GREEN SQUAD GETS READY FOR ANOTHER TOUGH SEASON

A full 14 game schedule in basketball has been arranged by Coach Cohn for the campaign of 1940-1941.

The only members of last year's squad who are not considered already for the opening games of the season are Harry Hammond and Ernest Mocherman. These boys might be available after the second semester.

Veterans who turned out for the initial 1940-1941 drills are Co-captain Vale Gee and "Oggie" Woodcock, also Dale Gee and Harold Hayner. These boys are letter men from the championship basketball team of last season. Other boys to be considered as Varsity "timber" are Lawrence Stanek, Tyson Kemp, Bernard Sturgell, Gerald Green, Bill Saxton.

The boys need some experience working together. Three or four games under the belts will be what they need. The Seasons revamped schedule is as follows. Please note and change your Season Tickets accordingly.

East Jordan Entertains a Strange Visitor

During the storm two weeks ago a pair of wild Whistling Swans took refuge at the head of the lake above the old mill site. They were seen to circle very high up in the air, were decoyed in by our tame swans, and have been here most of the time since.

Their heads and necks are dark with some dark on their body. They appear slightly smaller than our swans, with flatter backs. The dark color indicates that they are young birds. The Whistlers nest in Northern Canada, and winter in the south. They will undoubtedly leave when the lake freezes over.

If you are visiting Sportsmen Park during the winter, don't forget that the deer like most everything green as potato parings, apples, cabbage, etc. as well as candy, cookies, etc. The ducks and swan will appreciate a lettuce salad, less the dressing, or celery tops, stale bread, etc. In fact both the birds and beasts will enjoy most grain or vegetable table scraps that are clean and sweet.

Coasting As Usual On Garfield St. Hill

Parents are urged to see that it is done, and children are urged to use the Garfield St. hill (known as the Malpass hill) for their coasting. Here each day when there is coasting it will be supervised by a man at 3:00 to 6:00 and 7:00 to 10:00 p. m. each day. Motorists driving on Main St. are asked to be on the lookout when approaching this crossing.

While there is no law or ordinance prohibiting children coasting on any highway, indiscriminate coasting is dangerous and should be discouraged. Have the children use the supervised hill and let us NOT HAVE any accidents.

Rotary Club Go To School With A "Dunce" Program

The East Jordan Rotary Club met last Tuesday noon and enjoyed a real treat by going to school. It was a real old fashioned school where the Dunces sat up in front.

The Schoolmaster C. W. Sidebotham, and the Dunces sang "Twenty Froggies Went to School" for the opening, then he proceeded to tell his dunces the real importance of life, stressing the facts that dunces are the only people who act natural, and that they are always in the majority, they are the hope of the world as they control all things, they elect all the important men to office (being the majority), they do everything and the world is theirs. So they should not feel so bad because they had to wear the dunce hat.

Next John Porter gave what the smart people thought "Twinkle Twinkle Little Star" was, then recited it in the dunce language. The Spelling class was conducted

Results of The Windstorm

STATE FORESTS HIT HARD BY ARMISTICE DAY GALE

Old Monarch, famous pine tree which dominates the Hartwick pines northeast of Grayling, stands unscathed following Armistice Day's terrific windstorm, but several hundred forest giants in Michigan state parks were toppled by the force of the gale. State forests also were hit hard.

Only now, nearly two weeks after the storm, is the conservation department's parks division able to present a fairly comprehensive picture of damage done. Big trees in Muskegon, Ludington, Interlochen, Onaway and Wilderness state parks suffered in the storm which buffeted the entire east shore of Lake Michigan. Far inland, the towering Hartwick pines — last sizable stand of virgin pine in the lower peninsula — bent beneath the storm's fury. Three hundred big pines in the Hartwick Pines state park may be down, but several weeks more will be required to cruise the park areas and to mark the locations of all fallen trees. All down timber will be salvaged.

Jack pine was hit hardest on the state forests and loss may reach 15 percent. CCC labor will be used to salvage some white and red pine blown down on state forests and jack pine is being offered to individuals who will undertake the work of salvage. Local forest superintendents arrange the contracts for such work.

Annual Presbyterian Bazaar and Supper

The annual Presbyterian Bazaar and Supper will be held at the church parlors next Thursday, Dec. 5th. Bazaar at 2:00 p. m. A good time to do your Christmas shopping. Fish pond for the kiddies.

Turkey Dinner starting at 5:30. 50c plate; children under twelve, 25c. Plenty of good eats. adv.

by Harold Clark, of course the dunces out spelled the rest.

Bert Lorraine spoke his piece. "Here I stand all ragged and dirty", the Girls had chased him. Then Bert proved that 65 sq. inches could be put into 64 square inches.

Howard Porter recited about a "Mule that went to Yale."

Bob Campbell's confession was certainly in order when he recited "I don't know vat mine name vas, Being born a twin und vun of dem died." He was not sure if he was living or dead.

The name of three great men who never went to college, were drawn from the hat. They proved to be Abe Lincoln, Thomas Edison and Henry Ford. The Schoolmaster gave his dunces to understand they were in the class with these men.

School was closed by singing "School Days."

John Seiler, Jr., 18, Was Found Dead Friday Afternoon

The friends of John Seiler, Jr., age 18, were grieved to hear of his death last Friday. He left home Thanksgiving afternoon and his body was found with a wound in the head the following afternoon near some trees on the eastern side of Lake Charlevoix.

The funeral service was held at the home on Monday afternoon, conducted by his pastor, Rev. C. W. Sidebotham. The large attendance and many beautiful floral tributes evinced the friendship and the sympathy of the community. The interment was in Sunset Hill.

The lad is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Seiler; two brothers: Galen, at a Macon, Ga., college; and Parker at home.

Jos. Clark's Home Burned

BUILDING AND CONTENTS BADLY DAMAGED IN EARLY MORNING BLAZE

The dwelling and household effects of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Clark on Main Street were badly damaged in an early morning blaze last Friday.

The fire was discovered about 12:30 a. m. near the roof. Our fire department was summoned and they had considerable difficulty in placing it under control. Both building and contents are badly damaged by fire, smoke and water. A small amount of insurance was carried.

A Lot More Electricity Going To Be Burned

If you see a light up in Coach Abe Cohn's room in the late hours the next few nights, don't be alarmed. Far from being a sick man, he will be endeavoring to solve query No. 2 in Professor Clark's quiz.

And our Coach won't be alone in persons endeavoring to solve the Quality Food Market's fifteen queries on True and False? It's a novel idea in any event and there's going to be a lot of entries. See their advertisement on another page in this issue.

Increasing Business At The W. A. Porter Hdwe.

Since W. A. Porter purchased the Hardware Store less than a year ago, business has been on the increase every month. Branching out into the Plumbing and Heating field this region has been prompt to respond to the fine services rendered.

Of late it has been impossible to keep up with growing demands. Starting next Monday, in addition to Plumber Harry Kowalske, Mr. Porter will add to his staff an assistant plumber — Jerry Nemiak of Kewadin. With the addition of this help, Mr. Porter is hopeful of catching up on the back log of orders.

Cash Your Fair Checks

THESE BECOME VOID AFTER JANUARY FIRST

If you were one of the recipients of the approximately 35,000 checks issued during the fair season in payment of premiums, Commissioner Elmer A. Beamer of the Department of Agriculture, Lansing, recommends that if you have not converted your check into cash that you do so at once. The checks become void January 1, under arrangements which the state shares 50 per cent of the premium funds with the local fair associations.

