SO WE'LL MAKE OUR WARTIME SUGAR GROW ON TREES

If the rationing of sweets becomes too sour, there's a remedy! An article in The American Weekly with this Sunday's (March 29) issue of The Detroit Sunday Times, tells how scientists promise to replace all the sugar crop we lost in the Philippines by processing only 10,000 acres of woodland. Be sure to get The Detroit Sunday Times this week and every week.

Two Rural First Aid Groups Now Fully Organized and Receiving Instruction

Judging from the enthusiasm and interest manifest at the first lesson the success of the project is already assured. The two groups, namely, the Star District on the Peninsula and the Charlevoix group at Charlevoix received their first lesson on First Aid last Friday afternoon, March 26th from one to five. The membership in each group numbered approximately 30 which really is about the right size to have for maximum results.
Miss Notari, member of the East Jordan teaching staff, is directing the activity in the Star District. In the Charlevoix group, several leaders are co-operating together to make the project successful. William C. Palmer, Commissioner of Schools, and George R. Hemingway, County First Aid Chairman, will cooperate together in supervising the program. Doctors Mark Giffords and F. F. McMillan and others will assist in giving the instruction.
To meet the needs of the rural groups this project has been organized somewhat differently than the usual procedure. The work will be concentrated in five lessons and the period is from one to five Friday afternoons each week until the end of the course. It was felt that farmers would be so busy with their regular farm work that a ten week period was too long and that they could not attend. Likewise, the transportation problem was considered in making this decision. If this activity works out as nicely as is anticipated several more farm groups will be organized next fall and winter to enlarge upon this program. For further particulars in regard to these two classes contact the two chairmen, Mrs. Ray Loomis of the Star Community and Mrs. Ernest Ecklund, representing the Charlevoix group. They will be only too glad to give you additional information.

AAA PROGRAM IN CHARLEVOIX CO.

The "Food For Freedom" program of the United States Department of Agriculture, through the AAA Farm Program, is now underway with a minimum of effort and with the maximum of production promised by reason of a well organized program among the farmers, not only in this county, but of every county in the State and Nation.

Farmers in every township elect their own committee and these in turn select a county committee to carry on the Triple-A Program. Only farmers can serve on these committees, and for that reason are qualified to judge the problems met with on each individual farm and thus are enabled to get the enthusiastic co-operation of their neighbors in carrying out the details of the AAA plan.

Consult your committee, when you are in doubt or have any problem that needs clarification. You elected them: Now make use of them. Don't forget the extra $15.00 that may be earned by planting trees for reforestation purposes or windbreak. Get your order for trees in early and make up your full payment.

A forty ton car of surplus wheat, ordered by the AAA County Committee, is expected in East Jordan this week. Sufficient orders were received in the AAA County office within the last few days to completely sell the car, and orders are now being accepted for another shipment of wheat which will arrive in Boyne City within the next two weeks. If you need wheat or corn for feed, place your order at once. Orders will be accepted by telephone. Call the AAA office, number 9.

State Organization Cherry Growers

WAS PERFECTED AT SHELBY AT A MEETING, THURSDAY

A plan to collect and distribute accurate cherry crop and market information was furthered at a meeting of representative cherry growers at Shelby, Thursday. Twenty growers elected in county meetings made plans to set up a State-wide organization to cooperate with the New York Cherry Growers Association and similar groups in other states.

It is expected that accurate crop & market information will place the individual grower in a stronger bargaining position when selling his crop.

The growers' representatives divided the State into three districts for administration of the plan. District I, N. W. Michigan, will include Benzie, Leelanau, Grand Traverse, Wexford, Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, District II or West Central Michigan will include Manistee, Mason, Oceana, Muskegon, Ottawa, Kent, Newaygo, Mecosta and nearby counties; District III or Southwestern Michigan will include Berrien, Van Buren, Allegan and other southwestern counties. Each of the above districts will have five members on the Board of Directors.

A fourth district was created in Southeastern Michigan including Jackson and other small producing counties. One director will be seated from this area.

It is planned that the principal office of the Association will be at Shelby in Oceana County.

A. L. Darbee of East Jordan represented Charlevoix County as grower's delegate.

The directors of the Association will be elected by the members at the annual meeting to be held in the month of May.

Membership in the Association will be open to cherry growers in Michigan. Annual membership fee will be fifty cents up to five tons; one dollar up to ten tons; two dollars from 10 to 20 tons; three dollars from 20 to 40 tons; four dollars from 40 to 75 tons; five dollars from 75 to 100 tons; $7.50 from 100 to 200 tons; and ten dollars for all over 200 tons. The tonnage figures shall be based on the previous year's crop.

Money collected is to be used for general operating expenses such as postage, telephone, telegraph, office supplies and directors' travel.

John J. Gage, Former East-Jordan Grocer, Passed Away At Flint

John J. Gage, former East Jordan grocer, passed away at Flint February 12. Funeral services were held at Jennings February 15. He was 84 years of age.

Mr. Gage was, at one time, telegraph operator for the G. R. & I. Later he became the first manager of the Antrim Iron Co. newly organized department store. He came to East Jordan and owned and operated a grocery store fifteen years. Some 40 years ago he went to Jennings to operate the Mitchell Bros. store there. He then moved to Flint and operated a grocery until his health failed.

Surviving are two sons — LeRoy of Flint; Leon, Big Rapids. A daughter, Mrs. Oscar Frisk, Flint; five grandchildren; two great grandchildren.

George R. Vance Dies At Miami

CAME TO ECHO-TOWNSHIP 72 YEARS AGO. LATER, PURCHASED FARM THERE

George Vance was born near Hanover, Ontario, July 13, 1856 to Henry and Susan Vance, the fifth of six sons.

In 1866 the family moved to Dearborn, Michigan and in the fall of 1869 to Norwood. The following spring his father took up a homestead in Echo Township, Antrim County.

When a young man of 25 he bought 80 acres of land near his parents' home out of which he hewed a farm where he lived for 48 years.

On August 16, 1885 he brought his bride Mary L. Washburn, of Central Lake to his new home.

To this union were born six sons and three daughters, two of whom died in infancy.

Mr. Vance was converted at an early age and was always deeply interested in Sunday School and Church work. He became a member of the Methodist Church when 17 years of age.

In 1926, because of failing health, he moved to East Jordan where he conducted a little store near the Tourist Park.

On August 16, 1935, Mr. and Mrs. Vance celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary which was attended by over 100 relatives and friends.

For the past few years they have spent the summer in East Jordan and the winter in Miami, Florida, where, on March 18, he passed away at Jackson Memorial Hospital after an illness of three weeks. Pneumonia was the immediate cause of his death.

Besides the widow he is survived by five sons and two daughters:— Wm. Henry, Grand Rapids; Ernest Miami, Fla; Miss Ethel, Washington, D. C.; Vernon, East Jordan; George A. Casnovia; Mrs. Oris G. Carpenter, Lansing; and Roy, Lake City. Eighteen grandchildren and eight great grandchildren. Also a brother, John R. Vance, Santa Clara, Calif; and several nieces.

The remains were brought to East Jordan Friday and the funeral was held Saturday, March 21st, at the Methodist Church conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. C. Matthews, assisted by Rev. Scott Bartholomew. Burial at Jones Cemetery.

All the children were present but Ernest of Miami.

Jap Dreams of Easy Conquest Fade As U. S. Aid to Australia Grows; President's 'Victory Plan' Depends On Successful Offensive in Pacific

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

VICTORY: For Navy Forces

Almost coincident with the arrival of General MacArthur in Australia the first great word of an offensive against the Japanese had been received, and the U. S. had hailed a great naval victory in New Guinea. First reports had been of the sinking of 23 Japanese vessels, a dozen of them vessels of war, and though few details were announced, it was obvious that it had been a battle of the air rather than of the sea.

Important in the first dispatches had been the word that they were "island based" forces of the United States and Australia, and this had been comforting in the extreme, for until this point America had not known that there were any island bases left to us in the Pacific theater with the exception of Hawaii.

It had been learned, of course, that the Japanese, after taking Wake Island, had later abandoned it, but few believed that our own navy had moved back in there.

Aside from speculation about where the base was, a fact the Japs would like dearly to know, the victory itself was important. In the battle of Java sea we had lost one heavy cruiser ourselves, and our allies had lost four.

In this battle the Japs had lost two heavy cruisers, one light cruiser and other ships of war of lesser import. The rest of the ships sent to the bottom or put out of action were freighters, some of them being used as troop transports.

