County 4-H Club Roundup, July 15th

CLARE ROOD AND MISS LOIS BETT IN CHARGE OF CONTESTS AND DEMONSTRATIONS

Of interest to all 4-H club members throughout the county is the announcement that the annual county roundup will take place at Whiting Park on Wednesday, July 15th beginning promptly at 10:00. This day will serve to decide the winners of the various judging contests and demonstrations and who will represent our county at the Gaylord Club Camp.

Mr. Rood will be in charge of all the contests and demonstrations that pertain to crops and livestock, while Miss Corbett will handle the clothing and food contests. With our greatly expanded 4-H program the largest attendance ever to attend this roundup is anticipated.

All club members and club leaders are invited to bring their lunch including table service. It is suggested that each club bring sufficient variety of food to make a pot-luck dinner. A soft drink will be contributed from our 4-H club funds to supplement the dinner. Delegates will be selected from the same way delegates will be chosen from the other contests such as canning, foods, and clothing. Parents and friends of club members are cordially invited to attend the activities.

In addition to contests there will be sports that you may have a real good time.

Hunting Licenses and Buck Tags Printed Despite War Puzzle

Lansing, July 9 — Though hunting pressure this fall is likely to remain a wartime puzzle up to the very opening of the season, the conservation department is printing licenses and buck tags enough to accommodate as many hunters as there were in 1940, when 700,000 went gunning for small game and deer.

For resident hunters the department is printing 700,000 small game licenses, 240,000 deer hunting licenses, 2,000 bow and arrow licenses, 5,000 camp permits (good for antlered buck only) and 100 archers' camp permits.

For non-resident hunters, 10,000 limited northern small game licenses, 10,000 all-state small game licenses, 7,000 deer hunting licenses and 200 archers' licenses have been ordered. Blanks—the usual quota—are being prepared, and more than 1,000,000 game law digests will be printed.

War Shows Need For Land Policy Throughout Nation

Strengthening of county and township land use policies to cope with the present and the post-war problems of use and protection of natural resources became one of the goals suggested in the recent statewide county agricultural agent summer school held at Michigan State College.

"Destiny of no community should be left to chance," remarked L. A. Wolfanger, professor in land use at the college. "A community that refuses to plan and zone its own land is not playing fair with its citizens either present or future."

That many important areas now have protection against unwise land use is admitted. Sixteen counties have employed intensive land use studies and boast operating land use committees. These are in the counties of Alcona, Calhoun, Cass, Charlevoix, Dickinson, Genesee, Iron, Manistee, Mason, Mecum, Midland, Oakland, Oceana, Oscoda, Otsego and St. Joseph.

Out of 583 Political townships constituting 47 northern counties, all but 37 townships in 7 counties have submitted recommendations of local committees concerning state-owned lands. Rural planning based on natural human and governmental resources is to be projected statewide, but particularly in communities where local interest indicates need, the county agricultural agents were informed at East Lansing. Land owners, including farmers and representatives of farm organizations will be invited to provide further local leadership in Michigan's plan for land use protection. Other aid will be available from Michigan State College, agencies of the United States Department of Agriculture and departments of state government.

AAA PROGRAM IN CHARLEVOIX CO.

As most of the farmers of Charlevoix county know, there is a critical shortage of terminal warehouse facilities for the storage of this year's crop of grain, especially wheat; there being enough wheat now stored for a year's supply. The government is urging farmers to store this year's wheat on their own farms. To facilitate this action, the Commodity Credit Corporation has made contracts for the manufacture of prefabricated wood bins which farmers, eligible for commodity loans, can purchase through their county AAA committee. A large bin 12ft. x 16ft. x 10ft. capacity, 1610 bushels costs $205.00 f.o.b., Bay City, or $225.00 delivered at local delivery point. They can easily be converted into several bins. A small bin, 8ft. x 14ft. x 10ft. capacity, 770 bushels costs, $116.00 f.o.b. Grand Rapids, or $130.00 delivered to local delivery point.

Any farmer interested in securing these bins may place their order at the AAA office in Boyne City.

It is especially important this year to make the bins you already have rat tight, clean and dry for the coming harvest. Now is the time to construct additional bins needed in your granaries or barns.

Moved by Bussler, supported by Sinclair that Clyde Irwin be given a permit to build an addition to his restaurant according to plan and specifications presented to the City Council. Carried all ayes.

The Mayor appointed Merle Thompson as Alderman of the third Ward to fill the vacancy caused by the death of John J. Kenny.

Moved by Bussler, supported by Malpass that the appointment be confirmed. Carried all ayes.

HOT PACK LEADS CANNING FASHION

Arguments about whether it's fashionable to can Michigan's Victory Garden products by cold pack or hot pack methods brings the answer that the hot pack method appears to be the logical method for preserving vegetables and meats.

The reasons include getting more in jars, being more certain the food will keep and saving extra vitamins, explains Miss Roberta Hershey, extension specialist in foods and nutrition at Michigan State College.

Green or wax beans for instance, need five minutes of simmering before they are packed into jars. Peas and greens take the same time before packing and processing.

For a scientific timetable for canning housewives throughout the state are obtaining copies of a college canning card that gives the information. Copies can be obtained in offices of county agricultural agents or from the Bulletin room, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

Examples of the timing include processing in a pressure cooker. For pint jars of green beans, the timing is 30 minutes at 10 pounds pressure.

No County Fair This Year

FAIR BOARD DECIDES TO CONFORM TO GOVERNMENT REQUEST

At a meeting of the Charlevoix County Fair Board held Tuesday night it was decided to conform to the request of Government officials and cancel the annual event at least for this year.

With the rubber shortage facing the nation it was decided that it might be a risky undertaking.

The Emmet County Fair at Petoskey is also suspending their fair for this year.

Here and There

BY MEMBERS OF THE EAST JORDAN GARDEN CLUB

The syringa bushes were most heavily bloomed this year especially the ones in the Saxton yard and at the Vogel Oil Station resembling a brides shower bouquet.

The lot owned by Paul Lisk on which a small dwelling recently burned has been nicely cleaned and now is completely covered with a Victory Garden. Most of the credit belongs to Bert Lemsky who really knows how to handle quack grass. His potato patch is the envy of the neighborhood.

A good example of what thrift and home loving can accomplish is the Ole Hegerberg home on Main st. which has been repaired, insulated and finished with a coat of paint. Thus preserving and beautifying it. Mr. Hegerberg has made these improvements after office hours.

Have you noticed how many different kinds of birds there are in East Jordan this summer? I'm very interested in the little creatures and enjoy watching them build their nests or choose the little houses built for them.

In our small yard so far, there have been two families of wrens, as well as of robins. The robins have built their hanging nest in the top of a small maple tree. We enjoy hearing their song and watching the brilliant color of their plumage as they fly back and forth getting their home ready. The song sparrows and the canaries are also located close by. There are a number of crows in our neighborhood who are also watching the birds and many times when I have heard the distress calls of the old birds, I have left my work to chase these cats away. I've been informed that in Lansing the Pet Cats wear a bell tied around their necks which lets the birds know that an enemy is coming. These East Jordan cats have caught some of the neighbors' chickens lately as well as the little birds. What can be done about it?

— A lover of birds and flowers.

Some of our local gardeners have found much enjoyment and some surprises in their victory gardens; Mrs. Healey going in the garden one day last week to pick a mess of peas, found not only enough but picked almost a bushel and a half. Sherman Conways have been using potatoes from their garden and found Tuesday that four of the potatoes weighed a pound. They also report that the early peas are finished and already late carrots, beets and radishes are already taking their place.

Then too the Sloan tomato and bean garden which has been planted between the side walk and street is especially interesting.

Speaking of gardens one must admire the large garden of Wm. Heath in the East part of town, where one would need a search warrant to find a weed.

One must not forget the flower gardens which add so much to the beauty, going through the alley back of the Hoyt, Taft and Carr property one stands in amazement at the gorgeous coloring of the poppies, delphiniums, roses, and hollyhocks.

