NUMBER 32

City Directory To Be Issued

FIRST EDITION TO BE PUBLISHED FOR EAST JORDAN AND ELLSWORTH

The Charlevoix County Herald — G. A. Lisk and son Paul — are about to issue the first Directory of the City of East Jordan and the Village of Ellsworth.

This is something new for the two communities. In preparing this the publishers have made every effort possible to secure accurate and reliable information by making a personal canvass of each house in the two towns.

The street list gives the location of each street in East Jordan arranged alphabetically and the house numbers numerically. Ownership of the homes are designated by a star (*). The telephone numbers are inserted after each name.

The alphabetical lists include all residents and business places of the City of East Jordan and the Village of Ellsworth, giving occupation of each person over 18 years of age. Also wives and minor children at each home.

The publishers have checked all possible sources of information in order to secure as complete a list of summer residents located on both shores of the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix between the Ferry and Ironton. Their home-or winter addresses are given in all cases where obtainable.

The classified list gives all professional and business men arranged in their several headings.

The farm portion of the Directory gives the Rural Route number of each family in the East Jordan and Ellsworth territory.

A copy of the Directory is given each home in both East Jordan and Ellsworth, to the tourists around the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix and to the homes on the Rural Routes of both East Jordan and Ellsworth.

The publishers wish to acknowledge the recognition given the publication by the progressive business men of the territory who have shown their confidence in the Directory by giving it sufficient support to make the issue possible. If we have, unwittingly, overlooked any advertiser who wishes to use this publication, a phone call (32) will bring our solicitor to you. This section of the book will go on the press about Aug. 20th.

Deferment Goes To Rural Labor Says Director of Selective Service

What Charlevoix and Antrim county farmers can do to help assure themselves labor supply adequate for the production of essential farm goods was outlined this week. The director of the Selective Service System has asked all local draft boards to give special consideration to deferment of men needed in agricultural production. In addition, the WPA is making special effort to supply demands for farm labor.

In case a man believed to be indispensable to the farm is drafted, here is what to do:

(1) When the selective service questionnaire is received, ask deferment in Class 2, occupational deferment; or, if there are dependents, Class 3, dependency.

(2) The employer or dependent should submit to the local draft board Form 42 or a letter properly witnessed and presenting the reasons for requesting deferment. The registrant should also present the facts and request for deferment by letter if necessary, in addition to the statement in the questionnaire.

(3) If the local board does not grant the requested deferment, the case may be appealed to the board of appeals by the registrant, by the persons who signed Form 42, by a dependent, by the government appeal agent, or by the state director of the selective service. A government appeal agent is attached to each local board, and he will assist in filing appeals.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear son and brother Larry Frank, who passed away one year ago today August 11, 1940.

In our lonely hours of thinking Thoughts of you are ever near, We who love you sadly miss you. As it downs upon a year

Day's of sadness still come o'er up, Tears of silence often flow.

For memory keeps you ever near us

And the loss no one will know. Friends may think we have forgotten

When at times they see us smile Little do they know the heartaches That our smiles hide all the while.

Community Sing Held Monday Local towns-people 'whoop it up.'

About thirty people attended the Community Sing at the Jordan Inn Monday evening and all are keenly looking forward to another in the near future.

Held under the sponsorship of Irene Straub, Mgr. of the Inn, the singing was conducted by Duane Fowler, accompanied by Ad Matteson at the piano. Mr. Fowler and Mr. Matteson conduct the community sings at the lakes in Cadillac each summer and are known thruout the midwest for the pep and fun they put into their programs. Mr. Matteson for many years was an accompanist on the Kieth-Albee circuit and entertained during the intermission with several sprightly numbers. Doris Fowler and Patsy Hermann of Cadillac gave three tap dance numbers during the program.

Besides the local people present, several drove up from Cadillac to attend the sing.

Miss Straub states the boys may return later and conduct another program. Should they return, don't miss the fun. It's good exercise and you naturally feel better after a good evening of song.

Dr. Buttrick Preaches Sunday

Dr. George Buttrick, pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church of New York City, will preach at the Presbyterian Church Sunday morning at 10:30. Dr. Buttrick is a favorite preacher in many University Chapels and is always greeted with a capacity congregation when he preaches in East Jordan.

Miss Edyth Thompson, of Wilson College, Pennsylvania, will sing.

Mr. John Reuling, a brother of attorney E. K. Reuling, who has taught a number of years in a Christian College in South Africa, will speak to the Sunday School at 11:45.

AN APPRECIATION

The National Council of Catholic Women wishes to thank everyone who cooperated so splendidly to make it possible to remember all our boys who have been inducted into the service.

The Committee.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to the many friends who extended acts of kindness during the illness and at the death of our beloved mother and relative Mrs. Resella Hammond.

The Hammond Family

Dump Warning

Those using the City Dump are requested to follow the signs posted. Many are placing material where it should not be. Drive to top of the hill and unload. Unless there is a better compliance with the regulations, sterner measures will have to be taken.

Co-op. Creamery Holds Annual MEETING AT TOURIST PARK, MONDAY, OVER 400 IN ATTENDANCE

The 11th annual meeting of the Jordan Valley Co-operative Creamery was held at the East Jordan Tourist Park on the evening of August 4th in the Community Building.

Over 400 patrons, stockholders and their families attended.

The meeting was presided over by President Howard Stephens.

The production report revealed the creamery manufactured over 1,370,000 pounds of butter last year, or a gain of 211,000 pounds over the year before.

Sales of butter and buttermilk powder were over $423,000.

Mrs. Gerrit Vander Ark and Clint Blancard were elected to succeed themselves as directors for the term office.

The entertainment for the evening consisted a recitation by the Collins twins and colored motion pictures of the M. S. C. Campus and dairy. The two 4-H boys, Bernard Best and Bud Chellis, gave a very good demonstration on how to build a cheaper, efficient cream cooling machine and how to cool and care for cream.

Some local pictures of the Manistee River and a trip up into Canada by the way of Port Huron, Toronto North Bay and Cochrane near James Bay. These were shown by Prof. M. Trout of M. S. C., of the Dairy Department.

Refreshments were served during the meeting.

Autry And Beery Starr-ed At Temple

A robust entertainment week is in the offing for Temple Theatre patrons with four outstanding attractions listed for presentation. Honors go chiefly to male stars with Gene Autry, Walter Pidgeon, Ted North & Wallace Beery getting the top billings in the exciting schedule below:

Saturday only; Gene Autry, Jimmy Durante, Barton MacLane in "Melody Ranch," Gene's first big production costing $5000,000 and featuring Ann Miller.

Sunday Monday; Wallace Beery, Leo Carrillo, Virginia Weidler in, "Barnacle Bill."

Tuesday Wednesday, Family Nites, Ted North and Lynn Roberts in, "The Bride Wore Crutches."

Thursday Friday; Walter Pidgeon and Joan Bennett in, "Man Hunt."

Three Dr. Lampes In East Jordan Last Sunday

An interesting incident at the Presbyterian Sunday School last Sunday was the introduction of three brothers: Dr. Wm. Lampe, Dr. Willard Lampe, and Dr. Henry Lampe. These brothers are all outstanding in their various lines of religious work.

Dr. Wm. Lampe, of St. Louis, Mo., is one of the outstanding preachers of the country; Dr. Willard Lampe has attained prominence as a religious educator, and is now associated with Iowa State University as the head of the department of Religious Education; and Dr. Henry Lampe has been conspicuous for efficient work in Korea (Chosen) for the past thirty years. The brothers had met for a reunion at the summer home of Dr. Wm. Lampe at the Sequanota colony on Lake Charlevoix.

As a holiday from pressing problems, meritorious and deserving as they may be we present a medley of Michigan news oddities, gleaned from home town newspapers and guaranteed positively not to solve a single thing!

Hamburger Train

Bill Brooks of Birmingham warns his customers at the door. "This is not a professional restaurant. After your order is taken, Bill disappears into the kitchen. On the U-shape counter are two miniature railroad tracks. The first thing you know, a whirling sound commences and from a tunnel emerges a shaft of light followed by a locomotive and two flat cars. The train stops in front of you. You grab your hamburger from a flat car. The train backs up and disappears into the kitchen.

