Annual Red Cross Drive

FOR MEMBERSHIP STARTS ARMISTICE DAY; ENDS NOV. 30

The Annual Red Cross Membership Drive starts Tuesday, November 11, and continues thru November 30th. Volunteer workers will call at your homes and offices for your memberships, and will be prepared to give you any information as to the work of this great organization.

Those who are familiar with the great service the Red Cross performs give unstinting praise:

Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, Army: "Today, when our young men from every community are being trained for their nation's defense, the traditional friendly and helpful service of the American Red Cross becomes more important than ever. It offers an opportunity through which all our citizens may contribute to the well-being of the men in the armed forces and to their families in home communities where personal problems arise. The Red Cross which is an organization of our people for our people merits the support of every one of us."

Admiral Harold R. Stark, Chief of Naval Operations: "We of the navy are deeply conscious of the friendly service to our men and their families wherever the American flag flies. Those who join the American Red Cross have the satisfaction of knowing that they are partners in this work and in all other Red Cross activities which are supported by membership dues. High praise from the Army and Navy."

Ask the boys in the service many of whom have had the friendly help of the Red Cross. Then hurry to give your membership fee that this great work may be expanded.

Prize Winners at Farm Day

ELMER HOTT AND CHARLES KOTESKEY WIN BLUE RIBBONS

The third annual Charlevoix County Farm Day held at Charlevoix, Saturday, November 1st, resulted in a beautiful exhibit of farm produce and an appreciative audience. First of all the location in the new City Building was of great advantage as it is of the right size, well lighted and beautifully adapted for exhibit purposes. A striking feature of the exhibit was the wonderful display of seventeen bushels of choice apples displayed by three exhibitors. Charles Koteskey of Boyne City won the blue ribbon in the Russet Rural peck classes for adults. This peck was large in size, of wonderful type and most attractively put up. Not to be outdone, Elmer Hott of East Jordan again came to the front by winning first place on a peck of Katahdins. In the Junior Department 4-H Club Division, Mike Tymoc of Boyne Falls won first in the Russet Rural competition with Walter Kipisz of Boyne Falls, first with a peck of Katahdins. In the Smith-Hughes Division, Russet Rural, Charles Stanek, East Jordan, won first while Barton Vance, East Jordan, won first with his Katahdins.

In addition to potatoes, several excellent displays of corn and beans were displayed by 4-H club members. Just to get into the swing of competition three adult samples of corn were shown. The apple department certainly attracted much attention, the color in all displays was splendid, and the peck was all that could be desired. At the conclusion of the program there was a mad scramble to buy these wonderful apples. The 4-H club conservation members put up displays showing young pine trees of various ages. The biggest tree was six or seven years of age and very nicely showed the wonderful development that takes place in a very few years. Other trees were from one year up to four years of age.

The program held in the gymnasium attracted an attendance of close to three hundred visitors. Bob Sloan, of the Kiwanis Club, acted as chairman and introduced Rolle Lewis, president of the club, Robert Bridges, Mayor, and Attorney Floyd Supp, each of whom gave brief remarks on their reactions toward this type of event. Several musical numbers were given by a group from Mancelona, while a speciality number was given by a group of three high school students from Charlevoix. B. C. Melencamp, County Agent, then announced the winners of the exhibit and spoke very briefly on other highlights in connection with the show and the relationship of the rural and urban interests in the county. Mrs. James Malpas, 80, Former Resident Here Dies At Muskegon

(From Muskegon Daily)

Mrs. James Malpas, 80 years old, mother of Mrs. Stanley J. Risk, wife of the postmaster, and a resident of Muskegon since 1922, died Saturday night, Oct. 25, at her home, 1976 Clinton street, after an illness of 10 days. She and her husband observed their 56th wedding anniversary quietly last Thursday on account of her illness.

Born Jan. 4, 1861 in England, the former Ann Elizabeth Marment married Mr. Malpas at Dursley, Gloucestershire, England, Oct. 23, 1885. Two days later they came to America and settled in East Jordan, where the husband and his brother founded the East Jordan Iron Works. During their residence in East Jordan, Mrs. Malpas was active in the Presbyterian church.

Retiring from the iron works, Mr. Malpas and his wife moved to Muskegon to be near their children. Not finding any Presbyterian church here, Mrs. Malpas attended the Calvary Baptist church, but in recent years she had to forego church attendance on account of her hearing, although she kept an interest in church activities. She concerned herself with local charities and recently devoted her attention to help for the victims of war-torn England.

A year ago, Mr. and Mrs. Malpas celebrated their 56th wedding anniversary by entertaining their children, grandchildren and other relatives and friends at their home.

Besides the husband, she is survived by one son, Ellis G. Malpas of Rockledge, Fla.; three daughters, Mrs. Herbert Farr of Norton township, Mrs. Esther Dickie and Mrs. Risk, both of Muskegon Heights; two brothers, John Marment of Brisbane, Australia, and Frank Marment of Auckland, North Island, New Zealand; six grandchildren, Mrs. John VanHorn and Helen Malpas of Philadelphia, Jane E. Risk, teacher at Lindbergh school in the Heights, Marjorie Risk of Ann Arbor, James and Harriet Risk of the Heights, and one great-grandchild, John Ellis Van Horn.

AAA PROGRAM IN CHARLEVOIX CO.

Farmers may vote all this week (November 3 - 8) at the Triple-A County Office at Boyne City in the referendum on a proposed marketing agreement program for potatoes in the State of Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota. Those near the East Jordan area may vote on November 6, 7 and 8, at the East Jordan Co-operative Co. from 1:00 p. m. to 5:00 p. m.

Any potato grower in Charlevoix County who has been engaged in the production of Irish potatoes for market during the period from January 1, 1940 to July 31, 1941, is eligible to vote in the referendum, according to Walter H. Henley, Chairman of the Charlevoix County Triple-A Committee.

Full information about the provisions of the marketing agreement program may be obtained from the County Triple-A office.

If adopted by producers and handlers, the program would regulate the grades and sizes of Irish potatoes shipped from the four States in interstate commerce and provide for Federal or Federal-State inspection. Potatoes grading lower than U. S. No. 2, the minimum U. S. grade, and smaller than one and one-half inches in diameter (chills) could not be shipped from these four States under the proposed marketing program. Similar potato programs are now in operation in Idaho, Colorado, and Oregon.

When Charlevoix County farmers are contacted by AAA farm committees this fall in connection with the 1942 farm defense program canvass, they are being urged to repair their farm machinery this fall and winter in order to avoid delays next spring and to release needed metals for other phases of the defense program.

Walter H. Henley, Chairman of the Charlevoix County USDA Defense Board, reports that adequate metals have been assured for repair parts, but the amount of new farm machinery which will be available is still questionable.

He said that farmers will be asked to check over their present machinery for necessary repair work and to order the parts needed as soon as possible. Farmers should notify the county USDA defense board if they cannot obtain needed parts.

Recent work from the Michigan State USDA Defense Board reveals that the OPM has assigned a defense priority rating of A-9 to specified steel products handled by warehouses, hardware stores, dealers and jobbers and that this should be of assistance to farmers in meeting their hardware needs. Mr. Henley said. He emphasized that it is not necessary for individual farmers to obtain priority ratings themselves for repair parts and equipment; that the ratings apply only to handlers of this material.

Mr. Henley said that earlier in the fall, the OPM had assigned a priority defense rating of A-10 to the deliveries of materials necessary for the production of parts for the repair and maintenance of existing farm equipment. At the same time, the highest civilian rating, B-1, was assigned to materials which appear on the priorities-critical list to a manufacturer who needs them for the manufacture of new farm equipment.

Are Softball League Champs

E. J. IRON WORKS DEFEAT ELKS AT PETOSKEY, WEDNESDAY, OCT. 29

The East Jordan Iron Works defeated the Elks 6 to 5 in an extra inning game Wednesday night, Oct. 29, at the waterfront diamond, to win the Petoskey Softball League Championship. East Jordan had won the first half of the season and the Elks took the second half.

