County Fair Is On Its Way

FAIR BOOKS ARE READY. DATES ARE SEPT. 10-11-12-13

Premium Lists and Programs for the fifty-fifth annual exhibit of the Charlevoix County Agricultural Society are now in the hands of Secretary Lorence O. Isaman who is distributing them this week.

Those in the East Jordan area may secure a copy either by calling at The Herald Office or at the State Bank of East Jordan.

Dates for the 1940 exhibit are Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Sept. 10-13, at their grounds near East Jordan.

Indications are for a much "Bigger and Better" Fair this year if applications from exhibitors are any indication.

Many new acts have been secured for entertainment including additional races. One of the novel features will be Coon Dog Trials that will be held the last day of the Fair. The committee in charge of this is headed by Ed. Starbuck of Boyne City.

A crew of men have been at work for some time preparing the grounds and tending up the race track that is recognized as one of the finest in Northern Michigan.

Another Interesting Rotary Meeting

Elder Edwards, of Independence, Missouri, an Apostle of the Latter Day Saints Church, was the speaker of the Tuesday Rotary meeting.

The theme was "Dictators." From his background of history and philosophy the speakers showed the cause for the emergence of dictators. Among these causes are the unwillingness of people to accept responsibility, and following the easier course to permit some representative dynamic person to act for them in times of crises.

The speaker also showed that dictators pave the way for their own undoing in that they sow the seeds of further revolution. He pointed out that while men retain a sense of human dignity dictatorships can be only a temporal phase that must give way to something better.

There were seven visitors from four different states.

Republican County Convention on Wednesday, Sept. 18

The Republican County Convention for the County of Charlevoix, will be held at the Charlevoix City Hall, Charlevoix, Michigan, on Wednesday, September 18th, 1940, at 8 p. m. for the purpose of electing five (5) delegates to attend the State Convention, to be held in the City of Grand Rapids, Friday, September 27, 1940 at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, and for the transaction of such other business as may come before the Convention.

Delegates shall be duly elected voters of their respective precincts. Agnes Lorch, Secretary, Republican Co. Committee. Dated August 12th, 1940. Boyne City, Michigan.

Garden Club To Be Entertained By Mrs. Ferris D. Stone

The August meeting of the East Jordan Garden Club will be held Tuesday afternoon, August 20th, in the lovely garden of Mrs. Ferris D. Stone. Mrs. Stone's daughter, Mrs. W. E. Malpass II, will be assisting hostess.

The guest speaker will be Mrs. C. M. Mills of Cincinnati. Those who heard Mrs. Mills last summer on "Flower Arrangement" remember vividly as one of the outstanding events of the year.

This year Mrs. Mills has consented to talk on "Old Flower Prints" and she will show her collection of rare prints. The meeting will be one of the high spots of the year.

Cadillac's Hostess To Speak At Chamber of Commerce

Miss Irene Straub, summer city hostess of Cadillac, will speak at the Chamber of Commerce meeting at the Jordan Inn next Thursday evening, August 22nd. Miss Straub has charge of most of Cadillac's resort activity and will be able to give us many good tips on handling our summer visitors. The women are invited to attend this meeting along with the men. Phone your reservations to the Jordan Inn before Wednesday, August 21st. It is a dinner meeting.

Dr. Carl Glover Preaches Sunday

Dr. Carl Glover, pastor of the Walnut Hills Congregational Church of Cincinnati, preaches at the Presbyterian Church Sunday morning at 10:30. Dr. Glover has won recognition as an outstanding preacher and as an author. During the past year his book on "These Twelve" has been referred to as one of the best on the lives of the apostles.

Landscaping Schedule For This Coming Winter Now Being Developed

Mr. O. I. Gregg, Landscaping Specialist from the Michigan State College, has sent the announcement that all requests for landscaping outlines must be received at his office not later than September 15th. Furthermore, the "First Here, First Served" policy must be followed. We have room for three or four more requests. The program first of all will take care of farmers who want to beautify their home surroundings. The home owners in the smaller cities and villages can be taken care of after the farmers.

If you are interested in having Mr. Gregg landscape your home, kindly get in touch with your county agent at once. There are a great many homes, scattered throughout the county, that are now greatly improved in appearance through the activity of Mr. Gregg. The wonderful attendance of 145 folks at the Charlevoix County Tour held last June, is an indication of the interest that many people are taking in landscaping their surroundings.

B. C. Mellencamp, County Agr'l Agent.

EIGHT ANTRIM BOYS AND GIRLS CHOSEN FOR STATE FAIR

Eight Antrim County 4-H boys and girls have been selected to represent Northern Michigan through elimination events at Camp Gay-Gug-Lun, Gaylord.

Madelyn Labadie of Bellaire was selected in the Achievement Booth contest. At the State Fair Madelyn will compete for a trip to the National Boys and Girls Camp held annually at Washington.

Allen Moore of Bellaire won the Wood Identification contest.

Jason Shinn of Mancelona was second in Dairy Judging, scoring 750 points out of a possible 800, and needing just two more points to have been first, having been beaten by the score of 751.

Eleanor Beal of East Jordan was selected as one of the delegates in Style Revue.

Jean Kobel of Alba and Louise Olds of Elmira won in the canning demonstration contest.

John Weiman and Robert Lessard won in the Soil Conservation demonstration.

All eight will receive free trips to the Michigan State Fair, Detroit, August 30 to Sept. 8, where, with the exception of Miss Labadie, they will compete for trips to the National Boys and Girls Club Congress held annually in Chicago the last of November.

Victor Schuler and Roy Hoopfer, both of Rapid City, won in the Animal Husbandry demonstration, and their selection to go to the State Fair will depend upon elimination contests to be held at Michigan State College, August 16 and 17 for southern Michigan counties.

In addition to the above honors, Victor Schuler of Rapid City, and Berner Hansen of Kewadin, placed first and second respectively in Animal Husbandry judging, and with Francis Finch of Central Lake and Roy Hoopfer of Rapid City outscored other counties for high team honors in this event. Selection of some of these boys to the State Fair will depend upon some other events to be held soon.

The honors awarded our local club members are but vivid testimonies of the work being done by the District Club Leader, Mr. Orville F. Walker.

Delegates of the four counties of Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, and Emmet, of which Mr. Walker is in charge, swept all but a minimum of the contests at the camp.

APPLE GROWERS TO SPRAY FOR CODLING MOTH

Apple growers in Antrim county are being warned by Walter G. Kirkpatrick, County Agricultural Agent, to spray for the second generation Codling Moth by the 17th of August, or slightly later, as determined by the temperature at nightfall. This spray may be followed by two or more similar cover sprays.

In case the owner intends to wash with chemicals, the spray should consist of three pounds of lead arsenate in 100 gallons of water. For those not equipped to wash, a summer oil emulsion, — 3 quarts plus three-fourths pint of 40 per cent nicotine sulphate in 100 gallons of water are recommended.

Codling Moths lay their eggs during the night-time when the temperature reaches 62 degrees or above, and the eggs hatch a few days later if the temperature remains warm.

Junior Draw First Shutout

BLANKET WOLVERINE CCC'S INDIAN RIVER HERE THIS COMING SUNDAY

The East Jordan Juniors scored their first shutout of the season last Sunday afternoon, blanking the Wolverine CCC Camp 11 to 0, behind the 2-hit pitching of Louis "Monk" Cihak, stocky Jordanite right-hander. The Camp batters were helpless at the plate and only one man got as far as second base as Cihak chalked up 10 strikeouts.

The Jordanites hit hard and often Sunday, collecting 13 hits off Dryer of the Camp. Mocherman and Dougherty led the attack with 8 hits each. Holley and Stanek, both regulars, were not with the team Sunday and in the absence of Holley, "Tich" Saxton took over the catching duties, teaming up with Cihak as the winning battery. Dryer and Currie formed the losing battery.

The Jordanites will meet the Jordanites at the Fairgrounds this Sunday afternoon at 2:30.

Completing Plans For Northwestern Michigan Fair

With the Northwestern Michigan Fair only two weeks away, officials are rapidly completing plans for the event which begins August 27 and continues through August 30 at Traverse City.

Premium books are being distributed to 2000 prospective exhibitors this week as Fair Secretary Arnel Engstrom announced that all entries in the livestock division must be made on or before August 21. Only the poultry class is exempt from this regulation. Due to last minute entries in the 1939 event accommodations were over-taxed and the Fair Board of Directors, meeting afterward, decided on the earlier entry date to give all livestock superintendents time for preparations.

Entries in other divisions may be made up until the opening of the Fair, Secretary Engstrom said.

More than $6500 in premium money, $2,000 in purses for horse races, and $3,000 worth of cars and cash prizes to be given away are expected to make this the largest Fair ever to be held at Traverse City.

Happyland Shows, one of the largest traveling carnivals in the middle west, will provide midway entertainment with new rides and novelty concessions.

Two sparkling new musical revues will head the programs to be presented nightly on the stage in front of the grandstand. "International Extravaganza," a lavish dance and music revue, will be presented August 27 and 28, and "Hello America" a new show with an entire change of cast, will be presented August 29 and 30.

In addition a dozen or more top ranking vaudeville acts have been obtained to be presented between heats of the afternoon racing program, as well as on the evening show.

Thursday, August 29, will be Region Day at the Fair, with a large number of events, including horse pulling contests, livestock judging contests, a giant stock parade and the presentation of a 1940 automobile, arranged for visitors from the Grand Traverse Region.

LIBRARY NOTES

We are pleased to announce that we have received our first installment of books for our International Mind Alcove, which have been given to us from the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. The books deal with life in countries other than our own and often with conditions that prevailed before the tragedy of the present war.

The Alcove installments are chosen to attract the general reader rather than the specialist and we think that everyone will find a ready interest in the books as our collection grows.

Brief reviews of the initial installment of books for your International Mind Alcove:

Denmark: A Social Laboratory by Peter Manniche. This book tells us in an informal conversational style what the Danes had done through cooperative societies, folk high schools and attention to general social conditions to make their people as free and independent as it is possible to be.

Modern England, by Cicely Hamilton. England is a country upon which attention is centered at this time and this book, written by an English woman, gives a very fair and balanced picture of conditions in England when she wrote the book two years ago.

The Menacing Sun, by Mena Gardner. It is beautifully illustrated and gives the reader an intimate impression of the lands and peoples of Indo-China, Thailand (Siam), Malaya, Java, and India.

