Farm Security Aids 190 Families

IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY, AVERAGE ONE OUT OF EIGHT FAMILIES

During the last five years the Farm Security Administration has assisted a total of 190 farm families in Charlevoix County, according to Edward E. LaBerge, FSA supervisor for the county.

Supervisor LaBerge pointed out that the last agricultural census showed that there were 1,342 farms in the county. On this basis, he pointed out, the Farm Security Administration has extended loans and other forms of rehabilitation assistance to one out of every eight of the county's farm families.

The financial assistance given by the FSA has taken three general forms, the supervisor explained. First, there are the rehabilitation loans to enable borrowers to carry out improved farm plans.

Second, are emergency loans made to farmers in need of small amounts for immediate use in saving their crops or providing food for their families and feed for their livestock.

Finally there are grants, made to supply urgent living needs to families whose farms are not capable of producing income enough to pay both farm operating costs and family living expenses.

In Charlevoix County since 1935 the FSA has made 74 standard rehabilitation loans, 36 emergency loans, and grants to 80 families. Both standard and emergency loans are self-liquidating.

In Charlevoix County a total of $50,799.26 has been loaned in the past five years. Repayments to date total $21,832.18 or 42.97 per cent. Since full settlement of most of the loans is not due for three or four years, Farm Security officials feel they can conservatively expect eventual repayment of an extremely high proportion of the total amount loaned.

Commenting on the collection record, Supervisor LaBerge said, "We are particularly proud of this, because by ordinary business standards Farm Security borrowers could not be considered good credit risks, yet a bulk of the repayments have been made, and made when they were due."

A vital contribution toward the ability of the farmer to repay his obligation in many cases has been the FSA's farm debt adjustment service, Supervisor LaBerge added. This service is available to all farmers, whether or not they are Farm Security borrowers.

"Since one of Farm Security's purposes is to aid distressed farmers to achieve financial independence, we try to bring the farmer and his creditors together for a friendly and realistic appraisal of the farmer's actual ability to handle his obligations."

"These conferences usually result in an adjustment of some kind," Supervisor LaBerge said. "When the farmer's creditors see that these adjustments are to their own advantage as well as the community's, they usually are willing to scale down the amount of the debt, reduce the interest rate, or lengthen payment period."

W. P. A. Hold Open House Week In East Jordan

The open house week of the professional and service branch of the WPA closed Saturday night with a very successful week. Many visitors attended the procedure of the work.

The week was opened by a fish dinner held in the High School, Monday night for the purpose of acquainting the public with the six projects within our city. Dinner was served to 170 people, following the dinner an enjoyable program was given.

J. Warne Davis, who is a foreman of the Guide Project, acted as chairman of the meeting, and later turned the meeting over to Toastmaster Hector McKinnon, who needed no introduction. Several musical numbers were given. The showing of several slide pictures by Dr. Beuker were enjoyed very much. The evening closed with the singing of "God Bless America."

The closing of Open House Week does not close our Guide Project to visitors, who are always welcome to visit our headquarters on the island, formerly known as the Sportsmen's Club.

South Arm Township Board of Review

Notice is hereby given that the meeting of the Board of Review of South Arm Township will be held at the Township Hall on Monday and Tuesday, June 10th and 11th, 1940.

TO GIVE RECITAL NEXT MONDAY

Piano pupils of Irene Snyder will give a recital for their parents and friends Monday evening, June 3rd in the High School Auditorium at 8 o'clock.

Beginners Band Will Be Organized Next Monday Afternoon

School closes this week and with it, as usual comes the organizing of a new Beginners Band. Several youngsters have made arrangements already to join and next Monday afternoon, from 1:00 o'clock until 6:00 o'clock, more will take advantage of joining the year's group. Parents are asked to come with the children to make arrangements to get an instrument. The meeting will be in the bandroom.

LIBRARY NOTES

Two volumes entitled "American Medicine" Expert Testimony out of Court. What is wrong — and what is right — with American Medicine as freely set forth by leading doctors and surgeons, including men from every state, has been received by the Library from The American Foundation. Some of the questions the Doctors discuss:—"Is radical change needed in the present organization of medical care?" "What is 'adequate' medical care?" "It is available now to all, would half the population still prefer quacks, and patent medicine?" "Is there too much specialization?"

Four more books have been placed on the shelves: "The Everlasting Whisper", Jackson Gregory.

"Trinity Bells", Amelia E. Barr. "The Gadfly", Voynich. "Chevalier d'Arment", Dumas. "A Window in Thrums", James Barrie.

Books for fiction readers have been given to the Library by Mrs. Mabel Secord and Dan Barlow. They are very much appreciated.

New books, which have been on the Rental Shelf as soon as they are paid for, are placed on the shelf above the Magazine Shelves for the convenience of patrons who have read all the books in our book stacks.

The umbrella table has been placed in the hall for umbrellas, packages, and hats.

The following books have been presented to the Library by one of Yale's Friends, who has preferred to make the gift through the University and as an anonymous one:—"Up and Down California, 1860-1864", The Journal of William H. Brewer, Edited by Francis P. Farquhar.

"Lambert Wickes, Sea Raider and Diplomat." The Story of a Naval Captain of the Revolution, by William Bell Clark.

"Tear of Freedom." The Life and Reign of Alexander II, by Stephen Graham.

"The Savage Hits Back." By Julius Lips.

Apostle Edwards To Speak Here This Friday Night

Apostle F. Henry Edwards will deliver a sermon at the Latter Day Saints church here this Friday night, May 31st, commencing at 8:00 o'clock. The public is cordially invited to attend.

East Jordan Rotarians will remember him as giving a talk to that organization at one of their weekly meetings last August.

Garden Gossip

Edited by Caroline Harrington

Letters and questions on garden topics will be welcome. They will be published and discussed in this column.

Now that the fruit trees are shaking out their buds, it is time to spray, and spray we must if we would protect our fruit crops from insect and other pests, but let's remember that not all insects are destructive. Much plant life has been developed by means of the insects acting in partnership with it. Think of how much the bee contributes to our way of life! Not only does it supply us with honey, but it pollinates our fruit trees, our grasses, and our flowers, an infinitely greater service than the gift of honey. Buckwheat honey means more than just honey for your pancakes, it means the buckwheat for them, too. Clover honey means that the important clover crop will reproduce itself, and here, too, the clumsy, supposedly idle bumblebee helps out. If, suddenly, something were to destroy all the Mayflies (they are never described as anything but a nuisance) the fish would be greatly concerned for May flies are an important "hatch" in fish diet along a short life fall back into the waters from whence they came. The common ladybug lives in your garden, harming nothing but the aphids which sap the life of your succulent plants. She and the birds, and Mr. Hoptoad, work faithfully on three overlapping shifts, destroying the beetles, cutworms and plant lice that eat their way through your garden. And the bees see to it that your plants live again in seeds to grow another summer.

GARDENER'S CALENDAR

By Lillian Brabant

May 20th: Put up a plant box. Cleaned under evergreens.

May 21st: Pulled quack grass from perennial bed.

May 22nd: Sowed petunia seed.

May 23rd: Pulled quack grass from around English daisies.

May 24th: Sowed gourd seed Mrs. L. Duffy gave me.

May 25th: Sowed balcony petunias.

"And because the breath of flowers is far sweeter in the air (where it comes and goes, like the warbling of music) than in the hand, therefore nothing is more fit for that delight than to know what are the flowers and plants that do best perfume the air." So says Bacon, the essayist, and he names the flowers which "yield the sweetest smell in the air," as follows: First, the white double violet, next the musk rose, and then sweet briar, wall flower, pinks and carnations, honeysuckle. He also speaks of the fragrance of "strawberry-leaves dying." (I have never noticed this but intend to.) To Bacon's list I add flowers which perhaps he did not know: Evening-scented stock, nicotiana, mignonette, and white petunias. With the exception of the mignonette, these flowers are fragrant only after dark when the night flying insects are on the wing. It is these insects that pollinate the night-fragrant flowers which usually are white or nearly white.

Mrs. Phillips made me very welcome when I walked over to visit her garden now bright with tulips in every color and shade against shrubbery which also shelters iris just ready to burst into bloom. I suggest that you make a point of seeing this garden, so well arranged around a fine lawn, and planned so as to make the best possible use of the yard space from the standpoint of convenience and effectiveness. Mrs. Phillips has made a study of succession of bloom, with the accent on perennials. She is especially enthusiastic about her vegetable garden beyond the pergola, and screen by a hedge, where besides vegetables she has recently planted strawberries and has little fruit trees in bloom. Mrs. Phillips did not say so, but I feel sure her garden is the result of much thoughtful planning over happy years of work and play.

The Weather Man did not cooperate so we could not have our display of tulips at Garden Club meeting last week, but the day was saved by a handful of tulips which decorated the tea table. They came as representatives of the lovely and very early blooming tulips in Mrs. Roscoe Mackey's garden.

Red trillium, also known as Wake Robin or Birthroot, grows on the North American continent from Nova Scotia to Ontario and Michigan, and south to North Carolina and Tennessee, but it does not grow abundantly so when you find it, spare it to seed and so preserve the steadily

MARRIAGE

Parks — McBride

Margaret M. Parks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Martin, of East Jordan, and Robert J. McBride, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther McBride, were quietly united in marriage Thursday evening, May 23rd, 1940, by the Rev. James Leitch. The couple left Friday morning for Fort Wayne, Ind., where they will make their future home, the groom being engaged in road building work there.

4-H POTATO CLUB ORGANIZED AT ELLSWORTH

Seven boys living in the vicinity of Ellsworth met recently at the home of Bud Chellis with the County Agricultural Agent, Walter G. Kirkpatrick, and organized a 4-H Potato Club. "Ellsworth Potato Growers" was chosen as the name for the Club. Bernard Best is the local leader.

