EAST JORDAN DEBATORS LOSE TO PELLSTON

Participating in a very fine debate, the local team was defeated by a narrow margin at Pellston last Wednesday. Mr. Carl Titus, superintendent of the Cheboygan Public Schools, was the critic judge. He gave a close decision to the veteran debaters of Pellston High.

Edna Reuling, Bruce Malpass, and Russell Conway made up East Jordan's team. They debated the affirmative side of the resolution, "Resolved, That every able bodied male citizen of the United States should be required to have one year of military training before reaching the present draft age."

The East Jordan debate team will journey to Elk Rapids for its next debate to uphold the negative of the same resolution.

The reason a lot of people like to do favors for other people is that they expect something in return. I guess that's why you can hear the report a mile when some people discharge an obligation.

Candidate: "How did you like my speech on the agricultural problem?"
Farmer: "It wasn't bad, but a day's rain would do a heap more good."

Mechanized Troops Fight On in Libya As Nazis Show New Power in Russia; Arming of American Merchant Ships Indicates Change in Convoy Plans

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Above photo shows the first United States merchant ship as it was being armed under permission granted by terms of the recent congressional revision of the neutrality. Armed merchants are now permitted to pass through war zone to belligerent ports. This picture was taken at a yard near New York city as the gun was being lifted to the ship shown in the background.

JAPAN: Formula

As a Tokyo war cabinet framed its reply to Secretary of State Cordell Hull's "peace" formula reports began coming in from Shanghai telling of a southward movement of Japanese troops and war materials in a thrust at Thailand. Following a White House visit by Saburo Kurusu, special Nippon envoy, the state department announced that there were no further conversations scheduled with Japanese diplomats seeking an answer to the Far Eastern situation.

BRITISH: Libyan Push

Those who had expected a swift and continuous British victory in Libya, similar to the great push by General Wavell's army which swept the Italians back into Tripoli, were doomed to disappointment.

It was evident that there was plenty of fight in the German mechanized forces, even when apparently hopelessly trapped.

Yet Berlin had not been cheering over the situation. The British sweep at least temporarily had knocked the German-Italian formations back on their heels, and there was little evidence but that the Rommel army would be extremely fortunate to extricate itself from the trap even with heavy losses.

But there also was evidence that the British tanks, many of them of American manufacture, were unable to cope on better than even terms with the German machines.

The battle, once the two armies had made actual contact, was confusing in the extreme, and it showed in sharply etched lines just how possible it is for very small groups of mechanized forces to throw much larger bodies of men into complete confusion.

A rather large South African contingent was so knocked out by a German mechanized attack, even within the so-called iron ring of the British that it was practically disbanded, though some parts of it were able later to attach themselves to the New Zealand forces.

Yet this very Nazi group which had accomplished the maneuver later was shot into hurried retreat and practical dismemberment by a smaller group of British tanks. It seemed that the element of surprise and speed counted for far more in modern warfare than did numbers of men or machines.

Chief favorable report from Libya on the British part was that all reinforcements sought to be brought up by the Germans had failed except those furnished by air.

There was considerable hope among the British that this factor might decide the battle, perhaps very swiftly. Some Nazi tanks were found immobilized because of lack of fuel, and there were reports that the Germans were forced to fly supplies to their men by transport planes towing gliders.

But the British losses admittedly had been heavy, and only a complete victory would be regarded as reward for the expenditures of men and material in the sudden and dramatic drive.

STRIKES:

The sudden end of the coal strike had been followed swiftly by the announcement that the threatened strike of the long-distance telephone operators also had been removed from the picture by a reported $3,000,000 pay increase.

That there was to be a new trend in the picture was seen when President Roosevelt called together majority and minority leaders in congress, and gave them the "green light" as far as anti-strike legislation was concerned.

CONVOY: Changes

As reports began to come in of the arming of American merchantmen, and the belief grew that they would be sent direct into British ports, it was said that the whole relationship of the United States and the British on the convoy question in the Atlantic was to undergo a change.

There were no definite details as to what this change would involve other than it would be a more considerable taking over by this country of the whole problem of supply of lease-lend materials.

Considerable interest was evoked by the Harriman speech in London in which the American envoy said that the U. S. navy was "shooting German planes," though there had been no detailed reports of such engagements.

The general feeling was that before Christmas American ships would be going all the way to Britain, armed merchantmen, protected by the American navy to a point close to the British isles, and from there in convoyed by British naval vessels and British planes.

SEVEN: Join Nazis

Seven smaller European nations, most of them those regarded generally as more or less favorable to Axis domination of Europe, formally joined the new Axis anti-Comintern pact at a conference in Berlin which was spotlighted by Von Ribbentrop's claim that the Russian war "already had been won."

The remainder of the struggle, Von Ribbentrop said, was solely between the Axis powers and Britain, together with her transatlantic helpers.

He said: "If it should some day come to war on the one side between the United States of America and Europe and Asia on the other side, I state once and for all that the responsibility lies with President Roosevelt."

"Whether the United States comes into the war or not, it cannot alter the Axis victory."

RUSSIA: In a Bad Way

The Russians were being forced back on their heels in the Moscow territory by the German system of shifting their chief attack forces from one front to another, vastly complicating the Reds' defense problems.

After a long attack which had been concentrated on the southern front, and during which the Soviet defense of Moscow had been carried on with such success that the Germans were reported on the retreat in many sectors, the Germans then suddenly smashed back at Moscow, and broke through the lines in several important districts.

The Russians were frankly worried again by the situation, and said that the weather, which had been a strong ally during the past weeks, had again turned more favorable to the attackers, who were taking the advantage to shove home bitter assaults all around Moscow.

At one point they had been reported within 30 miles of the city, and from at least four different sectors came dispatches telling of break-throughs by the Nazis.

The Reds' southern armies, taking advantage of the forces thus shifted to the north, were on the counteroffensive, and were driving westward at a good clip, having made in one line a distance of about 120 miles.

But experience had shown that such advances by either side could be quickly lost again should the pressure change once more.

Entering Protest

Mathew Woll (left) and William Green, a vice president and president, respectively, of A.F.L., pictured as they called on President Roosevelt to protest against anti-strike legislation. Bridling with defiance, Green stated that A.F.L. has been co-operating with the defense program but that now it is in a position of being penalized for "acts of some irresponsible leaders" outside his organization—presumably a dig at the C.I.O.

COMMANDOS: Make Sortie

The British Commandos tipped in these columns as about to become active again, worked a sortie on the Normandy coast, and returned with only one man wounded.

