Charles A. Richner Laid To Rest Last Saturday Afternoon

Charles A. Richner passed away at his home in East Jordan, Wednesday, March 26th, following an illness of five days.

Mr. Richner was born near Orland, Indiana, July 25, 1866, being in his 74th year at the time of his death. He came to Michigan as a child. At the age of 22 years he began work as telegraph operator and station agent for the P. M. R. R. which position he held for about twenty years. Later he farmed near Omena for about eight years. When the Michigan Potato Growers Exchange was organized he moved to Sutton's Bay where he was manager of that and seven other stations. From there he went to Cadillac where he held the position of traffic manager for seven years and sales manager for three years of the same concern. Owing to failing health he gave up his position there and moved to his farm home here in East Jordan where he has lived for the past ten years.

On July 10, 1901, he was united in marriage to Lulu Funk at Stanton.

Beside the widow, he leaves six sons and daughters:— Mrs. Robert Swanson, Cedar; Mrs. C. C. Arrington, Cadillac; Ivan Richner, Mason; Cedric, Detroit; Wynn, New Orleans, La.; and Dale at the parental home. Also by a brother, Dr. Ernest D. Richner, Battle Creek.

Funeral services were held at his late home, Saturday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Ellsworth Swanson of Ellsworth. Burial was at Evergreen Cemetery, Kingsley.

To those of us who are busily engaged in knitting and in making garments and surgical dressings and other articles to be sent over seas to the unfortunates in warring countries this may be of interest. You may wonder where your supplies are being sent and one of the main distributing depots of the American Red Cross is the London town house of Viscount Halifax, British Ambassador to the United States. When war broke out in 1939 he turned his town house at 88 Eaton Square, London, over to the Womens Volunteer Services when it was used to house refugees. Now it has been turned over to the American Red Cross and is the main London depot for the distribution of relief clothing. Although many nearby sections have been bombed up to date this Square has escaped injury. It is very likely that some of the garments made by this Chapter are at this moment awaiting distribution from this point.

Speaking of the garments turned out by this Chapter, "Hats off!" to the boys and girls of the Junior Red Cross of Wallon Lake! Through the help of their teacher, Addie March, the children of the 5th through the 8th grade of this school, have turned in since October, 35 sweaters. Mrs. March taught her pupils to knit and every one of the less than a dozen students keeps his or her work in the desk and whenever there is a free period in the school, they will be found busily knitting. Incidentally, the boys are turning out just as fine work as the girls. This Junior Red Cross, needless to say, is the most active in the County and all credit should be accorded them and their teacher. There is a record to be proud of!

There's A World of Interest In The Want Ads Every Day — Especially Today.

GOOD FRIDAY

This year I am requesting that, except in cases of emergency, that all business places be closed, and that all activity under the direction of the City be suspended from 1:30 to 4:00 p. m., so that all may attend the Union Good Friday Service, April 11th.

FOREST EXPERIMENTAL PLANTINGS FOR COLLEGE TRACT AT MANCERONA

The Michigan State College Experimental farm of forty acres located north of Manceron at the Junction of M-66 and US-131 has been turned over to the Department of Forestry by the College through recent action by the State Board of Agriculture.

In recent correspondence received by Walter G. Kirkpatrick, county agricultural agent, from the forestry department of the college, plans have been made to plant sixteen acres of the tract this spring. Plantings will be made in April by CCC Camp Kalkaska. Although details of this year's planting plans have not been received, the department is desirous of establishing on this tract, plantings of all types of trees and shrubs and combinations of windbreak plantings that people may come to this area and see for themselves how these various trees grow and what trees or shrubs may be adapted to their particular situation.

Antrim county is particularly fortunate to have this experimental planting made in the county. It will be of much value to local people and as the planting grows it should become of statewide and national interest.

Further plans to use to advantage the entire tract, are being made and will be announced upon final approval.

Frank Justice In Office Work At CCC Camp Kalkaska

Meet CCC enrollee Frank Justice. Frank has just finished reorganizing the office filing system at Camp Kalkaska, 118-S, Kalkaska, Michigan, and Joseph C. Ferrar, Project Superintendent, says that the job is one any enrollee could be proud to have done.

Enrollee, Frank Justice is 19 years old. He graduated from the East Jordan High School, last year. He never worked in an office before he came into the CCC. He enrolled at $30 a month and board and training. That is the important part of it — training. Mr. Ferrar brought him into the office and made a clerk out of him. He has charge of the files and does the typing. He took a course in typing, here at Camp.

There is a lot of work in a Project Superintendent's office — much to be learned. Six years of records covering the work that Camp Kalkaska has been doing. Daily records of gasoline, oil and grease, enrollees sent to projects, foremen's reports of work done and costs of operations. Weekly reports on training of truck drivers, off job classes, condition of trucks and tractors and project inspections. Monthly reports covering all kinds of operations — 18 of them. Quarterly reports for job training, inventory of tools and equipment, contributed time by sponsors, safety inspections and inventory of forest products.

Frank got a raise — Assistant Leader at $35 a month, and more training. April first of the year he is scheduled for another jump to Leaders rating, at $45.

Need More School Funds

HAS FALLEN OFF THIRTEEN MILLION IN STATE DURING PAST TEN YEARS

Educators have long insisted that total revenues for schools have fallen off decidedly since 1930, but Michigan citizens have merely shrug their shoulders and considered such statements propaganda. A reliable department of State government now admits that this statement is true.

The State Tax Commission, by statute, has the general supervision of the assessment rolls in the State and makes the assessments on all railroads, telephone and telegraph companies, and the taxable income from these public utilities constitute the major portion of the Primary School Fund. This same department of government has on file all of the taxes which are levied for all purposes throughout the state.

Melville B. McPherson, Chairman of the State Tax Commission, now discloses that the schools are getting $13,531,039.34 less than they did in 1930. According to records in his department the general property tax for schools amounted to $79,777,182.31 in 1930 and the Primary School Interest Fund and other funds produced $26,071,432.00 or a total amount of $105,848,614.31 which was available for grade and high school education in 1930. In 1940 the report shows that the property tax produced a total of $51,317,574.97 and the Primary Interest Fund and other funds a total of $41,000,000, making a grand total of $92,317,574.97 available in 1940. This is over $13,000,000 less than in 1930 when fewer pupils were in school. Much has been said of school surpluses as of July 1. Mr. McPherson pointed out that this is not a surplus but an operating balance which is absolutely necessary because most districts do not receive any state or local funds until late in the fall. However, it was disclosed that this operating balance amounted to $27,711,346.02 in 1930, whereas in 1939, the last year for which records are available, it was only $18,494,087.22, or a decrease of over $9,000,000.00.

The people should know, said Mr. McPherson, "that the total amount of funds available for public high school and elementary programs in Michigan has fallen off over thirteen millions of dollars during the past ten years, and over this same period the operating balance has likewise decreased by over nine millions of dollars."

Pro-Axis Yugoslavia Rule Overthrown As 'Boy King' Peter Assumes Throne; Mediation Board Acts to End Strikes In Industries Delaying U. S. Defense

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

The American flag flies from a police car overturned by workers during the strike of workers at the "parent" plant of the Bethlehem Steel company. (See below: Strikes)

YUGOSLAVIA: Coup

Joining the Axis powers by the government of Yugoslavia was one thing. Getting the people to swallow this action was another. The sign-up, following periods of governmental collapse and reinvigoration, was the signal for demonstrations over the entire country, created and given its autonomy after World War I by the Treaty of Versailles. Serbs, Croats joined in the outburst, and there were parades through Belgrade with young fellows carrying what American and British flags they could find, vocally and loudly criticizing the government for failing the public in its hour of need. Then, two days after the signing of the pact came the dramatic report of a coup d'etat by which the army overthrew the evident pro-axis government of Regent Prince Paul. King Peter II, not yet 18 years old, assumed the throne and a government was sworn in which was pledged to defend Yugoslavia's independence. The nation's army was immediately massed and dispatched to battle stations along the country frontiers.

Britain and Greece hailed these reports as "great news" and Adolf Hitler immediately demanded a statement of the new government as to their attitude toward the pact the two countries had signed but 48 hours earlier.

But from Bulgaria came reports that the Nazis were not waiting for a reply to Hitler's demand. German forces in that country reportedly began a swift movement toward the Yugoslav frontier. General sentiment in Sofia, Bulgaria's capital, was that the installing of a pro-British and pro-Greek government in Yugoslavia would precipitate a general Balkan war.