Howard Sommerville walked in the eighth and scored on a hit by George Walton, to win the game.

Ellis Bailey pitched a fine game for the Elks, but his support in the outfield was weak.

East Jordan scored three in the first inning when Colen Sommerville walked, Louis Chak tripled and Spin Chah singled. They scored two in the fifth when Louis Chah reached base on a fielder's choice and Lawrence Hayes doubled.

The Elks scored three in the first when Bud Knight opened with a single. Ellis Bailey was safe on an error. Cliff Chapin tripled and Mike Schachner walked. Bud Knight scored in the second after he tripled. Bud also scored the final run for the Elks in the fifth when he hit a long home run over the left field fence into the Bay.

Howard Sommerville allowed six hits and struck out eight. Ellis Bailey allowed nine hits and struck out nine.

Lawrence Hayes led the winners with two doubles. Bill Taylor had a single and a double. Spin Chah and George Walton had two singles. Mark Chah had a triple.

Manager Bud Knight led the Elks with a single, a triple, and a home run. Cliff Chapin had a triple, Gordon Sehr and Mike Schachner each had a double.

Ten More Young Purebred Sires Distributed To Local Dairymen

Last week Friday a truck load of young sires arrived in the county and were distributed to ten dairymen who had previously placed their order for these young calves with the County Agent. Included in the group were eight Holsteins, and two Guernseys. They were selected from various herds in the southern part of the state, all of whom had D. H. I. A. records and of known producing inheritance. These young calves should do much toward increasing production in the various herds represented. Certainly a good purebred sire of known producing ancestry is essential toward the development of a good producing herd. These sires were all reasonably priced. Of course, they are not real show animals but have the necessary breeding to make improvement. It is interesting to note that during the last two years over thirty animals of this type have been purchased by local dairymen.

The following are the owners of the new sires distributed last week: Chester A. Donaldson, Ellsworth. James Peres, Charlevoix. George Nelson, East Jordan. Lee Sneathen, Charlevoix. John Taylor, Boyne City. L. G. Bunker, East Jordan. Ison Massey, Boyne Falls. Howard Stephens, Charlevoix. William Mayne, Charlevoix. Charles Shepard, Boyne City. B. C. Melencamp, County Agr'l Agent.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank the friends who gave their sympathy and sent cards, flowers, and fruit during my recent illness in the hospital, and all the nice things they did for me.

Mrs. Sam Colter.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)
NEW YORK.—It was last August that Mrs. Ovetta Culp Hobby of Houston, Texas, became head of the women's division of the army's bureau of public relations. She said she would organize the division to tell women what they wanted to know about the army. Her success has been such that today her achievement is being nationally recognized as a bang-up score for women in the defense effort.

Mrs. Hobby is executive vice president of the Houston Post, and hence a specialist in telling people what they want to know. Newspaper women are happy in finding a government public relations bureau which offers something more than hand-outs in press co-operation. The post is important as a liaison between soldiers and wives and mothers.

She is 35 years old, pretty, slender, stylish, brisk and businesslike, the wife of William Pettus Hobby, twice governor of Texas. Her achievements in the above few years are such that they may only be briefed in the space available here: In addition to running the Houston Post, she is the active executive of radio station KPRC; director of a national bank; director of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' association; a member of the board of regents of the Texas State Teachers' college, of the Junior League, the Houston Symphonic society and the National Association of Parliamentarians.

She studied law, was admitted to the bar, codified the state banking laws, was parliamentary for the Texas assembly for several years, was assistant city attorney of Houston, wrote a book on parliamentary law called "Mr. Chairman," which is used as a text book in the schools of Louisiana and Texas, syndicated a column on parliamentary law and served as research editor, literary editor, assistant editor and, since 1938, executive editor of the Houston Post.

In 1930, Mrs. Hobby was awarded the annual certificate of merit of the National Federation of Women's Press Clubs, for outstanding work in journalism. She was born in Temple, Texas, the daughter of an attorney of the town.

With all the above activities, she says she has had ample time for her children, a boy of nine and girl of five.

EIGHTY-year-old Rep. Joseph Jefferson Mansfield of Texas has made a career of planned river and harbor development and control. It goes back to his boyhood days in Virginia when he was riding a horse to the grist mill, with sacks of corn slowed fore and aft. When he forded an angry stream, corn and horse were swept away and he had a hard time making shore, with no end of trouble there after.

Rep. Mansfield at 80 is still battling Unruly Waterways—he was riding a horse to the grist mill, with sacks of corn slowed fore and aft. When he forded an angry stream, corn and horse were swept away and he had a hard time making shore, with no end of trouble there after.

Then and there he became a flood-battler, ready to take on any undisciplined waterway, for its own good and the well-being of the commonwealth. So, naturally, in his 25 years in congress he has been chairman of the rivers and harbors committee. He's in form and in his stride today, as he contends that only river and harbor projects qualify as bona fide defense undertakings, and rate advancement in the "immediate construction" file.

He has been 54 years in politics, a resident of Texas since 1881, when he settled in Eagle Lake—city attorney, mayor, county attorney, county judge for 10 terms, and congressman. In 1926 he suffered a malady which cost him the use of his legs. He campaigned and won in a wheel chair and carried on in congress, from his special wheel chair stance to the right of the speaker's dais.

His father, a Confederate soldier, was killed in battle six months after his son was born. He battles valiantly for a sea-level Panama canal and for transportation of Texas oil eastward on inland waterways.

JUST before the war started, Vladimir Kyrilovitch, a son of the late Grand Duke Cyril, and pretender to the throne of czarist Russia, was working in a Diesel engine factory in England. He said he would learn and impart to his following of 2,000,000 White Russians, the skills necessary to reclaim their homeland. He was soon back to his Brittany estate and now news of his repeated visits to Paris follow several reports that the Nazis are encouraging him to believe that he might yet stage a Romanoff comeback.

U. S. Destroyer Is Torpedoed and Sunk While on Convoy Duty West of Iceland; Strike in 'Captive' Coal Mines Ended; 34 Are Killed as Two Airliners Crash

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Myron C. Taylor, left, former board chairman of U. S. Steel, William H. Davis of national mediation board, and John L. Lewis of United Mine Workers are shown as they left the White House after conferring with President Roosevelt on the strike of 53,000 miners of nation's "captive" coal mines. It was shortly following this conference that Lewis announced that the miners had accepted the President's proposal for opening the mines and would go back to work pending further consideration of the issues under dispute.

SHOWDOWN: The Lewis Affair

The captive coal mine strike, in which 53,000 men engaged in digging coal out of the ground to supply the defense-laden steel companies laid down their tools, approached a showdown in the fight between John L. Lewis and President Roosevelt. It has been an odd chain of events that had brought Lewis, once a close ally and supporter of the President and his labor policy, to the point where he had become, for the moment, Administration Enemy No. 1.

After a four-day tie-up of the mines there came a truce. Lewis, with Myron Taylor, former U. S. Steel chief and William H. Davis of the National Mediation board were called to the White House for a conference with President Roosevelt. Following this meeting Lewis called his district mine labor chiefs into a parley and then came the announcement that the miners would go back to work pending mediation proceedings of the dispute. It was declared that arrangement called for a 15-day truce with signs pointing toward a complete settlement.

The issue in the strike was a particularly interesting one, for it had nothing to do with collective bargaining rights, with wages or hours, but a flat demand for the closed shop.

TRANSPORTATION: Tragedies

After five months without a fatal crash the commercial airlines had a tragic 24 hours in which two airliners crashed to the earth with a death toll of 34.

First accident was that of a plane which crashed and burned in the fog and mist within a short distance of the Fargo, N. D., airport where it was preparing to land. Fourteen persons were killed with the pilot being the lone survivor. He suffered minor injuries and severe shock. Unofficial investigators indicated that ice had formed rapidly on the wings of his plane as he descended for the landing but a complete official investigation was immediately launched to find all the facts.