Beamer pointed out that the checks made to the members of the 4-H and FFA clubs are delayed in clearing through banks more often than any other checks. The boys and girls, it seems, plan upon their premium winnings for Christmas money, and delay cashing their checks until during the holiday season, often crowding the deadline. The department would recommend that they do their Christmas shopping now, cashing their checks to avoid the possibility of their loss or becoming void.

The department head said that report of the premiums paid, the condition of the state fund and matters pertaining to fair finances would be submitted at the annual meeting of the state association of fair secretaries in January.

Their Parents are Worried

Healthy, happy youngsters, this pair of twins—yet their mother, and father ARE worried. By the time these babies start school they will have been immunized against almost every dangerous communicable disease except tuberculosis. There is no serum for tuberculosis, and the parents are aware that the little boys could pick up tuberculosis germs in most any Michigan town or city. So to protect their own and other children they are today buying the only form of tuberculosis insurance they know—tuberculosis Christmas seals.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

By Edward C. Wayne

Germany's Most Powerful Air Army Is Now Being Used to Crush England; Labor Peace in U. S. Is Not So Near; First Draft Evaders Sent to Prison

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

During the strike at the Vultee Aircraft plant in Downey, Calif., U. S. army defense orders for training planes became sidetracked but union heads allowed pilots to cross picket lines and take delivery on 17 planes completed. The planes were to be used at the army training field at Sunnyvale, Calif. Above, army officers are pictured running one of the planes out of the plant.

AIR BLITZ: Over England

The fourth German air army contains the veteran and most expert of Nazi bombers. It never had been used over England, although it is the best equipped and largest of the German air forces. The fourth air army was trained in Spain, used to smash Poland in four days and dive-bombed the French army into submission and out of the Maginot line.

Now many believe it has been assigned a mission across the English channel. The mission would be to grind to debris the British industrial Midlands area. Two such attacks have been made.

The first was on ancient Coventry, historical cathedral city when Lady Godiva made her famous horseback ride. Coventry in modern times had become the "Detroit of England." Here was made the larger portion of British airplanes and thousands of her 169,000 people were employed in defense industries.

In a single 10½-hour night raid, Coventry was turned into a shambles, hardly a single home being left unscathed. Berlin said all of the plane factories were in ruins from explosive and incendiary bombs. The British denied this but gave no details. It was admitted, however, that almost 1,000 civilians were killed, many air raid shelters which were thought bombproof being crushed like paper. The three-towered cathedral, almost a thousand years old, was left with hardly one stone atop another, except for a single spire.

After a lapse of a few days the raiders concentrated on Southampton, city of a million people, also in the Midlands. Berlin said the hometown of the late Neville Chamberlain, who appeased Hitler at Munich, was given the same treatment. Southampton is a textile town and also had been turning out a large cargo of automobiles and munitions.

Greeks Fight On

In the Italo-Greek war neutral observers shook their heads and admitted they could not understand how Greece was holding out. Outnumbered three to one, the ballet-skirted, pom-pom slippers, Ezyone troops cut the Italians to ribbons and pushed them back into Albania on all fronts.

These observers still believed the Greeks were putting up a valiant but futile battle. No one in authority considers the Italian army seriously, estimates running from derision to contempt. But the Greek's military supplies were known to be low. Also there is no opportunity to give them help, for all Greek guns, both rifles and artillery, are of a special Greek manufacture and no ammunition of foreign make will fit their weapons. Once spring rolls around and the Italian mechanical force can get into action, there may be a different story.

Mare Nostrum

One thing seemed certain. Mussolini in his attempt to carry on a war by himself was tangling up the plans of the entire Axis. Control of the Mediterranean which the Italians call Mare Nostrum (Our Sea) may come diplomatically rather than militarily.

Adolf Hitler came to the Duce's rescue in this respect, once it was certain the Italians had bogged down in the mountains of Macedonia. There were hurried conferences with Serro Suner, Spanish foreign minister; King Boris of Bulgaria; Premier Molotov of Soviet Russia; and various and assorted Balkan politicians.

The formula being sought was a diplomatic flanking movement on the Balkans which would give the Dardanelles to the Axis. This would require approval of Bulgaria for German troop movement through that country, and agreement by Turkey. Pressure by Russia on Turkey was one of the keys. An attack on Gibraltar at the same time would complete the movement.

DRAFT EVADERS: Year and Day

Eight young men, students at Union Theological Seminary, stood before a federal judge in New York. They were charged with refusing to register under the selective service act. They had refused to register on October 16, along with 17,000,000 other young men. They said that after thought and prayer they had reached the conclusion "conscription is part of the war system and we cannot co-operate in any way." Government officials, churchmen and friends pleaded with them, pointing out that under the act they were twice exempt, as divinity students and as conscientious objectors. They refused a final chance.

"I have no other alternative but to enforce the law," said Judge Samuel Mandelbaum, and he sentenced them to a year and a day in federal prisons. Deputy sheriffs led the eight away to be fingerprinted and photographed.

The action was a signal for other arrests in all parts of the nation on the same charge.

LABOR: Hopes for Peace

Unity in the ranks of labor which was outlined by President Roosevelt as one of the hoped-for objectives of his third administration, seemed little less nearer as the Congress of Industrial Organizations met in convention in Atlantic City and the American Federation of Labor met in New Orleans.

The A. F. of L., said President William Green, was willing to discuss peace terms "anywhere, anytime and any place." But a C. I. O. committee presented to the convention a statement of terms. These terms approached closely what John L. Lewis, retiring president, previously outlined, and which had been found beyond the basis of agreement by the A. F. of L.

The C. I. O. asked first that all of its unions, including many set up in mass industries since the split, be admitted to a new joint organization intact. This presented two problems. First was the claim of certain craft unions (like the moulder, for example) for jurisdiction in some of the mass industries (like the automobile plants, for example.) Second, the A. F. of L. was believed unwilling to accept certain small "leftwing" C. I. O. unions.

The C. I. O. asked also that any unity movement include an attempt to bring into the national scope certain of the railroad brotherhoods, several of which now are independent of either national body.

President Roosevelt sent an appeal to both conventions.

Both conventions also were split internally over administrative questions. John L. Lewis made it known on the first day that he would not again accept the C. I. O. presidency. Philip Murray, head of the steel workers, was boomed for the job from the start, but hesitated to accept because, it is believed, he felt Lewis' mine union would attempt domination.

The A. F. of L. battle which brewed for a time under the surface, was led by David Dubinsky, president of the ladies' garment workers.

Who's Boss?

Two former secretaries to congressmen, Gordon Canfield (right), of New Jersey and Herbert Bonner (left), of North Carolina, are to take the places of their former bosses in Congress. Canfield replaces the late Rep. George N. Segar and Bonner replaces Lindsay C. Warren, who resigned to become U. S. Comptroller General.

ESPIONAGE: Diplomats Accused

Chairman Dies of the house committee investigating un-American activities, called before him in secret session various officials of "German and Italian organizations."

Dies charged that members of the German diplomatic corps have been engaging in a "quiet campaign" to raise funds in the United States to finance German rearmament. He also said German money was being sent here for investment in vital industries and to promote an "appeasement" group.

Emphasizing that his committee has moved cautiously to avoid a "strain" on international relations, Dies asked Secretary of State Cordell Hull if his department had any objection to exposure of diplomatic corps intrigues. The secretary disclaimed any responsibility, terming the investigation "purely a congressional affair."

Dies said he would ask the next congress for a million dollars to continue the investigations.

Two Theories

Three other departments of the government, however, were somewhat less than enthusiastic over the Dies hearings. The army and navy intelligence and the FBI were letting it be known discreetly that they consider Dies is doing more harm than good.