Michigan Bell Heavy Tax-Payer

SEMI-ANNUAL PROPERTY TAX OVER 1 1/2 MILLION DOLLARS

The state treasury recently was enriched by $1,691,371 as the Michigan Bell Telephone Company made its semi-annual property tax payment into the Primary School Fund.

Frank L. Hall tax attorney for the company, recently presented the check for the largest half year tax payment in the history of the company to Louis M. Nims, commissioner of the Michigan Department of Revenue. It marked the first time the check was handed to that official previous payments having been made to the auditor-general. Under the new Revenue Act, state tax collection duties are consolidated in the newly-created Department of Revenue.

Hall said that the company's 1941 total tax bill vaulted to a new peak of $9,826,000, or nearly $2,000,000 above the previous high, which was reached the year before. Of the total, $9,294,000 or more than 17 percent of the company's revenue was chargeable to operating expenses. That amounted to a tax of $10.59 per average telephone operated by the company during the year, compared with $9.71 for 1940.

The company's Michigan property tax of $3,382,743 thus was only about a third of the total 1941 tax bill. Other levies included $5,148,000 in Federal income and capital stock taxes; $713,000 in social security taxes to the Federal and state governments; and $50,000 in miscellaneous levies, chiefly municipal taxes on company properties not used at present for telephone purposes.

The Michigan Bell property tax is the largest single payment into the Primary School Fund. Taxes paid into that Fund are returned for school purposes to the 83 counties in proportion to their school population.

Final payment on the company's $3,382,743 state property tax is due by October 31.

More Beekeepers In State Because of Sugar Rationing

"If we can't get sugar from the grocer, we'll get honey from the hive." That, apparently, is the slogan of a good many Michigan families that have become beekeepers in order to obtain a supply of honey as a substitute sweetener during the sugar shortage. According to Leo V. Card, state commissioner of agriculture, there are now more than 11,000 registered beekeepers in the state, a gain of about five per cent over a year ago. The increase is attributed largely to a number of persons who have installed two or three colonies of bees in order to get honey for their own use. There has also been an increase in commercial apiaries.

There are nearly 200,000 colonies of bees in Michigan and the yield of honey is between fifteen and twenty million pounds a year. Michigan bees out-produce those of other states.

Honey may be used in a variety of ways in the place of sugar, including cooking and baking and in soft drinks.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Egypt Defenders Turn on Axis Armies In Struggle for Middle East Control; Nazi Spy Ring Smashed in Canal Zone; Allies' Wheat Pool Aids Famine Areas

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

EGYPT:

Defenders Hit Hard

Even as parliament by a 475 to 25 majority voted its confidence in Prime Minister Winston Churchill after a prolonged debate over the Libyan defeat, reports from Egypt revealed that British imperialists, heavily reinforced from the Middle East, had struck fiercely at the flank and rear of Marshal Rommel's Axis army to counter its assault on the main British positions.

At the same time it was disclosed that United States army air force and Royal Air Force planes had unleashed a terrific air offensive throughout the eastern Mediterranean area. In one assault on Marshal-Rommel's supply port of Bengasi, hundreds of bombers rained destruction down on munition dumps and equipment concentrations.

Reinforcements of both men and material had strengthened the British Egyptian position in the battles on which rested the fate of Allied power in the Mediterranean and Middle East. Crucial battle area was the 40-mile wide strip of desert lying between the impassable Qattara salt marshes and the Mediterranean shore.

Few observers had doubted that Prime Minister Churchill's position would be sustained. Facing his critics in the most critical period since the fall of France, Churchill had admitted that Marshal Rommel's victorious drive from Libya into Egypt had placed Britain in "mortal peril."

Meanwhile on the Russian front, the Nazis had opened a new drive north of Kharkov, while hand to hand fighting in the ruins of Sevastopol, Russia's last stronghold in the Crimea, had highlighted what the Reds termed "an extremely grave situation."

SHIPBUILDING:

Yanks Break Records

Hope that American shipyards would soon equal and then exceed the total sunk by Axis submarines was seen in a report issued by Vice Chairman Howard L. Vickery of the maritime commission which disclosed that 66 vessels totaling 731,900 tons deadweight had been delivered in June and that production was speeding ahead toward a level of 900,000 deadweight tons a month.

Admiral Vickery reported that 288 ships of approximately 2,544,000 deadweight tons had been delivered by American shipyards in the first six months of 1942.

SECRET SPENDING:

F. D. R. Accounts

How President Roosevelt spent $239,500,000 in secret emergency funds since the war crisis became acute in June, 1940, was revealed in an accounting which the Chief Executive presented to congress.

Eighty-seven per cent of the total was allocated to the army, the navy, maritime commission and Federal Loan agency, the President said.

Large sums were spent to suppress subversive radio activities in connection with the German submarine campaign.

Important among expenditures was $52,000,000 for secret naval bases in the Western hemisphere, $12,000,000 for purchase of Australian wool for uniforms $8,000,000 for development of air, rail, and highway transportation in Latin America and $36,500,000 for construction of merchant ships.

NEW NAVAL BASE:

Mystery Explained

Why hundreds of American workers embarked for Northern Ireland last summer to toil on a mysterious construction project long before the United States entry into the world war, was explained when the navy department announced formal completion of a giant operating base at Londonderry, guarding the western approaches of Britain. Capt. William J. Larson, was placed in command of the strategic new post.

Rubber Hunter

His eyes as alert for rubber as a hawk's are for chickens, Petroleum Co-ordinator Harold Ickes was happy when he spied this 75-pound rubber mat inside the door of the White House. He told his chauffeur to take it to the nearest gas station to contribute to the rubber drive. When asked for a comment, a White House spokesman declared, "There's no complaint."

NAZI SPIES:

Rival Fiction

In a series of dramatic moves matching the thrills of a mystery best-seller, the United States Caribbean defense command arrested 20 alleged Axis agents and broke up what was believed to be a Nazi spy ring refueling submarines and supplying them with vital information on United States shipping.

Nineteen of the enemy agents were rounded up in a trap in Belize, British Honduras. The twentieth—a trusted employee of a labor recruiting office for the Panama canal—had been seized a few days earlier in the Canal Zone. The army disclosed that the leader of the ring was George Gough, a British citizen who was a shipping executive in Belize.

Details of the seizure of the spies were disclosed by Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, chief of the Caribbean defense command.

WHEAT POOL:

To Balk Famine

With famine stalking many nations and wheat surpluses taxing the storage capacities of others, an agreement of historic importance to the future of the world's bread supply became effective when five nations signed a pact creating a vast international wheat pool.

Signers of the agreement were the United States, Great Britain, Canada, Australia and Argentina. The agreement, initiated at a Washington meeting last April, created a wheat pool of not less than 100,000,000 bushels for the relief of famine in war-stricken areas. It forecast international action toward control of prices, production and export of bread grains after the war.

The United States is to provide 50,000,000 bushels of wheat or flour to the relief pool and Canada and the United Kingdom 25,000,000. These nations, with Argentina would furnish additional supplies as needed on a basis to be worked out by their respective governments.

Agriculture department officials pointed out that benefits to American wheat farmers would be of a long-term rather than immediate nature. The agreement will have no effect on the 1943 farm program calling for a planted area of not more than 55,000,000 acres of wheat and assuring farmers of parity returns.

PRICE CEILINGS:

First Hole

First hole in the universal price ceiling instituted by the OPA was made when Price Administrator Leon Henderson announced that he was "compelled to take measures that will raise retail prices of the 1942 pack of canned and dried fruits by as much as 15 per cent and possibly more."

Henderson indicated that congress was to blame for this, because of special price concessions it granted to farm products and its failure to vote government subsidies to maintain price ceilings.

Throwing down the battle gage to congress, the fiery price official issued a statement in which he said that the $75,000,000 appropriation contemplated for the OPA in a bill passed by the house, or any amount below the $161,000,000 he originally requested, would cripple his agency and mean "in short that price, rent and rationing controls are all placed in jeopardy."

