

Worst Storm In Many Years Blocks Roads and Railroads

VISITED THIS REGION AS WELL AS THROUGHOUT MICHIGAN, SUNDAY NIGHT AND MONDAY

Northern Michigan received its worst snow storm and blizzard starting Sunday night and continuing unabated for 24 hours. During the storm snow plows were useless and not until Wednesday was highway and railroad traffic back to normal.

In the winter 38 years of residence in East Jordan this was by far the worst snow storm we have ever experienced. To illustrate, the writer resides on North Main st. From Monday morning until Tuesday morning about 10:00 a. m., not a person passed the residence, then Chief of Police Simmons, checking the streets, came ambling down from the north, waist high in the snow.

The county plows of both Charlevoix and Antrim had a man's size job to re-open traffic, and the State Highway Dept. had an equally hard task. The Boyne City Road was not opened until 10:00 o'clock Tuesday night. The plows spending more than eight hours tunneling around the Noble, Kamradt corners.

R. F. D. Carrier Archie Howe broke a record of some 23 years by failing to report for work at the Postoffice in the morning. Last Monday was the first he failed to get to the Postoffice either by horse or auto.

John White, who fires The Herald Building heating plant in the early morning, rode the blizzard down town only to find the front blocked with the unpleasant task of burrowing in to the basement.

AROUND MICHIGAN (From Petoskey News, Tuesday) At South Haven, three young Buchanan residents drowned when their automobile swept off a curve in blinding snow and plunged into Black river. At least five other deaths were attributed to the weather.

The Flint river swelled above its banks, and Sheriff's officers last night rescued two children marooned when the Cass river overflowed.

Lights were out in homes of many communities, an dthe Michigan Bell Telephone Co., reported general disruption of service in an area from S. Charles to Bay City. The Bay City radio station was knocked out completely by high winds.

Schools were closed in many areas, including Alpena and Ionia, and mail delivery was disrupted as snow drifts mounted high. Alpena was buried under the efforts of 30 plows, der a 15 inch fall.

Ionia county roads were blocked except for U. S. 16 and M-21. Transportation suffered heavily. Ferry service was suspended on the Straits of Mackinac and the Lake Michigan line connecting at Ludington. In most areas only one or two of scheduled bus runs were able to get through yesterday. Trains were reported en cases were stopped.

At Cadillac, 25 motorists were stranded all night at a hamburger stand a mile and a half south of the city. Wherever automobiles were forced to stop they were virtually buried under mountainous drifts.

At Grand Rapids, Kent county draft board No. 1 was snowed in and unable to interview prospective draftees.

NOT MUCH NEWS As a result of the storm, these columns contain very little local news. "Correspondence" is out, and the local column is meager.

TRAVERSE CITY TO BECOME AN INDUCTION CENTER Captain L. B. Kiblinger, Commanding officer of the medical unit stationed in Traverse announced yesterday that some time in April Traverse will become an induction center with selectees who pass their physical examinations being sent directly from Traverse City to other army camps. Present procedure is to send men home for a period after they have passed their exams before being assigned for active training. Approximately 1600 men will pass before the medical examiners here this month. Kiblinger stated.

CARD OF THANKS We wish to express our sincere appreciation of the many acts of kindness extended by neighbors and other friends during the illness and at the death of our beloved husband and father.

125 Billion Debt Approved by House

On Tuesday the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill to increase the federal debt from $65,000,000,000 to the record high of $125,000,000,000. The rate of war spending is due to send the debt to $70,000,000,000 by June - $5 billion over planned ceiling.

Drastic cuts were called for in all non-war expenditures. This peak debt represents approximately the assessed valuation of all property in the U. S. and must be met if we are to carry on the war to a victorious conclusion.

Government Affixes "Ceiling" on Pork

Washington - The government on Tuesday, temporarily froze wholesale prices of 90 percent of the nation's pork products, including the ham and bacon at the highest levels prevailing since March 3 and 7.

The OPA said that with top prices of $12.75 a hundred pounds currently prevailing for hogs in Chicago, prices received by the farmers exceed 110 percent of parity.

Products covered under the new ceiling include regular hams cured, smoked, baked or boiled; baked and boned skinned hams, picnic hams, shoulders, pork loins, canned or packaged spiced luncheon meat made entirely from pork, slab bacon, Canadian bacon, sliced bacon, fat backs, spare ribs and canned or packaged spiced ham.

Sausages canned meats, manufactured meats except canned spiced ham and luncheon meat and edible offals are excluded from the ceiling.

Michigan Fire Towers Closed to Visitors

Membership in Michigan's popular "High Climbers" club has been frozen for the duration. The club numbers among its members people from pretty well all over the world and the only requisite for membership is a yen to see Michigan's forest and hills from the top of one of the fire towers where towermen stand a sometimes lonely vigil guarding the state's forest heritage.

A wartime ruling of the Federal Communications Commission barring enemy aliens from short wave radio broadcasting rooms is responsible for closing membership in the High Climbers. Fire towers are now equipped for radio communication in connection with their fire prevention work and since examination of citizenship credentials is not feasible the towers have been closed to the general public.

Hunters Should Take Warning

CHANGES MADE IN FIREARMS LAW BECAME EFFECTIVE JAN. 10TH.

The Conservation Department wishes to call attention to the changes made by the last legislature relative to firearms. The first is found under the "Unlawful Methods of Hunting."

The second change is found under "Permit to carry hunting arms during closed season" and provides "that the permit shall be void from sunset until sunrise in that area north of Townline 12 and west of Saginaw Bay."

This provision makes it definitely illegal to have a rifle or shotgun in any area north of Townline 12 frequented by game during the closed season, from sunset until sunrise.

Both laws are aimed at that small percent of hunters who take game illegally out of season either by hunting from a car or by shining at night, and should work no hardship on the true sportsman.

convinced that we must do without - even in 1942 - such commonplace commodities as refrigerators, washing machines, stokers, radios and griddles? The mechanical nature of modern warfare plus the plain fact that we are five years behind the Germans in converting our industrial plants for war production, is bringing revolutionary upsets to our easy-going mode of living.

In 95 days we learn that democracy must become dictatorial to save itself from dictatorship. That we must deprive ourselves of freedoms so that we save them, that a dozen expedientary forces and our home units will require upwards of ten million men by 1944, that tens of thousands of women must replace men in war plants everywhere. What a change!

The prospect of outright shortages in many lines of civilian goods has brought on a wave of hoarding. January requisites were far ahead of January, 1941.

Economists tell us that the national income for 1942 will be approximately 102 billions, taxes and savings 22 billions, leaving 80 billions to be spent. Yet the production of civilian goods, because of war priorities, will decline to 65 billions.

Here will come the pinch; 15 billions looking for a market that does not exist! MORE BUYING POWER vs. fewer things to buy. That's the making of inflation.

Five dollar silk shirts absorbed some of the World War dollars. Railroad and bus transportation may combine to save Michigan's vacation land from a wartime depression. Certainly we Americans are going to spend more money for relaxation in 1942 than we did in 1941, surprising as this may sound. It will be the normal reaction to war nerves, and a healthful prescription to take.

The home-town merchant who makes the grade in this critical period of fast-made adjustments will be the merchant who keeps his head and uses it, too.

Positive thinking, not the negative thinking, is needed today.

All thinking must be subjected to one paramount objective: Winning the war.

War is a temporary interruption to the normal way of life, a call for common sacrifices to be made willingly and cheerfully.

All this in 95 days! We're taking it on the chin now. Soon we're going to be giving it, blow for blow, sacrifice for sacrifice, to Adolph, Bruno, and Charlie Hirohito. We peace-loving Americans are getting mad.

How You Can Help The Defense Movement Emphasizing the broadness of the defense program, Ed Reuling, chairman of the local defense council, listed today things which the average citizen can do to aid in the defense movement - things in addition to enrolling as air raid wardens, auxiliary firemen and policemen, or in the other divisions of the Citizens' Defense Corps protective services.

Air Wardens Are Appointed

ONE TO EVERY 500 PERSONS IS SPECIFIED BY NATIONAL SET-UP

Donald Watkins has been appointed as Chief County Air Warden for Charlevoix County by Col. Harold Furlong of the Michigan Defense Council. When interviewed Mr. Watkins explained the set-up as follows: "Though we may never have to put our training to actual use nevertheless the government requires each and every county, city or town in the U. S. to be prepared for all eventualities. Air wardens are appointed on the basis of one warden to every 500 persons thus giving Charlevoix County with 13,000 population, 26 air wardens in all. Six are allotted to Boyne City, Charlevoix, and East Jordan with one each being appointed in Ironton, Boyne Falls, Norwood, Horton Bay, Charle, Walloon, St. James and Bay Shore. The Senior and 1st Junior Warden in each place is, where possible, appointed from the American Legion. One man from each service club, one from each school and two from the business district.

In East Jordan the roster reads: Senior Warden, Wern J. Whiteford, Am. Legion; Junior Wardens: Ed Kamradt, Am. Legion; Al Burkland, Rotary Club; Wm. A. Porter, Business Dist.; Ted Malpass, Industrial Dist.; Alex. Stevenson, School.

Air wardens are required to take several courses to prepare them for their duties including First Aid, a course in Incendiary Bomb Extinguishing, Air Raid Drill, and others not fully set as yet. There are 11 lookout points established in the county which will be put to immediate use if the need arises. All Michigan Bell Telephone operators are instructed to hold all lines free for Air Wardens in case of emergency.

air raid precautions - and then there are community activities in which every one of us can participate. The civilian defense program is broad; the tasks are tremendous, time is short.