OFFENSIVE: Aussies' Viewpoint

Almost coincident with the arrival of General MacArthur, his chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Sutherland, and the rest of his party, official Australia began to talk and think in terms of an offensive against the Japs on a scale hitherto not dreamed of.

As to the Japanese themselves, after having previously reported, weeks ago, MacArthur's flight from the battlefield to Corregidor and other untrue stories about the commander, they were considerably taken aback by the news that the commander was in Australia.

They did just what President Roosevelt had predicted, and declared that General MacArthur had "run away" from the Philippines, and then went on to say that "American resistance in Australia would be short-lived."

The resistance in Bataan had stood as a monument to Japanese falsehoods and false hopes of easy conquest, and some believed that MacArthur's assignment to Australia might give the Japanese pause in going through with the invasion.

At any rate, Prime Minister Curtin had said:

"It is most gratifying that the American troops are now here in force. Their numbers are most substantial.

"We are the base from which to strike at the enemy.

"American aid is doubly welcome because Britain could not carry the burden of the Pacific while engaged in a life and death struggle with Germany and Italy.

"Our nation must demonstrate to history that it has the moral and physical stature to stand up and trade punches with the enemy not for six weeks or months but year after year if necessary, giving odds, but fighting the enemy to a standstill.

"If we fail ourselves, nothing will save us. We have to show ourselves worthy of aid."

His sentiments were echoed all over Australia, and in the halls of congress at Washington, senate and house leaders joined in. Chairman Snyder of military affairs said, after the applause had died down:

"I hope from now on many of our 'swivel chair generals' will remember that on this day many things are under way which will be just as pleasing to them, when they find out about them, as is the change in General MacArthur's status."

MAC ARTHUR: And His Job

The sending of MacArthur from Bataan, where the man in the street had regarded him as a sort of "dead hero"—certainly a hero, but condemned, apparently to either death or a Japanese prison—to Australia, where he could start with a clean page in the defense of that continent had been greeted with wild enthusiasm from one side of the nation to the other.

Paeans of praise had resounded not only in the press but upon the streets, and the general view was that the whole move had been made cleverly, because while General MacArthur had given his Bataan job into the hands of General Wainwright, he was still technically in command, as the Philippines were placed under his jurisdiction.

No less was the delight felt by the Australians, who had demanded MacArthur to lead them. The American public regarded it as significant that the move had been ordered in late February, but had not been carried out until mid-March, thus showing that MacArthur was not rushing after personal honors or safety, and that he would not leave his command until he had been given time to arrange things to suit him. MacArthur was accompanied by his chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, and by Brig. Gen. Harold H. George of the air corps.

Considerable editorial praise had been heaped on Mrs. MacArthur when it was learned that she and her son had not chosen the comparative safety of Manila and internment, but had chosen to go to the battlefield with the general, and then to take the long and perilous plane journey to Australia with him.

As to the general's job in Australia, it was the toughest of the whole war. That was conceded on all sides. For he was taking on his shoulders the command in an area where all had been defeat thus far.

The Japs were figured to attempt the Australia blitz, despite the fact that they had learned that American troops "in force" were on the continent and that more were on the way.

The Australian occupation was so vital to the Japanese, however, that they were apparently ready to risk the showdown battle that would surely ensue.

There was little question but that Australia was poorly prepared, for Prime Minister John Curtin had been stressing that since the beginning of the war he was taking on all sides. For he was taking on his shoulders the command in an area where all had been defeat thus far.

Strategically, however, MacArthur's job was even bigger than defending Australia, for if President Roosevelt's victory plan were to be carried out, it was up to him not only to defend Australia successfully, but to be "in at the death" of the Japanese hopes in the Pacific, and to carry on, from Australia as a hop-off spot, the successful offensive that would, at least so America hoped, knock the Nipponese out of the war.

MacArthur, on his arrival, had found more than just American troops on the ground, he had found an air force which was carrying out his own ideas on Bataan—striking often and fiercely at the enemy before he arrived on the scene.

There were few who believed MacArthur, even by a miracle of strategy, could prevent Japanese landings on Australia, even as he was unable to prevent them on the Philippines. But many hoped that he could and would find some method of striking such forces such terrific blows as to drive them into the sea and prevent their organization into any sort of a successful land army.

PRODUCTION:

A demand by congress that WPB Director Nelson report formally on production had followed some apparent dissatisfaction with the national output which, in turn, had come to light after a vital resignation within Nelson's group.

Nelson himself had come out with a fighting statement, threatening coolly to "knock down" any individuals or groups that showed any tendency to interfere with the smoothness of national war production.

'CAISSONS ROLL ALONG' IN A NEW TEMPO

AS I SIT AT THE WINDOW of the room in which I write and watch "the caissons go rolling along" at some 40 miles an hour, it causes me to think of the changed tempo of war since the days in the 90s when I was engaged in and knew something of soldiering.

In those days and, in fact, on through much of World War I, the caissons went rolling along at about four miles per hour, the speed of a six-mule team when being urged by a husky "mule skinner."

In those days the caissons rode the "caissons" with iron rimmed wheels and took all the jolts of the highways and battlefields. War in those days was a slow, leisurely operation that could be bloody when one really got into it, but you could not get in—or out—so quickly.

The doughboys walked, and their speed was not more than 10 miles a day. An enemy 100 miles away could not reasonably be expected to attack within less than 10 days, and that allowed time for preparation.

Yes, the doughboy walked and carried his equipment on his back. Aside from the field and staff officers, about the only things that enjoyed the luxury of transportation—other than shank's mares—were the company pots and pans in which were cooked the beans, the sow belly and coffee, which, together with hardtack, was what the commissary provided.

DEATH EVERYWHERE

SETTING-UP EXERCISES were not prescribed for troops on campaign. The soldier got all the exercise he could take care of without any of a prescribed kind. He did not need a lullaby or a crooner to put him to sleep at night. He seldom waited for "taps," but was asleep at the earliest opportunity, and awakened only to cuss the bugler for blowing reveille.

Washington, Napoleon, Wellington, Bismarck, Grant, Lee, Pershing, Foch and Haig commanded slow armies as compared with the speed of today. In those old days you looked for death only on the ground. You would get behind a shield, but you did not also have to get under one. Today death comes on the ground, from beneath the ground and from the skies.

As I watch the caissons go rolling along on rubber tires at 40 miles an hour, I realize the speed of war today and the need of youth to maintain that speed. I do not question the worthiness of our cause. I do question the necessity of war in general; I question the necessity of destruction as a means of attempting to settle disputes.

But at soldier age I saw glory and romance and adventure in the tramp, tramp; tramp of the doughboy, in the clatter of the iron-shod wheels of the caissons, in the pounding of hoofs of the cavalry horses. The young men of today see the same things in the roll of the rubber-tired wheels of the great guns and trucks in which they ride, in the clank of the tanks and the whirr of the airplane propellers. We can be thankful that when we must fight—as in this case we must—we have youth that sees these things in the same way their fathers, grandfathers and great-grandfathers saw them in days that are gone.

The caissons are rolling along to eventual victory because of the valor of our American youth.

AN AMERICAN LEADER—AND A SOD HOUSE

IN THE EARLY 1890s sod houses were not unusual on the plains of western Nebraska. They were houses with dirt floors, dirt walls and dirt ceilings.

In one such house a man child was born of a pioneer mother. I cannot tell you his name, for to do so would be breaking a confidence. Today he is one of America's leading economists, occupying an important place in American life.

At the age of six he began attending school for five months each year. His school was a one-room affair, presided over by a young woman, who taught only the three R's: He wanted knowledge and he purchased it for himself, working his way through college and majoring in economics that he might find out what made America tick. He improved the opportunity America offered, and today is making every possible effort to maintain that opportunity for America's boys and girls—the American way of life.

SIXTY MILES AN HOUR and burn them up! We will never miss the rubber until our tires wear out.—Buy Defense Bonds—

DEBTS, BORROWING, AND BANKRUPTCY

ON DECEMBER 15, 1941, the federal government debt was $56,731,000,000. On December 12, the federal government's gold borrowings—an obligation of the government—amounted to $20,451,000,000. The bonded indebtedness of the local and state governments of all states was $20,246,000,000. That adds up to $97,428,000,000.

To that will be added new bonds to pay for war expenses, amounting to 125 billion dollars, bringing the total to $222,528,000,000.

Fate of Free Enterprise Rests With Small Business

Economic Processes Altered as Producers Seek to Beat Enemy Competition; Profit Motive Relegated to Background.