Caribbean Cruise, by John W. Vandersoek. It is a delightful book full of casual comment, of lovely descriptions and general information. It also deals with a strategic part of the world of which we may at any time hear more particularly since it is so closely related to the United States.

Why War? by Nicholas Murray Butler. Essays and addresses by the President of the Carnegie Endowment written over a period of two years, 1938-1940.

An Amiable Adventure by Amy Hemingway Jones. It is the overflow after a serious report had been made to the Endowment upon that part of her journey which was concerned with its official work.

The Autobiography of Andrew Carnegie by Andrew Carnegie. A review of an autobiography always seems rather futile since an author is himself his best reviewer. The only adequate way in which to judge such a book is to read it.

Your Personal Appearance — If Any — For Men Only

Victor Grabel Guest Conductor

SCHOOL BAND ON AUGUST 21st AT TOURIST PARK

The school band will play at the Tourist Park next Wednesday evening, August 21, with Victor Grabel as guest conductor.

A year ago a large crowd attended the Grabel concert given in the Tourist Park and it is expected a large crowd will turn out again next week Wednesday evening when Victor J. Grabel again will direct the East Jordan School Band in three numbers: "Hero Overture" by Johnson; "Beautiful Day" Overture by Hildreth and Mr. Grabel's own march "Fair Chicago."

VICTOR J. GRABEL

Mr. and Mrs. Grabel are resorting again this summer at their cottage on Oneonta Beach and Mr. Grabel wholeheartedly consented to again direct our band, when asked by Mr. Ter Wee. Mr. Grabel, who for years directed the Chicago Municipal Band and was musical director of the Chicago Land Music Festivals, owns a 43-acre tract of land on the east side of Lake Charlevoix.

We welcome Mr. Grabel to direct our Band and hope he will do so for many years to come. East Jordan is proud to count Mr. and Mrs. Grabel among our summer residents.

Northwest Mich. D. H. I. A. Elects Officers and En-gages Tester For New Year

At an organization meeting held last Friday night in the Boyne City Post Office Building, a Board of Directors was elected for the ensuing year. John Tillotson, Ellsworth, was elected President; Sam Straw, Charlevoix, Vice-President; Charles Mascho, Charlevoix, Sec'y - Treas.; and H. E. Sommersville, Boyne City, and B. C. Reberg, Petoskey, completing the Board of Directors.

E. C. Scheidhelm, Dairy Specialist from the Michigan State College, spoke to the group and discussed the many interesting accomplishments obtained through membership in the D. H. I. A. The group was favorably impressed with the baby bull project which is being developed at the present time. A goal has been set to purchase twenty young bulls (pure-breds), by as many dairymen in the county, this summer.

Denzil Gibbard, East Jordan, was hired to do the testing this year. It was decided to have five dollars turned in to the Secretary each month and then at the end of the year the tester would receive 90 per cent of this fund as a bonus for successful and efficient operation of the association.

A full membership of 24 dairymen is reported in the four counties of Emmet, Charlevoix, Antrim, and Kalkaska. Each month an interesting article will be published covering the records and accomplishments of the members.

B. C. Mellencamp, County Agr'l Agent.

4-H BOYS NOW JERSEY OFFICERS

Whether they start in Michigan or in other states, this picture is proof that youths who participate in 4-H club work such as in calf projects stay with their training. Here are four officers of the Michigan Jersey Cattle Club, and all of them were outstanding in club work. Left to right, as they stand at the side of a Michigan State College Jersey cow, are Nelson Blumerick, Caprac, breed association director and operator, with his father, of a Jersey dairy farm; Victor Beal, Montcalm county agricultural agent and secretary of the state Jersey club, outstanding as the others in earlier 4-H club work and a M.S.C. graduate in 1928; Dale Dean, manager of the Thomas Farms at Hartford, president of the state Jersey organization; and Erenus Larsen, Lakeview, West Michigan Jersey parish show director, college dairy short course graduate and working with his father, Ohio, operating home farm.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Farnham F. Dudgeon

Senate Votes to Call National Guard; War Spreads to Africa and Far East; England Offers Self Rule to India; U. S. Armed Forces Start War Games

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union

Here are the "Big Four" in the new cabinet of Japan, set up after the resignation of Premier Yonai. Left to right: Premier Prince Fumimaro Koyama; Yosuke Matsuoka, foreign minister; Vice Admiral Zengo Yoshida, minister of the navy; and Lieut. General Eiki Tojo, war minister. This new cabinet is pledged to closer co-operation with the Rome-Berlin axis and has set up its own Monroe Doctrine of the East.

U. S. DEFENSE: War Games

Accent on war came closer to home for hundreds of thousands of American families when they saw 310,000 of their sons, brothers, and fathers march off to the largest peacetime maneuvers in American history.

From coast to coast, border to border, U. S. army regulars, National Guardsmen and organized reserves were mobilized for a 21-day training period that swung them in divisions, corps and armies into simulated battle conditions in a war game around the Canadian border.

Congress

Meanwhile President Roosevelt sent a message asking congress for authority to call the National Guard into training for a year and gave his endorsement to the movement for peacetime conscription. After a favorable committee report the senate readily granted the National Guard authority (71-7) and sent this measure to the house.

Senate military committee approved the modified Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill, but there were predictions the weeks of committee debate are only the prelude of what is ahead on the senate and house floor. Bill now confines registration to men between ages of 21 to 31. Former War Secretary Woodring opposes the measure and urges lowering army enlistment period of one year and raising pay, in order to attract volunteers.

House leaders devoted hours of struggle to excess profits taxes and defense orders, combination of which promises to be tightest bottleneck. Present plan is to permit cost of plant expansions to be deducted from taxable earnings over five-year period, at rate of 20 per cent each year. Manufacturers want to net enough from defense orders to pay for necessary new facilities, definitely do not want to risk paying taxes on worthless property, as many had to do after 1919. U. S. Chamber of Commerce said: "Probabilities of loss are so great many business men would rather not undertake such business."

Also in Washington:

- List of contracts approved revealed the navy had agreed to purchase large number of trawlers to lay submarine nets in principal U. S. harbors.
- Alien registration to include 3,600,000 will begin August 27.
- Assistant State Secretary Welles holds action by duress comes within the act of Havana.
- The house passed and sent to the senate a bill to permit wire-tapping in investigations of espionage, sabotage and treason.

NAMES in the news

- Running for re-election to the U. S. senate, in the Democratic and Republican primaries, Senator Hiram Johnson of California heard himself labeled by President Roosevelt as "no longer a liberal and certainly not a Progressive Democrat."
- J. R. McCarl, former comptroller general, died in Washington.
- Lord Beaverbrook, Canadian-born London publisher, was added to England's inner war cabinet and is expected soon to replace Alfred Duff Cooper as minister of information.
- Neville Chamberlain, Britain's premier and advocate of appeasement, underwent an operation and may retire from the cabinet.
- Harriet Elliot, consumers' member of the National Defense commission, revealed that body would stagger buying for the army and navy to prevent undue pressure on the consumer and consequent price raises.

BATTLE OF BRITAIN: Invasion

Information from unoccupied France was that German troops in great volumes were moving toward the French channel ports. Germany closed all travel and communication routes between occupied and unoccupied France.

Worried about the turn of events in the Far East, England offered self-rule to India after the war if that country would now aid the British cause.

England, with a new army commander-in-chief, Sir Alan Brooke, changed its mode of defense. Boasting an army of 4,000,000 well-trained men, it swung back to the old theory that the best defense is an offense. Therefore road obstructions laid to delay movement of an enemy if he arrived were dug up—to permit the British army to get at him faster, if he did.

Bombings

England bombed Germany and Germany bombed England. Both sides claimed heavy damage to the other. Germany claimed the port of Dover, England, a shambles. England claimed the port of Hamburg, Germany, "pulverized." Both sides denied they were hurt much.

Virtually all British raids on Germany and German-held territory have been night calls, when safety is greatest for the fliers. On the other hand, Germans have paid daylight calls on England. This has led to the opinion the Nazi fliers were more interested in observation than destruction. But several eastern and southern English ports virtually have ceased to be open for commerce.

In Africa

Meanwhile Mussolini began warlike gestures in Africa. Italian troops said to number 250,000 moved from Italian possessions on Egypt and British Somaliland. London newspapers warned their readers to expect some Italian successes. Duce's goal is believed to be Suez and the gate to India.

INDIGNATION: Japan So Sorry

Arrest of nine British trade leaders and journalists in Japan was designated by Tokyo as breaking up of an espionage plot. Nipponese reported "suicide" of one journalist soon after his arrest. They said he unfortunately leaped from a window.

England demanded explanations and London papers called for retaliation. Four Britishers eventually were released but London was aroused by now and the arrest of an undisclosed number of Japanese in England, and elsewhere in the British empire, put a further strain on Anglo-Japanese relations.

Ambassador Namoro Shigemitsu lodged a "strong protest" with Viscount Halifax, Britain's foreign secretary, against arrest in London of representatives of two great Japanese banking and commercial houses. He was said to have requested their immediate release. There was no official comment, but unofficially it was said the arrest of the Britains in Japan and of the Japanese in Britain was "pure coincidence." Tokyo said the British action was retaliation.

SPIES: Nation Alert

G-Men have increased their force, due to many complaints about espionage, Chief G-Man J. Edgar Hoover told governors and their representatives, called together by President Roosevelt to form a common front against Fifth Columnists. Prior to 1938 the FBI investigated 35 cases a year. In 1938 the number rose to 250 and last year to 1,651. So far this year 16,855 investigations have been made.

Boomerangs

Boomerang throwing, warlike sport of aboriginal Australia, has an exponent in official Washington in the person of Henry Wallace, Democratic vice presidential nominee. He is pictured here (left) giving some instructions in the art to Attorney General Robert Jackson. Same day this picture was taken, one of the curved throwing sticks went out of bounds, clipped a news photographer on the head and four stitches had to be taken to close the wound.

CAMPAIGN: The Farmer

Republican candidate, Wendell Willkie, bent an ear to the wheat and corn belt problems when he ended his Colorado vacation by going to Des Moines, Iowa, to meet governors and their representatives from midwestern states. What they told him form the basis for his agricultural utterances in his acceptance speech. But he indicated he will advocate no change in the current farm program.