Mr. Henderson termed the canned fruit price situation "inflationary" and said it constituted "a serious threat in the battle being fought to maintain stability in the cost of living."

"This is not a satisfactory solution," his statement continued: "It is inflationary. It translates into retail price increases a burden that the government might properly assume as a charge connected with the war. This burden will fall heaviest on large families, especially in the low income groups who can least afford the added expense."

COMMANDOS:

Strike at Japs

Serving notice on Tokyo that the Australians, the Yanks and the Dutch were ready for hit-and-run thrusts preparatory to the general land offensive which Gen. Douglas MacArthur has promised eventually, Allied Commandos swept down on the big Japanese base at Salamaua, New Guinea.

Using the elements of surprise and terror which have made Commando raids on Europe so spectacular, the United Nations' raiders slashed through the defense screen and carried away prisoners, booty and information about the layout of one of the most important Nipponese bases in the Southwest Pacific.

Salamaua, on the Huon gulf, lies 170 miles north across New Guinea from Port Moresby, last Allied outpost north of Australia. It was captured by the Japs early in March and ever since the enemy has been attempting to use it as a base for widening their occupation of New Guinea. It has served as one of the principal air bases for attacks against Port Moresby.

SCRAP:

U. S. Wants More

A "new and greatly intensified" program that will reach into every American home and industrial plant and increase the flow of vital scrap materials to the nation's war plants was announced by War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson and Lessing J. Rosenwald, chief of the bureau of industrial conservation of WPB.

The new program has a threefold objective:

- 1—To collect metals, and rubber and other waste materials which will flow through regular channels of trade.
- 2—To gather up waste kitchen fats, such as bacon drippings from households via meat dealers.
- 3—To collect tin cans in specified areas.

"The immensity of our task," said Mr. Nelson, "makes it absolutely necessary to step up the tempo of our national salvage program."

REPATRIATION:

Nazis Break Pact

Termination of the exchange agreement by which more than 1,400 American nationals were brought home from Axis territory in Europe resulted when Germany withdrew the safe conduct granted the Swedish liner Drottningholm which had docked at New York with 800 repatriated Americans and alien refugees.

The agreement for exchange of nationals held by the respective belligerent governments had provided for continued voyages of the Drottningholm under safe conduct until all Americans held in Europe and Germans held here were repatriated.

No reason was assigned for Germany's withdrawal of the safe conduct, but it was understood the Nazis cancelled the agreement to emphasize its "paper blockade" of America.

Suspicion that the Axis powers might be attempting to get saboteurs or spies into this country in the guise of friendly aliens, caused the government to institute the most rigid scrutiny of passenger credentials ever conducted in any east-ern harbor.

MISCELLANY:

MINNEAPOLIS: The American worker's pay check is now 34 per cent above 1939 levels while his living expenses are up only 13 per cent—net gain of 21 per cent, it was revealed in a family income study by Northwestern National Life Insurance company. Figured in terms of the family pocketbook, a typical wage earner's family has $50 a month more now than in 1939.

As Collier Sinks in Battle of Atlantic

A naval convoy, escorting U. S. merchant ships on the Atlantic coast, lost one collier to a mine planted by enemy subs, because there was no wake. In picture at left a survivor dries his face after being nearly blinded and choked by the oily waters. However, in war no chances are taken, and depth charges were loosed with the result shown in picture at the right, just in case a sub was lurking around.

New Methods to Speed Up Ship Production

You have seen pictures of big ships, powerful planes and giant guns for Uncle Sam's armed forces. But here is an item that seldom gets into the news, but is just as vital as any other sinew of war. It is the cowl ventilator, without which Liberty ships that carry war materials to the battlefronts could not put to sea. A Los Angeles firm, engaged in this work, turns out thousands of cowl funnels. Galvanizing the cowl is one of the most vital parts in the process. Photo (left) shows a huge cowl being given a "bath" in a vat of molten metal. Center: Wrinkles in the ventilator are ironed out by a small hammer. Right: A workman welding the seams of a huge funnel.

Swear to Protect Bombsight

Fledgling bombardiers, about to get their first glimpse of the super-secret U. S. bombsight, repeat after Lieut. Col. Richard Smith, director of training at the Midland Army Flying school, Texas, the solemn words of the bombardier oath pledging to protect the sight. On the table is a hooded bombsight to be exposed only after administration of the oath.

'Won't Take It'

Dan Gifford, ten, who wrote to Gen. Douglas MacArthur to convince a pal that Pearl Harbor was not in Jap hands, is a happy lad these days after hearing from MacArthur. "They didn't take it," MacArthur advised his youthful inquirer, "and don't be afraid, Danny, they won't take it." Danny is shown (left) shaking hands with his now convinced playmate, Jackie Fahy.

Youthful Monarch Meets President

King Peter of Yugoslavia is shown chatting with President Roosevelt in the White House grounds. The 19-year-old monarch had spent two days incognito in Virginia. He arrived at the White House under careful guard, and was escorted to the White House by Secretary Cordell Hull.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
Consolidated Features—WNU Features.

NEW YORK—Elmer Davis once paid $50,000 to see a ball game. It is a story which the new director of the Office of War Information probably won't give out. He is an extremely modest man, it might seem like bragging.

We had the story from the former editor of a national magazine of large circulation. In the reminiscent mood of the editor, the tale unfolded as follows:

"With a moving picture firm, we offered a prize of $50,000 for the best serial, the winning story later to be screened. We put up half the prize money and the picture company the other half. We whooped it up into a big national excitement, and entries came in from every corner of the country. There was something over 90,000 of them in all.

"The winner seemed to be the entry of a widely known New York novelist and magazine feature writer, but there was another serial that crowded it closely and finally, in a hair-line decision, the judges picked the former. We had informed the novelist of her victory, when one of the judges recalled that she had published a magazine story several years before with a plot somewhat like her contest entry. We looked it up. The similarity was slight, but we decided it would bar the new offering. We telephoned the woman writer that we were reconsidering our decision.

"That left the field open to the runner-up, a piece submitted by one Elmer Davis, a former ace reporter who had left the city room and set up as a free lance writer of fiction and articles. We were eager to carry the good news to Mr. Davis. Everybody who knew him said he was a mighty nice chap and rated good news if anybody did.

"At Mr. Davis' little writing office, we were told that Mr. Davis had gone to the ball game. We left word for him to come to our office. "Back in our editorial rooms, there was a big stir among the judges. Miss Blank, the other finisher, had telephoned that she could remove from her script any remote similarity. She, too, was a writer of the highest integrity, and we finally agreed that she get the prize.

"Next morning, Mr. Davis came in. I told him what had happened. You knew he was jittery, but you had to look closely to catch the flick of disappointment in his placid Hoosier eyes. Then he said: "That was a pretty expensive ball game, wasn't it?"

"He went back to his office and started kicking out serials like an Indiana hired man in harvest time. I bought them. He came through."

YOUNG Lieut. Delos C. Emmons, trying to transfer from infantry to aviation, was rejected three times because he couldn't hear a watch tick. Then he found an examiner who said, "You could not hear a watch tick in an airplane, anyway. Forget it." He became just about the most valuable man that the air service ever came near losing and the Battle of Midway Island might not have gone so well for us had the examiner insisted rules be observed. Colonel Emmons holds the temporary rank of lieutenant general, as commander of the Hawaiian department, and now President Roosevelt breaks all precedent by recommending that he be jumped from colonel to major general.

At 53, he will be the army's youngest major general. He has done as much knock-about flying as any army man in the air, and is air-conditioned not only in hazardous flying exploits but in strategy and techniques, having taught flying at Harvard university in 1920 and 1921.

About a year ago he secretly landed 21 of the biggest Flying Fortresses in Hawaii. He had previous experience in the Islands, having been with the Eighteenth wing command in Hawaii in 1934; in 1936 he took command of March Field, Calif.