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

"The war is placing the United States on a basis of non-competitive economy."

A cabinet member made this statement in a private gathering in Washington at which I was present a few days ago. He was urging the need for a study of post-war conditions.

"If we are going to maintain the principle of free enterprise," he went on, "we must begin to think now about how we are going to change back from a non-competitive system to the normal democratic system of individual enterprise."

What the cabinet officer was getting at is this: the major part of the energy of the nation is gradually being turned into war production. War production is a national enterprise. The objective is to obtain the greatest amount of armament and other supplies and necessities demanded for the creation of a huge military machine, as quickly as possible. This is an entirely different economic process from that upon which free enterprise is based.

Free enterprise is the production of goods for civilian consumption on a competitive basis at a profit sufficient to encourage the producer to keep on producing.

Under war conditions the only competition is with the enemy. Profits may be made by the producer but every phase of his business must be government controlled. The government already says that automobiles or ice boxes or radios or phonographs cannot be made for ordinary civilian consumption. The government tells the manufacturer what he can have in the way of raw materials and tells him what he can do with them. The big corporations for the most part are already on a non-competitive basis working for the government. Prices are controlled.

Big business which is convertible to war production has already been fitted into the new design. Big business which is not convertible and which makes an essential civilian product is able to adjust itself.

Small Business Problems

But small business faces a different problem. By small business is meant, according to government definition, a manufacturing plant employing 100 employees or less, wholesale establishments with less than $200,000 annual net sales volume; retail stores, service establishments, hotels, places of amusement and construction establishments with annual net sales or receipts of less than $50,000.

About 35 per cent of the small businesses of the country, of which there are 168,814 establishments, according to the classification of the United States department of commerce, are capable of conversion from civilian to war production. This leaves 60 to 65 per cent of these small businesses, which employ nearly 2 1/2 million men, in an exceedingly precarious position.

The vast majority of the people in the United States and the officials in Washington believe that small business must be preserved if free enterprise is to continue.

What's to be done about it? Well I spent an hour in the office of the man selected by the department of commerce to fight the fight for small business. It is a very plain office—the only wall decorations are a calendar and a map of the United States. At the desk sits a man with iron-gray hair and a fine Scotch burr. Up until three months ago his business card read "William Sheperdson, Financial Consultant, telephone WOrth 2-6400, 55 Liberty Street, Twenty-seventh Floor, New York." Today his card reads "William Sheperdson, telephone District 2200, Division of Regional Economy, Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C."

The Alternative.

Mr. Sheperdson takes his job very seriously. He believes that if small business is not preserved two steps must follow—one—big business will get bigger and small business will vanish—two—the government will have to take over.

That is what he wants to avoid. His first function is to get the facts concerning the problems of small business together; his second is to

BRIEFS . . . By Baukhage

- Q The war is costing Great Britain $58,000,000 a day!
- Q Farmers are being asked to plant more than half again as many soybeans this year as they did last, or 9,000,000 acres. Last year all soybean production records were broken.
- Q The United States office of education has changed the name of its publication, School Life, to Education for Victory.

get these facts before government officials and before members of congress before they act; his third is to assist group action wherever it is necessary to assist private effort.

Mr. Sheperdson cautiously points out that he can not solve the individual's problems as such but wherever a group of interests are concerned or wherever the individual represents a group of allied interests, he can and will be of assistance. He admits that winning the war is America's first job. A part of small business can help in the war effort and the government can help small business in this field by advising the 35 or 40 per cent of small manufacturers who are "convertible" in changing over their establishments to produce war products. Specifically his job is to answer an avalanche of inquiries. This he tries to do in simple, straightforward language.

One of his chief tasks is to help the small manufacturer to answer the complicated questionnaires and to fill out the forms required by all who get government contracts. His division has 31 representatives in the field talking to small business men personally. He has 12 consultants in Washington with him. He has also the tremendous resources of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce of the department of commerce. And he has the co-operation of a group in congress very much concerned with the plight of the small business man and he has the sympathy of Donald Nelson, head of the War Production board.

Central Authority

As an example of this sympathetic co-operation, by the time this is written congress will probably have approved the formation of a hundred million dollar corporation of which Donald Nelson, himself, will be the head, so there will be no split authority in war production. This corporation will have the power to make contracts for military supplies, it will see that these contracts are let exclusively to the smaller manufacturers who are capable of converting their plants to war production.

As to the 60 to 65 per cent of America's small businesses which cannot be converted, Mr. Sheperdson is rendering such aid and comfort as his long experience, his knowledge of the ability and the shortcomings of the small business man and his wide general knowledge make possible.

"Small business," says Mr. Sheperdson, "is usually managed by one, sometimes two, and rarely, three men. Big business has management specialists who hire brains. Big business has research departments. Small business cannot afford these things. Many business men cannot even read blue prints. They do one job and do it well. They may have learned their business from their fathers. They have energy and genius or they would not have succeeded. But they need leadership and education."

"Many of them keep no records. As a matter of fact 80 per cent keep none. In most cases the problem they are facing today boils down to management."

"The department tries to help in their education. It is now preparing a business guide and there is not a five dollar word in it. It doesn't even mention assets and liabilities. It says 'what do you owe?' and 'what do you own?'"

That guide may chart the course of many a small business through the stormy waters ahead and keep the flag of free enterprise flying.

(Incidentally, if you are interested in obtaining a copy, I shall be glad to pass your request on to Mr. Sheperdson.)

Washington Cancels Cherry Blossom Festival

There will be no cherry blossom festival in Washington this year.

For years people from all over the nation have been coming to Washington to see the cherry blossoms along what we now call the Tidal Basin and what used to be more poetically known as the Lagoon.

I have lived in Washington—on and off—since 1914. But I never lose the thrill I had when I first walked under that magic arbor of white-pink blossoms.

There is a delicate charm in their scentless petals. It is more than the mere captivation of the eye. It steals inside you, casts a gentle spell about you. The world fades away, time stops.

The cherry blossoms will bloom this year as they always have. Thousands will enjoy their beauty and forget that they are the symbol of something we must hate.

In reality, the cherry blossom is a symbol of a Japan that is gone, of a simple and poetic people who never have heard of a "new order," and who hated no one.

U. S. May Gain Rare Volumes

Great Britain Plans Sales Of Valuable Tomes to Get War Cash.

NEW YORK.—The man who once paid $106,000 for a book, $77,000 for a manuscript and $57,000 for a signature believes that this country, if she stays out of war, will become the world's greatest treasure house of rare books.

Even now, there are many rare books in this country of which there are no copies in Europe, said Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, one of the world's leading bibliophiles.

And British authorities are considering sending a number of the finest manuscripts and rare books in some of England's famous private libraries to be placed on sale here to get American dollars for her war needs.

Nothing new in British museums would be sent under the plan on which Dr. Rosenbach has been consulted. Britain is holding on to her national treasures, such as two Fourth century codices of the Bible, which are in the British museum, and Shakespeare's will.

Boost Book Collecting.

A plan to send some of her private library treasures, if carried out, would bring new impetus to book-collecting in this country, which for the last 40 years has been the world's greatest rare-book market.

There are, for example, four times more copies of the first folio of Shakespeare now in the United States than in the whole of England.

A number of wealthy young American men have been coming up in recent years as book lovers and buyers who give promise of ranking with the great collectors.

Dr. Rosenbach, who once wrote that "after love, book collecting is the most exhilarating sport of all," said that all over Europe, except in Switzerland, collectors have had virtually to cease their activities because of the war—an even greater cessation than in the last war.

On this side of the Atlantic, rare books are changing hands for war relief.

A Lifetime Collector.

Backed by tall book-shelves full of the treasures he has spent a full time collecting all over the world, Dr. Rosenbach, a ruddy, healthy-looking man in his early sixties, sat puffing his pipe.

A church-like quiet pervaded his library and the adjacent rooms housing one of his three collections.

The others are in his Philadelphia home—the city where he and his family before him have had a book business for a century, and the other at his estate at Strathmere, N. J.

He led the way to the fireproof vault, about 8 by 15 feet, which contains approximately $2,500,000 worth of his rare volumes, and showed his 85 Robert Burns manuscripts and a partial row of John Milton manuscripts.

Few persons go beyond the vault's steel door, and none goes unaccompanied. The manuscript of "Alice in Wonderland," for which he paid $77,000, and the manuscript of Dickens' "Pickwick Papers" which he owns are in bank vaults.