Gay Nineties Epidemic

Future historians may record Michigan's summer as an era of "gay nineties" masquerades, a psychological escape from headline jitters.

Dexter citizens July 3 celebrated a centennial. Men grew beards. Women wore bustles. The famous DeWitt Clinton train of 1831 was brought to Dexter. Result: A village of 1100 persons was visited by 60,000 persons.

Perry township, Shiawassee county, held a centennial pageant July 25 and 26 with covered wagons, old-time costumes, broad-rimmed hats.

Lwton held a "Gay Nineties" party July 26. Fifty business men grew beards and mustaches. Girls became "belles."

Mackinac Island July 24 - 26 reviewed history of 1820 with a pageant. Governor Van Wagoner, as a territorial governor, wore a top hat.

Reclaiming the Desert

In Newaygo county is a 1,000 acre phenomenon, known as Big Prairie desert. Here is its story:

Back in 1852 a group of settlers—James Barton, Alexander Dalziel, William Barton and Benjamin F. Olney — located on a tract of prairie land in four townships.

Because it was a prairie, the land was all under the plow the first year. The surface seemed to be a dark loam. It required little labor to put it under cultivation. Many fine farm buildings were erected.

Late in the '30s sand began to tear up the beautiful farms, cover fences, undermine buildings. Farmers gradually vacated their lands.

Today an estimated 1,000 acres is a lifeless desert. Not a blade of grass can be seen.

Only the farm of the late Judge Barton was spared.

Today the Manistee National Forest Service is planting pine seedlings, installing snow fences to check the sand.

Wild Life Notes

Art Moote and Ted Ingalls, both of Munising, parked their car near Cusino and started walking down a trail. A half-mile away they came suddenly upon two bear cubs, each one about 90 pounds in weight.

John Reuling Addressed Rotary at Tuesday Meeting

The Rotary Club had a rare treat on Tuesday when the speaker of the day was John Reuling, of Natal, South Africa, brother of Attorney E. K. Reuling.

John Reuling is a graduate of Michigan State College, class of 1927. After graduation he went to South Africa as a teacher in a Teacher's Training College in Natal. This college was started by the Congregational Foreign Mission Board and has done remarkable work among the Zulus.

Mr. Reuling talked of the educational, industrial, and political situation in South Africa in a manner that was entertaining as well as informational. The address was a splendid contribution to the International work of the Club and ranks high among the several steller programs of the Club during the summer season.

Mrs. Harriette Gay Passed Away At Petoskey Hospital

Mrs. "Hatty" Gay passed away at a Petoskey hospital, Monday, Aug. 4, following a seven-week's illness from a complication of diseases.

Harriette Muma was born Nov. 13, 1872, at Attica, Mich. She came to East Jordan fifty-four years ago. Some 49 years ago she was united in marriage to Charles Gay at Boyne City. She was a member of the Methodist Church.

Beside the husband, she is survived by a son, George D. Gay of Detroit; a brother, M. A. Muma of this city; four grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were to be held this Thursday afternoon, Aug. 7th, from the Huffman Funeral Home, conducted by Rev. J. C. Mathews pastor of the Methodist Church. Burial at Sunset Hill.

Three More Men Called For The Selective Service

Only three men have been called to the selective service in Charlevoix County for August. They were to report to the Local Board at Charlevoix on Wednesday, August 6th, and from there transferred to Kalamazoo.

BRUNETTES HAVE THEIR OWN TROUBLES!

Dr. Donald A. Laird, famous psychologist — writing in The American Weekly with the August 10 issue of The Detroit Sunday Times — will point out that brunettes are much more likely to high blood pressure, grow bald sooner, and also are much more subject to other annoyances. Be sure to get The Detroit Sunday Times this week and every week.

Art and Ted then heard a growl. Behind them was the mother bear.

Wholly unarmed, the men started running.

"That is a good deer and rabbit country," related Art afterwards. "We caught up to and passed a dozen of the critters getting away from that bear."

Mrs. William E. Mori, North Caton, Ohio, went fishing for trout in Lake Superior off Munising. Her catch; A 35 pound, 2 ounce trout; 4 1/2 inches long.

Pop Bottle Starts Fire

From Three Rivers comes this tale; Fire destroyed the straw stack of Elmer Pulver near Corey Lake.

The blaze is believed to have been started when intense heat rays of the sun focused through a pop bottle.

Roller Skating Fad

"The roller skating fad, which flourished about 40 more years ago, has struck the country again and is becoming a rage," notes Frank M. Weber, country editor at Atlanta, up in Montmorency county.

"Lewiston and Hillman have both had skating rinks for some time, and now Atlanta will furnish a place for you to break your neck if you want to."

Open air motion pictures is another small town vogue. Lester M. Rogers country publisher at Camden (Hillsdale county) reports.

"It is estimated that 700 people attended the street pictures Wednesday evening. There were seats for 500. Many bring their own chairs and others sit in their cars while many use the standing room."

Catch A Dog

Fishing on Six Mile lake near East Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. Beckert caught a three-pound bass on the first cast; a two-pound bass on the eleventh cast.

Suddenly the wind started, and a bad storm threatened. The Beckerts started for shore, a half mile away, letting the plug troll behind the boat. "Look at the beaver following us," exclaimed Mr. Beckert. Just then there was a "strike" on the line.

Scottie dog, "Wags," who had swam the half mile, had been hooked in the leg with the bass plug. "Wags" was promptly rescued.

Wait 43 years

A. V. Brown, Spanish-American war veteran of Fennville, encamped in Arkansas for a week before he received his honorable discharge.

Two weeks ago he found an envelope in his mailbox containing a check for $8.40. "In full payment for services in the the Spanish-American war." The check was signed by the Adjutant general of Arkansas and was his wages for that week of service 43 years ago.

Wicked Big City.

Jack Kelly's "big tent show," proclaimed to be "Michigan's biggest and best stock company," invaded the tourist town of Charlevoix the other day. Offering competition with the Chicago smart set's summer playhouse, Kelly offered a special matinee on Saturday with "Peck's Bad Boy." He closed Sunday evening "with the big New York society comedy, "In the Wrong Bed."

Soviet Claims Strong Counter-Attacks Stall German Drive in Three Sectors; Japan Feels Weight of 'Crack Down'; British Get Invasion Threat Warning

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

SOMEWHERE-IN-ENGLAND—A four-motored Consolidated "Liberator," just received from the United States, is shown in flight over England. It was flown across the Atlantic by a crew composed of Americans, Canadians and English, and made the crossing in just over eight hours, according to the British. These ships have a wonderful record of service with the R. A. F.

NAZIS: Real Trouble

Claims by the Russians that they had not only stopped the Nazis along the entire 1,000-mile front, but that they had taken the offensive at points, asserting penetrations as deep as 100 miles had been made, featured the Russo-German war news.

There were many observers who believed the Russian claims to be fairly accurate, pointing at many admissions from Berlin tending to show that the high command was dissatisfied with the progress being made.

This dissatisfaction was expressed in complaints against the difficulty of the terrain, the bad character of the Russian roads, and the strong resistance of the Russian troops.

Using these statements as at least an explanation and a background for belief in the general failure of the German offensive, observers sought to find the answer in Russian tactics and Russian preparedness.

They pointed out that in the last war, Russia had an army of about 800,000, poorly mobilized, well-led but not enthusiastic for fighting. This force was hurled into the eastern battlefield without good preparation, ran into highly trained opposition and was defeated bit by bit.

This time, apparently, the general Russian plan was to place a good-sized portion of the huge army on the long front, fight a series of rear-guard and testing actions to discover where the main Nazi punch would be directed, and to keep the most excellent forces in reserve.

The German drive apparently was hitting in three general directions, Leningrad, Kiev and Moscow, with the heaviest attack in the center, with Smolensk the focal point.

It was around Smolensk that the severest fighting occurred, and it was there that the German effort bogged down most seriously. For better than two weeks there was no real report of advance, and finally came the Moscow claims that the Germans had been hurled out of their trenches and were gradually giving way.