British sources felt that the official recognition by the Germans of the attack made by the group was the best proof that at least some of its objectives had been accomplished.

What made the landing on the French coast particularly notable, however, was the issuance of a statement of sharpest criticism against the British high command by a retired naval officer and hero of the last war, Admiral Keyes, founder and trainer of the Commandos.

He accused the staff of preventing the use of this body of men for several months when their use properly "might have changed the character of the entire war."

Also included was a brief description of the Commando which made the Normandy attack, men wearing black uniforms, their faces blacked with burnt cork, choosing a moonless night, armed with Tommy guns, Bren guns, knives and clubs, and sworn to achieve their objective no matter what the outcome.

They returned with only one man wounded slightly through the arm by a machine gun bullet. The Germans said they "had been repulsed with heavy losses."

EXPLOIT: By Nazis

Two Nazi airmen will go down in history as two of the most daring and imaginative of prisoners of war.

Escaping from a British prison camp, they got British flying coats, copied the buttons by carving them from wood, and covering them with tinfoil, and had them sewed onto their under uniforms.

They then walked brazenly into a British airdrome, announced they had been assigned to bomb Dutch airports, got into a bomber and took off. Knowing they needed more fuel to get to their destination, they landed again 100 miles away and asked for gasoline.

Suspicious, airport attendants suggested they have a bath and a luncheon before taking off. The Nazis were reluctant to take off their clothing.

While they were in the bath their garments were examined and the false buttons discovered. They were arrested and sent back to the prison camp.

BULLITT: A New Job

William C. Bullitt, former ambassador to France, had been given a new and important assignment by the President, that of special envoy to the Libyan area, especially to study lease-lend needs.

The former ambassador's mission was to cover the entire Near East, including the Nile river area, the Red sea and possibly the Persian gulf.

The campaign in north Africa, President Roosevelt felt, is an important and severe testing ground for American-made arms, and the ultimate success of the effort there may depend on the rate at which replacements of damaged machines can be made.

The President was asked by the newsmen where Mr. Bullitt's headquarters would be, and where he could be reached. The President, chuckled and said "In a plane."

Bullitt was to fly there and fly back and make his personal report on his observations to the President as soon as possible.

Serious Labor Situation Hinders Defense Effort

Members of Congress Also Demanding Facts On Charges That Big Business Plays Favorites in Defense Contracts.

By BAUKHAGE.

National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

The explosion in the defense setup in Washington foreshadowed in these columns two weeks ago is about to take place. At least, as this is written, the fuse is being laid if not lighted. Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming and Representative Coffey of Washington are both demanding facts connected with charges that big business is playing favorites in the defense contracts.

But an equally amazing story lies behind the way labor has been dealt with in the defense program. Part of the facts have leaked out piecemeal, some are still very much under cover. Put together they make an amazing revelation of what was behind the President's delay in taking action in the captive mine strike and also how bungling all along the line forced the administration into the worst labor situation that has arisen since the defense program started.

The trouble began when it was decided to take the settlement of certain labor disputes out of the United States Conciliation Service and place it in the hands of the Defense Advisory Commission with branches headed by William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman. Up to that time from 95 to 98 per cent of the labor disputes were settled by the Conciliation Service. But the remaining 2 to 5 per cent were slowing down defense and it was decided that Mr. Knudsen's staff representing industry and Mr. Hillman's staff representing labor could settle the recalcitrants. The theory was that Knudsen's men would crack down on industry and Hillman's on labor. But it didn't work that way. Each favored his own kind.

Mediation Board Founded

So the National Defense Mediation board was founded. All went along smoothly for awhile, although more and more criticism was heard that the board was exceedingly pro-labor and achieved settlements by the simple process of conceding to labor's demands.

Then the board made a mistake. It handed down one decision which opened the way for the United Mine Workers union shop demands which smashed the board, threatened the administration's foreign policy and created the worst labor crisis that the country has faced in many a long day.

The decision I refer to was in the case of the Bethlehem shipbuilding plant in San Francisco. The A. F. of L. union demanded a union shop, that is, that any man working for the company a certain period would have to join the union. The board granted this demand, thus forcing 20 per cent of the plant's non-union workers to join the A. F. of L. One member of the board, Cyrus Ching, representing industry, held out against the decision. He foresaw that it would create a precedent. When the decision was announced it was stated that it should not be taken as a precedent. This pious statement was like giving the baby a piece of candy "if he won't ask for another."

Once the A. F. of L. had received this concession the C.I.O. stepped up and said: "I want one, too." The result was the famous Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company case of Kearny, N. J., this time a shipyard on the East coast. Against the vote of the members of the National Mediation board representing industry, the union was given "maintenance - of - membership" which is a diluted union shop. The company refused to accept the decision and the navy took over.

Another Precedent

Here was another precedent, whether the board meant it or not. And it didn't take long for John Lewis to take advantage of it and put in his demand for the union shop in the captive coal mines. If he had planned it that way he could not have been provided a better opportunity to vent his ancient grievance against the President and set himself right in the middle of a national issue.

If the case of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding workers was good, Lewis' was far better. C.I.O. has a 95 per cent membership in the captive coal mines. But not the kind of a 95 per cent that most people think it. Not 5 per cent non-union workers scattered here and there in all the mines. But full 100 per cent membership in many mines and none perhaps in a very few small ones. The National Defense Mediation board voted down Mr. Lewis' demand for a union shop and Pandora's box flew open. One of the things that emerged was a highly paradoxical and highly painful situation. For the board, by taking this rare anti-labor step, had virtually left the operators in the position that if they had yielded in the later negotiations they would be in the position of supporting Lewis against the government. Still the situation might have been saved if something had not happened when the President called the operators and Lewis and Secretary-Treasurer Kennedy of the United Mine Workers to the White House.

When the men came in the President did what his labor advisors hoped he would. He made a brief appeal to both sides to get together and settle the question, since a strike must be avoided. If he had stopped there all might have been well. But he went on and said what Lewis felt was prejudicial to his case. This not only woke all the smouldering anger in the breast of John Lewis but when the committee of 200 C.I.O. advisors heard about it they were just as mad. His feeling was reflected when he turned down the President's later proposals.

President on the Spot

And the President was on the spot. Congress was insisting on strike legislation. Speaker Sam Rayburn had promised it. Others were demanding that the troops be sent into the captive mines at once.