If adults have not already done so, we urge them to visit and register their services at the Civilian Defense Volunteer Office. A record of special skills or preferences is being set up, on which we will draw when needed. Persons who are untrained may start immediately attending schools which provide basic training in first aid, fire prevention, gas defense, civilian defense organization and military drill.

Not all of us can be air raid wardens or auxiliary fire fighters. The unglamorous community service jobs are doubly important just now, because the morale and health of all the people must be maintained. Some of the most valuable contributions to national defense may be made immediately in the health, social welfare, recreation and youth fields.

Every day we are asked, "What can I do for civilian defense?" Until the time arrives for active duty we can all give an honest day's work every day, whether we are engaged in civilian protection or working on the weapons of war. It is as simple as that. Do the things you ordinarily would do - only do more of them. Make your home a sound home. Family security is vital. Refrain from hoarding waste or other commodities. Eliminate food and fire hazards.

Form discussion groups or neighborhood projects. Total war requires total defense. There is a part for all of us. - Ed Reuling, Chairman.

Apples are universal, grown in every state except Florida by about two million of the nation's six million farmers. Hence, they are available without the cost of transporting from distant commercial "belts".

Reduced Rates For East Jordan

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO. ANNOUNCES REDUCTION

The Michigan Bell Telephone Company announces that East Jordan is among 88 exchanges where local service rates will be reduced as a result of a uniform rate schedule which goes into effect with billing dates beginning April 1 at its exchanges of less than 10,000 main telephone stations.

C. L. Johnson, manager for the company, said that one-party business here and two-party business rates rates will be reduced 38c a month 30 cents monthly, while switching charges for business and residence service stations will be cut 8 cents monthly each.

Johnson said that local service charges of about 28,000 customers in the 88 exchanges will be reduced a total of $134,000 a year as a result of the rate adjustment. The uniform schedule is contained in a recent order of the Michigan Public Service Commission growing out of negotiations with the company.

In effect, the order sets the same maximum rates for exchanges of comparable size, Johnson said. It classifies exchanges of less than 10,000 main stations into seven groups and establishes maximum rates for various types of services in each group.

The seven groups are: Those with 100 or less main stations; 101 to 400 main stations (East Jordan); 401 to 800; 801 to 1,600; 1,601 to 3,000; 3,001 to 6,000; and 6,001 to 10,000 main stations.

In regard to exchanges where existing order, the Commission said no rate increases will be granted "except upon application by the company and after due notice and hearing."

"Due largely to the unequal growth of the exchanges since they were last classified in 1919 and the failure subsequently to regroup them," the smaller exchanges reflects a rather incongruous condition.

The exchanges, with 10,000 stations were found to be without important irregularities because most of the rates at the larger exchanges have been adjusted during recent years. Therefore, they have been excluded from the study.

STAR DISTRICT FIRST AID POSTPONED TILL MARCH 16

Due to the storm Monday it was impossible to hold the First Aid organization class scheduled for March 9. B. C. Mollenkamp, County Agent, announces that, weather permitting, the class will be held next Monday evening, March 16, in the Star District Community Hall. Everyone interested in taking this course is urged to be present.

Keep Pigs Clean For High Profit

A well-planned reception for newborn pigs often marks the difference between loss and profit. V. A. Freeman of the Michigan State College husbandry department warns. Not only should the farrowing pen be scrubbed and disinfected, he advises, but the sow as well should be scrubbed with soap and water just previous to placing her in the clean pen.

Such precautions, and using pasture that has been rotated to keep pigs from ground that has not been plowed since last used for hog pasture, are the first essentials for raising pigs free from round worms and pinworms. Placing sows in their individual pens on the 11th day after breeding usually gives them time to get acquainted with their quarters and feel at home before the restlessness that precedes farrowing. Gradually reduce the feed allowance by one-half and include more laxative feeds as bran and less heavy grain like corn. A small handful of epsom salts may be put in the feed if the sow is constipated.

The pen must be warm if the weather is cold. Electric brooders made from a large light bulb and reflector one foot above the floor in a corner of the nest is a great help. In extreme weather or with a restless sow, the pigs may be placed in a lined box as soon as they come. They should be allowed to nurse within the first hour and be returned at least within each three hours.

Give luke-warm water only during the first day after farrowing. Feed lightly with bulky feeds like bran and ground alfalfa the next day. Give water, as much and as often as they want it. Increase the feed gradually, taking 5 to 7 days to get the sow back to what was a normal feed before farrowing. Increase the feed thereafter according to the needs of the pigs. It is a good plan to self-feed sows with 6 or more pigs after they are two weeks old.

Treasury Asks 7 1/2 Billion Tax Boost To Carry Out U. S. 'Victory Program'; Sweeping Soviet Advances Continue As New Assaults Puncture Nazi Lines

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau as he presented a new 7 billion 610 million dollar tax program to congress. If approved by congress, the new taxes proposed by the treasury, added to the present total, would yield approximately 23 billion 487 million dollars in 1942. This would be an average of slightly more than $175 for every man, woman and child in the nation.

TAXES:

War Not Cheap

The job of digging $23,000,000,000 in tax money out of the pockets of the people of the United States had been placed squarely before Secretary Morgenthau of the treasury, and he had placed a plan before the congress to accomplish this.

He had prefaced his announcement of the plan with the statement that it was a "victory program" and that "war was not cheap, but a million times cheaper to win than to lose."

The plan had called for a general doubling of income taxes between the bottom limit and $10,000, increase of corporate taxes, increase of excise taxes, and a raising of the social security payment rates.

One innovation was the secretary's suggestion that at least a portion of the tax be raised at the source, employers withholding weekly amounts from their workers' pay and turning it over to the treasury monthly.

Secretary Morgenthau admitted this might mean paying on two years' taxes at the same time after about July 1, but pointed out that it would reduce the burden the following March, and also would prevent taxpayers from spending in inflationary avenues to purchase goods that could not be produced, in sufficient quantity to meet the demand.

The first reactions of congressmen in general had been favorable. It was doubtful if the eventual tax bill would emerge in exactly the form as presented by Secretary Morgenthau, but that something substantially like it would be adopted was considered certain.

Samples of the Morgenthau schedules called for single persons making a net of $2,000, now paying $117, to pay $230; for married persons making $2,200 with no dependents, now paying $61, to pay $118; for married persons with two dependents (average family) making a net of $2,700, to pay $64 instead of the present $29.

RUSSIANS:

Increase Pace

It had been expected that as the spring thaws began to set in the Russians would find the going more difficult, especially as Hitler made ready for his "spring offensive."

Some wonder had been caused when the Germans began issuing bulletins telling of enormous numbers of Red troops being shoved up toward the front, reports which were more or less confirmed from Red sources.

There were two possible solutions to this—either the Germans were preparing their people for the expected report of the loss of the Sixteenth field army, which had been trapped in the Staraya Russa district, or they were trying to convince the United States and Britain that Russia did not need and could not use additional lease-lend aid.

However this might be, observers had considered it more likely that Stalin, having placed a large group of generals in the background posts of training new armies, was putting these into the fight in order to halt the "spring offensive" before it could get going. To the westward the Russian army has captured large quantities of war materials.

It recalled statements of Napoleon and of the Germans themselves during the last war, that conquering the Russians was impossible because of their tremendous manpower, for countless thousands of new troops always appeared on all fronts, just when one thought them well beaten. There were many who had expressed the belief that Germany, instead of driving the Russians back this spring, might, if forced to a heavy battle on two fronts, even be knocked rapidly out of the war altogether. Validity of this belief will be determined in the next few weeks.

JAVA:

New Psychology

The word "offensive" had become increasingly important in the dictionary of the Allied Nations.

In Washington Chief of Staff General Marshall had struck the keynote, and when the Japs came into Java, and General Wavell was shunted off to India, leaving Dutch Gen. Ter Poorten in charge, almost the first order to the men was to make an offensive out of the defense of the island.

The troops, which included some Americans, British and Australians, but which largely were Dutch and natives, had hurled themselves at the enemy with considerably more force than had been evidenced by the British in either Malaya or Burma, and early successes were reported. However, the estimated 85,000 Japanese troops were able to turn the tide of battle against approximately 50,000 Allied soldiers.

The Japs had landed at three points, the estimate being that 140 warships and transports had been used. One landing was on the Sumatra point of the island, another in the north, central portion, and the third just west of Sourabaya.

Though most observers felt from the first that the battle for Java could have only one end, and though the Dutch, at the outset, were bitter against the United Nations for not having sent sufficient aid, the battle was the first test of the new psychology, to be "on the offensive" instead of the defensive at all times.

The battle for Java marked the closing phase of the beginning of the Southwest Pacific war. Japanese successes in that area, won at a huge cost of man power, were largely the result of overwhelming air superiority.

RIOM:

'Inside Story'

More of the "inside story" of the fall of France and the reasons for it had been aired by outspoken Eduard Daladier, ex-premier who had been placed on trial.

At the same time ex-Generalissimo Maurice Gamelin had stood stiffly at attention, refusing to answer a single question hurled at him by Pierre Caius, the prosecutor.

But Daladier, giving still more impetus to the reports of dissension and lack of co-operation within the nation, charged that the entire war effort of France had been "sabotaged" by the lack of interest of several large steel industries.

He told of two concerns which had been approached by the government long before the war to take part in a government-private industry combine which would have set up huge armament works in northern Africa.

There, Daladier had testified, the government would have been able to have strengthened her armed forces.

But the industrialists approached refused to consider the plan until France was at war with Germany, when it was too late, he had said.

NELSON:

How to Spend

Donald Nelson, WPB head, charged with the job of spending an apparently unending succession of billions of dollars, had issued a document called Directive No. 2 which outlined to the world his theories of how it should be done.