The $77,000 was the highest price ever paid for an author's manuscript; the $106,000 he paid for the Melk copy of the Gutenberg Bible the highest ever paid for a printed book, and the $57,000 he bid for a document signed by Button Gwinnett, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, the highest ever paid for a signature.

Texas Longhorn Not to Die Out

Herd of 145 of Picturesque Cattle Cared For in Wildlife Refuge.

WASHINGTON.—At one time nearly the whole plains country from the Gulf of Mexico to the Canadian border "belonged" to the longhorn. Today, according to the bureau of biological survey, fewer than 250 real Texas longhorn cattle are in existence.

The largest herd now is at the Wichita Mountains wildlife refuge near Cache, Okla., where about 145 of these picturesque animals roam the ranges under the biological survey's protection. Eighteen longhorns are on the Fort Niobara game preserve near Valentine, Neb., and others are in private ownership.

The cattle at the Wichita refuge descend from 30 longhorns brought to the area in 1927, when it was administered by the forest service. One member of that original herd from the coastal plains of Texas still lives—"Old Red," a gaunt cow more than 20 years old.

Longhorns may be described as leggy, hardy, active animals with long keen horns and an aggressive disposition. In color they range from black, brindle, dun, spotted, buckskin, red, roan, and white to various combinations of these colors. Special characteristics are coarse hairs about the forehead and in the ears, and a fish-shaped prominence of the bone along the top of the rump just back of a line across the hip bones.

Breed Slower to Develop.

Slow to growth, a longhorn requires two or three more years to attain maturity than do other breeds of cattle. As long as the animal grows, the horns continue growing. On record are horns with spreads of six, seven and even eight feet, from tip to tip.

Saga of the longhorn goes back to 1521, when the first cattle were brought to American shores by Gregorio Villalobos, a governor-general sent to "New Spain." John Hatton, of the forest service and probably the outstanding living authority on longhorns, states that "these Spanish calves were the progenitors of the millions of longhorns that spread from Vera Cruz northerly over the coastal plains of Texas and the plains region of the Far West.

They became the pioneers of our western cattle industry.

After the Civil war these cattle were still numerous. Then live stock breeders, however, began raising heavier, beefier cattle, and by 1923 it became apparent that only prompt action could save the Texas longhorn from extinction.

Attention was forcefully called to this fact by the late Will C. Barnes, public official, author and one-time cowboy, who made it evident that the longhorn was dying out and should be preserved.

Wide Survey Made.

Barnes and John Hutton began a long trek back in July, 1927, in search of longhorns when they were working with the forest service. Not until the quest got under way did live stock breeders realize how close to extinction the longhorn was. In their efforts, the two foresters traveled more than 5,000 miles and examined more than 30,000 head of Texas cattle before they collected a herd of suitable specimens of the longhorn type.

Little by little, a herd of 20 cows, three bulls, three steers, and four calves was collected and shipped to the Wichita refuge, in August, 1927. From this nucleus of 30 the herd has increased to 146.

Longhorns are not a scrub breed, as many people think. Under favorable conditions, these cattle will develop into large, often fat animals.

Confusion of War Aids Struggling Young Doctor

LONDON.—A young London doctor, who only a few months ago was barely able to pay his office rent, now holds a high government position—and all because of a mistake.

Shortly after the outbreak of war, he received a letter from the ministry of health appointing him to take charge of a children's department outside of London.

Almost overcome with surprise and joy at being recognized by the government, the young man left London to take up his new post.

Later, it was discovered that it was a well-known Harley street specialist of the same name for whom the letter was intended, but by this time the young doctor was making such a good job of his new work that his appointment was regularized.

Dry Raiders Are Busy On Prince Edward Isle.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I.—Prince Edward Island—only province in Canada still under prohibition—plans to stay dry, even though thousands of troops are in training here. Military officers approve of the dry laws.

Artillery officers and Royal Canadian Mounted police have been conducting a series of raids through the capital, but as yet no bootleg liquor has been found. In one blind raid however, what was described as "considerable quantity" of military equipment, evidently traded in for liquor, was recovered.

Sugar Rationing

Individual Ration Has Not Been Definitely Set, As Yet

Registration dates for sugar rationing have finally been set by the OPA for April 28-29 and May 4-5, 6. All sugar sales will be limited at full night April 27 for approximately one week sugar being off the market from April 28 until about May 5.

Individual consumers will register on the May dates, with industrial consumers such as confectioners and candy makers registering on the two April dates.

The individual ration has not been set definitely as yet. However the stamp book to be issued at the registration will contain 28 one-penny stamps, sufficient to last more than a year if the one-half pound ration is decided upon. Sugar on hand at the time of registration must be reported and stamps will be taken from the book at that time to cover the amount of sugar on hand. A housewife may register for her whole family and while there is no restriction as to who carries the book to the store, books are not interchangeable with other families.

Save Your Piano!

Production of new pianos in all factories has, for the present, been restricted to 12-12 percent of normal in order to preserve and divert all metals and other materials vital to the war effort into war production. We are advised by the manufacturers they fully expect that in the very near future production will cease entirely for the duration. Even now the larger retail concerns in the cities are absorbing every new piano for their local trade and new merchandise is almost unavailable for rural districts and competent observers within the industry are convinced it may be years before the restrictions are lifted.

Confronted with this unfortunate but unavoidable situation, the present owners of pianos will necessarily give serious thought to the preservation of the pianos they now possess. Anticipating such an emergency, because of war conditions, your local piano service has taken steps to fortify its service against such an eventuality. We have regularly and consistently added to our stock of repairs and replacements to the end we are amply equipped to successfully recondition or rebuild your old piano that it may add many years to its usefulness. Estimates and possible costs cheerfully given in advance without cost or obligation on the part of the piano owner. We earnestly urge you to avail yourself of this service before your piano may become permanently lost to you and while our present supply is available. Many of these replacements are being rapidly withdrawn from the market and no substitutions have been provided. Our charges are conservative and consistent with a qualified guarantee of satisfaction.

In the terrible ordeal thru which we are passing there are practically only two sources to which we can turn for comfort and relief from mental strain. Specifically these sources are religion and music. Our churches and our homes are supplying this medium of spiritual comfort and inspiration and in both these sanctuaries, the piano, more than any other instrument, contributes to a large share of the spiritual and mental uplift for which we are constantly striving. Let us not fail to appreciate how vital and essential is its contribution to our daily living.

Sincerely yours for better pianos—

SYNOPSIS

THE STORY SO FAR: Bruce Harcourt, Alaska engineer, finds a satin slipper on Fifth avenue and on answering an ad learns it belongs to Janice Trent, sister of a college chum. Janice quarreled with her fiance, rich Ned Paxton, a gay blade, dropping her slipper as she tried to leave his auto. Impulsively Bruce asks her not to marry Ned. Harcourt returns to Alaska, saves a bridge from collapsing. Hale, chief engineer, had blundered. This and other failures led to his dismissal. Bruce is made chief. The camp has a new secretary, Jimmy Delevan, hired by Tubby Grant, Bruce's assistant. Jimmy seems a tubercular youth who keeps out of sight as much as possible. Bruce had never seen him when one day he walked into the cabin of the Samp sisters, who run the Waffle Shop, and discovers the youth is Janice. She is asleep in a chair. Martha shows him a newspaper which arrived that day. It tells of Janice disappearing four days before her wedding. Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER IV

"Has she seen that paper?" asked Harcourt.

"No," replied Martha. "That helps. Be sure that no one else sees it. Burn it. A useless precaution. Others like it, doubtless, have come in this mail. I must go to the office. You haven't told me yet why you sent for me, Miss Martha."

"I want another room built on the cabin for her. She's brought all her handsome wedding things, sheets and pillow slips made of pink crepe. Mary's near gone out of her mind over it all. She loves pretties. If the girl is goin' to stay she ought to have a cabin hitched on to ours."

"I'll talk with you about that later. I'm due now at the office. So is Jimmy Delevan, but tell him not to come. Grant must take the notes."

His mind was in a turmoil. Should he let Janice stay? He must get in touch with her brother—Billy couldn't have known that she was coming.

Pasca, his part Indian, part Eskimo servant, who filled the dual role of house-boy and mechanic, was shuffling about the cabin living-room when he entered for his papers.

"We all mighty glad you big boss now, yes sirree."

"Thank you. Don't put on any more wood. You'll have me roasted alive."

"Cold later. I know these country. Much number cold nights. But, I do what you say." He lingered.

"What's is it? Got something on your mind?"