Twenty persons, all those aboard, were killed in the other crash-up when a plane bound from New York to Chicago plunged to earth and burst into flames near St. Thomas, Ontario. This plane too had been flying low in a heavy fog. No explanation of the cause of the crash was immediately determined.

WEATHER:

In Moscow

The military miracle needed to save Moscow from almost certain conquest by the Nazi mechanized hordes occurred, and came in the form of a heavy rain which turned a sea of snow into mud and slush, and bogged the Germans down.

Prior to this the defending Russians had reported the pep gone from the invading forces, and that the presence among the prisoners of one-eyed men, soldiers with limping legs and other basic physical defects had been significant.

Most confirmatory evidence that something serious had happened to the German drive just when it was on the threshold of success came from the pen of Goebbels, ace Nazi propagandist, when he warned that hard rains were ahead. The rain was the crux of the situation, however, the Nazi official pronouncements admitting that roads had disappeared, blending into fields; that motor transportation had been utterly halted, and that the problem of supplying German troops at the front had become paramount.

U. S. NAVY: Loses a Warship

First warship of the U. S. navy to be lost in the current European war was the U. S. destroyer Reuben James, which was torpedoed and sunk while on convoy duty west of Iceland.

Its sinking marked the first loss of a U. S. naval vessel since President Roosevelt commanded the navy to "shoot on sight" any foreign raiders entering what have been defined as U. S. defensive waters.

This sinking came just two weeks after the Kearny incident in which that destroyer survived a torpedo blast and made port after the loss of 11 lives.

The Reuben James was under the command of Lieut. Comdr. H. L. Edwards and was an old type, flush deck destroyer commissioned in 1929.

Of South America

Though there was much fodder for comment in the President's Navy day address, it was the map of South America which had drawn the most attention in the press of the Western hemisphere.

The story had been that Hitler had employed 200 geographers and map-makers at Koenigsberg to redraw the map of South America, giving certain countries there and in Central America the status of vassal states of the Axis.

There were 14 countries involved, and they would have been divided up and consolidated into five vassal countries, two of them under the control of Italy, one enormous section under the direct guardianship of Hitler and the others to go to Japan.

Argentina and Uruguay were to be U. S. vassals; Peru, Chile and Paraguay would be under control of Japan, and all the territory from Brazil north to the Panama canal would be Hitler's "Jebensraum."

IRE:

Shown by Group

The isolationists had shown their ire against the President's speech as an exposition of his own policy, and led by Wheeler and Taft in the senate had fired shot and shell into Senator Pepper of Florida, a backer of the President's foreign policy.

Not far behind them was Walsh of Massachusetts, who flatly charged that the President sought to lead the country into actual war without submission of the question to the judgment of the country or of congress.

Taft was more bitter. He said: "President Roosevelt has admitted that he has tricked the American people. While talking of peace, he has admitted that he has already done what he can to plunge the nation into a shooting war."

And Wheeler said that he had always believed that the President had been opposed to our involvement in the war, and had sought to keep us out, but that in view of the Navy day address he was convinced that he would have to change his mind.

EXECUTIONS:

Halt by Hitler

A sudden halt in the execution of Frenchmen in reprisals for attacks on German officers of the army of occupation had been accompanied by the report which was said to have "leaked out" that two German officers had been killed in the Lille sector.

Hitler had ordered a halt in the executions in France "to give the French a last opportunity to cooperate."

'Port Is Reached' . . .

Among the first photos to reach the United States following the arrival in port of the U. S. destroyer Kearny following its torpedoing was the above one of Lt. Commander Anthony L. Danis, commanding officer of ship. Photo was made and released by the U. S. army signal corps and was taken aboard the Kearny.

LIFE:

In Germany

Through a pronouncement by Paul Joseph Goebbels, Nazi propaganda minister, one had received a partial picture of what the Royal Air force had been doing to Germany and how life was changing there as compared with that before the bombing of the Reich started in earnest.

He said "I know you have it hard today. You must all work as never before. Your wives must sometimes stand for hours before stores in order to buy some vegetables."

"Your children frequently are sent into the country and separated from you for months. Sometimes you have to go without a glass of beer, sometimes without cigarettes."

"Then, because necessary hands are not available, you have to shovel coal. Then, at nights, go into air-raid protection cellars and after two hours' sleep go back to hard work."

"That is the way it is in many cities of the Reich, and in some even worse."

JAPAN:

More Restive

Nippon, chafing under the terms of American-British peace with Japan under her present policy was evidently becoming more restive.

The newspaper Yomiuri, writing of President Roosevelt's promise of full aid to the Chungking government, said:

"American aid to the Soviets and Britain is reasonable and acceptable, but support to Chungking, which is not at war with Germany, is inconsistent in view of the United States' aim of destroying Hitlerism."

"This promise of all-out aid may be taken as a direct challenge to Japan."

In the meantime it was reported from Shanghai that Japan, despairing of ever being able to build a real government under the regime of Wang Ching-Wei in occupied China, was now turning to a new plan.

The Japanese were seeking, it was said, to establish small new local governments. The first of these was to be set up at Kukiang with jurisdiction over three occupied provinces and part of a fourth.

LABOR:

General View

Generally speaking the labor front in the United States was troubled, with several defense plants involved, and others threatened.

A machine-gun factory in Detroit was silenced by a walkout, with wages at the bottom of the controversy. There were 1,500 workers and they were asking a five-cent minimum raise.

There was a fear that three other plants of the same company in the Detroit area would suffer a sympathy strike.

The wages were $1 an hour for men on machines, and 85 cents for women. One of the union issues was the removal of the lower-paid women from the factory.

The OPM office demanded that striking welders in a Seattle shipyard return to work, and were met by the defiant retort that the request should come from the White House direct.

The welders' organization, an A. F. of L. union, stated that it had appealed three times to the President, and that the OPM had let them down.

This was an odd strike, because the basic point was said to be a charge by the welders that under existing union arrangements, they had to pay dues in several unions at the same time in order to ply their trade.

These were instances, but Washington was fearful that the whole labor situation was growingly touchy.

Dirigible as Air Weapon May Play Important Role

Almost Forgotten Air Arm Gets Serious Study; Federal and State Agencies Team In Unique Farm Experiment.

By BAUKHAGE

National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

While Washington debated the question of arming American merchantmen, the British were trying out a new and hazardous means of protecting their precious life-line of supply from attack from the air. Fighter planes were being placed on the crowded decks of freighters to be catapulted off when enemy bombers approached. When news of this move reached Washington it woke a slumbering plan for an almost forgotten defense of the skies.

The heroic British measure is an expensive undertaking, for there is no way to return a fighter plane to the ship once it is launched. Unless the vessel is within an hour's flight of land the plane must land at sea and sink. Unless the planes can land near the ship in quiet waters, the pilots have very little chance to escape a similar fate.

"Arming" their ships by means of this suicide measure is an example of the risks the members of the Royal Air force are willing to take as their heavy share of battle and is evidence, too, of the extent to which the other arms of the British service have come to depend on these reckless knights of the air.

Englishman Tells Why

William Courtenay, member of the Royal Flying corps, in the last war, flight commander of the R.A.F. in the present war, explained to a little group of American officers and members of congress in Washington recently why this step was taken.

"Just as command of the air won the battle of Britain," said Courtenay, "so command of the air is necessary to win the battle of the Atlantic."

Fire-power, he explained, is the essential in this war as it was in the last. Machine guns drove the armies of the last war underground and produced a stalemate which gave the British time to get their navy (and the United States navy) into action, break the German submarine blockade of the British Isles and blockade Germany.

To avoid such a stalemate again the Germans invented the panzer columns—high fire-power from very mobile units which ran the enemy down.