Members in the Club are Bud Chellis, Harvey DeGroot, Peter G. Hennip, Peter John Hennip, Abel VanStedum, Billy Best, and Bernard Best. From one-half to an acre of Potatoes will be grown by each boy. Approved practices such as are used by Certified Seed Growers were adopted for use by the Club. It is expected that next year Certified Seed Potatoes will be grown by each member. As Club activities, it is planned that each individual will exhibit at the Potato Show as well as the group making a Club exhibit. A Club Potato Judging team is also contemplated.

GRASSHOPPER BAIT SIGN-UP NOW IN PROGRESS

Supervisors in the various Townships of Antrim County are completing the Annual Survey of farmer intentions to use Poison Bait for the control of this pest in Antrim County during the coming summer.

In order for Antrim County to get Federal assistance in this program, it is necessary every spring for farmers desirous of obtaining poison bait, for the control of this pest, to apply for such bait through their local Township Supervisors.

Application for sufficient poison bait to control the pests on all their tillable, pasture, and cut-over lands that may have Grasshoppers, later in the season is made by every farmer wanting to receive County assistance. Poisoned baiting materials are furnished by the Federal Government are allotted Counties according to the sign-up.

A recent Grasshopper Egg Survey in the County indicates that a very serious problem can be expected this year if weather conditions are favorable. All Antrim farmers who have any likelihood of requiring bait are urged to apply for such baiting materials with their local Supervisors at once if they have not already done so, and thus assure themselves of protection in case the situation so warrants it.

ANTRIM TO BE HOST FOR HUGE NORTHERN MICHIGAN FARM ELECTRIC SHOW

The farm of C. N. Powell, one-half mile South of Torch Lake Village on U. S. 31 has been selected as the place for the staging of a huge Farm and Home Electricity Show on Thursday and Friday, June 20 and 21, according to Walter G. Kirkpatrick, County Agricultural Agent.

This big free demonstration will show electricity in use in many of the more than two hundred approved Farm and Home uses. One can see in actual operation electricity in use grinding feed, refrigerating, poultry lighting, electricity in the dairy, its use in the bathroom, cooking, ensilage cutting, water supplies, garden dwindling race of red trilliums. The specimen shown at Garden Club was sent by Mrs. Walter Davis who found a clump of the rare flowers near here.

Says one of her neighbors. "When it was crocus time, I thought there was nothing in Mrs. Edith Carr's yard but crocuses. They seemed to be everywhere. Then one morning I looked out, and where the crocuses had been I saw hyacinths, daffodils and jonquils. Now that these have faded, like magic the tulips are crowding in to take their places. It is a beautiful sight."

Mrs. Votruba was interrupted as she stood in her garden counting tulips. "There are nearer 3000 than the 1300 reported last week in Garden Gossip," she said. And then, modestly, she added, "But maybe you'd better not say too much about it." We do not need to "say much" — the tulips speak for themselves.

Resolutions of Meguzee Association District of Northern Michigan

East Jordan, Michigan, May 15th and 16th, 1940.

With hearts full of gratitude for this past year with its many blessings and the opportunity it has brought to us for serving the Order of the Eastern Star in this wonderful State and Country, we approach our 37th Annual Meguzee Association meeting.

We hereby resolve to extend our thanks to:

The sisters and brothers of Mark Chapter, No. 275, who so kindly extended to us the invitation to meet with them in 1940, to those who opened their homes and for their wonderful hospitality.

To the citizens of East Jordan for their cooperation with Mark Chapter in helping to make our stay more pleasant while in their city.

To Mr. Drew, theatre manager, for the uses of the Temple Roof for our Wednesday meetings and to the School Board for the use of the Gymnasium for the banquet.

To the East Jordan Lumber Company who so generously loaned and trucked the lumber used for the stage at the Temple Roof.

To the various committees and to the General Chairman, Helen Cohn, and Worthy Matron, Lorene Wade for their untiring efforts to make this such a successful meeting; to those, not members of the Order, who assisted in the programs or in other ways, and to the members who furnished the splendid music.

To the Jordan Inn for their delightful luncheons and to the Methodist Ladies' Aid Society for the most splendid banquet, served in the Gymnasium.

To Sister Laura Courier for conducting these Meguzee Association meetings so graciously and for her pleasing personality which we so greatly enjoyed.

To our Worthy Grand Matron, Ethel Koronski for her efforts to attend our Meguzee sessions and for the inspiring message she gave to us.

We thank all our Grand and Past Grand Officers for their presence and messages.

Resolved that these resolutions be included in the Minutes of the 37th annual session of Meguzee Association and that a copy be sent to the local paper for publication.

Signed: Clara Johnson Ruth McCarty Muriel Jensen.

Canadian Evangelist Brings Stirring Messages

The Evangelistic services now in progress at the local Mennonite Brethren in Christ Church is well under way. Rev. Wm. Yates, Canadian evangelist, has nightly stirred his audiences by his plain preaching and convincing logic. Rev. Yates is a man of wide experience and pleasing personality. His messages, though plain, are sound and thought provoking.

Friday evening, June 7, a special and intensely interesting service will be held for all young people. Every young person in the city is urged to attend. Also a very special invitation is extended to the graduating class of 1940.

Services will continue every evening at 7:45 throughout this week and next. The public is cordially invited to attend all of these meetings.

irrigation, lighting, farm workshop, and many other demonstrations putting it to actual use.

D. G. Ebinger, Extension Specialist in Rural Electrification, and Miss Helen Noyes, Extension Specialist in Home Economics, both of Michigan State College, will be present to give talks and demonstrate some of electricity's many uses. There will also be a number of other specialists in attendance.

All present and future users of electricity both farm and village will want to attend this big free show. Large tents will be placed in which meetings will be held.

The Top O'Michigan and the Cheryland Rural Electrification Co-operatives along with many local dealers of electrical equipment are co-operating in the sponsoring of this mammoth show which will attract visitors from eight Counties — Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, Otsego, Kalkaska, Grand Traverse, Benzie, and Leelanau. Also, all County Agricultural Agents in the eight Counties are cooperating.

These two cooperatives alone service in the neighborhood of twenty five hundred families. In addition, the hundreds of other families in these Counties that are being serviced by Public Utilities and municipal owned plants insures this show of an extremely large attendance.

Pershing Urges Aid To Red Cross

ASKS AMERICANS TO HELP TO ALLEVIATE WAR HORRORS

Gen. John J. Pershing urged every "patriotic and sympathetic" American to support the Red Cross drive for a $10,000,000 war relief fund.

In his second public announcement relating to the conflict abroad, the 79-year-old commander of the AEF in the last World war, said:

"Only two decades ago thousands of our best men gave their lives in the hope that the world would never resort to war again. . . .

"The ever-lengthening trail of suffering and misery which invading armies are now leaving behind them in Europe has blasted all our hopes.

"There is one thing which all Americans can do now, and that is to unite to alleviate the horrors of war for the civilians of the stricken nations."

The State Bank of East Jordan will accept your gift, record it, and forward it to the National Red Cross Headquarters, for immediate distribution through our own agent in the stricken countries who will see that the money is used only for the purposes for which you intend it.

Former School Band Members To Play In Band This Summer

If they want to, all musicians who have an instrument of their own, are asked to join our school band this summer and come to their rehearsals which will be on Monday evenings, from 8:00 until 9:30 o'clock, starting next Monday, June 3.

Announces Plans For Dairy Month

Deserved homage to the foster-mother of the human race — the dairy cow — will be among the highlights of Dairy Month to be observed in Michigan and throughout the nation during June, says A. C. Baltzer, Michigan State College extension dairyman.

During this period numerous national dairy organizations, both commercial and educational, will sponsor efforts to increase public appreciation of the health-giving properties of milk, butter, cheese, and ice cream.

Among the services contributed by the dairy cow, in addition to her obvious function of milk production, is that of helping to maintain soil fertility not only through manure but indirectly through the vast quantities of soil-maintaining crops grown for her consumption, explains Baltzer.

He cites the record of a Berrien county registered Holstein cow, now in her ninth lactation period. This 11-year-old cow, Marie, in the Doan Straub herd at Gallien, Mich., has produced a total of 161,044 pounds or 80 1/2 tons of milk, containing more than 3 tons of butterfat. Soil fertility has been conserved by the animal in that 27 tons alfalfa, 19 tons silage, and 20 tons of grain have been consumed on the farm plus 2,000 days of pasture in the last 10 years and 20 tons of bedding, leaving a residual manure value on the farm totaling more than 90 tons.

The milk production of Marie, according to Baltzer, would be sufficient to supply all boys and girls in the Detroit public schools with a pint for one day or it would provide for a five-person family a pint each for the two adults and a quart each for the three children for more than 40,000 days or 110 years.