Efforts of Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.) to learn the Republican candidate's views on the conscription measures failed. Willkie said the President could have his opinion anytime he asked for it. Otherwise they also will first appear in the acceptance speech.

Democratic candidate for vice president, Farm Secretary Henry A. Wallace, changed his mind about staying in office during the campaign. He said he will resign when he accepts the nomination. He also had a little trouble with a "boomerang" (see cut).

BRITAIN'S PROBLEM: Naval Losses

German claims to heavy destruction of British shipping show basis for alarm. Britain started war with 183 destroyers. They admit 29 are sunk and more are laid up for repairs. Less than 100 are believed in operation. Nazis say British loss in merchant ships is larger than in the World war, in excess of 5,000,000 tons.

Ships for Sale

Condition may have reaction in U. S. The United States has 238 destroyers, twice as many as any other two navies. Committee to Defend America by Aiding Allies is agitating for sale of 60 "over-age and unused destroyers" to British. Those favoring sale argue it would be better to put ships to practical use than to allow them to rust in U. S. navy yards.

Agitation was brought into the open when Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of the A. E. F., spoke in favor of the sale. He said it might be the last act America might be able to make "short of war," and said by sending help to the British we "still can hope with confidence to keep the war on the other side of the Atlantic ocean."

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, in a speech to the anti-war rally at Chicago, warned that in the future America "may have to deal with a Europe dominated by Germany," and advocated "non-interference by America with affairs in Europe." For these remarks the "lone eagle" was branded as "the chief of the fifth column in this country," by Senator Pepper of Florida. This statement resulted in some bitter debate on the floor of the senate.

MISCELLANY: Disappointment

The duke and duchess of Windsor frustrated the hopes of many expectant dowagers when they decided not to come to America, en route to the former king's new job, governor general of the Bahamas. His royal highness changed plans, decided to disembark at Bermuda. There have been rumors, however, that his Pennsylvania-born, Baltimore-bred wife soon may visit America for a plastic operation, details unannounced.

When reserve army officers of the medical corps were called to Carlisle barracks, Pennsylvania, for training, the major course was tropical and semi-tropical diseases.

A death sentence was voted by a French court for the rebel Gen. Charles de Galle, who fled to England when the armistice was signed and has since organized French forces for further resistance. Still to hear their fate are Former Premiers Edouard Daladier and Leon Blum and Marshal Maurice Gamelin. De Galle and Blum still are not in French hands.

Only Time Can Test 'Advantages' Of Havana Conference Agreement

Pan-American Plan for Colonies Enlarges the Scope of Famous Monroe Doctrine and Assures Enforcement Of Its Provisions.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART
WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—Although copybooks long since have disappeared and the school systems seem to have omitted the "R" from reading, writing and arithmetic, the truth of the copy lines remains indisputable. One line, "time brings changes," continues to be basic fact and it applies to nations as well as individuals. If proof were needed as to the truth of the adage, recent developments at Havana, Cuba, surely can be used.

The conference at Havana, in which the United States and 20 other American republics participated, brought into being an agreement whereby all of the nations in North and South America, excepting Canada and the possessions of European nations, will work together in defense, military or otherwise. It was a meeting that must be placed in large print in history because it told the whole world that the Monroe Doctrine still exists and will be enforced.

The Havana conference was notable and historical in another way. It established for the first time, as a policy of the United States, a de-

Value of Agreement Is Highly Controversial

There are many objections possible of statement respecting this new treaty arrangement. None can foretell whether those objections have merit or not. Nor can anyone in this day say with certainty that the program will guarantee either peace or war. In most arguments that we hear in Washington discussions, claims that appear sound are advanced both for and against the value and general merit of the Havana treaty. The thing will have to be studied and will have to be in operation for a time, I believe, before anyone can make an unequivocal statement whether its advantages outweigh its disadvantages, or whether the reverse is true.

To get back to the copybook line that "time brings changes," it may be pointed out properly that the United States has bound itself to defend all of South and Central America. It may be said, moreover, that the Havana treaty expands the Monroe Doctrine beyond any of the original meaning of the statement made by President James Monroe. Or, it offers ground for argument that the United States is taking upon itself the guardianship of all of the Americas, since it is a fact that the United States navy is the only navy worthy of a name in all of the Western hemisphere.

Fate of Small Republics Has Become Very Important

These changes have taken place. Of that, there can be little doubt. But there remains the condition that confronts all of the nations of North and South America. We do not know in this country what influences are operative in South and Central America. Of course, it is known that subversive agents—Hitler and Mussolini and Stalin—are busy in Mexico. We can see various signs of the boring-from-within that is taking place in other nations. But the truth is that we have no real knowledge of how much progress has been made or whether the parasites that are within the body politic of the Latin countries have left only a shell of solidarity on the surface for us to see.

These things, if they do exist, are highly dangerous to the United States. How dangerous they are, time alone will tell, but time has brought the changes that force the United States to build something in the nature of protective fence. The question is whether that fence shall be on our frontier with Mexico and Canada, or whether it shall be a fence along the shores of the Atlantic and the Pacific, and whether the United States can build a fence at all to make trespassers keep out.

It was only a few years ago that the Washington government was sort of letting the South American republics hold their elections with gunfire and thinking nothing of it. Now, those elections are important to us. The United States cannot go down there and supervise the elections. That would be the surest way to disrupt the relations of a more or less peaceful character that exist between the various republics. Yet, anything that is done by any of those governments now, anything that affects their status in relation to any other nation in the New world, becomes a matter paramount in importance.

U. S. Must Bear Burden Of War in Americas

Probably, the Havana convention will come in for some very harsh criticism. It likely will be said by some, for instance, that it is another step in the direction of war and that its terms will result in American troops being used all over South America at some time in the future. To the extent that the United States must fight—if war comes to this side of the Atlantic—the Havana treaty will send our troops south of the border. It may be that such a result would have to come, anyway, whether the United States was aligned with its sister republics or not.

If war comes our way—and I see no reason for it to come over here—the United States is going to have to carry the burden. The United States has the great stake and it must defend that stake. So, the question turns on whether it is wise to take in so much territory by a written agreement, or whether to persist in following the doctrine of President Monroe as is now a tradition, dealing with the problems as they arise.

As I said, none can tell yet how the Havana treaty is going to work out. If it works out as planned, it has plenty of meritorious phases. If some of the South American republics kick over the traces, as they have been known to do, the Havana treaty will be just another scrap of paper. For the time being, however, the agreement is an excellent talking point, in any event. It is notice that any foreign nation had better consider the consequences before attempting to decide the fate of European possessions here.

PRESIDENT JAMES MONROE

termination to use our national defense—our army, our navy, our air force—in protecting not only our own shore lines, but the shore lines of our sister nations of the Western hemisphere.

In other words, the conference which is described as "the Pan-American Agreement on Colonies," did these things: (1) it determined steps to be taken if any European possession in the Western hemisphere were threatened with transfer of sovereignty to another foreign nation; (2) it established a new base for inter-American trade and economic relations so that inroads by any European or Asiatic power will be made more difficult; (3) it prepared the way for dealing with, and the control of, agents of foreign powers seeking to carry on subversive activities against the New world.

Agreement Establishes New World Solidarity

Under this structure of international agreement, there is set up machinery which will provide something of a guardianship—a protectorate—for British and French and Dutch Guiana. The British section of that three-part country, of course, is still subject to British rule. Nobody knows exactly the status of the French and Dutch sections, since Hitler forced France to her knees and wreaked havoc with Holland.

To date, the situation is not thoroughly clear how this protectorate will work. It can be said, however, that the idea is definite and conclusive and that any move to transfer Dutch and French Guiana to Germany will meet with resistance. The United States and its sister republics simply have said to Hitler and the others in Europe: stay on your own side of the Atlantic, we don't want you over here and you shall not come here.

So, any fair interpretation of the Havana international meeting means that (1) a principle has been established, (2) that means of supporting and enforcing that principle have been created, and (3) that any of the nations of North or South America can act against any foreign power and will do so with the agreed approval of the others. It is a powerful thing and, if it holds, there is established an entirely new solidarity within the New world.

PROBLEM OF COLONIES

The recent Pan-American Conference on Colonies receives a thorough analysis by William Bruckart, Washington correspondent. This conference enlarged the scope of the Monroe Doctrine to establish virtual protectorates over European possessions in the Americas. Bruckart believes that the true value of this government cannot be known until it has stood the test of time.

4-H CLUB NEWS

4-H CLUB MEMBERS WIN SIX TRIPS TO STATE FAIR

At the Gaylord Club Camp last week Charlevoix County club members gave a splendid account of themselves. Six 4-H club members won trips to the State Fair in the various contests and demonstrations.

Clare McGhan, Charlevoix, won in the achievement booth competition. Thus Clare has another opportunity to come to the front. He has a list of achievements not duplicated by any other member in Northern Michigan.

Betty Strehl, East Jordan, won her trip in being chosen to style her dress in the dress revue competition. Albert Routley and Clair Williams gave a poultry demonstration which was placed first at the Camp and thus they will be seeing the sights in Detroit before long.

Another demonstration team, made up of Mason Clark and Harry Watson, East Jordan, won out with their handicraft demonstration on saw filing. Thus we have six young folks who will have the opportunity of competing at Detroit for trips to Chicago and visiting the State Fair for two or three days.

Mrs. Leatha Larsen, club leader from East Jordan, and Betty Strehl, club member of East Jordan, were taken into the Service Club, an honorary organization made up of outstanding club leaders and members from Northern Michigan.

This splendid record, not alone in Charlevoix County but also in Antrim, Emmet, and Cheboygan counties, reflects great credit on Mr. O. P. Walker, District Club Leader, who has worked faithfully with these young folks this summer. Practically all of the trips were won in this district.

The next events on the club docket will be the summer achievement day, held in connection with the County Picnic in September, and the Charlevoix County Fair the week of September 8th.

B. C. Mellenkamp,
County Agr'l Agent.

SUCCESS SAGA

By THAYER WALDO

(McClure Syndicate—WNU Service.)

DOWN through a vale of verdure-studded hills the flawless highway wound. Along its edge walked a boy, satchel in hand. Occasionally he glanced behind, but no disappointment showed at constant sight of a road without cars. It was, after all, still early morning, and three days of this informal traveling had taught him not to expect bounty before nine.