As the war fever rose steadily in Yugoslavia and as the people cheered the new regime that had its army lined up in defiance of the Axis, the ever-stormy Balkans took the spotlight of World War II. No matter what the outcome Yugoslavia had at least tendered a serious diversion to the timetable of Adolf Hitler. Defeating Yugoslavia would be no simple task, many military experts predicted. It was assumed that the great northern plains of the nation would have to be abandoned as they would offer easy going for the swiftly moving mechanized Nazi legions.

Real battle would come, it seemed, in the mountain terrain of central and southern sections of the country. Yugoslavia has a comparatively good army, and is considered the best of the small Balkan nations. It numbers 1,200,000 men.

The U. S. reaction to the new government in the tiny Balkan nation was immediately favorable. The state department assured Yugoslavia that it would assist that nation in resisting any aggression.

STRIKES: And Night-Stick

The resumption of work at the Harvill plant, bottleneck of Pacific plane building, provided no respite for Uncle Sam's headaches in production spasms, for Washington frankly was expectant of strikes in 12 more vital plants.

No. 1 was not long in coming, for the main plant of the Bethlehem Steel company, in Bethlehem, Pa., was next. The big polls got busy and found that the public was considerably inclined to blame labor leaders rather than management for the enormous increase in strikes. The present strike held in its grip more than a billion in war orders, including a large percentage for home defense. Police nightsticks clubbed the strikers into submission at the outset, permitting non-strikers entrance through picket lines, but it was evident that this was only the start of a widespread labor movement to fish for higher wages through the moment of public necessity.

Chief lack of sympathy with this attitude was seen in the ranks of relatives and friends of those taken in the selective service. These lads, most of them working for $21 a month and food and clothing in Uncle Sam's uniform, were resentful of labor striking for increases from 50 to 75 cents an hour as at the Harvill plant.

They said so, in letters home, and parents and friends joined enthusiastically in the protest. Many congressmen and senators reported receiving such letters and telegrams. Polls showed public sentiment almost unanimous against such strikes, and blaming largely the labor leaders rather than the plant owners.

The new national mediation board, headed by Dr. Dykstra, just moved to it from selective service, seemed to have the Bethlehem strike as the first pitched into its lap, and what it would do with this situation challenged public attention from the outset. This board moved swiftly in the Allis-Chalmers strike at Milwaukee which has been holding up much defense rearmament. It ordered the company to summon its 7,800 force back to work immediately.

Chief public indignation over the strikes was directed at C. I. O. organizations, with Congressman Dies claiming that the labor troubles could be traced directly to "Reds." This also was the public focus after William Green, head of the A. F. of L. organizations, disclaimed any anti-defense attempts, and proved it by sending his men through C. I. O. picket lines in one instance.

WILLKIE: Keeps Hand In

Wendell Willkie, avowedly keeping his eye on the next presidential race, was keeping himself before the public by making a personal goodwill tour of Canada.

He was greeted with wild enthusiasm in Toronto and in Montreal, his first two stops.

In the first he appealed for all American ships, naval and merchant, for Britain that can be spared, and "that means giving until it hurts."

This remark was cheered to the echo. In Montreal, the next day, he was showered with ticker tape and given a triumphal entry into the city.

In Montreal his theme was similar. He said:

"Give Britain ships until the airplanes start to roll and give Britain superiority in the air—then, good-by Hitler, you're on the way out."

He said further: "This is a test as to whether the democratic enterprise system can outproduce the totalitarian enslaved method of production. Well, I put it up to you, now. I put it up to the business men of America to prove it. I think they can. If I did not think they could, I could not believe in liberty."

NAZIS: Spread Sub Zone

A spreading of the submarine-active zone to include Iceland and a considerable portion of the North Atlantic westward toward the shores of the United States was another sensational announcement that caused watchers on the "when shall we get in" front anxious moments.

They started making maps of the 42-degree line of longitude, and showed how close it is to the American neutrality zone area. It did not touch yet, but was coming perilously close.

It meant that if American naval vessels took up the conveying of aid-to-Britain ships to the end of the neutrality zone, they would be within a very few miles (as oceans are reckoned) of the lines where they might expect action from German submarines.

One news analyst, after a tour of western plane factories, reported that heavy bombers, at the rate of four or five a day, were being flown across the continent and thence to Britain under the lease-lend bill, and that still more than these were being delivered to the army, but that it was thought a good portion of these were going overseas as well.

There was little danger to this type of shipment except from adverse weather and mechanical failures over the ocean. But Americans were concerned over what was going to happen to American shipping and to foreign bottoms carrying aid to Britain.

The British, losing heavily at sea, were issuing a request to the Norwegian government to turn over to it about 100 vessels now plying American and Latin-American waters, so that they could be added to the transatlantic trade.

First ship to leave this country for Iceland following the announcement of the additional blockade zone was the freighter Godafos from New York. The New York-Reykjavik run was started after the German invasion of Denmark cut Iceland off from her parent country. Three small freighters and three small passenger steamers now operate on that voyage. Whether they would continue or not remained to be seen.

DEFENSE: 42 Billions

With the passage of the $7,000,000,000 bill implementing the British aid bill by a vote of 61 to 9, total moneys allotted in one way or another for national defense or British and democratic aid in Europe reached the staggering total of 42 billions of dollars.

Most of the floor debate (seven hours) on the seven billion bill was devoted to explanations by various senators of why they had voted against British aid and now were switching to vote for the bill giving the bill the funds President Roosevelt asked.

OPM, the Office of Production Management, furnished the figures. The direct government outlays, including the seven billion, reached the total of $39,100,000,000. In addition came British orders of more than three billions, bringing the grand total to past the forty-two billion mark.

Of these huge sums not more than 3 1/2 billion actually have been spent. But an enormous part of the whole has been contracted for, and factories the length and the breadth of the land were being built or were "tooling up" to carry out the contracts.

In fact, of the 42 billions, OPM says that nearly 30 billions already have been appropriated or contracted, and that nine billions represents the budget allowance for 1942.

FOOD: Becomes an Issue

Almost coincidental with recent news that America would send food to unoccupied France for distribution under the watchful eyes of the American Red Cross, who were supposed to see that none of it got into the hands (or mouths) of Germans, came word that this distribution already had begun, and that the Red Cross workers were satisfied that all of it was going to French men, women and children.

Santiago, Chile: Chile has given permission for King Carol of Rumania to live in Chile with his sweetheart, Magda Lupescu. It was reported that the "moral turpitude" clause in American regulations barred the romantic couple. This clause once kept a titled Englishwoman away from the United States.

Berlin: Government circles expressed themselves as delighted with the reaction of excitement which greeted the sign-up of Yugoslavia as an axis partner. "Our next goal is Turkey" those close to the government said. "Other nations will sign" was the official statement, "our diplomacy never pauses."

National Gallery of Art Is New Capital Attraction

Wide Array of Great Works Placed on Display; Late Andrew Mellon's 'Dream' Realized in Recently Opened Exhibit.

By BAUKHAGE

National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 "E" Street N. W., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—A slight, white-haired man walked into one of the narrow little houses that line the west side of historic Lafayette square opposite the White House and which he had just rented for himself and his staff. He looked it over from cellar to attic, indicated where he had planned to sit and watch the dream of a lifetime come true.

His staff moved in and worked there for four years. A few days ago they locked the door and moved into a $15,000,000 building, which the man who had dreamed about and paid for, as a gift to the nation, never lived to see.

The building is the National Gallery of Art. The man was Andrew Mellon, who died only a few months after the ground for his "dream" was broken. He had hoped to sit at a desk in Lafayette square, only a few blocks from the art gallery, with his son, Paul Mellon, and with David Bruce and Donald Shepherd, directors of the trust which turned the gallery over to the government. Congress accepted the gift and established it as a bureau of the Smithsonian institution, the other great museum which was turned over to the government by an individual.

The day after the President of the United States dedicated America's new temple of art, I walked down the corridor toward the fountain beneath the rotunda on the first floor. About me moved some 2,000 other visitors who came from towns and cities and villages, all over America.

And from other places, too. As I stood there on the marble floors that are like black mirrors, I heard a woman murmur, "Magnifique." I looked at her and saw a refined French woman whose eyes spoke spontaneous tribute to the beauty about her. I had no doubt that she had seen the Louvre with its "Winged Victory" and its smiling "Mona Lisa"; the Luxembourg with its masterpieces of Rodin. But here she found something different. Here were the priceless paintings and sculpture of the old and the new world in a temple, which, despite its shining corridors and its great dome, was a friendly human place. Unlike so many of the dusty museums of the old world, it seems as hospitable as it was spacious. Even its size, by the clever design of the architect, has been disguised with interrupting archways, with gently sweeping lines which give its classic dimensions a warmth and intimacy. The visitor feels at home. The pictures on the walls are less exhibits than a part of the decoration of a beautiful living room.