BRITAIN'S old school tie gets half a column on the cables, in spite of airplane and battleship competition. They plan to scrap it, says Richard Austen Butler, president of the board of education, as a symbol of class education. Out of Cambridge, Mr. Butler rapidly advanced in the inter-war years as a member of parliament, undersecretary for foreign affairs. He was born in India in 1902. At Cambridge he took honors in the classics and has swung many an impressive Latin quotation into British public life.

Farmers, Workers United In Less-Than-Parity Issue

Seven Groups Back President on Continuation of Farm Security Administration; Veteran Observers See New Trench

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

There is an interesting story yet to be told, behind the letter sent to the President urging him to take to the public the issues of continuation of the Farm Security Administration and the sale of grains for feed below parity.

The story lies in the signatures to that letter. There were seven of them and they represented two farm organizations, three labor organizations and two religious groups.

The combination of names, united in a single plea, marks one of the few occasions when farmer and worker found common ground on which to take a stand on policy. And some persons in Washington who are working for a closer farm-labor alliance see in the move the beginnings of a realignment of the farm organizations, with the formation of a new group that has at least a loose agreement with the AFL and the CIO behind it.

Veteran observers who have watched agriculture and labor pull in opposite directions for many years still feel these two groups have more to disagree than to agree upon. But they admit that this time the situation was ideal for mutual logrolling. Backers of a new day in farm organizations say it is more than that.

They point to significance in the signatories of the letter to the President. The seven signatories of this letter were:

First, James G. Patton, president of the National Farmers union, the most radical of the farm groups. This group contains more tenant farmers and fewer farm owners, than the other farm groups. It is a virile, growing outfit.

Second, Murray Lincoln, executive secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation of Ohio. The Farm Bureau federation is not a left-wing organization. Its President O'Neal is opposed to selling grain below parity. But Mr. Lincoln, head of the Ohio Farm Bureau units, has a mind of his own. He runs buying co-operatives in the country. He is very consumer-minded.

The next signature is that of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and the next Phillip Murray, head of the CIO. The fifth of this group is J. G. Luhrs, executive secretary of the American Railway Labor Executives' association.

The religious groups are headed by L. G. Ligutti, executive secretary of the National Catholic Rural Life association, and Benson Landis of the Federal Council of Churches. Those who don't know the whole story behind efforts to realign the farm organizations see only the surface reasons why all the organizations represented by the above names were willing to support the issues mentioned in the petition.

The tenant farmer who is ambitious wants to own his own farm. He sees in the Farm Security Administration an aid to that end. He considers this help a substitute for the vanished frontiers—the days when a man with a strong will, a willing wife and a sharp axe could cut a new home out of the wilderness to which the government was glad to hand him the deed.

Cheaper Food

This concept concerns labor less directly but the question of cheaper food concerns him considerably. The argument for sale of grain below parity is that it is necessary to keep dairy and meat products prices down and the Farmers union claims that opposition to Farm Security comes from "interests solely committed to the high-price-through-scarcity concept" which of course is the opposite of labor's platform.

Those are the obvious and immediate reasons why the signature of two of the country's leading labor leaders rest among the seven. The religious organizations have the family and general welfare in mind of course.

But there may be another reason why Mr. Murray and Mr. Green signed up, and why their one-time colleague, John Lewis, didn't. The story of the part Mr. Lewis didn't play is closely connected with the effort to create a new farm organization which will have the blessing of labor.

This is what happened. John Lewis, head of the powerful United Mine Workers of America, as you all know, has been trying to organize farm labor. He has made some progress under the so-called District 50 of his union in signing up hands in the dairy industry.

But he has encountered obstacles of all kinds among farmers who are all potential employers and capitalists at heart. If he could only get some really respectable farm organization, or a man connected with some such organization to take up his banner it would help.

He settled on the Farmers union not because of the name for it is not a union at all in the sense labor employs the word. But because it was left-of-center and had an aggressive president. Through negotiations he made an offer to Mr. Patton something like this:

"Fall down and worship me, get your organization to stand behind my District 50 drive and here is a million dollars to play with."

Mr. Patton's answer was "no."

But that move made Messrs. Murray and Green very Patton-conscious. It also called the attention of other up-and-comers with a left-of-center inclination to the possibilities of developing an organization which without in any way getting under the direct influence of a union labor movement such as Lewis', might work out a practical working agreement for pooling common interests.

Whether this is a practical idea will be revealed by the amount of activity the labor whips show when farm issues are up in the next months—whether this is just another temporary log-rolling alliance which has made stranger bedfellows before, or whether it has the basis of a more permanent working agreement.

Times are changing. It's worth watching.

'Victory Pig Clubs'

Prove Successful

A prominent former Washingtonian, who moved to Kansas City with his cohorts in order to make room for war workers, was in the capital on business recently. He is A. D. Black, head of the Farm Credit administration.

He was full of the story of the "Victory Pig."

He said the Victory Pig movement, which is getting a good start in the South, promises to spread into the northern states. The first Victory Pig auction was held at Jonesboro, Ark., recently and the farmers and farmer boys who signed up to deliver pigs were paid in war bonds and stamps. The cry of the auctioneer worked prices up to $15.30 per hundred pounds, and that was more than top hogs were bringing on either the Memphis or St. Louis market.

The idea was hatched by the secretary of the local Production Credit association. He held a contest, offering $5 for the best name for the plan and so the Victory Pig club was born. The local chamber of commerce joined with the association and the whole countryside soon was feeding pigs to trade for war bonds. This, in spite of the fact that this agricultural county, Craighead, had signed up for $600,000 in bonds in the last 12 months.

Although Jonesboro claims to have held the first auction, Quitman, Ga., boasts of the organization of the first Victory Pig club.

Many of these auctions will be held this fall prior to the date when Secretary Wickard says there is likely to be a bottleneck in hogs. By this he means that there has been so many million more hogs raised this year than normally it is going to tax both transportation facilities and the capacity of packing houses. The secretary is urging farmers not to try to market too many hogs between Thanksgiving day and Washington's birthday, which is the time of the year when the pack is ordinarily particularly heavy.

More accidents happen to farm people than to any other class of workers, and in wartime accident rates usually rise sharply. Careless use of the tractor and other farm machinery causes 29 out of every 100 farm accidents.

AMERICAN SOLDIERS—A CROSS SECTION

THE CORPORAL was Italian, a son of the New York city ghetto. He had practically no education. His father was a pushcart fruit peddler, but the son was intensely American.

The private first class was a fine looking, upstanding youth from a Minnesota Norwegian farm home. He was a graduate of a Northfield, Minn., college.

The two were practically inseparable. They were "buddies." For four months, while their outfit was stationed in my town, I had seen them at frequent intervals. To me they typify the American army of today—an army of clean-cut, courteous young men. They represent all the nationalities of which the American people are composed. While they represent all social classes, they recognize no class other than merit as a soldier. Undoubtedly there are men in the army who, in civilian life, would show a vicious turn, but such a turn is not often displayed in the army. Men of the type of my young Norwegian friend predominate. Ours is an army of high standards, of dauntless youth, embarked on a great adventure.

We of our town had learned to love the boys of that army unit during the four months they were with us. They had been welcome visitors at our homes. We came to think of them as sons, brothers or nephews. They had a real place in our hearts.

Then came the orders that took them away. To where or to what, we did not know, nor did they. All the people of the town assembled at the station to bid them good-by. We watched those boys, with happy, smiling faces, with no evidence of a care in the world, climb aboard the cars. There was a lump in the throat of each of the town's people, a tear in each eye.

To the boys it was but another step on the road to great adventure, a chance to see what lay beyond the next hill. Of a fear of to where or to what, there was not a single trace. Give such an army the needed equipment and it cannot be defeated. It will bring victory for America. It is our part to provide the equipment. They will not fail us; we must not fail them.