In the first place, he has ended competitive bidding on war work. He is trying, he had announced, to get the small plant, not now engaged in war work, into the war picture.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after a long period of world-wide acceptance as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, or played out. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

Secretary Morgenthau admitted this might mean paying on two years' taxes at the same time after about July 1, but pointed out that it would reduce the burden the following March, and also would prevent taxpayers from spending in inflationary avenues to purchase goods that could not be produced, in sufficient quantity to meet the demand.

The first reactions of congressmen in general had been favorable. It was doubtful if the eventual tax bill would emerge in exactly the form as presented by Secretary Morgenthau, but that something substantially like it would be adopted was considered certain.

Samples of the Morgenthau schedule called for single persons making a net of $2,700, now paying $117, to pay $230; for married persons making $2,200 with no dependents, now paying $61, to pay $118; for married persons with two dependents (average family) making a net of $2,700, to pay $64 instead of the present $25.

RUSSIANS:

Increase Pace

It had been expected that as the spring thaws began to set in the Russians would find the going more difficult, especially as Hitler made ready for his "spring offensive."

Some wonder had been caused when the Germans began issuing bulletins telling of enormous numbers of Red troops being shoved up toward the front, reports which were more or less confirmed from Red sources.

There were two possible solutions to this—either the Germans were preparing their people for the expected report of the loss of the Sixteenth field army, which had been trapped in the Staraya Russa district, or they were trying to convince the United States and Britain that Russia did not need and could not use additional lease-lend aid.

However this might be, observers had considered it more likely that Stalin, having placed a large group of generals in the background posts of training new armies, was putting these into the fight in order to halt the "spring offensive" before it could get going. To the westward the Russian army has captured large quantities of war materials.

It recalled statements of Napoleon and of the Germans themselves during the last war, that conquering the Russians was impossible because of their tremendous manpower, for countless thousands of new troops always appeared on all fronts, just when one thought them well beaten.

There were many who had expressed the belief that Germany, instead of driving the Russians back this spring, might, if forced to a heavy battle on two fronts, even be knocked rapidly out of the war altogether. Validity of this belief will be determined in the next few weeks.

JAVA:

New Psychology

The word "offensive" had become increasingly important in the dictionary of the Allied Nations.

In Washington Chief of Staff General Marshall had struck the keynote, and when the Japs came into Java, and General Wavell was shunted off to India, leaving Dutch Gen. Ter Poorten in charge, almost the first order to the men was to make an offensive out of the defense of the island.

The troops, which included some Americans, British and Australians, but which largely were Dutch and natives, had hurled themselves at the enemy with considerably more force than had been evidenced by the British in either Malaya or Burma; and early successes were reported. However, the estimated 85,000 Japanese troops were able to turn the tide of battle against approximately 50,000 Allied soldiers.

The Japs had landed at three points, the estimate being that 140 warships and transports had been used. One landing was on the Sumatra point of the island, another in the north central portion, and the third just west of Sourabaya.

Though most observers felt from the first that the battle for Java could have only one end, and though the Dutch, at the outset, were bitter against the United Nations for not having sent sufficient aid, the battle was the first test of the new psychology, to be "on the offensive" instead of the defensive at all times.

The battle for Java marked the closing phase of the beginning of the Southwest Pacific war. Japanese successes in that area, won at a huge cost of man power, were largely the result of overwhelming air superiority.

RIOM:

'Inside Story'

More of the "inside story" of the fall of France and the reasons for it had been aired by outspoken Eduard Daladier, ex-premier who had been placed on trial.

At the same time ex-Generalissimo Maurice Gamelin had stood stiffly at attention, refusing to answer a single question hurled at him by Pierre Caus, the prosecutor.

But Daladier, giving still more import to the reports of dissension and lack of co-operation within the nation, charged that the entire war effort of France had been "sabotaged" by the lack of interest of several large steel industries.

He told of two concerns which had been approached by the government long before the war to take part in a government-private industry combine which would have set up huge armament works in northern Africa.

There, Daladier had testified, the government would have been able to have strengthened her armed forces. But the industrialists approached refused to consider the plan until France was at war with Germany, when it was too late, he had said.

NELSON:

How to Spend

Donald Nelson, WPB head, charged with the job of spending an apparently unending succession of billions of dollars, had issued a document called Directive No. 2 which outlined to the world his theories of how it should be done.

In the first place, he has ended competitive bidding on war work. He is trying, he had announced, to get the small plant, not now engaged in war work, into the war picture.

War Bonnet for 'Big Joe' Stalin

The head of the Russian Reds has been named honorary chief of the Red Indians, as outstanding warrior for 1941, although the Indians associated with the Indian Confederation admit that Gen. A fine war bonnet, which will go to Stalin, is being presented to Edward Carter, president of the Russian war relief, by Chief Falling Trees at the Indian Confederation pow wow in New York.

THE TRUTH IS TOLD. Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good, diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly perform a waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer morning backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, pain under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won worldwide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

AN ADVENTURER AFTER 2½ YEARS
TO A YOUNG MAN, Harold Northam, now soldiering with a bomber squadron in the West, the names of cities, towns, villages and general locations from which each day's war news of Europe, Asia, Africa and the Far East comes, are familiar.

Ten years ago Northam, then 18, wanted a membership in the Chicago Adventurers' club. He was told he lacked the needed qualifications. He determined to acquire them.

With a capital of $10, he left Chicago for Boston as an attendant on a stock train. In the same capacity he sailed from Boston for Danzig, on a boat carrying steers from Chicago. Leaving the boat at Danzig, he worked his way through much of Russia, including the Ukraine, Moscow, Leningrad, and into Finland; south through the Baltic states and Poland, through Germany, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, France and Spain—working at whatever he could find to do for a day, a week or a month.

From Spain he crossed into Africa, then back to Egypt to Italy, Greece, Turkey, Syria, Iraq, and Arabia. At Port Said he got a job on a boat that brought him back to New York, and then on another boat that took him through Panama to San Francisco and on around the world, with stops in Japan, China, Indo-China, Siam and India.

After 2½ years, he returned to Chicago with a new suit of clothes, a new bag, $10 and the needed qualifications for the Adventurers' club, of which he is now a member.

MAIN STREET IS THE REAL AMERICA
THE MAIN STREETS of America represent more of our national values than do the Broadways, the State streets, the boulevards of our great cities. People of Main street communities are more typical of our American culture. They are, as a class, better educated, with a far higher standard of literacy than is found as the average in the cities.

Our Main streets represent agriculture, the foundation of American production and national wealth. They represent our forests, and very largely our mines. Without these three things, our cities could not exist.

The Main streets of America, serving people of the towns and farms, represent one-half of the people of the nation. From districts represented only by Main streets are sent to the national house of representatives 50 per cent of its members. People represented by our Main streets can constitute a controlling force in national legislation.

Our Main streets are rural America and it is rural America that makes of us a great nation. Without our Main streets, there would be no Broadways or State streets or city boulevards. Main street is the foundation.

IMPERIALISM AND THE PEACE
IMPERIALISM has dominated every peace conference following an international war. The first thought of the victors has been "what can we get—what territory, what resources, what markets—that will strengthen us and weaken our defeated opponents?"

That was true of the peace conference following World War I. The humanitarian ideas President Wilson took to Paris, with the expectation of writing a peace treaty that would end wars, went glimmering when he sat across the table from Lloyd George and Clemenceau.

They had been willing to listen to humanitarian ideas as propaganda to undermine the morale of the enemy people, but not when the enemy had been licked.

As a gesture to President Wilson, they consented to taking enemy territory under mandates, instead of direct annexation, with the provision that such territory was to be administered for the benefit of the mandated people and was not to be fortified.

Japan received the mandate over some 700 Pacific islands under such conditions, but these islands turn up now as Jap air and naval bases.

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill have proposed a basis on which to fix the terms of peace when this war is over. Their proposals sound good now, just as President Wilson's 14 points sounded good in 1917-18. But what will the proposals be when the war is over and the enemy is licked?

It is a fairly safe bet that Lord Vengeance and Lord Imperialism will again dominate the peace conference. If so, both the loser and the winner will eventually pay.

CURRENT CROP OF WEATHER PROPHETS

IN LARGE SECTIONS of America snowfalls have been light during the winter, and long-range weather prophets are telling us we will have a dry summer. Such weather conditions are perfectly all right with people of the cities, until they go to buy food, when they complain about prices. It is fine to enjoy the sunshine, but all sunshine and no rain means poor crops and high living costs. The farmer prays for an adequate mixture of snow, rain and sunshine.

'Man of Peace' Promotes Korean War Against Japs

Dr. Syngman Rhee, President of Exiled Government, Heads Conference in Washington To Plan 'Life and Death' Revolt.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

Washington has just witnessed a most remarkable ceremony. It was what might be called the laying of the cornerstone of a new revolution. Not a mere revolution of ideas, not a scatterbrained plot of wild radicals, but the orderly preparation for a real, powder-and-ball, life-and-death revolt.

The Korean Liberty conference has just met in Washington to commemorate the March, 1919, revolution and make plans for a 1942 revolution.

The most remarkable thing about this first step toward the smashing of a tyrant's power is that its moving spirit is a wistful little figure who describes himself as a man of peace born in the Land of the Morning Calm. He is Syngman Rhee of Korea, president of the Korean government in exile since 1919, and revolutionary since 1905.

With a group of Koreans from Hawaii and others living in the United States, and with the help of a group of American friends who make up the Korean Committee of Los Angeles and Honolulu and the Korean-American council, Dr. Rhee is now busy getting ready for the revolution of 1942.