There are upholstered couches in the galleries. There is a smoking room and even (shades of Raphael and Rembrandt!) a very modern cafeteria.

In a simple office, I met David Finley, director of the gallery. He rose from a great leather chair that all but engulfed his dynamic figure. He is a slight man who served in the last war and later became a lawyer. He was a member of the war loan staff of the treasury and later assistant to the then secretary of the treasury, Andrew Mellon. The two became friends and Finley went to London as honorary counsellor to the embassy when Mr. Mellon was ambassador. He was one of Mr. Mellon's confidants from the time the wealthy Pittsburgh banker began planning the gift of the gallery to the nation.

Mr. Finley believes that the National Gallery of Art will become a powerful force for bringing about a love and an understanding of art among all Americans, not merely because it belongs to the people of the nation, but because it is located in the national capital, New York, he pointed out, has its fine galleries, but visitors to the metropolis go there chiefly for amusement. People come to Washington to see the historic spots of the nation, to visit buildings — which are themselves monuments. But few buildings, save Mount Vernon, with its treasured possessions of our first President, contain things which have a patriotic and a cultural value.

Mr. Finley looks forward to the time when the pictures and the statues in the National Gallery of Art can be brought to the homes of the people through television. Meanwhile, he hopes through the gallery's publications, to carry knowledge of the paintings and the sculpture, their history and facts concerning the artists to the people in order that the treasures under his care may be shared with the schools and the individuals of the nation.

There are two publications available now. One is the preliminary catalogue containing a descriptive list of the collection with notes. It sells for 50 cents which can hardly cover the cost, yet it contains 234 pages, the last 16 of which are beautiful black and white reproductions of some of the paintings. The book, which is to sell as cheaply as possible, is paper bound, but beautifully printed, containing brief biographies of the artists, descriptions of the works and factual information about them.

The other volume is a picture book. It sells for one dollar and a half and contains black and white reproductions of all the collection totalling 543 illustrations. The title, date and name of author are given but no additional text. If any readers of this column would like to buy either of these books, I suggest that you write first to ascertain the postage required. I shall be glad to give you that information because I think that any art student or art lover ought to have them. They are not printed at a profit. They are part of the institution which belongs to you and which some day you will probably visit.

When you do come to the National Gallery of Art, you will understand why the President spoke of the masterpieces it houses as "symbols of the human spirit, and of the world the freedom of the human spirit, made — a world against which armies now are raised . . ."

Farm Boy, Dead Poet, And a Walking Stick

This is the story of a poor farm boy, a dead poet and a blackthorn stick. I first saw the boy when he was half a century young and by that time a veteran newspaper man. His name is Bishop and he looks like one.

I first saw the stick the other morning, lying across the chair in the club which is always reserved for "Bish."

The poet, John Boyle O'Reilly, I knew for one verse of his which I learned by heart for my first love. It goes like this:

"Oh, the red rose breathes of passion
And the white rose breathes of love,
The red rose is a falcon
And the white rose is a dove . . ."

O'Reilly, a wild Irish lad, was born in County Meath, Erin, a hundred years ago. He came early to America, fought his fights, burned with his love for the Ould Sod, and wrote his poems. Today he stands, immortalized in stone by the famous sculptor, Daniel Chester French—in Boston, his adopted city.

The year the poet died, or thereabouts, a little fellow in a Texas village saw a toy balloon and coveted it as only youth can yearn for a bauble whether it be a plaything, a maiden's heart or the moon. But toy balloons cost 10 cents and pennies were few for Texas farmboys. Years passed, the desire for that balloon faded but the wound for its lack lingered. The boy grew up, sometimes lonely perhaps, for he never married, but never alone. Never very long alone, for "Bish" loves dogs, children, people.

He also loves walking sticks and is never without one. But he never owned a blackthorn. This morning one of those many friends of his brought this fine old heirloom—black, powerful, sprouting its strong thorns like Ireland aroused, its head worn smooth and gentle as an Irish heart, by the hand of John Boyle O'Reilly, who carried it for many years.

The friend laid it affectionately in Bishop's hands.

And then "Bish" told us, with a reminiscent twinkle in his eye but a note in his voice that belied it, about the balloon and the age-old ache. "Now," he said, caressing his new prize, "John Boyle O'Reilly's cane has more than made up for it."

I think the poet looked down and smiled.

Such broadcasters never tried to talk a mule into eliminating himself.

AMERICAN FARMER STILL MINUS WAR TRADE

THE AMERICAN farmer is not profiting to any large extent from the European war, from our preparations for war, or our aid to England. It is the Canadian and Australian farmers who are being called upon to feed England, not those of America. Our January exports of farm products were the lowest for that month since 1889, only $22,000,000. It leaves the farmer in a tight place and facing still further decrease in cotton, wheat and corn acreage this year.

The government can force prices up, but to do so would result in a wail from American consumers. It can grant larger subsidies, but that would add to the government appropriations and the government debt.

Of course government might encourage American farmers to produce a sufficient quantity of some 60 items which can be raised in America, but which we are now importing to the extent of a billion and a half dollars a year. That amount paid to American farmers would certainly increase farm income.

That would be paying the farmer for doing something which would appeal to him. But evidently no one in Washington has thought about such an idea.

HONEST WAY IS TO MAKE ALL OF US TAX CONSCIOUS

TAXES PAID is a part of the cost of doing business and is included in the price of the merchandise. The consumer pays it, and it is known as "hidden taxes."

Congress must consider a heavy increase in government revenue to pay a part, at least, of the terrific preparedness and aid to England cost.

A plan is being talked of to tax wages and collect it as the social security tax is now collected—the employer to take it out of the employee's pay each payday.

That would be more sensible than an added tax on business, which must be passed along to the consumer if business is to continue to operate.

The quickest and surest way to create a demand for governmental economies in this country is to make the mass of people tax conscious, to collect from them a tax they know they are paying.

Close to 30 per cent of the national income is paid to the tax collectors—municipal, county, state and federal. The man who earns a salary of $30 or more a week pays his share, but he does not realize that he pays. It is a part of the price of everything he buys.

The honest way would be to let him know what he pays by leaving his tax direct, instead of covering it up in the price of the merchandise he buys. Then if he preferred less government at less cost, he would say so.

OWNERS OF BETHLEHEM STEEL

WHO OWNS American industry is evidenced by the fact that Bethlehem Steel company has 140,000 stockholders. One hundred and forty thousand Americans have invested their savings in that one company and by doing so have provided the tools for the employees of that company to work with. There can be a simple accounting system which will determine definitely just how the revenue from each industry is distributed. With such a system in effect, it would be easy to determine fair wage scales and other items of distribution of revenue. The guess method may break business, but that will not solve our industrial problem.

NONE ESCAPES

SENATOR BYRD of Virginia tells us that before the end of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1942, our national debt will be not less than $75,000,000,000. Just to pay interest of two per cent on that sum will cost each American—man, woman and child—about $12.30 each and every year, more than $61 a year for each family of five. Directly or indirectly, we all pay. No one escapes the penalty. Where do we go from there?

THIRD PARTY

THE GENERAL public represents a third party whose interests are involved in every strike. The consumer pays for increased wages, shorter hours and decreased production. But that greatly interested third party is not considered in the settlement of disputes between labor and capital. It should be.

FILIPINOS NOW NEED US

THE LITTLE brown brother in the Philippines is not now so anxious to pull away from the protecting arms of Uncle Sam as he was a few years ago. He has even asked that the United States army spend some $20,000,000 of rebated sugar taxes on island defense, instead of turning the money over in cash. Certainly the little brown brother is rightly frightened. Uncle Sam looks mighty good to him now.

CALLING ALL AMERICANS
MONDAY, APRIL 7TH

FREEDOM OF THE BALLOT:

Here in the United States is the only place left in the world where there is complete freedom of the ballot so far as electing government leaders is concerned. On Monday, April 7th, here in Michigan there is an all important election. The people themselves, by going to the polls, decide if they appreciate this greatest gift of God to our civilization.

The officers to be elected on April 7th are of major importance to every citizen of Michigan.

They will have charge of building and maintaining our highway system for the next four years. And the people will select on this election day the six men who form the educational policies for our youth for the next six years and two members of the Supreme Court.

Voting slackers are today the greatest menace to the retention of our constitutional form of government. Michigan citizens should broadcast to the world her Americanism by voting.

Boston Yields Fishing Stakes of Early People

BOSTON.—Fish weir stakes, unearthed 35 feet below filled-in marshland in Boston's Back Bay supply evidence of New England's earliest people and culture.

Prof. Albert Morris, Boston university sociologist, says the fish traps date the era of prehistoric man 2,500 to 3,000 years ago in a considerably warmer climate.