No child can be sure to escape BOWEL WORMS

Maybe you don't realize how easy it is for youngsters to become infected with round worms without their parents even knowing it! Your child may "catch" the infection from other children, from a dog, from uncooked vegetables, from infested water.
So, watch out for these warning signals: Unsteady stomach, fidgeting and squirming, itchy nose and other parts, finicky appetite, biting nails. And if you even suspect that your child has round worms, start using JATNE'S VERMIFUGES at once!
JATNE'S VERMIFUGES is the best known remedy in America for expelling round worms. It has been used by millions of mothers for over a century, and is backed by the most modern scientific study.
JATNE'S VERMIFUGES has great ability to drive out large round worms, yet it tastes good and acts gently. If there are no worms it works merely as a mild laxative. Ask for "JATNE'S VER-MI-FUGES."

then something happened. There was shooting—perhaps nothing important—I don't know. I asked Rundhia, and I thought he was lying when he said he didn't know. After that—it was quite sudden—I didn't believe in him any longer. I can't explain it. Then Captain Norwood came.
A servant entered. He announced that Prince Rundhia was waiting.
"Lynn, will you see him?"
"Not alone," Lynn answered.
The Maharanees thought a minute: "It is against precedent, against custom. Lynn dear, will you be shocked if I ask Rundhia to come in here to talk to us?"
Lynn found a smile. "I suppose you're afraid he might brag! Let's risk that. I won't tell."
Rundhia strode in. He stood stock-still in the center of the room. He was wearing a blood-red turban and dinner jacket. He looked like the real Rundhia again. Easy to imagine him horsed and riding hard at an enemy. He gazed at Lynn a moment, then at the Maharanees.
"Has Lynn told you?" he asked.
"Yes, Rundhia. What did you do to make Captain Norwood strike you?"
Rundhia tossed his head. He looked like a man when he did that.
"Lynn saw. Lynn heard," he answered. "I went at once and demanded Norwood's arrest. His Highness your husband, my revered and beloved uncle, refused. Lynn must decide.

"Decide what?" Lynn asked.
Rundhia looked strangely at her. "Does he live or die? It was because you were there that Norwood struck me. I hadn't offered to strike him. There is only one possible resort to that insult—unless you forbid. That is what you must decide now. Lynn, I have offered you my heart and the throne of Kadur. What is your answer?"
"Lynn," said the Maharanees—and stopped speaking.
There was a knock at the door. A servant entered.
"Captain Norwood sahib! He waits. He begs leave to speak to Her Highness the Maharanees. Captain Norwood says his business is very urgent."
"I will not see Captain Norwood," said the Maharanees. "This is no hour for me to receive him." She stared at Rundhia. Then, slowly, to the servant: "Tell Captain Norwood he should ask for His Highness my husband. I will send word to His Highness, asking him to receive Captain Norwood."
The servant vanished.
"Lynn got up out of her chair. She looked desperate but perfectly calm.
"Lynn darling," said the Maharanees.
Rundhia interrupted: "Norwood's fate is in your hands. I will do anything for you—"
"If what, Rundhia?"
"If you accept my love."
"I don't love you," she answered.
"Accept my love. My love will make you love me!"
"If not?" Lynn asked.
"I will kill Norwood. After that, I will let happen what may. If my love means nothing, I will trample it into oblivion. Yes or no, Lynn?"
"Rundhia," Lynn's voice was as quiet and controlled as if she were facing death. "The barrier between you and me is your laugh when you boasted of Captain Norwood's ruin. You promised me that you would do your best to clear him. Did you?"
"No," said Rundhia. "But if you will marry me, I will. I will accept your promise. I don't believe you know how to break one. I will keep mine."
"Rundhia," said Lynn, "I will promise to marry you, if you will write, and sign, a retraction of any and all accusations against Captain Norwood. You must put it in the form of a letter to the British Resident, and it must be witnessed by the Maharanees and the Maharajah.

You must meet Captain Norwood in my presence, and the Maharanees, and you must say to him personally that you withdraw. I won't ask you to beg his pardon, because I won't do that. I won't speak to him. But I insist on your behaving like a man."
The Maharanees spoke suddenly with a ring of command in her voice:
"Rundhia, go to the table and write!"
Rundhia went to the table. Lynn sat down beside the Maharanees:
"Maharanees dear, you must be my wise friend, for I am all in the dark. I feel so western and so lonely, and I don't know whether I am doing right or wrong. But I will do my best."
"Lynn—"
Lynn interrupted her: "Will you make me a promise? Will you never, never tell Captain Norwood why I married Rundhia? Will you keep it a secret?"
The Maharanees was silent for nearly a minute. She was not quite dry-eyed. She spoke suddenly, low-voiced:
"Lynn, do you love Captain Norwood?"
"Maharanees dear, I have promised to marry Rundhia."

CHAPTER XXI

Norwood stood stock-still, beneath a Tibetan devil-mask, between two suits of ancient Indian armor. He had sent up his card to the Maharanees with a request for an immediate interview. It was an outrageous request, and he knew it. The palace chamberlain approached him, stared—stared harder—hesitated, and then:
"Captain Norwood? We had heard you are dead!"
"Yes, I have been wondering who is sorry I'm not dead. Has the Maharajah heard it?"
"No, I believe not. He is rather inaccessible this evening. And it was only a rumor, unconfirmed yet. It was thought best not to mention it to him prematurely. May I congratulate you on your escape. I was said that criminals attacked your camp. I am sincerely—"
"Thanks."
"Your business at the palace? I think the Maharajah might be pleased to see you. He has a document—"
"I have asked to see the Maharanees."
"Oh, impossible! Captain Norwood, please. We have been very unconventional of late, but—"
"Here comes the servant," said Norwood.
The servant delivered his message: the chamberlain accompanied Norwood upstairs as far as the anteroom that led into the Maharajah's study:
"I am sure His Highness will be glad to see you, because of that new document he has discovered. The attendant in the anteroom will announce you. Hee-hee! You may believe it or not, but I wouldn't dare to do it."
"Don't mention my name," said Norwood.
"I wouldn't think of it. The doctor and I are not cronies. I will simply say someone went in. I believe you will be admitted. His Highness spoke of you. I think he really wants to see you."
The chamberlain left him. Norwood was announced. The Punjabi stamp salesman was dismissed, smiling as if he had done good business. The door closed, and Norwood was alone with the Maharajah.
At last the Maharajah spoke: "I am pleased to receive you, Captain Norwood, even though the hour is unusual. You came to speak to me about the—ah—boundary dispute? I have news: Since I saw you, my secretary has found a document which seems to me to make the priests' case so ridiculous that—"

"Oh, I expect to find in the favor of the priests, Your Highness. Those documents may interest lawyers. I am only concerned with the boundary line. I have been accused of accepting a bribe from the priests—"
"Oh! Captain Norwood, you astonish me. Who is your accuser?"
"I supposed you already knew. He will tell you. As a matter of fact, I called on Her Highness the Maharanees. I want to speak to Miss Lynn Harding. I have reason to believe that without the Maharanees' advice she might refuse to see me until perhaps tomorrow. I need to see her tonight. I hoped to persuade the Maharanees to arrange the interview, but she refused, so I came to you instead."
"Is it urgent? Won't you please be seated? Won't you read this document?"
"Your Highness, do you think I would disturb you at this time of night if it wasn't urgent!"
"Oh, well, possibly an interview can be arranged. I will enquire presently. Won't you read that document?"
Norwood smiled agreeably: "I will. As you have reason to know, sir, I'm a bit slow at reading this ancient script."
"I wouldn't care to let that out of my possession," said the Maharajah.
"Suits me," Norwood answered. "I ask nothing better than to sit here for the time being. You will learn why, later."
The Maharajah looked up sharply, but Norwood raised the document between them. He couldn't see Norwood's face:
"You flatter me," he said after a moment.
At last came a knock at the door. The Maharajah tapped the gong with his fingers and the Bengali doctor entered, making his suavest professional bow. He was followed by the Maharajah's personal attendant, carrying a big blue goblet on a silver tray. The Bengali eyed Norwood with horror.
"You are late," said the Maharajah. "Why are you late?"
"I was delayed, your Highness. I—"
Norwood had laid down the document. He rose from his chair. He stepped behind the Bengali. He held his right fist ready for emergency and seized the goblet in his left hand. The Bengali stepped back, out of reach of the fist. The Maharajah made a sudden exclamation, not unlike a sheep's bleat. The white-clad servant backed away, showing the whites of his eyes. Norwood held the goblet toward the Bengali:
"Drink it!" he commanded.
The Bengali was speechless. It was several seconds before he could stammer: "Sir, are you mad?"
The Maharajah, with his elbows on the desk, and one hand within reach of the drumstick of the golden gong, leaned forward, staring.
Norwood spoke again quite calmly. But it was a deadly calm. It frightened the Bengali:
"You are, aren't you, the doctor who poisoned Mrs. Harding's toast?"
"Sir, beware whom you slander!" The Bengali appealed to the Maharajah: "Is Your Highness pleased to hear me slandered by a madman who is known to have been bribed by—"
Norwood interrupted: "Cut that! You heard me. Drink it!"
"That is His Highness' tonic."
"Drink it!" said the Maharajah. He looked almost happy. He sounded quite calm. But his fingernails drummed on the desk. Not a sign of humor.

'Algae' Worry Scientists Seeking Pure Water Supply

Supplying pure, good-tasting water to a modern city has its ups and downs. One of the biggest "downs" is the sudden appearance of a small or taste suggesting moldy basements, cucumbers, pig pens or long-dead fishes. This means that algae is in the reservoir and instead of calling the police with a drag-net, the trouble shooters at the water works go hunting with a microscope.
Algae are the simplest and most ancient forms of plant life. They do not bother drinking water as long as they behave themselves. Usually they are taken care of by filtration and other purification. But, like any crowd, there is always a smart aleck or two. That is when the superintendent of the reservoir has his worries.
Nearly every city water system that draws its supply from surface reservoirs must be guarded constantly against sudden invasions of such algae and their relatives, writes Walter E. Burton in Nature Magazine. The chemist at the water works keeps a rogue's gallery of photomicrographs of the offenders. Once they are identified he starts in to round them up—and out. One of the most offensive algae—Reservoir Enemy No. 1—is Synura Uvélla. He is a two-tailed creature that likes to travel in gangs of 50 or so. Such a bunch, magnified 600 times, makes a spot about the size of a quarter. Three of these gangs in a gallon of water will make it taste pretty awful—some say like geraniums; others like dead fish. Synura loves the cold, so is specially offensive in winter.