Korea, Dr. Rhee points out, was the first victim of Japan's long-planned "new order." He foresaw the present war between Japan and America and tried to warn this country. More than a year before the Pearl Harbor attack he said:

"If the Koreans had seen Japan in 1894 as they saw her in 1902, the year of Hideyoshi's unsuccessful invasion of Korea, they would have saved their country and themselves from the plight in which they find themselves today. On the other hand, if the American people had seen Japan in 1894 and 1904 as they see her today, they would have looked askance at the annexation of Korea and would have tried to meet Japan's expansion of sea power which now offers a powerful threat on the other side of the Pacific."

Long Years Of Giving Warnings

This quiet little man who has been imprisoned, tortured, exiled, had a price set on his head by the Japanese, has been haunting international conferences for nearly four decades. At Geneva, at London, in Chungking, he has moved among the statesmen and delegates quietly whispering his warnings, patiently explaining and urging, ceaselessly working for the freedom of his own people and seeking to build the cooperative effort of all free peoples. For many years he has lived in Washington.

"It is one of the great ironies of history," says Dr. Rhee, "that Japanese animosity is now directed particularly against the very nation which broke the shell of her insularity and introduced Japan to modern civilization. When, in 1854, Commodore Matthew Perry negotiated the treaty which marked the first step in opening Japan to foreign commerce and residence, he helped, all unwittingly, to set the people of the Rising Sun in the path which was to bring them later full tilt against the American people."

At the liberty conference just concluded in Washington, three main steps were taken: The Korean declaration of independence of 1919 was reaffirmed; the United States was called on to recognize the provisional government of Korea, and Korean allegiance was declared to the cause of the United Nations.

Without bitterness or recrimination these devoted patriots pointed out that the United States has its obligations to them, for the treaty of peace and amity and mutual protection between the United States and Korea still exists although we stood by without interfering when Japan reached out and "tightened her grip," as Dr. Rhee puts it, on his country back in the days of Theodore Roosevelt.

As the leader of these gentle revolutionists, Dr. Rhee at 67 watches his predictions coming true, he merely feels that the goal is nearer. With the philosophy of his great master—Rhee was educated in a Confucian school—he looks on a world in flames with new courage.

The forest fire will not extinguish itself," he says. But it will be extinguished:

"At long last—perhaps sooner than we dare to hope—" he says, "the democratic forces of the world will thrust Japan back on her islands and peace will reign in the Pacific. In that day, Korea will rejoin the ranks of the free and again become known as the Land of the Morning Calm."

Is the U. S. Complacent About War?

Is America complacent about the war?

That is the great question which is agitating the various agencies of government which consider it their function to stir America to the high pitch necessary for maximum war effort.

The letters which I receive fairly bristle on that subject. Complacent? We aren't complacent, they say, it's you people in Washington who are the complacent ones.

Recently I was in a gathering where three speakers told in great detail what the movie industry was doing as a part of the war effort. It is doing a lot—donating its time and its facilities. Many members of the industry are in Washington with army or navy commissions or on civilian salaries far less than they earn at their regular jobs—like the dollar-a-year men. Some are patriotic. They are too old to join the fighting forces and they want to do their bit. Some, I daresay, like many "parasites" who have swarmed to Washington are here for less altruistic purposes.

War, like patriotism as Dr. Johnson defined it, can be "the last refuge of scoundrels" as well as the medium of the supreme sacrifice.

Whether or not the nation as a whole is complacent is a question which nobody can answer. The real problem which we have before us is to turn a nation, naturally attuned to peace, a nation whose military tradition is limited compared to the countries of Europe. These peoples of different language, race and customs are crowded within narrow frontiers—boundary lines which have been drawn and redrawn in the blood of thousands who were taught from childhood that the word "foreigner" was almost synonymous with the word "enemy."

We have lived and worked and had our being, between two unfortified borders and with two once-friendly oceans to guard us. Suddenly we are being forced to play a part in a world which has accepted "might is right." We know we are mighty. So mighty that it has never been a question in the hearts of even the most-arrogant war lords of whether we could defeat them. Only a question of whether we would make the effort. Whether, in other words, we would be complacent while they "strut and trot their hour upon the stage." History proves that only a short space of time is granted for tyrants to oppress freemen. Longer than that no tyrant has ever existed. And America, once awakened, will number their days.

Conservatives Disagree

There are plenty of conservatives who will contest this statement. They will tell you that SOMEBODY has to foot the bill, that even if Germany and Japan and Italy manage to struggle on with no major military defeats, that unless they are totally victorious they will totally collapse financially.

This viewpoint is expressed by those who believe that eventually the thing will happen that many of us were told would happen long ago. How often did you hear before Pearl Harbor, "Japan is almost broke now, she can't afford to go to war with a major power." Or, "Germany is on the verge of absolute and financial collapse."

Perhaps these orthodox economists are correct. Perhaps it is money that makes the machine gun go as well as the mare, and when the money stops the nations which are on the verge of bankruptcy now will fall like a house of cards. But the new-school thinkers are able to marshal a lot of evidence to support their theory that there are a lot of things that money won't buy and that there are a lot of things which, if you love 'em you don't need money.

Business Contract

By R. H. WILKINSON
(Associated Newspapers—WNU Service.)

DANA MILTON was thinking of the future.

"Look here, Simon," he said, "I've been thinking this thing over and I've come to the conclusion that it won't be good policy for us to become equal partners."

"You mean you don't think we ought to buy the business?"

"It isn't that. I think the business is worth every cent its owners are asking. But you know, Simon, you and I have only known each other a couple of months. True, we worked fine together and were pretty successful on that last proposition. But—well, I just don't think it's good policy for two ambitious young men to put an equal amount of money in a business."

"I get it," said Simon. "Maybe you're right." He looked at Dana craftily. "I'd like to be the one to put the money in, Dana. It was I who discovered the thing."

Dana nodded. "I thought you'd feel that way about it, Simon. And I'm willing to withdraw, provided, of course, that you give me a contract—assure me of a job during the next five years."

"Fair enough," Simon extended his hand. Secretly he was elated. He knew that Dana was a conscientious worker, a good salesman.

Simon and Dana took the insurance company over in May. Within a month's time they discovered it wasn't the profit-paying proposition both had anticipated. It was run down at the heel, so to speak.

Simon was angered and not a little worried. Yet he had put too much money into the thing to let it go.

By fall a little business began to come in and then a little more. During October they broke even. November showed a profit, and December still a greater profit. During January and February the gross business increased in leaps and bounds. Simon, watching the weekly returns, began to lick his lips. In April he dug out the contract he had made with Dana and perused its contents. There was, he saw, a chance for complaint. The contract provided that Dana be paid a percentage of the gross business; that he should sell policies at the rate charged by previous owners. There, thought Simon, was the snag. Dana had cut the rate in order to start the ball rolling.

Simon summoned Dana. "Dana," he said, "I notice you've been selling at reduced rates. We can't make a profit that way."

"That was the only way to get things going," Simon shook his head. "I'm sorry. Our contract provided that you sell at rates charged by the previous owners. You ignored the clause, thereby causing no little dissension among our clients. I'll have to let you go."

"Let me go! Why, you can't do that! We have a contract!"

Simon looked at him icily. "You broke the contract, mister."

It wasn't until Dana had reached home and broken the news to Hattie, his wife, that he realized what losing his job meant.

The next day Dana received a letter from the insurance company in which Simon stated he had turned the matter over to his lawyer. Dana considered various possibilities. He needed money at once. Remembering that Simon's greatest weakness was his own sense of importance, he decided on a plan.

He visited a local printer and ordered some important looking letterheads, with his name at the top. Two days later another letter arrived from Simon. It stated that he would like to meet Dana in Attorney Harry Davis' office on Wednesday. Dana called up his printer and asked for his letterheads, and was told they weren't ready. Perturbed, Dana waited two days longer and then, upon being advised that the copy for his letterheads had been mislaid, sat down to answer Simon's letter on plain white paper.

The letter was hardly completed when the front doorbell rang and Hattie admitted a small wizened man.

"My name," he explained, "is Davis. Attorney Davis. I'm representing Simon Douglas." He paused, coughed. "Mr. Douglas says you have neglected to answer his letters. Your silence has disturbed him. He seems to think you are preparing to bring suit. And where as there is little on which you could base a suit, Mr. Douglas feels that court action would injure his business. He is—ah—prepared to make you a proposition."

Dana wet his lips. "What kind of a proposition?"

"You were to receive a percentage of the gross business. The sum total of things for a year would, in normal times, amount to about $3,000. Mr. Douglas is prepared to pay you $2,000, if you will destroy the contract."

Dana gulped. The amount was twice that for which he had intended to bring suit. And a suit, if successful, might have netted him $500.

After a moment he said: "Very well, I'll take the check and hand over the contract. The money will come in handy to pay for my letterheads."

And at the look of bewilderment on the attorney's face, Dana grinned.

City Supplies Room To Calm Whittlers

Meeting Place of 'Gentlemen Over 50' Is Protected.

PORTALES, N. M. — Portales' "spit and whittle club" of "gentlemen over 50," whose meeting place on the north side of the square is protected by a sign reading, "If You Are Under 50 Years of Age, Don't Sit Here," has moved inside for the winter.

But for awhile it looked as if cold winds, unwelcome to aging joints and bald heads, might break up the gathering which spent many summer hours "jawing" under the shade trees where a sign proclaims, "No Preaching Allowed." The old-timers couldn't move around to the sunny south side of the square because of a new lawn planted there, so they appointed a committee to ask the city council to provide them with a building for winter meetings.