BRITISH: View of Scene

Churchill, expressing the British viewpoint of the Russian scene of action, saw in it a German failure to execute a complete blitzkrieg, but warned that Britain was dealing "with a dangerous maniac" and claimed that the Nazis, failing against Russia, were thinking of turning to a British invasion attempt.

Demanding that the defenders of the islands get themselves "into concert pitch" by September 1, the British leader seemed to attach especial import to that date, a war anniversary for Hitler.

Churchill did not boldly announce that the British had definite information of a planned invasion attempt, but the British viewpoint evidently was that the Russian defeat or victory would not necessarily settle the war.

The final scene of the war, it was plain the British thought, would be fought in the west, either on British soil in repelling the invader, or in a British re-invasion of the continent.

There were many rumors of action in other fields. In North Africa the British heard that the Germans were removing troops, and leaving the campaign to the Italians, who might be expected, once the removal was complete, to fall back as disastrously as they did before.

GASOLINE: Curtailment

Gasoline consumption under mandatory control, with a view to reducing the volume of eastern states' demand to meet the oil transportation shortage moved a step nearer when Secretary of the Interior Ickes recommended that more than 100,000 service stations in eastern states close from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. every night in the week.

This was the first direct move on the part of the government to limit sales of gasoline. Rationing may follow, it was indicated by some sources.

Ickes said he was continuing his appeal for a voluntary one-third cut in consumption, hoping that the station-closing recommendation, "plus the voluntary curtailment will be enough to put us across."

JAPAN: A Winner?

The Japanese situation was highly confusing to the lay mind, for the invasion of French Indo-China, even with the consent of Vichy, seemed plainly an overt act, and one which should merit the strongest possible punishment from Britain and the United States.

Indeed, this was the way it all started out, with concerted action by the U. S., Britain, Australia, Canada and the Dutch East Indies. However, as the days went on and as the Japanese continued to land military forces in Indo-China, there began to be dispatches indicating that the adverse action would be much milder than had been anticipated.

In fact, British sources said that oil shipments to Japan might continue; the Dutch said they had not "yet" abrogated their agreement with Japan for 1,800,000 tons of oil a year; Washington hinted that the "appeasement oil" might continue to go to Japan as long as she did nothing more than invade Indo-China.

Yet there were some things on the other side of the picture, because other British high authorities said "wait and see what happens" on Japanese reprisals; the Dutch announced that if the break came, Japan need never expect to get East Indian oil, for the Dutch had made preparations to destroy all wells and refineries instantly.

The question was whether Japan was the winner or the loser by her move into Indo China, and there was evidence on both sides.

NIPPON: Behavior

If future action against Japan was to depend on the behavior of the Nipponese, there was little immediate evidence that this behavior would be mild.

Almost immediately there was a serious "incident" when Japanese bombers attacking Chungking paused directly over the U. S. gunboat Tutuila, part of the Yangtze river patrol, and dropped some bombs, which damaged the vessel, though there were no casualties.

The ship was anchored in the so-called safety zone across the river from the Chinese capital. One bomb, according to a report from Shanghai, fell only eight yards from the gunboat, caving in a part of the ship's stern and blowing some equipment off the dock.

Also in the Shanghai dispatches came word that the Japanese army had authorized the seizure of American property in North China. Actual seizure of some properties had been made, the consulate reported to Washington.

Some of them were the oil properties at Swatow, Chefoo and Tsingtao and a tobacco plant at the latter town. There were reports of other seizures at Tsinan and Mukden. Some occurred in Manchukuo, Japanese puppet state, but some were in occupied territories of North China proper.

'So Sorry'

Lieut. Com. W. A. Bowers, U. S. N., is in command of the Gunboat U. S. S. Tutuila, which was damaged by Japanese bombs during an air raid on Chungking, China. The Tutuila was lying near the U. S. embassy at Chungking when the bombing occurred. No injuries to U. S. seamen were reported. Before an official protest could be made, Japanese official apologized for the incident.

U. S.: Turning Tide

The frank statement by Secretary of the Navy Knox that an American destroyer in the Atlantic had dropped three depth bombs when it believed it was about to be attacked by a submarine focused attention on the "battle of the Atlantic."

It brought by Senator George the statement that he believed the U. S. naval patrol of the sea lanes as far east as Iceland appeared to have been of such assistance to Britain that she was slowly gaining the upper hand in the effort to keep the ocean free for the passage of supplies.

At about the same time however, Germany announced the sinking of 19 vessels in one convoy, totaling 116,000 tons. The Nazis admitted that the sinking was accomplished only with the greatest difficulty.

The German dispatches, in describing the armed escort of the patrol, admitted that there were many armed ships, in fact, claimed the sinking of one and the damaging of another.

Partly due to American intervention, Churchill told the commons, the "battle in the Atlantic is moving progressively in our favor," and this sentiment was quoted and echoed by Senator George.

From the turn of events, however, the senator drew the conclusion that there would be no attempt at invasion of Britain this year. He cited also the difficulty of the German invasion of Russia as one of his reasons.

In this premise of the Georgia senator, however, Churchill hardly seemed to agree.

HOPKINS: To Moscow

The flight of Harry Hopkins, President Roosevelt's lend-lease administrator and personal representative to warring capitals, caused intense interest here, because it was supposedly portending the sending of lend-lease aid to Russia.

Hopkins was scheduled to confer with Stalin in person, also to talk with leaders such as Molotov, Litvinov and others.

His departure was a closely guarded secret until he had arrived safely, and indeed it was a dangerous flight, as the Nazi warplanes were occasionally flying over Moscow.

JOINT: Tax Returns?

One of the most dubious pieces of tax legislation found its central fight to circle about whether or not husbands and wives should be forced to file joint returns.

Few prognosticators in Washington could be found willing to bet that the battle would end one way or the other.

The tax bill came out of committee with the joint returns mandatory, but only after the stiffest sort of a fight, and with only the slightest sort of margin in the committee voting.

One of the first floor battles was to get the administration leaders to agree to open the matter for floor discussion during debate, and in this skirmish the force of mandatory joint returns won out.

It was finally agreed that an amendment will be offered to remove the mandatory joint return clause, and that this may be debated on the floor.

SABOTAGE: Canadian Strike

A three-day "sort of sit-down" strike in Canada's biggest war industry, the aluminum works, brought from the government the statement that sabotage was suspected, and that thorough investigations would be instituted.

The government formally called the strike a "suspected case of enemy sabotage" and promised that arrests would be made.

New Blood for U. S. Navy

Thousands of Americans who have never set foot on a warship have shed their blood for the U. S. navy. A shipment of that blood, dried and processed, is shown being taken aboard a man-o-war at Philadelphia navy yard. The blood was collected by the American Red Cross. It is indefinitely under proper conditions.

New U. S. Farm Policy Aims at High Production

Latest Campaign Represents Definite Shift From 'Plowing Under' Plan; Powder Makers Need Cotton Linters.

By BAUKHAGE
National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

"This year and next the farmer is going places. There are certain indications that he will continue to see considerable new money. Indications based on conditions that affect the farmers' general outlook on life, as well as his cash income."

That statement did not come from "official sources"—it didn't even come from a farmer, although he used to be one. It was made in my office by square-cut, square-jawed Conklin ("Pop") Mann, an editor and advertising man, keen student of rural matters, and a long-time friend of mine. Mann was down from New York, bursting with enthusiasm for his favorite theme—assured prosperity on the farm. Mann believes that business has a job ahead to interpret and readjust its marketing to meet the sweeping economic changes now taking place in American agriculture.

The farmer is now becoming a far more important factor in the distribution of both consumable and capital goods than ever before. That rise in the farmers' economic importance isn't just a matter of great cash income, according to Mann. It is due, rather, to the fact that the farmer now has a sound business platform under him and can plan and work on a basis comparable to any other business man. "Farmers," says Mann, "are both doing well and experiencing a new sense of economic security because of parity and guaranteed prices for farm products. There is a definite psychological response to their feeling of increased safety. When a farmer is doing well, and feeling secure, look for a strong upward surge in his buying psychology."

Mann interprets the farm in terms of modern industry—he sees the farm as a manufacturing plant, producing the raw materials for food, clothing and numerous other products. "Evolutionary changes, deep down in farm economics," says this agro-idealist, "have taken place which give the farmer a stabilized economic base from which he can plan and work with a sense of security he never had before."