Thus Hitler won the battle of France, forced the British from the continent.

Then Goering began the battle of Britain. In Poland and in the low countries he had destroyed much of his opponents' air forces on the ground. He did this by surprise attack and because airfields were concentrated and the airplanes on them were close together. With the major part of the enemy fighters destroyed in Poland and in the low countries his bombers did their work without having to fight in the air for control of the air.

Luftwaffe Over Britain

The Luftwaffe lost the battle of Britain because the British dispersed their own forces on the ground—separated the airfields, spread out the planes along the edges. That saved their fighting planes and fighting planes gave Britain superior fire-power in the air. Because the bomber is built to carry a heavy load of bombs and gasoline to give it a longer cruising radius it cannot contend with the more mobile, more heavily armed and armored fighter.

The fighter's weakness, of course, is the fact that its cruising radius is short. It cannot remain long in the air and therefore, "the crying need," as Courtenay put it, "is a long-range fighter." If Germany had had long range fighters the battle of Britain might have turned out differently.

One way of giving the fighter range is to place it on a ship, but few ships are equipped so that planes can land on their decks. The dirigible carrier is an attempt to solve this problem—but the aircraft carrier is the most vulnerable of ships.

Rigid Dirigible Considered

And so the attention of a little group in Washington has turned to an air arm which has been almost forgotten, the great rigid dirigible airship. True, 48 small airships have been authorized by congress for shore patrol duty and one has been completed, but the United States has no great dirigibles.

BRIEFS . . . by Baukhage

Detroit and Williamsport, Pa., with the county in which the latter is located, have been selected as the sites of experimental consumer information centers by Miss Harriet Elliott, associate administrator of the Office of Price Administration in charge of the consumer division. A third city, to be located somewhere in the South, will be selected later.

Capt. Charles Rosendahl has always believed in the dirigible. He was navigator of the first American-built airship, the Shenandoah, was the only senior officer who survived when that obsolete ship cracked up in a storm in 1925. Two more American airships, the Akron and the Macon smashed, and then the German Hindenburg burned. This record discouraged almost everyone except Rosendahl. Today he believes that the airship would make an ideal patrol and aircraft carrier to supplement the other craft in modern warfare.

The airship, Captain Rosendahl says, can carry planes as easily as a surface aircraft carrier. They can return and anchor to her bosom. The great ship can spot submarines and mine fields below the surface, she can hover, even fly backwards, can drop depth charges.

Britain's latest step in "arming" merchant ships with planes may bring Rosendahl's dream to realization. Before the war is over we may see these great ships patrolling the sky-lanes once more, with the precious fighters tucked under their breasts, helping to solve the problem of establishing air superiority over the Atlantic.

An Experiment In Co-operation

There is always some starvation in the midst of plenty. With a record farm income ahead and prices on agricultural products going up there are still some folks who cannot make a go of it on the land because of circumstances which they cannot control. How federal and state assistance pulled some of these folks through in two North Carolina counties makes an interesting story.

Up in the Blue Ridge mountains in Allegheny and Ashe counties, farming among the boulders has always been tough going. It is a question for these farmers of getting part-time, outside work or going hungry. The trees used to solve the problem, the cutting of timber and selling it or working for the lumber companies. But the trees have gone.

The farms are not big enough to rate loans from the Farm Security administration, but properly run they could provide garden truck and grain for food and feed for their owners and pigs and chickens.

So the WPA stepped in, offered to give these mountain farmers from three to five months work a year provided the FSA would co-operate. An agreement with the North Carolina welfare department was worked out. Road building, a county office building, a hospital, needed conservation work, gave a small cash income to 500 certified families.

The farmers and their families did their part. They budgeted the money earned on the projects, improved their homes, water supply, sanitation, raised more food for their own consumption, canned an average of 300 quarts of vegetables and fruit for the winter.

The experiment was successful enough to interest the Farm Security administration to plan further, similar projects in the southern Allegheny region, which covers 55,000,000 acres. There is plenty of conservation work that needs to be done in that county and the forest service is expected to co-operate.

The net result of this program is work for men who need it, better food, better farms. This type of federal and state co-operation may grow into a great post-war conservation program.

The Office of the Chief of Chaplains has sent out the following order issued in 1776 by George Washington to the chaplains in the camps to support them in their admonitions against profanity:

"The General is sorry to be informed that the foolish and wicked practice of profane cursing and swearing, a vice heretofore little known in an American Army, is growing into fashion; he hopes the officers will, by example as well as by influence, endeavor to check it, and that both they and the men will reflect that we can have little hopes of the blessing of heaven on our arms if we add to it by our impiety and folly; in fact to this it is a vice so mean and low, without any temptation, that every man of sense and character, detests and despises it."

HERE'S TO BUTTERY FINGERS AND A TAFFY PULL
(See Recipes Below)

CHILDREN'S DELIGHT

If you want your children and their friends to give you a rating of "super," then give just one party for children alone, and make that party a good, old-fashioned taffy pull. Think back a moment and remember how you looked forward to a taffy pull just as much as going to a circus.

This party is exciting fun because the children have a chance to help in the making of refreshments. Yes, pulling taffy with their fingers all buttered, and watching the dark candy mixture get lighter and lighter each time it's pulled. They'll like this too, because a taffy pull isn't a fussy party. When you send out the invitations, let the mothers know it's a taffy party so the children will be dressed accordingly.

Unlike many foods which are iron sources, molasses when cooked does not lose its iron content.

If possible use a candy thermometer to test the candy so it will be cooked just right, neither too stiff nor too messy to handle. When the candy is cool enough, cut it just the right size for small hands. The piece should be large enough to work on, but not too large. When the piece is light tan and very stiff, pull into a long strip and cut.

Molasses Taffy.

- 2 cups pure New Orleans molasses
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- 1/4 teaspoon vanilla, if desired
- 1/2 cup water

Cook the molasses, sugar and water in a heavy kettle slowly until the mixture reaches 260 degrees or until a little of the mixture dropped in cold water becomes brittle. Stir a little during the latter part of the boiling to prevent burning; pour into a buttered pan. When cool enough to handle, cut in pieces and pull until light and stiff. Butter the hands before pulling.

Refreshments can be simple for a taffy party, for children will be so excited about the taffy, they won't give their best attention to elaborate dishes. Assorted sandwiches will fill the bill perfectly and a hot chocolate milk drink will take care of their keen, lusty appetites. As dessert you might have simple cupcakes iced with pink and chocolate icing, fruit, and of course, the taffy.

If you'd rather give them a hot dish in place of the sandwiches, here's a simple but elegant one:

Mil'onaire Gold.

- (Serves 8)
- 2 egg yolks
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1/2 teaspoon mustard
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1 1/2 teaspoons paprika
- 3 cups milk
- 1/2 pound American cheese
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

LYNN SAYS:

Stop food wastes. Not only is this a matter of thrift but also a vital step in conserving this country's resources. It is estimated that tiny food wastes total up to a tremendous amount.

Wise shopping will prevent buying unwanted and not usable food. The wise shopper should also recognize between good and poor grades, by reading labels and markings, and by watching the scales.

Poor cooking causes much waste. Meat, for instance, shrinks when cooked at too high a temperature. Vitamins and minerals are lost when cooked too long or when air is stirred into them while cooking. Use short methods for cooking whenever possible.

THIS WEEK'S MENU

- *Chop Suey, Rice or Noodles
- Bean Sprouts
- *Apricot-Cream Cheese Salad
- Bran Bread
- Orange Chiffon Pie
- Tea
- Coffee
- Milk

Recipe Given

- 1 pound mushrooms
- 4 tablespoons butter
- 8 slices buttered toast
- 16 slices crisp bacon
- Beat egg yolks, add flour, mustard, salt and paprika. Mix with Add 1/2 cup milk gradually and stir until smooth. Put mixture in double boiler, add rest of milk, and cheese, cubed. Cook until thick, add Worcestershire sauce. Wash, slice, and saute mushrooms, slowly. Place mushrooms on toast, and pour cheese mixture over them. Garnish with bacon.