Anabaena is good-looking algae—under the microscope—with cells arranged in graceful curlicues. However, it creates an odor and taste described as "grassy, moldy and vile." Asterionella adds the delightful touch of a pig-pen odor to the reservoir water, and it, too, is pretty, with its cells arranged like a star.
These and other public water enemies are one reason why you have a water bill to pay. Just as you need a police department to protect you, so you need the men at the water works, particularly the trained chemists, to keep the water pure and tasty.

"I'll talk English to His Highness," said Rundhia. "The old sheep shall do one useful thing before he dies. You have the poison ready?"
"Yes, but this is a crisis," the Bengali answered. "Are you in a fit condition to control a crisis? To me, you seem very nervous. Let me feel your heart-beat. Why not postpone this until tomorrow?"
"Because tomorrow the old sheep might change his will. I've had a warning from the Resident. By the day after tomorrow, they might already have vetoed my succession to the throne. If he's already dead they'll let me succeed, to save themselves trouble. So poison the old sheep tonight, and take your money and go to the devil. I hope I never see you again. If you fail, I'll take damned good care you hang!"
"There is no risk of failure, unless you are too excited and behave suspiciously."
"Yes, there is," said Rundhia. "You do as I tell you. Be a little late with his tonic, so that he drinks it greedily. I'm going in to see him now. After I come out, you wait until someone else goes in to see him."
"But if no one goes?"
"I will take care that someone does go. If you give it to him in someone else's presence, it will look more innocent. Will he be able to speak after he drinks it?"
"No. It will paralyze his nerves immediately."
"How long will it take him to die?"
"Perhaps ten minutes. Perhaps less. It will appear to be heart failure."
"Very well then. Where's your needle? Give me a strong shot."
"No. Not too strong. You must not get the habit. After this, you will need your faculties and self-control, if we are not to be found out. I will give you just sufficient to steady your nerves."
The Maharajah stared, noted the expression on Rundhia's face when he entered the room and made a warning gesture toward the Punjabi stamp salesman.
"Can he understand English?" Rundhia demanded.
"I believe not."
"Well, I will speak English. If he does understand it, it won't much matter. I want you to call up the Resident and demand the immediate arrest of Captain Norwood!"
"Why?" asked the Maharajah.
"He has not only taken a bribe from the priests, as you already know—"
"I have heard it said."
"You know it's true. And now he has assaulted me. He knocked me out with a punch in the face."
"Were you drunk?" asked the Maharajah. And, before Rundhia could answer: "It would be beneath my dignity to ask the Resident to take official cognizance of a brawl between two drunkards."

CHAPTER XX

Lynn changed from the Indian costume. She entered the Maharanees' boudoir in a chiffon evening gown.
"Please don't get up, Maharanees dear. You treat me as if I were royalty and you a subject or something."
"Why did you change your dress, Lynn? You looked so charming in—"
"Oh, this dress feels more honest somehow. I mean more like my real colors. Maharanees dear, I'm afraid I'm all upset. I'm not fit to talk to."
"Lynn dear, what has happened?"
"Rundhia made love to me, and I wasn't even polite to him. Captain Norwood came, and punched Rundhia—he knocked him off the wall. I thought he had killed him. Oh, why do I keep on getting other people into trouble!"
The Maharanees' worried face seemed to age under Lynn's eyes:
"Lynn, did he hurt Rundhia badly?"
"No, I think not. Rundhia walked away."
"Did you speak to Captain Norwood?"
"Yes, I insulted him. I did it thoroughly. I suppose I shouldn't have, since it was I who injured him. But I couldn't help it. He tore up my letter, so I tore up his. I am not meek by nature. I'm not good at pretending."
"And Rundhia wasn't hurt? You are sure?"
"Captain Norwood went down off the wall to look. It wasn't long before Rundhia walked away. I don't know why he didn't come back and face Captain Norwood, but perhaps he was too stunned by being knocked off the wall. Rundhia didn't behave very well."
"He needs you, Lynn."
Lynn laughed—bitter—contemptuous: "Needs me? I need a friend. Rundhia is—"
"Be strong," said the Maharanees. "I am your friend."
"Yes, bless you! Rundhia seemed strong," Lynn said. "And he talked like a perfect lover. I had almost begun to believe he was love. And

WHEN YOU'RE PLANNING A MENU ESPECIALLY FOR MEN
(See Recipes Below)

Just between us women, we'll have to admit that, if left to his own devices, many a man would enjoy living on a straight diet of meat, potatoes and pie. It requires a little judicious scheming on Mother's part to supply Father with his favorite foods and provide for him a wholesome, well-balanced meal in the bargain.

Whether she's planning a menu to please the men folk in her family, or is chairman of the refreshment committee for the May meeting of the business men's club, it's a wise woman who remembers—and caters to—these masculine foibles in food.

Just how do a man's food preferences differ from those of women?

Well, for one thing; a man wants plainer, more substantial food. He likes a meal to be composed of only a few dishes, but he wants those few to be tasty, full of flavor and cooked to a turn.

And he likes to know just what he's eating—he wants none of the "masked identity dishes" that defy him to find what they're composed of. In a word, fancy cooking is wasted on the average man, but he appreciates good cooking to the limit.

Remember that for most men, meat makes the meal; that hot breads are a masculine weakness that they themselves acknowledge; and that for dessert men have a special fondness for pie, or chocolate cake.

You'll find more suggestions for planning masculine menus in my booklet, "Feeding Father." There are tested recipes, too, for over 125 of father's favorite foods.

Hot Muffins.

2 cups general purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
1 egg
1 cup milk or water
2 tablespoons shortening, melted

Mix and sift dry ingredients, add unbeaten egg, milk or water and melted shortening. Mix quickly. Pour into well-greased muffin tins, and bake in hot oven (450 degrees) 20 minutes.

Deep South Ham Sandwich With Hot Mushroom Sauce.

6 pieces corn bread, about 3 inches square
6 slices ham, boiled or baked
Mushroom Sauce:
1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup
½ cup milk

Stir the ½ cup of milk into the condensed cream of mushroom soup. Heat, but do not boil. While the sauce is heating, split the pieces of corn bread and toast them. Then place the ham between the toasted slices of corn bread and pour the hot mushroom sauce over the top.

Note: This is an excellent way to utilize left-over corn bread. If hot corn bread is used, we suggest the pieces be split and buttered, but not toasted.

My Best Chocolate Cake.

2 ounces bitter chocolate
¾ cup butter
1½ cups sugar
3 eggs
2½ cups cake flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Melt chocolate carefully over warm water. Cream butter thoroughly and add sugar slowly. Separate eggs, beat egg yolks, and add to butter and sugar mixture. Add the melted chocolate. Mix and sift together the flour, salt, and baking powder and add alternately with the milk and vanilla extract. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into the cake mixture. Place in 2 well-greased, 8-inch layer cake pans. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for approximately 30 to 35 minutes.

Next week in this column Eleanor Howe will give you some clever suggestions for entertaining a June bride. There'll be a menu and tested recipes, too, for a "Kitchen Shower"—and hints on what to give the bride.

Corn Bread.

(Serves 8-9)

1½ cups yellow (or white) corn meal (uncooked)
½ cup general purpose flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
2 eggs (beaten)
2 tablespoons fat (melted)

Sift the corn meal with the flour, baking powder and salt. Combine the milk, eggs, and shortening and add to the dry ingredients. Bake in a well-greased 8-inch square baking pan, in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees) for 40 to 50 minutes.

Garden Salad Bowl.

1 head lettuce
1 cucumber, peeled and sliced
1 green pepper, cut in thin rings
3 fresh tomatoes, cut in wedge-shaped pieces
1 bunch radishes, sliced
Roquefort cheese dressing

Prepare and chill vegetables thoroughly. Line salad bowl with large crisp leaves of lettuce and shred remaining lettuce rather coarsely. Place all vegetables in salad bowl and toss together with a well-seasoned dressing. Serve at once.

Welsh Rarebit.

1 pound sharp American cheese
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup cream
2 eggs
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon paprika
Salt and pepper to taste
½ teaspoon dry mustard

Cut cheese in small pieces and place it together with the butter in the top of a double boiler. Melt slowly. Then add cream, eggs (well beaten) and seasonings. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture has thickened. Serve on hot buttered toast.

Noodle and Tuna Fish Casserole.

(Serves 8)
1 8-ounce package noodles
1 tablespoon salt
1½ quarts boiling water
1 7-ounce can tuna fish (drained and flaked)
1 1-pound can cream of mushroom soup (not condensed)
2 tablespoons catsup
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
½ cup American cheese (grated)

Cook noodles in boiling water to which salt has been added, until tender. Drain and rinse thoroughly. Place one-half of the noodles in buttered casserole, add tuna fish and top with remaining noodles. Combine mushroom soup, catsup and mustard and heat to boiling point. Then pour sauce over noodles in casserole and top with grated cheese. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for approximately 35 minutes. Garnish with wedges of hard-cooked egg.

To Please the Men Folk in Your Family.

From the brand new bride, to grandmother, aren't most of us cooking largely to please Father?

Eleanor Howe's booklet, "Feeding Father," is one every homemaker needs in her file. It's full of tested recipes for the foods that Father likes best—and will give you masculine menu hints, as well.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.,
Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for June 2

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

TESTING CONDUCT BY ITS USEFULNESS (A Principle of Temperate Living)

LESSON TEXT—Ezekiel 15:1-6; Matthew 5:13-16; 1 Peter 2:9-10.
GOLDEN TEXT—Ye shall know them by their fruits.—Matthew 7:16.

Sound principles are foundational to right living. Right living is temperate living. The first temperance lesson for the year emphasized the sacredness of life. This lesson, which is our second one on that subject, properly stresses the importance of testing conduct by its true usefulness.