That, wiser heads who knew the temper of the miners believed, would mean a strike in all the mines and the army would have to beat its bayonets into pickaxes. So the President paused, wrote a conciliatory letter to both parties. Meanwhile, congress could stew but the President was pretty sure that its members would not take the initiative of alienating the labor vote with primaries coming up in the spring and elections next fall. The prospective candidates for reelection wanted the onus to be placed squarely on him.

Whether the Conciliation Service could have handled the captive mine strike as if it still handled the other 98 per cent of the cases of labor disputes no one can say. But it is clear that it was mishandled by the Mediation board and it is likewise clear that if critical congressmen finally crack down on Mr. Knudsen's dollar-a-year men for shewing favors to business they have plenty of grounds for cracking down on Mr. Hillman's stalwarts who created the pattern of labor partisanship that came near severely injuring not only the defense program but the administration's foreign policy as well.

A Rip-Snortin' Texan Comes to Washington

Another Texan has come to Washington and the moment of his arrival was an historic one. We have had a lot of rip-snortin' ringtailed wildcats from all parts of the country, some human, and some not quite. Now we have something that will make even the Texas delegation in congress sit up and take notice, for this unwilling delegate from the Lone Star State is the wildest of them all.

He is a Texas long-horn. A steer with an eight-foot spread of horn. He is 12 years old. He weighs 2,200 pounds and he is admittedly wilder than anything in the zoo where he has been given the place of honor—right up near the entrance.

Most people do not know that the Texas long-horn is rarer than the buffalo which he once displaced on the Texas plains. He is a direct descendant from the wild cattle which the Spaniards brought to America when they came. Those cattle could walk endless miles to water. They were bred and developed to meet conditions that existed a hundred years ago in the great Southwest. Then water was piped and ditched into the great ranches and the fatter, easier going Herefords were introduced. The long-horn had the muscles and the endurance but he did have the meat, so he began to disappear.

George Stimpson, a Washington correspondent from the Middle West, who is also a correspondent for Texas papers and a keen devotee of America's flora and fauna, started out three years ago to get a Texas long-horn for the Washington zoo.

He had his troubles. He simply could not get hold of a real, simon-pure long-horn. There were semi-domesticated beasts but none of the real, wild-eyed, rip-roaring variety that have made the long-horn as much a symbol of America as the eagle itself.

CONTRASTING OUR TAXES WITH ENGLISH SYSTEM

THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT wants jobs for its people; it wants industry to produce merchandise for export so it may have credits abroad against which to purchase food, raw materials and war equipment, and it wants cargoes for its ships. To encourage industry, it levies low taxes on corporations and high taxes on the individual, including those whose revenue comes as dividends from corporations.

In this country, Secretary Morgenthau has advocated confiscation of all corporation profits of more than 6 per cent on the invested capital. A Minneapolis corporation with an invested capital of $3,496,000 earned and paid out in dividends in 1940 a total of $1,140,000. Under the 1940 law, it paid in taxes a total of $273,600. Under the law as proposed by Mr. Morgenthau, it would pay $930,240.

If that company were operating in England, with the same amount of invested capital and the same earnings, it would pay at the present time a tax of only $87,000. But in England each stockholder would have paid a tax on what he received as a dividend. That tax would have been deducted from his dividend check and would have been the same per share whether the stockholder owned one or many shares. The individual pays instead of the corporation. The individual knows definitely how much tax he pays.

Directly or indirectly, we Americans own our American corporations. We provide the capital invested in the tools with which industry operates. The taxes they pay is paid with our money. But we are not supposed to know that. Figured on either a per capita or dollars earned basis, we pay a higher tax than is paid by the English people and that is another thing we are not supposed to know.

To me it seems the English way is the more honest and more conducive to national welfare.

PRICE RISES FAST

RECENTLY a woman went into a Chicago store to look at house dresses. She found one that suited, but wished to look elsewhere before buying. At another store she found the same dress, but the price was some 10 per cent higher. She hurried back to the clerk who had shown her the dress at the first store, saying she would take the dress she had looked at but a few minutes before.

"It will be about an hour before I can sell you that dress now," said the clerk. "And then the price will be higher. All dresses in that line have been taken away for today's mark-up."

That is what is happening practically every day in the great mercantile establishments of the cities. The prices go up while you wait. Is that an evidence of inflation?

UNION LABOR LEADERS will not be satisfied until every man and woman who works pays a union for the privilege of working.

'PORK BARREL' OF YESTERYEAR AND TODAY

IT WAS NOT so long ago, as time is measured, that I, as a boy, listened to the discussions of governmental affairs by the farmers and townspeople as they sat around the stove in the general store in the Iowa village in which I lived. The most frequently discussed subject was the "pork barrel," the rivers and harbors and public works appropriations made by congress.

Well do I remember an item of $10,000 in one of those appropriations for deepening the channel of the Des Moines river, where it ran through our village. It was acclaimed as wise legislation, but other items for equally unimportant projects were severely condemned. They did not mean additional dollars to be spent locally.

What was true of the American people in those days is still true. We look at the activities of government from a selfish viewpoint. We approve of any activity that means a profit or benefit to any of us as individuals or to our locality, regardless of its need or value to the nation.

Farmers and town people are still discussing governmental activities and expenditures in thousands of American villages. Where appropriations items were once stated in terms of thousands of dollars, and totals in limited millions, the individual items are now in terms of millions and the totals in billions. The figures are too great for those rural critics to comprehend. They cannot visualize such sums, but they are not alone in that. Their representatives in congress, the men who vote for such expenditures, have no realization of what a billion dollars mean. If we, their constituents, could appreciate just what such appropriations mean to each of us, the discussions of former days would be riots of today. It may be well for us that we do not know.

The "pork barrel" of yesteryear has become a great vat of today.

Christmas Baking Begins With Luscious Fruit Cake! (See Recipes Below.)

Holiday Fare

Christmas is something pretty special, I'm sure you'll agree, and as such deserves something pretty special in the way of food. To my notion the fruit cakes and plum puddin's are "that special something with their handsome brown, fruity richness and delectable flavors.

The charm of both these kinds of delicacies lies in their ripened, mellowed flavors which come only with proper aging when the spices, fruits, nuts and butter blend themselves into mysterious goodness. So bake the fruit cakes and puddings in advance and give them a chance to acquire their best in flavor.

While you're about the big business of making a fruit cake, bake several small cakes in small glass or pottery dishes to give as gifts. Gaily decorated with sprigs of holly and mistletoe and holiday ribbons they make a perfect gift.