NON-ESSENTIAL ACTIVITIES OF FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

AS INDICATIVE of the attitude of the American people, congress is being deluged with protests against unnecessary expenditures for the civil activities of the federal government. These protests come from such organizations as service clubs, farmers and stock raisers, small business men, patriotic societies, churches, and many others, as well as from hundreds of thousands of individuals. They demand the stopping of appropriations for CCC, AAA, WPA, NYA, SCS, all aesthetic and cultural programs, river and harbor work not needed as a war measure, and all other activities not essential to a continuance of the absolutely necessary operation of civil government. Opposed to these demands are the lobbyists of minority groups, and so far congress has largely listened to those lobbyists. The American voter will answer in November.

LABOR BOSSES AND U. S. RURAL FOLK

LABOR ORGANIZATION bosses have found rural America—people of the towns and farms—a stumbling block in their efforts to achieve many of their nefarious purposes. In California they propose an amendment to the state constitution as a means of overcoming this rural opposition. Under the present constitution, each county in the state elects one state senator. That gives the rural counties at least a veto power. The state federation of labor is proposing an amendment that would place the election of state senators on a population basis. That would mean control of the senate in the cities, and organized labor bosses feel they can control the cities. The purpose back of it all is to obtain legislation that will force the farmer to employ union labor in the production and marketing of his crops. If it can be done in California, it will be tried in other states.

THERE IS ONLY ONE WAY for Hitler to win this war and that is through lack of equipment of our armed forces. If that should happen, our "social advances" would go for all time, not for the duration only.

ORANGE JUICE FOR OUR SOLDIERS

Uncle Sam attempts to give our soldier boys orange juice for breakfast every morning. To do that it takes a lot of oranges, and for these he pays $25 a ton, delivered at army juicing plants. That means the grower of the oranges receives about $10 a ton for the fruit he raises. The $15 goes for picking, sorting and transportation. Citrus raisers got a better average per orange for my Christmas orange when I was a boy.

The leatherback turtle, Dermochelys coriacea, found in warm seas, is unique in two ways, says Collier's. Of the three hundred species of existing turtles, it is the only one that is not encased in a shell, having only a leathery skin. Secondly, it is the largest animal of its kind, often measuring nine feet from nose to tail and weighing over 1,000 pounds.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Aside from the sixty-mile an hour Mosquito Torpedo Boats, the Sub Chasers are the speedsters of our Navy. Light and fast, they are the eyes of the Fleet on the water. They displace approximately 1,500 tons and cost about $2,400,000 each.

We need many of these powerful, fast little boats to cope with the treacherous submarine type of naval warfare fostered by our enemies. Everybody can help pay for more Sub Chasers by putting at least ten percent of his income into War Bonds. Buy Bonds or Stamps every pay day. Buy them from your bank, your post office, or from your office or factory through the Payroll Savings Plan.

LARGE MOUTH BLACK BASS

Morning and evening are best times for Black Bass fishing — the fish is partial to waters with weeds, lily pads and snags. It rises to frogs, minnows and artificial bait.

Most fisherman will agree that there is as much excitement in landing a fighting bass, as there is in hooking a Tarpon. For real sport and healthful fun go fishing and don't forget Porter Hardware for all your fishing necessities.

The Girl He Left Behind

A tale with a moral for advertisers

The boy was very much in love with the girl, and she with him, But she was a beautiful girl who had many admirers. And our young friend was too wise to believe in the old proverb: "Absence makes the heart grow fonder."

He resolved that after all the time and the effort he had spent winning the No. 1 place in his sweetheart's affections, he would not let his rivals win by default through his absence. No, indeed, he would see to it that she was reminded of him often and of the good times they had had together and of the better times they could have after the war was over.

So he inaugurated and carried out a campaign to keep from becoming the forgotten man. He wrote her regularly about his life in the army, always ending with how much he missed her, how much he loved her, and how much he wanted to be with her again. Those letters she got from him every week or two kept her thinking about him, and kept her from thinking too much about the temporary beaux with the advantage of proximity.

The moral for advertisers? Your biggest promotion job under present day conditions when your production is diverted into war channels, is to make people keep on wanting your peace time products, whether or not they can get them. And to keep them wanting them until you again can supply the demand. It's hard to forget someone that you're made to remember.

German Money Used to Pay for British Repairs

LONDON.—German bombs from German planes have damaged houses, offices, shops in London owned by Germans.

And German money has paid for their repairs.

There is plenty of German money in London. One man has it all. He is Sir Ernest Fass, custodian of enemy property.

Says the custodian: "I have all the cash. In case there is a German property needing repair, we see to it—with the German money, if there is any. If there isn't, we think again."

Giant Hospital Gadget Dismantled for Scrap

Three smaller globes also will be razed.

J. Fuller Pep
By JERRY LINK

Sitting down in Jed's General Store the other day, it was kinda impressed on me that the weaker a fellow's argument is, the stronger the words he uses!

Well, when I get to talking about KELLOGG'S PEP and vitamins I don't need any high-powered words. You see, to feel really good you got to eat right, which includes gettin' all your vitamins. And while PEP hasn't got 'em all, this swell-tastin' cereal is extra-long in the two that are often extra-short in ordinary meals—B₁ and D. Try PEP, won't you?

Kellogg's Pep
A delicious cereal that supplies per serving (1 oz.) the full minimum daily need of vitamin D; 1/4 the daily need of vitamin B₁.

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS

- In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for the quality we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a work which saves which saves us many dollars a year.
- It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world; the feeling of being adequately prepared.
- When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. This advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

CHAPTER XIX

The Commissioner showed symptoms of apoplexy. "You could be jailed for holding back testimony," Martha Samp bristled.

"Sakes alive, could I? Because I waited for M's. Hale to tell herself. She's been a loyal wife. She's been through hell without whimpering. I knew when she got to thinking she'd straighten things out. The world's just bubblin' with stories of man's loyalty to man, but there isn't so much said about woman's isn't to woman, an' letting her tell her own story was my idea of loyalty to her."

"Suppose she hadn't told?"

"She did, didn't she? But I provided against that. When I've read about trials it's seemed to me that testimony re-hashed months after the crime took place couldn't be very accurate. The morning after the shootin' I wrote down everything I'd heard and seen. Sealed it. Took it to the radio man. He stamped it with place-and-date-just-as-he does letters that go out. Here it is." She handed the Commissioner an envelope. He turned it over in his hand. Conferred with the deputy. Rose.

"My associate and I agree that the late Joe Hale met his death by accident. The inquest is closed."

Get your little doughboys and all your chow! The ringing call of the bugle pierced Bruce Harcourt's absorption as he left the Samp cabin. Would he find Janice at the office, or would she have gone to luncheon? She had slipped away directly after the Commissioner had pronounced a verdict of accidental shooting. Paxton immaculately attired, with deep lines of exhaustion about his eyes and an apparent stiffness in every joint, had come in, had announced an afternoon departure. He had offered to take anyone who wanted to go back to the States. Millicent had been tearfully eager to get away, Mallory advised expert surgical treatment for Jimmy Chester.

Janice was hooding her typewriter as he entered the office. Her cheek still bore faintly pink evidence of Blot's mercurial temperament, but her eyes and smile were radiant.

"Now that the cyclone of excitement has passed over, I hope to accomplish something."

Harcourt picked up a letter from his desk. "This is Alaska. You mustn't expect life here to be like life in New York. It's a different story in this wilderness."

"Paxton's yacht goes out this afternoon with Mrs. Hale, Chester and the Commissioner aboard. I want you to go with them."

Amazed consternation wiped the happy radiance from her face. "I? On Ned Paxton's boat? You advise that?"

"Two days ago I would not have permitted it, but he has proved himself trustworthy. This letter is from your brother Billy. I wrote him after I discovered the identity of Jimmy Delevan. I've told you before that I will not let you spend a winter here. As soon as I can get leave I will join you and we'll—well, we will talk things over. I will cable Billy to meet the yacht at Seattle."