As it neared level once more, the road did a near-right-angle bend. Rounding this, the boy saw, just off the pavement a hundred yards ahead, a coupe of familiar make but questionable vintage. Upon its road-side running board sat a girl in sports skirt and gay-hued sweater. Approaching, he crossed the concrete diagonally toward her. When she looked up, he smiled and called: "Having some trouble?"

"Well, I'm not just taking a rest cure."

The tone's banter forestalled any hint of sarcasm.

She gazed at him with frank appraisal and asked:

"Are you hitch-hiking?"

He reached her side and put the bag down.

"Uh-huh—with emphasis on the 'hike' I've seen today, and it doesn't look very promising. What's the matter?"

"Well, it might be one of several things, but I'm afraid it's all."

With a chuckle the boy creaked up the battered engine hood.

"Looks pretty bad, all right," he admitted after a moment's inspection. "You've got two cracked spark plugs and a blown head gasket, to start with. How far'd you say you were going?"

"Hollywood, I hope."

He spun quickly around, displaying new bright-eyed interest.

"No!—honest? Say, that's funny; I am too!"

"Oh, really? Do you live there?"

"No, but I'm going to—for a while, anyway. Perhaps later I'll move to Beverly Hills."

"Why, that's just what I planned, as soon as I get my contract."

He perched on the sagging front fender and grinned down at her.

"So that's it! Well, this sure is a coincidence. Here we meet up in the middle of Oregon, both going to the same place for the same thing. What studio will you be with?"

The girl patted her hair and shrugged archly.

"I'm not sure yet. Whichever one offers me the best opportunity. You see, I have letters of introduction to several influential people."

He nodded judicious approval and said:

"That's fine. All anyone with your looks needs in Hollywood is a little pull."

"Thank you; but I don't expect to depend on either. I want to make my way quite independently, and by talent rather than mere beauty."

"Oh, sure; it's merit that counts, all right. I just meant that a nice start helps. Take me: everyone up in Seattle said I ought to go in the movies after I won three first prizes on amateur nights at the Bijou. But do you think I'd be trying it if the way wasn't greased? Not much. My uncle's an assistant director at Zenith. That'll make a cinch for me."

"I should say so. You're very fortunate. I just finished at Portland Junior college. We did 'Twelfth Night' for the senior play; I was 'Viola.' A great many people thought my performance quite fine, so now I'm driving—"

She broke off, a sudden small frown appearing, and added ruefully: "I mean, I was driving. Gee, only 85 miles from home, and stranded already."

The boy looked thoughtfully for an instant. Then he slid down the fender to a seat beside her, exclaiming:

"I know what! You come with me."

"You mean," she asked, gazing at him in astonishment, "flagging rides?"

He affirmed it and went on to embellish the picture.

A little urging won her over; it was agreed that they should hitch-hike on together.

From the flivver's rear deck the boy took her two grips and stood them beside his own.

Then both sat down again, and now two faces were turned northward to watch for the cars which he assured her would soon be coming.

They chatted of this and that, exchanging confident predictions for the Hollywood future. At last he questioned:

"Who's your favorite star?"

"Homer Austin," she told him without hesitation. "He does dramatic parts so wonderfully. Did you see him with Sonya Ruskin in 'Romeo and Juliet'?"

Enthusiastically the boy responded:

"I'll say! Sat through it twice and went back again the next week. Now there's a man who sure worked his way up without any soft breaks. Just an extra five years ago, and now look at him. Why, nobody in pictures has as big a following. He'll be popular for years."

"By the way, did you know he's up here somewhere on location right now? I was dying to find out just where, but they keep those things terribly secret."

"Sure—they have to, especially when it's somebody like Austin." Looking at his wrist watch, he added: "Well, just about time for the traffic to begin."

Her hand touched his sleeve.

"Look! You're a good guesser."

Around the curve above them had shot a big, high-powered phaeton. Its driver was a man and alone.

Bounding up, the boy signalled vigorously.

The car was almost abreast before the man at the wheel noticed him. There came a screech of rubber on pavement and it halted a hundred feet beyond.

"Quick!" the boy cried, seizing the luggage: "come on—our luck's starting already!"

"Wait—did you see that man?"

"Yeah; what's wrong with him?"

"Why, nothing, only—it's Homer Austin!"

He stopped dead, eyes wide; then: "Aw—you must be mistaken."

"All right; look now."

He did. The driver had alighted and was strolling toward them. Groggishly large goggles masked his upper face, but there was no mistaking its identity; she had been right.

"Golly!" the boy whispered. "Is this a thrill!"

Austin approached, asking: "Need some help?"

"Why—why, no, sir—nothing but a lift, that is. The car's a wreck; we're leaving it."

"Oh, I see." The actor laughed. "Well, pile in, then. I'll be glad for the company."

In eager silence the pair obeyed. A moment more and they were spinning southward.

"Just where are you nomads going?" Austin queried after a little.

It was the girl who answered: "To Hollywood, Mr. Austin. Are you?"

He gave her an odd glance and said: "So I'm still recognized, anyway. Yes, I'm driving straight through."

"We're going down to work in pictures," the boy stated in a tone meant to be casual. "Are they finished with the one you came up to make?"

"Nope," the actor told him tersely; "but I am."

"Oh. You mean they took all your scenes first?"

The famous star smiled a smile that was wholly lacking in humor.

"Not exactly. They just decided to put another actor in the part. My fan mail fell off about 2,000 letters last week; his gained twice that much. So now I'm going back to hunt a new job. That, my boy, is Hollywood."

Astronomical Almanac

Published to Aid Flyers

The first astronomical almanac compiled in Great Britain for the use of airmen, has been published under the title "The Air Almanac." It was prepared by H. M. Nautical Almanac office on behalf of the Air Ministry, says the London Sunday Observer.

Astronomical observation are constantly used by airmen and the first-class air navigator's license is issued for proficiency in this department among other subjects. Instruction in astronomical navigation is also given in the air force.

In an airplane, however, conditions for making elaborate calculations are unfavorable, while the speed impairs the value of calculations, which take many minutes to complete.

In simplifying the procedure, the compilers of the air almanac have succeeded admirably. Accuracy within 10 miles, and more usually within five miles, is secured, provided a normal sight has been taken.

In place of declination and right ascension (the celestial equivalents of latitude and longitude) declination and the Greenwich hour angle are used. The tables are for sun, moon, the four brighter planets and 50 fixed stars.

The almanac is in two portions. Each leaf covers two days only, and as the leaves are detachable a pilot need only take with him such pages as will be needed on any particular journey. Calculations from the observations made are merely a matter of simple arithmetic.

"Dead reckoning" in air navigation cannot be relied upon, for a very short period during which no landmark is visible often results in serious deviation from the right course. Changes of direction and strength of the wind cannot be detected without reference to actual position in relation to landmarks, and there may be unnoticed variations in the air speed of the machine, and errors in the compass bearing.

Directional wireless has done much to remedy this handicap, and it is used increasingly, not only in air, but in marine navigation. But directional wireless service is not always and everywhere available, and is, moreover, subject to errors.

Civil War Bugle

A battery bugle whose blast sounded the end of the Civil war is owned by Mason Swinney, of New Baden, Ill. His grandfather, Charles W. Swinney, sounded the call marking the surrender of Gen. Robert E. Lee to Gen. U. S. Grant on April 9, 1865, at Appomattox Courthouse, Va. Swinney gave the instrument to his youngest son before his death and left instructions that it be handed down indefinitely to the youngest son in each generation. Its present owner is unmarried.

WINDOW FOGGING CONTROLLED BY DOUBLE GLASS

Here is one way to control that annoying fogging and condensation on the windows in your new home. Shown here are three casement windows. Notice that two of them are entirely clear because of inside double glazing. The other window has had the inside double glazing removed, with the result that it is fogged up almost immediately. When this picture was taken the inside room temperature was 71 degrees, while outside the thermometer stood at 15 degrees above zero.

150-Year-Old Paintings

Found Under Wall Paper

Murals apparently painted in the days just after the American Revolution have been uncovered in an old Rockport, Mass., home. Buried under four layers of wallpaper for several generations, the murals, quaint in design and of antiquarian value, were found when decorators cleaned the walls preparatory to repapering.

Mrs. Marian J. Cooney, whose family owned the house for many years, was unaware of the murals' presence. The stock of new wallpaper she had selected to cover the small parlor's walls never will be used.

Identity of the artist who created the work is not known, although Mrs. Etta S. Moore, 80 years old, recalled that the builder, George Knowlton, had a daughter who was artistically inclined.

The paintings were believed to have been executed about 150 years ago as the two flags crossed over an apple tree and a brace of doves, contained 13 stars and 10 bars each. Figures in this mural and those on the other three walls are stiff, but attractive.

Most interesting of the panels is one depicting a farm worker at a well who lifts an oaken bucket to his lips as a small blue dog looks on.

American Homes

Out of every 100 American homeowners 50 buy their first home "to have a better place to bring up the children." The next greatest motive is just a sentimental longing "for a home of our own." Investment runs a poor third as a reason for home ownership. The average American couple buy their first home when they have been married five years; when the husband is 32 years old and the wife is 29. The average price paid by the families studied was $4,899, almost exactly two years' salary, the average annual income reported being $2,452. New homes were built by 31 per cent of the families questioned. Sixty-nine per cent purchased older houses and there were children in 61 per cent of the families at the time their first home was purchased.

Safety Light Switch

A new type of electric light switch, which allows the light to stay on from 20 to 60 seconds after the switch is turned off, should prove particularly valuable as both a safety device and a convenience. Its manufacturers maintain added conveniences for the switch when installed in hallways, bedrooms, children's rooms, porches, garages, basements and all other points where the switch may not be near the exit or where a margin of light is needed after the switch is turned off.

When turned off, the light goes out from a few seconds to a minute after the switch is snapped, depending upon an adjustment allowance.

CHAPTER XV—Continued

Softly, gun leveled, Gandy said, "Hold your hands up! Keep quiet!" As if jerked by springs two arms shot up and stayed rigid in the air. "Come here," he ordered.

Paul Champion came to him out of the dark.

"Kid! You?" In a hot flare as tension left him, Walt Gandy snapped, "Are you crazy?" Then he saw that the boy was shaking.

"Wait!" Paul began. "I . . . His mouth continued to work but no words came. He still gripped the big forty-five in his right hand, and the sharp odor of burned powder drifted from it.

Gandy took him by the arm and moved back along the fence, picked up Fisher, saying nothing until they were again in the tall corn rows.