He believes a band of "pre-Algonquin Indians" drove their adze-sharpened stakes down in the shallow waters of an inland bay. Discovery of the weir was made in August, 1937, during excavation for a building foundation.

"The weir is important," Morris said, "as the only discovery yet made that permits an approximate dating of the earliest people and culture of New England. There is evidence that the climate of Boston was considerably warmer at the time the first weir was built than it is now."

"The evidence of the Back Bay deposits is supported by studies of fossil flora everywhere in this country which indicate the ending of a warm dry period in northeastern America about 3,000 years ago."

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

The city's newest subway is the final link in the Independent system, first planned 19 years ago, and the total cost of which has been $800,000,000. The Sixth avenue line is short, running only from Fourth street to Fifty-ninth street, yet its cost was $80,000,000, which figures out $4,377 a foot. Construction costs were increased by the fact that it runs under or over six other underground railways that cross its path. Added expense was that while the subway was being dug, the elevated railroad was still running and precautions that cost real money had to be taken to prevent its collapse. Then, too, for nearly a mile at its northern end, it is only 150 feet above the Catskill aqueduct. New York's underground maze of conduits, wires, etc., didn't make the job less expensive.

At Thirty-fourth street is the largest station. It is 360 feet long, 30 feet wide, and 10 feet high, and has three different levels. There are 17 entrances and 16 escalators. Also there is a tunnel above the tracks, much like the enclosed deck of a ship, through which pedestrians may travel from Thirty-fourth street to Forty-second street without coming out into sunshine or bad weather. It's a free tunnel and so, during the Christmas rush with attendant rain, it did a heavy business. Speaking of business, it is estimated that the new line will carry 10,000,000 passengers during the coming year.

It was the custom of an attractive young business woman, who lives alone high up in a big apartment house, not to complete dressing until after breakfast. But she always did reach outside her door to gather in her mail and the newspaper so that she might have something to read while waiting for the coffee to perk. The other morning the newspaper was just out of her reach. Noting there was no one in the hall, she stepped outside. Before she could bend over, the door, equipped with a spring lock, banged shut. And there she stood as if posing for a lingerie ad! The only way to get a pass key was to call the elevator operator and wait while he made a round trip. She was about to do that when something moved her to try the door. It opened readily enough. She hasn't figured out yet when she threw the catch but the newspaper and mail now wait until she is fully clad.

Al K. Hall is a veteran vaudeville and burlesque comedian who has been on and off Broadway for 25 years. He's never been ashamed of his job although in his career he's entertained in some pretty rough theaters. But Al's kid, a girl, has been growing up. Before he died, he wanted to do something that would make his daughter proud of her daddy. So he sat down and composed a patriotic song called "We Are All Americans." Harry Salter heard it and thought it so good he put Hall on his "Song of Your Life" program, so the comedian could tell of his lifelong dream and how it had come true. Even if the song is never published, it won't make any difference to the composer. He feels he has done one thing in his life of which his daughter may be proud.

If you have seen W. C. Fields' latest picture, "The Bank Dick," you may have noticed that the story credit was given to one Mahatma Kane Jeeves. One of this department's Hollywood scouts reports that many folks know that the story was actually written by Fields himself, and a few know how the comic came to choose his pseudonym. If you say the name slowly, you will discover that it is really one of Field's favorite off-screen expressions. "My hat, my cane, Jeeves." (Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

Huge Fighting Ship Ready Soon

35,000-Ton North Carolina First Battleship Added in Twenty Years.

WASHINGTON.—The North Carolina, first battleship to be built for the United States navy in 20 years, will go into commission April 11.

The most powerful fighting ship in the world, according to navy officials, she will join the battle line this summer under command of Capt. Olof Hustvedt.

No announcement of her assignment has been made, but it is believed she will go to the Pacific and may become the flagship of the United States fleet.

The North Carolina was built at the New York navy yard. The Washington, a sister ship, is nearing completion at the Philadelphia navy yard. The speed of each ship is expected to exceed 28 knots. Each will carry nine 16-inch guns able to fire 10,000-pound shells more than 25,000 yards.

Many Experts Engaged.

The North Carolina was launched June 13 and is being completed about five months ahead of time. She is the result of more than 140 separate battleship designs, in the working out of which from 40 to 70 naval design experts were engaged.

The designing covered 19 years and included studies of every type of battleship, its hull, superstructure, fire control, cruising radius, power, speed, gun power, anti-aircraft protection, etc.

The outcome, in the opinion of naval construction experts, is the best battle unit, offensively and defensively, built up to the present time. Larger ships, embodying many improvements, are under construction for the navy, but it will be two or three years before the first is ready to join the fleet.

The North Carolina is one of six sister ships each of 35,000 tons and each having as a main battery nine 16-inch guns. The Massachusetts, Indiana and South Dakota will be launched this year and the Alabama early in 1942.

Fourth of Name.

The North Carolina is the fourth American combat ship to bear the name of the Tar Heel state. The first was a ship of the line of 2,633 tons, mounting 74 guns, launched at Philadelphia in September, 1820. This ship was the flagship of the United States squadron in the Mediterranean from 1825 to 1827 and continued in commission until 1868. She was sold in 1867.

The second North Carolina was an armored cruiser of 14,500 tons and was a unit of the fleet from 1906 until scrapped in 1930. In the first World war she was in the overseas transport service.

Her name was changed to the Charlotte in 1920 and the name North Carolina assigned to one of the six battleships then under construction. When the naval limitation-of-arms treaty was ratified the first battleship North Carolina was scrapped along with her sister ships and a squadron of battle cruisers.

Gold in Doodle-Bug but

Not in an Agent's Heart

KANSAS CITY, MO.—A real estate agent was amazed recently to find a hole, 15 feet wide and 25 feet deep, dug through the floor of a room in an old mansion.

Two roomers in the house, a man and a woman, told him that they were digging for gold, with the aid of a "doodle-bug."

When held over the hole, the "doodle-bug"—a glass jar suspended on a string from a magnet—swung in a circle. This was a sure indication that there was gold underneath, according to the pair.

"You see, you just put in the jar something made of the mineral you wish to find," the real estate agent was told. The couple had a gold wedding ring and chain in the jar. "We had only a few feet to go," the woman said. "Let us finish and we'll turn the gold over to the owner of the house."

However, the agent decided that there had been enough excavating and ordered the hole filled up.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

This & That: Porters at the new airlines terminal are now officially "skycaps". . . The name won a $100 prize for Willie Wainright, of New Orleans, in a contest in which there were 6,000 entries. . . It's my guess, however, that the luggage toters, if a tip is in sight, will continue to answer the call "Porter". . . Or come without being called. . . Job I wouldn't like at this time of the year: Washing skyscraper windows. . . Or at any other time, for that matter. . . Job I surely wouldn't care for during the holiday rush: Elevator operator in a department store. . . Woman shoppers seem to have elbows of ox-goad sharpness. . . The oldest strike in New York is that at the Brass Rail restaurant. . . It soon will be two years old. . . In a midtown restaurant is an oyster opener who, in 20 years of steady employment, has never found a pearl.

In many apartment houses, washing machines are available to tenants for a 10-cent charge. . . and superintendents have to use vigilance to keep neighbors from sneaking in and using the machines. . . Also, maids in need of dimes; keep the coins handed over by the mistresses and do the work by hand. . . Billy Hill has been dead more than two weeks but the strains of "The Last Roundup" keep running through my head. . . and I think of how, with all those melodies in his soul, to support himself, he had to work as a doorman on Fifth avenue. . . It has been spring on Seventh avenue for quite some time, no matter what the calendar says. . . Displays of vernal season fashions are the reason. . . The shows were held earlier than usual this year to lengthen the time for retail sales.

Irwin Shaw, whose "Retreat to Pleasure" was not well received by Broadway critics, says he is through with the theater. . . Writing for the stage means a lot of hard work, a terrific buildup and then "Bang!" . . . So he plans to stick to short stories for a while at least. . . Though I hope he changes his mind and turns out another "Bury the Dead". . . Or "Those Gentle People". . . Four extremely comely young women, all dressed alike, are seen night after night in various clubs, especially the openings where celebrities are present. . . They are department store models whose business it is to display what's new in clothes. . . In other words, they draw a salary for doing what other folks pay money for.

Sign in a Madison avenue window noted by Charlie Spivak: "Dictionaries. If you are thinking of sending a letter to Hitler they won't be of any use to you. Otherwise, they're a bargain at 98 cents". . . Harry Salter each month receives dozens of requests from inmates of Sing Sing, Atlanta, Alcatraz and other bastilles all over the country. . . But the favorite tune of the convicts is not "The Prisoner's Song". . . Right now, it's "Star Dust". . . I like the skating of Adele Inge, featured in the Terrace Room of the Hotel New Yorker. . . Among other things she does is turn a forward somersault without using her hands. . . She's only 15 and her home is in Clayton, Mo.