"Just like that!" Her eyes were brilliant with anger, he could see her throat contract. "You needn't trouble to cable Billy. I'm not going. Tubby Grant hired me to work for the outfit. I shall keep my position here. You talk about my going back as though it were as simple as setting out for dinner and dance. How am I to earn my living when I get to the States? It isn't so easy to pick up a job. Perhaps you think I'll live on my brother. Absolutely not!"

Indignation swept him like a red hot wave. "My wife does not need a job. You'll have half my salary, more if you need it."

"Your wife! I'm not your wife. I'm merely a companion on trial. Money doesn't figure in that agreement. Do you think I would accept it from you? You can't give me even understanding. When you made good my silly lie to Ned Paxton, I saw myself as I was, always at the mercy of my imagination. I determined that I would do my utmost to make you happy. I didn't know then that if you'd only waited you would have married Millicent Hale."

"Jan!"

"That whitens your face, doesn't it? You can have her now. Better go along in the yacht yourself and start annulment proceedings. Once you told me that when you munched back behind the dog-team and saw the H house, through the falling snow, it seemed like coming home, although you knew that only a husky and a house-boy waited for you behind those lighted windows, I had thought that next winter you might be glad to find me there too. My mistake."

The picture she conjured of her lovely self waiting for him to come in through the snow-filled darkness set Harcourt's blood afire. With all his strength he resisted her charm. He kept his voice under rigid control.

"That means that you will go—this afternoon?"

Her breath was a straggling sob. She caught her lips between her teeth, from the threshold she de-fled him. "Iceberg! I'll go, but only from the H house. Now that the one person to be impressed by convention is leaving—I will return to Argus of the Hundred Eyes and Miss Mary. They'll be glad to have me back with them." Grant pushed open the door. "Thank heaven, you've come. Tubby. You almost lost your secretary. Your superior officer was giving her notice. Don't ruffle up like a turkey-cock. She wouldn't accept it. The door closed behind her before Grant emerged from a stupor of surprise.

"New orders for us came by plane this morning. No bridge-building this winter. Retrenchment all along the line. We are to push the tracks from here south while the weather holds—the Crowned Heads are all excited about pulp-wood possibilities—then keep the repair shops at headquarters humming till spring."

"Headquarters for us all. Janice will be crazy about the winter here. We'll teach her to pilot, to handle a dog-team."

Harcourt crossed to his desk. "I want her to go out on Paxton's boat with the others this afternoon."

"Says you!" The words bubbled with indignation. "Granted you're a wov of an engineer, as a married man you're a total loss. Isn't he, Miss Martha?" he demanded, as the elder Miss Samp entered the office.

"Isn't he what? I heard you shout in, Mr. Tubby, as I came from M's. Hale's cabin—she's pretty near packed up—an' dropped in to see if you were tryin' to talk with Fairbanks without a wire."

Grant's grievance was too acute to permit of appreciation of her humor. "You'll shout when you hear that the chief wants Janice to join the party on Paxton's yacht."

"Sakes alive, has the excitement turned his brain?" Miss Samp dropped into a chair. "Course 'tisn't any of my business any more than 'tis Mr. Tubby's, but why are you sending that child away, Mr. Bruce?"

"You have been so kind to Janice that it is your business, Miss Martha. I don't want her to experience the hardships of a winter here. Remember what this life did to Millicent Hale."

Martha Samp's gnarled fingers stroked the glossy coat of the black cat circling in her lap. She regarded Harcourt with shrewd eyes.

"Did to her? It made a woman of her, didn't it? Think back. She came here just an ordinary, spoiled, flighty young married girl. At first she fretted. Then she kinder found herself. Never complained. She developed the heart, the endurance of a noble woman."

"And how did it end?"

"You mean about her kinder flyin' off the handle at the last? I've got a pretty good idea of what caused it. She got to leanin' on you, Mr. Bruce, you were all her husband wasn't. When Janice came along, so pretty an' gay an' attractive, she got to broodin' on her troubles an' thinkin' life played favorites, an' something snapped. She hadn't any notion of hurtin' Joe. Course she shouldn't have threatened him, but who doesn't do a fool thing or two in the course of a life? Doesn't it restore your faith in human nature to find an officer of the law with the common sense to recognize an accident when he sees one, an' not try to make a criminal out of a female who hasn't enough sense to leave a revolver hangin' in its holster?"

Martha Samp's argument seethed like an undercurrent in Harcourt's mind during the afternoon as he packed for Chester, sent messages, helped the Commissioner with his reports. Not until she came to the shore to embark in the launch which was to take her to the yacht did he speak to Millicent Hale. Her hand clung to his, her violet eyes were tear-filled.

"I wish I were the one to stay with you, Bruce."

He smiled and shook his head. "You have forgotten the long, dark winter. I'm willing to bet that with the first sight of the lights of Vancouver, you'll be thanking all the gods that be that you're back in civilization."

Side by side Harcourt and Grant watched the launch as it shot like a brown streak for the yacht. Indians and Eskimos stood in groups on the shingle behind them, section bosses and engineers, with unconsciously wistful faces, waited for the Modern Mariner to hoist the anchor.

Janice was leaning against the H house, eyes on the pale blur which was gliding into an opaline mist. Her long lashes were wet, but she faced him with gay bravado.

"Sorry not to have been moved out before you came back, but Pasca was so busy helping the travelers off that he had no time for me."

He caught her by the shoulders. "You're not going back to the Samp cabin. You will stay in my house."

She defied him flippantly. "Big Chief! Heap bossy! You tried to push me out of headquarters, and now you are dictating as to where I shall live. I am working for Tubby Grant, not for you."

His hands tightened. "Jan, my dear, don't you know what it means to love a person so much that you would tear your heart out if you thought it best for her?" He cleared his voice of huskiness. "I know that you are forcing yourself to stay, triumphing over what you think is a fear-complex, what I know to be imagination. I know, also, that if you stay here you are bound to be miserably unhappy."

Angry tears drenched the eyes which made them think of bronze pansies. "How do you know that I would be unhappy? You and Tubby and the Samp girls think Mrs. Hale a marvel of sweetness and light because she carried on. Why shouldn't she? It was her job. You talk about love. A lot you know about it. I can see you following a person half across the world. Not a chance!"

"Jan!" The incredulous whisper brought her eyes to his. Even his lips whitened. "Jan!" He caught her up in his arms, kicked open the door. His laugh was a caress. "This time I'll carry my bride across the threshold as big, strong men do in the movies and points south." He set her on her feet, gently raised her chin till her head rested against his shoulder, demanded softly: "All right with you, Beautiful?"

Eyes valiant, lovely color tinting her soft skin, she answered with an unsteady attempt at raillery. "I never did think much of that trial companionship idea of yours. If you care—"

"Care! If I care!" In a fury of passion he kissed her eyes, the hollow in her throat, her mouth. Kissed her vehemently, thoroughly. Said with a husky, reckless laugh: "That's how I care."

Tubby Grant pushed open the door. "First call for tea in the dining-car! You—" His voice dwindled to a gurgle. He blinked something suspiciously like tears from his wistful green eyes. With a soft laugh, "Praise be to Allah!" he gently closed the door from the outside.

FIRST AID TO THE AILING HOUSE

FOR GOOD PAINT JOB 1ST COAT SHOULD BIND TO SURFACE

A JOB of painting will not last if the first coat does not bond itself to the surface by penetrating into the pores and hardening there. In working on bare wood, this can be assured by thinning the first coat, so it will penetrate rather than lie only on the surface. Paint makers always issue instructions for the thinning of paint according to the surface. This usually is noted on the label of the can and explained in detail in the instruction sheets.

These instructions should be read and carefully followed. Paint will not hold over a glossy surface, as for instance, over shellac, varnish and gloss paint or enamel. The gloss should always be dulled. This can be done with sandpaper or steel wool, or by washing with a solution of washing soda or other alkaline water, just strong enough to cut into the gloss without damaging the paint film. The first coat of paint is the foundation for the succeeding coats, and if it does not make a good bond with the surface, the results will be peeling and chipping.