There in a low voice, he asked, "Now, boy, what happened? Why did you come up here and what did you shoot at?"

Young Champion seemed to have got hold of himself. "A man," he said. "He was right there, right beside that, that you know, Ranger Powell. I saw him, and he saw me and raised a rifle. I had to shoot first. Then he just faded. Wait, I didn't hit him, but he just wasn't there any more!" The boy finished in high pitch.

"Easy, Paul," Walt said. "Take another breath, kid, and start again. What were you doing up here anyway?" He bent forward to see the young face but could make out only the vague hollows of eyes, and next minute they were turned from him. Young Champion didn't answer.

Gandy gripped his arm. "Look here, Paul, you'd better talk! If you followed anyone, or know who it was you shot at, you tell us."

"I didn't see anyone, honest, until I got here," the boy answered, head down.

"Well, what were you looking for?"

The head lifted. "I don't want to tell you, Walt! Let me go!"

Horsethief Fisher spoke angrily from Gandy's side. "You young jackass, by thunder . . . !"

"Never mind, Horsethief," said Gandy. "Kid, you travel on back. Quick! Get to the bunk house and don't you move from there again tonight!" He watched the vanishing form, then to Fisher: "What do you make of that?"

"Beyond me. I don't figure he trailed anyone. Hadn't no business up here, except maybe he was curious. Paul pokes that nose of his into places where he oughtn't, sometimes."

"You mean curious to have a look at Powell?"

The old bronc rider nodded. He stood silent for a moment, staring, then in a low voice with a sudden angry growl in it, he said: "I'm tired of this! I've had enough of waitin' around to see who's goin' to be next! I don't aim to put up with it much more neither."

"Sure," Gandy agreed. "But what are you going to do about it?"

"I know what I'd do all right!"

"Well, what?"

"Go get me seven, eight men I know of. Boy, give me Shirtless Bailey and Hack Bowers and them fellows, and I'd make one outfit hereabouts go on home and spend a quiet winter!"

"You mean the 77?"

"I sure do! Me and Paul found some 77 cows shoved into the sink today."

They had been moving slowly along the corn rows. Now at the edge of clear ground, Gandy stopped. "You go on in," he said. "I'll cut a circle back up to the house. I want to locate Lavin."

Whenever Bent Lavin could not be found at his chores, or anywhere among the sheds and corrals on the lower ranch lot, look for him in the swing. That peculiarity Walt had already noted. He was trying to locate the swing tree now.

Wind that had made a pressure against his face, eased off; somewhere not far ahead, the building was sheltering him. He moved on, and in another step jerked back to a standstill. White horizontal lines were before his eyes—the plaster chinking between logs of the house.

With this discovery Gandy stood waiting until he could place the windows by their dark square patches cutting the white lines. He was almost beside Helen Cameron's end room. And then he made out someone standing close to the chinked wall within a dozen paces ahead of him, while in that side window appeared a vague gray figure. Immediately there came hoarse, tight-throated tones of Bent Lavin talking.

The low rasp of his words did not carry enough to be distinguished. They stopped in a moment. Gandy strained to hear an answer, then realized that the man was deaf and there would be no audible reply to what he had said. Next, in his jerking motion, Bent Lavin was retreating along the house logs. The figure in the window had vanished.

Walt Gandy remained fixed in the utter blackness of the night, stopped completely by what he had just witnessed and the number of things that it seemed to reveal. It came to him that the deformed old man was not so simple after all in this swing business. The swing was near Helen. Also, Gandy realized, from this vantage behind the house Lavin would have a wide view of the basin in which the C C was located; he could watch the sheds and corrals, the mountainside north and south and the bench for miles to the west. The swing undoubtedly was a look-out.

Old Bent Lavin knew what was happening on this ranch! Knew what had happened! Tonight Helen had known that Ranger Powell was dead. Wasn't it Lavin who had passed that information to her? Less than half an hour ago there had been a gunshot—and this minute she must know who had been shot at.

But as Gandy stood there in the dark, puzzled, blocked, this discovery of Lavin and Helen raised a sinister question. Did the twisted devil have his hands on that girl in some way, holding something over her? Or was he in fact, as Hollister had said, her watch-dog. If Bent Lavin did have knowledge of what had happened on the C C lately, no telling how he'd use it.

Here was one question that could not go unanswered!

Hollister came back shortly after eleven o'clock. Lying dressed on his blankets, Gandy heard him enter the kitchen, get up and went out.

Pouring coffee from a pot on the stove, Hollister turned a set mask of a face. He nodded. "It's all right."

"You put him out of reach?"

"Safe," Hollister answered. "Cash is with a friend of mine. Battle showed up yet?"

"Not yet."

Without asking, Gandy knew that Hollister would not want to tell where he had taken Cash Cameron. It was more than the secrecy brought by these troubled days. A certain tone of voice in which every man says "a friend of mine" was a dead give-away. Hollister's friend was a woman.

Then Sheriff Battle shouted his arrival.

CHAPTER XVI

WITHOUT Cash Cameron, the hearing in Emigrant next day was not pushed far. In fact Ed Battle had surprisingly few questions to ask. He held a short meeting between the C C people and Coroner Daggett in his own office and conducted it with a dispatch unusual in him. For once the sheriff of Emigrant County appeared to know exactly what he was doing.

Confidence made him almost genial, as if there was no need to hound the unlucky outfit any more.

As Walt Gandy, alone for the moment after the hearing, untied his palomino, Horsethief Fisher came bow-legged along and halted at the hitch rack end. Beside Horsethief towered a man—six feet and some inches, but droop-shouldered and slouched, with a long melancholy face and deceptively mild blue eyes.

Texas was written on him as plain as a brand, and taking one look, Gandy was not misled by the slouch, nor the melancholy face, nor the mildness of this party's gaze. The man was perhaps forty-five or fifty.

"Walt," said Horsethief, grinning, "this here is Shirtless Bailey. Homeless, ain't he? I've seen babies bust right out bawlin', looking at him. But that don't need to bother us none."

The man waited solemnly until Fisher had finished. In a slow rough voice then he said, "How are you, Gandy?" He took out a pocket knife, opened it, cut a sliver of wood from the hitch post and began to chew on the end.

Gandy continued to untie his palomino, saying, "Howdy, Bailey?"

Shirtless Bailey chewed up the splinter of hitch post and put away his pocket knife. Horsethief Fisher stood absorbed in looking at the mountains behind Emigrant. Gandy finished getting his horse ready, rolled a cigarette. Still no one said anything.

The rest of the C C people came jogging along the street. Putting boot-toe to his stirrup, Walt Gandy said only, "See you again, Bailey?"

The Texan nodded. It was all understood. Horsethief Fisher had got in touch with his pards.

Helen Cameron pulled over as Gandy joined the mounted group and rode beside him, and there was a question in her brown eyes. Yet, he wanted time, for that question was one he could not answer. He pushed up close to Hollister, Paul Champion and Fisher to avoid riding alone with the girl. Thus for a little while they all jingled across the bench top together.

Hitting onto the sand flat, Walt pushed up beside the girl, trying to forestall what he knew she was about to ask. "We'd better not hang back, Helen. Let's talk later."

She turned to him, leaning out with one hand braced on her thigh. "Did you get it?"

Again he said, "Not now, Helen. Later."

"But did you?"

Gandy hesitated.

"Wait! I want that bullet!"

He shook his head. "We can't talk here. They're waiting for us." Hollister and the other two had stopped on the far side of the wash.

A sudden fear was in the girl's dark eyes as she rode on. Gandy avoided them, covering a cold uncertainty that he himself had been in for the past hour. The letter which he had mailed to his post office box the day of the Chino Drake inquest, was not there. He had found the box empty. Folded in that letter was the small square of Helen Cameron's handkerchief, and a bullet—the inquest evidence.

The ranch home was not reached until after dark, and Walt, on duty as cook, asked Paul Champion to unsaddle and turn out his palomino. Then up at the house he got together a meal.

Cash Cameron's vacant place at the head of the long pine boards acted upon all in a way that held even the youngest cowboy to silence.

Gandy pulled out Helen's chair for her. Across the table Hollister and Horsethief Fisher hitched their bench in close. He remained standing, uncertain. "Where's Lavin?"

Heads lifted and eyes went around the room as if to pick the man out of a corner somewhere.

It was Helen who answered, "Why, Bent was at the corrals. I thought he followed us." She turned her head and looked up at him.

At other times the question would have aroused nothing. The old fellow had queer ways; whether he came to the table with the crew or scuffed in later was of no concern. But tonight the air was charged to hair-trigger tension. Any uncertainty carried threat. Hollister swung one leg over the bench and started to rise.

"Bill!" Helen began. Next one hand flew to her throat, and the whole room was jarred by the shock of the kitchen door being banged inward.

Bent Lavin came scuffling rapidly across to the dining-room arch. His face was more twisted than ever in a soundless working of his mouth. His good right arm made short jabbing gestures—Lavin was trying to convey something.

The motion of his arm was first toward Helen Cameron; then with a start Gandy saw the old fellow indicate him. It seemed a warning.

"Know what this is?"

"Battle!" Lavin managed and was cut short then by the sheriff himself looming in the kitchen doorway.

Over his shoulder the law of Emigrant County threw a word to someone outside, faced around again, kicked the door shut behind him and came on in.

Bent Lavin had stumbled along the wall to the far end of the dining-room. Walt Gandy was still standing at Helen Cameron's side. His left hand almost touched the girl's shoulder. Across from him Hollister and Horsethief Fisher sat bolt upright as rigid as two figures cast in metal.

In the dining-room arch Ed Battle brought his ponderous form to a halt and pushed up his hat, leaving it on the back of his head. His mouth was set in a twisted grin. For a full minute he waited, letting his presence make its dramatic effect. Then slowly he drew a long padded envelope from the inner pocket of his black horsehide coat.

His grin slid away. He glowered, and his voice rumbled up in its deep vibrations. "Know what this is?"

"I'm only the damn fool sheriff of this county," Battle mocked. "I know. But we'll let that pass. What have you got to say about this envelope, Gandy?"

"I'll say," Walt answered dryly, "that you didn't think of looking in the post office all by yourself, Battle."

"No?"

"No," said Gandy, for he knew now how this discovery had come about. "Pete Kelso of the 77 told you I had been there."