Farmer Psychology
I like the way this hard-hitting, successful business man and writer describes the psychology of the farmer as he grew up with him in other days. He asks this question of the industrialist:
"How would I feel about buying anything but necessities if my whole economic structure was a gamble? Suppose I owned a ten or fifteen thousand-dollar plant and a lot of livestock, and, once a year, I planted crops, not knowing if the price would make them worth harvesting; how would I feel?"

Mann has a deep inherited kinship for the man who works close to the soil and you cannot doubt his sincerity when he adds:
"Some day a saga will be sung about the courage that kept the farmers going through their darkest days."
I wish I might write that saga for I know it from brave letters that poured into me from radio listeners all through the worst of the depression. I can tell you that they gave me a renewed faith in America that has kept me from being cynical through these days of distrust and doubt.

By the time this column is read, the greatest concentrated drive to increase farm production, to assure the farmer a definite price for what he produces will be on. For the first time in history, milk and poultry producers will be asked to pledge themselves to raise as much of their product as they possibly can—and they will get all the co-operation, advice and assistance that the government can give them. Quite a different picture from "plowing under."

Cotton Linters And Powder Making
Cotton linters, the hair-like fibers that cling to the seed after the long, staple cotton is removed in ginning, is a vital ingredient in the manufacture of smokeless powder. Army officials are checking to see whether or not there is going to be a shortage of this product that will seriously interfere with the defense program. They have ringing in their ears the solemn warning of Rep. Wright Patman, of Texas, in the house of representatives, that there will be a linters shortage by the middle of 1942—or even as early as next February, depending upon how much the defense program is expanded, or whether or not the United States becomes involved in a "shooting war."

At any rate, three plans are being considered in order to meet such an emergency.

First, there is the substitution of alpha pulp. This is the wood product that Germany has been using in its smokeless powder since cotton imports have been shut off as a result of the war. This is the same ingredient, too, on which rayon and cellulose industries depend.

Second, the department of agriculture is experimenting with a machine for chopping up staple cotton into short lengths and breaking down the fiber so as to make it usable in place of linters. Within the near future the machine will be given a trial run at the Hopewell bleachery.

Third, a process has been developed for making wood linters out of the southern gum tree—the familiar sweet gum, black, or Tupelo gum. Already one plant in the Midwest is turning out these wood linters which are being used interchangeably with cotton linters in powder which is going to England.

Washington Residents And Car Luxury

Midtown Washingtonians—that's most of them—provide no sheltering roof for their servants, either human or wheeled. And so, early in the morning, nose to tail, the parked cars patiently hug the curb, awaiting their masters' will. As the day begins, there is a little knot of colored girls and other servants who are on their way to wake the missus and get breakfast, lunch and dinner and then depart for their own mysterious habitations.

Of course, there are more cars than girls, for, here as elsewhere, the car is the No. 1 luxury. Better walk up three flights to a hall-bedroom than be car-less.

Of course, there are many government employee families which have settled down as contented bourgeois, the unambitious but secure beneficiaries of bureaucracy. They eventually own their own neat homes, on which there is plenty of time to work, after four-thirty. There is the 28-day leave each year and 14-day sick leave, occasional furloughs (without pay), retirement and pension to which to look forward. And there is always that semi-monthly salary check, not high in proportion to commercial wages but always there, in good times or bad, for the classified civil servant.

In boom times the salaries of government workers do not go up along with prices, and you cannot strike against the government. Prices are high in normal times in Washington, compared with other cities of its size; clerks and shopkeepers tend to be a little bored and snooty in the capital, and collectors are relentless. But Uncle Sam's pay check is always there, even if, in days of depression, a sizeable share may have to be mailed back to rugged relatives at home who are out of jobs—but even so there is usually enough left for the garage-less car.

Filing of Documents Is Serious Problem

In the public mind, the word "waste" is frequently associated with the word "government." If you will look up the word "waste" in the dictionary, you will also find that it is connected with the word "vast" (the Latin "vastus").

There is, of course, a vast waste in all governments and not the least is waste paper. As a matter of fact, the Congress of the United States recognizes this fact for it has created a joint select committee on the disposition of papers in the executive departments. Before papers and documents of any department can be thrown away, the Archives Council passes upon whether or not they have historical value. If not, the council advises the joint committee, which in turn reports to congress on what action that body should take in disposing of them.

The question of storing papers in Washington, the filing case for the emergency, to say nothing of the office, is becoming as serious as the need for providing space for human beings.

Documents of historical value are kept in the great Archives building on Constitution avenue where moth and rust do not corrupt nor can thieves break through and steal.

Papers of no historical value can be sold for waste, on direction of congress, and the money received therefor turned into the treasury.

Star Dust

By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

SUSANNA FOSTER, the 16-year-old who sings C above high C, has appeared in two pictures, is being co-starred for the first time in Paramount's "Glamour Boy." Jackie Cooper is her leading man, and thrilled her half to death recently when he came on the set with a huge box for her. It was a present, said he.

The box contained a set-chair—you know, one of those special chairs with a canvas back-rest that stars always have, with their names painted across the back. Susanna took one look at it and burst into tears. Her name had been spelled wrong! Not until a sign-painter had fixed it did she really feel like a star.

Joan Blondell and Binnie Barnes discovered a new way of reducing; in "Three Girls About Town" they had to drag Walter Soderling around—from one room to another, through hallways and down fire escapes. Each girl promptly lost five pounds, and it seemed likely that they'd be mere shadows by the time the picture was finished. Furthermore, the loss of weight began to show on the film. So the director, Sam Bischoff, had a dummy head made, with a face like Soderling's; now the girls are dummy-dragging.

It does seem as if the young people of Hungary would be too much upset at the moment to think of forming a fan club. But one Joseph Hamor wrote to Virginia Weidler recently, from Budapest, to tell her a Virginia Weidler club had been formed. The members wear badges bearing her picture, and are obliged to learn English. Virginia's honorary president.

Corp. James Stewart showed his family around the Metro lot the other day; Mr. and Mrs. Stewart and their daughters, Mary and Virginia, visited the sets of "Honky-Tonk" and "Smilin' Through" and had a chat with Clark Gable.

Laraine Day has been going on and on as Nurse Mary in the Kildare series—the latest is "Dr. Kildare's Wedding Day"—but she has the most important role of her career in "The New York Story," with Edward G. Robinson, Edward Arnold and Marsha Hunt.

RKO Radio received a nice communication not long ago; it was a letter from Maj. Gen. E. S. Adams, adjutant general of the United States Army, saying that "Parachute Battalion" is "the most satisfactory army picture produced to date."

Remember "Ruggles of Red Gap," in which Charles Laughton recited the Gettysburg address so effectively that he's been in demand to do it ever since? It's been re-issued, which is good news for everybody who missed this hilarious comedy the first time out, as well as for those who want to see it twice.

Charles Laughton

In Warner Bros.' "The Maltese Falcon" Humphrey Bogart plays his first detective role—sort of a relief from gangsters. So he can play love scenes. He has one with Mary Astor that was a change for both of them; gangsters can't have true loves, under the producers' code, and as for Mary, she said that the last time she'd been really kissed was in "The Prisoner of Zenda."

Speaking of the beautiful Miss Astor, she certainly stacked up laurels for herself in "The Great Lie," playing opposite Bette Davis. If you want to realize what excellent character portrayals the girls gave, see the picture on a double bill with one of those phony B pictures that Hollywood turns out.

Those who loathe the commercials mixed into their radio programs will hail with delight the announcement that the FFC has granted a permit to Muzak Inc., to build a station in New York that will carry absolutely no advertising.

ODDS AND ENDS—Margaret Lindsay signed to appear in four more of Columbia's Ellery Queen pictures. Victor McLaglen ended his personal appearance tour because "The Marines Are Ready" was ready. Jack Benny will make "The Widow Wouldn't Weep" for Warners when he returns from his vacation in September. Richard Travis, cast opposite Bette Davis in "The Man Who Came to Dinner," owes his big chance to her recommendation after seeing his test. Bob Hope's bad sunburn held up "Louisiana Purchase." ZaSu Pitts will flutter her hands in RKO's "Week End for Three." Ginger Rogers will play a secretary again in "Self-Made Cinderella."