Things that stirred my emotions: That radio conversation between Emlyn Williams in London and his wife in New York. . . The British surely can keep their chins up. . . Refugee children standing in awe before the big Christmas tree in Radio City. . . The Palisades blushing as the morning sun caresses them. . . The acting of Ethel Barrymore in "The Corn Is Green". . . and the acting of Jane Cowl and Peggy Wood in "Old Acquaintance".

A niece, here to visit Bess Johnson, quizzed her about actors with whom she works. Miss Johnson, having told a little about them, said, "And sometimes Mr. Barker is in the cast—he imitates dogs." The youngster pouted and exclaimed, "Don't try to kid me, Aunt Bess. I'm a big girl now." And Aunt Bess had a hard time winning back the trust of the child although the man who imitates dogs actually is named Bradley Barker.

Remarks: Speaking of unemployment, says Virginia Payne, the average man has 12,000,000,000 brain cells. (Don't blame me if that's wrong because I've never counted them). . . Eddie Paul opines that the wise husband talks in his wife's sleep. . . Vincent Lopez observes that some favorite sons show how blind mother love can be. . . and here's THE END. Hail Brazilian Birds

As Air Raid Sentinels

MILWAUKEE.—The Milwaukee zoo has two "air raid sentinels." Director Ernest Untermyer says the Brazilian-crested screamers are of proved reliability. Possessing superkeen senses developed through generations of vigilance against natural enemies, the birds can hear an airplane 10 miles distant, and they react with a shrill, sirenlike call.

Smelt go up the streams to spawn in late March and April. With waders and head-nets, the crowd waits for the night run of fish to begin.

Each spring local girls are chosen to reign as "Queens" of the various Smelt Festivals which take place during April.

Tons of smelt are frozen in huge slabs and stored for use as feed on mink and fox farms in Michigan and neighboring states.

LITTLE FISH MAKE A BIG MICHIGAN INDUSTRY

Smelt are running! Around Escanaba and Menominee, Beulah, Boyne City and other smelt centers, that means busy days and busy nights. Thousands of people join in the activity, netting tons of fish every night.

The annual catch of smelt in Michigan is over 9,000,000 pounds and growing every year. In the Escanaba area alone, it's a $50,000 industry.

Like all fish, smelt are highly perishable, and handling the catch requires lightning communication between packer, shipper and city market. In locating the places where smelt are in demand, speeding up shipments, routing fast orders, modern telephone service helps get the succulent little fish from river to frying-pan in the shortest possible time.

CHARLEVOIX CO. HERALD
EAST JORDAN — MICH.

State Capitol, Lansing — As leading politicians see it, Michigan citizens are concentrating too much attention on Hitler's threatened "blitz" party in England and our entry as a belligerent into the war.

It so happens that an important election is to be held next Monday, April 7. But to judge from conversation to be heard at dinner tables and in places of business, the Michigan election hasn't been getting the attention it deserves.

Not only that, the international situation and our domestic boom have combined to put legislative problems into temporary eclipse. James Haswell, liberal correspondent for the Detroit Free Press, phrased it this way:

"Michigan's legislature always is conservative, but this year the radicals sing exceptionally small. Advancing prosperity and public preoccupation with war and defense contribute to this state of mind."

Highway Race
Interest in the election Monday, centers on the office of state highway commissioner.

G. Donald Kennedy, Democratic nominee, has enjoyed an advantage over the Republican nominee, Leroy C. Smith, in time for campaigning. Kennedy knew many months prior to the convention that he would be the nominee. Smith did not.

Consequently the Smith campaign was slow to get started. Republicans have been raising an issue of politics in the highway department and emphasizing Smith's 32 years' experience as a highway engineer, while Democrats have plugged consistently and vigorously on a pledge to continue the Van Wagoner policies and on Kennedy's Wagoner knowledge of the job.

The contest has been enlivened somewhat by activity of county road commissioners against Kennedy and in behalf of Smith. County road men have felt for years that the state department was taking over too many roads and spending too much money.

Whoever is your choice, and we hew strictly to a non-partisan line, be sure to vote TWICE — once for the short term, and again for the long term, when you cast your ballot for state highway commissioner.

Control of Board
In order to obtain control of the state administrative board, Democrats would have to put over both Kennedy and Edward McFarland, nominee for state superintendent of public instruction.
Eugene B. Elliott, Republican incumbent, possesses a state-wide reputation as an educator. McFarland, a professor at Wayne university, was chairman of the liquor control commission during the Murphy administration.

Other party nominees are for the state board of agriculture, two to be elected; University of Michigan regents, two to be chosen, and the state board of education, one to be picked.

Forgotten Amendments
In the neglected class are two amendments which will appear on a separate ballot.

The amendments, in brief, are designed to prevent fraud in petitions for referendum and initiative. They would require a person to be a "registered voter" before he could sign a petition, and the secretary of state would be authorized to determine the validity of all signatures.

Judicial Ballot
A separate ballot will also be provided for supreme court judges.

While nominees were selected at party conventions, no party affiliations will appear on the non-partisan ballot. The theory has been that this difference will divorce the supreme court from politics. It also will put another responsibility upon the voter, already burdened by lengthy ballots.

Strike Re-Action
Although many labor bills have been introduced by legislators and the administration itself is sponsoring quite a few, little likelihood exists today that any marked changes will be made in our state labor laws during this session.

A bad reaction has set in because of the current wave of industrial strikes, many of which are inter-labor controversies that do not involve hours or wages at all.

Then, too, the workers are enjoying fat pay checks.

If any bills are enacted, the chances are that the occupational disease law will be liberalized and that hours will be reduced for women workers in intrastate commerce. Nothing of an extreme nature is in sight. If what we hear is correct, federal restrictions of wages and hours will not be imposed on retail stores, for example, as an administration bill proposes to do.

Furthermore, it is very probable that the labor mediation act will not be touched. The 30-day "waiting period" continues to receive favorable public opinion, largely because of the public's mounting impatience over delays in national defense production due to labor tie-ups.

Tourist Dollars
Michigan's nearly 800 millions in arms awards are expected to stimulate the tourist industry next summer in northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula.

The state itself will spend more money to advertise Michigan's recreational attractions through the four tourist associations.

A legislative enabling act is being introduced at Lansing this week giving sanction to a $225,000 bond issue, voted last month by Mackinac Island residents, for the purpose of preserving such shrines as the John Jacob Astor house, restoring colonial atmosphere to the business section, and creating new parks and bathing beaches.

The Lamp in the Valley

BY ARTHUR STRINGER

W. N. U. Service

Carol Coburn, Alaska-born daughter of a "bush rat" who died with an unimproved mining claim, returns North to teach school. Sidney Lander, mining engineer, rescues her aboard ship from annoyances of Eric (the Red) Ericson. Lander is engaged to

Barbara Trumbull, whose father heads the company fighting Coburn's claim. Lander breaks with Trumbull and moves to Sock-Eye Schlupp's shack. One of Carol's pupils is Salaria Bryson, a big, out-doors young woman, also in love with Lander. She can hunt a bear easier than read and write. When little Frieda Engstrom gets lost, Carol sends for Sidney. Carol finds the little girl. A nerve wracking ordeal is past.

THE STORY SO FAR

INSTALLMENT X

I was, for a minute or two, quite forgotten in the tumult of those crowding figures. Then I was startled by Sock-Eye Schlupp, who cried out as he accosted me with an approving thump on the back: "You're good leather, girl! You're good leather!" And I was equally startled when Olie, without saying a word, crept rather shyly up to me and tightened his arms about my waist. I simply pressed his head against my breast, in my happiness, and held it there for a silent moment or two.

I realized, as I heard them talking of all going back to the Eckstrom house for hot coffee and schnapps, that I was very tired. "I've a horse for you here, teacher, if you want to ride," Sam Bryson suggested with an unexpected absence of truculence.

"I'd rather go home," I said from some mysterious trough of depression following after my wave of exaltation.

Lander pushed through the crowd and stood beside me. "Sandy and I'll see you get home safe," he said as he linked his arm in mine.

Neither of us, for some reason, had much to say. And in that silent partnership of a peril confronted and conquered I felt unexpectedly close to the man at my side.

"Can I come in?" my companion quietly inquired.

A wave of recklessness went through me as I stood looking up at him.

"Of course," I said, conscious of something portentous in the midnight quietness about us. We only live once, I told myself as I stared up at the star-strewn sky. I had to fight back the impulse to let my two reckless arms creep up about his stooping shoulders. I could even feel surge through me a secret hope that he himself would be ruthless and reckless, that those two strong arms of his would reach out and draw me so close all thought of our yesterdays and our tomorrows might be forgotten.