Dark Fruit Cake. (Yields 10 to 12 pounds)

- 12 eggs
 - 4 cups sifted flour
 - 2 cups butter
 - 1 pound brown sugar
 - 2 pounds raisins
 - 2 pounds currants
 - 1 pound pecans
 - 1 pound citron
 - 1 pound almonds
 - 1 teaspoon each, nutmeg, cinnamon, mace
 - 1/4 cup lemon juice
 - 1/4 cup canned peach juice
 - 6 ounce glass jelly (blackberry, currant or grape)
 - 1/2 cup cream
- Wash and dry raisins and currants. Blanch almonds, drain and cut with pecans into quarters. Cut citron into thin slices. Place fruit in large mixing bowl. Sift flour, measure and sift with spices and mix with fruits until well coated. Cream butter and sugar, add beaten eggs and jelly. Stir in flour and fruit alternately with fruit juice first, then cream.

Line pans with heavy waxed paper and butter slightly. Fill pans almost to the top. Bake small loaf cakes 3 to 3 1/2 hours at 275 degrees. Bake large loaf cakes 4 to 4 1/2 hours at 250 degrees. Cool.

Cool cakes on a rack. When cool, wrap in heavy waxed paper and store tightly.

Light Fruit Cake. (Makes 3 1/2 to 4 pounds)

- 1 1/4 pounds mixed crystallized fruits (cherries, pineapple, etc.)
- 1/2 pound mixed lemon, orange, citron peels
- 1/4 pound blanched, chopped almonds
- 18 maraschino cherries
- 1/2 cup diced preserved ginger
- 2 1/2 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder

LYNN SAYS:

Christmas wouldn't be Christmas if you didn't have good things like fruit cake and plum puddin' on hand. But since these take lots of time to make, plan to be in the process of making them for several days so one day won't tire you out.

Fruits and nuts can be cut and chopped several days in advance since they usually involve considerable time.

When putting the batter in the pans be sure that the corners are well filled with batter so you'll get a nice looking cake or pudding.

Store the cake or pudding in a cool dry place. Have it tightly covered preferably in a tin container. Sound apples may be kept in the container itself to keep cake or pudding moist, but must be replaced if they become decayed or shriveled.

THIS WEEK'S MENU

- Clear Vegetable Broth
- Lamb Shanks
- Mashed Potatoes
- Grated Carrot-Pineapple Salad
- Muffins
- Beverage
- Queen's Bread Pudding

- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup margarine
- 1 cup sugar
- 8 egg whites
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- Cut fruits and peels in thin slices.

Mix cherries and ginger with 1 cup flour and toss lightly. Cream margarine with 1/2 cup sugar. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt and beat into batter. Add flour, fruits and nuts and mix thoroughly. Add lemon juice to egg whites and beat until stiff. Add remaining sugar and beat until smooth. Fold into batter. Turn into greased tube pans lined with waxed paper and bake in a slow (325 degree) oven for 3 hours.

To my mind there's nothing quite so festive as the plum pudding brought flaming to the table, and served with a rich sauce.

Plum Pudding. (Makes 3 1/2 pounds)

- 1 cup suet
 - 1 cup molasses
 - 2 cups bread crumbs
 - 3 eggs, unbeaten
 - 1 cup raisins
 - 1 cup currants
 - 1 cup flour
 - 1 teaspoon each, cinnamon, nutmeg, cloves
 - 1 tablespoon flavoring
 - 1 cup milk
 - 1 teaspoon soda
- Mix well the suet and molasses. Add bread crumbs and mix in eggs one at a time. Add raisins and currants mixed with the flour and spices, then flavoring. Mix in milk and soda dissolved in 1 cup boiling water. Grease mold, put in pudding 3/4 full and seal tight. Place in kettle of boiling water on a trivet or a rack and have the water come half way around the mold. Steam for three hours. Serve hot.

Suet Pudding. (Serves 10)

- 1 cup suet, chopped fine
 - 1 cup molasses
 - 1 cup bread crumbs
 - 1/4 cup evaporated milk, mixed with
 - 1/4 cup water
 - 1 1/2 cups flour
 - 1 teaspoon cinnamon
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1 cup raisins or currants or preserved fruit
- Mix all dry ingredients together, add fruit, then suet and milk. Turn into greased pudding mold, cups or cans, cover tightly with greased paper or fitted covers. Place on a rack in a kettle of boiling water which comes half way up to the molds. Cover kettle and steam 3 hours. If in a mold or 1 hour if in cups. Serve with hard sauce or Plum Pudding Sauce.

Sauce is to pudding as stuffing is to the turkey so make it good. For steamed puddings a hard sauce flavored with whatever you desire is excellent. If you'd like a hot, golden-hued sauce, meltingly delicious here's one that's tops:

Plum Pudding Sauce.

- 1/4 cup butter
 - 1 cup powdered sugar
 - 2 tablespoons cider or
 - 1 tablespoon other flavoring
 - 2 eggs
 - 1/2 cup rich milk
- Cream butter and powdered sugar. Add cider or other flavoring, then well-beaten egg yolks. When well mixed, stir in milk. Cook in double boiler until thick as custard, then gradually pour in beaten egg whites, beating constantly.

Neat Wrapping Aids Appearance Of Holiday Gifts

Men are seldom noted for their daintiness, especially around Christmas time. But they aren't the only ones whose gifts present a sorry sight with bulgy paper covering and loose string that portends early disintegration of the wrapping. Even some women confess that they wrap their gifts several times before their appearance is satisfactory.

The best of "wrappers" are only amateurs, however, compared with the girls in large department stores who "gift wrap" all day long.

For most articles whose shapes make wrapping difficult they have an effective solution: "Corrugate it." This means that the bundle is wrapped lengthwise and sidewise in corrugated paper before putting fancy Christmas paper around it. "Corrugation will cover a multitude of shapes," they explain. They suggest five steps when wrapping simple packages:

1. Fold the paper over the bundle. Line up the two open sides, then fold them back two or three inches to prevent paper cuts by getting the sharp edge of the paper out of the way.

2. Draw folded paper snug. The paper should be made to rest tightly around the lengthwise section of the bundle.

3. Fold in the ends. Holding the package as shown in drawing number 2, turn the corners diagonally inward.

The pointed section that remains is then folded back against the side of the package.

4. Wind string around package. First wind the string around the bundle lengthwise and then make a "figure 8" knot.

5. Tie the string. After the string is run through the figure 8 knot lengthwise, simply continue the string around the bundle sidewise, and tie the ends of the string.

Cleveland Sells Stocks To Buy Community Tree

Sale of stock certificates unparalleled in history brought America's first community Christmas tree to Cleveland, Ohio, in 1912.