Lockless Suez Canal

The Suez canal is a sea-level "ditch" requiring no locks. The narrow ditch in the sand runs for 104.5 miles through desert and marshy land from Port Said on the Mediterranean to Port Taufiq on the Gulf of Suez. Its channel depth is now 45 feet, and its narrowest width is 70 yards. Although it has been concreted at some places to halt erosion, the banks are chiefly sand or gravel.

The northern half of the canal cuts straight through the desert; the southern half leads through a chain of small lakes which act as "expansion chambers" to help take up the flow of the four-foot tide from the Red sea.

Business Was Going On As Usual Despite Repairs

He was an Englishman and a high-speed salesman who had joined the army, gone into action, and had been seriously wounded. For several days he lay delirious at the base hospital, but eventually he turned the corner, and slowly started the climb back to health. On the first day of his recovery he was surprised to see all the nurses standing around his bed, offering him money. "Why, what is this for?" he asked. "I do not understand." "This is for the radios, refrigerators and vacuum sweepers you sold us while you were unconscious," they chorused.

★ TO HELP THE TANKS START ROLLING! ★

★ The first tank from the U. S. Army Arsenal's production line "comes out fighting"—ready to put teeth in American defense.

★ ON THE outskirts of Detroit, the Army Tank Arsenal, the Navy Arsenal and the Dodge Truck Addition—all new plants—are rushing production of fighting equipment.

★ In January, Michigan Bell was asked to plan telephone service for those projected defense centers. That required, among other things, the construction of 4 miles of subway, and 7 1/2 miles of large underground cable in conduit. Manufacture and delivery of the cable alone normally would not be expected in less than 4 months.

★ But defense must not wait. Western Electric produced the cable and began delivery in 5 weeks! In spite of frozen ground, and with a great part of the cable laid under concrete streets, the job was ready for service in 14 weeks.

Plans under way to date involve expenditures by this Company of $11,000,000 to serve camps, arsenals, factories and others engaged directly in defense work. In addition, business and home telephone demands are growing at the fastest rate in history. To meet all those needs, the Company this year will expend more than $26,000,000.

The telephone has a little part in almost every National Defense effort. And a little part in every effort adds up to pretty big figures.

DEFENSE COMES FIRST

THE HOUSE WITH THREE WIRES

Fifteen years ago, a home joined by three wires to the nearby power line would have been a rather uncommon sight . . . for it would have meant that there was an electric range within . . . and electric cooking was then a luxury to be enjoyed by a few.

But today, it is quite a different story. More than one home out of every six, is joined to our lines by three wires . . . for 19 percent of all our customers cook electrically.

Electricity is cheap. During the last decade and a half, rates have been so substantially lowered that electric cooking . . . with all its convenience and advantages . . . has become a real economy.

More families every year are discovering that electricity is just as ideal . . . just as economical for the big jobs of housekeeping . . . refrigeration, cooking, water heating . . . as it is for washing their clothes or cleaning their rugs.

The house with three wires has become a familiar sight in almost every block.

INSTALLMENT NINE—The Story So Far

Laura Maguire, wife of Mike Maguire, happy-go-lucky editor and mayor of the town, is mother to four children: Tom, whose real estate job is profitable during the depression and who is married to Mary Etta, secretary to a big shot, Alec, unable to get a job.

Tom knew she wanted him to pay for his supper by hunting up his host and being very appreciative of the spectacle to which he had been invited solely for his wife's sake. But Tom had had all the cold stomach at one sitting. So he stood stiffly by until Mary Etta was free to leave and said nothing complimentary to anybody.

"Did you ever see anything like the way Harvey manages that three ring circus?" murmured Mary Etta on the way to the car.

Tom grunted.

"Sulking again?" she inquired crisply, turning the key in the ignition with a snap.

"If you must know," said Tom, "I'm fed up to the gills with Harvey Leigh and everything about him. Do you realize we have him for breakfast, dinner and a bedtime story?"

"You just can't bear success—in somebody else. Can you?" She glanced at him curiously. "You have even hated me lately, haven't you?"

Tom went white. "Do you realize we've scarcely spoken a civil word to each other in six months?"

"Yes," said Mary Etta in her cool, unemotional way. "I realize all that."

"Where are we drifting, Mary Etta?" asked Tom in a stifled voice. "I wouldn't know."

Her flippancy flecked him on the raw. He stared unseeing straight before him and thought of their brief tempestuous courtship. They hadn't known each other very well. Tom was barely twenty-one, Mary Etta a few months younger. He hadn't intended to think of marriage for years. But somehow after he met Mary Etta he could think of nothing else.

He had not been sure she liked him at all. Being Mary Etta she had been more antagonistic than encouraging. The day Tom asked her out of a sudden mad impulse to elope with him over the week-end, he had half expected her to bounce an ink bottle off his head. Not until they came out of the County Courthouse, the license firmly clutched in his perspiring hand, had he believed in her surrender.

But then Mary Etta never had exactly surrendered.

On their brief honeymoon before each of them returned to their respective desks, she had never even in his arms quite let herself go. She did love. Or rather she had. He was convinced of that. Or she would never have married him. Mary Etta had played fair. She did not believe in maudlin sentiment. But she asked no more than she was willing to give.

She proved a curiously exciting wife. Tom admitted that. There had been moments when he could have wrung her neck. Interspersed with the delirium of loving her so wildly it frightened him. But he was never indifferent to her.

"I had another letter from old Colonel Shoup today," he said later while Mary Etta was cold creaming her face.

"He dies hard, doesn't he?" she observed. "I should think he'd tire of wasting postage."

"Listen, Mary Etta," said Tom thickly. "I know you like small towns. But we can't go on like this. I grant you Colonel Shoup's proposition sounds like piffle on the surface. Fifty dollars a month and commissions, if any. But he's got the best real estate business in Covington. And he's offering to let me buy into a partnership on the installment plan. It's exactly what I've always wanted. And"—his voice quivered—"a couple can live on fifty dollars a month in Covington. I know a four-room house not far from Mother's that can be rented for twenty, and whole families nowadays eat on a dollar a day."

"You mean if the wife does all the cooking and the washing and the ironing," said Mary Etta scornfully. "Are you seriously proposing that I give up my hundred and seventy-five a month and move to a town I hate where I'll have to work like a slave, just so you'll have the pleasure of saying you pay all our expenses?"

"Yes," said Tom, his mouth a hard ugly gash.

"To save your face," went on Mary Etta, "I'm to let go of everything I've won from life and turn into the kind of female drudge my mother was. Bending over a hot cook stove. Squeezing pennies. Saving on haircuts. Wearing house aprons. Cutting up Sunday's roast for Thursday's hash. Boiling cabbage till I want to scream. We couldn't even keep a car."

"No," said Tom, "we couldn't. But we might afford a baby some day."

Mary Etta went very white. "Just because your mother thinks a wife should sacrifice herself to her man and go on and on sacrificing—"

"We'll leave my mother out of this."

"It's funny you married me, when she's your ideal."

who takes up with a flashy divorcee much older than he; Shirley, engaged to Jaidr Newsom, who also is out of a job since his father gave up his manufacturing plant to stop losses, and whose marriage is delayed; Kathleen, whom a stranger, Ritchie Graham, also a newspaper man, is interested in. Ma Newsom wants Jaidr to marry Corrie Mays, the banker's daughter. On a bet, Alec takes out Lou Knight, the town drunk's daughter. Tom and Mary Etta had just been guests at a Tavern party of Mary Etta's employer, Harvey Cobb Leigh.

hung her white linen hat on its accustomed nail and marched over to the littered table consecrated to her use. The last issue of the Clarion lay there neatly arranged by Tommy for her consideration. Kathleen did not need to turn to the editorial page to know what was afoot. Nevertheless, her brown eyes smoldering, she read every word.

Mike had done it again.