Everything uncovered by the special house committee, they said, has been known to them for a long time. For years these agencies have worked cautiously to get U. S. agents into alleged subversive groups. These U. S. agents have listed and catalogued a vast array of information which can be used at the proper time. In the meantime they have made it possible to keep a watch on all suspects and these suspects, not aware their identities are known, have exposed the whole network through which they work.

But the Dies committee, it is said, has by raids and publication of names, revealed the fact that the identity of these alleged foreign agents is known. This makes their work ineffectual, so they are recalled. Then new agents and new networks are set up by the foreign powers and the army and navy intelligence and the FBI must start all over again. Tracking down these new agents may take many months of effort, to cover a field which once was well protected.

MEXICAN MISSION: In Spanish

Vice President-elect Henry A. Wallace went through the Southwest in his recent campaign speaking Spanish. A new assignment in that language was his first after-election duty. He attended the inauguration of Gen. Avilo Camacho, president of Mexico, as the representative of President Roosevelt. It's an old Latin American custom for nations to send official representatives to each other's inaugurations. The U. S. has never indulged before. But now it's part of the Good Neighbor policy and is looked upon as effective. Several days after the decision was announced Mexico revealed it had granted the United States air and naval bases on the Mexican east coast.

MISCELLANY:

Q The oddest refugee cargo arrived in Florida from England. It was 1,000 rare orchid plants, the property of the duke of Westminster, who raises them as a hobby. The collection faced two threats in England, bombing and the fuel laws, which provide for heat only in food hot-houses.

Q The United States army is sharply changing its tactics and technique of attack. Stress will be on small units. Changes are outlined in a new manual announced by Maj. Gen. George A. Lynch, chief of infantry. The manual will be the chief text book of the new army.

Q Samuel Hansen, 58, native of Germany, was declared guilty of contempt in Los Angeles superior court for refusal to answer questions he said would violate his oath as an agent of the German Reichsbank. He said he had been threatened with death by a Gestapo agent.

Tar on Porch Floor.
QUESTION: I have an open porch with no roof over it, and a one-inch thick cement floor was laid last fall. I noticed a few cracks, and to prevent leaks I painted it over with roof tar. It never dried, and with warm weather the tar is very soft. Can the tar be removed? If nothing can be done, can I put down another one-inch coat of cement mortar?

ANSWER: It is practically impossible to remove the tar entirely. The advisability of laying another cement floor over the present one will depend largely upon the strength of the beams supporting the porch floor. A well-known manufacturer of insulating boards makes asphalt saturated board specially for use as a flooring on roofs and open porches. It is light in weight. Ask your lumber dealer about it. In the meantime, cure the stickiness with a scattering of sand.

House Centipedes.
A correspondent is greatly distressed over finding centipedes in her house. "There were two small ones, about one inch long, with a great many legs, but I was terribly frightened to see one the size of a mouse. (I assure you it is not my imagination.) How do they get in? How can I get rid of them? Are they injurious to health?"

ANSWER: If it were not for their looks, house centipedes would be welcome guests; for they live on other insects and go far to keep a house free of uninvited insect pests. They are not harmful to human beings. There are never many, and one sure way to get rid of them is to swat each one as it appears. They breed in damp places in the cellar; such places can be scattered with hydrated lime.

Gummed Paper.
A correspondent writes: "I find gummed paper invaluable in my household. One of the many uses is the sealing of packages against moths; gloves, wools, furs, etc., are washed, or sunned and brushed, wrapped in newspaper and then packed in large paper bags saved from groceries. These bags are then sealed with gummed paper tape two inches wide. I have never had moths molest anything in these bags."

ANSWER: Gummed paper tape certainly is useful, not only as suggested, but also for covering all joints of paper wrappings around rugs; for sealing cracks in boxes and chests to make them moth-proof, etc. I am glad to recommend it.

Curling Rug.
QUESTION: How can I keep my dining room rug from curling at the corners? It is a constant source of annoyance, not to say danger.

ANSWER: For a temporary remedy, turn over the curling rug, dampen slightly and press with a hot iron. For a more permanent cure, clean on both sides with your vac cleaner, and then brush the back with shellac thinned with an equal quantity of denatured alcohol.

Leaking Swimming Pool.
QUESTION: My concrete swimming pool leaks, though not cracked in any spot sufficiently to account for the loss of water. How can I make it hold the water?

ANSWER: Coat the walls and floor of the swimming pool with a cement composition paint. This material contains waterproofing. Also, check the condition of the cement around the drain, as well as the shut-off valve for the drain.

Corrugated Iron Roof.
QUESTION: What can I do about leaks in a corrugated iron roof? I recently built a shed 50 by 50 feet. Rain comes in at quite a lot of places. Would it do to go along all the seams with tar?

ANSWER: Fill all the seams or joints between the sheets with an asphalt roofing cement. A coat of liquid tar or asphalt over the entire roof will keep it in good condition.

Stiffening Chintz.
A housewife noted a recent suggestion of the use of starch for glazing chintz and for stiffening fabrics. For this purpose she recommends a thin solution of tapioca, which she "used on a pleated georgette ruffle, and it never changed a pleat. In applying the solution, stretch the curtain or iron it under a cloth. This will keep pleats in shape in all weathers."

Oil Tank in Summer.
QUESTION: Should the supply tank of an oil burner be filled during the summer, or can it go nearly dry?

ANSWER: The tank should be filled full. If left empty or partly so, there will be condensation on the inside, and the water that forms may interfere with operation when you start up in the fall.

Killing Grass.
QUESTION: In order to kill grass and weeds on a large athletic field, can rock salt be spread and rolled in, to be dissolved by rain, instead of sprinkled with brine?

ANSWER: Yes; that will work, although if you do the job in a dry spell the action will not be as quick. Sprinkling with calcium chloride would be better, for that is quicker to absorb moisture from the air.

Rearmament Program to Cause Farm Labor Shortage Problem

Lack of Migratory Workers Is Noted in Some States; Professor Denounces 'Disdain' for Politicians as Real Threat to Democracy.

By BAUKHAGE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

WASHINGTON.—The battered old Ford with a tent tied on top and children protruding from every crevice didn't pull up at a lot of farm gates this fall. When the Okies and their ilk failed to call, rural America didn't feel socially slighted but it meant a labor problem had come up for a lot of farmers.

Who kept the Okies from keeping their date in the harvest field? Why Herr Hitler, of course.

Here in Washington we don't know just how many families making up the 3,000,000 migrants who are needed by agriculture to help out at harvest time didn't show up this year but we do know a number were deflected into work in connection with the defense program. Reports reaching the Federal Security administration indicate that in more than one section of the country farm labor has been at a premium. Real shortage of labor hasn't turned up in industry—at least as far as unskilled workers go, but there is a shortage in the skills that is bound to affect the surplus farm population in the long run.

I was in New England recently and although up there, the skilled workers are now being absorbed by the war industries faster than they can be trained, the New Englanders still want more industries. In the middle eastern states no farm labor shortage is noted as yet, although the cities are calling for the skills; Wisconsin has noted a lack of migrants, and in the southeast the big job of building army camps has taken a lot of skilled construction workers from other sections and also called a lot of unskilled labor away from the cotton and tobacco fields.

Migrant Workers More 'Choosy'

From Wyoming to New Mexico the farmers and ranchers have found the migrants a lot more choosy. When they don't get the money and the housing conditions they want they move on.

The migrant worker in the United States is what might be called a necessary evil, at least in one sense. He's necessary all right, for harvests couldn't be brought in and large-scale roadbuilding simply couldn't be attempted if it weren't for him. And he's an evil, too, when it comes to size him and his relatives up as members of the American family—he's a pretty bedraggled feather in the eagle's cap.