To raise money for a community tree, preferred stock was sold in Cleveland, the City of Good Will (Unlimited), Incorporated. It was listed at the head of other securities on the Cleveland Stock exchange. Although no personal solicitations were allowed, more than $12,000 was realized from the sale. A community celebration was held around the 70-foot, illuminated tree that was erected in the public square.

The next Christmas brought a veritable avalanche of community Christmas trees throughout the country. The idea has become almost a national custom, with more than 15,000 American cities and towns setting up their own community trees during the Christmas season.

Over 300 Years Ago

The hymn "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing," was written in 1739 by one of the greatest hymn writers, Charles Wesley, brother of John, the founder of Methodism. The music to the hymn is a chorale from Mendelssohn's beautiful cantata, "Gott Ist Licht."

The hymn "Adeste Fideles" ("Oh Come All Ye Faithful") has been translated into 76 languages. The words are sometimes ascribed to St. Bonaventura, bishop of Albano in the Thirteenth century.

BRIEFS . . . By Baukhage

The net income of farm operators during the first nine months of this year increased one-fourth as compared with the corresponding period of last year, according to the department of commerce.

From 16th Century England

Way back in 16th century England when the new-crop apples were appearing in the market places, the "goode" wives had a special treat that they cooked up in the form of an apple-pumpkin pie. Today, in Michigan, this century-old recipe finds its way to modern tables in its original form:

- 2 cups peeled, thinly sliced apples
- 2 cups peeled, thinly sliced pumpkin
- 1/2 cups sugar
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

1/4 teaspoon orange flavoring or 2 teaspoons grated orange rind
Line a 9-inch pie plate with pastry and fill with apple and pumpkin slices; sprinkle with sugar, spices and salt. Add flavoring or grated orange rind. Moisten edge of crust, cover with top crust and press edges together; brush crust with milk or cream. Bake 450 degrees F. for ten minutes; than 350 degrees F. for 50 minutes.

Tricks With A Squash

Now that Thanksgiving's just around the corner and the crisp November days are here, you'll be wanting to serve squash. And we can't think of a more delightful surprise than this new recipe, baked squash and apples.
 If you've ever had trouble with squash being dry and stringy or if you've ever gotten tired of serving squash the same old way, this is your dish!
 You'll need —
 Small Hubbard-squash
 Apples

2 tablespoons melted butter
 2 tablespoons honey
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 1 cup apple juice
 Wash squash, cut in half and remove seeds and stringy portions. Cut off rind; place in baking dish and fill centers with sliced apples. Blend other ingredients and pour over apples and squash. Cover and bake at 450 degrees F. for 30 minutes. Remove cover and bake 30 minutes.

Million Red Cross Volunteers Aid Defense Program

Washington, D. C.—Behind the front lines of U. S. defenses more than 1,200,000 Red Cross volunteers are on the job—making surgical dressings, knitting sweaters and giving comfort articles, learning the rudiments of emergency mass feeding and scores of other duties in an all-out effort for national defense.
 The largest defense task now being undertaken by Red Cross volunteers is the production of 40,000,000 surgical dressings for the Army and Navy, according to Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, national director of Volunteer Special Services.
 Home Service volunteers and Gray Ladies, whose duties are directly concerned with the man in uniform also are expanding their programs, Mrs. Davis said.
 As a preparedness measure, thousands of women throughout the country are learning mass feeding and nutrition as members of the Red Cross Canteen Corps. Added thousands are being trained in the Motor Corps to serve as emergency drivers.

Avoid the Peaks and Help Defense

- ★ At certain periods of the day — especially mid-morning and mid-afternoon — telephone facilities are likely to be overloaded with calls.
- ★ With thousands of new telephones in defense plants and homes, and with business booming everywhere, you may find delays in making Long Distance and even local calls.
- ★ You can improve your own telephone service and help speed-up important defense messages if you avoid the "peak" periods — 10 A. M. to 12, and 2 to 4 P. M. — when telephone lines are busiest.
- ★ Your co-operation in making calls at other times will help speed the service that speeds defense.

INSTALLMENT SEVEN

THE STORY SO FAR: Bound for the Chiboumau gold country, six men lost their lives on the Nottaway river. Red Malone, Garrett Finlay, brother of one of the six, and Blaise, half-breed guide, arrive at Nottaway posing as surveyors.

"Here's a piece of their canoe Wabistan found on the shore and buried with them. There's a bullet hole in it."

Garry took the shattered cedar. "We'll keep that for evidence," he said, then followed Malone. While the others stood with bared heads he gazed into the shallow grave at the havoc a year had wrought.

"Bobby!" Finlay dropped to his knees and gazed at what had once been the younger brother whom he had carried in his arms; with whom he had shared his bed. "It's Bob and Andrew!" he muttered. "They shot them through the head!" He swallowed repeatedly at the tightening in his throat but the eyes he lifted to his friends were dry and hard. "He wore a ring of hammered gold! His mother—would treasure it. It's on the little finger of the right hand, Red."

Malone leaned over the grave. "The finger is gone!"

Wabistan caught Blaise's eye and nodded. "Tete-Blanche is a thief! When he kills he steals."

"Good-by, Bobby!" Finlay's grief was too deep for outward sign.

"It may be weeks! It may be months! It may be years, Isadore! But some day you'll pay to me for that dead-boy, there!"

The survey had been under way for two weeks. Two of Wabistan's sons were working for Finlay as canoeemen and the old Indian often came to the camp with news of his secret search for Tete-Blanche, Tetu and Kinebik. But Isadore's private assassin and the medicine man had disappeared like river mist before the sun.

"Tete-Blanche is somewhere in the islands but none will say they have seen him. They have fear," announced Wabistan to Blaise as his canoe slid in to the beach one day in early July. "Your ears must be ever listening for he is waiting for a chance to strike."

"When he comes, we will fill him with lead," laughed Finlay.

The Indian scowled. "Like Ottawa-wok, the gray owl, he will move in the night and when he strikes there will be no sound."

Finlay had mapped the head of the great lake and was working west toward the post.

It was two hours before dawn of a morning when Finlay had taken the last watch. Stars and moon were blanketed by drift. With Flame sleeping beside him Garry sat, back against a birch, rifle across knees, in gloom so velvet thick that it seemed to the man on-guard it could be sliced with a knife.

"What a night for a stalk, Monsieur Tete-Blanche!" muttered Garry. "If you know where we are, you're missing a trick, my friend. But it'll be just too bad if this seventy pounds of dynamite smells one of you out and hops on him. You won't see him but he'll reach you—plenty! Eh, Flame, old partner!"