It goes without saying that a surface to be painted must be dry and clean, for obviously paint cannot penetrate pores already filled with water or grease. Temperature is also important, for when chilled to 50 degrees or lower paint thickens and cannot be absorbed easily. The best temperatures for painting are between 50 and 90 degrees.

Paint in Can Dries

Question: I use a lot of ready-mixed paint. Once opened, you can never really seal the can again, and a scum or crust forms. Tell me of what the scum is composed so I can replace it. I notice the paint appears thicker too.

Answer: Careful prying off of the lid will not distort it. You should work the lid up gradually. Scum is formed by the drying of the turpentine, linseed oil and japan drier. This drying of the oils in the paint naturally thickens it. When leftover paint is to be stored for any length of time, pour it into smaller cans, so that the paint will fill the can to the top. This procedure will minimize the formation of scum.

Laying Linoleum

Question: I wish to use part of our two-car garage for a hobby and game room. The floor is laid directly on the earth, and is four inches thick. There are drain tiles under it, and it seems to be dry. Could I cover part of it with linoleum?

Answer: However dry the concrete floor may seem to be, it undoubtedly picks up some moisture from the earth beneath. This would ruin any ordinary form of linoleum. But there is a variety made that is proof against dampness. Any competent linoleum layer should know about it.

Cakes Stick to Griddle

Question: I bought an electric chafing-dish with a griddle for pancakes. I was told that if I put olive oil on the griddle and heated it, the cakes would not stick. I did so, but the cakes stick. What should I do?

Answer: Clean the griddle thoroughly and wipe again with olive oil. It is my guess that you are skimming the butter in the batter. The store where you bought the griddle should be able to give you any further instructions necessary.

Bulging Floor

Question: The cement apron in front of my garage door has bulged and lifted and keeps the door from closing. Will the bulge go down when warmer weather comes? If not, what can be done?

Answer: That is due to the freezing and thawing of the water that collects under the apron. The bulge may go down in warmer weather, but the real remedy is to relay the apron over a bed of cinders, or to provide other drainage.

Darkened Aluminum Pans

Question: My aluminum saucers are less than a year old and of excellent quality; but I find that below the water level they have become dark, and no amount of scouring will bring back the original color.

Answer: Try boiling tomatoes in your saucers for 20 minutes or so. This will brighten them very much. But you must expect aluminum to darken when certain kinds of foods are cooked in it.

Vibrating Burner

Question: When my oil burner starts after being off for any length of time, it vibrates so it can be felt all through the house. The boiler has been cleaned and new air valves installed. What is the cause?

Answer: That may be from a loose or worn part. Have the burner overhauled by a competent service man.

Veterinary Science Has Eliminated the Hazards of Animal Life and Production

The practice of animal breeding is centuries old. It had its origin in the economic need of ancient man to produce animal life under some form of organized human control. In the oldest laws in the world, known as "The Laws of Hammurabi," it is indicated that some sort of regulatory system over animal breeding existed in Babylonia 2,100 years before the advent of the Christian era. Anyone who regards the chicken industry of today as a modern economic development might peruse the laws of the old Assyrian empire with interest, according to Dr. John R. Mohler, chief, bureau of animal industry, in an address before the International Veterinary congress. The numbers of eggs laid by each hen were counted and recorded.

In that early and now dim date in man's history, many of the diseases of animals and poultry were identifiable by names peculiar to the times. The contagious nature of animal plagues is clearly indicated by Columella who lived at the dawn of the present civilization. That he recognized the relationship between animal breeding and public health is evident from his urgent demand for segregation of the sick as one means of preventing the spread of infection. The Christian era was still very young when Vegetius, aroused by the heavy losses among animals as each successive epizootic broke over the world, utilized his now immortal pen for the salvation of animal life if only on economic grounds, to save the state from loss, through a revival of interest in what then was known as veterinary art. In those days of scientific darkness, animal-disease prevention and control were largely in superstitious practices. But the few intellectual freedmen of the age, and those in gathering numbers in each succeeding epoch, realized the need of a true veterinary practice and control over animals and animal production, as related to public health and public welfare generally. As far back as B. C. 40, in the time of Tiberius, Celsus foresaw that such methods employed in veterinary clinical work would find a place in the practice of human medicine which 200 years later Galen emphasized.

Since then, veterinary science has been marked by discoveries which have had the effect of greatly reducing the hazards of animal life and production.

Diligent scientific workers, the world over, have traced scores of live stock maladies to their source, revealing specific viruses, bacteria, and parasites as the causes. Other investigators have cleared up many questions concerning nutritional disturbances, poisoning by plants, breeding troubles, even conditions resulting from abnormal glands, and disturbances of the nervous system.

Cool, Ice-Tinkling Drinks Ward Off Summer Fatigue (See Recipes Below.)

Sugar-Saving Drinks

When the thermometer's perched on the highest rung of the temperature ladder, do you feel your spirits sagging, your energy running low? Yes, the warm weather begins to take its toll just about the time you feel you need push and drive most. But, make a comeback, quickly and easily with a healthful, fruit-juicy drink served in a tall, colorful frothy glass.

An attractively served drink will perk up your spirits more quickly than you can say "Jack Spratt!" Plan to freeze some of those fragrant mint leaves and those few odd berries left over from the shortcake, with water in the ice cube trays for they make a pretty drink. Or, if you like colored ice cubes that prevent your summer beverage from taking on a watery taste, freeze fruit juices diluted with water into ice cubes. You'll like this.

There's a lot more to be said for cool drinks other than their general nice appearance. Besides providing your system with the vitamin C, in excellent quantity, and A and B in good quantity, the citrus fruits, oranges and lemons, act as alkalisers for the system. This acts as insurance against fatigue, which is a big thing in warmer weather.

Milk and ice cream are perfect ingredients with fruit juices for cooling drinks. Not only do they contain most of the requisites for a well-balanced diet, but they are easy to take and lend themselves in pleasant combination with other foods.

Your biggest problem with summer drinks will come in trying to save sugar. But don't let this stump you, for you can use fruit juices that have natural sugars, honey as a sweetener, and milk and ice cream, which need very little or no other sweetening at all.

Try fruit powders, too, using 1 level tablespoon of the fruit powder with 3 teaspoons of honey to 1 glass of water or milk. Fill the glass with shimmering ice chips and you have an excellent thirst quencher in a wink.

Fruit juices used with ice cream and honey are kind to the sugar ration.

Orange-Cooler.
(Makes 1½ quarts)
2 cups orange juice
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ cup maraschino cherry juice
1 cup ginger ale
2 tablespoons honey

Lynn Says:
The Score Card: Definite news has reached me on the spice situation, so now you homemakers can see exactly what is available in this line.

There's enough to go around freely of: cayenne, red pepper, mustard, chili powder, dill seeds, oregano, paprika, curry, cake spice, mixed pickling spice, celery seed, onion and garlic salt and powder, bay leaves, marjoram, cardamon, anise and black pepper.

Careful use is indicated for these spices: cinnamon, mace, allspice, white pepper, cloves, nutmeg and ginger.

Canning rubbers, lids, jars, etc. are available in sufficient quantity for this season's produce. An extra ration of sugar for canners will be allowed, amounting to five pounds per person for the year.

There's a possibility that coffee, tea, and cocoa may come in for rationing. Homemakers are also advised to save and conserve all fats, grease and oil. If you cannot use the fat at home, keep it well preserved in a cool place to prevent its becoming rancid, then bring to your butcher.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for July 12

ADAM AND EVE: TEMPTATION AND SIN

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 2:1-13, 23, 24. GOLDEN TEXT—The soul that sinneth, it shall die.—Ezekiel 18:4.