The emphasis of modern thinking is upon learning, upon the brilliance of scientific achievement, with little or no concern about personal character. Christianity and the Bible go to the root of that matter, stressing the need of stalwart moral and spiritual character, without which other attainments are lacking in real value and meaning. Unless what a man accomplishes is the expression of the greatness of his character, it is transient and often detrimental in its effect on society.

Tested by its results, the liquor traffic stands conclusively and completely condemned. Even its own frantic efforts to clean up and be more presentable indicates that fact. McAlpine made a rather acute comment when he said, "IF I WERE A LIAR . . . I'd advertise beer as a food, whisky as the promoter of the abundant life, and cocktails as the badge of social correctness. They say that if you repeat any thing times enough, people will believe it."

The Scripture portions before us present five inconsistencies, five instances where fact denies a false profession.

I. Wood Without Strength. (Ezek. 15:1-6).

The branch of a vine is at its best too crooked and pliable to be very useful, but here we have a piece of vine which has been charred in the fire until it is so useless that it can only be burned up. This is the picture of a life, possibly somewhat limited in its abilities and gifts, but nevertheless valuable, but made utterly useless by careless or dissolute living. How tragic!

II. Salt Without Savor (Matt. 5:13).

True salt is penetrating, antiseptic and purifying, but savorless salt is good for nothing but to make a road for the feet of men. "Ye are the salt of the earth." Christians, if they have the true savor in their lives, will count, by their very spiritual pungency, against sin and corruption in their communities.

III. Light Without Illumination (Matt. 5:14).

A light is intended to give illumination to all around about it. It always does that thing unless someone hides it under a cover, and then it becomes not only useless, but dangerous. A life lighted by faith in Christ will shine to the very ends of the earth and, as a missionary once said, "The light that shines farthest shines brightest at home." We are the light of the world, but if we cover our light we deny the very essence of our natures. Here is no thought of proud or selfish display. Light does not shout about itself, it just shines—but it really does shine.

IV. Trees Without Fruit (Matt. 7:16-20).

Every plant brings forth fruit after its own nature. We do not expect figs from thistles, but we do expect figs on the fig tree. The countryside bears no more desolate figure than a blasted, fruitless fruit tree. Quickly the owner cuts it down and terminates its shame and uselessness by burning it. What about men and women? God has made them in His own image and likeness. He has given them intelligence and personal ability. He has a right to expect the fruit of a useful life from every one, and particularly from the Christian, who is "a good tree."

V. Life Without a Purpose (I Cor. 10:6, 7).

Light and salt are inanimate objects. Trees and vines with their wood and fruit are alive, but they are without intelligence and morality. Man, however, as we have already suggested, is the moral and intelligent crown of God's creation, made in His own image and likeness. If they who know better, live lives of careless indifference, yea of outright wickedness, how shall they escape the judgment of God in the day when they shall stand before Him to give an account of the manner in which they have used this precious gift of life?

The Beginning of Wisdom

He sent redemption unto his people; he hath commanded his covenant forever; holy and reverent is his name. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom; a good understanding have all they that do his commandments; his praise endureth forever.—Psalm 111: 9, 10.

Endearing and Enduring Charm Of Quality-Kind Silk Prints

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FABRICS may come and fabrics may go but ever-lovely, ever-flattering silk prints will live on in the affection of the fashion world forever. When an unexpected last minute invitation bids you hurry and join in a bridge party at your neighbors; or a voice over the phone says "Meet me in an hour at the club for dinner," or your sorority club calls for an impromptu get-together luncheon in honor of an unexpected out-of-town guest, we'll wager that it's the gay little silk print frock that answers the momentous what to wear question for most women.

In regard to the three silk prints in the illustration, they are decidedly pace-setting fashions. Recently a second semi-annual fashion seminar was successfully staged by Anna Elliott Webster in Chicago. The vast audience at this all-day session which drew teachers and students in home economics from schools and colleges, and members of women's clubs and various organizations from near and far, was thrilled with a very style-revealing and highly educational number on the program which featured "Textiles Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow." Included in the fashions that went on parade in this noteworthy fabric demonstration were the originals of the modes here pictured which, be assured, gives these prints of pure silk unquestioned style prestige.

The high spot about the dress and coat ensemble to the right is the fact that a bowknot silk crepe fashions it, and bowknots, you must know, are tremendously important throughout a design this season. If you are in quest of a new silk print ask to see bowknot patternings. They're the latest! The dress features a gathered yoke of twin print sheer, and the simple coat is a heavier weave. The cool-looking frost-white jewelry and the wide brim white hat confirm the forthstating importance of white accents and accessories.

When you buy silk print this season you do not stop at a mere dress-length of material but you will want to have the fun of fashioning an entire ensemble of gay print, which may include not only a matching hat, but gloves and parasol made of the same print. The biggest news of all is shoulder shawls made of squares of silk print finished off about the edges with hand knotted fringe. The costume ensemble of red and white printed silk crepon, to the left, adds a pillbox chapeau that is draped with matching crepon. Note the finely shirred white silk inserts that exquisitely detail the bodice top of the dress. Speaking of the color scheme of this striking costume, too much emphasis cannot be given the importance of red and white. Red and white prints are having a stupendous vogue, and as to red hats and gloves, bags, belts and red "hankies" watch the reports coming in from all style centers!

Navy silk crepe, in spaced white tulip design describes the material used for the dress centered in the picture. This brings out a very important style trend this season in silk prints, namely the two-color idea—one single color against a contrast color background, such as yellow or light green on gray, brown on white, or reverse the order, white on brown. Which reminds that brown prints are ever so smart, almost outrivalling navies or grays. Sunburst pleating over the bust and vertical stitched tucks below the waist are important styling details observed in the tulip print pictured. Here's something interesting in regard to the white straw cartwheel she wears—the brim is removable leaving a fitted little toque-like shape of coarse straw mesh with a flange across the back which may be worn on into the evening for informal dinner and dancing.

Hats of Fabric

Milliners are doing interesting things with fabrics these days. Enthusiasm for polka dots is widespread and their popularity is reflected in a big way in hat design. The use of polka dots is manifested in such clever ideas as large straw brims faced with dotted prints or in drapes and scarf streamers of bold dot fabrics, especially silk prints. Particularly attractive are scarf and hat ensembles as here pictured. Plaids, likewise stripes, for hat and bag sets also are making big appeal. The plaid silk hat and bag twosome shown interprets this trend.

Family Heirlooms With Bridal Array

You can believe everything you read in the society columns about the sparkling beauty of the bride. It's all true and it's all real because brides are wearing jewels again. They are even arranging their veils to fall from the family tiara or combining mother's heirloom lace with the bridegroom's gift of a modern clip or brooch. Notice how often you read in the social notes "the bride wore just one lovely ornament—a pin that belonged to her mother."

Some girls even prefer a diamond instead of a wedding check—not so lightly cashed and spent! Also the symbolism of this gem (it's ancient meaning was purity, fidelity and devotion) makes a lucky talisman for the bride.

Of course all the revival fashions in wedding gowns, with their tight little waists, square necks or round collars, and puffs of tulle and satin form the perfect background for traditional jewelry.

Variety in Fabrics Tempt Milliners

Milliners are no respecters of fabrics this season. They use anything and everything from silks and jerseys and nets and meshes and veiling to calicoes and gingham, bright flowered chintz and the new hats with enormous brims of spick and span white starched lace are simply "dreams come true."

The smart trick this season is to have a hat made of the same material as your dress. For an exciting eye-catcher wear with your black or navy sheer this summer a hat of picturesque broad brim fashioned of very flowery chintz and see to it that your bag of ample proportions is made of the identical chintz.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered
Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry; irregular habits; improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up at night, leg pains, swelling, and all sorts of ailments that warn you. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

A BEAUTIFUL FINISH

LONG WEAR

QUICK-DRYING

Low Brothers Neptunite Floor Varnish has these three qualities because it's designed for floors. It isn't one of those varnishes claimed to be "good for everything." It gives you a smooth, glistening, beautiful floor that can be walked on in a few hours—the finish will stand up under the hardest kind of wear you can give it. Low Brothers also make other high quality Neptunite varnishes. Each one is designed to do a specific job. "Interior"—high gloss for woodwork; "Rubbing"—for use when the finish is to be rubbed; "Rubstone"—for a rubbed effect without rubbing; "Spar"—for exterior use, and "Seal"—for chairs, church pews, and other surfaces where unusually hard-drying is required. All Neptunite Varnishes are heat-proof, mar-proof and water-proof. They won't turn white or scratch white. Come in and let us help you get the right varnish for the work you have in mind.

A MEMORIAL DAY HOPE

The years do not dim our national appreciation of the sacrifices of America's bravest sons in previous wars.

But as we pay reverent tribute to them on Memorial Day this year, the fervent hope rises in our hearts that our youth of this generation may be given the glorious privilege of living for their country—to make it by their efforts a world-haven of peace, tolerance, and justice.

In many lands today, mothers are forced to give up their children—even the youngest. Dictators demand them—and dictators are all-powerful. In peace as in war, they control business and industry, capital and labor, life itself. Men and women are told what work they must do. There is no prize for ambition, no hope for the man who would like to choose his own career.

How different it is in the United States! Here, governed by men responsible to the people, we choose our life-work for ourselves. This system of free enterprise makes the United States the world's greatest nation. Because men are free to dream and work as they see fit, scores of industries have grown great in America: the automobile, radio, telephone and electrical industries are just a few.

As typical Americans, the employees of your electric company are devoted to the American principle of working together, producing more of the good things of life and making them available to more people. Through their efforts electric service steadily improves; at the same time, its price steadily comes down.

What inspires the people of your electric company? The best answer is this: the employees of this company are proud of their part in keeping America great. They work as free men to bring better service and value to other free men. They are glad to create wealth instead of destroying it.