Finlay reached a hand to the wire-haired back of the sleeping dog beside him.

The airedale grunted with contentment and, for a space, lay sprawled over Garry's legs while the man he worshiped crooned into a hairy ear. Then, of a sudden, the iron muscles hardened along his spine and the coarse back hair lifted.

"He's winded something!" Finlay muttered, with a quick tug on the raw-hide running to the sleeping Red's wrist.

As two invisible shapes moved to Finlay's side the aroused dog split the thick silence with his brittle challenge.

"That'll worry 'em!" muttered Red. "Stop 'em in their tracks! Hear anything?"

"Not a thing! Flame winded them! You'd better stiffen up the boys while Blaise and I listen here."

Red moved silently away while the enraged dog charged deeper into the forest.

"Flame'll keep them guessing, Blaise!" muttered Finlay. "He'll rip chunks out of the first one he noses out! They'll have no chance to shoot or use a knife on him tonight."

Presently Red returned. "The boys are all right. They're hot for a fight! Hear anything?"

"Flame's working this way, now! Hear that?"

There was the unmistakable sound of something moving through thick brush.

"He's nosed some of them out and turned them!" whispered Malone. "They're worried—and don't know they're headed straight for us!"

"Where's Blaise?" asked Finlay. But Blaise was not beside them. "The cat! He can see in the dark! He's gone to meet Flame! You move over near the boys while I take the shore!"

Nearer worked the roaring airedale nosing out the trail in the night. "Strange," muttered Finlay, "they should make so much noise! From the way they travel they must be stampeded." Shortly there was a crash of brush in front of him. He raised his pistol. Then a heavy body floundered past.

"Hell!" The cocked gun dropped to the side.

Finlay receives an anonymous letter suggesting that the six men were not drowned as reported. Suspicion prevails that Isadore, rich fur man, has made a gold strike and aims to keep prospectors out of the country at any cost. The three

The beast plunged on, followed by the airedale, and his hoofs clopped on the stones as he took the lake-shore.

"There was a laugh from the gloom. "By gar, Ross!" chuckled Blaise. "We need dat moose meat bad!"

CHAPTER VIII

The survey party were squatted on their heels around their supper fire screened from observation by shore alders and scrub. Young Moise Wabistan had just arrived with the rumor that Kinebik was secretly making medicine again and the Montagnais were growing restless.

"Were does he pitch his medicine tent?" asked Blaise.

"It is a secret for he fears my father."

"What are the spirits telling the Montagnais?"

"The spirits say that the 'Eye with Three Legs' you look through to make the picture of the lake is the eye of Matchi-Manitou, the Evil Spirit. Kinebik warns that the spirits tell him many Montagnais will die this Long Snows because the Eye has come to Waswanipi."

Blaise's face was shadowed with foreboding as he interpreted the reply to his friends. "Dat look bad for us! Kinebik make plentee troubl' wid dat story," he said ominously.

"The transit an evil eye!" Garry exclaimed. "Don't they see that Tete-Blanche is behind that?"

Blaise asked the question of the worried Moise, then turned to Finlay. "He say dat a child who watch you look through the 'Eye with Three Legs' has died. Kinebik tells them it was the Evil Eye that sickened him."

"Blaise," said Garry, nursing his chin with a hand, "I guess we'll have to put the fear of Matchi-Manitou into this medicine man or he'll soon have some of the Montagnais knifing us in our sleep. Isadore and Tete-Blanche are about all we can handle at present."

Brassard was doing some intensive thinking. At last he asked young Wabistan in Cree: "Have you heard when Kinebik makes his medicine again?"

"Some say when the moon is again round. My father will know when the secret word passes. His knife is already sharp."

Blaise nodded. "I will go with Chief Wabistan."

Moise and his brother, Michel, nervously found each other's eyes as Blaise repeated the conversation to the white men.

Later, they sat smoking inside the rim of the shore alders beside small smudge fires, for the mosquitoes were ravenous.

Blaise slowly removed his pipe and squinted into the west. At length he announced: "Cano' comin'!"

The others followed Brassard's pointing finger while Finlay went to the tent for his binoculars, returned and adjusted the focus. In the distance the dripping paddle of the canoe man flashed blood-red from the water.

Later, from the shifting course of the boat it was evident that the paddler was searching the shores. Twice he disappeared to enter bays, only to reappear and continue his course.

"He hunt for somet'ing," said Blaise, when finally the canoe turned abruptly and headed straight for the camp. "Dat somet'ing is us."

"Have a look, Moise," said Finlay handing over the glasses. "Do you recognize him?"

Young Wabistan, looked through the binoculars and shook his head. "He's coming from Isadore's," observed Red. "Now what?"

The canoe slid in to the beach and the swart paddler, little more than a boy, stepped out with a "Kekway!" He remained by his boat while the men back at the smudge fires rose.

"Bo-jo!" returned Blaise, joining the young Indian whose nervous eyes watched Brassard's crag-like face as if he feared an assault.

"What's this, Red?" queried Garry as they followed Blaise to the beach. "A trick of Isadore's?"

"Sure! Wonder how he found us! We must be over forty miles from the post. Look! He's got a message wrapped in that skin he's handing to Blaise."

"He come from Isadore's place," explained Blaise. "Moise say, now, he see him at de trade. He carry dis lettair to you." Blaise handed Garry the skin wrapper the boy had given him.

"What do you suppose this is?" Garry asked Red. He opened the wrapper and stared in surprise at the folded sheets of blue note paper it contained. A faint fragrance met his nostrils.

Red grinned widely at the scowling Blaise. "Is this lad a fast worker?" he chuckled. "I'll tell the world he is."

With mixed feelings of elation and suspicion Garry turned the closely written sheets and saw at the foot of the last page the name, Lise Demarais. Why had she written him? What was behind the sending of this boy forty miles to find the survey party? Again he saw her velvet-black eyes mock him, then furtively study him; later to fill with dread of the sinister face of Tete-Blanche peering through the doorway. He read:

"Dear Mr. Finlay: "Louis, whose Indian name is Mikisiss, Little Eagle, is carrying this to you. He is absolutely trustworthy and devoted to me. I saved his life last year in the 'flu' epidemic. No one here knows that he is searching for your camp. He is supposed to be away sturgeon fishing."

"Of course, I know, after what you saw and did with my glass that night, that you suspect Jules Isadore. Just why you are here on the lake I do not know. Jules thinks you are prospectors who have heard that he has struck rich placer bars on the Waswanipi and are going to investigate under cover of a survey of the lake."