Then I drew up, abruptly, with a little gasp of surprise. For plainly, in the midnight quietness, I heard the nicker of a horse.

A moment later, in the shadow of the shack front, I could make out the uncertain figure of a man.

"That you, Sid?" challenged the man standing beside the horse with an empty saddle.

"Yes," answered Lander in an oddly flattened voice. The intruder, I could see, was Sock-Eye. And for all the darkness I could feel something accusatory in his stare as he confronted us.

"You forgot your horse," Sock-Eye explained.

That was all he said. But to me it seemed to carry a hint, as I realized we weren't so alone in the world as I'd imagined.

CHAPTER XII

The breakup, this year, meant more than the coming of spring to Matanuska. Along the railway siding at Palmer great piles of lumber were being unloaded. Train after train brought in a mountain of machinery and supplies. Federal engineers in khaki and high-tops went about consulting blueprints and driving stakes and squinting through the oolites. Then a little colony of tents began to dot the roadside, and two or three trim cabins of peeled spruce logs appeared out of nowhere.

That meant, I was told, the ground was being laid out for the two hundred families to be brought in from the Middle West, the new settlers who were to show the outside world that Alaska was something more than "Seward's Icebox."

But nothing seemed ready for that incoming army. Not one-tenth of the land was cleared and fit for cropping. There was no shelter for livestock, no homes for women and children. The only solid habitations appeared to be a string of old bunk cars which had been pushed down the valley siding. In these the CCC workers were to sleep and eat, like navvies, until a tent colony could be established. And three days later the toilers themselves put in an appearance, a whole trainload of them, promptly making the quietness of the valley a thing of the past.

They were like children turned loose on a holiday, romping and singing and ki-ying, quarreling and drinking.

Sock-Eye, viewing them with a morose eye, reported that they'd been raising hell all the way up from Frisco and Seattle. He further announced that the first banjo-strumming cheechako who made a crack about his shooting irons would get three ounces of lead in his larynx.

"They won't listen to us," snorted Sam Bryson as his S'lary and I dined on yak meat after a two-hour school lesson. "But before summer's over they'll be bellyachin' about everythin' goin' wrong."

bunch o' half-wits," averred Salaria. "They're yappin' about not usin' any old-timers. But before freeze-up next fall they'll find swingin' in a hammock don't git no houses built. They're hot-airin' about town halls and administration buildin's when they ain't even a road built or a well dug or shack logs ready for a wickypup."

"What," demanded her father, "kin you expect from fruit-tramps and dock-bums? And what'll we git from that shipload o' broken-down sodbusters when they're dumped in this valley? From a lot o' silk-shirt cake-eaters who'll be askin' the government to drop around ev'ry mornin' to do their milkin' for 'em?"

"But won't it mean something," I ventured, "to start a settlement that's really going to take root here? Isn't that what Alaska needs, settlers who bring in their women and children and stay on the land?"

"They won't take root," contended Salaria's father. "They'll jus' whimper around for more relief and then head for outside agin. And down in the States they'll be sayin' Alaska's only fit for Eskimos."

It was then that Salaria presented me with a surprise.

"I can't see," she said, "why a squarehead like Sid Lander should wantin' to swing in with them."

"To swing in with them?" I echoed.

"As sure as sundown," proclaimed Salaria. "That misguided hombre seems t' feel this is the biggest thing

"They'll jus' whimper around for more relief."

that's happened since the Children o' Israel hit out for the Promised Land. He thinks it's as dog-goned stirrin' as the Pilgrim Fathers' landin' on Plymouth Rock. And he reckons it ain't too late for the right man t' step in and git things organized."

"What can he do?" I asked, wondering at the small thrill that went through my body.

"He can't do nothin'," retorted Sam Bryson. "He's got a fool idee that if them Federal bureaucrats make him field manager up here he kin straighten out a tangle that was started wrong from the first. He contends the whole scheme should be took out o' the hands o' the War Department and give to a practical-minded worker."

I thought over this on my way home. I was still thinking over it as I swung through Palmer and stopped for a moment to watch three CCC workers languidly throwing baggage into a truck backed up to the railway siding.

"Look who's here," I heard a slightly mocking voice observe.

I detected, in that voice, an unpleasant ring of familiarity. And even before I glanced about I knew it was my soapbox orator known as Eric the Red.

"So you've swung in with the cattle," he said as he dropped to the ground. Then he laughed. "Matanuska's no longer the mudhole it was!"

I felt sorry that in the last few weeks, I'd given up the habit of going about with Sock-Eye's old six-gun swinging at my hip.

Eric swung out from the truck and came striding along beside me. "I don't think you're going to like this valley," he had the effrontery to proclaim. "Something tells me you're likely to get what I got on the Yukon."

"Is that a threat?" I demanded. "No, it's just a reminder," he said with a venomous sort of bitterness. "You had your innings, and I'm going to have mine. And d'you know what's going to happen to you?"

I essayed no answer to that challenge. But I felt less defenseless as I noticed an open car pounding and lurching along the deep-rutted roadway. In it I could see a man, a wide-shouldered man, wearing a leather coat and a leather-vizored cap.

I realized, as he came closer, that his face was strange to me. I lost no time in wrenching my arm away from Ericson's clasp and signaling the stern-eyed traveler.

"Will you help me?" I called out. "What's wrong here?" asked the driver, without getting down from his seat.

"This coward," I cried, "is threatening me." "Threatening you with what?" inquired the stranger, still impartial. But he swung down from his seat.

"I don't know what," I had to admit. "But it's not the first time he's annoyed me." "Has he any claim on you?" inquired the still noncommittal stranger.

"Of course not," was my quick retort. Then he turned back to Ericson, who was advertising his composure by lighting a cigarette. But in doing so, I noticed, my enemy quietly backed a step or two off the road.

"I think, son, you'd better be on your way," the tall and grizzled stranger announced in a disappointingly casual voice. Then he turned to me and once more looked me over. I didn't like the assessing way that glacial eye inspected my person. He was, I could see, very sure of himself.

"Where are you going?" he asked. "To my home," I answered. "That's in the Jansen shack down the valley."

"Get in," he said, "and I'll take you there."

"Do you belong in the valley?" he asked as he picked his way along the puddled ruts.

"I'm the teacher here," I explained. That brought his eye quickly back to my face.

"What's your name?" he questioned, in a voice too well modulated to be called curt.

"I'm Carol Coburn," I answered. "So you're Carol Coburn," he said with meditative quietness. "I rather thought we'd be coming together soon."

"Why?" I asked. "Because I'm the new owner of the Happy Day Mine," he said. "My name's John Trumbull. But I'm not quite what your friend Lander is trying to make me out to be," he added. "I've never tried to steamroller orphans out of their rights."

I felt, all things considered, the need of caution.

"Then you acknowledge I have rights?" I asked.

"Where?" he inquired, obviously fencing for time. "In the Chakitana," I answered. "Have you ever been there?" he questioned.

I told him that I hadn't. "Then you don't and can't understand the situation," he said with a fatherly sort of deliberateness. "There may be mineral in that claim. But what good is a claim when it's out on the edge of nowhere and road-building costs more than your mine could produce?"

"Whose mine?" I asked in a slightly sharpened voice.

His cool and not unkindly eye considered me for a moment. "That's a decision, apparently, neither you nor I can make. It all goes back to vested rights and records. And since we've come together in this friendly way, I don't even want to talk about it."

"But it will have to be talked about," I reminded him. "There's been too much of that," he announced, "especially from Lander. Are you in love with that man?"

It was plain that he didn't believe in beating about the bush. "I'm quite heart free," I said, meeting his side glance without a flicker.

"You know my daughter's going to marry Lander?" he finally observed.

"So she told me," I retorted. "This whole mix-up is something we've both inherited," he asserted, after another moment of silence. His tone, I thought, was more friendly. "Neither of us asked for it. And there ought to be some reasonable way out of it."

"What would you suggest?" I quietly inquired.

I had the feeling of being weighed on a pair of invisible scales. "I'd suggest that we leave Lander out of it," he said, "and go at the thing without rancor or prejudice. Lander's bullheadedness hasn't got you anywhere. And it won't get him anywhere."

"I've never had any cause to question his loyalty," I asserted. "Well, I have," was the prompt response. "And if you'd fly out to the Chakitana and actually look over the ground you'd understand the situation a little better."

"With whom?" I questioned. "With me," he answered. I laughed a little. For I pictured him, in my mind's eye, burying me in one of his test pits, or emulating the Wicked Uncle of the Babes in the Wood and leaving me to die in the unmaped wilderness.