The council foresaw budget difficulties and balked, but the committee argued that the city provided playgrounds for children, parks for youth and roads for the city's drivers, and therefore ought to provide a place for the "spit and whittle" club to meet during the winter. The committee won.

Now the "gentlemen over 50"—retired cattlemen, merchants and pioneers of the district—rent a city building and hold their "confabs" in the same untroubled comfort they enjoyed in the summer.

Weather Data Punched on Cards Aid in Forecasting

WASHINGTON.—More than 10,000,000 observations on the weather made at 200 airports throughout the country during the past five years are being punched on cards, passed through sorting machines, and filed for reference at the United States weather bureau.

The cards record all the details of temperature, wind direction, barometric pressure, wind velocity, visibility and such factors as fog, smoke, rain, snow and dust.

By putting a batch of them from Dallas, Des Moines, New York, San Francisco or any other point in the sorting machine, a weather scientist will be able to find within a short time the range of temperature or any other element of the weather for the past five years at any point.

WPA "white-collar" workers at New Orleans, where the project is being carried on, are turning out these cards at the rate of 30,000 per day. They are using 10 tabulating machines to sort them and work out the curves of weather variations on master charts.

With these, weather men will be able to make their forecasts more accurately than ever before, knowing that a combination of certain conditions probably will produce rain, snow, sleet or fog tomorrow.

Drill Touches Roman Fossils of 18,000 B. C.

ROME.—Italian self-sufficiency experts were surprised when the drill of an oil well erected on the site of the Circus Maximus, after reaching the 1,000-foot level suddenly plunged into a muddy river bed along which the Tiber river flowed more than 20,000 years ago.

The American oil drilling equipment, a feature of the Italian self-sufficiency exposition, had inadvertently made this year's most important archeological discovery.

Samples of the river clay reveal fossils that were deposited by the Tiber 18 centuries before it shifted to its present course and, according to legend, bore Romulus and Remus, the mythical founders of Rome, to safety on its muddy waters.

The discovery makes the ruins of Augustus Caesar's ancient sports stadium, which stands in venerable contrast to the modern steel framework of the oil derrick, actually young by comparison. The oil derrick was erected on the grounds of a national self-sufficiency fair as an attraction to show visitors how oil is discovered.

Early Indian Burial Is Revealed in California

PORTERVILLE, CALIF.—The crumbling skeleton of a long dead Indian was found by workmen laying a pipe line for the Terra Bella irrigation district.

The aborigine had been buried in a sitting position. A piece of abalone shell, probably a valued ornament, was found with the skull and leg bones. The teeth in the skull were still in fairly good condition.

Many Ancient Autos On Connecticut Roads

HARTFORD, CONN.—A state motor vehicles department survey showed that 18.5 per cent of the 503,618 automobiles registered in Connecticut during 1939 antedated 1930.

The oldest were two 1904 model Fords and a 1906 Locomobile. Others, whose names were familiar a quarter-century ago, included Chandler, Davis, Flint, Jordan, Kissel-Car, Marquette, Moon, Velie, Westcott, Windsor, Haynes, Jewett, Metz, Rambler, Pope-Hartford, Columbia, Toledo, Thomas and other outmoded and discontinued cars.

In War Time...

This week the United States Census Bureau announced that it had counted a total of 15,115 motion picture theatres. Each of these theatres is an institution of The American Way, intimately related to both the community and national life, and all of its causes inevitably there are concerns about the manner in which the motion picture theatre and its business of exhibition must be involved in the functioning of the nation-at-war.

Two considerations, and only two, control. First, the screen theatre must render such special service as is to be asked for by the Government engaged in the conduct of the war. Second, the theatre must continue to serve its people in the function for which it has been enfranchised; commissioned and supported. That function is entertainment.

The obligations of the theatre are identical with, and a part of, the obligations of citizenship. The war is being fought for the preservation of the order and manner of life which America has evolved and continues to evolve. A big part of the responsibility for the preservation of this order and manner of living is to be borne now, as always, by the arts of expression and communication among which the screen holds a place of dominance.

The motion picture and its theatre can make the largest contribution to the national effort in affording normal, competent entertainment service, continuing to do the job in which the art and the industry have been implemented and experienced.

There have been, and will be, intermittent flurries of distraction and invasion. The war board will be heard from in the theatre perhaps somewhat in the same frequency and intensity as in the home, but in the main the theatre will be a house of refuge, escape and relief from the cares of war, just as it has always been delivery from the tedium and woes of all the workaday world.

Immediately at hand is the evidence of Britain where life in the British way goes on, including a healthy attendance at the theatre, with a program that gives five minutes to Government war films from the Ministry of Information and the rest to entertainment, with the American amusement picture as usual the predominant component.

Clearly the biggest single contribution that Hollywood and its production machine can make to the whole cause is the continuing production of competent pictures of entertainment.

SYNOPSIS
THE STORY SO FAR: Bruce Harcourt, Alaska engineer on a rare visit to New York to confer with heads of his company, finds a lady's slipper, black satin, buckled with brilliants, in the middle of Fifth Avenue. He is leaving the next night for the North. He tries to find a secretary for the camp but none of the men interviewed wanted to go to Alaska. He answers an ad asking for the return of the slipper. To his amazement, the girl who lost it is Janice Trent, sister of a college chum whom he knew as a kid. Janice is to be married to Ned Easton, rich, but a bit too gay with the ladies. Janice and Ned quarreled in an auto and she was about to leave but changed her mind. The slipper, however, had dropped off. Bruce impulsively asks her to break off the marriage. But she leads him on to talk of Alaska. Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER II

What had Janice meant by that? But Bruce kept blithely on. "I referred to the breaking up of the winter ice. We've been building a bridge. It spans a river which flows between living glaciers."

"It makes my teeth chatter. It sounds horribly cold!"

"Cold! I'll say it was cold. Snow storms were continuous. But it isn't always like that in winter. There are days when the banks of streams are vague and misty with young green and you can smell spring in the air. The summers are glorious. Sunshiny days. Birds singing. Long twilights. Ferns and brilliant flowers, fruits and vegetables, double the size of those grown here."

"Do you live in a tent when—when on location?"

"By 'on location' do you mean when I'm at headquarters? A tent! I'm a house-owner. Three years ago a young architect joined the outfit as a draftsman. Someone had fooled him into thinking that the experience in the frozen North would lengthen his life. He came with an outfit suitable for winter sports and a pair of pearl-handled revolvers. To keep him cheerful and occupied I suggested that he draw plans for a log house for me, he was not physically fit for anything else."

"What is it like? I'm all excited." "He called it an H house. It is built of logs chinked with moss. There is a long room in the middle with the length of the rooms at either end going the other way. With a pencil he drew the letter on a card. "Like that. Stone chimneys at each end of the living-room provide fireplaces for the other two rooms. We use those in summer; in winter good old Yukon stoves are the only things which will keep us warm. Having gone so far in our plans, we lost our heads, went cuckoo and added a model kitchenette and a bath for each bedroom. Sent for oodles of price-lists and catalogues of fittings. The boy architect and I had the time of our lives selecting them. I spent money like a drunken sailor."

"Did the boy architect get well?" "No. 'Twas a tough break for him. He was the nephew of the Samp sisters."

"Your H house sounds marvelous."

"I wouldn't have believed it could mean so much to me. When I rush into headquarters behind my dog-team, I can see, perhaps through falling snow, smoke curling upward from the chimney. The glow from lighted windows sets the icicles which fringe the eaves agleam. Snow piled almost to the roof sparkles like an old-fashioned Christmas card. Although I know that only my husky, Tong, and my house-boy, Pasca, are waiting for me, a sense of home-coming warms me to the marrow."

"Into the silence which followed boomed the voice of a tower clock. She rose quickly."

"I've kept you here talking and talking. If you don't hurry you will miss your train—I wish—I wish I dared make you miss it."

He caught the glint of tears in her eyes as he laid the costly wrap across her shoulders. A tide of passionate desire to pick her up in his arms and run away with her possessed him.

At her door he said unsteadily: "You've given me a wonderful memory to carry back to Alaska."

The quick, almost frightened clutch of her fingers touched his blood with flame.

"Don't marry him, Jan. Don't—"

She twisted one hand free to press it against his lips. "Don't say it. Then you'll never be sorry. Good-night."

He kissed the slim fingers fervently. "Good-by," he whispered.

From a spur on an Alaskan mountainside, Bruce Harcourt regarded the recently completed bridge which straddled the river. The breakup was due any hour, any minute.

"It won't be long now before we know how good we are," he told himself. He turned at a hall. A man, almost as broad as long in his Eskimo parka, which hung down to meet the tops of his skin boots, was hurrying toward him.

"Tubby! Back so soon? Boy, but I'm glad to see you!"

Theodore Grant Junior's green eyes responded to the affection in the greeting. His face was rough from lack of a shave, but his teeth showed beautifully white as he grinned.

Your H House sounds marvelous.

"I've got him, ba-gosh!"

"Got who?"

"Got who? Has your memory frozen up? The secretary. An assistant for myself, Theodore Grant Junior, accountant extraordinary for this branch of the Alaskan Expeditionary Force to crack a way through the great Northwest."

"How did you get him?"

"From an agency in Seattle. They sent him on the first boat. I'll bet the old tub had to plow and crush its way through ice. And keep your shirt on, Bruce. I brought the Samp girls."

"The Samp girls! Tubby! Have you gone plumb crazy?"

"Now listen!"

"Listen! Look here, does Hale know?"

"Hale! What's he got to say about it?"

"Considering that he's chief of this outfit, considerable."