The man's confirmatory grunt deepened the two little lines between Harcourt's brows.

"I got Kadyama on mind."

"What's the matter with him? Doesn't he like helping at the Waffle Shop after his regular work? Want more money?"

Pasca's dark eyes narrowed to glinting slits in his heavy face. "No sirree. He lak helpin' Mees Samp seesters, much good eats. He big chief's son. One day Meester Hale tell her she fine gal—Mees Hale off in Seattle—pay her plenty money to keep hees cabin clean. Tatima lak money. She lak beads an' gold nuggets. Now she tell Kadyama, 'Who, me, marry on Indian! No sirree! I lak got hair men! An! he say, he get Hale some day. You big boss now. You do somethin' to mak Tatima lak heem. Save much trouble."

Harcourt's lips tightened as he looked up into the earnest face. Another complication.

"Tell Kadyama to take it easy, Pasca. Hale goes out on the boat day after tomorrow. He'll never come back."

The man's expression lightened. "He go day after tomorrow, you say? I tell Kadyama, yes sirree. He tink Tatima under spell. Says black cat—black debbil. T'ings happen after he come. Bad! Bad! He keel him, sometam, p'raps."

He shuffled out. Harcourt looked after him in consternation. He had known that the native laborers regarded the black cat as an omen, but he hadn't realized that Blot was looked upon with superstition. Better suggest to the Samp sisters that they keep their pet under guard.

He wondered if he were as colorless as he felt, as later he faced the men of the outfit, the consulting engineers, the heads of divisions.

"What the dickens has Janice done to her hair? I thought it was brown," he caught himself wondering before he directed curtly:

"Take the minutes of the meeting, Grant."

"But, my secretary—"

"Isn't coming." He was conscious of Tubby's grunt of surprise.

As in a haze he read instructions and outlined plans from the data furnished by the authorities.

Later, in the living-room of his cabin, he slipped into a broadcaded lounging-robe, crimson as a Harvard banner, girdled like a monk's frock. His taut nerves relaxed as he felt its softness.

"You should see the fighting line of your mouth," Janice had said that night in New York.

"The present complication won't soften it any, Jan," he thought.

Tubby Grant slammed in.

"What's the big idea cutting out my secretary tonight? His greenish eyes were indignant, his voice aggravated.

Pasca said: "He keel him, sometam, p'raps."

"Delevan! Do you know who Delevan is?"

For an instant the guarded eyes of the two men met. Grant grinned sheepishly.

"I'm not dumb if I am fat."

"No, and no use bristling like a turkey-cock, Tubby. My mind's made up. I'll send her back to Seattle."

"B-gosh! Don't." The plea was a wail. "Think of the time we had finding a secretary. And she's good. Did Martha Samp show you that paper?"

"She did."

"It's up to us to shield the girl. Why send her back to the man she ran away from?"

"Shield her? Of course—but how? It's a tricky situation. Tell Delevan to stay in the Samp cabin till I see her tomorrow. Good-night."

Harcourt stood at the open door watching Grant's stubby figure till it melted into the dusk. What ought he to do? There were two alternatives. Send her back, or acknowledge to the men that she had been sent under false pretenses and have her appear as a girl.

"Good morning, Bruce!"

With a barely repressed exclamation of annoyance, Harcourt returned the greeting of the woman who smiled at him from the office door. She was small and slender.

"It's great to see you back again, Mrs. Hale."

Color flooded the thin face. "Mrs. Hale! Why this sudden assumption of ceremony, Mr. Harcourt?"

He laughed. "Business for business hours. I picked up that slogan when I was in the States."

Remembering Hale's ugly thrust, "Home breaker! uncomfortable, feeling like a cad, Harcourt stuck to his guns. Could he warn the little woman without seeming a conceited fool?"

"Come out, Millicent. I want to talk to you." As they stood in the strong, warm sunshine outside the door, he regretted gravely:

"I'm sorry about Hale's demotion. He can't have a very friendly feeling toward me. You'd better—"

She shrugged her understanding. "Better keep away from your office, you mean? Why should you be sorry? The best man wins in the end always, doesn't he? I've felt all that I can feel about Joe. When he reached Seattle, I was refreshed, rested. He was like his old self. I had the courage to go on, but since he heard of his demotion he has been unbearable. I suppose I shouldn't have left him alone last winter—they tell me that he was worse than ever—but, I had reached the stage where I couldn't endure my life here another moment. However, I shan't be on your mind much longer. I came to tell you that we are going out on tomorrow's boat, to ask you to help. If I'd known that he was to be sent home, I wouldn't have come back. I don't dare confide in Jimmy; he goes off like a rocket if he thinks me unhappy. Joe says he won't go, but he's going. I've ceased being a dumb Dora. He's going." Her voice rose on the last word and broke in a sob.

"Take it easy, Millicent. Grant and I will help you get him off. I'll see that Jimmy keeps on the track-laying job till you get away. Perhaps when Joe is back among his own people he'll straighten out."

"Do you think I fool myself? Do you think I believe that a man who has let himself go so far as he has can ever come back? Oh well, what's the use talking about it. You've been dear to me, Bruce. If only—if only I could stay with you."

Her reckless suggestion sent the blood surging to Harcourt's forehead.

"Millicent, you've heard me say before that an engineers' camp was no place for women. I'm mighty glad that you are going back to civilization."

"But you like having the Samp sisters here."

"They are not women, they're ministering angels. I suspect they are fixtures. Were I to banish them and their waffles, I'd have a strike on my hands. I'm going to the shop now to discuss building another cabin for them."

"They've gone maternal over Tubby Grant's secretary, Jimmy Delevan. Have you seen him? He's an effeminate little fellow."

Harcourt with difficulty swallowed his heart which took-off to furiously run its engine in his throat.

"I haven't spoken to the boy. Tubby tells me that he's a wow at his job." They started along the board walk. Tong at their heels, toward the Waffle Shop, connected by a covered passage with the Samp cabin. Millicent Hale stared at the snow-capped mountain with the faint cloud of smoke hovering above it.

"I—hate to leave you here with no one to look after you. Sure you don't want me to stay, Bruce?"

"Sure, Millicent."

Color stole over her thin face. With a quick drawn breath she turned away. Harcourt pulled out his handkerchief and wiped beads of perspiration from his forehead. He felt like a brute. Poor little woman, grasping at any hand which would hold her from going on with the man who had failed her. She hadn't meant that about staying here with him. It was only that she was crazed with despair. She wouldn't leave Joe Hale to shift for himself, now that he'd lost his job, any more than she would desert a sick child. His knock on the door of the Samp cabin was grimly imperative.

"Come in."

He closed the door behind him, backed against it as he regarded Janice Trent, alias Jimmy Delevan. The soft yellow mustache had been discarded. Eyes like velvety bronze pansies met his defiantly as the girl demanded in a voice forced to bravado pitch:

"What—what are you going to do with me?"

In the wall mirror he caught a glimpse of his face. It was white, his eyes were blazing. It was no part of his plan to terrify her to death. His attempt at a laugh was a grim failure.

"Why did you come?"

"Suspended sentence? Prisoner to be allowed to be heard in her own defense?"

He took a quick step forward. "Cut out the sarcasm, Jan. Sit down and listen to me." As she snuggled into the enfolding wings of the big chair the black cat touched her hair with a velvet paw.

"Let's not start out as though we were here to fight and die over this. Why did you come here in disguise?"

The girl locked and interlocked her fingers. "Now that your voice and eyes are human, not like those of a tiger about to spring, I'll tell you. Remember the evening you returned my slipper? I had already broken my engagement to Ned Paxton. Early that morning, when he was taking me home from a pre-nuptial celebration, I demanded the truth of a story which Billy had heard—that two nights before he had wino'ed and dined some notorious show-women in a near-by city. He was insufferably flippant in his answer. Insultingly sure of me. I pushed open the roadster door to jump. He pulled me back, but not my slipper. Then he tried to cajole me into a forgiving mood."

"You didn't forgive him?"

"No. I returned his ring. He laughed. Said that with the marriage but a few days ahead I wouldn't have the nerve to break it off. Assured me in his caressing voice that I was the only girl he had ever asked to marry him. He tried to make me understand that the man who played round with other women was an entirely different self from the one who loved me, that his pursuit of the good and beautiful in me was to his credit. He was almost convincing, but not quite. I told him that not being Reno-minded the double personality argument left me cold. That I would cancel my part of the wedding preparations, he must take care of his. That night, just after you entered the house, he called me on the phone to inform me that he hadn't given me up, that he was sorry that he had pulled rough stuff in the roadster—Ned can be appealingly sorry; it's one of his charms—that he would see me later in the evening, he had pearls for me."