The rattle-trap car, the packing-box and tin-can shanty-town, the ditch camp and all that goes with the migrant laborer is a sad commentary on democracy.

Strawberry shortcake, peaches and cream, the lettuce and tomato salad that is as much a part of the city meal as the knife and fork are taken for granted as necessary luxuries but if the rest of us didn't eat them, half a million families wouldn't eat at all. That's the estimate of the Farm Security administration. Their statisticians say 500,000 families, averaging three to a family mean at least a million and a half people, pick up their beds and trek from crop to crop, carrying a choice assortment of disease and discomfort with them—and leaving a little behind each time they move.

Here is the record shown in a study of migratory labor made by the Works Progress administration for two years: "Two and a half jobs a year; each job lasting eight weeks; median net earnings $100 in 1933, and $124 in 1934."

Other studies show median annual gross earnings for 1936 and 1937 ranging from $154 to $574—that only accounts for the ones who got jobs, the rest of course earn little more than nothing. And somebody has to pay the bill.

Children Suffer Most From Plight

Since the children in these nomad units naturally suffer the most, each succeeding generation is a little worse than the preceding one. The children, as one observer expresses it, are "a lost tribe." They grow up without a stable home, without school or play and without health protection. The result of the last condition is 74 per cent more disabling diseases among migrants.

BRITISH MORALE
The other day Baukhage was talking to an Englishman who has been in some of the worst raids on London. His attitude confirms what is heard about British morale. He said: "You see, I don't so much mind the bombing of London, except for the old monuments like St. Paul's. After all it's the only way we could get rid of some of those musty old buildings."

than among settled families. Naturally, since these nomads belong to no community, no community can give them the help that the needy ordinarily get. In some localities, of course, private funds have created facilities which improve living conditions. It's a measure of self-preservation as well as charity and the Farm Security administration has been trying for several years to carry on similar work. By July of last year government facilities had been provided for 13,000 families which brought their temporary living conditions up to normal standards of health and decency. It is planned to carry on these projects to provide for about 4,000 more families each year.

But it is still a tough problem, for the worker himself, the farmer who needs his services, and the nation which has to endure him.

Now industry steps into the picture and offers more work for migrant hands to do—much isn't so handy for the farmer.

Politicians Frequently Regarded 'Disdainfully'

If the people and the politicians can get together with any kind of a disinterested motive it means that democracy is just so much better off. The great difficulty in the path, T. V. Smith, as former congressman-at-large from Illinois, says, is the fact that "democracy is government by politicians for citizens who too often regard them with disdain."

T. V. Smith had an interesting adventure in politics. He was a professor at the University of Chicago who had served successfully in his state legislature and might have had a more prominent career in congress if more of his colleagues had known him better. He was well liked and appreciated by a few, but simply not known to the many.

As some of his admirers said, Mr. Smith was not enough of a politician himself to stay in politics. But he was enough of one to have learned about this "disdain" he mentions. He calls it a dangerous disease.

"Politicians," he believes, "are the secular priests of our common faith in one another. Either they attend to our joint business or that joint business gets neglected. If it gets neglected, then democracy fails from inefficiency."

Mr. Smith has written a little 100-page book called "The Legislative Way of Life," the fruit of his long studies of government enriched by personal experiences in Springfield and Washington. It is particularly timely because although written by a Democrat its purpose is much the same as the one suggested by Mr. Willkie's "loyal opposition," in that it attempts to bring the people a closer understanding of the "legislative way," our way of running a government.

The author says he wants "to leave a heavy deposit of fear of any competing way of life" and also "to leave a deposit of joy from and faith in the legislative enterprise." "Unless public matters are adjusted legislatively," he says, "private freedom disappears."

Understanding of our methods is the answer, he believes. His book will help that and it will entertain and amuse as well as instruct.

An active, disinterested, sincere opposition will, if it is to succeed, do that, too. At least it will instruct, it will provide a better understanding on the part of the people of the problems their representatives in the government must solve.

The one question which I think is most often asked me is this: What are the chances of a rebellion of the German people against the Nazi regime?

This is my answer: We must remember the Nazis have perfected the most efficient counter-revolutionary machine in history. Regardless of how the people may feel, they are virtually helpless.

But there is a report being read by officials in Washington which contains these observations:

There are two conditions under which revolt might take place in Germany: First, a series of defeats of the German armies. Second, a winter as bad as last year.

Revolt in Germany would be followed, if not preceded, by revolt in the occupied countries.

Conditions in Italy are very bad.

Few people in the country would today recognize Reserve Lieutenant Lewis Gorin Jr. as the young man who in 1936 got so much publicity for starting a satire on the ex-soldiers. He formed, in Princeton university, an organization called the "Veterans of Future Wars," which drew up a satirical demand for a $1,000 bonus in advance for service in the "next war." Thousands of college men joined the movement as a protest against bonuses and war in general. Today Gorin says, "The draft is a good thing."

Bless You My Son

A MOTHER'S PRAYER

BY JANE HUNT MOHR

THROUGH hard, long years, my son, I have struggled and sacrificed to raise you to manhood!

Now, we are facing a chaotic period in world history, and your country needs you. I have always bid you do any noble duty. I can do no less now! I could urge you to no greater work!

Enrolled as an American soldier, you will be given a uniform, yet a uniform never made a soldier! Something within the man himself makes a soldier. A heart that is brave, a mind courageous, a will like steel, a vision beyond the petty events of the moment, one facing great issues!

My son, the spirit of tyranny which has swept Europe continues loose upon the earth. It has left shell holes for ripened grain fields, ruins for homes where little children laughed and played.

Unchallenged, this tyrannical force would lay bare America's fertile plains, stately mountain ranges; stop the commerce of her cities, and cause her rivers to run with blood!

My son, these horrors must not come to America!

Therefore, I am glad that you shall stand with other American soldiers, clear of eye, square of jaw, firm of purpose, enabled to say to this destructive force—
"You shall not destroy America!"

For words are respected that are backed by adequate preparedness!

And, as you train to be a soldier, hold no hatred for any man within your heart! Hate makes a beast, not a man! Let love of America and American liberty be the only reason for your arms.

As for me, I shall still struggle on. I do not begrudge the days. For, out of toil and the hours of self-forgetfulness in doing for others, comes the greatest virtue of life—nobility of character!

And, I would be selfish in claiming you only as MY son! In the larger sense, you are an individual with your own mission in life to fulfill.

If I have been privileged to be your mother, it is only because I have taught you, as best I know, how to pray, how to live, and how to play the man!

I hope that you will be the kind of man who will exert every influence to bring about a lasting peace and goodwill upon this tired earth!

As I lay me down to sleep each night, this shall be my prayer, my son. God keep you!

Soldier's Health Is Vital Factor in Army Life

Medical inspection scenes like these below are an important phase of U. S. army activity. Every man is rigidly examined by specialists to determine his fitness for army life. Records of the War Department show that an army is only as strong as the health of its soldiers. Every effort is made to keep the men in top physical condition, assuring full strength manpower at all times.

HOW TO SEW

27 SPOOLS • 7' OF WIRE • 3 CAN LIDS

RUN ENDS UP THROUGH SPOOLS. THROUGH BEAD. BACK TO BOTTOM. TWIST

THE other day I went to a Hobby Show and there, hanging on the wall with a blue ribbon pinned on it, were the spool shelves from SEWING Book 3! Of course, I searched out the proud girl who had made them, and she told me that she had also made the end table of spools that is in Book 5. I felt most as proud as she did. All her friends are saving spools for her and her urgent need at the moment was, "something to make for Mother for Christmas."