"Chief! Who's had to take his place most of the time this winter? You. He opened up high, wide and handsome while you were away. He got the Indians on their ears, driving them like slaves when he was sober and chucking their squaws under the chin when he was plastered."

"Just the same why the dickens did those two women leave the Waffle Shop at headquarters, which is remote enough, to come out here to this wilderness of snow and ice?"

"That's what I asked them. Martha inveigled me into the shop to talk it over. Heaped my plate with the hottest, crispest waffles, dripping with melting brown sugar and butter, Bruce—butter; filled my cup with honest-to-goodness coffee and reminded:

"Mary and I can't do missionary work with books, but we can with food. One of the biggest forces which prods men on to delirium is the trash they put into their stomachs. That bridge you're building is a big thing for the country. I've been talking with the men who worked on it. They claim that 'twill stand or fall in the spring breakup."

"She's right."

"Martha argued that we wouldn't be here long, that she and Mary would like to see the interior, and on and on ad lib., ad infinitum. That she wanted to keep our courage up with good food. She has the missionary spirit, all right."

"Waffles and brown sugar! Real coffee! Harcourt's opposition oozed. "Now that they are here, they will have to stay. I can't spare a man to take them out. Got your secretary located?"

"The Samp girls have taken him under their wings. He's no cave-man. Even in his parka and muklugs he's as slim as a fishing-rod. He's got a little mustache like the down on a yellow chicken's back, black curly hair—big crimson spots on his cheeks."

"I get you. T.B. That's why he was willing to leave the land of lights and movies."

"A workman came running toward them."

"Chester," he said, "sent me to tell you the false works has suddenly moved!"

Harcourt's face whitened. The false works! The two thousand piles which had been driven forty feet into the bottom of the river!

"How much! Quick!"

"Fifteen inches! Sudden as the crack of doom!"

"Where's Hale?"

"Gone back to headquarters with his dog-team. Said everything was O.K. Didn't need him; he'd take the boat out to Seattle to get Mrs. Hale. Said you'd had your leave, he'd take his."

"Gone! Without letting me know! Get every man out, Tubby!" Harcourt started on a run.

In the prolonged nightmare which followed, Bruce Harcourt felt as though he were his own double looking at a great motion picture. Steam from every available engine was turned into every available feed-pipe. Men chopped seven-foot thick ice away from the piles. A stinging needle-pointed Arctic night settled down. The river rose. The forest quiet was broken by the chop, chop of picks. The piles must be kept free! Hundreds of cross pieces were unbolted. The shifting into place began. No man relaxed his vigil-lance until another stood ready to go on with his job.

If he thought of anything but the bringing back of the bridge into place, Harcourt thanked God for the Samp sisters. They were indefatigable. They made the men stop for hot coffee and waffles put together sandwich fashion with succulent brown sugar. Once he glimpsed a boy hovering in the background. The new secretary?

Melting. Chopping. Coaxing. Melting. Chopping. Coaxing. The hours dragged on.

Inch by slow inch the span settled back on its concrete bed. Haggard, exhausted, with a two days' growth of beard on their faces the engineers watched the last bolt driven in. From the distance came a faint rumble. It increased in volume.

Grant clutched Harcourt's arm. "It's coming!" he whispered through stiff lips.

The rumble increased to a roar. The river had broken loose. Carrying ice and timber before it, it swept along oggits mad rush to the sea.

Rigid, tense, the two men watched the wreckage and ice sweep by. The bridge stood immovable against the onslaught. Grant's eyes were unashamedly full of tears.

"You've done the trick, Bruce. This day will mark a crisis in your life and Hale's."

"What's the name of that secretary of yours, Tubby?"

"Jimmy Delevan."

"Delevan? Did he help during the late excitement?"

"Sure he did. He was everywhere. Perhaps not so helpful in some spots as in others. One of the men found him freeing a snowshoe rabbit which had been snared. When he explained that the rabbits were the chief source of feed for the dog-teams, Jimmy Delevan went quite white, walked off without answering, but with the rabbit clutched tight in his arms like a baby."

Three shrieks of a small steamer's titanic siren echoed and re-echoed among the snow-tipped mountain tops.

"Bo-a-t! Bo-a-t!"

The cry set in motion Eskimos and Indians, countless uncanny echoes. Dogs responded with wolfish wails.

"I never watch that boat come in but I wonder what turn old Fortune will give her wheel," observed Grant at his elbow.

"Its arrival is packed with significance, Tubby. So many on this last frontier have pasts."

"I'll bet the wheel turns for Hale this time. He and the Mrs. are coming in on this boat. It's six-weeks since we fought to save that bridge. He went off to Seattle before he knew that it would stand the breakup. I'm mighty sorry for his wife but—our reports went by air, must have reached the authorities weeks ago."

"I made mine as charitable as possible, considering the fact that a flaw in construction imperils hundreds of lives and wastes thousands of dollars."

"I'll bet you put on the secret pedal, Bruce. In the interest of—and impartial accuracy, Jimmy Delevan—ba-gosh, how he hates Joe Hale; if he is his brother-in-law—and I didn't. In my capacity as accountant for the outfit I reported unvarnished facts. Here come the mail-bags and Stephen Mallory. It's good to see the Dominie again. I'm glad we're back on the coast, even if we are hundreds of miles from civilization. I wonder how long we'll have to stay in this raw place?"

"Until we have developed a rail-road terminal. The authorities have decided not only to extend the tracks north but to connect the Alaskan system with Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles. That's what I've been doing these last six weeks. Even got a piece of track laid as an object lesson. Left Jimmy Chester in charge. He's a human dynamo, in spite of the fact that he looks like a stage-Romero. Part of this outfit is to scout by plane and report bridge possibilities. That means that next winter we'll begin pier-setting again. How's the new secretary working out?"

Run a knife around the core of an apple before putting it into the oven to bake. This will prevent the skin from bursting while baking.

Leftover bread may be used in escalloped mixtures by cutting it with a cookie cutter and soaking slices in melted butter.

A well seasoned bread-oyster stuffing may be used as a filling between layers of fish steak.

Slices of grapefruit on crisp lettuce topped with cubes of cranberry jelly make a tangy salad to serve with meat or fish.

Remember that insects and diseases attack house plants the same as outdoor plants and that it isn't very difficult to spray for these infestations. A small fly sprayer or a small soft brush can be used to apply the disinfectants.

Raisins, dates, figs, currants should be soaked five minutes in boiling water before using. Use two tablespoons of water to each half cup of fruit.

Toast for St. Patrick's Day . . . Pineapple Frosties!

(See Recipes Below)

Shamrock Fare

Take your cue from good luck day and let your menu wear green! Bring out your best Pat and Mike jokes and touch up your food for the day with a dash of imagination by applying a green brush stroke, for these are the things which put a halo on your head.

There's a hint of spring in the green touches and in the lightness of this season's menus, so whisk these two elements into your food to give it exciting personality.

With simplicity your keynote and economy your guide, here are some menus for small entertaining on St. Patrick's day.

Menu I.

Afternoon or Evening Snack
Pineapple Frosties
Finger Sandwiches
Pop Corn Nougat

Menu II.

Bridge Refreshments
Shamrock Salad
Prune Bread With Cream Cheese Spread

Coffee or Tea — Cornflake Chews
A drink with plenty of tang and vitamins is this one called a Pineapple Frosty. Its vitamins B1 and C will boost your energy quota and at the same time give your teeth and bones a gums a new lease for spring.

*Pineapple Frosties.

For each serving use a six-ounce glass of unsweetened pineapple juice and a generous scoop of sherbet. Chill a large beating bowl, add well-chilled pineapple juice. When the sherbet begins to soften, beat the ingredients until they are well-blended and frothy. A jar or shaker or automatic beater may be used to blend these together.

*Pop-Corn Nougat.

1 1/2 cups corn syrup
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup warm water
1/2 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons honey
2 egg whites
1 cup chopped pop corn
2 tablespoons candied cherries, cut fine

Cook syrup, sugar, water and salt until brittle when tried in cold water. Put honey in a large bowl, place over pan containing hot water to keep honey warm. While candy is cooking, beat egg whites stiff and fold through honey. When syrup is cooked to the proper stage, pour it slowly over the honey and egg, beating hard with wooden spoon. Beat until the surface has a satiny appearance. Fold in pop corn and cherries, press into buttered pan.

Ever so good, ever so simple, and very pretty describes this light green salad in today's column. The grapefruit and lime flavored gelatin are a spirited combination that work the right kind of magic.

Lynn Says:

As fish gains prominence in menus, are you wondering how you can make it appetite-tempting? Here is a guide:

Nice to dip in egg and bread crumbs and fry in shallow fat: perch, pike, haddock, halibut, cod, sole, lake trout, salmon, in steak or fillet form.

Good for baking with or without a stuffing: the large fish, like whitefish, haddock, halibut, wall-eyed pike, salmon steaks, lake trout.

First class for deep-fat frying: oysters, shrimp, scallops. Dip these in beaten egg and crumbs and fry in deep, hot fat.

Baked in loaves or timbales: haddock, salmon, tuna, cod. Stuffings that go well with baked fish: bread stuffing (the same kind you make for your fowl!); celery stuffing, or rice stuffing (try this with pike!). For rice stuffing, combine 1 cup cooked rice with 1/2 pound sauteed mushrooms, 2 tablespoons of chopped onion, 2 beaten eggs, 1/4 cup celery, all cooked with 1/2 cup butter. This makes enough for a 3 to 4-pound fish.

This Week's Menu:

Baked Haddock *Tartar Sauce
Lyonnaise Potatoes
*Orange Squash
*Shamrock Salad
*Prune Bread Butter and Honey
Chilled Pears Cornflake Chews
*Recipes Given.