Battle's heavy head jerked. He roared: "You're some wise, all right, aren't you? Well, you've got your neck in a sling this time! No," he added at once, "I'm not arresting you. You'll keep. But don't try to leave!"

"Last thing I expect to do, Sheriff."

Eyes shifting downward, Battle went on, "That goes for you, too, Miss Helen. Don't leave the place. I'm sure sorry you got in with a fellow like this, but your handkerchief—having your initials on it anyway, being in with the bullet stolen from my inquest is mighty bad. I'm sorry, girl."

He continued to the room in general. "We've got two slugs from Ranger Powell's body, and now we've got this one. They all came from the same rifle. You might as well tell Cash Cameron to come on in. The game's up." Abruptly he faced Hollister. "Will you take that word to him, or will I?"

Only a twitch of jaw muscles betrayed that Bill Hollister winced under the unexpected question. He said nothing, and looked off away from anyone there in the room.

"Speak up!" Battle thundered. "Think I don't know where Cameron is? Want me to say? He's over in Mexican Hole!"

To Walt Gandy, watching the law's reddening face, it seemed that Ed Battle had taken this last shot in the dark. But it had sudden effect upon Bill Hollister.

His glance moved quickly, not to the sheriff, but to Helen Cameron. Under heavy brows his eyes sought her in one short look, and then he was up on his feet.

Perhaps only Gandy knew the control that was behind the even flow of Hollister's words: "Battle, I told you the other day what you were. I repeat it. You're a skunk!"

Battle's mouth opened. Hollister went on. "Why don't you arrest me, Ed? You've got the bullets, and I suppose you've got my rifle. One of your deputies took it from the house while we were gone to the first inquest, didn't he? Do your duty then. I killed Drake and Ranger Powell."

He held out his arms, wrists close together as if for the handcuffs. "Put them on; I'll go."

It took Ed Battle a full minute to collect himself. "You fool!" he thundered. "You . . ."

In a sudden forward step Hollister was up close to him, and his voice no longer flowed in even control. It lashed out like a whip: "Then get out of this house! You travel! Don't you ever stick your foot on the C C again until you know what you're here for and come with a warrant!"

He advanced, hammerhead fists clenched at his sides.

Battle retreated, backing to the kitchen. He reached the door. There he stood heavily balanced, uncertain, eyes blinking in the lamp-glow.

"All right, Hollister," he said, "I'll be back in less than twenty-four hours. With a warrant." The door closed on his ponderous form.

From the moment that Battle had pulled out the envelope and told loud-voiced what its contents meant, Walt Gandy had been vaguely conscious of a change in Bent Lavin. Now he looked across the narrow room to where the deformed man was crouched against the side wall, and the thing he had been only half aware of, showed itself.

Understanding was in the sunken gray eyes, and they were fixed upon him. Then they dropped to Helen Cameron, resting upon her in the same pointed gaze. After that, the old fellow hunched into his place beside Horsethief Fisher and began to eat.

Gandy went out for hot coffee, brought the pot back and filled all cups. The meal lasted through a wordless fifteen minutes.

A little later, working in the kitchen, he was again aware of the drilling gray eyes following him. Hollister, Horsethief Fisher and Paul Champion had filed outside. Helen had contrived to busy herself in the dining-room. Lavin stood beside the stove, and all at once he seemed like a dumb animal trying to talk.

Plainly he had something to convey, and as plainly was waiting for the girl to leave. Twice she came to the dining-room arch, looked at Bent, turned back and continued to be busy. After the second time the old man took his hat from a nail and scuffed out the door.

Stacking white china plates on a shelf, Gandy gave a scowling glance over his shoulder, for he believed that Helen had deliberately kept Bent Lavin silent. Almost as soon as the old fellow had gone, she passed through the kitchen and into her wing of the house.

CHAPTER XVII

LYING back, smoking in slow inhalations, Walt Gandy felt that he had been a long time on this ranch—a long time waiting for what the next hours must bring. He had been called up here to take part in the C C trouble. So far that part had been a blind one, as uncertain as what lay under the trouble itself. Yet any hour, surely before another day ended, the sheer push of events was bound to rip the whole thing wide open.

Next instant he dropped his cigarette and crushed it, for at his movement something darker than the night had flicked out of the building's inner patio. Someone had been trying the door to Cash Cameron's office! Cameron had come back?

In the dark, separate animals were hard to distinguish. Gandy made a complete circle around the split log enclosure before a thing was clear and suddenly significant. Cameron had not come back. At least his mount was not at the feed rack nor had it been turned into this bunch. Instead, Bent Lavin's gray nag was missing.

Moving rapidly back to the shed for his saddle, he pictured Lavin riding tonight, out somewhere to get in touch with the 77. Battle's thundered words had given him news to carry. Guesswork, perhaps, Gandy realized; yet he determined to trail the gray nag.

FIRST AID TO THE SICKLING HOUSE

by Roger B. Whitman

(© Roger B. Whitman—WNU Service.)

Poor Chimney Draft.

QUESTION: My smokestack draws well when there is no wind, but does not work satisfactorily on a windy day. The chimney has been lengthened so that it is well above the roof, but that did not help. The location of the house may have something to do with it. The house is in a valley between two hills, about 50 feet taller than the house. Both hills are about 200 feet from the house. I would appreciate your advice.

ANSWER: The force of the wind coming down from the hills may cause a down-draft condition in the chimney. A type of revolving chimney cap, made of sheet metal, with a vane on top may help. The vane will turn the open part of the cap away from the wind, minimizing the downward sweep of the wind from the hill. Any sheet metal shop will be able to supply it.

Disintegrating Bricks.

QUESTION: The brick on my bungalow seems to be disintegrating. Many of them had scaled off to depths of from one-eighth to one-half inch. The builder claims that all brick is more or less affected this way by the frost. He says a clear waterproofing brushed on the wall will correct this condition. Do you think this will be adequate?

ANSWER: A porous brick will absorb moisture, which during the winter may freeze, causing the brick to chip or scale off. Waterproofing the brick will most likely prevent the absorption. If the brick is very porous two coats may be necessary.

Sawdust and Cement Mix.

QUESTION: I noticed in several rural publications a reference made to a floor made of cement and sawdust. What are the advantages of such construction, and what is the formula?

ANSWER: This form of cement mixture is still in the experimental stages. The purpose is to obtain a concrete floor that may be somewhat warmer than ordinary concrete in barns and poultry houses. Further information can be had by writing to the Extension Service Bureau, University of New Hampshire, at Durham, N. H., for Circular No. 217.

Rust Stain on Cement.

QUESTION: Please let me know how to remove rust stains from white cement on a terrace; caused by iron furniture standing on it.

ANSWER: Dissolve one part of sodium citrate in six parts of water. Mix thoroughly with six parts of commercial glycerine. Mix a portion of this with enough powdered whiting to form a paste, then spread on the stain in a thick coat. When dry, replace with fresh paste. Several applications may be necessary.

Bedroom Ceiling.

QUESTION: I have the problem of bad ceilings in some bedrooms. The plasterer advised plastering on wire lath, then applying some kind of paper before painting. What is the reason for this? There is no wallpaper on the walls now.

ANSWER: The plasterer had in mind the application of "painter's cloth" over the plaster. This is a strong fabric applied-over plaster surfaces to prevent the cracks from showing through the paint.

Separating Rooms.

QUESTION: My living room and dining room adjoin with a wide space between the two rooms, so that they can be used as one, when desired. When privacy is temporarily desired, is there any way the two rooms may be separated without destroying the present lay-out?

ANSWER: A set of folding doors can be installed, if the space is too wide for a pair of French doors. Your only other alternative would be to hang portieres.

Leaking Leaders.

QUESTION: The outside leaders of my house are leaking very badly. Will this cause any damage to the house? How could they be replaced so I would not have trouble with them again?

ANSWER: Leaking leaders should be replaced as soon as possible. A 16-ounce corrugated copper leader should give you long and satisfactory service.

Burst Boiler.

QUESTION: When we closed our house for the winter last fall, water in the heater was not drawn off. This spring on lighting the fire, we found that the boiler had been cracked by the freezing of the water. Can this be repaired, or must I get a new heater?

ANSWER: Boilers are built up of sections, any one of which can be replaced. Any plumber should be able to get new sections to replace those that are broken. It will not be necessary to get an entirely new heater; replacing the burst sections will be much less expensive.

Tarnished Brass.

QUESTION: What can be done with old brass fireplace fittings and grate, which have become tarnished and darkened through the years? I would like to make it look bright.

ANSWER: The tarnish can be removed by washing with ordinary vinegar in which has been dissolved as much salt as will be taken up, followed by rinsing with clear water. Use any good brand of metal polish for polishing. Remove traces of the polishing material by wiping with benzine, (be careful of fire.) Apply a coat of clear lacquer. This will prevent the brass from tarnishing.

Showing a New Use For Candle Wicking

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

WHEN we last heard of Marty and Bill the curved bottom shelf of that old buffet had not been used. Well, Bill made it into a cornice board for the bathroom window, and painted it blue. Then Marty went into action on curtains to match.

Grandmother is an expert at doing old-fashioned candle wicking, so together they made the tufted curtains illustrated. They used plain white muslin marked off diagonally in three-inch squares. They found the blue they wanted for the tufting in a soft string type of cotton yarn. The sketch tells you the rest. The dipping is what really turned the clipped stitches into tufts; then the curtains were stretched into shape to dry but were not ironed. All this about curtains has given Gram the most wonderful idea for something for a bride's kitchen shower that is coming off soon. It is pretty clever, we think. Watch for it, next week.

"No Child of Mine will ever get WORMS!"

That's what YOU think, Mother!

Nobody is immune to round worms. Children can pick up this nasty infection from uncooked vegetables or bad water; from other children or dogs.

Here are some of the danger signs that may mean living, crawling round worms are inside your child: Fidgeting and squirming. Lineasy stomach. Itching nose and seat. Restless sleep. Biting nails.

If you even suspect that your child has round worms, get JAYNE'S VERMIFUGE right away! JAYNE'S is the best-known worm expellant in America. It is backed by modern scientific study, and has been used by millions for over a century.

JAYNE'S VERMIFUGE has the ability to drive out large round worms, yet it tastes good and acts gently. It does not contain castor oil. If there are no worms it works merely as a mild laxative. Ask for JAYNE'S VER-MI-FUGE at any drug store.

SUMMER SALADS
(Recipes Below.)