Here is my suggestion. An adorable set of three corner shelves made of a lid from a tin candy box, one from a cracker can and a coffee can put together with wire, spools and two beads. These shelves were painted cherry red and hung up with a brass hook to hold salt and pepper shakers, vinegar cruet, and other things for making salads. Any homemaker will think of a dozen places where this handy set of shelves could be used. All the directions are here in this sketch.

There is time to make the hanging book shelves in Book 3, or the end table in Book 5, before Christmas. If you mail your order for these booklets today. Send order to:

What? WORMS in my Child?... Never!

Don't be so sure, Mother!
Yes, right now, crawling round worms may be growing and multiplying inside your child without your even knowing it! This nasty infection may be "caught" easily, everywhere. And the outward signs are very misleading. For example: Squirming and fidgeting. Nose-picking, and scratching other parts. Unsteady stomach. Finicky appetite. Biting nails.

If you even suspect that your child has round worms, get JAYNE'S VERMIFUGE right away! JAYNE'S is the best known worm expellant in America. It is backed by modern scientific study, and has been used by millions for over a century. JAYNE'S VERMIFUGE has the ability to drive out large round worms, yet it tastes good and acts gently. It does not contain arsenic. If no worms are there it works merely as a mild laxative. Ask for JAYNE'S VER-MI-FUGE at any drug store.

PREPAREDNESS for the unexpected

The National Defense Program is one of numerous situations that can cause a tremendous increase in the number of telephone calls. Some occasions can be foreseen — a national convention, a holiday, a World's Series, an election. Others come without warning — the death of a prominent person, changes in the market, a storm or flood. The Telephone Company must adjust its forces and equipment quickly to unexpected "peak" loads. That requires closest co-operation between highly trained workers. The ability of telephone men and women to rise to emergency is an important reason for this Company's preparedness to do its part in the Nation's defense activity.

I'M A LUCKY GUY

My pop is just an ordinary hard-working fellow and he and mom don't live fancy. But they're happy.

The other night mom was showing pop my new electric bottle warmer, and he said we're lucky to have such handy electric things. That got him started talking about his job and he said American workingmen are much better off than workingmen in other countries. He said a big reason is because American factories use so much more electric power and that means men like my pop can turn out more work and therefore make more money for his boss, Mr. Hardy, and more for himself, too. And Mr. Hardy can sell his products cheaper, so more people can buy them and that helps everybody. That's why people like my pop and mom are really rich—rich in the things that make life more enjoyable.

Pop said, just think mom, a business man like Mr. Hardy has to invest about fifteen or twenty thousand dollars for every man he has working for him. Golly. But it's men who are willing to take risks like that who keep our wheels turning around, pop said.

"Maybe you had to obey orders, Kit. But I'd never think it of you. Your brother Mose never would have done that—you know that as well as I do."
"Well, it's done," snapped Kit, much put out at the rebuke, "so, anyway, there's no use talking about it. Where you goin', Henry?"
Bowie had risen, picked up his rifle and was shaking his legs. "I'm going, just as I told you, up the river to Sutter's."
"But, bears 'n' Injuns, hold your horses till you talk to the old man."
"I'm not talking to him, Kit. He can't hire me to murder decent peaceable boys like the De Haros."
"Sh! don't talk so loud, you old bullfrog. Stay overnight and think it over. You've picked on the only mean job he ever put on me, Henry."
"Kit, I'm on my way." No effort at persuasion availed. Bowie shook hands with Kit and his friends and exchanged railery with them but went his way.

Everything at Sutter's Fort pleased him. Captain Sutter had charged the whole atmosphere with his own magnetic personality. When he persuaded Bowie to remain for a time with him it was to be on Bowie's own terms, if Bowie would name any. In the end Sutter named for his new recruit so liberal a percentage on his fur business that Bowie himself insisted on reducing it.

Captain Sutter had at his command the services of former mission Indians who, on the despoiling of the missions by the freebooting Mexican politicians, had found themselves adrift and thrown on their own resources. Some fell back into savagery and pillage, imitating their Mexican despoilers. Others, of the better stripe, sought service where they could; many were in the employ of Sutter. These men were tractable and were expert with the bow and the gun. Even Bowie, who was placed in sole charge of these hunters, was often amazed at their skill. No less a source of amazement to him, although he had thought himself familiar with the country, was its limitless wealth in game and fur-bearing animals. Elk supplied tallow worth more commercially than that of cattle. Deer were a pest, and bears were hunted for their heavy pelage.

The rivers and the tule beds swarmed with beavers and land otter. The quantities of skins brought in by the Indians astonished Sutter himself, and with every shipment down the river he deposited with Nathan Spear, his factor at Yerba Buena, a sum of money for Bowie's credit. For to Bowie, Sutter ascribed the unlooked-for increase in the returns from his Indian contingent.

The lively frontier atmosphere at the fort—the daily excitement owing to the constant succession of strangers, wanderers and travelers arriving, singly and in groups, in large and small companies with amazing stories of hardship, adventure, conflict, discovery, treachery, starvation, stark tragedy and even cannibalism—served to keep Bowie's mind busy with interest in the strange frontier characters he encountered and in their strange tales of deserts, mountains, valleys, rivers, snow and ice.

All their stories had a common feature—their deserts were vast, their mountains towering, their valleys like paradises, their rivers swift, treacherous and mad to destroy. Some told of trees so great of girth and so tall that no listener could believe his ears; others of mysterious valleys where boiling water gushed hundreds of feet into the air and ice-froze on the edges of their pools.

But even marvels lose their thrill. Even the adventure of the chase becomes commonplace when at last routine. For nearly two years Bowie made an active part of the enterprise of Captain Sutter. Still, something suppressed but gnawing at his feelings urged him to seek new scenes, new excitement, to deaden a vague sense of loneliness. When he told Captain Sutter he was leaving him there was an explosion. But it was a good-natured one, and the two parted friends. Bowie promised to come back sometime if he could make it.

Leaving the valley with one pony, Bowie worked South along the Sierras, sleeping under the stars and killing such small game as he needed for food until, passing the Tehachapi range, he stopped at the Mission San Gabriel, only to learn that a state of war existed between Mexican factions and that the southern end of the department was, for one side or the other, under arms.

CHAPTER XII

Bowie had no intention of mixing in a squabble between Mexican California grafters, and to avoid the sham battle lines he kept well inland in order to reach San Diego. He meant to outfit there and strike across the desert for Texas, which he had not seen for years.
He reached San Diego late at night. He had intended to sleep outside the town overnight. But toward night fall rain had begun to fall and when he reached the presidio there was a heavy downpour. He rode up to the presidio gate, where he was challenged by a sentry, whom he answered in good Spanish and asked for shelter. The sentry called the captain of the guard out into the rain from a game of seven-up.

Whether this was unpleasant for the captain, whether the call spoiled a winning streak, or whether the captain had had too much pulque, Bowie never could figure out. But he was very brusque. He ordered Bowie to dismount, ordered him searched and disarmed. No answer that the Texan could make to his insolent questioning would satisfy him. He pronounced Bowie a spy, put him under arrest and sent him to the guardhouse.

The Texan's surprise was equalled by his annoyance and his contempt for his captors. However, he reflected that a night in the dry guardhouse would be better than a night in the rain. But to find himself for the first time in his California life without his knife, his revolver, or his rifle and his ammunition was something to disturb him. He tossed all night and could console himself only by thinking that in the morning he would easily satisfy the commandante that his arrest was owing to the drunken stupidity of the guard.