Although the taffy pull will be the main event of the party be sure to have games planned to fill out the evening. Quiz games are popular and lists for these can be made up beforehand using questions on slogans, famous personalities, historical events, interesting facts, and riddles as questions.

Children will want some lively fun too, and for this you can have a sack race. The leaders of two lines of players are given two large paper sacks. They place the sacks on their feet and at a signal run to the opposite goal and back, take off the sack and give it to the person next to them. The object is to see which line finishes first.

Speaking of children, are you having a time with their school lunches?

Variety is the big problem for packing a complete meal in one small box is hard to vary and doesn't have as many possibilities as the table at home. Having at least one hot food helps loads, and put this in the thermos bottle. You can have cream soups, vegetable soups, then again hot milk drinks for variety.

Sandwiches are a standby, but don't get into a rut with these. Don't have soggy fillings. Wrap each one separately in wax paper. Favorite fillings include:

- Peanut butter and jelly
- Chopped meat mixed with mayonnaise and relish
- Chopped hard-cooked eggs with bacon
- Cheese and luncheon meats
- Vegetable salad sandwiches
- Flaked fish with celery, lettuce
- Chopped figs or dates, nuts, moistened with orange juice
- Color peeps up the lunch box, so occasionally pack a salad in a paper container. Use fresh fruits often, or canned ones also packed in small glass or paper containers.
- Cornstarch puddings are attractive and nourishing, and simple cookies wrapped in wax paper will bring cheers from any child.

Economy is highlighted these days, but it needn't be dull if you use attractively garnished platters.

*Chop Suey or Chow Mein.

- (Serves 6)
- 1/2 cup butter or shortening
- 2 3/4 cups cooked meat, cut in strips
- 1 1/2 cup onions, cut fine
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 can bean sprouts, drained
- 2 1/2 cups celery, cut fine
- 1 cup hot water

For thickening and flavoring:

- 1/2 cup cold water
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- 1 teaspoon sugar

Melt butter, add onions, fry for 3 minutes. Add celery, salt, pepper, hot water, cover and cook for 5 minutes. Add bean sprouts and meat, mix and bring to a boil. Combine thickening and flavoring ingredients, add to first mixture. Cook 5 minutes. Serve hot with Chinese noodles for Chop Suey, or with steaming rice for Chow Mein. Garnish platter with thin strips of fried egg and green onions if desired.

REPENTANCE AND FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Luke 15:11-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Repent ye, and believe the gospel.—Mark 1:15.

Sin with its devastating consequences has its only remedy in the salvation which is in Christ Jesus. He died to set us free from the penalty, the power, and ultimately the very presence of sin. However, His death, which was for all mankind, is effective only for those who in repentance and faith accept His redeeming grace and turning from their sin.

I. Worldly Pleasure Brings Sorrow (vv. 11-16).

Selfishness is at the heart of sin, which is essentially self-will over against God's will. The younger son, who represents the sinner, wanted his own way. He suffered from

1. Restlessness Under Restraint (vv. 11, 12). The father loved his son and sought his welfare by proper parental control, but the boy wanted to be free to live as he pleased. God loves all men and seeks by loving and gracious restraint to lead them in ways of righteousness and peace. But they, while they want His blessings, are often eager to get away from His guiding hand.

2. A Request Resulting in Responsibility (vv. 12, 13). When the prodigal asked for his inheritance he took upon himself full responsibility for its use. The man who refuses to have Christ rule over his life assumes a grave and heavy burden which he is not able to bear.

It is an awful thing to rule God out of one's life, to attempt to steer a successful course through the stormy sea of life. Why do it? It will always result in loss and failure.

3. Riotous Living Leading to Reproach (vv. 13-16). In the "far country" he found for a time what we call "fun," but it led to bitter sorrow. To the flesh there are "pleasures of sin" (Heb. 11:25), but they are only "for a season"; that is, "very short lived—and they come high." The devil is not such a fool as to go fishing without bait. The pleasures of sin are the devil's bait, and they always have a hook in them. If you bite at the devil's bait you will soon have the devil's hook in your gills and be in the bottom of the devil's boat" (John W. Bradbury).

The end of Satan's "fun" road was a pigpen in a far country. That may not always be literally true (although it happens often enough), but it is always true spiritually. Men and women are in a state of spiritual collapse and disgrace because they have rejected God's way. But there is a way out.

II. Godly Sorrow Brings Joy (vv. 17-24).

Paul tells us that "godly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation" and thus differs from "the sorrow of the world" which "worketh death" (II Cor. 7:10). The prodigal found his way back to the father's house. First, there came to him

1. Remembrance and Realization (vv. 17-19). He began to think: If men and women could only be made to think we would have more repentance, but Satan tries to keep them too busy to think. He remembered what he had as a son in his father's household. What memories will your boy have in his hour of need? You are writing that record now.

He "came to himself." The man in sin is really unbalanced, subnormal, not himself, spiritually insane. When he "came to" he knew that he was in the way of the perishing. Then came

2. Repentance and Return (vv. 20, 21). To repent means to change your mind, to turn your life in an "about face" from sin to God. Repentance calls for more than thinking or talking or praying. One must act. The young man "arose and came to his father." That was his part, and then came the father's part.

3. Restoration and Rejoicing (vv. 22-24). The son expected to return as a hired servant, but his father restored him to full family fellowship. God is gracious, and the repentant sinner finds himself clad in the spotless robe of Christ's righteousness, wearing the ring of sonship, with shoes on his feet, so that he may go on the errands of his Father.

God's plan of salvation brings no half-way redemption. There are no steps or distant relatives in His family. It is a full salvation which brings glorious fellowship in life and service.

You who are still eating the huckleberries of this world, who are in the far country tending swine, we invite you too to come to God and share in the rejoicing in the Father's house.

Good eats for whales, why not for humans? Uncountable tons of edible, through microscopic plankton, which the big sea mammals strain out of the ocean, now available to replace food cut down by war — and those who've tried it say it's pretty tasty at that. Read of this surprising new plan to offset England's food shortage in The American Weekly, the magazine distributed with next week's Sunday Chicago Herald-American.

INSTALLMENT THREE

THE STORY SO FAR: Bound for the Chibougamau gold country, six men lost their lives on the Nottaway river. Red Malone, Garrett Finlay, brother of one of the six, and Blaise, half-breed guide, arrive at Nottaway posing as surveyors.

Reflected in the mirror behind the counter Finlay saw a pair of sinister eyes watching the two through a window. He yawned, stretched and sauntered to the door. "Wait a minute, Batoche!" he called to the man who was moving away. "What's your hurry?"

The half-breed swung around and snarled: "You spik to me?"

Reaching the waiting Batoche, he announced: "I've just had a wire from Ottawa. I'm ordered to map Waswanipi on my way to the bay."

Finlay watched the astonishment on Batoche's scarred face shift to a covert look of satisfaction. "You go to Waswanipi, eh?"

"Yes, and we'll need another man. I thought possibly you, yourself, would take the job if Isadore could spare you. How about it?"

"I got damn good job!" snorted the furious half-breed.

"Well, then," said Finlay, affably, "how about Tete-Blanche? He knows the lake and would make a good man for the survey."

"You—know Tete-Blanche?"

"Huh! know him? I knew him long before he went to work for Isadore! If you see him before I do tell him his old friend Finlay asked about him."

Leaving the dumb-founded Batoche working his jaw in a futile attempt to voice his thoughts, Garry turned and entered the store. "I guess that'll give M'sieu Batoche something to chew on," he muttered.

There was raw terror in Cotter's face as he whispered: "Tete-Blanche! Why, he's Isadore's!" The storekeeper gaped at Finlay as if he thought him demented.

"Isadore's what, Mr. Cotter?"