Household News

By Eleanor Howe

Salads, in summer, are as important as swimming or tennis, or golf! Nothing tastes quite so good as a cool, crisp mixture of fresh greens, or fruits, or vegetables, served with just the proper dressing. The very word is refreshing—like a drink of cold, sparkling spring water after a long and dusty hike.

Very light salads may be served as an appetizer first course, if desired. Dinner salads, too, are light; they may be served as a separate course, or with the main course of the meal. For luncheon, salads may be somewhat heavier, because the main luncheon dish is likely to be light. Many times, a luncheon salad is a whole meal in itself, served with bread or crisp rolls, a beverage, and dessert. And there are many times in informal luncheons and dinners, when salads do duty for dessert.

What makes a good salad? Plenty of crisp, fresh greens, a blend of fruits or vegetables or fish, a zesty dressing and a dash of color, say the experts. To make salads appetizing and refreshing, as they should be, everything must be fresh, crisp, and well chilled. Greens are freshened in ice water for half an hour, well drained in a salad basket or bag, and left in the refrigerator to chill. To prepare head lettuce for salads, cut out the core or stem with a pointed knife, and let cold water from the faucet run into this opening. The water forces the leaves apart and cleans them.

Use other greens besides lettuce for garnishing salads, and in mixed green salads, as well. Watercress, tender inside leaves of raw spinach, endive, escarole and romaine are good for variety.

Add cubed, leftover meats to green salad, for a hearty main dish. And for hot days, plan fruit salad plates for lunch or supper.

Peeled oranges, sliced and served with fresh, whole berries, with lettuce, watercress or endive for a garnish, make an attractive and refreshing meal.

Crab Apple Salads.

(Serves 6)

- 6 eggs
- Pink pure food color
- 12 cloves
- 6 tiny sprigs of green
- 1 head lettuce
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise

Place eggs in saucepan, cover with boiling water and simmer gently until eggs are hard cooked (about 15 minutes). Remove shells while eggs are very hot, then while holding egg under hot water, flatten both ends of the egg until it takes on the shape of a small crab apple. Paint a tint of pink on each egg with pink liquid color; place a clove at the stem end of the egg and another at the blossom end. Add a tiny sprig of green at the stem end and the "crab apple" will be complete. Arrange lettuce cups on individual salad plates; place one egg on each plate and serve with mayonnaise.

Fruit Salad.

Toss lightly together in salad bowl one cup watermelon balls, one cup muskmelon balls, one cup honey dew melon balls, 1 cup seeded red cherries, and 1 cup diced celery. Add french dressing in sufficient quantity to thoroughly coat all fruits. Serve in bowl lined with chilled greens.

Golden Fruit Salad.

(Serves 6)

- 1 tablespoon gelatin
  - 2 tablespoons cold water
  - 1 cup juice from canned pineapple (hot)
  - 1/2 cup sugar
  - Few grains salt
  - 1/2 cup orange juice
  - 1/4 cup vinegar
  - 1 orange (cut in pieces)
  - 1 cup raw carrot (coarsely grated)

stiffen, add remaining ingredients. Turn into wet mold and chill until firm. Unmold on lettuce. Serve with mayonnaise or fruit salad dressing.

Fruit Salad Dressing.

- 2 egg yolks
- 1/2 cup strained honey
- Juice 1 lemon
- Dash salt
- 1 cup whipping cream

Place egg yolks, honey, lemon juice and salt in top of double boiler and cook 1/2 hour. Remove from flame, beat with Dover egg beater and cool. Whip cream and then pour the chilled honey mixture into the whipped cream—beating entire mixture with Dover egg beater. Serve with any kind of fruit salad.

Appetizers.

Cut the crusts from slices of very fresh bread. Spread bread with cream cheese generously mixed with paprika. Roll as for a jelly roll and slice in very thin slices. Brush with melted butter, toast lightly, and serve immediately.

French Dressing.

(Makes 1 1/2 cups)

- 1/2 clove garlic (grated)
  - 4 lumps sugar
  - 1 tablespoon salt
  - 1 tablespoon paprika
  - 1 cup oil
  - 1/2 cup vinegar
- Grate garlic on lump sugar, and let stand before using, for several hours. When ready to mix, place all ingredients in order listed in jar. Shake vigorously and serve.

Tomato Jelly Rings With Salmon.

(Serves 5 to 6)

- 1 tablespoon gelatin (unflavored)
- 3/4 cup cold water
- 2 cups tomato juice
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 teaspoon onion (minced)
- 1/2 cup celery (chopped)
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 1 pound can salmon
- Watercress or lettuce
- Salad dressing

Soak gelatin in cold water. Combine tomato juice, sugar, salt, pepper and bay leaf, and bring to a boil. Strain. Dissolve softened gelatin in the hot liquid. Allow to cool until the mixture begins to thicken. Fold in onion, celery and lemon juice and pour into individual ring molds. Chill until firm; just before serving unmold on beds of watercress or lettuce. Fill centers of salad rings with large flakes of salmon. Serve with salad dressing.

For additional clothes space in the closet fasten a bird-cage hook to the top of the closet door. This will hold six or eight hangers and will keep long dresses up from the floor.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

GOD'S CARE OF HIS PEOPLE

LESSON TEXT—Psalm 23:
GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.—Psalm 23:1.

Confidence, contentment, assurance, safety, security—all words expressing the deep desires of the human heart—fittingly characterize the blessed and beautiful Shepherd Psalm which is our lesson next Sunday.

Here the soul meets God in personal, intimate fellowship—in the promise of provision for every need, deliverance from every danger, the assurance of both present and ultimate blessing. It has become the best known of all psalms and perhaps the favorite scripture of most Christians.

Familiarity may cause us to miss the blessing of such a scripture passage. To help us to make a fresh approach to this Twenty-third Psalm, let us follow the suggestion of Dr. W. E. Barnes and think of it as describing the journey of life. We find that we may go forth

I. In the Care of a Sure Guide (vv. 1, 2).

Nothing is more important in traversing an unfamiliar land than to have a competent guide. The journey of life is a pilgrimage through a land unknown to us, with its many pleasant places, but also its howling wildernesses, its pitfalls and its enemies in ambush.

"The Lord is my shepherd." If I am in His flock He will guide me, care for me and give me the joy of green pastures and still waters.

The expression "maketh me to lie down" (v. 2) is worthy of special comment—that all too often we become too busy or too important to take the rest we should have, and the Good Shepherd has to "bend the knee" of the sheep and make him lie down, sometimes even by the force of sickness, or of trying circumstance. Why do we make it necessary for our Shepherd to thus deal with us?

II. With Every Need Provided (vv. 3-5).

We are a needy people, constantly dependent on the loving provision of our God. Dr. J. H. Jowett says that man has three enemies: (1) The sin of yesterday, from which he cannot get away; (2) the temptation of today, made more powerful by the pressure of the clever and insidious seducer, Satan; and (3) the fear of death which awaits him tomorrow. Good Shepherd, wilt Thou meet these mine enemies for me? "Yes," comes His answer through the psalmist.

For the sin of yesterday there is the restoring of the soul. Everywhere the power of God is evident, restoring that which has been destroyed or broken down, healing the wound; but nowhere is it more evident or blessed than in His restorative ministries to the soul. He cleanses from sin, gives peace through His Word, joy, through a hymn or a bit of poetry, comfort in the fellowship of a friend.

For today—"He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake." The world offers many by-paths, and makes them seem to be the right way, but my heavenly Guide will lead me in the way of righteousness. This He does, not because of any merit in me, but for His own dear name's sake—for "the praise of the glory of his grace" (Eph. 1:6). That cares for the need of today.

But tomorrow, or on some tomorrow, I must go the way of all flesh and (unless Jesus comes) I must "walk through the valley of the shadow of death." Even there I need "fear no evil." The Good Shepherd is as much with me in the dark and swelling waters of that valley as He was with me "beside the still waters." Little wonder that this psalm has been the comfort of tens of thousands of believers in Christ as they have passed through that valley. Why will anyone do without this Christ, who is the Good Shepherd (John 10:11)?

Every need finds its full satisfaction: enemies are discomfited, the oil of gladness anoints our heads, and our cups run over as we go on.

III. To a Destination Certain and Blessed (v. 6).

Not all who set out upon a journey reach their goal, but the Lord has never lost one of those entrusted to His care (John 17:12). Goodness and mercy through all the days of our lives would lead only to ultimate disappointment if He did not bring us to the Father's house.

In that house there are "many mansions" or abiding places (John 14:2) prepared for us by our Lord. We know we shall come to that blessed journey's end with safety, because He will bring us there, to go in and out no more forever.

To study such a lesson is to create the desire in one's heart that all men should know about this Good Shepherd, to be brought into His flock. Reader, do you know Christ, as your Saviour and the Shepherd of your soul? If not, will you not come to Him now by faith?

Go-to-School Headwear Will Include Chic Matched Turbans

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IT'S high time to be tackling the go-to-school wardrobe problem. So far as millinery is concerned, thanks to the charming fashion of wearing bewitching little match turbans, such as have been so tremendously popular of late, the college girls' plan of action is made perfectly clear. Just keep in mind the slogan "a matching turban with every frock or blouse or suit." Sounds like a big order, doesn't it, but truth is it's as simple a way to get rid of the hat question as we know.

Not that new fall turbans are going to repeat summer versions. Indeed not! Just watch and see what happens when the fall style parade is in full swing. You are going to see the most captivating, unusual little pompadour concoctions enroll under the turban regime, that fancy can picture.

Designers are bending their efforts to create turbans that take kindly to the idea of being posed back of the new pompadour hairdo. So when you take a piece of your dress goods to match up a turban to go with your new fall frock be sure the model you select is the kind that will set off your flattering pompadour curls to perfection. Note the turban shown in the oval below to the left. Here a bright red drape is brought through a golden ring in a way that gives the exotic far east caste to the picture. It tells you that turbans that tilt forward go fifty-fifty with the very new pompadour types.

Assuming that you will be getting together a whole collection of turbans to match (with each dress a self-fabric headpiece) we especially cite the "chignon" turban as a must have in the group. The turban with a chignon or with a bandanna tie at the nape of the neck is sure news that is news. You can carry out the idea as extreme as you please. Knotted and tied, the ends will stream down to the waistline at the back or stop at the shoulders. You can get in the better shops a clever little chignon type such as Lillie Dache interprets via a red, white and black silk scarf manipulated as you see above to the left in the oval. Note the saucy chignon frill at the back and see the impudent bow to the fore designed to accent your widow's peak to the utmost. This type turban also adapts itself to the new pompadour hairdress.