I could see his frown at my prompt, "No, thank you!" (TO BE CONTINUED)

CHRIST PROMISES POWER

LESSON TEXT—Acts 1:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me, both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth.—Acts 1:8.

Important things bear repetition. Luke, who wrote both the Gospel and the Acts, presents the ascension of Christ, His promise of power, and His command to witness, at the conclusion of the Gospel and at the beginning of the Acts. "The one is all suffused with evening light; the other is radiant with the promise of a new day. The one is the record of a tender farewell; in the other, the sense of parting has almost been absorbed in the forward look to the new phase of relationship which is to begin."—(Alexander MacLaren).

I. The Proof of Christ's Resurrection (vv. 1-3).

Before telling of "the day in which he was taken up," Luke makes it clear that the ascended Christ, who had made the promise of power to His disciples, was the very one who died for our sins, but who could not be held of death or the grave. He arose, of which there are indeed "many infallible proofs" (v. 3). At Easter time we recall the fact that leading historians and experts in the field of evidence have declared that the resurrection is the best established fact in all history.

The fact that for forty days after His resurrection Christ was among His disciples, speaking to them of the things of the kingdom of God, is significant and conclusive proof in itself.

As the indispensable dynamic of their service as His witnesses, He now assures them that they will receive power.

II. The Promise of Christ's Power (vv. 4-8).

They were to tarry in Jerusalem until the power of the Holy Ghost came upon them. This took place on the day of Pentecost (Acts 2) when the Holy Spirit came to abide. We no longer are called on to tarry for the Holy Spirit to fall on us, for the moment we believe. He comes into our lives in blessed abiding presence. But we do need to tarry, to wait for His fullness of power, before we attempt to minister for Christ. We need to yield to Him for His fullness, bringing out emptiness that He may fill us and then use us.

The disciples had an important question to ask (v. 6) regarding the restoration of the kingdom. The reply of Jesus turned their attention from that future matter to their present obligation to witness for Him and their need of power for that witness. This does not mean that His followers are to lack interest in the Kingdom which Christ will one day establish, nor that they should fail to be interested in prophecy and its fulfillment. It does clearly mean that we must leave times, seasons and dates to the Lord and be diligently about the business of witnessing for Him.

How greatly the little band of disciples needed power in that day to face a hostile, unbelieving world, sunken in bondage to Satan, and bring to it the convicting and converting message of the gospel. They received that power, and in spite of every hindrance the gospel through the centuries has made its way to the hearts of men, and won its victories for God.

We need that power today. The Holy Spirit is here to give it to us, as we yield our lives to God. There are many Spirit-empowered men and women in the Church today, but relatively their number is small. Who is ready to yield to His control now, and thus swell the host of faithful and effective witnesses?

III. The Pledge of Christ's Return (vv. 9-12).

We mentioned last week that sermons are seldom preached on the ascension of Christ, although it has an important place in the Bible. Even more glaring and disturbing is the failure of preachers and teachers to declare the truth of the second coming of Christ. The promise of it is written large on the pages of the Bible, but some men seem to ignore it.

How plain and understandable is the promise in this passage. "This Jesus"—not some other—"shall so come"; that is, personally, literally, and visibly. There is no ground here for spiritualizing, to say, for example that He comes in death, or that this was but a metaphorical expression.

The text is very plain and emphatic. In agreement, we find, among others, such texts as Luke 21:7; John 14:3; Philippians 3:20, 21; I Thessalonians 1:7-10; I Thessalonians 4:16; II Timothy 4:8; Hebrews 9:28; Revelation 1:7. Unless we reject God's Word, we must receive this truth, and should receive it with joy, for it is the blessed hope of the Church (Titus 2:13). He is coming again!

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

INVITE THEM ALL—AND HAVE BAKED POTATOES
(See Recipes Below)

LET'S SERVE POTATOES

Guests are coming for dinner. You have your meat and vegetables, and you have planned your dessert. You have potatoes on hand. But have you decided how you're going to prepare them?

I'll wager you haven't. It's an oft-repeated story in kitchens from Washington to Florida, Maine to California. Because the POTATO is such an old standby, you perhaps wait 'til the last minute to decide its preparation. Then it's too late to try "something different."

Don't treat the potato as though it were the Cinderella of the vegetable kingdom. Remember, it responds well to careful treatment. While it is usually considered to have a bland flavor, proper cooking will bring out its subtleties.

Although there are only three basic ways of cooking potatoes—baking, boiling or frying them in their raw form—there are innumerable new and different things to do with this vegetable.

I wonder if you have ever tried frankfurter- or sausage-stuffed potatoes, potato croquettes, pancake potatoes, Idaho Suzettes or potato doughnuts?

If not, resolve to use these recipes. I guarantee they'll help you "get the most out of your potatoes!"

*Quick Dutch-Stuffed Baked Potatoes.

(See picture at top of column)
6 medium-sized Idaho potatoes
6 link sausages or frankfurters
Scrub the potatoes and with an apple corer make a hole lengthwise through each potato. Stuff with a frankfurter or sausage. Bake at 400 degrees F. for 45 minutes, or until potatoes are done.

For an even richer flavor, stuff with a mixture of finely chopped sweet spanish onions and ground meat. Put a slice of bacon or salt pork over the potatoes and bake as usual. Length of baking time depends on size of potatoes.

Nut Potato Croquettes.

2 cups hot mashed potatoes
1/4 cup cream or milk
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
Pepper to taste
1 cup crushed nuts

To the potatoes add the cream or milk, baking powder, seasoning and half the nuts. Spread mixture on plate to cool. Shape, roll in nuts and cook in deep, hot fat (350 degrees F.) until golden brown. Drain on soft paper.

Potato Doughnuts.

2 cups flour
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg or cinnamon
1 cup ricied potatoes
1 tablespoon butter
2 eggs
1 cup sugar

Sift flour, salt, baking powder and spice together. Put the hot ricied potatoes in a mixing bowl, add the butter and stir until the butter is melted. Cool until lukewarm. Add

LYNN SAYS:

Baking potatoes is perhaps the most healthful method of preparing them, because steam escapes from them and results in a mealy product. No valuable minerals are lost, and, if the skin is also eaten with the contents, all benefits of the potato are realized.

If you are not quite ready to serve your potatoes when they are ready to come out of the oven, cover them with a towel so that moisture will be absorbed, and at the same time warmth will be retained.

Sweet potatoes bake in less time than white potatoes. It is important to retain vitamin C in potatoes, as well as in all vegetables. In order to do this, store them in a cool place; peel just before cooking; cook whole, if possible; have the water boiling rapidly before plunging them in; use a small amount of cooking water; cook only until tender.

the unbeaten eggs and sugar; mix well. Stir in the sifted dry ingredients; mix until smooth. Place mixture on a floured board; roll until 1/2 inch thick, cut into rounds with a floured doughnut cutter. Cook in deep, hot fat (370 degrees F.) until golden brown. Drain on soft paper. Sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Idaho Suzettes.
6 medium-sized Idaho potatoes
1/2 cup hot milk
2 tablespoons melted fat
6 tablespoons buttered crumbs
1 tablespoon grated cheese
6 eggs
Salt and pepper

Select medium-sized or large potatoes; scrub and bake at 450 degrees F. until each is soft when you pick it up and squeeze with a cloth. When done, remove a piece of skin from the side of each potato to make it boat-shaped, or cut large potatoes in two, lengthwise. Scoop out the inside, being careful not to break the shell. Mash the pulp thoroughly, or put it through a ricer. Add butter, salt and milk and beat well. Pile the mixture lightly back into the shells. Refill the shell to the top and make a depression in the center of each potato. Break an egg into each depression, season with salt and pepper and sprinkle with buttered crumbs that have been combined with grated cheese. Bake in a slow oven (250-350 degrees F.) long enough to set the egg and brown lightly—for 6 to 10 minutes.

Belgian Baked Potatoes.

Wash and peel potatoes and cut into eighths lengthwise. Dry between towels. Dip cut pieces in melted shortening and lay in a shallow pan, being sure that they do not overlap. Bake in a quick oven (400 degrees F.) until brown on top. Turn carefully and continue baking until they resemble french-fried potatoes. Baste them with more shortening during baking, if necessary. When done, sprinkle with salt and serve piping hot.

Franconia Potatoes.

Use uniform medium potatoes. Pare and parboil 10 minutes. Drain, place around roast, and bake 40 minutes, or until soft, turning often and basting with fat in pan so that they will brown.

Old-Fashioned Scalloped Potatoes.