The very paper crackled with the remarks he had to make about unscrupulous financiers in general and Banker Eugene Mays of Covington's leading bank in particular. Kathleen had to admit that her father, when he decided to set off fireworks, did a thoroughly good job. No wonder Eugene Mays had paid the Clarion's editor an early morning call. Kathleen shivered a little. The banker was a very imposing figure in local concerns. Naturally he resented having sarcasm directed at his policies.

In the private office somebody guffawed. It was Mike of course, laughing in his caller's infuriated face. A faint grin traveled over the harassed faces of the group outside. It was so exactly like Mike to treat Mr. Eugene Mays' important anger to a cold douche of derision. But Kathleen did not grin. It might be very audacious and gallant of her father to tweak the lion's tail and then snigger about it. His daughter, however, was thinking of the number of people in Covington who owed Eugene Mays money and who jumped through hoops at his signal.

The door of the inner office came open with a sharp crack, and everybody in the main office became suddenly tremendously occupied with his own tasks. Mr. Mays, however, did not condescend a glance to his audience. He stood on the threshold, facing the other way and brandished a fleshy fist in the general direction of Michael Maguire's gamin-esque grin.

"Keep on printing these infamous attacks on me and my institution, Maguire," he said, "and by God, I'll break you."

Mike grinned.

"I've been broke before, Mays. By better men than you. But I've never yet been scared out of telling the truth if it needed to be told."

Kathleen was aware that Ritchie Graham had come in by the street door and was listening to the encounter with every manifestation of pleasure. Of course it gave him a thrill to see Mike risk financial annihilation for a principle. But Kathleen thought of Laura who was already stretching dollars till they groaned, and Kathleen did not feel thrilled as she would have a year ago at her father's debonair disregard of consequences. She felt a little sick.

"If it's war you want," said Eugene Mays in a suddenly colder and more ominous voice, "say so. But you had better take into consideration the fact that I have influence in this town. I can cut your advertising accounts to a quarter of what they are. Likewise your circulation. Maybe you don't realize that."

"That's your ultimatum. Now suppose you listen to mine," Mike said with a thrust like the glitter of a rapier. "You have ten thousand depositors in your bank. And a couple of hundred stockholders who leave everything to you. You are the bank. And it's a hell of a responsibility. Because this whole community would be sunk if you got your tail in a crack. Now as bankers go, you're not so rank. But you could be sweeter. That western deal you are dickering with smells to heaven. So do one or two other juicy pies you've tried to stick your finger into recently. The people ought to know that sort of thing is dangerous to their interests. And they're going to know every time you try to pull a fast one. My advice to you, Mays, is to pull in your horns and leave high financing to the rest of the pirates. But if you don't, then you'll have to put up with whatever I care to say about you and your wildcat business ventures. And believe me, I'll say plenty!"

Unfortunately the peroration of Mike's philippic was somewhat spoiled by the failure of Banker Mays to remain for its grandiloquent conclusion.

Ritchie's gray eyes sparkled in his sunburned face.

"I'm pretty good at the sling shot if you need any help," he said.

"He doesn't," interrupted Kathleen with tartness. "Mike never missed a bull's-eye in his life if he had something to shoot at that was practically certain to explode and gum up the works."

Mike cocked a quizzical eyebrow at his daughter.

"Yes," she said in a voice sharper than she realized, "if Eugene Mays wants to, he can move us all into the poorhouse. And," she gave her father a hostile glance, "you'd think it was a circus and laugh. But then I've begun to wonder if you'll ever be quite adult. Or maybe I've got growing pains. Anyway the prospect doesn't amuse me."

CHAPTER XIII

Kathleen Maguire was late getting down to the office the following morning.

Of course it did not make a lot of difference when Kathleen reached her desk. Officially she was the Clarion's society editor. But she suspected that Mike would not blink an eye if she failed to show up at all. For years he had been everything from janitor to political economist on the paper if the emergency arose. And he was still capable of writing every word in any edition without missing a stride. Nevertheless Kathleen took her job as seriously as he allowed her to.

In many ways the staff, due to Mike's penchant for broken-down humanity, was as decrepit as the purely mechanical end of the business. Mike had an unique manner of selecting employees. He was always hiring some derelict because he was down on his luck. At present there were old Miller, an excellent typesetter when he was sober, Roger Whyte who could write like an angel if he wasn't having nervous shakes, and Tommy South, office boy, an orphan Mike had plucked off by the scruff of his neck out of the Court for Juvenile Delinquents.

The moment she entered the big cluttered room which was the Clarion's main office, Kathleen knew there was tension in the air. Roger Whyte's frail hands trembled on his typewriter keys. Tommy South's freckles stood out more prominently on a pale and perspiring countenance. Old Ducky Miller had dropped a tray of type and just stood staring at the jumbled pi. The door to Mike's private office was closed, an unusual occurrence.

Kathleen recognized the symptoms even before her sharp ears identified the roar on the other side of the flimsy partition. Grimly she

MORE PRODUCTION NEEDED NOT A VICIOUS CIRCLE!

WHAT AMERICA needs now and for the future is more production. More production should start on the farms. It should supply for us those farm products we are now importing to the extent of a billion and one-half dollars a year and which can be raised in the United States. The science of chemurgy must be encouraged to find new commercial uses for farm crops and for present farm wastes. Doing these things means increased revenue for the farmers, more jobs for workmen, more opportunities for the investment of capital in business—a higher standard of living for all.

America needs in its national legislative bodies men of vision, men who will strive for the general good, rather than for partisan advantage, men who will think of all groups, plan legislation to benefit all, instead of laws that take from one in order to give to another.

We cannot establish and maintain that degree of prosperity and well-being to which we are entitled by any policy of appeasement of minorities. To give the farmer more for his wheat by charging the workman more for his bread but creates a vicious circle which inevitably leads to inflation and the ruin of all. Through a policy of increased production that leads to increased demand and consumption, we can benefit all, the farmer, the workman, business and the general public.

There are in America men capable of solving our production problem, and they are the men needed in congress. Who in your town, your country, your district would measure up to such standards?

EVERYBODY CLIMBS ABOARD NATIONAL SPEED WAGON

IT IS A SWIFT WORLD in which we are living, and there is no place in which new speed records are being established more frequently than in congress.

When I first began taking notice of what happened in Washington, it would take a whole session of congress, with days and weeks and months of talk, to spend the from five to seven hundred million dollars then needed to run the governmental machine. In that there would be the customary "pork" that might account for as much as 25 or 30 million, but to make up for it, there would be a few dollars cut out here and there. One year, I remember, they even refused to buy pocket knives for the senators.

It is different in these days of speed. To keep pace with, or exceed, the speed of those fighting planes we are sending to Europe, the senate recently passed out 10 billions—billions, not thousands or even millions—in just 80 minutes, and they did it unanimously, every senator was on the speed wagon. That little item was on top of 22½ billions that had been spent during the present session before the last small item came along. And the session is probably only half over, another half year in which to establish new and greater speed records.

What that 32½ billions mean to you and me and to our wives and children is just about $250, which each one of us will have to pay.

CONSIDER YOUR MERCHANTS, TOWN ASSETS

WOMEN OF THE neighborhood patronized the food chains for their light packaged goods on which they saved a cent or two. The chains did not deliver, but the women could carry the light packages.

For the heavier staples, patronage went to the independents because they delivered. They were used as a convenience. The independents could not deliver and live on sales of staples only and in time many went out of business.

Because we could not get food deliveries, we had to sell our home and move, but selling was a problem. People did not want to buy for the same reason that we wanted to sell. Lack of delivery conveniences forced down the value of real estate.

All of that was in a large city, but exactly the same thing happens in any rural community where people use their local stores only as a convenience, but go to other centers to make their larger purchases. Local merchants cannot live as merely a convenience and when the local market place is gone, real estate values are gone and the social and cultural center goes.

It pays to consider the future.

EGG PRICES

AMERICA IS SHIPPING vast quantities of eggs and egg products to England for which this country pays. England would pay cash for eggs from Canada. For the eggs we consume, we are paying about 10 cents a dozen more than the Canadian people pay for theirs. We have an egg shortage, Canada has not, but our poultry raisers are profiting and those of us who buy pay for eggs which go to England and also pay the increase on those we consume.