After much palaver the next morning he was brought before an underling of the governor and subjected to a grilling that astonished him. His own simple tale of who he was and what he was doing in San Diego was brushed aside as of no value, and he was questioned closely as to what his relations were with the faction that Governor Pico of the department feared was planning an attack on him personally. After hours of examination which naturally developed nothing Bowie was remanded to the guardhouse. There he fretted and fumed day after day until his resentment wore itself dumb. He was summoned at last before the governor himself. This, the prisoner felt sure, would be the end of it.

Such was not the case. Pico bore a name that inspired all who sought justice at his hands with foreboding. But the Texan knew nothing of the mentality that characterized this leader of the mission spoliars. Again Bowie told his story; it fell on deaf ears. The strange revolver taken from him was not merely evidence but proof conclusive in Pico's judgment that Bowie was a spy. His protestations availed him nothing.

At three o'clock he was notified that he would be shot as a spy next morning. Bowie took the message, silent and hard featured, from the guard who brought it. But with his wits keyed high by the amazing news, he studied closely through the bars of the peephole in the cell door the features of the Indian soldier who bore the message. It flashed suddenly on Bowie that he had seen that man before. "Sanchez," he said calmly, "I thank you for telling me this."

The Indian started at the utterance of his name. "I thank you, Sanchez," continued Bowie, unmoved by the stolid guard's amazement, "because you and I are old friends. You do not recognize me; I am covered with half a beard and unwashed and eaten by vermin. Look closer, Sanchez"—Bowie lowered his voice—"look closer. I am Bowie, whom you knew at Guadalupe. We fought together in the canyon of the Santa Maria—did we not?"

Sanchez stared hard at him. Bowie's very quiet pierced the sluggishness of his Indian nature.

"Senor," he stammered, speaking low and with the utmost caution. "I remember all. I did not know you. How can I help you? If I let you out they will shoot me."

"Do nothing of that kind. Only, as soon as you can, bring me something to eat and pass me a good knife. That's all—go. Tell them I will be ready."

Sanchez proved not ungrateful. Bowie's contempt for everything and everyone concerned in his imprisonment was not lessened by the threat of immediate death. But he set to work, within a minute after the knife was in his hand, to dig himself out of his crude surroundings.

Working feverishly for an hour in the clay underlying the stone floor, he had made progress in his tunnel when, although no sound reached his ear, the scant light through the peephole of his cell door lessened just enough to make him realize someone was looking in.

Expecting a bullet in the back of his head, he turned as unconcernedly as possible from the bunk near which he was working. Behind the bunk lay the loose earth scooped from under the floor. He glanced toward the peephole. A face was there. But the aperture was so narrow and high that he could see only the face itself. Bowie, sitting on the bunk, studied keenly the eyes that studied him. For a long moment there came a calm voice from the barred window.

"My son: I am a padre. May I speak a moment with you?"

Bowie was annoyed but prudent. "Certainly, Padre."

He stepped to the cell door. "What can I do for you?" he asked in a courteous manner, though inwardly resentful.

"I have heard of many Indian murders since coming to California," continued the padre. "He will open the door."
"That is not necessary, Padre. We can talk here face to face quite as well."
"Not quite so well, my son. I would rather sit down with you a few moments that we may speak undisturbed."
"Padre mio," said Bowie firmly, "I am at my devotions; please leave me in peace. I have but a few hours to live."
"That is why I wish to speak with you, my son. You were at your devotions. That is well. Are you a Catholic?"
Bowie was stumped. "I—well, not exactly, Padre. You see . . . Footsteps were heard outside.
"Here comes the guard," said the padre, turning to look. "Let him open the door just a moment, my son. I promise I will not annoy you."
After locking the cell door, the guard had gone, leaving the two men in Bowie's narrow quarters. "My leg is not very good. You notice my limp," said the padre. "May I sit down?"
Motioning his unbidden guest to the one three-legged stool and seating himself on his bunk, Bowie hoped the padre's searching eyes would detect nothing of the loose earth piled underneath it. Yet to the uneasy prisoner it seemed almost too much to hope. His industry had made noticeable progress. "They tell me, my son, that you are a spy," began the padre casually.

"So they tell me," returned Bowie, slightly acid in his tone.
"I ask, is it true?" continued his questioner.
"It is not," answered Bowie bluntly. "I have had no trial; not a shred of evidence lies against me. The truth is, Padre mio, your governor wants for himself a new and unusual firearm—it is called a revolver—that his men took from me. And he is putting me out of the way to get a clear title to it."
"Do not, my son, say 'your governor.' I am not an officer of the Mexican government. I am a Spaniard. My sole earthly quest in California is the salvation of souls. You may be a spy—though I do not believe it, for the whole story has been told me—or you may be twenty times a spy; that matters nothing to me. But since you are condemned to death let me ask: what of your soul? what of eternity? You are an Americano?"
"No, Padre."
"Not Americano—what then, my son?"
"A Tejano."
"A Tejano," echoed the Franciscan, still searching Bowie's face narrowly and speaking as if musing or as if placing in his mind a fact at a time to serve as tesserae for a possible mosaic. "When did you first come to California?"
"Some ten or twelve years ago, Padre. What," demanded Bowie impatiently, "has that to do with this trumped-up charge against me?"
"Nothing, nothing whatever, my son. But if you will be patient it may have something to do with what I have in mind. By what route did you come to California?"
"Across the Rio Colorado and the desert of the South."
The padre's interest seemed to grow. He spoke on with slight but increasing keenness. "Then you must have come in not very far from San Diego," he persisted, still musing.
"I did so come."
"I presume," continued the padre gently insinuating, "that you spoke Spanish when you came to California?"
"When I came to California neither I nor my companions could speak a word of Spanish."
"You did not come alone, then?"
"Two Texan scouts came with me."
"Three of you." The white-haired man, his penetrating eyes bent closely on Bowie, hesitated an instant. He spoke then intently. "My son, did you and your companions hear about that time of Indian murders?"

"I have heard of many Indian murders since coming to California," continued the padre. "He will open the door."

Bowie was stumped. "I—well, not exactly, Padre. You see . . . Footsteps were heard outside.
"Here comes the guard," said the padre, turning to look. "Let him open the door just a moment, my son. I promise I will not annoy you."
After locking the cell door, the guard had gone, leaving the two men in Bowie's narrow quarters. "My leg is not very good. You notice my limp," said the padre. "May I sit down?"

"I have heard of many Indian murders since coming to California," continued the padre. "He will open the door."
"That is not necessary, Padre. We can talk here face to face quite as well."
"Not quite so well, my son. I would rather sit down with you a few moments that we may speak undisturbed."
"Padre mio," said Bowie firmly, "I am at my devotions; please leave me in peace. I have but a few hours to live."

THE COMMUNITY SUPPER
(See Recipes Below)

So you're to manage the next community supper? And you're panicky about it! Of course it's a job to feed 200 people appetizingly and leave $25 profit in the treasury. But it can be done! If you must eye the nickels when serving church or club suppers, study the following eight-point program for "feeding the multitude":

(1) Pick a general chairman who can picture the job as a whole. (2) Appoint a responsible person in charge of each food. (3) Arrange the kitchen conveniently for the different jobs. (4) Prepare as many foods ahead of time as possible. (5) Have utensils ready and garnishes at hand. (6) Name a hostess to direct waitresses. (7) Plan a uniform method of serving. (8) Plan menus well ahead of time.

If the meat dish is different, the whole meal seems to have variety. And there's many a trick for serving thrifty cuts differently.