This company has been built by free Americans. It is built to serve other free Americans. It is free from political dictation. Like all industry, it will succeed as long as there are free Americans to work for it and free Americans for it to work for.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Farnham F. Dudgeon

Allies Stage Big Counter-Attack In Attempt to Check Nazi Drive; Senate Passes Huge Army Bill

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Because they fear invasion of Great Britain by the advancing German forces, English officials are taking concrete steps to defend their homeland. In the above picture, beyond-war-age veterans of the last World war are shown receiving equipment and arms to be used against parachute troops that might be dropped from the sky. While the younger men are fighting beside the French on the continent these older men are guarding vulnerable spots throughout England.

THE WAR: Revised Edition

On the fields of northern France and Belgium the story of 1914-18 continued to unfold itself in new, grim and bloody chapters. This time the forces of Adolf Hitler were playing the leading German role as they made their bid for Paris, capital of France and for ports on the English channel, gateway to Britain. For a time as these forces battled their way through The Netherlands, across Belgium, into France, it looked that there would be no stopping them until they decided to write the final chapter themselves. Even the dispatches from the allied war camps told of the constant advances made by the invading legions.

Jittery, harassed and worried, the British-French war council switched control of the army to Gen. Maxime Weygand, former commander of the French army in the Near East. Veteran of the World war, General Weygand swung into action with a dramatic dash across German lines, a return trip to Paris and the issuance of an order to launch an immediate counter-attack. Directing this new move—the first major attack of the allies—with all the vigor for which he is famous and respected, he was successful in stalling the German machine, for a short time at least.

Two important key points near the channel, Arras and Abbeville, were reportedly retaken from the Nazis. Soon word came through, however, that the Germans were pounding at the gates of Calais—which is only 26 miles across the Strait of Dover from England.

This fight for the channel ports may well be the most decisive battle of the current conflict. For as long as the English and French control the channel they are really "united." Should these ports fall into Nazi hands, however, Hitler would be in an excellent position to launch his threatened air and land attack on Britain—at home.

Waiting

Evidence that England was worried and preparing for such an at-

HEADLINERS

... in the news

Shadows of Frederick the Great fall from the person of Adolf Hitler in the opinion of his henchman, Field Marshal Goering. In Berlin on a short visit from the fighting front, he compared Hitler to Frederick and pictured him as a master military strategist.

From Boston came word that Senator Bridges (Rep., N. H.) had declared that city to be overrun with Nazi bundsmen and he called upon President Roosevelt to clean up this "fifth column" before proceeding with the national defense program.

And another senator, this one from Massachusetts itself—Senator Lodge (Republican) came a suggestion that the United States regular army be increased to a standing force of 750,000 men. He figures the present goal of 280,000 men will be reached by fall.

Changing horses in the middle of a stream isn't such bad business, according to Wendell L. Willkie, candidate for the Republican presidential nomination. He voiced this theory in a political speech in which he assailed the New Deal for what he termed "failure" to defend the United States "against itself" and further charged that it could not be trusted (in a third term) to defend the nation from outside aggression. His speech was made at a Republican rally in Somerville, N. J., on the eve of that state's primary election.

tack was apparent on every hand. Winston Churchill, prime minister, was given a virtual dictator's power over all phases of English life. Every resource of the nation was being mustered to resist the attack that was in the offing. While the government's power to press the war across the channel was being approved, internal defense measures were also being substantially strengthened. Beyond-war-age veterans of the last war were being equipped with arms to aid in battling parachute troops or other invading forces.

In 2 hours and 50 minutes the parliament passed legislation giving the government control to mobilize all cash, property, labor, agriculture and industry. It was a totalitarian measure designed to meet the totalitarian Germany on even ground. The drastic action was necessary, the government said, because the war had reached the stage where every available resource had to be used to wage the fight against the enemy.

U. S. DEFENSE: In the Groove

President Roosevelt's request for immediate action in speeding up activity on the U. S. home defense front is meeting with widespread approval. What is even more important, definite action is taking place.

As the senate passed a record peacetime army supply bill, calling for expenditure of $1,823,000,000, by a 74 to nothing vote, Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator, was telling U. S. business men that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's huge credit resources were virtually all at their command for any expansion which would aid the defense program.

Full credit backing to American business enlisting in the defense drive came as Jones, head of the RFC, called on the country's banks to give "fullest co-operation" in all loans of this type and his lending agency would underwrite them in the amount of 75 per cent.

From Detroit, center of the nation's automobile industry, came word that spare plant capacity of that industry may be utilized to speed arms production. Army and navy technical experts have visited Detroit and have completed detailed studies on how these plants may be used. It is understood that the war department has in its files mobilization plans for the industry should need arise for a hurried production of fighting tools and equipment.

The 74 to nothing vote which the senate gave to the President in passing the army supply bill indicates the manner in which that body has swung behind the "preparedness" plea. This bill provides for a full peacetime army of 280,000 men, about 10,000 planes, tons of munitions, thousands of guns and a "blank check" in the amount of $132,000,000, for the President to spend as he sees fit in building up the army.

Sour Note
Principal sour note in the general approval (see above) which was greeting the administration's policy of improving national defense, was sounded by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in a speech in which he minimized the air peril to the United States. While he urged an adequate defense program Lindbergh criticized the present administration by saying that our recent policy "leads to neither strength, friendship nor peace."

'Fifth Column'

... what it means

"Outside the gates of Madrid four columns of our troops are engaged. But within there is a fifth column, which, at the proper time, will arise and overthrow the defenders."

Since the day that the Spanish rebel general Quiapo de Llano, made that now famous remark regarding the "fifth column" the term has been used to refer to all those residents (citizens or aliens) of a nation at war or faced with the possibility of war at some future date, who act or speak in a fashion that may in some way aid the enemy or possible enemy.

Such aid to the "enemy" may come in many different ways. It may mean sabotage or disclosing military secrets. Most striking examples of "fifth column" activity usually come however, as the troops of the enemy are marching into the home country. The "fifth column" is already there and has placed itself in key positions to aid the advancing troops.

Thus far, it is claimed, the German forces have successfully used these tactics in Denmark, Norway, Holland and Belgium. "Fifth columnists" may or may not be citizens of the country in which they reside. They filter into the nation in times of peace as students, tourists, workmen, refugees or any guise which is not apt to be alarming.

AGRICULTURE:

No Acreage Cut

Further reduction in the acreage of major U. S. farm crops has been decided against, according to Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace.

Secretary Wallace

After discussing the current farm surplus situation with President Roosevelt the secretary announced that the impact of the European war was making a profound effect upon American agriculture. He said that because of the war future emphasis should be upon increasing domestic consumption and storage of crops against future needs.

Exports of U. S. farm products have been sharply curtailed because of the German invasion of Norway, Denmark, Belgium and The Netherlands, as these markets have been cut off. Then, too, the allies have diverted much of their agricultural buying to their own colonies.

POLITICS:

Home Stretch

Republicans have picked virtually all of their 1,000 delegates to the national convention and yet no candidate has enough publicly instructed votes to assure first-ballot nomination for the presidency race. On the other side of the political fence, with only about three-fourths of the delegates chosen the Democratic party is apparently going to give President Roosevelt another chance—IF he wants it. With the war situation being what it is inside New Dealers feel certain that the President will choose to run.

Talk of postponing the Republican convention, scheduled for June 24 in Philadelphia, was spiked by at least one G. O. P. leader, Alf M. Landon. He told newsmen in Topeka, before he left to keep a luncheon date with President Roosevelt in Washington, that he was "opposed to any suggestion to postpone the convention" or have the Republican party "lend itself to any intangible coalition which would tend to decrease party responsibility." His latter remark referred to a suggestion emanating from some quarters that the formality of a presidential election be abolished and a "coalition" government be formed to meet any threat of American invasion or any other foreign danger.

Like Mr. Landon, political leaders in both major parties are generally opposed to any such suggestion, the thought being that the ideals of free government can best be served even in times of "crisis" by proceeding along regular democratic channels in governmental business.

MISCELLANY:

☐ In California, the Imperial valley suffered a series of fairly severe earth shocks. At least eight persons were killed and supplies of water were cut off in six cities. Estimates of property loss ran to about $3,000,000.

☐ Possibility of a shortage of steel supplies in the United States was reported by the magazine Iron Age. Pointing out that the war-generated demand was causing reserve supplies to decline rapidly, it was said the pinch would be felt in midsummer.

☐ Times square, New York city, witnessed a clash of several thousand Communists and their sympathizers with police as a "peace demonstration" was attempted. Marching two abreast the demonstration blocked traffic on Broadway and the police were called to maintain order.

☐ In Georgia, Gov. E. D. Rivers signed a proclamation ordering all aliens in that state to register with nearest police officials and be fingerprinted. Similar demands were made by various communities scattered throughout the nation.

DOROTHY LAMOUR may have to remain in the sarong that made her famous, but Jon Hall has finally grabbed off a role that will enable him to wear regular clothes—the curse of "The Hurricane" has lifted for him, if not for her.

After his success among its winds and waves he was idle for two years. Then Producer Edward Small asked to borrow him for another South Seas picture, "South of Pago-Pago." Near the end of shooting on it, Small was planning to film "Kit Carson," and had already signed Randolph Scott for the leading rôle when Hall appeared at the studio one day wearing a ten gallon hat and a semi-cowboy outfit. He had a late call for work that day, and had spent the early morning hours riding with his wife, Frances Langford.

Small met Hall near the actor's dressing bungalow—and now it's Hall instead of Randolph Scott whom you'll see as Kit Carson.

In its latest issue, "The Philippines; 1898-1946," the March of Time pictures the new problems facing the Philippines as a result of today's mounting war fever, and shows how Philippine independence, scheduled to take effect in 1946, is already threatened by Japan's current expansion program in the south Pacific.