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger B. Whitman

Roger B. Whitman—WNU Service

MISPLACING HOUSE ON LOT

A HOME owner is much troubled because his new house is not squarely in the center of his plot. The house is the first one in a section, and the building of a second house two plots away has made him realize that his own house is 14 inches closer to one side of his plot than it should be. He is greatly worried about it, for he feels that the appearance is so affected that the value of the property is reduced. He feels so strongly about it that he is considering selling, although this would not be to his advantage. As a matter of fact, I think that his worry is most unnecessary, for I doubt if an outsider would notice that the house is misplaced. Actually, the only difference that it might make would be in the location of the driveway. As far as appearances are concerned, foundation planting and landscaping could completely conceal the error in the location of the house. To many people, in fact, having the house off-center on the lot would be an advantage and an added attraction, as getting away from too much symmetry. Other methods for curing what the owner considers a defect would be to add a bay-window, or what would be still simpler, to make a paved terrace beside the house, shielded by a permanent awning.

Rusting Furnace.

Question: My house is heated by hot water, with a rectangular boiler and an oil burner. I have had trouble with rusting of the smokepipe and of the furnace, and am taking your advice to take down the smokepipe during the idle seasons, and to spray with oil. If I do this, is it also necessary to leave the boiler doors open?

Answer: Rusting during an idle season is due to the fact that chimney draft draws cellar air through the boiler openings. The air is damp, and there is heavy condensation if it is forced to go through leaks around closed doors. Taking down the smokepipe cuts off the draft and stops this cause of condensation. Even so, I should leave all the doors open in addition to taking down the smokepipe. The whole boiler will remain at the temperature of the cellar air, and condensation will be at a minimum.

Concrete Porch Floor.

Question: Would you advise putting concrete over an open deck porch of a brick veneer house? Would it be lasting?

Answer: Although you do not say so, I take it that the present floor is wood. In that case, a concrete covering would not be satisfactory; for if it is thick enough to have the necessary strength, it will be too heavy for the supports. You will do better to cover the floor with deck canvas, which you can get from a dealer in building material, or with a kind of insulating board impregnated with asphalt, to be had at a lumber yard.

Chromium Plate.

Question: I have chromium plated faucets in my new bathroom, and to keep them looking new I used metal polish. To my sorrow this took off the silvery surface. How can I restore it?

Answer: Chromium plate can be kept clean and polished with no more than a cloth wet with warm water. The polish that you used removed the plating. You can have it restored in a plating shop; any garage can tell you of one in your neighborhood. For this, the faucets must be removed, of course, so the simplest procedure is to have the whole job done by a plumber.

Peeling Bricks.

Question: Bricks under stone window sills are peeling—What is the cause and cure?

Answer: Leakage around the window and frame is keeping the bricks soaked with water. To stop the trouble you should close all leaks, which are likely to be in the joint between the window frame and the outside wall.

Killing Trees.

Question: What can be done to kill a diseased tree, so that near-by trees will not be harmed? I do not want to go to the expense of cutting it down.

Answer: A tree can be killed by cutting through the bark to the wood, forming a ring around the trunk. This will prevent the flow of sap. The tree will then die quickly.

Swollen Door.

Question: In rainy weather, our front door swells so that it cannot be closed. It is made of birch, 2 1/2 inches thick. Can this be corrected?

Answer: In a stretch of clear weather, when the door is thoroughly dry, put paint or varnish on all of the edges, for those are the places where moisture soaks in and causes all the trouble.

Speed of Golf Balls

The United States Golf association has recently ruled no golf ball can have a velocity greater than 250 feet per second. The association has so ruled to eliminate the threat of causing present golf courses to become obsolete because of the far-traveling golf ball. The velocity of the balls can be regulated by controlling pressure on the core of the ball and tightness of the rubber wrappings.

Conserving Food

As the quotation "Food will win the war and write the peace" gains prominence, homemakers all over the country are beginning to realize that they must do their part in making the most of the food at hand.

Your first step in conserving food will come when you plan your menus and shopping. If you are not in this habit, then start now to practice the true economy that comes only with this kind of planning. You will rarely have bits of leftovers that are difficult to fit into the menu if you provide a place for them.

Your second step in conserving food will come in proper storage. No matter how careful a shopper you are, if you do not provide the facilities that keep food from becoming decayed, wilted, or soiled, you will not have done your part.

Refrigerator Storage.
Milk, eggs, butter, cheese, meat, opened canned food or leftover food, require the cold of a refrigerator to keep them in good condition.

Fresh fruits and vegetables also retain their freshness and moistness in the icebox. Place them, after they are washed and carefully dried on the racks or in their special compartments. Lettuce and other greens keep best when stored in damp cloth bags.

Protein foods such as eggs, cheese and meat need the controlled cold of the refrigerator to keep their protein from decomposing. Uncooked meat may be left uncovered or covered lightly with waxed paper. Cooked meat should be covered. Cheese may be wrapped in a waxed paper or cloth, and covered with a thin film of butter if you expect to keep it for a long time. Keep eggs away from strong foods to prevent their porous shells from absorbing odors.

Leftover food remains usable if kept in covered containers. Canned foods will be perfectly safe to use even if left in the cans in which they come. Canned fruits keep best in their own liquid or syrup, olives best in their own brine, and pimientos will not become molded if left in the oil in which they come.

The problem of keeping an egg yolk or two after the white has been used is easily solved if you just leave the yolk in a half of a shell and cover it with the other half. Several egg yolks or several whites can be placed in a glass jar and kept well covered.

Take stock of your refrigerator frequently so no food remains there for too long a time. Even though you are careful about storage, do not expect food to retain its good condition indefinitely.

Storing Cookies, Cakes, Bread.
Crisp cookies will retain the crispness if you place them in a loosely covered tin or box to permit the free

Lynn Says:

You can be smart about the way you use leftovers. Here are a few ideas:

Save leftover vegetables from dinner, wash the butter off and use in salads combined with celery, lettuce and dressing. Use other vegetables for stews, meat pies, and casseroles.

Leftover roasts slice nicely so you can have them cold or serve hot with leftover gravy. Meats combine well in casseroles, croquettes, stews, soup and salads. Meat juices and bones combined with a few vegetables make up nicely into soups.

Clarify fats (bacon drippings, lard, suet, or chicken fat) by heating and adding 1 peeled, sliced potato and cooking until fat stops bubbling. Strain through a double cheesecloth, and store. Substitute 1/2 cup clarified fat for 1 cup butter in recipes.

Pour cooked cereals leftover from breakfast into jars or pans. Slice, fry and serve with syrup. Leftover egg yolks are good for custards, mayonnaise, sauces and frostings. Leftover egg whites are excellent for angel food cakes, frostings, meringues and sauces.

circulation of air. Soft cookies remain moist if kept in a well-covered tin or jar with an apple or slice of lemon, orange, or grapefruit to provide additional moisture. Change the fruit every several days.

Tight containers which close out the air are recommended for keeping cakes at their best freshness. Cover them with waxed paper, too. A bread box scrupulously cleaned at least once or twice a week with soap and water, and dried thoroughly contributes in large measure to the freshness of bread.

Keep in a Cool, Dry Place:
Coffee, spices, flour and crackers need dry, cool storage in tightly covered containers since they are affected by air. Use metal or glass containers for them. When crackers get soggy, crisp them in the oven for a few minutes and they will be as good as when you bought them.

Fats which are so valuable at present should be treated with the best of care so they do not become rancid. Store them in a glass jar or crock and place in a cool, dark storeroom.

Storing in the Cellar.
You are extremely fortunate if you have a cellar for storing purposes. Now with home and defense gardening gaining in popularity, you may have vegetables to keep for later use. If the cellar tends to become warm, leave the windows open at night, closed during the day.

Cook to Save Food Values.
Poor cooking may cause the biggest kind of waste in food. Perhaps you roast your meats at too high a temperature and cause them to shrink more than necessary. Be careful to watch temperatures and time in roasting or cooking meats. Meat, cheese, eggs and milk are all protein foods which should never be cooked too long or at too high temperature since this causes the protein fibers to become tough.

Measure water carefully when cooking vegetables so you do not have to throw any out and lose valuable minerals and vitamins into the kitchen drain. As soon as food is cooked serve it immediately as standing or overcooking causes loss in food value.