Cotter shook his head, waving his hands aimlessly. "You're crazy, man—plumb crazy!" he exploded. "Where did you ever hear of Tete-Blanche?"

"Why, he's an old friend of mine."

McLeod sat at the telegraph key as Finlay entered the station. "Good morning, Mr. Finlay!" he greeted. "Off today?"

"McLeod," returned Garry, "you may be surprised to hear that early this morning you handed me a wire from my department chief, at Ottawa, directing me to change my plans and first run a compass survey of the Waswanipi chain of lakes before proceeding to the Bay."

The Scotchman scowled. "Oh, I have, have I? Well, I haven't!"

"You can deny I got that wire, but I wouldn't—if I were you!"

"What did you do to him, Blaise?" asked Garry, when he and Malone reached the river shore with their bags.

"I tell dat Batoche he mus' be crazy. Flambeau navare talk wid me last night."

"That must have pleased him!" chuckled Red.

"First he was ver' cross. Den he offer me big pay."

"What did you say?"

"I say too small, I get t'ousand dollar a mont' wid you. He was like wild man. I laugh at him and he pull dat gun. But he was foolish. He stand too close."

Blaise produced a snub-nosed automatic from his pocket. "Here's his gun!"

Shortly, from the steel bridge, two men with heads together watched the canoe start down river and disappear behind a bend.

CHAPTER III

For a hundred miles, after passing through Lake Shabogama, the Nottaway thrashed itself to foam in rock-scarred reaches of broken water or narrowed to slide past timbered hills as it raced off the Height-of-Land. "Allons! We go!"

Down the flume into the white chaos leaped the Peterboro. On either side boulders pushed up their granite bulk where the river burst to fling spray high in air. Eddies and cross-currents sucked at her keel. Knife-edged ledges that would rip out her bottom snarled beneath the broken water. One mistake and canoe and men would be sucked into the maw of the thundering river to be spewed up and cast ashore, battered and broken, miles below.

Drenched to the bone, battling all ways for the safety of the black water, the crew ran the Peterboro to the first bend.

"We're through the worst of it!" panted Red, as they snubbed the boat to study the river below.

"Good channel ahead!"

As he spoke the whip-lash crack of rifles broke through the din of the rapids.

"We're ambushed!" cried Red. "They're on that point! Come on!"

Finlay caught the blue haze of smokeless powder hanging in the air of the right shore. The canoe was trapped!

Blaise lifted his pole with a shout. "Let her run!"

Like a galloping horse the Peterboro plunged down the narrow channel. Again and again rifles exploded on the shore. Suddenly the bowman sagged to his knees while his pole slipped from his limp fingers. "Blaise is hit!" cried the desperate Finlay. "Get him, Red, before he goes overboard! I'll hold her!"

The kneeling Brassard moved his head from side to side as if to clear his brain as Red caught him and eased him to the floor of the canoe. The blue lips in the graying face framed the words: "Dey got us!" Then he lost consciousness.

As if it were a chip, a cross-current snatched the canoe from the control of the straining sternman, blinded by hursting spray, and whirled her. Straddling Blaise's body Malone battled to head the boat back into the channel. As he thrust with all his magnificent power his spruce pole slowly bowed into an arc, but the river had its way. The boat did not swing. The pole splintered in his hands. As he lurched back to escape a head-long plunge into the boiling water.

Again the rifles roared on the shore. Garry felt a sting like the stab of hot iron as his right leg went limp. "They've got me!" he muttered. Savagely clamping his teeth, he managed to brace himself and follow Red's lead.

Finlay prayed that he might hold on until they reached the bend.

The shots from the distant point grew fainter. The range was long and they were going wide. Finlay's leg was numb but, propped against the gunwale, it still wobbled under him. "Shooting men out of canoes," he panted, "even on the Nottaway! Worse than I guessed! Did Batoche pass us in the night on the lake or is it someone else?" He wondered if they had lost Blaise, loyal old Blaise, hunched there in the bow.

"Where was he hit?" called Garry, fearful of the answer.

"In the head!" came the sorrowful reply.

Garry's leg suddenly went limp. In spite of his efforts, he sagged to his knees. "They got me in the leg, Red," he called. "We've got to land!"

"You hit hard, Garry?"

"Through the thigh! No big arteries, I guess! Let's get Blaise ashore!"

With fear in their hearts they examined Blaise's blood-caked head.

"Glory be!" cried the giant as he traced the course of the bullet. "They only creased him!"

"Get some water, Red! His pulse is good. If he hadn't got a fracture, he'll be as right as rain in a few days. He's tough."

When they had washed and banded Brassard's head, Red inspected Garry's leg. "Straight through the thigh muscles clean as a whistle! Not an artery touched. That was a high-powered small bore. Pain any?"

"Not much! It's just numb and weak."

Shortly Red had his two wounded friends on a spread blanket.

Working like the moose he was, Malone soon had cargo and canoe through the alders and back in the bush. The hidden camp was now safe from searching eyes on the opposite shore. Then Garry and Red held a council of war.

"What's your guess, Red?"

"There was an ugly glitter in the blue eyes as they shifted from Garry's bandaged leg to the still unconscious Blaise. "I don't think Batoche and Flambeau could have passed us last night and done this. It was someone else. How about this Tete-Blanche? Do you suppose he's putting in the summer on the Nottaway?"

"Who knows? All we have is the knowledge that someone tried to wipe out a government survey party. That means they'll pay through the nose to Ottawa. After this thing today it's clear what became of Bob and the rest who started for Chibougamau."

"Well, as they've started the rough stuff," said Red, finishing the oiling of the action of his, 45 and shoving it into the shoulder holster strapped under his left arm beneath his shirt, "three lads I know are going to throw a little rough stuff themselves."

"They won't work in the open, Red. It will all be Injun stuff, under cover, with no surviving witnesses. They're blocking the Chibougamau Trail but they don't intend to hang for it."

"And I don't intend they shall, Garry!" growled Red.

Garry loved Red's weakness for a fight and his berserk courage when he was in one, but he cautioned: "Remember we're a peaceable survey party interested in certain other matters on the side. We can't make the first move."

"Sure, boss, but while we're running that compass survey of Waswanipi, I'm going to make a personal survey of Mr. Jules Isadore. If I find what I think I will, it'll be a sweet job."

"And a dangerous one, Red."

"Uh-huh! And a dangerous one!" grunted Malone.

In the morning Blaise was conscious. Six days of rest and careful nursing put him on his feet and gave the clean flesh wound in Garry's leg a chance to heal. In the meantime Malone had swum the river below the rapids and found in the mud at the foot of the old Indian portage the tracks of two men and freshly broken brush where a canoe had been cached. At the head of the carry, footprints indicated that the men had come downstream. Batoche and Flambeau must have passed their camp on the river in the night, ambushed them, and thinking that they had somehow run the rapids, gone on, searching for their supper fire.

"Now, Blaise, what do you think of your friends who wanted to give you a job?" demanded Red.

Blaise grimaced as he fingered his bandaged head. "I think if I ambush cano' in dose rapids, I make better job. At less dan hunder yard dey start to fire at free men who got to stand up and make good target. Dey shoot eight-ten time and get two hit."

"They shot straight enough to satisfy me," said Finlay. "I thought we'd lost you when you went down. If they'd wiped us out, there'd have been three more reported accidentally drowned and no proof to the contrary."

The half-breed's eyes blazed with such fury that his friends gaped in surprise. "We head for plenty trouble!" he bit off between his teeth. "Mebbe we navare come back! Who know? But wan'ting you promise Blaise Brassard! You give dis Batoche to me! I take him in dese han'—so!"

Brassard's thick fingers reached into the air and clamped shut, as if on a throat.

"He's yours, Blaise! But he's only a tool," said Garry. "What puzzles me is his boss. I can't make out Isadore's game. He must have brains to make such a success of the fur business and yet he's riding straight for a fall with the authorities."