It's been announced that Joan Blondell plans to retire from the screen indefinitely when she finishes "I Want a Divorce." She has been suffering from severe colds and inertia for the past year, and says that she will travel throughout America with a road company, (a novel cure for both severe colds and inertia!) and later on will make an extended tour of South America for a change of climate.

Fred MacMurray has grown to be so expert at water polo that a company that makes short features has asked him to make one on the sport.

Felix Knight, starred on the airwaves "All Star Revue," had a bad moment recently. After he had sung a medley of songs about the month of May, gardens and apple orchards, the Three Jesters strode up and down the aisles, tossing apples and other farm products to the audience. Knight swears he was scared to death for fear the fruit would be handed right back—hurting through the air straight at him.

If Columbia's Wayne King wanted to start up in the pipe tobacco business, he already has a large clientele all over the country. For 15 years he has been smoking his own private mixture, but he won't tell anyone what it is. It's the result of four years of experimenting. But though he won't give away the secret of the mixture, he does give away the tobacco—12 pounds of it a month. When he travels on personal appearance tours there's always a large can of it on his dressing table—so if his orchestra is playing in your town, and you know anyone who smokes a pipe, you might drop in and get some.

Deems Taylor, the music critic and composer who acts as master of ceremonies on "Musical Americana," has a maid who delights in taking part in contests of all kinds. She was greatly excited recently when she was notified that she had qualified among the winners in a national contest, and couldn't wait to receive her prize. When it came it turned out to be an autographed copy of Taylor's latest book on music!

Bob Trout maintains that during those first few days after war really broke loose he averaged only two and one-half hours' sleep out of each 24, and could have floated a battleship on the amount of coffee he drank to keep awake. Newscasting isn't all that it's cracked up to be.

Republic has arranged to produce a picture starring Gene Autrey; the title will be "Melody Ranch"—same as his radio program—and several members of the radio cast will appear in the picture.

Items of Interest to the Housewife

A rubber band wrapped near each end of coat hangers will prevent garments from slipping off them.

Always melt marshmallows in the top of a double boiler over hot water.

A pinch of cinnamon or sugar burned in a tin can will remove objectionable food odors in the house.

Flour sifters and kitchen strainers should be dried thoroughly before storing.

Fasten a large paper sack over the end of the food grinder when grinding bread or crackers. The sack will catch all of the crumbs.

Rubber plants cannot be fertilized too highly. Give each plant a teaspoon of sulphate ammonia once a month and do not be afraid of watering too much. They like a wet soil.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—In 1922, when a daughter was born to the Grand Duchess Charlotte of Luxembourg there was confusion and embarrassment in the palace because no where in the realm was there a gun with which to salute the royal newcomer. That was one instance in which the League of Nations had fulfilled its obligation for the progressive disarmament of Europe. Never would Luxembourg menace the peace of the continent. The French gallantly rushed in a 75, with a crew, and the baby was given a thunderous welcome.

Today the Grand Duchess Charlotte, her husband, Prince Felix of Bourbon-Parma and their six children are safe in France, fleeing guns which end lives rather than acclaim new life. The terror came in the night, after 22 years of peaceful home-keeping, in which the grand duchess had reared her children, played the piano and, being a fluent linguist, had kept abreast of French, German and English literature. She has always said that talk of war and politics was distasteful to her. As the ruler of her tiny principality she discharged her duties of state with care and diligence.

At the end of the World war, Charlotte expressed extreme distaste for the Germans. Her elder sister, Marie Adelaide, was compelled to retire as ruler, on account of her pro-German sympathies and Charlotte was elected in plebiscite which continued the last grand duchy in Europe, as against a republic.

She is tall and handsome, 44 years old, of the House of Nassau, also the House of Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, the richest house in Europe. Luxembourg is a land of Millet landscapes and haunted castles. The grand duchess has traversed it mainly on horseback, riding side-saddle. Here the new savagery finds a shining mark of age-old decency and simplicity.

EDWARD LESLIE BURGIN, who recently retired as British minister of supply, knows Sanskrit and six or eight other languages, and writes philosophical essays. He could explain the war, but his critics said he wasn't much help in fighting it. Replacing him is the one-time grocer's boy, Herbert Morrison, who quit school when he was 12. Mr. Morrison, who for the last nine years has been lambasting the tory government for fumbling and faltering, is the only dash of new blood in the re-made cabinet. A conservative Labor leader, who in 1934 rushed the last of the left-wingers out of the movement, he has been variously appraised. One British friend tells me that "he is another Ramsay MacDonald, hamstrung by political ambition." Another, equally credible, tells me he is a vigorous and intelligent public leader who will greatly strengthen the cabinet.

The son of a laborer, he was grocer's boy, elevator operator, traveling salesman, telephone operator, and secretary of the London Labor party at $5 a week. When he was a small boy, a phrenologist, taking his last six-pence for a fee, told him he would one day rule England. He had heard about Dick Whittington and laughingly tells the story when someone suggests that he may be prime minister. It is almost certain that he will if England has another Labor government.

Significantly, he has contended that England must be more hospitable to conveyor-belt production, in both war and peace, if it expected to meet competition. The Germans long have been in line-production of planes, while the British have clung to hand-craft and quality—traditionally. Judging from Mr. Morrison's dossier of the last few years, he may help put more technological kick into their war operations. That has been one of his big ideas.

IN HOLLYWOOD they toss out a male director and substitute a woman for the direction of "Dance, Girls, Dance." Miss Dorothy Arzner replaces Roy Del Ruth.

It is the well-worn story of one step at a time—stenographer, script girl, film editor, scenarist, director. When she was a student at the University of Southern California, her father asked her to show some friends through Cecil De Mille's movie lot. She liked the place so well that she returned to get a stenographer's job.

Washington Stirs With War Talk As Defense Plan Takes Shape

President Roosevelt Asks Congress for Billion Dollar Military Appropriation in Addition to Regular Annual Grants for Army and Navy.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART
WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—I shall try, in this article, to provide you with a picture of your national capital during the last few weeks. It is a situation, a condition that, in general, gives rise to very little pride. But the facts must be faced, for in this capital city things have happened that can best be described as the screaming and play-panic of children playing cops and robbers. Only, of course, the screams were screams of men and women in places of official responsibility and the panicky outbursts and orders were the excited and unbalanced procedure of leaders in public and private life.

In the midst of this period which I am attempting to describe came President Roosevelt's voice, heard over the din of the others because the President and his office are respected. He drove to the Capitol building and there, before a joint assembly of senate and house, he asked for new national defense measures, and he asked for $1,195,-

SEN. HIRAM JOHNSON—He's been in the Senate since the last World war and is "still going strong."

000,000 in appropriations to pay for an expanded army, navy, marine corps, shipbuilding plants, munition plants, gun production, etc. Mr. Roosevelt foresaw desperate need for these things and he told congress to speed up these appropriations. According to the President's view of the conditions that our nation faces, fast enemy airplanes can reach Kansas City or St. Louis—the heart of America—before we can do anything about it. Moreover, parachutists from enemy planes might drop in, most any day now, and start taking over our cities and towns and countryside. The fact is that Mr. Roosevelt made Europe's war appear so close to Washington that we really may expect to hear bombs exploding almost any minute.

In view of all of these things, Mr. Roosevelt thought we ought to have approximately 50,000 airplanes, and build them tonight or tomorrow.

President's Request Added To Regular Appropriations

The vast sum for which the President asked is in addition to about $3,276,000,000 in appropriations that were requested for the military services in the regular annual appropriation bills for the fiscal year that begins on July 1, 1940. He assured congress there was no overlapping of items. This was all new stuff; it represented the best thought of what ought to be done to meet the challenge of Hitler's legions.

As Hitler's legions overran Holland and Belgium, the war fever of Washington hit a new high. It had started up when the German dictator went into Norway. Naturally, the temperature increased when the awful forces of the Hitler machine were turned loose in the Low Countries. Mr. Roosevelt's speech to congress, well advertised in advance to a nation of people that was waiting for decisions from Washington, turned on all of the valves of excitement as a street cleaner floods a street from a fire hydrant. Only the fire hydrant gives off cool water in which children like to play.

But before the President's speech, there were such sour songs as that sung by Senator Austin of Vermont, assistant Republican leader in the senate. Mr. Austin rose gravely in his place in the senate and there

WAR TALK

William Bruckart isn't very proud of the way in which government officials in Washington have become so excited about the danger of U. S. involvement in Europe's war. He sees no reason for panic. This is a time for balanced thinking and not muddling. Enemies within our gates or the "fifth column" should receive special attention, according to Bruckart.

blared forth in loud tones the learned wisdom of a statesman. It shouted to the world that the United States of America must do everything it can to help the allies. Yes, we must supply money! And so, Senator Austin argued for repeal of that so-called Johnson Act.

Now, it may be remembered that Senator "Hi" Johnson of California fought and fought until he was able to convince congress that none of the foreign nations who had not paid their debts should be allowed to borrow any more money in the United States. The California senator is one of seven men now in the senate who were there during the first World war, and he is still going strong.

No Payment on War Debts Has Been Made Recently

The law that he forced through congress, almost single handed, was a good law when it was passed. It is a better law today, considering that those nations which we helped by men and billions of dollars are involved again in a war to save democracy. And, incidentally, they have paid nothing on their debts in the last 10 or 12 years, so that they still owe around $13,500,000,000.

Lights have been burning late in the war and navy offices. Mr. Roosevelt worked one night until two o'clock in the morning. That was while he was preparing his defense speech. Even the gambling spirit is around. One can get bets in the capital city that we will be mixed up in Europe's war, and the dates that are offered range anywhere from a few weeks to next winter.