"However that may be, I have got to make you trust and believe in me for without your help I am lost. First, I believe in you—that you're a gentleman and a brave man. Behind your banter there was something in your eyes, something staunch and unafraid. That is why I'm sending this strange letter; for your life and my future are at stake. Jules Isadore fears that you may know and report to the authorities. He's playing a desperate game for high stakes. He has ordered Tete-Blanche, the half breed you saw that night in the doorway, to follow your party until the chance offers to murder you—every man. Then he will send word to the railroad that you were drowned. But he can't let the Montagnais see this—have any proof. What has saved you, thus far, is the presence, with you, of Wabistan's sons. He doesn't wish to attack the treaty-chief's sons. He is waiting until the boys are away. Keep Wabistan's sons with you! But I beg of you if you value your lives, leave this country before August."

"I've got to go with you. It's my only chance. If you'll take me to the Hudson's Bay post at Matagami, I can get out from there. Jules doesn't dare make trouble with the Hudson's Bay people."

"I realize to the full that you will suspect treachery—think I'm doing this for Jules and am a callous creature who would lure you into an ambush. But I beg you to trust me—give me a chance to tell my story—just one chance. I know this sounds wild, but I'm desperate. Just tell Louis the reply is: 'Yes!' That will be sufficient. And I'll be at the white sand beach, behind the lopstick point, two miles east of the post, early Friday afternoon. I swear to you I'll not be followed for it is Corinne's and my private swimming beach. We go often and Isadore has told them he'd shoot any man who was caught following us."

"Bring your men as a guard if you doubt me but I implore you, Garry Finlay, to meet me for I'm in ghastly trouble and you are my only hope. What I know will aid you in getting out of this country alive."

"Corinne knows nothing of this letter. She hates Jules Isadore but I dare not trust her. Louis cannot read English so is ignorant of its contents. If you say, 'Yes!' and anything prevents your reaching there Friday, leave a note under the white quartz rock on the edge of the beach stating when you will come and Louis will get it. For God's sake, Garry Finlay, don't think this note is an Isadore trick and I'm such a low beast. I'll kill myself rather than stay here through the summer. I've got to get out! I've got to get out!"

"Lise Demarais."

Farmer Needed No Help In Convincing Himself

Old Farmer Robinson broke his plow, so he decided to borrow one from Farmer Brown.

On the way to the Brown farm he started thinking: "I wonder if old Brown will let me take his plow."

As he got near to the neighboring farm he thought: "I doubt if he will lend me that plow."

Then as he knocked at the farmhouse door: "No, I'm certain he won't lend it to me."

Farmer Brown came to the door, smiled and asked, "Well, what can I do for you?"

"I just came to say," snorted Robinson, "that you can keep your bloomin' plow!"

FIRST-AID to the AILING HOUSE

Rough Concrete Floor.
 A CONCRETE floor of a cellar is usually laid with no special smoothing of the surface, and may be too rough for dancing. One way to smooth it is to have it ground down with a floor machine, such as is used for finishing terrazzo floors. The job can be done by a flooring contractor at no great cost; his only charge will be for time. It is sometimes thought that the same effect can be had by laying a surface of concrete over the old floor. This is possible only under certain conditions, however. Concrete is not sticky, and a new layer will not bond on top of an old one without making special preparation. To secure a bond between the two, the surface of the old concrete must be roughened by gouging with a cold chisel or a pointed hammer. New concrete in hardening will then become attached to the old, and the two will become practically one. Before laying the new concrete, the old floor must be thoroughly soaked with water, and as soon as the surface hardens, it must be wet with water and kept wet for several days. This can be done by covering it with a layer of sand, or with old burlap bags that are frequently sprinkled. In this continued dampness the cement will "cure" and attain full density, whereas if it dries out too quickly the coating will be soft and powdery.

Drying Out a Cellar.
 Being in contact with the earth, the walls and floor of a cellar will remain at about the same unchanging temperature. In humid weather the masonry will be cooler than the air, and condensation will take place on it as warm and damp air is chilled by the contact. Condensation will often be so heavy that pools of water may collect on the floor. This can sometimes be overcome by running a low fire in the heater. Another method is ventilation. For this, opening the cellar windows may not serve, for being in the upper parts of the walls, drafts through them do not disturb the mass of damp air lying on the floor. To get the air circulation that is needed, an electric fan can be placed at one end of the cellar, blowing along the floor toward open windows at the other end. This should be done on dry days. In humid weather, and at night, cellar windows should be kept closed to keep out damp air.

Calcium chloride is excellent for the drying of cellar dampness due to condensation, using it according to the method that I described in this column recently.

House Insulation.
 Question: My attic is open, and has no floor; entrance is through a trap-door. If I put rock wool between the rafters, what would happen should the roof leak? How can it be kept from absorbing moisture from the house air? Should the attic be ventilated? If I cut holes in the ceilings of the rooms below, would heat pass to the attic and make the rooms cooler?

Answer: For an open attic insulation is best placed between the floor beams. Rock wool should be laid in four inches thick covered with paper to keep out dust. There should be louvers or windows in the attic walls for continuous ventilation all summer. Holes in the ceilings would not be practical.

Bulged Glass Panels.
 Question: I have a number of art glass panels in doors and windows that have become bulged. Can they be flattened without removing them from the frames?

Answer: You will probably find that the panels will come out without difficulty, which would be the best thing to do. If you cut boards the sizes of the panels and put one on each side, it might be possible to flatten the glass by applying pressure. The lead joints between the pieces of glass should be soft enough to allow for forcing them back into position.

Crocheted Things Help Solve Problem of Christmas Gifts

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

KNITTERS and crocheters have gone into partnership with fashion on a vast scale this season.

Now that the movement is on, women who crochet or knit are finding the perfect answer to their Christmas gift problems in these erstwhile "homely arts" which, this season, have come triumphantly into their own.

The play of imagination brought to bear in interpreting the knit-and-crochet theme in modern costume design is winning the admiration of the fashion world. One of the happiest outcomes of the present craze for things knitted is intriguing hat and bag sets like the stunning two-piece shown to the left in the illustration. It is almost unbelievable that so much chic and charm can be achieved at so little expenditure of time and cost of material. This set is easily made and the heavy cotton bouillasse rug yarn of which it is made is amazingly inexpensive. You can get this yarn in deep shades or in delectable pastels. Be assured that the fortunate recipient of this cunning calot and bag will thrill with joy at sight of it, the more so because it is "hand-made."