Cook with covers as much as possible except in the case of green vegetables which lose their coloring if covered. Starting the cooking of vegetables with boiling water will cut down cooking time.

Our recipe of the day is a good example of how you can combine several kinds of leftovers into one delicious main dish. The spinach may have been left over from yesterday's dinner, the shrimp from a luncheon you gave, and the bread crumbs rolled from stale bread.

Spinach Ring With Shrimp Sauce.
(Serves 6 to 8)
3 cups cooked spinach
1 teaspoon grated onion
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon black pepper
1/4 teaspoon paprika
2 eggs
3 cups cream sauce
1/2 cup fine bread crumbs
1 to 2 cups whole canned shrimp
Chop spinach fine and add grated onion which has been browned in butter. Season with salt, black pepper, paprika and add the well beaten yolks. Mix the spinach with 1 1/2 cups cream sauce and fold in well beaten whites. Place in a buttered ring mold and dust with bread crumbs. Place in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate (35-degree) oven for 20 minutes. Loosen by pressing spinach from side of mold. Heat shrimp with remaining white sauce and serve in center of spinach ring.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE TRANSFIGURED CHRIST MEETS HUMAN NEED

LESSON TEXT—Luke 9:28-43a.
GOLDEN TEXT—And they were all amazed at the mighty power of God.— Luke 9:43.

Glory and grace go together. Spirituality finds meaning in service. Holiness is faith in action. Every fine emotion should be translated into conduct.

This is the message of our lesson as it presents the transfigured Christ and the disciples, moved beyond intelligent words by His transcendent glory, going forth into the valley to meet the need of demon-ridden humanity.

I. Amazing Glory (vv. 28-36).

To three of the disciples came the privilege of seeing in the mount the outshining of the deity of Christ through the humanity of His flesh in such amazing glory that Peter could think of nothing more wonderful than to prolong the experience by tarrying in the mount.

One could wish that it were possible in presenting this lesson to get over into the thinking of those who read or hear, a proper conception of the glory of our Christ, but words seem to be such weak and insufficient instruments. One would cry out: "Look at Him—the Son of God with the transfigured face—and the light of heavenly glory—shining forth in a dazzling whiteness" (literally, like lightning).

If men would only look upon Him, they would see how untrue are those who take from Him His deity, who speak of Him as only a good man or a great teacher. He, our Saviour, who took upon Himself the limitation of our flesh, was and is eternally God.

Significant it is to note that with Him on the mount were Moses and Elijah. The former had died (Deut. 34:5, 6) and the latter had been translated without death (II Kings 2:11), but both were alive, recognizable, intelligent, interested in the redemptive work which Christ was to work out on the cross (v. 31). This definitely denies such false theories as soul-sleep or annihilation at death.

But the vision of glory becomes a means of blessing as we see

II. Amazing Grace (vv. 37-43a).

Like Peter, there are many folk who think that the thing to do is to remain on the mountaintop, just enjoying the vision of glory and the delightful fellowship of Christ and the redeemed. They do not learn such things from Christ or from the Word of God. The next day (v. 37) He and the disciples met the cry of an anguished father whose boy was possessed of a demon and who had found no help (v. 40). Look then upon the one whose unspeakable glory has just been revealed in the mount, who has just had the approval of God the Father (v. 35), who now in amazing grace meets the need of this humble child! There is the grace of God, manifest in the One whom we as Christians profess to follow. Let us like Him bring the glory of God and (in His name) the power of God to bear upon the need of men.

It seems to the writer of these notes that God is waiting to do a new thing in the midst of human suffering and sorrow—working through His disciples. We need first of all to know Him ourselves, as our own Saviour and Lord. Then we need a vision of His glory, flooding our souls and transforming our lives (Rom. 12:1, 2). Then, we must put that glory and that power to work through our lives. The one who follows Christ cannot be satisfied to rejoice in his own salvation and not reach out to win others. He cannot rest in the peace of soul which Christ gives and not put forth his hand to those who struggle in "life's wild restless sea." He must (as Matt. 5:16 puts it) let his light so shine in the darkness that men may find their way to the Father's house and thus glorify the name of God.

God does His work in the world through redeemed men and women. He is always seeking those who, having seen the glory of Christ and with His grace upon them, are ready to be used of the Holy Spirit for His glory. "What the church needs today is not more machinery or better, not new organizations or more novel methods; but men whom the Holy Ghost can use—men of prayer, men mighty in prayer. The Holy Ghost does not flow through methods but through men. He does not come on machinery, but on men. He does not anoint plans, but men" (E. M. Bounds).

Need Compassion

I do not know how any Christian service is to be fruitful if the servant is not primarily baptized in the spirit of a suffering compassion. We can never heal the needs we do not feel. Tearless hearts can never be the heralds of the Passion. We must pity if we would redeem. We must bleed if we would be the ministers of the saving blood.—J. H. Jowett.

Practical Attitude Will Not Spoil Fun of Easter Paraders

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THE 1942 Easter style parade will be more than a mere display of chic and flattering apparel. Not that it will be lacking in feminine charm, for the new fashions are as intriguing and eye-appealing as bright, pretty accessories can make them. However, it is with a two-fold purpose that women are selecting their Easter outfits and assembling their spring wardrobes. Women are not choosing their new clothes from the viewpoint of attractiveness alone, but back of it all is a steadfast desire to buy wisely, purposefully and thoughtfully with an eye to the future.

The present sane, careful, wholesome buying movement demands expression, and from all reports and appearances, that expression is the suit of handsome material styled softly and becomingly with a versatility that reveals a fresh fashion inspiration that has been born of war needs.

Women are becoming alertly "fabric wise." They want quality materials that are given an undated styling which will carry them valiantly through more than the current season. They are regarding wool weaves in a new light, knowing full well they must buy wool with a view to serviceability, long wear, as wool supplies for civilian use are being reduced as rapidly as the requirements for army service are expanding. It behooves every woman to take jealous care of her wool suits, dresses and coats these days, for most of the newer fabrics will have but a percentage of wool.

Color is the big news for suits. With a fine philosophy our style creators have worked out the problem of making the suit that is designed to be utterly utilitarian radiate a message of cheer in such striking colors as geranium red, ivy green, spring-like yellow, hyacinth blue and related bright hues.

Jersey Jacket

It's smart to be sleeveless. New on the spring fashion program is the sleeveless jacket worn with a simple shirtwaist dress. The New York creation illustrated in the above picture scores high in style credits. The dress is fashioned of a bow-knot print. The jacket of wool jersey highlights the lighter tones of the printed design, and is distinctive because in addition to being sleeveless it has huge patch pockets and a sewed-in belt.

Accessories are creating such a splurge of color they give to suits a brightness that radiates throughout the entire-spring fashion picture. Especially smart with navy suits and gray wools, and also with checks and stripes, are vivid gloves, bags, shoes and hats. And don't forget plaids when choosing the new suit or coat. They are more important than ever.

Covert is a leading fabric for spring. We see this sturdy fabric in the trim man-tailored suit shown at the top left in the above illustration. Instead of a coat it has a modish cape for dash and extra warmth. Capes will be seen more and more as the months go by. This serviceable ensemble is in tan. Coverts are also being widely shown in defense blue. Both colors take vivid accessories beautifully.

The novelty flannel plaid suit pictured to the right above is young and cheerful. In red and soft gray tones, it has a generously pleated skirt and a snug fitting double breasted jacket which buttons high and is accented by four vertical pockets.

Fine spun rayon gabardine brings its nice tailoring to fashion the costume to the left, below, in the above illustration. The fitted high-buttoned jacket sports three large pockets, while the skirt is styled with trim box pleats.

Novelty jeweled buttons mark the front closing of the jet black rich rayon faille suit to the right, below, in the above picture. The high, rounded lapels, flap pockets and kick-pleated skirt are excellent fashion points. A flaring milan straw bonnet with grosgrain edging adds distinction to this costume.

Pictured to the right in the inset in the above picture is a wool plaid greatcoat belted in leather which, because of its good looks and hard-wearing qualities, is a "must" in every active woman's wardrobe. This huge block plaided sturdy go-everywhere tweed is in a wonderful color blend of deep blue, dark wine and beige. It is beautifully fitted, with full straight sleeves and dashing skirt lines.

Taffeta Is a Popular Fabric for Accessories

A new trend in fashion this season is the use of taffeta for trimming. It is being used for piping, pleating, bordering, wide tie-girdles, yoke treatments, pockets and in countless other intriguing ways.