And the politicians! Yes, they are busy about the thing, also. The "inner circle" and the third term advocates are smiling with that self-satisfied appearance that goes with a knowledge that they have gained ground. Privately, many of them will say that the nearness of the war makes certain that Mr. Roosevelt will be elected for a third term. They are sure the country will not dare to change horses in the middle of the stream, not even if France and England did change their principal leaders. Mr. Roosevelt will have to remain on the job because his two terms give him a great advantage in dealing with these foreign problems, they are saying.

'He Kept Us Out of War' Is Now Being Revived

And dear Mr. Secretary Wallace of the department of agriculture. He couldn't get in on the excitement any other way, apparently. So, in his keynote speech to the Iowa Democratic state convention, he announced that Mr. Roosevelt had kept this nation out of war. That was his tribute, but immediately there were a good many persons able to recall a similar slogan from back about 1916 when it was used with great effectiveness.

All through these days that I have sought to describe was a steady stream of bad news from Europe—bad news for all of us who want to see the allies (or anybody else who can do it) knock Hitler and his gang into smithereens. The United States is pro-ally. Of that there is no doubt. The Hitler drives into Holland and Belgium have made it certain that few supporters of Hitler dare assert themselves in this country. "But I have a hunch that allied censorship has been opened somewhat in order that we, here in the United States, can get the full impact of the slaughter, rape and arson being committed by the German legions. I say it is just a hunch. You see, it might be possible after all that the allies would like to have us in the war on their side to pay their bills and have our soldiers killed, again.

Anyway, this whole thing gripes me beyond expression. It is disgusting to see activities that were hardly equalled in the midst of the World war. It is more disgusting to listen to talk that represents perfection in lack of balanced thinking. There is no doubt at all that our army and our navy are far below par. That is to say, this nation has nothing like the necessary or proper defense structure that a great nation must have. But if there is to be preparations against enemies, why neglect enemies within our gates. If we face the facts, it must be admitted that we have "fifth column" dangers within the boundaries of America, dangerous "fifth columns."

I have written in these columns before that Chairman Dies of the special house committee was doing a great job in ferreting out the groups in the United States that would destroy our government. I have written likewise that Mr. Dies was fought at every turn from within the administration which is of the same Democratic political faith as he. So, it strikes me that preparation must include defense against the "fifth column" of our nation as well as the "fifth columns" and the guns of other nations.

"The Name Is Familiar"

Bunsen Burner

THAT small gas burner the dentist has that makes things so hot so fast, is called a Bunsen burner. It consists of a straight tube with small holes at the bottom where air enters and mixes with the gas. The oxygen in the air causes the gas to burn with a hotter flame.

Your gas stove works the same way—there are air vents in the pipes that lead to the burners, so that you are burning a mixture of gas and air, otherwise you wouldn't get much heat from the gas alone. It really doesn't make much difference where the holes are placed along the pipe—as long as they are this side of the meter.

But what we started out to say was, this burner is named after Robert Wilhelm von Bunsen, a German chemist who was born in 1811 and died in 1899. He was a professor of chemistry at Kassel in Breslau, and later at the famous university at Heidelberg.

P. S. Von Bunsen didn't invent the burner—either a man by the name of Peter Desgda or the famous Michael Faraday did. At least, it is known that both of them used the same type of burner before Von Bunsen.

Von Bunsen

Sanforizing

FOR the fact that your Adam's apple isn't in danger of being squeezed out of shape by a tight collar after your shirt has been laundered a few times, you can thank a 66-year-old native of Troy, N. Y.—Sanford L. Cluett. He was the inventor of a pre-shrinking process which is used to treat one-fifth of all the available fabrics in this country before they are made up into wearing apparel and which has added a new word to our everyday speech—sanforizing.

After the World war, American men, accustomed to khaki shirts, wanted to continue wearing soft collars. But they shrank after washing and no purchaser knew how much shrinkage to expect. Shirt manufacturers had shrinking machines but they didn't do the job completely and they had to allow three-quarters of an inch for shrinkage in each collar. The problem was to produce a uniformly shrunk fabric that would not change its size when given the average laundry wash.

In 1919 Cluett, a veteran of the Spanish-American war, an engineer and an inventor with a number of patents to his credit, joined the research department of the company of which his name is now a part. After a long series of experiments he finally produced in 1928 the process now known as sanforizing and all those devoted to wearing shirts with soft collars breathed easier, both figuratively and literally!

Nobel Prize

THERE'S S more than a little irony in the fact that the most famous of all prizes for the person or organization who best serves the interests of world peace each year is paid out of a fund that had its origin in the sale of a product which adds to the horrors of war. Yet such is the case of the Nobel prize.

Alfred Bernhard Nobel, Swedish chemist and inventor, born in 1833, was educated in Russia and sent to America to study engineering. But within a year he returned to Europe to aid his father in developing military and naval mines and torpedoes. In 1862 he helped the older Nobel in perfecting the manufacture of nitroglycerine, called "Nobel's blasting oil," and further research by the two led to the invention and commercial production of dynamite, originally known as "Nobel's ignites."

When Nobel died in Italy in 1896 he left a large fund, from the interest of which annual prizes were to be awarded achievements in various fields, including physics, science, chemistry, medicine and literature. But the most humanitarian, the Nobel peace prize, is paid from the profits of a "merchant of death."

FARM TOPICS

FARM GROUNDS NEED ATTENTION

Trees and Shrubs Provide Best Landscaping Aids.

By JOHN H. HARRIS

(Extension Landscape Specialist, North Carolina State College.)

Farmers and city people have different problems in beautifying their homes. In the city or town, space usually is limited, but long summer evenings allow time for the attention to annual and perennial plants that offer most flowers for the least space.

On the farm, rush seasons in the fields mean long hours and little leisure at the very time flower gardens may be most in need of weeding, cultivating, and watering. But the grounds around the farm home are usually ample for more of the ornamental trees and shrubs than those of the town dweller.

These two sharp differences are worth considering when the farm family considers plantings to improve the home grounds. Planting a few shrubs each season, and adding a few more from time to time will soon make the home more attractive, and will conserve time in busy seasons.

Shrubs and trees will need good care and watering for two or three seasons, but after that, if they are well selected, good woody plants will practically take care of themselves. What work is needed can be done at odd times and when farm work is slack.

Drouth Years Favored

Weed Rivals of Crops

The "weed problem" on American farms has changed radically in the last generation, according to L. W. Kephart, in charge of weed research in the federal bureau of plant industry. From concern over cultivation of annual weeds in tilled crops, interest has shifted chiefly to the "noxious weeds," mainly perennials which have been spreading alarmingly.

Fifteen years ago the notorious weed areas did not greatly exceed 1,000,000 acres, Kephart estimates. Now these weeds have "taken" about 6,000,000 acres of good farmland west of the Mississippi, with crop production checked or prevented, not only on single farms, but in whole townships.

Two factors have played a great part in this spread, Kephart finds. Since 1930 an unusual series of dry years has proved extra favorable for seed production by the weeds. Economic depression increased farm tenancy and a general let-down in farm care. "The indications are," says Kephart, "that the present situation will not greatly improve and that noxious weeds will continue to increase, unless vigorous measures are taken to combat them."

The situation has roused many farmers. The federal seed law has been made more effective. Thirteen states have adopted new laws or revised old laws on weed control, and eight states are co-operating with the bureau of plant industry in weed-control research.

U. S. Wheat Insurance

Is Expanded in 1940

Wheat growers of the nation took out more than two and one-third times as much "all-risk" crop insurance for 1940 as for 1939, the Federal Crop Insurance corporation reports. Increased grower interest swelled the number of contracts in force from 166,000 in 1939 to almost 380,000 in 1940. These are estimated to cover 11,000,000 acres, insuring farmers of income from at least 100,000,000 bushels of production.

There was increased enrollment in 1940 for all but two states in which insurance was offered. The greatest increase occurred in the major winter wheat states, where in 1939 growers did not have an opportunity to make use of advances from Agricultural Adjustment administration payments to finance premiums. Nebraska and Kansas both registered more than a 300 per cent increase, Nebraska going from 13,000 contracts in 1939 to almost 57,000 in 1940, and Kansas from 15,000 to 60,500.

Pennsylvania leads in crop insurance in the eastern winter wheat area with 5,900 growers in the program, an increase of 158 per cent. In the Far West, Idaho leads with 6,836 contracts, an increase of 325 per cent.

Straw Erosion Control

If you have an old straw stack which you don't need for feed or for any other purpose, don't burn it, or just let it stand out in the field. You can make good use of the straw for erosion control. Straw—as well as pine needles, leaves and other mulch materials—can be made to save your soil. Soil savers have a pat slogan for gully control: "Seed it, fertilize it, mulch it and watch the grass choke the gully to death." The idea is worth trying.

Handy End Table Made From Spools

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

DEAR MRS. SPEARS: I would like to make some handy end tables of spools for the living room, but I can't think of a way to make them rigid. Have you any suggestions as to how this may be done? B. F.

Curtain rods are used through the spools to make the legs. Better take along a spool to try when you shop for the rods; and get the type that has one piece fitting inside the other. If the spools are a little loose on the rod, it won't make any difference for they must be glued between each spool, and also between the spools and the table shelves. I have shown in the sketch everything else you need to know to make this table. Good luck to you!

He Put the Words Right In Her Mouth to Win Bet

TWO fellows who had been dining rather well were in the mood for a ridiculous wager.

"I'll bet you," said one solemnly, "that the first words my wife says, when I get home tonight are 'My dear.'"

"And I'll bet you a fiver," said the other, "that she won't say, 'My dear.'"

They proceeded towards the first man's home. He knocked at the door and a head appeared at the window above.

"My dear—" began the man. His long-suffering wife interrupted with: "My dear" be hanged. Wait till you come inside."