Take meat loaf, for instance. A ham loaf de luxe with a good mustard-horseradish sauce will "make" any meal. Beef stew can be thickened a little, ladeled into dripping pans, covered with rounds or squares or diamonds of biscuit, and when baked it appears crustily and temptingly yours. If you wish to make it more "de luxe" bake and serve in individual casseroles.

For something different, plan for meat balls with rice. You can serve buttered turnips, and a salad made of cabbage, celery, green peas and pimento which certainly sells the men this menu.

Now if pennies needn't be watched so closely and you want to do a fall or winter dinner up brown, here's a "ringer": Baked ham, raisin and cider sauce, raw vegetable salad, cranberry muffins, pumpkin pie, coffee, or milk.

Ham Loaf de Luxe.

(Serves 50)
5 pounds smoked ham (ground)
3 pounds veal (ground)
¾ cup green pepper (minced)
¾ cup onion (chopped)
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
8 eggs (beaten)
1 quart tomato soup (canned)
1 quart bread crumbs or uncooked cereal

Combine the meat, green pepper, onion and seasonings. Add beaten eggs, tomato soup, and bread crumbs or uncooked cereal. Pack into bread loaf pans and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 1½ hours.

Beef Stew With Biscuits.

(Serves 50)
9 pounds beef round (cut into 1-inch cubes)
2 cups flour
1 cup hot beef drippings
3 quarts boiling water
½ teaspoon peppercorns
2 bay leaves
1 quart turnips (diced)
1 quart carrots (diced)
1 cup onions (sliced)
Salt and pepper to taste

Cut beef into 1-inch cubes. Dredge in the flour and brown in hot beef drippings. Place in kettle and add boiling water. Cook slowly for 2 to 3 hours. Add peppercorns and bay leaves. Add carrots and turnips 1 hour before serving. Add salt and pepper. If necessary, thicken with flour paste. Serve hot with baking powder biscuits on top.

Meat Balls With Rice.

(Serves 40 to 45)
4 pounds beef (ground)
3 pounds pork (ground)
2 onions (minced)
2 cups rice (uncooked)
2 cups cracker crumbs
4 eggs (beaten)
4 tablespoons salt
1 teaspoon pepper
2 cups milk

Combine ingredients and mix well. Form into balls. Place in shallow roasting pans. Pour over 2 quarts tomato sauce or tomato soup. Cover pans. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 1½ to 2 hours, turning the meat balls several times during cooking. Add water if necessary, during the baking.

Cider and Raisin Sauce.

(Serves 12)
1 cup sugar
¼ cup cornstarch
½ teaspoon salt
1 quart cider
1 cup seedless raisins
6 small pieces cinnamon
12 whole cloves

Mix sugar, cornstarch, salt, cider and raisins together. Place spices in a cheesecloth bag and add to mixture. Boil gently for 15 minutes. Remove spice bag and serve hot sauce over ham.

Cabbage and Celery Salad With Peas.

(Serves 25)
4 No. 2 cans peas (2 quarts)
2½ quarts cabbage (shredded)
2 quarts celery (diced)
Pimiento (cut fine)
Salt to taste
Mayonnaise
3 heads lettuce
Drain peas (reserving liquid for soup, gravy, etc.) and chill. Add cabbage, celery, pimiento, salt and mayonnaise, and mix well. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves.

Lemon Cream Scones.

(Makes 30 scones)
2 cups flour (sifted)
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
4 tablespoons butter or other shortening
1 teaspoon lemon rind (grated)
2 eggs
¼ cup light cream
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon lemon rind (grated)

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and the 1 tablespoon of sugar together. Cut in butter and add 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Reserving 1 tablespoon egg white for glaze, beat remaining eggs well and add cream. Combine with flour mixture. Add lemon juice and stir until soft dough forms. Turn out on slightly floured board and knead 30 seconds. Roll dough to ¼-inch thickness and cut into 3-inch squares, then cut each square from corner to corner, making triangles. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Brush tops lightly with slightly beaten egg white and sprinkle with mixture made of 3 tablespoons sugar and 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) 12 minutes, or until brown. Before serving, spread with orange marmalade and reheat.

Cabbage and Carrot Salad With Peanuts.

(Serves 25)
5 quarts cabbage (shredded)
20 carrots (grated)
2½ cups peanuts (chopped)
2 cups salad dressing
Mix together the cabbage, carrots, peanuts and salad dressing. Chill thoroughly and serve.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS

Add finely cut mint leaves to orange juice and chill. Just before serving add 1½ cups pale dry ginger ale to each two cups of orange juice.

For variety sprinkle some grated cheese over the top of raisin, apple or mince pie and heat for five minutes in a moderate oven. Serve at once.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for December 1

AN EXACTING DISCIPLESHIP

LESSON TEXT—Luke 9:49-52.
GOLDEN TEXT—No man, having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God.—Luke 9:62.

Weak-kneed, watered-out, and "sickly" religious philosophies and activities have no right to call themselves Christian. Following Christ is not just a sweet sentimental impulse expressed in smooth words and formal religious exercises. It is a vital, virile, sacrificial faith which leads the true follower of Christ to be willing not only to die for Him, but also to live for Him in the face of opposition, hatred, yes, "through peril, toil and pain."

Let us put away these insipid imitations of Christianity which so often masquerade under its name and face our time with a call to discipleship which demands every fine, noble, manly and womanly quality. The lesson for today reveals that following Jesus (and please remember you are not ready to live for Him until you have been born again) calls for

I. Co-operation (vv. 49, 50).

The placing of the little child in their midst (vv. 46-48) and Jesus' words concerning true greatness revealed to John that he had been wrong in condemning the one who was working for Christ but who was not of their party. The true disciple recognizes that the man who truly loves and serves Christ is to be accepted in His name. We may not like his appearance, or his language, or his methods, or his friends, but we ought to love him and co-operate with him. Let us begin to practice that as well as to say we believe it.

II. Humility (vv. 51-53).

Gross discourtesy, evidently inspired by national hatred (the Jews and Samaritans had no dealings with each other), was shown toward the Lord Himself. His reaction gives us an example of humility, for He said not a word against them. The true follower of Jesus should expect such treatment from a hostile, devil-inspired world and emulate his master by showing love and

III. Patience (vv. 54-58).

The disciples wanted to show their power and authority by bringing the fires of destruction upon the enemies of Christ. That spirit has persisted in the church, the desire to call the fires of heaven (and possibly of hell) to destroy those who hinder or oppose us. Such is not the spirit of our God and His Christ, for He is "long-suffering to us-ward, not willing that all should perish, but that all should come to repentance."

IV. Sacrifice (vv. 57, 58).

The writer dislikes to use the word "sacrifice" in connection with our life and service for Christ, for in reality we sacrifice nothing which is not more than replaced (read Matt. 19:29). But at the same time it is true that God does call upon us as Christians to hold nothing dearer than our devotion to Him.

Following Christ is more than singing glibly or carelessly, "I'll go where you want me to go, dear Lord." The one who starts out with Him is to count the cost (Luke 14:28-33). He must expect the same treatment as Christ (II Tim. 3:12) and be willing to take it gladly (John 15:20; I Pet. 2:21). We ought to make this plain to professed believers. Tell young people the truth and you will see that they are ready to respond to it. They are willing to give themselves sacrificially for causes of this earth—why not for Christ?

V. Devotion (vv. 59-62).

It has been said that Christ is either Lord of all or He is not Lord at all. Even the demands which love may present on behalf of our aged father must not be permitted to stand between the Lord and His disciple.

Christianity is considerate and courteous, and our Lord is not here suggesting any neglect of the duties or amenities of life. The point is rather that the Lord must have first place whatever else may call for second thought.