GOLDEN-RIPE JUICY PEACHES FOR LUSCIOUS JELLY
(See Recipes Below)

IT'S CANNING TIME

With food taking on a greater than ever importance under the national defense program, you'll want to make a thoughtful selection for stocking a shelf of extra good jams and jellies for later use. When winter comes you'll glow with deep satisfaction over your canning efforts of the summer.

Since a record breaking peach crop, the third greatest in the history of the country, is expected, plan to put up many jars of this golden ripe fruit, not only as jam, jelly, or marmalade, but as conserve combined with other fruits.

Ripe Peach Jelly.

(Makes 6 medium sized glasses)
2½ cups juice
3½ cups sugar
1 box powdered fruit pectin
To prepare juice, pit and crush thoroughly (do not peel) about 2½ pounds fully ripe peaches. Add 1 cup water, bring to a boil and simmer, covered 10 minutes. Add a few peach pits, crushed, to mixture while cooking. Place fruit in a jelly cloth bag and squeeze out juice.

Place the juice over a hot fire, and add fruit pectin. Mix well and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. Add the sugar, stirring constantly. Bring to a fully rolling boil, boil hard 1 minute, remove from fire, skim, pour quickly into glasses. Paraffin at once.

Peach Marmalade.

(Makes 11 small glasses)
4 cups prepared fruit
7½ cups sugar
1 bottle fruit pectin
To prepare fruit, peel off the yellow rind of 1 medium orange and 1 medium lemon with sharp knife, leaving as much of the white part on the fruit itself. Put rinds through food chopper twice. Add ¼ cup water and ½ teaspoon soda, bring to a boil and simmer covered 10 minutes.

Cut off the tight skin of the peeled fruit and slip the pulp out of each section. Add pulp and juice and the juice of an additional lemon to the rind, simmer, covered 20 minutes. Peel 1½ pounds of ripe peaches. Pit, grind or chop fine. Combine with fruits. Mix sugar and fruit, place in a large kettle. Bring to a boil, boil gently 5 minutes. Stir constantly while boiling. Remove from fire, stir in bottled pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly and prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly and paraffin at once.

Preserved pears make a good accompaniment either for the meat course or for muffins and rolls served at luncheon. You'll like:

Pear Chips.

8 pounds pears
4 pounds sugar
½ pound ginger (preserved)
4 lemons
Wipe pears, remove stems, quarter and core. Cut into small pieces. Add sugar and ginger and let stand overnight. Add lemons cut in small pieces, rejecting seeds and cook slowly 3 hours. Put into glasses,

LYNN SAYS:

To test when jelly is done, dip in a clean spoon and hold it high. When the last drop sheets or flakes off the side of the spoon, remove from the fire. Another way which I like too, is to see if two drops drip off the side of the spoon simultaneously. If they do, the jelly will jell.

Fresh fruit which is ripe should be used for jams, jellies, conserves, marmalades, and preserves. Remove any spots or bruises as they may cause your whole batch to spoil. Cook them as short a time as possible so they will retain their lovely colors and look as though they were brought from garden to glass jars.

Pick a rainy day or a day before you start canning to look over your equipment and get it clean for use. Dirty jars should be boiled in soda water and washed in soap suds. Boil old lids 20 minutes in soda water using 1 teaspoon soda to 1 quart of water.

FOR YOUR JELLY SHELF

seal, label and store in a cupboard. Apple butters have long been family favorites since they're so especially nice for children's lunches or snacks when they come in from playing or a hurry-up batch of filled cookies.

Thick and delicately spicy, apple butter fills the bill and uses much less sugar than jams and jellies.

Apple Butter.

(Makes 6 pints)
4 quarts cooked and sieved apples
2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon allspice
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
6 cups sugar
2 cups cider vinegar

Combine apples, 2 cups sugar, and spices; cook until thick. Add remaining sugar and vinegar. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal immediately. This may also be cooked in a pressure cooker or in the oven to prevent sticking.

Since some fruits do not convert into jelly easily, a commercial pectin is usually employed to make the fruit jell properly. Often fruits which jell easily, that is, those which have sufficient pectin in themselves are used in combination with fruits which do not. Crabapples, unripe grapes, currants, gooseberries, cranberries, quinces, huckleberries, and blackberries jell well. If enough of them are not used in the combination, better use the pectin and play safe.

Here's a bright and quivery jelly which you'll like to have on hand for fair weather or foul. It's a grand accompaniment for chicken or hot breads:

Gooseberry and Raspberry Jelly.

(Makes 11 medium glasses)
1 quart ripe gooseberries
½ cup water
1 quart red raspberries
6½ cups sugar
1 box powdered fruit pectin

Crush and grind thoroughly the gooseberries, add water, bring to a boil. Simmer, covered, for 10 minutes. Crush thoroughly the raspberries and combine with gooseberries. Place in jelly bag and squeeze out juice. This should make about 4½ cups juice. If there is a slight shortage of juice add small amount of water to the pulp and squeeze again.

Put juice into a 5 to 6-quart saucepan. Place over a hot fire, add fruit pectin, mix well and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. Pour in the sugar. Let boil hard for a half a minute. Remove from fire, skim, and pour into jelly glasses. Add hot paraffin immediately.

Conserves ought to have a place of honor on the canning shelf for there's nothing quite so yummy as these sweet, jamlike mixtures of several fruits delightfully enhanced by nuts and raisins. Serve them forth on relish trays or as garnish on meat platters and they'll make a delicacy of the most humble meal.

Harlequin Conserve.

(Makes 15 6-ounce glasses)
25 ripe peaches
10 red plums
1 fresh pineapple
1 pound white grapes
1 orange
Sugar

Wash fruits thoroughly. Prepare peaches, plums, and pineapple; cut in small pieces. Halve grapes and remove seeds. Slice whole orange very thin. Cook fruits slowly over low heat until soft. Measure, add ¼ cup sugar for each cup of fruit. Cook over slow heat for 20 minutes, then add nuts. Cook slowly, stirring occasionally until thick and clear, about 1½ hours. Seal in hot sterilized glasses.

JAMES TEACHES CONSISTENT CHRISTIAN LIVING

LESSON TEXT—James 1:17-22; 2:14-17; 4:13-17; 5:12.

GOLDEN TEXT—Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world.—James 1:27.

Spiritually minded but very practical was James, an outstanding leader in the Church (Gal. 2:9; Acts 15) and the brother of our Lord. His epistle speaks little about Christ, but it reflects more of His teachings than any of the other epistles. It parallels the sermon on the mount and in that way, as well as other ways, greatly resembles the teachings of Jesus. It is a straightforward discussion of practical Christian living.

There is so much inconsistency among Christians in their daily walk that nothing could be more needed than a careful study of the exhortations of James.

I. Be Doers of the Word—Not Hearers Only (1:17-22).

Knowing God's will is important, but it amounts to little except to bring condemnation upon us, unless we do it. It is good to hear with swift apprehension, but there is no point in talking about what we have heard unless we practice it.

God is the "giver of every good and perfect gift" (that's literally and wonderfully true). He has not withheld one blessing, even to the giving of His Son, who was sent down from heaven to redeem us.

His very goodness should prompt us to lay aside everything which dishonors His name. Wrath (v. 20), all uncleanness of speech or thought, pride (v. 21)—all these must go, and will go, as we permit the Word to take root (be "engrafted") in our hearts and lives. Note that it is not enough to read the Word, or even to memorize it. It must take root and grow in our life.

II. Believe—But Do Not Forget to Work (2:14-17).

Saved by faith? Yes, we are, and in no other way; but the man who says he has faith in Christ will inevitably show the results of that faith in his life.

James is not in any way contradicting the teaching of Paul's epistles regarding justification by faith, but is clearly stating what must be true, "that a faith which does not result in works, i. e., in a manifestation of a true Christian life, externally and visibly, is not the kind of faith commanded by God, and constantly revealed in the New Testament as the only instrument for the appropriation of the redemption that is in Jesus Christ our Lord. There is no such thing as real, genuine, vital, living, Christian faith, except it has its fruits in the works of faith" (Wilbur M. Smith).

How that faith will show itself in the practical dealings of daily life is graphically presented in verses 15 and 16. Pious talk has always been very cheap, and it certainly accomplishes nothing. Real Christianity works.