*Shamrock Salad.

(Serves 6)
1 package lime flavored gelatin
1 cup hot water
3/4 cup cold water
1/4 cup grapefruit juice
1/4 cup grapefruit sections
1/4 cup finely chopped celery
Pimientos

Pour hot water over gelatin. Add cold water and grapefruit juice. Chill until mixture thickens, add grapefruit and celery. Arrange pimientos cut into shamrock shapes around sides of a mold or at the bottom. Pour mixture into mold, chill until firm, unmold and garnish with grapefruit sections and green herbs.

A favorite breakfast cereal and prunes are a healthy merger for this home-made bread. The fruit and cereal are food affinities. The result, an excellent bread that stays moist for days, is good sliced when fresh or when toasted.

*Prune Bread.

(Makes 1 loaf)
2 cups bran cereal
2/3 cup juice from cooked prunes
2/3 cup chopped, cooked prunes
2/3 cup buttermilk
1/2 cup sugar
1 tablespoon shortening

1 egg
1 1/4 cups flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 teaspoons soda
1/2 cup chopped nuts, if desired
Soak cereal in prune juice. Add buttermilk. Cream sugar and shortening thoroughly, add egg and beat well. Add bran cereal mixture. Sift dry ingredients, add to prunes and nuts. Add to first mixture and stir only until flour disappears. Bake in a greased loaf pan in a moderate (325-degree) oven, 1 hour and 20 minutes.

The orange flavoring gives a delightful touch to the squash which is colorful served in orange cups.

*Orange Squash.

(Serves 6)
3 cups cooked Hubbard squash
1/2 cup orange juice
3 tablespoons butter
1/2 teaspoon salt
Pepper
1/4 cup chopped almonds.

Bake or steam squash until tender (1 1/2 to 2 hours). Mash or rice. Add orange juice, butter, salt and pepper. Fill 6 orange shells with squash mixture, piling it in lightly. Top with chopped almonds. Bake until lightly browned, in a hot (450-degree) oven. For best results use oranges that have clean, smooth skins which separate from the orange easily.

*Tartar Sauce.

Popular and fitting accompaniment to fish is this sauce: Combine 1 cup mayonnaise, 1/2 teaspoon onion juice or 1 tablespoon chopped chives, 2 tablespoons chopped sweet pickle or green relish, lemon juice to thin to desired consistency.

While you're busy this season rolling bandages for the Red Cross, knitting for the soldiers, or baking for the boys at camp, you'll want to plan menus and dishes that take little time for preparation. With this in mind, I'm including a recipe for an excellent casserole that fills these requirements:

Shrimp Vegetable Casserole.

(Serves 6)
2 medium onions, sliced
1 green pepper, cut in rings
1 cup cooked peas
1 cup coarsely broken, wide noodles, uncooked
3 cups canned tomatoes
2 No. 1 cans shrimp, cleaned
3 tablespoons butter
Salt and pepper

Place alternate layers of ingredients in greased casserole. Dot with butter and season with salt and pepper. Cover and bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 1 hour.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE MIGHTY WORKS OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 8:23-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—What manner of man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey him!—Matthew 8:27.

The mighty works of Jesus declared Him to be the Son of God—yes, very God Himself. Unbelieving men who would discredit the Word of God and deny the Godhood of the Son are at much labor and trouble to explain away the miracles, but without any success.

In our lesson for today we have Christ showing His divine power over the forces of nature, and over the demons of the evil spirit world. We find the disciples in the storm—

I. Fearful—but Not in Danger (vv. 23-27).

The Son of God—who had become Son of man—showed His true humanity by that weariness which made Him sleep through a tempestuous storm such as often came upon Lake Galilee. "Like a general in time of war Jesus slept when He could."

As He calmly slept, fear of destruction laid its deadly grip upon the hearts of the disciples. For the moment they saw only the angry waves, the smallness of their craft, the hopelessness of their situation, apparently forgetting that with Christ in the boat they were in no danger, in spite of the fearfulness of their surroundings and circumstances.

Is this not clearly a lesson for us in this day so full of alarms and fears? If we think of circumstances and conditions round about us we shall be overcome with fear—and well we may, if we do not have Christ with us in the boat of life. But if He is there—if we are His in the kinship of regenerating grace—we are in no danger. Shall we not accept the tender rebuke, "Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith?" (v. 26).

The majestic scene of Christ stilling the tempest, reminds us not only that He can control any force of nature, but also that there is no storm of heart or mind or life to which He cannot authoritatively say, "Peace, be still" (Mark 4:39). Will you trust Him with your problem?

On the other side of the lake Christ met another kind of need—and cared for it. He there delivered two men who were—

II. Demon-dominated, but Not Hopeless (vv. 28-34).

There is only one devil, but he has many demons who do his bidding. The evidence is clear that these demons were able to enter into the personality of a human being and take control of the life. This was not insanity or a sickness of the body, but devil domination.

These two men (Mark and Luke speak only of one—perhaps the more violent of the two) were so strong and wicked because of the demon in them, that their relatives and friends had given them up as hopeless and had sent them out to live in the wilderness.

How horrible is the power of the devil in the life of any man or woman. But let us never forget that while no man can control such a situation (Mark 5:4), God is able. "With God all things are possible" (Matt. 19:26). We have not done all we can for our devil dominated friends and relatives until we have brought them to Jesus.

Notice that the demons recognized Christ as the Son of God (v. 29). They knew that He had the power to control them and that the day was to come when He would judge them.

The men were completely cured (Mark 5:15) as the demons were permitted to enter the herd of swine. Those poor beasts, apparently not content to harbor the evil spirits, cast themselves into the sea.

When the people of the land heard what had taken place they asked Jesus to leave. They evidently weighed the relative value of two men in their right mind over against a herd of swine and decided that they could not afford to have men delivered from the devil at such expense.

Unfortunately the "descendants" of those people seem to be in some of our churches today. They can afford anything in the way of luxury for themselves, but they are sure it costs too much to keep the church open—or to provide a preacher—or suitable equipment for the Lord's work. How unspeakably sad!

Perseverance

Soldiers must break step in marching over a bridge, for the vibration caused by their marching in step would shake down the most solid structure. And so it is with the spiritual obstacle you may meet: steady tramping, the plodding doing of your duty day after day, will in time, tumble it over. In any task to which God sets you perseverance is all the power you need.

Slacks Ensemble With Skirt Is Ideal for Defense Work

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

TIME was when slacks suits were regarded as an amusing and passing whim of fashion, especially by women who prided themselves on being conservative in dress. Nevertheless, slacks persisted in the mode, with the result that today fashion-wise leaders declare that slacks are headed for their greatest success season. Of course there's a reason. And that reason is that they are undeniably practical.

Women will need slacks for the busy life they must perform lead in the days to come. You will be needing them for doing your bit in civilian defense, for work on the farm, for bicycling, for hours of recreation and rest. Yes, there's no doubt about it. Slacks have become a positive "must have."

In many jobs where women are taking the place of men, in field or factory, the call grows more urgent each day for clothing which hasn't any loose gewgaws or extra fullness to catch in machinery. Wide slacks are no more practical than skirts. Utility slacks must be narrow at the bottom or caught in at the ankles after the manner of the workaday outfit pictured to the left in the above illustration. This surf blue denim overall is one of the types favored for farm or defense factory work. Its surplus closing, tie-belt that eliminates the use of any sort of metal fastening, huge pockets and buttons for holding trousers in at the ankle are required utilitarian features. A bright peasant-square tied about the head adds a pleasingly feminine touch.

There is a time for work and a time for play. When work is done, slip into immaculate white slacks like those shown in the center of the above picture. Slacks are simply constructed and easy to make as these give emphasis to the growing sentiment among women that it is wise to sew and to save these days. This one-piece slacks suit is cut from a very simple pattern, and it is made of serg-a-hed, a wonder fabric of all- rayon weave that looks exactly like an expensive French serge. It washes and irons beautifully and can be had in white or a range of exquisite colors.

Search the fashion centers over, and you won't find a more complete many-purpose slacks outfit than the nicely tailored four-piece suit shown to the right in the above illustration. This foursome consists of slacks, coat, skirt and sleeveless jacket fashioned of black and white check rayon weave. Checks, by the way, are the rage this season for jackets and slacks suits. You'll be seeing and hearing about checked fabrics wherever you go. This stunning slacks ensemble is purposefully designed to take care of versatile costume needs for the woman who leads a busy life. You can mix and match the various pieces to your heart's content, and it is more than a work suit. Whether you travel by train or by air, or motor to your destination, or dash about town to keep appointments, this smart many-piece suit can be manipulated to tune perfectly to the occasion.

If it's a bright accent you are seeking for your slacks, you'll find plenty of it in the new blues that are made of the splashiest big colorful prints imaginable. When a yen for the utterly feminine besets you, wear a dainty white frilly and sheer blouse. Make sure that it is styled with a foamy white jabot, for they are wonderfully smart.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

'Menu' Buttons

Buttons are more decorative than ever in the spring fashion picture. Treated, for the most part, as trimming or accessory accents, they are made to achieve striking effects. Use them on a jacket or a dress and watch the reaction of admiring friends. Among the stunning buttons designed this season, two of the most thrilling types are the ceramic roses used to trim the afternoon dress, shown at the top in the above picture, and "menu" buttons like the huge "turkey on a plate" buttons that dramatize the tailored jacket illustrated below. Remember, many a last year's dress or suit can be made to look new with this year's buttons. A thrifty way of achieving the height of fashion!

