances could not be utilized by local farm people. Now they may effectively modernize their homes and farms.

More stringent regulations governing the distribution of fluid milk, and more strict requirements of dairy produce processors, compel improvements in the farm dairy. In any case, cleanliness in the dairy brings a bigger cream check. Small sterilizers such as will be shown in the demonstration provide a quick, easy way to sterilize utensils and at the same time supply hot water for washing. The old hand-turned cream separator is no longer a slave driver when electricity takes over the job. Also, you get more cream and a higher test, because the separator works better with a constant-speed motor.

If you get less for sour cream than for sweet cream, a cream cooler will add money to your cream checks. Coolers varying from five gallons up to twenty will be demonstrated at the show. The small five-gallon cooler can be used in conjunction with cream storage in a household refrigerator.

Mrs. Retherford, REA home economist, will show in her demonstrations how the household refrigerator has become a year-around necessity. The demonstrations will include points on the care and operation of the refrigerator, how to select a refrigerator, and its use in meal preparation.

RINGS STRANGE ALARM
Fenton — At 10 a. m. one day, an alarm clock suddenly woke Vince Yeager, fireman, who had dozed in his chair. Looking at his watch, Yeager pushed the button which blows the fire whistle every noon. He was quite surprised when volunteer firemen arrived at the station and asked, "Where's the fire?"

LEGAL

MORTGAGE SALE

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage and the note accompanying the same dated January 3, 1939, made by Leslie R. Horn, a single man, of Detroit, Michigan, to the Utica Milling Company, a Corporation of Utica, Michigan, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Charlevoix County, Michigan, on January 5, 1939, in liber 77 of Mortgages, on page 495, and default having been made in the payments of the interest and taxes due on said mortgaged premises, and said default continuing and the whole sum unpaid and claimed to be due at the date of this notice for principal and interest, being the sum of Eight Hundred Two Dollars and fifty ($802.50) cents, and no suits or proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted for the recovery of the debt now remaining, secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now Therefore By virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein described at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the Charlevoix County Courthouse, in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan (said building being the building where the Circuit Court for Charlevoix County is held,) on the eighth day of June, 1940, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage and all legal costs. The said mortgage premises are situated in the township of Chandler, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, and are described as follows:

The Southeast Quarter of the Northeast Quarter (SE¼ NE¼) of Section Fourteen (14), Town Thirteen (13) North, Range Four (4) West, containing forty acres more or less, Dated this third day of March, 1940.
The Utica Milling Company, a corporation, By Howard G. Crissman, Vice-President Mortgagee.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE NOTICE

Default having been made in the terms and conditions of a certain mortgage made and executed by August Leu, a single man to Charles Beebe and Ester Beebe, husband and wife, which mortgage bears date the 24th day of October, 1933 and was recorded on the 31st day of October, 1933 in liber 67 of mortgages on page 118 in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Michigan which said mortgage was duly assigned by the said Charles Beebe and Ester Beebe to Ira E. Lee and Willa L. Lee, husband and wife by proper assignment dated May 7, 1934 and recorded May 23, 1934 in liber 68 of mortgages on page 364 in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County; said mortgage being past due and there now being claimed to be due and unpaid on it the sum of $633.98 on principal, taxes and accrued interest to this date.

Now Therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, Notice is hereby given that on Saturday the tenth day of August, 1940 at nine o'clock in the forenoon, at the Northwest front door of the courthouse in the City of Charlevoix, Michigan, that being the place where the circuit court for the County of Charlevoix is held, said Ira E. Lee and Willa L. Lee, assignees of said mortgage, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder the premises described in said mortgage or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount due thereon, and all legal costs and attorney fees. The premises described in said mortgage are situated in the Township of South Arm, Charlevoix County, Michigan and are described as follows:

The south half (S½) of the Northwest quarter (NW¼) of Section two (2), Township thirty-two (32) North, Range seven (7) west, containing eighty (80) acres of land more or less.
Dated May 17, 1940.