"He's got a rich placer strike, somewhere, and to avoid a stampede of prospectors won't register it until he's skimmed off the cream," insisted Red.

"Wal, now we feel better, we go have look at M'sieu Isadore," grunted Blaise. He drew a villainous looking skinning knife from its sheath and tested its edge with a thick thumb, as he said: "Somebody goin' to pay for my sore head, for sure!"

"I'm glad I'm not the fellow, you old wolverine!" laughed Garry. "When you take the war path, there's blood on the moon."

CHAPTER IV

Ten days later the Peterboro was approaching the head of Matagami Lake, flanked by black spruce ridges which rolled away to the horizon. Finlay had intended to stop at the Hudson's Bay post which his map showed was located somewhere on its irregular north shore. But, as it was hidden in a deep bay, the survey party had passed the fur post.

"Do we go on up the inlet to this Lake Olga," asked Red, "or turn back to hunt for the Hudson's Bay outfit?"

"We must be pretty close to the thoroughfare, now," said Garry, examining his map. "We've lost ten days already. According to the map the post is thirty miles back of us behind a bunch of islands. We'll keep going."

"Good! Waswanipi and Isadore, or bust! is my motto," laughed Red.

"Was that the flash of a paddle up there where the lake suddenly narrows?" demanded Garry.

The three men stopped paddling to focus their eyes on the distant water.

"Canoe leave de inlet for sure!" announced Blaise, his black eyes narrowing to slits as he watched.

"We make talk wid dem Injun. Meb dey know somet'ing."

Mixing Prepared Paint.
AN OWNER recently blamed the paint for a job that was rough and uneven. As a matter of fact, the paint that he used was of excellent quality, and the fault was his own for not mixing it completely. When a can of paint is allowed to stand, as it will on a dealer's shelf, the heavier parts separate from the oils and collect in a dense mass at the bottom of the can. Before using, this mass must be thoroughly and evenly blended with all the liquid. For this a second can should be at hand, as large or larger than the paint can. Much of the paint liquid is poured off into this and the remaining liquid stirred into the mass remaining in the can. When this has been softened, some of the liquid is poured back and stirred in, and this process should be continued until the entire can of paint is brought to an even consistency. For final mixing, the paint should be poured back and forth from one can to the other, several times. The paint is then ready for use. Instructions on the label for the possible thinning of the paint should be carefully followed.

Varnish does not need any such treatment, for its parts do not separate. Great care should be taken not to shake a can of varnish, for air bubbles would form in it and spoil the final result.

Cleaning Enameled Fixtures.
Stains on the enamel of a wash-basin, sink, bathtub, or other plumbing fixture should not be rubbed with steel wool or any other harsh abrasive, for the glass-like surface would be dulled and roughened, and would then stain more easily. Neither should acids, or strong alkalies of the kind used as drain cleaners, be applied to the enamel, for the effect might be to eat the enamel and to destroy it completely. One safe method for removing stains is continued rubbing with a scratchless cleaning powder moistened with kerosene. A special cleaning powder can be had at a dime store or from a plumber, and one of my correspondents reports complete success by mixing this with borax before adding water to make a paste. The success of these cleaners depends on continued rubbing. Many stains can be taken out with a bleaching liquid. The fixture is filled with water to above the level of the stain, a cup or more of bleaching liquid is added, and the mixture allowed to stand for several hours or overnight.

Crack in a Table Top.
Question: What is your recipe for filling rather bad cracks in the top of a fine old cherry drop-leaf table, otherwise quite perfect? I do not hope to conceal the fact that the cracks were present, but I do want to fill them with something that will stick and not shrink.

Answer: If the table is really valuable, I should have an expert cabinet maker do the job. But if you wish to do it yourself, get strips of cherry-wood, cut them to fit snugly, and glue them in. Another way is to get fine sawdust, preferably of cherry-wood, make into a paste with spar varnish, and pack into the crack, filling it to the top. Press some dry sawdust on top to take up any exposed varnish. When dry, rub smooth with very fine sandpaper. If you cannot get cherry-wood sawdust, use any fine sawdust and color with a small quantity of mahogany or cherry oil stain, mixing it in the varnish before making the paste. You will have to experiment to get the proper shade.

Dull Black Marble.
Question: I have a beautiful black marble fireplace in my home; but it is very dull and the beauty of the marble is gone. No amount of elbow grease or the usual cleaning compounds do any good. Can you recommend anything?

Answer: The polish can be restored by long rubbing with water and putty powder applied with a damp felt pad or a piece of an old felt hat. Hard rubbing will be needed. You can get the putty powder at a monument or marble yard. Or you can engage a marble contractor to come to the house and do the job for you.

Linoleum Walls.
Question: I am considering finishing the walls of my kitchen and bathroom with linoleum squares that are supplied with an adhesive. The manufacturer says that they can be pasted on the walls by any handy person. Would you recommend these?

Answer: The permanence of the job will depend on the condition of the wall and how well it takes the adhesive. Try to persuade the manufacturer to let you have a few of the squares and some of the adhesive, so that you can experiment and find out if the job will be successful.

Fashion Advocates Lavish Use Of Fur in a Variety of Ways

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FASHION is most eloquently "saying it" with furs this season. According to the signs there is going to be a most grand and glorious display of furs this winter both as trimming and as coat or cape ensembles of sumptuous fur. Almost everything in the way of matching accessories that can be made of fur is being made of fur: hats, gloves, handbags, separate neckpieces, detachable plastron fronts, and lapel gadgets of bows and boutonnières.

Milliners are giving of their best in creating fur hats matched to coats, to jackets, or to the trimming on one's gown and wrap. The favor for browns has placed extra emphasis on the importance of mink. There's exciting fashion news in the sumptuous mink coat shown above to the right in the illustration. It is topped by a hat made glorious by a wide brim (huge fur hats will be worn this winter) of matching mink.

The young woman centered above in the picture is snappishly turned out in an ensemble of gray Chinese kidskin, the fingertip-length coat fashioned along very lengthy lines. The insistent call for sleek black by fashion sophisticates keeps Persian lamb and elegant broadtail in the limelight again this season. Rolly luxurious is the broadtail ensemble shown in the upper left corner. Here a slim svelte princess coat demonstrates how up-to-the-minute is the styling given to furs this season. The hat is one of those new tall effects so definitely in style.

Grandma's Buttons Make Style News

Dig into grandma's button box, and you may find hidden treasures that will cause your winter gowns and coats to soar to heights of sartorial glory. Better still, trek around to the button counters and see what a splurge buttons are making in the fashion realm.

Two important trends register in the button field, one of which is the inclination toward bulkiness. Buttons are sometimes massive and knobby. Also, the new buttons tell a grand and glorious color story. You, with everyone else, are going to wear a great deal more color this year than you did last, and accordingly button originals are keeping pace with the color commotion.

Plastic buttons are available in a full range of costume colors. A button that makes an interesting accent on frock or blouse is a molded plastic done in a flower design with nailhead detail. Fresh fashion interest is also developing in filigree buttons. A gold filigree button is proving especially attractive for dress-up blouses and party frocks. In fact, metal buttons rank high in favor, whatever the type.

Glitter is popular, and lovely rhinestone buttons flourish on wools, velveteens, dressy crepes, and the newest fashion note is rhinestone or other jeweled buttons on fur coats and jackets.

Woolies Defy the Chill

Breath of Jack Frost
Farmers can prognosticate and their signs are unerring. It's "ditto" with fashion. Well, from all fashion indications, we will see wool mittens; long wool socks (sheer wool for daytime hose); heads done up in wool wimples; huge fur hats and mufflers as extravagantly big. All will valiantly fulfill their mission of comfort and smart appearance when winter brings on its usual quota of days with a sharp tang.