Lace Trims Dress and Even Serves as Buttons

Frothy white lingerie touches will make their appearance as separate collars and jabots and various frills. There is also a new movement to make snowy lace accents look as if they were actually a part of the dress. A newly arrived black crepe frock has bell sleeves with a section cut out, then filled in with lace insets that give the impression of lace undersleeves.

New, too, are the lace rosettes used like buttons. Many hats are lace-trimmed and there is promise of a tie-up between lingerie hats and lingerie neckwear.

Calico Skirts Printed In Gay-Colored Squares

Girls are going to have lots of fun wearing the new skirts made of quaint calico printed to look like big squares of different colors and designs. A yellow calico skirt can be worn with a bright red blouse. Or, try a green skirt with an inset of yellow to match the yellow in a tri-color blouse. For a dainty effect, wear a blouse of sheerest white lingerie with your calico skirt.

Drawstring

Very new and smart are straight coats, jackets, and even sweaters, that are brought snug into the waistline with a drawstring. It is a technique that is being applied to cloth and to suitings as well as to rayon wash materials.

Perky Sailor

Cunning are the new little sailors arriving for early spring wear. They are worn tilted provocatively over the eyes. In many instances the veil and the trimming is quite ornate.

STORY OF THE WEEK

The Patient in Room Fourteen

By JOAN HINKLE

(Associated Newspapers—WNU Service)

"WELL, he's better, Betty. But I'm absolutely all in." Sally Stevenson's voice came shakily over the telephone. "I thought you must have heard—day before yesterday on Pickard hill. Just enough mud to be slippery, and the car skidded and went into the ditch. His face is all cut—but he's bandaged like a mummy. I wasn't hurt at all. But I've been so upset over it that I've just caved in. I'm awfully ashamed of myself. But I thought if you'd just go to the hospital for a couple of hours this afternoon and read to him—I've a story here he's asked for—he'd be all right and I could go to bed till tomorrow. That'll straighten me out. No danger, you know, but he's just all jarred and shaken, and then lots of little cuts on his face. And the doctor says he mustn't talk today—just lie and rest. So you read to him and I'll get rested and be all right tomorrow. He's in Room 14, on the second floor."

That was the substance of Sally Stevenson's telephone conversation with Betty Buckalew. As a result Betty drove first to Sally's house for the book Jim Stevenson wanted to read, and then went to the hospital to play good Samaritan to him so that his distracted wife might rest and calm her jumping nerves.

Betty parked her car in the hospital grounds and went in through the swinging doors of the big main entrance. She was well known at the hospital—her mother was an active member of the board of directors. Betty nodded to the girl on duty in the office. "I've come to see the patient in Room 14," she said. "Go right up?"

"Yes," answered the girl. "He had a private nurse last night and yesterday, but he's all right now. The corridor nurse will take care of you, Miss Buckalew."

A moment later Betty stood before the half-open door of Room 14. No nurse was in sight, so she walked quietly in after knocking. "It's Betty Buckalew, she said to the restless form on the bed. "I've been sent to read to you by Sally. She's resting."

The man turned toward her. Through two slits in the bandage that swathed his head and face, Betty saw two eyes peering interestedly at her. "Good of you," he murmured.

"Now don't you talk," went on Betty. "Doctor's orders. You let me do the talking. I've brought a volume of detective stories and I'm going to read to you for an hour or so."

"Awfully kind," murmured the man again.

"Not at all," said Betty. "I'm glad to do it. Now you get as comfortable as possible and let me sit where you won't have to see me and I'll read you to sleep, maybe."

Betty seated herself at the foot of the bed, out of range of his eyes. "Move around," came the patient's muffled voice. "Want to see you."

So Betty moved her big wicker chair within range of his eyes, sat down so that the light struck pleasantly on her book and began to read. She was conscious that Jim quieted as she read. He must be more comfortable—diverted by her story, she thought. She was conscious, too, that he was not going to sleep. Through the white bandages—two eyes, bright and dark, peered constantly at her.

At the end of two hours and three stories, Betty stopped. "I've got to go now, Jim," she said. "Tomorrow? Why, yes, if Sally can't come. Yes, of course I will."—The patient had clutched her hand nervously. "Be quiet Jim; of course I'll come if you want me. I'll come and read again. But you'll soon be gone—Sally said you were getting on so well."

The muffled voice said something about never wanting to go. "Like it here," it said. And: "Funny," thought Betty, with a quick flush of annoyance. "Here I am holding Jim Stevenson's hand and getting a real thrill from it. Well," she thought further, as she tried to draw her hand away, "so apparently, is he."

But she pulled herself free and a moment or two later, promising again that she would come the next day, she disappeared into the hall. There she ran into the corridor nurse. "I saw you reading to Fourteen," she said. "Awfully good of you. He's been so restless and nervous. He had a special until this morning, but he's really all right, and we're a little short, so we asked him to get along without one. You seemed to work like a charm, Miss Buckalew. You've no idea what it means to have visitors that really help the patients."

All the way home Betty was troubled. How silly of her! She'd known Jim Stevenson for years. She and Sally were close friends. And here they had been, holding hands in real earnest, like two sentimental youngsters. Well, she wouldn't go again tomorrow. She'd make some excuse to Sally.

So it was with misgivings that she answered Sally's summons to the telephone a little later.

"What on earth happened, Betty, dear?" came Sally's voice. "Why didn't you let me know?"

"ly, what's the matter?"

"Nothing, nothing at all, excepting that poor Jim has been fretting his head off because he didn't hear from me, and he's as lonely and blue as can be and I'm moping around here with a nervous headache. He's just telephoned, poor darling, to know what's happened to me. Why didn't you go read to him?"

"I did."

"You did?" shrieked Sally. "Oh, Betty, perhaps he's worse—delirious or something."

"Sally," said Betty, rather joyously, "there must be some mistake. What number is his room. Think carefully, now."

"Oh, I don't know. Sixteen or something. But don't you remember? You were there, you say. I've been so distracted, thinking yesterday he might have a fractured skull. I suppose I didn't notice very much."

"Never mind, Sally, dear. I'm going right back this minute to see him, and then in an hour or so I'll come see you and tell you all about him. Don't worry."

So Betty went back to the hospital and found Jim Stevenson tossing restlessly in Room Sixteen. His face was not swathed in bandages—small ones were patched on it. And when he took Betty's hand in greeting no thrill ran from his fingertips into hers.

The corridor nurse met her again as she left the hospital.

"Funny, wasn't it, Miss Buckalew, having two motor accident cases so much alike. Both all right now, fortunately—but both all battered and scratched up around the head, and both afraid of fractured skulls to begin with. That poor Mr. Cartwright in Room Fourteen certainly feels better since you came to see him this afternoon. He's sleeping quietly now. Pityful, crashing up here within thirty miles of New York after motoring all the way from San Francisco. And not a friend or relative in the East. His uncle, out there, who seems to be his only near relative anyway, telephones every night."

"How about his wife?" asked Betty Buckalew.

"Oh, he isn't married." The nurse on duty laughed a little self-consciously. "Coming in again in the morning, Miss Buckalew? It did him a lot of good today."

When she looked up for an answer, Betty had disappeared. She had slipped into Room Fourteen to blow a goodnight kiss to the swathed and quiet figure on the bed.

Cheap Process for Tin Substitute Discovered

Oscar Bruno Bach began his career in Germany. At the age of 18 he made a wrought-iron Bible cover for Pope Leo XIII. He came to America 26 years ago, set up shop in Manhattan as a metal craftsman and industrial designer.

Last year Oscar Bach announced he had hit upon a process for coloring tough, corrosion-resistant 18-8 (18 per cent chromium, 8 per cent nickel) stainless steel. In the Bachite process, the steel is first "pickled" (cleaned with acid), then coated in a chemical bath and heated. Depending on the degree of baking, the coated steel turns black, gold, bronze, purple, blue, red or green, the color becoming an integral part of the surface. Oscar Bach will not reveal the chemicals in the coating bath. "The formula," says he, "is so simple I'm almost ashamed of it." The Bachite process is used in the building industry for exteriors and decorations. A recent example is the flashy Bach-designed decoration of Manhattan's Airlines Terminal building.

As Oscar Bach began working with less expensive iron and steel alloys, he found to his surprise that his coloring process immensely improved corrosion resistance. Recently the "American Cellini's" researches led him to the threshold of national defense. He announced a process for Bachiting cheap black plate iron (3 cents per pound), which, he claims, makes the metal a substitute for tin plate. "Tin is important in tin cans because it resists corrosion by food acids. Bached iron, said Bach, had a corrosion-resistance against "most corrosive agents" higher than that of tin plate (5 cents per pound) or 18-8 stainless steel (34 cents per pound). He estimated his process would be a third cheaper than tinning.

Famous April Fool Joke

There are many famous April fool's jokes perpetuated in history. Perhaps the most famous is that perpetrated by Thomas Hood, the humorist-son of the great poet of the same name, who, at a meeting in the Savage club, the home of so many literary geniuses, proposed, on the night of March 31, that a telegram should be sent to a politician then much in the public eye by reason of his moral crusading. "Fly. All is discovered." The next day there was a missing politician and a vacancy in the house of commons. That is one case where an April fool prank was no joke on the victim.

There is NO priority on Careful Driving

Last week, honor was paid to 106 Michigan Bell employees in Detroit who have driven telephone company vehicles for 10 or more years without an accident! Combined distances driven by those men equal 574 times around the earth—without a scratch!

Michigan Bell employees are instructed, and cooperate enthusiastically, in safe driving. In the National Emergency, safe driving takes on added significance, for it is an important means of conserving cars, tires and gasoline.