One of the latest versions is the navy dress piped and trimmed with navy taffeta. There is also a liberal use of taffeta in contrast colors, and taffeta plaid hats and bags have a high style rating.

Playtime Aprons

Children will take great delight in the novel aprons of bright prints. They have huge pockets to hold a sewing outfit for little girls, or a set of garden tools for boys, or perhaps a drawing set for either.

White Hats

Milliners are creating most attractive little white hats this spring to be worn with suits or ensembles. They are styled with a view to flattery and many have sprightly little dotted white veils.

Chevrons

A patriotic gesture is the trimming of junior hats, blouses and sailor suits with gaily colorful chevrons and stars. You can buy these motifs all ready to applique.

Unbleached Muslin

Cottons will be worn extensively this spring and summer. There is promised a plentiful use of unbleached muslin dyed in rich colors.

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS

● In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.

● It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.

● When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. This advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

Motorists Are Urged To Save Anti-Freeze

Federal Price Administrator Leon Henderson is asking service station attendants to impress upon motorists the necessity for draining and saving the contents of their radiators for use next winter.

A successful campaign against waste will save millions of gallons of anti-freeze at a time when every gallon of alcohol used is needed to make explosives, Henderson advised.

Alcohol, the basis of four-fifths of anti-freeze solutions in use, is essential in the manufacture of smokeless powder.

PENINSULA (Edited by Mrs. E. Hayden)

The First Aid lesson at the Star Community building was held on Friday afternoon, March 20, with 27 of the 30 who registered present and all report a very beneficial lesson. The next lesson will be March 27 roads and weather permitting. Miss Helen Notari, of the East Jordan public schools is instructor.

There was a party at the Star Community Building Saturday evening, March 21. Games, dancing and visiting were the entertainment. There was a good crowd and a pleasant time. They plan to have another about April 16th and hope the roads and weather may be more agreeable.

Another record-breaking storm struck this section Saturday, March 21, after 11 days of nice, mild weather that had very much settled the record-breaking drifts of March 9 and piled up the snow to new records. There was not a bit of traffic on the ridge road Sunday, March 22.

Mr. and Mrs. Brackett of Bellaire was on the Peninsula Tuesday and got a trailer load of sheep which they had purchased some time before but could not get sooner because of blocked roads. The roads were all clear Monday, March 23 after being blocked since March 9th.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Crowell and family motored up from Jackson Friday night and visited their parents. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crowell of Dave Stanley Hill, east side, and Mr. and Mrs. Will Gaunt in Three Bells Dist. They plan to return Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd and two daughters of Manistee motored up Saturday and visited her brother, Clayton Healey and family at Willow Brook dairy farm. They returned on Sunday.

"Joe" Hayden of the Bob White farm came Friday evening to spend the week end with his brother, Richard at Orchard Hill and got storm-bound Sunday and had to remain.

A large number of the Peninsula young folks attended the shower for Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Brusch at the Peninsula Grange Hall Saturday evening and had a delightful time.

Eveline Twp. Treas. Christina Loomis of Gravel Hill, north side, went to Ironson Thursday and settled with the Town Board.

Our Equinox has done itself proud with rain, snow and wind for three days, the wind making a complete circle.

Ted Westerman is the first to report young lambs, except Earl Bricker of Mountain Dist.

There was no session of the Star Sunday School March 22 because of the storm.

Miss Louise Beyer was up from Pontiac recently for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Beyer, and other relatives.

Warning To The Owners Of Fish Shanties

All fish shanties on the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix must be removed before the spring thaw.

Shanties must not be placed on private property without the consent of the property owner.

Unless these Shanties are taken care of by the owners, it becomes necessary for the City of East Jordan to haul these to the City dump. Last year there were five, rather valuable, shanties taken to the dump where they immediately disappeared.

I urgently request all owners to take care of their shanties in a proper manner.

HARRY SIMMONS
adv. 12-2 Chief of Police

If the fall elections were to be held today, many Michigan office-holders would be buried in a landslide protest.

Fortunately for these public officials in Washington as well as in Lansing, we're still going to have an election in November, not this spring.

Right or wrong, the man on the street is pretty mad today. He is mad about the way the war is going. He is mad about labor's insistence of double pay for Sunday work, while the government asks him to buy bonds cheerfully and to pay more taxes. He is mad about a 40-hour week, while his son serves in the army for $21 a month.

He is mad about Congress. He is mad about the state defense officials. He is just plain mad—frustrated, peeved and sore.

The popular protest is a reaction to several war developments. We are losing a war and we don't like it a bit. The idea of Americans being beaten isn't natural to us. Hence, we would like to kick someone.

In the pan, too sweet, and if a Nazi or a Jap isn't handy, we'll take the next best thing at home.

We read headlines that the CIO in Detroit automobile plants must be paid double time for work on Sunday and that Michigan sons who get $21 a month are killed in Java. That doesn't make sense.

Nearly 400,000 Michigan men registered a few weeks ago for selective service. On March 18 many of us learned of our numbers after a lottery at Washington. We face possible military sacrifice, and that brings the war closer than ever.

Our income taxes are higher, too. That is all right, but it makes us think a bit more.

Governor Frank Murphy, friendly to labor during the sitdown strike, was caught in a protest wave at the following November election.

Politicians will tell you that the late Frank Fitzgerald wasn't elected by an uprising of citizens who went to the polls to vote for Fitzgerald. He won because a lot of folks were mad. They expressed their anger at sit-downs by voting against Murphy, and in so doing they had to vote for his opponent.

We are not saying that Governor Van Wagener faces the same fate. The situation is not parallel.

But a lot of people are restless today. And voters usually do irrational things when they are in a mood to kick someone in the pants—whether the fault lies in Washington or at home. By November they may feel differently about it.

That Harry F. Kelly is going to toss his hat into the ring is conceded at Lansing.

The question is: What ring? Will he run for governor or for United States senator?

The secretary of state would like to go to Washington. His inclinations are reported to be more in the direction of national service chiefly because of the war. And yet Harry is a good soldier, and he will abide by the party's decision.

An announcement is expected in the very near future.

Another factor in today's unrest is the grim realization that Michigan's part in the World War (with its army of less than four million men) will be greatly eclipsed by today's military demands for war manpower.

Washington is talking today in terms of eight hundred thousand to ten hundred thousand man army—while another 1,000,000 will be needed for our navy.

To get that many men the government is lifting selective service restrictions. Col. E. M. Rosecrans, director for Michigan, announces that Uncle Sam will furnish eye glasses and even teeth.

An army of eight or ten millions will take many men with family dependents. (Sixtyfour percent of all registered men have been deferred to date because of their dependents).

More taxes and more bonds are inevitable, too. War spending is now around $2,300,000,000 a month and is due to reach $4,500,000,000 — a month! Inflation is already here; standards of living are going down; rearmament is certain.

United Automobile Workers (CIO) demand from General Motors Corp. $1 day pay increase, 30-minute lunch period, double time Sundays and holidays; 10 percent premium for work between 3:30 P. M. and midnight; 15 percent premium for work between midnight and 8:00 A. M.; 60 days' pay if a worker enters military service instead of two weeks; $100 bond in lieu of two weeks' vacation.

Right or wrong, justly or unjustly, the public is going to hold labor to blame for acts of everyone attached to the labor movement. If war production is stopped by strikes, labor will be responsible—in the public's mind. The public also favors limitation of profits by management as well as by labor. Post-war pensions for war veterans are now being conceived.

Such is the unrest which is evident everywhere in Michigan today. We are losing a war, and we don't like it.

War Order LIMITS Telephone Installations

For more than a year this company has met an unprecedented service demand and generally has installed telephones when and where they were wanted. Material shortages now make it impossible to meet some requests for telephone service.

The expansion to care for past service requests was accomplished, despite a greatly curtailed supply of vital materials, through emergency engineering methods and the use of alternate materials.

Now, the War Production Board has issued an order that expands those practices and places further restrictions.

SOME EFFECTS OF ORDER ON TELEPHONE USERS

1. PARTY LINES, only, can be installed in many cases.
2. EXTENSION TELEPHONES cannot be installed in residences except where needed by those responsible for public health, welfare or security.
3. TELEPHONES of wall or desk (upright) types cannot be changed to hand sets.
4. MANUAL TELEPHONE SWITCHBOARDS may not be changed to dial except where the work is well advanced.

Michigan Bell will endeavor to administer the order equitably and regrets any inconvenience the public will experience.