The blight on the life and service of most Christians is that almost anything and everything else is allowed to take first place and the Lord must be satisfied with second or third place. Sometimes one wonders if He is given any real place at all in some lives.

No one who puts his hand to the plough in God's Kingdom and then wants to defer following through until a more convenient season, or who wants to go back to "bid farewell" to someone who for the moment is more important than the Lord, is fit for His service. The way of joy and usefulness is the way of full and unconditional yielding to Him.

Elegance of Fabric, Fine Furs Achieve New Style Distinction

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

UNDOUBTEDLY the most outstanding characteristic of smartest winter fashions is the elegance and superiority of the materials employed in their making. Women of discriminating taste find their fondest hopes realized in the high distinction imparted to costumes by choice fabrics styled with classic simplicity. Add fur opulence and you have sounded the keynote to which the better part of the present style program tunes into uncertain terms.

Especially in the matter of woolen weaves have all previous records been exceeded with versatile textures, gorgeous colorings and fascinating novelty. Never before in the annals of textile history has there been such a superb showing in fabric output. The existing vogue for three-piece costume suits, and the style prestige accorded the new softly styled dressmaker coats have intensified spontaneous enthusiasm and interest in handsome sterling quality woollens.

Above in the illustration is presented a stunning coat with the dressmaker look. Softly styled as a dress is this new type now coming into prominence. The patrician model here shown has a nice sort of formality partly because of its softly sculptured lines and partly because of the fine 100 per cent wool Forstman fabric, called "velperla," of which it is made. The color "graingold" is also new. It gives one the feeling of autumn tinted birch leaves. Golden hued woollens and coppery tones and tints are being played up in all their glory, especially with the very smart spotted furs and with beaver trims. You will love the texture and "feel" of the material that fashions this coat. It is not only all wool with velvety fine finish, but it is crush resistant and measures up to the test of long wear.

The fur accent that distinguishes this coat deserves special comment. In the huge beaver-covered button lies a stroke of real styling genius. The single fur button fastening has already made widespread fashion appeal. This simple little touch of fur makes fine excuse to add a hat of matching fur and a huge muff which ensembles the costume most attractively. In the way of fur trims this season, something of fur always matches something else of fur in the costume, thus establishing a relationship that resolves the composition into a perfect unit.

The inimitable styling given the winsome dress of sheer woolen shown below to the right in the group is recognized at a glance. This most attractive model is an Eisenberg "original" and augurs well for the supremacy of American designers in the field of costume styling. Shirred ruching typifying superior workmanship forms giant pockets on bodice and hip. The straight sleeve gains interest from its unusual side closing fastened by three widely spaced buttons. For the lively touch so essential in this winter's costumes there are jeweled flower buttons and a contrasting satin ascot.

As you see below to the left, tab pockets distinguish a sophisticated jacket of Fromm pedigreed silver fox. A grand and glorious fur of this type will set off to perfection any cloth costume with which it is worn throughout winter. The skins are so cleverly marked and worked that the marking of the fox itself outlines the pockets as well as forming a yoke at the shoulders. A tiny standing collar, elongated lapels and pocket tops are of stitched taffeta—a combination of unusual chic that sets off the full silver-bright beauty of the fox. The wool hat has a great choux of coq feathers.

Trotter Derby

Here is an instance where the camera catches Dame Fashion in the very act of having appropriated for her very own the time-honored Derby hat pictured in the family album worn by revered ancestors in the early sixties or thereabouts. At any rate the "trotter derby" is smart this season, especially if you feminize it with a bewitching veil, face its wee brim with flattering blue velvet and wee bows of velvet ribbon in cunning pose at the back.

Masculine Influence

The masculine influence in women's fashion reflects in the new derby hats feminized with prettily frivolous veils, and flannel long-sleeved shirts that are topped with jackets cut and tailored in man fashion. Long wool knit socks and striped ties are campus favorites.

Hats, Gloves Add

Color to Costume

When you buy a new hat, buy a new pair of smart leather gloves to match. That's fashion's favorite idea for putting color spice into this year's costumes and American leather glove makers are playing right into fashion's hands with an array of colors such as you've never before seen.

There are two smart ways of matching gloves and hats. Either match the gloves to the hat itself or to the trimming. Matching the trimming is a good idea if the hat is black with a contrasting feather, facing, ribbon or veil on it.

Or, better still, when you get a hat with contrasting trim, choose two pairs of gloves—one to match the hat and one to match the trim. Then when one pair of gloves is being washed (and most American-made gloves can be washed) you have another harmonious pair to wear.

This hat and glove combination is an unbeatable idea for making one costume look like more, particularly if the main costume is black, dark brown, gray or beige . . . all of which can use hats and gloves in several different colors.

Frog Fastenings

The fact that frog fastenings are again in use comes as good news. Not only are "frogs" made of braid "a la militaire," but the newest note is to form them of cordings of the same cloth as the dress or coat. They serve in a utilitarian way admirably, and designers are developing the theme from the decorative point of view.

Twenty-one football boys and Coach Abe Cohn went on a bus trip to Lansing Saturday to see the football game between Michigan State and West Virginia. The trip was sponsored by the Rotarians. The game proved to be very exciting all the way through and ended 10-0 in favor of Michigan State.

The boys were guided about the Michigan State College Campus and were very much impressed by the Jennison Field House which they were shown through. The field house has a full size football field, and Olympic size swimming pool, 1/2 acre of gymnasium floor, and 8 lap tracks, and several handball rooms in it. The boys had a very good time, but were

GIRLS HEALTH CLASS

The seventh grade girls' health class has been studying foods. We made a poster showing the four essentials of a diet. We also made one which shows foods that contain certain vitamins.

Because so many of the girls carry their lunches, we studied what should be in a lunch box. One day we all carried our lunches, and we made vegetable soup and cocoa to go with them.

A hot dish is served every day in our school. We get the menu from the cooks each week and post it, so the children can pack their lunches according to the menu.

While studying vitamins we made an all vitamin salad and served it to the class.

We also made cook books showing recipes for sandwiches, cookies, and other things that can be put in lunch boxes. These books also contained various lunch box menus.

PARTY NEWS

The sophomore class held its first party of the year in the high school gym last Saturday night.

Basketball games, dancing, and other games formed the amusement while ice cream and cake took care of the refreshment end. Miss MacDonald, Miss Finch, Miss King, and Mr. Roberts were chaperones.

The freshmen, who seem not to be superstitious, have changed the date of the party from November 15 to Friday, December 13th.

Why Not Give a Christmas Present To Your House

BAUBLES are fun to give and to receive, but they do not necessarily add up to any real comfort and pleasure. This year, why not get the family together and all pitch in for one really worth-while gift to the home? For example:—

Hot Water Tank and Heater
Buy a big new water-storage tank and heater, have us install it, and enjoy the pleasure of plenty of hot water at all times.

Is Your Home Properly Heated?
If not, let our furnace man talk it over with you.

SUNBEAM FURNACES Duo-Therm HEATERS
Eliminate those "cold spots" by installing one of our Furnaces or Heaters. Both are in a class by themselves and will give you comfortable warmth throughout the winter season.

SUNBEAM HEATING UNIT
From its base to its one-piece radiator, the heavy, ideally proportioned Sunbeam heating unit has every improvement that you can expect to find. Heating parts are durable and heavy. All joints are deeply cupped and join snugly.

Bathroom Outfits
Buy a new downstairs bathroom or powder-room. Might be installed under the stairs. New small-size fixtures allow baths and lavatories to be tucked away in the tiniest spaces. Let our plumber give you an estimate. No obligation.