III. Trust—But Do Not Boast of Tomorrow (4:13-17).

There is a strange religious attitude which talks about faith as though it were something of which to boast, which encourages people not only to believe, but actually to presume. There is a radical difference between faith and presumption.

All Christians are subject to the temptation of talking about being "strangers and pilgrims" (Heb. 11:13) in this earth, and then planning their lives and their business as though everything will continue as it is through all eternity. It is right to plan, but every day we should plan subject to God's will, always realizing that this may be the day when we shall be called into His presence to give an account of the deeds done in the flesh.

Every hour of life should find us ready to meet the Lord, and with all in readiness, so that our going may leave behind a clear testimony of faith in God, and of consistent Christian living.

IV. Be Honest—Without the Need of an Oath (5:12).

A Christian should never need to give an oath in the ordinary affairs of daily life. His life should be so transparently honest and consistently aboveboard that his word ("yea, yea, or nay, nay") will be "as good as his bond."

The Jews were accustomed to use formulas for oaths such as those mentioned in Matthew 5:33-37. They would have felt much at home in our day when there is so much dishonesty that people are constantly calling on God to witness to their truthfulness. Those who have least to do with Him and the worst records for dishonesty are most prone to thus seek to bolster their word.

What a striking contrast is the simple "yes" or "no" of the true Christian. Let us make our word always good, because it is the expression of the integrity of our lives.

Jackets! They Play Important Role in the Fashion Picture

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ACCORDING to fashion's say-so, you must be smartly jacketed everywhere you go. Your play suits, your daytime ensembles, evening dresses and afternoon frocks are all supposed to have complementary jackets, with a few "extras" to be held in readiness to report for duty at the beck and call of time and occasion. So no matter how many jackets you have they will be none too many to include in a fashionable wardrobe.

In a program of interchangeable jackets the secret's-out, as to how to go victoriously through the mid-season stretch between summer and actual fall with "flying colors" so far as keeping a well-dressed appearance is concerned. Every woman wants to maintain a refreshing up-to-the-moment look in summer hangerover apparel until autumn styles are set. This is quite a "trick" in the art of dressing. Interchangeable jackets that flaunt "the latest" in styling details is an answer.

With the thought in mind that the attractiveness of the jacket fashions pictured might inspire you in a sewing spree venture, we are especially calling your attention to the several pen and ink sketches, selected because the numbers are really very easy to make. You can buy up such pretty remnants at this time of year, so reasonable and with the investment of a little time and effort you will find yourself the happy possessor of jackets that, ingeniously interchanged, will set new tempo for your frocks in keeping with every move of fashion.

Referring to the pen-and-ink sketches, the ones at top to right and left, are of the casual type for town and travel wear. For these remnants of tweed will work up to good advantage and if you want to give them a "last word" touch, embroider a big scroll monogram somewhere about them—on pocket or sleeve or some other strategic point.

Outstanding on the season's program is the sleeveless long-torso jacket, known as the jerkin. It is the schoolgirl's idol and adored by sportswomen. The jerkin sketched at lower right, is easy to make, easy to wear! Use bright corduroy or suede cloth. Jerkin patterns are available anywhere they sell patterns.

Coolie coats, the popular choice for evening wear, are ever so easy to make for they require little or no fitting. The "coolie" sketched at lower left, is a "perfect little treasure." The material used in this instance is prettily embroidered in quaint little posies. Handsome brocade or metal cloth yields beautifully to the coolie treatment. Women of discriminating taste love coolie wraps made of fine wool or silk crepe in subtle pastel greens, violet shades, or Chinese reds. The newest thing is to embellish them with a restricted amount of sequin or bead embroidery. Note the model in the lower oval inset. In this instance the sheer crepe is in a soft stone blue, the embroidery done in silver threads and beadwork.

Sun-Hat and Bag

Here is a practical sun-hat and bag that should interest beach strollers who want to protect their complexion from burning sun rays. The large sun hat worn so appealingly by the young lady as she poses in the picture at the top acts as a perfect "freckle fender."

In the pose below you see how this huge brim folds to pancake size so as to fit into the outer pocket of a made-to-match rubber-lined beach bag. This hat has a navy blue brim with red and white striped crown and the color combination is repeated in the bag.

Accent Is on Luxury Blouse Type for Fall

The blouse program as mapped out for fall and winter will use much luxurious fabric. Pastel metal cloth made up in classic simplicity is one of the happy outlooks. Matching the pastel of the metal weave with crepe in identical tone presents endless possibilities for achieving charming effect. In some instances a bit of the crepe used for the skirt is repeated in stylizing accents on the metal blouse.

Wide use will be made of deep-toned satins and they will be made up similar to the manner suggested above for metal weaves. Silk jersey is also a favored medium. Used in vivid reds, greens or blues to wear with black suits, the new jersey blouses are stunning.

Drastic Changes Seen In New Fall Silhouette

Here are changes you will find as the new silhouettes make their debut this fall. There will be very few if any set-in sleeves. The trend is to deep armhole effects in dolman sleeves, cut all in one with the bodice or blouse top. Bulk above the waistline and slimming of skirts is noted.

Everything is being done to accent lower waistlines, especially with inset belts. Beltless dresses are very new in style stressing sophisticated simplicity.

There will be hosts of pleated fashions that emerge from long-torso lines with pleats manipulated to retain slenderized lines.

Chiffon House Coats

Torrid days call for cool apparel, a need which is filled in very lovely house coats made of pastel chiffons. You can bring the summer to a very happy conclusion wearing one of the very lovely chiffon creations

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won worldwide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

One of Petoskey's most necessary institutions, this beautiful, modern hospital is located on Connable avenue, phone 2553. Anyone who has had a hospital experience — and statistics show that one person in ten occupies a hospital bed sometime during every year — realizes how much better care can be given a patient in a hospital than in a home.

Operations are one experience that every one hopes to miss. Nevertheless they come. To be able to choose wisely the most suitable hospital, it is well to have given the subject forethought.

People are realizing more and more the intrinsic value of the Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey.

PETOSKEY BEVERAGE CO.

Edward J. Smith is the proprietor of this prominent Petoskey firm located at 419 1/2 Michigan, phone 3434. He is the distributor for Strohs Bohemian Beer, Goebels, Altes and Schlitz beers, Ballentines and Champagne Velvet Ales, and domestic and imported wines. These names were well known to every drinker of beer, (who was particular as to the taste before prohibition) and now that we once again have our freedom of drink, they are again the choice of the older people as well as the younger generation.

Petoskey Beverage Co. have excellent delivery service by truck in all the surrounding territory, and should be given much credit for their excellent judgment in choosing these brands as distributor.

They are made from the finest ingredients and you are assured of their full body, fine flavor, real zeal, zest and sparkle, pleasant aroma and creamy foam. Order a case or a keg today, and after you have once tried one you will never be without it in the home.

They offer the very best of service in the way of delivery, always keeping a large supply on hand.

To Ed Smith and those who assist, this writer extends good wishes.

Edna's Beauty Shop

This popular shop is located in Petoskey at 330 1/2 E. Mitchell, phone 2452. They feature everything in the line of permanent waving, hair styling and tinting.

They've made a study of the permanent wave from a scientific standpoint, and have supplemented this with actual work, which makes this service both tried and modern. Permanent waving has advanced and they have kept right abreast of the times.

Here licensed operators will put a wave in for you in the shortest time possible consistent with the high quality of work which they will do. All you have to do is phone for an appointment, go there at the appointed time and leave the rest to them.

Hand's Shell Service

Shell Products, Corduroy tires, Black Hawk Batteries, and a complete service in lubrication washing and polishing is featured by this popular service station in Petoskey at Ingalls and W. Mitchell, phone 9186.

It's an ideal place to have your car lubricated while in town shopping. Why not make sure that none of last winter's thin worn-out lubricants remain in your car's engine or chassis. We suggest a complete chassis lubrication, putting new lubricant into every vital point. Then, too, the crankcase, transmission and differential should be drained and thoroughly flushed and then refilled with new, clean summer grade lubricants. The job will be done by a lubrication specialist and there's a special low price now in effect.