A GOOD DEAL OF HOPE RESTS WITH RURAL COMMUNITIES

A GENERATION ago an evening spent at a friend's home, an occasional visit to the theater or a dinner at a hotel or good restaurant were considered the pleasures of life by people of the cities. Automobiles did not provide quick transportation to night clubs, which did not exist, with their blare of saxophones and snare drums, their "blues" singers, scantily dressed women entertainers, round after round of alcoholic concoctions and their headaches for the morrow. The Victorian pleasures of the eighties and nineties were of a simple kind, but they were real. They made for a substantial citizenship that was not subject to hysteria.

Today those city pleasures of the past are gone. They have given place to wild orgies of hilarity, which leave in their wake only regrets for lost opportunities. We have imported the ways of what were the gay capitals of Europe and those ways were at least partially responsible for what has happened in Europe. They helped to make Hitler possible.

People of our rural communities are today more typically American. They live a more rational life. They represent the culture of the nation. They provide the foundation upon which our future must depend. If our civilization survives the world cataclysm, it will be because of the influence of our American rural communities.

WHAT OF THE FUTURE, A MUCH-ASKED QUESTION

WHAT LIES AHEAD? What will happen when the war, or the emergency or the boom blows up? Such a day is coming.

Some of my acquaintances in Washington assure me that there is nothing to fear. They tell me it has all been given thoughtful consideration. The government is prepared to provide.

A bit of discreet questioning discloses that these acquaintances are eagerly waiting that as the day on which will be disclosed the failure of the American system of free enterprise, and the substitution of the state socialism of Germany, or the state capitalism of Italy. These two systems are so nearly alike that only a microscopical analysis can determine a difference, and both savor of Communism.

How will the government provide? Can we keep on adding to the mortgage of approximately $5,000 that is plastered on every American family and on which it must pay an interest charge of some $150 a year? How far can we continue to add to an indebtedness that now equals close to one-third of the value of all our national wealth?

Industry is not now permitted to accumulate any reserve to provide shelter for the rainy days ahead. There is nothing to insure a day's wages for the workman when the demand for guns, tanks and planes is no more.

Congress should be thinking of that future day, unless congress is willing to see our American system go overboard and America follow the road all the rest of the world is traveling.

FIXING WAGES, PRICES

THE PAYMENT, at exceedingly high wage rates, of billions of dollars each year to American workmen and a drastic limitation on production of commodities for civilian use produce dangerous conditions for the creation of wild, uncontrolled inflation. Ways by which such conditions may be offset include a limitation on all prices, including wages, an exceptional and drastic tax rate on all incomes that are above those of normal times, or an enforced purchase of government securities. A commodity and wage price-fixing policy is possible under a totalitarian form of government, but has never proved successful in a democracy.

BETTER RELATIONS

EDWARD C. JOHNSON of New York heads an organization whose purpose is to exchange information between people of North and South America, and so create a more friendly interest. He wants the North Americans to know and appreciate Bolivar, and the South Americans to know and appreciate Washington. If we understand the history and culture of our neighbors, we will be less critical and more appreciative of them. It is a worthy cause, being promoted in a practical way and for a good purpose.

THE LORD HELPS

AN ENGLISH FRIEND, a former officer in the British army, quoted to me the old adage: "The Lord helps those who help themselves" and applied it to England. He said, "England will do a much better job at helping herself when the Lord, or the United States, do not attempt to help. When help is offered, England is inclined to let up on her own efforts and let the Lord, or the United States, do the job." That may account for lack of news of war activities from England.

ARE YOUR Bowels Stubborn?

Then try kindness! First of all you can't expect them to act unless you give them a chance. Most people make sure to get 3 meals a day. But they never think of giving their bowels a regular time (daily) for evacuation.
If you've neglected YOUR bowels until they finally become stubborn and unwilling to act, ask your druggist for ADLERKA. It is an effective blend of 5 cathartics and 3 laxatives giving DOUBLE action. Gas is expelled and bowel action follows surprisingly fast. After that, make up your mind to give your bowels 5 or 10 minutes' time at regular hour, daily. Your druggist has ADLERKA.

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of worldwide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's Pills in their laboratory conditions. These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.
If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often applied.
Barring, scanty or too scanty urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puminess under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, allayed out.

ASSEMBLY IN NEW BUILDING
 The new building was used for the first time last Friday, when an assembly was held in the manual arts room, just constructed. Mrs. Minnie Seaholm gave a very inspiring talk on building a good moral character.

DEBATE NEWS

The local debate team, coached by Miss Finch, has been preparing for its first debate of the season. Boyne City was to have debated East Jordan, but the team has withdrawn from the Michigan Forensic Association, so will be unable to compete as planned. As yet it is not known whom East Jordan will meet first. Seven people are out for debate this year. They are: Edna Reuling, Alice Puckett, Gladys Larsen, Betty Ann Scott, Bruce Malpass, Bill Rude and Russell Conway. The proposition this year is "Resolved: Every able bodied male citizen be required to have one year of military training before reaching the present draft age."

LOCALS DROP FIRST GAME

Taking the worst licking it has had in three years on the chin, the local football outfit lost to Harbor Springs, on its "field", 26 to 0. Harbor played the best game it has in years against East Jordan, outclassing the locals in every phase of the game. Tricky reverses and short passes were the main stay of the "Rams" who showed deception, speed and endurance.

Although the local team was beaten, it was never out. On many occasions the line broke through to block up plays, but failure in blocking assignments again hindered our offensive. It is true that the game was played in the mud, with puddles all over the field, but Harbor seemed to be used to playing under these conditions.

The locals are now preparing to meet Boyne City at Boyne November 11, Armistice Day. Although the locals cannot be considered favorites in this annual classic, they are hoping for a complete reversal of form in comparison to the Harbor game. "There were only three reasons for our defeat by Harbor," said Coach Cohn. "These were, failure in blocking assignments, outcharged by the other line, and not being able to tackle and hold on." If the boys can correct these faults before next Tuesday, they will have a good chance to lick our cross-county rivals.

Grayling has cinched the "Class C" citizenship, having an undefeated season. Congratulations to the downstate boys for their fine showing this year.

SAFETY PROGRAM

The school is trying to make the pupils safety conscious. Each week a different phase of safety is taken up. Last week the topic was "Safety in the Busses." Mr. Wade and some of the teachers rode on the busses several times and showed the pupils how to alight from the bus and how to behave in the bus.

This week the topic is "Safety for Riders of Bicycles and for Students who Drive Cars to School."

Rules for safety are printed and are posted on the bulletin boards so that all may observe them. Also each week some teacher devotes part of a class period to a discussion of safety. By emphasizing safety the school hopes to eliminate accidents in the future.

EAST JORDAN SMOTHERS ONAWAY

With the line opening holes big enough to drive a truck through, and backs running 100 per cent better than against Charlevoix, the local football squad polished off Onaway last Saturday, 18 to 0.

Onaway came to East Jordan after beating Charlevoix 7-0. Because the local team could only get a 0-0 tie with the same team, the boys from up north were a little over-confident. They had a heavy team, larger than the locals. But their blocking and tackling were spotty.

The E. J. forward line looked the best it has all season, for it opened holes large enough for the backs to gain five to ten yards almost every time. The line was spectacular on defense also, as it broke through on several occasions to throw the Onaway lads for a loss.

Bechtold rang up the first marker for E. J., going over on a line buck in the first quarter. That was the end of the scoring in the first half. East Jordan kicked to the Onaway 15 to start the second half, and when Onaway was pushed down to her own 10 on three plays she tried to punt. The punt was blocked by the locals, who then put it over with Green carrying.

Early in the fourth quarter, Bechtold plunged over, from the four yard line after the ball had been brought to that position by reverses and a pass from Green to Bechtold. That ended the scoring of the day.

The freshman class had its first party of the year last Friday night in the agriculture room of the school. Shirley Sinclair, class president, planned the entertainment, which consisted of games of Sly Winkum and Musical Chair, and dancing.