If you like bright stripes, tell the world this fall via a stylish peaked turban together with a gigantic matching envelope bag of red, white, yellow and blue striped fabric as worn by the smartly clad young woman pictured to the right.

It adds to the glamour of the new jersey frocks that the majority of them are accompanied with turbans or toques made of the identical jersey. The figure centered in the picture demonstrates how interestingly the alliance of a striped jersey frock and a matching striped jersey draped turban work out. Here a reefer of dusty rose flannel over a navy and white striped jersey dress, navy shoes with dusty rose quilted bag and gloves add a definite style touch, the cabochon twist of the matched jersey turban supplying the final touch of chic. See how flatteringly it reveals the pompadour, which, as said before, is the characteristic feature of the newer turbans.

The vogue for matched fabric hats is expressed not only in turbans for this fall but we will see many brimmed sports hats made of tweeds to match suits and coats to which add a shopping bag of the same and behold a perfect ensemble for travel and town wear.

Pompadour Felt

Whether the hat be wide of brim, a tiny toque, a draped turban or a dramatic beret, milliners are tempering them to the new pompadour hairdo. The model pictured accents sophisticated simplicity which is so important just now. Its lavish brim with neat grosgrain ribbon band and short streamers at the back are eminently style-right.

Suede for Sports Is Coming for Fall

Soft glove suede is being used by Voris, a West coast designer, in a collection of sports dresses for fall. One dress of suede, in a pottery pink shade, is collarless and has soft, unpressed pleats in the skirt. The belt is just a wide sash of brown suede. Another dress of beige suede has a fly-front closing, a perfectly straight skirt and deep, saddle-stitched pockets on either hip.

Fashion Hints for The College Girl

While the dress of the college girl must assume a casual look, yet in reality it must observe most meticulous detail that insures for its style distinction.

You will thrill with delight at the sight of the new featherweight jersey dresses styled in classic simplicity but spectacular at that because of the fringed shawl of the self-jersey that is thrown nonchalantly about one's shoulders.

And then there are the newest-of-the-new pinafore frocks. Can imagination go beyond this—a navy dress with a bright red pinafore of sheer wool with pleated apron skirt and a jumper top all carried out in demure little girl fashion yet skillfully tuned to teen age wear? You will want to include one of the new and clever drawstring models done in jersey. They are fitted to waist with drawstrings that tie in front. Another suggestion is a plaid skirt with suede shirt in bright monotone.

Color Contrast in Fall Wool Suits

Two-piece jacket-suits dramatize color contrasts and blends more eye-appealingly than ever. Some of the new color contrast suggestions offered are olive green with mauve, brown with pale blue, plum with pale blue, dark brown with toffee tan, red with hunter's green and so on and on with the color spectrum fashion will make merry this fall. The schemes are worked out with monotone tweeds coupled with plaids and stripes. Lots of plaid is on the way for fall. It will be tailored into long coats, into separate jackets and for the costume entire.

Indian Tribe in Arizona Retains Strange Culture

De Chelly canyon is a twisted gorge 30 miles long and nowhere more than one-fourth of a mile wide, hidden away in the Navaho Indian reservation in northeastern Arizona. Few areas on the continent combine to such a degree the strange charms of the desert, the spell of the prehistoric past and the interest contributed by the present-day Indians, who live within the canyon's precipitous red sandstone depths. These Indians are Navahos, a nomadic tribe, alien in almost every respect from the Cliff Dweller ancestors of the modern Pueblo Indians. It was the Cliff Dwellers who occupied the now ruined structures deep within the canyon walls. The largest of these is the White House.
 Only a few hundred Navahos today occupy the canyon. They raise corn, melons, squashes and peaches, and tend their flocks much as did their roving ancestors centuries ago. For, though the turkey was the only domestic mammal known to the aborigines of the Southwest when the white men came, the Spaniards early introduced horses, sheep and cattle, and ever since the coming of Coronado in 1540 the Navahos have been expert horsemen.
 The majority of visitors to De Chelly canyon content themselves with looking down from the lofty rim to the life that goes on down on the canyon floor 1,000 feet below. They are particularly intrigued by the unique system of communication which the Navahos have developed. Cut off by deep ravines from quick access to their neighbors, they have developed a sort of tonal code. When they wish to send messages to friends up or down the canyon they do so by a series of howls, pitched at tones, and in intervals that conform to a code perfectly intelligible to other Navahos, but quite meaningless to a white man.

Precision Instrument Aids Eye Operations

A new instrument, which is expected to enable surgeons to transplant a clear cornea to an injured or sightless one in about one-fifth the time it now takes for the delicate operation, has been developed by Dr. Meyer Weiner, retired St. Louis eye surgeon.
 Formerly the operation required about an hour and a half and its chances for success were limited. With the new instrument the operation can be completed in 15 minutes and its chances for success greatly increased, it is believed.
 Cornea operations have been performed for 45 years, but only in the past 10 or 15 years were they relatively successful. Cutting out the cornea segment for transplantation had to be done with ordinary surgical instruments and making the segment fit into the eye in which it was transplanted was difficult.
 Instead of cutting and fitting by hand, Dr. Weiner's instrument enables the surgeon to cut and fit the segment by a precision instrument. It also enables the surgeon to obtain a segment with a beveled edge which must remain in place after transplantation.
 The instrument, under Dr. Weiner's supervision, was used in the successful operation on the eye of a blind woman in a Los Angeles hospital recently.

Moorish Controversy
 One of the bits of information developed by a controversy going on at Rabat, French Morocco, is that "there does not even exist in the Moorish language a word for 'old maid,' that poor creature, that victim of our civilization." The controversy began when a young Mahometan, called a descendant of the prophet himself, appealed to the French authorities to aid in the liberation of Moorish women, who, he alleged, were no better than slaves. Those who point out the absence of old maids in Morocco, declare that the legal position of the Moorish woman is better than that of the French woman.

Train of Glass
 A railroad train, the coaches of which were constructed entirely of glass between wheels and roof, recently left Liverpool, England, on a tour of important cities of England, Scotland and Wales to demonstrate the possibilities of glass for construction, home building and equipment.
 It required more than 120,000 pieces of special glass to construct the exterior of the train. The interior even had a glass bathroom. Manufactured by a Lancashire firm of glass makers, the train was equipped with practically every known product of the glass-making industry.

Victious Kilkenny Cats
 Every one has heard the story of the two Kilkenny cats which fought until there was nothing left but their tails. The background of the story is that during the 1803 rebellion in Ireland soldiers amused themselves by tying cats by the tails and tossing them over a clothesline. The commandant threatened punishment to any caught enjoying this "sport."
 Upon the approach of a guard one night a soldier took his sword and freed the cats by slashing through their tails. When the guard arrived he was told the two bleeding tails were all that was left of a pair of fighting Kilkenny cats.

Garden Gossip

Edited by Caroline Harrington
 Letters and questions on garden topics will be welcome. They will be published and discussed in this column.

Dear Garden Gossipers:
 Friday, the 16th, and the first day of your Garden Show. Many of you are exhibiting, some of you will win prizes, all of you will attend, either today (Friday) or tomorrow (Saturday). The Show will represent the best effort of the Garden Club in organization and showmanship as well as in garden products. Truly, it will be a great show. There are to be bouquets large, and bouquets small, bouquets by adults and bouquets by children. There will be flower arrangements in mass and in line, there will be exhibits featuring gladiolas and dahlias, phlox and zinnias, and other annuals, particularly the 1940 National awards. Vegetables will be exhibited, and kitchen herbs, too. House plants will be shown, and the florists will exhibit also. Yes, it is to be a great show — I'll see you there!
 Please notice that we have a kind invitation from Mr. Thacker, the "Ag" teacher in our High School, to visit his gladiola garden. Probably many of you have seen his sign on the Charlevoix road, not far from the boat livery. I visited the garden today, and I am going again, and again. From now until frost, if it lives up to the promise of row upon row of sturdy plants and fat buds, the garden should be a continuous mass of velvety bloom in all the colors of the rainbow.

Mr. Thacker has made a study of the habits of glads and can tell you many interesting things about this flower which has been developed from a rather small and unattractive plant native to Africa. He says that in his opinion gladiolas do not "go back," as many of us have thought, to the salmon-pink variety so commonly seen. On the contrary, he says that if glads were to "go back" they would be a small, purple flower. It is because the salmon-pink variety is so prolific, putting up several stalks of bloom to the plant, that we see more of them. A greater proportion of the corms you save each fall are salmon-pink because more of them mature.

During the past week, for your pleasure, Mr. Thacker placed baskets of his glads in several public places. No doubt you saw and admired them. He is also going to exhibit at our Show. — C. H.

Mrs. W. B. Lamp of St. Louis and Mrs. C. M. Mills of Cincinnati will judge exhibits at our Garden Show this week.

The Mancelona Garden Club has set August 23rd as the date of its annual Garden Show.

Dear Mrs. Harrington:
 Through Garden Gossip column may I extend to East Jordan Garden Club a cordial invitation to visit my gladiola garden which is located on the Dressel place about a mile north of East Jordan on Highway M-66? I have 25,000 gladiolas planted, and they are now coming into bloom. I am on the premises every evening and on Sundays, and I am always glad to have visitors.
 Sincerely, Thomas Thacker.

Have you seen the attractive garden of Mrs. Louisa Bennett? Harold Bader's splendid petunia display? Mrs. Martha Nemecek's plant boxes?

In one important respect, rhododendrons are not like most flowers — they are not improved by cutting. So says Mrs. Effie Standford of Seattle, Washington, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Sloan. The rhododendron is Washington's state flower, and grows there in hundreds of varieties. They are propagated in an interesting manner, Mrs. Standford told us, talking at the Garden Club's luncheon. "Layering" is the word for it. Branches cut from the plant near the root are covered with a layer of soil with the twig buds near the surface. In time these buds develop into young plants which may be transplanted to a new location with perfect success. People of India value only the flowers which are fragrant, and these they pull off without stems, and make them into garlands for the hair or to offer to their gods, says Miss Clara Seiler, home on a furlough from her missionary work in India. The English people who make their homes in India grow and love the same flowers which we have in our own gardens.