A gay little fatterer is the head scarf pictured in the oval above. You'll admit it is in perfect tune with the Christmas spirit. This pretty crocheted fantasy was designed and made by the radio songstress, Fran Allison. Not only is it entitled to a high fashion rating but added to its prettiness and its chic is its kindly service in protecting smartly coiffed heads from pranksome breezes. The happiness it will bring to a friend when Santa delivers it Christmas morning will more than repay you for the "labor of love" in making it.

Guaranteed to make "Merry Christmas" merrier for the someone among your friends who receives it is the most attractive striped crochet weskit shown to the right in this group. The "original" is worked in shades of brown, beige and white with border trimming of solid crochet. However, there are other color schemes that will strike an equally pleasing note such as, for instance, holly red, pine green and vivid yellow with highlights of white or flashes of starry-night blue. It may be worn over blouses or as a vestee—with jacket suits.

Well, and look who's here below in the picture! It's a darling soft cuddly little poodle dog with a soft ball, all done in crochet and just waiting to make the little tots in your home chuckle with glee. Just for fun, crochet these toys of wool or mercerized crochet cotton for the little folks you wish to remember at holiday time. These are exactly the kind of toys that children treasure long after baby days, and mothers like them because they are washable and have no sharp corners to injure "wee little darlings" while they play.

For that list of friends whom you would gladden with just a simple little gift make up a series of little boutonnières of hair ornaments of crocheted flowers. You can turn them out in a jiffy if you are a fast crocheter. Or, why not give a crocheted jewelry set? To wear with sweaters you can find cunning necklaces of crocheted flowers strung together with chainstitch crochet. Some feature bracelets to match; or clips, or both. You can make these trinkets in "no time" if you are a fast crocheter, and they make lovely gifts.

The church needs to cleanse its rolls of all unbelievers, all hangers-on, and get back to the purity which it had when only those were received who were manifestly "added" by the Lord (v. 47).

Such folk have many interests which bind them together in fellowship, devotion, and service. The early church was interested in sound doctrinal teaching (v. 42), an excellent thing. They had fellowship in prayer (v. 42); we need that too. They had gladness of heart (v. 46); do we not need a renewal of the song of the Lord in our midst?

They had such fervent love for each other that they established a communal system of sharing with one another, something which God had never commanded and which apparently failed with them, for it was later abandoned. But the point is that they really did love each other and thus showed their true discipleship (see lesson of last Sunday).

II. A Center of Christian Ministry (Eph. 4:11).
 The church is God's chosen depository for spiritual gifts, among them being the special ministries mentioned here. The Holy Spirit calls men as He chooses. Blessed is the church which recognizes His choice of teachers, evangelists, preachers, and leaders and gives them liberty to serve the Lord in their calling.

It is God who calls men for these various activities in His vineyard. Self-appointed or man-chosen leaders and preachers are destined to fail, but God's men may be assured of His blessing and power.

III. A Place of Spiritual Growth (Eph. 4:12-16).
 The purpose of the gifts of the Spirit is the edifying and building up of believers. A church should always be evangelistic in its efforts. The pastor should be a soul-winner, but essentially his ministry is to so edify and instruct believers that they may go out and win others to Christ.

Verses 13 to 16 tell us how this "perfecting of the saints" moves forward. There is unity of the faith and a growth in knowledge, a steadiness which keeps believers from being led astray by error or the cleverness of men. Thus kept from drifting, and being steadily enriched in knowledge of the truth, the believer grows up to spiritual manhood. Do not miss the beauty and helpfulness of verses 15 and 16. Like the body "fitly framed and knit together," the church of Christ is to be a perfectly co-ordinated organism, every member performing its perfect service in building up the body in love for the glory of its Head—Christ.

THE NATURE AND WORK OF THE CHURCH

LESSON TEXT—Acts 2:41-47; Ephesians 4:11-15.
 GOLDEN TEXT—Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it.—Ephesians 5:25.

The church, which is so much the center of life for Christians, is not as well understood as it should be. We have come to regard it as just one organization among many competing for the attention and interest of men, when it is really a divine, living organism established by Christ as His Body and representing Him in this world. Our lesson presents significant truth for both study and teaching. The church is

I. A Fellowship of Believers (Acts 2:41-47).
 The church is made up of those who are saved (v. 47), those who have received the Word by faith and witnessed a good confession of their faith in Christ (v. 41). This is a fact to be remembered in a time when there is so much laxness in receiving members into the church. It is not a religious or social club. It is not a rallying place for those who wish to work for some economic, political, or social project. It is not a gathering of good people who wish to share common interests.

The church needs to cleanse its rolls of all unbelievers, all hangers-on, and get back to the purity which it had when only those were received who were manifestly "added" by the Lord (v. 47).

Such folk have many interests which bind them together in fellowship, devotion, and service. The early church was interested in sound doctrinal teaching (v. 42), an excellent thing. They had fellowship in prayer (v. 42); we need that too. They had gladness of heart (v. 46); do we not need a renewal of the song of the Lord in our midst?

They had such fervent love for each other that they established a communal system of sharing with one another, something which God had never commanded and which apparently failed with them, for it was later abandoned. But the point is that they really did love each other and thus showed their true discipleship (see lesson of last Sunday).

II. A Center of Christian Ministry (Eph. 4:11).
 The church is God's chosen depository for spiritual gifts, among them being the special ministries mentioned here. The Holy Spirit calls men as He chooses. Blessed is the church which recognizes His choice of teachers, evangelists, preachers, and leaders and gives them liberty to serve the Lord in their calling.

It is God who calls men for these various activities in His vineyard. Self-appointed or man-chosen leaders and preachers are destined to fail, but God's men may be assured of His blessing and power.

III. A Place of Spiritual Growth (Eph. 4:12-16).
 The purpose of the gifts of the Spirit is the edifying and building up of believers. A church should always be evangelistic in its efforts. The pastor should be a soul-winner, but essentially his ministry is to so edify and instruct believers that they may go out and win others to Christ.

Verses 13 to 16 tell us how this "perfecting of the saints" moves forward. There is unity of the faith and a growth in knowledge, a steadiness which keeps believers from being led astray by error or the cleverness of men. Thus kept from drifting, and being steadily enriched in knowledge of the truth, the believer grows up to spiritual manhood. Do not miss the beauty and helpfulness of verses 15 and 16. Like the body "fitly framed and knit together," the church of Christ is to be a perfectly co-ordinated organism, every member performing its perfect service in building up the body in love for the glory of its Head—Christ.