4 large potatoes, pared
1 small onion, thinly sliced
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1 1/2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon butter
1 1/4 cups milk

Cut potatoes in 1/4-inch slices. Put potatoes and onions in buttered baking dish.

Drinking each layer with salt, pepper and flour, and dotting with butter. Add milk and cover. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 2 hours, or until potatoes are tender, uncovering them during the last 30 minutes of baking. Serves 4.

Lyonnais Potatoes.

4 teaspoons butter or bacon fat
2 onions, sliced
3 cups cooked potatoes
Salt and pepper
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley

Heat the fat in a frying pan and cook the onions in it a few minutes. Add the potatoes and cook slowly, stirring occasionally until all sides of the potatoes are golden brown. Season with salt and pepper. Press flat with knife and shake over low fire until brown on bottom. Turn like an omelet. Serve on a hot platter with finely chopped parsley sprinkled over the top.

Neckwear Gives Fresh, Sparkling Charm to Spring Suits, Coats

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FOR a fashion-right approach to chic and charm for your Easter costume, try the lacy, crisp-white neckwear way. It will work like magic. The new jabots and animated cascades of sheer white, the smart detachable lace-trimmed and befrilled yokes, likewise the huge immaculately white sailor collars that stress the new low-cut, deep-throated lines are performing miracles in adding "the touch that tells."

You will find the neckwear quest one of high adventure this spring, for fashion is dramatizing the theme. Versatile lingerie touches will carry your costume to dizzy heights of allure.

There's big news in the revival of frilly jabots this season, and history is also repeating itself in the animated white fluttery cascades, the kind that will help "lift" any blouse, frock or jacketed tulle right into spring. The sheer organdie and Val lace jabot which cascades from a tiny turnover organdie collar (pictured above to the left in the group illustrated) is warranted to give springlike froth and freshness to any Easter costume. The jabot is attached to an organdie vestee, so it stays anchored and serves as a blouse.

A magic panel in embroidered organdie and lace (shown above to the right) may be depended upon to perform magic on any dress, be it print or plain, smart navy, unerring black or a delectable pastel shade. A clip attachment under the bow adjusts to any neckline. Clip it on to your newest frock and presto! it will sparkle with lacy loveliness.

Colored embroidery, especially cross stitch and petit point, is an important spring 1941 message for neckwear. The collar and cuff set below to the right in the group is one of the charming new versions. Rambler roses are embroidered on linen in red and black cross stitch.

You will be seeing quantities of this type of embroidery as the season advances, for petit point, especially, is being featured on handkerchiefs, handbags, and in fact, quite generally throughout the mode.

All dressed up and ready to go stepping in the Easter parade is the smartly clad maiden in the panel portrait to the left. For that fresh-out-of-a-band-box look, Evelyn Alden, American designer, has created a youthful redingote (redingote are "tops" this spring) with a crisp lingerie bib attached to the neckline of the dress beneath. Be sure to wear a fruit-laden hat with this ensemble, for fruit trimmings are tremendously important.

A new trend, and one that is rich with possibilities, is the wide use of pleated white lingerie frillings in unique and dramatic ways. You can buy these pleatings by the yard at neckwear counters. Newly arrived navy or black suits and dresses are finished off at throat and wrist with generous ruffings done in the dandified Regency period manner.

You can give your bolero frock or suit a fresh spring uplift by sewing in a white ruff that extends down the front edges of your bolero or even all the way round if you prefer. As most fashion-alert women are aware, the newest dresses are styled with yokes this spring. For a final swank accent, follow the outline of the yoke of your frock or your blouse with crisp white lingerie pleating. Many best shops are featuring this very new idea.

Patriotic Emblems

Patriotic emblems are proving an endless source of inspiration for decorative motifs in costume design. Flags, stars, eagles, nautical insignia seen in bright embroidery or in glittering colorful jewels. They lend enchantment to new fashions in endless ways. Here you see a stunning white rayon hi-hat turban and matching scarf. This twosome is inexpensive, and at the same time is good looking and decidedly practical.

Thoroughly American in color and design, these decorative pieces give wardrobes that pro-America look!

Low-Cut Necklines Tell

New Fashion Story

There is a new movement in necklines that will be a dominating influence in blouses and dresses from now on. The collar opening continues down to form a low deep slender point. Some dresses have an extra little camisole device to wear on less formal occasions. The deep-throated effect is extremely flattering. To wear at the low point, stunning jewelry clips are being especially designed. These will tell a fascinating new fashion story.

Deep Pleated Flounces

Popular on Navy Coats

There is a very smart new-type coat being shown which is particularly striking in navy. The body line is fashioned after the fitted princess lines, to which a knee depth pleated flounce of the self fabric is seamed. You can get stunning costume suits that have these long coats, worn over a matching one-piece dress.

Enchanting Blouses

The new blouses are simply enchanting. They are frilled, tucked and lace-trimmed in fascinating profusion. Their feminine frou frou is distractingly pretty. On the Easter parade they will appear in endless procession, adding winsomeness to the legions of navy suits and caped costume ensembles.

Pale Coats, Pale Furs

Beige coats are taking unto themselves fur trimmings in delicate tones to match. Reefer fronts of furs are chic

AROUND the HOUSE

Items of Interest to the Housewife

Mirrors should never be cleaned with soap suds. The best results are obtained by rubbing them with a paste of whiting and water. Then polish with a dry chamois to remove the powder.

Sauces shouldn't be added to boiled onions, cabbage or celery until time to serve.

To be tender meat should be boiled at a constant temperature of 350 degrees Fahrenheit.

To remove a fresh grease spot from a rug cover with blotting paper and press with a hot flat iron. Cover the spot with powdered magnesia and rub off after a day or two.

Soap and water will remove ink stains from washable fabrics if stains are first soaked in milk.

Hardwood floors can be cleaned with wood alcohol, then shellacked and waxed or they may be varnished and waxed. Badly worn floors should be machine sanded all over. They may then be refinished as new wood.

Always polish furniture with the grain in the wood.

Grease can be removed from an iron by rubbing cornmeal-over-it.

Muslin and linen books need frequent washings. This can be done easily by sponging the books with a cloth dipped in warm, sudsy water. Wash until the soil is removed and then sponge with a clean cloth rinsed in clear warm water. Wipe as dry as possible with soft cloth and separate the leaves with crushed paper until they have dried. Some of the special favorites can be used for a long time with this sort of care.

No roast should be covered during cooking. They are all placed in an open pan upon a small rack or trivet to keep them up from the bottom of the roaster, and under no circumstances is water added. The old scheme of adding a little water has been found to make a roast less juicy.

Tarpon Evolving?

Scientists believe the tarpon may be undergoing a strange evolution. An examination of their air bladders has shown a large amount of lung tissue, proving that the fish are not entirely dependent upon their gills for oxygen. This may be the reason why they can change from salt to fresh water and vice versa. The tarpon is the only fish that is known to have passed through the canal, 40 miles or so of which is fresh water.

TIPS to Gardeners

QUICK FLOWER GARDENS

MANY people want quick results in the flower garden, and for them the lists of annual flowers offer effective aid.

A highly satisfactory, and economical hedge, for instance, can be grown in six or eight weeks from seed. Kochia is the plant. A single packet of Kochia seed will provide a full, bushy hedge along the front or side of the yard. For a flowering hedge, Four o'Clock will produce attractively within two months after seed is planted.

Glowing borders of flowers that beautify the yard, and at the same time provide ample cut flowers for the housewife, may be enjoyed the first summer. The fastest-growing and most dependable annuals for cutting include the Zinnias, Marigolds, Bachelor Buttons and Petunias. There are tall, medium, and dwarf varieties of each.

Most widely used of fast-growing annual vines is Heavenly Blue Morning Glory, whose giant, soft-blue flowers are in a class by themselves. It is well to scratch the coat of Heavenly Blue seeds before planting them to speed their otherwise slow germination.

E. J. H. S. Fire Was Expensive for School Band Members

Eight band instruments were destroyed in the school fire, March 13. Four clarinets, two cornets and one saxophone were a total loss, and a flute can be repaired. One clarinet was school property and was insured. These instruments were left in the lockers to be used again that Thursday morning.

Temporarily instruments have been found for these young musicians so they can work along and prepare for the Band Festival which will be held in Petoskey, April 26. However, indications are that these youngsters will not be able to replace the instruments they lost.

The combined value of the instruments lost is about $250.00 not including the insured clarinet. Plans are being made to help these youngsters get a instrument again by asking the people of East Jordan for free will donations to the amount of about $125.00. Much is done by East Jordan people to help in time of need. Let's keep these boys and girls in the band.

Merton Roberts and John Ter Wee will give any information desired. Donation, small or large, are welcome.

Contributions to this fund may be made at the State Bank of East Jordan.