The finished creation of God was "very good," but before long it was marred by sin. Dr. Hart-Davies in his book on Genesis speaks of a brick from the walls of ancient Babylon, now in the British museum. It "bears the imprint of one of Babylon's mighty kings. Right over the center of the royal seal is deeply impressed the footprint of a 'pariah' dog which apparently trod upon it when it was soft and plastic. Human nature is like that brick. Man originally was made in the image of God, but over the divine likeness there has been superimposed the dirty disfigurement of the devil's imprint."

We see first in our lesson the appearance of the serpent who is the subtle emissary of—

I. Satan (vv. 1-5).
Man, because he was made in God's image, was not a mere automaton, having no moral choice. He was a free being who had to choose between good and evil. Obedience to God is the underlying moral principle of the universe. Man was given an opportunity to obey the prohibition of one tree in the Garden of Eden. The principle of prohibition in the midst of a world of privilege thus has divine sanction.

Satan provided the occasion for man's fall into sin. He came, not as the cloven-hoofed monstrosity of modern cartoonists, but as a creature more subtle than all other creation. His approach in our day is just as smooth and cultured (II Cor. 11:14).
II. Sin (v. 6).
Let us be clear that sin is not a necessity, not a natural weakness of man, not a falling upward in the progress of the race, but a deliberate choice to transgress the law of God. At once it showed its true nature by reaching out and leading another into transgression.

The one who listens to a slander against God can easily begin to doubt His Word, and then it is not difficult to look at what God has forbidden. Then the desire of the flesh takes hold and disobedience follows (cf. I John 2:16).
III. Shame (vv. 7-13).
The breaking of a right relationship with God broke the perfection of man's fellowship with man. Innocence was swallowed up in a sense of shame. But the shame is far deeper than a sense of nakedness. It speaks of a heart marked with sin which makes man hide from God. Satan had promised Adam and Eve that they should know more about good and evil (v. 5), but all the good they learned about was what they had now lost, and the evil they learned was the sin which now blackened their souls and darkened their lives.

And with them fell the whole human race, for Paul tells us in Romans 5:12 that "by one man sin entered the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned."
IV. Sorrow (vv. 23, 24).
Man and his help meet, who had begun with such glorious promise in the garden, now had the great sorrow of being driven out by God. No longer to be trusted, man was kept out by the cherubim, mysterious angelic beings with the awful flaming sword.
Labor, which in the garden had been but a pleasant diversion, became a struggle against a thorn-infested ground. Sorrow was linked with motherhood, and man began to bear the heavy responsibilities of life (see Gen. 3:14-19).
But we must not close our lesson without pointing out that in the midst of judgment God provided mercy. The promise of man's redemption is written first in God's Book in Genesis 3:15, and from there the scarlet thread of redemptive truth runs right through the Bible to its last chapter.

Even in judging the first Adam for his sin, God thus promised the coming of the second Adam, who was to redeem the race. We became members of the first Adam's family by natural birth—without the privilege of choice. We become members of the family of the second Adam by a new birth—a spiritual, supernatural rebirth. But the latter is by our own choice! (I Cor. 15:21, 22, 45).

Wayside Ministering
Jesus was never bound down to the size of his audience. He was neither elated by a big crowd nor discouraged by an audience of one. In fact, some of his most wonderful teachings were given to individuals whom he met by the wayside, the woman of Samaria, Zacchaeus, Mary and Martha, the Syrophenician woman, Nicodemus, the woman taken in adultery, the blind man in the temple, are only a few of those to whom Jesus gave of his best as he passed them on the way.

Cotton Is Choice Of Summer Brides

According to the signs that tell this is going to be a summer of wartime weddings, Summer with its background of flowers and sunny days and starry nights provides a most inviting setting for picturesque organdies, exquisite batistes, quaint dotted swisses and other such delicately woven cotton sheers as fashion favors this season.

Many a bride-to-be is finding it necessary to change her plans for a pretentious wedding to a program which calls for the utmost simplicity and economy, owing to wartime conditions.

One of the pleasing surprises this summer is the number of brides who are choosing for their wedding gowns pretty sheer cottons, among which organdy seems to be an outstanding favorite. To lend the most enchantment to her picturesque organdy wedding gown a recent bride wore a wide-brimmed halo of finely pleated organdy ruffles, and the effect was entrancing.

'Dunk' 'Em

There is a new word being added to the fashion vocabulary. This new word, "dunkable," is in keeping with the spirit of the times, for the trend is toward making everything washable from gloves to hats and to shoes. Washable, dunkable gloves answer the call of the hour, and you can get these in greater variety than ever before.

Midriff Blouse

Decidedly new is the "midriff" blouse. It's a startling fashion, but young girls are taking to it with enthusiasm. Wear it with the matching printed chintz skirt which is sold as its companion piece.

Flower Buttons

Bring new intrigue to your best-beloved sweater this summer with a row of gaily colorful buttons wrought in dainty florals of original design. Realistic flowers bloom on the lovely sweater shown above. The flowery motifs are contrasted effectively against the background. The knitted stitch achieves a texture that is shaggy (smartest new sweaters are like that) and almost grasslike in appearance. Irresistible and unusually colorful are these clever button originals in which tiny, artfully shaped flowers and leaves are affixed to a latticed disk of contrasting color. These three-color buttons will bring perkiness and style accent to the most somber costume. Try the flower-button way for your sweater. You'll love it!

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

A SMARTLY flounced blanket chest with contrasting cushion is a useful addition to any bedroom. It serves as a convenient seat; and extra covers are right at hand on chilly nights. A pair of these, covered to match spreads, would go well with twin beds.

Plan the size of your chest to fill your needs and space. It may be made of one-inch pine and should be about 15 inches high without the cushion. Make the flounce with double fullness—that is, twice as long as the space it is to fill after it is gathered. The cushion may be filled with cotton padding, feathers or down.

NOTE: Book No. 8 of the series of booklets offered with these articles gives directions for flowered blanket protectors and a bedside bag for books and magazines. Also many other things to make for almost nothing from odds and ends to be found in almost every home. To get a copy of Book No. 8 send your order to:

Facts of ADVERTISING

ADVERTISING represents the leadership of a nation. It points the way. We merely follow—follow to new heights of comfort, of convenience, of happiness.

As time goes on advertising is used more and more, and as it is used more and more, all profit more. It's the way advertising has—

of bringing a profit to everybody concerned, the consumer included

Salute your home-town war heroes next Friday, July 17. The occasion will be "American Heroes Day."

And the sponsors are Michigan's 90,000 retailers who exceeded quotas of bonds and stamps of all other states in May and who are out to do it again in July.

The national quota is a billion dollars' worth of insurance for freedom, a goal which may decide the fate of the system of voluntary savings. The alternative, already proposed, is enforced payroll deductions. So buy war stamps from your retailers next Friday!

Michigan retailers, like those in other states, find themselves literally "twixt the devil and the deep blue sea." On the one hand is price control whose wholesale and retail ceilings were set for March, 1942. Small retailers who must replace merchandise, much of which was bought last fall at pre-March wholesale prices, are finding the profit margin of many items at current wholesale levels to be small indeed.

Manufacturers are being asked to absorb some of the wholesale price increase. This cannot be done in many cases, it is admitted, based on the experience of Canada which controls wages as well as prices. Either the ceiling must be raised, as has already been done for several commodities, or Congress must provide subsidies to manufacturers. Such is the picture as given to us by Otis Cook, manager, Michigan-Retail Institute.

And even then, according to Leon Henderson, federal price administrator, the threat of inflation still exists as long as ceilings are not placed on wages and farm products.

In testimony before the house appropriations committee, Henderson expressed belief that there was "a very real danger" that "our present price ceilings will not hold."

As an illustration that the purchase of war bonds and stamps has a direct relation to the fate of price control, Henderson went on to explain:

"What we will be able to do rests on the tax bill, and not only the nature of it, how much is withdrawn from current spendable income; it depends upon the amount of savings; it depends on the degree to which wages are stabilized; and it depends upon the course of farm prices, and it depends upon the rate at which the war effort proceeds."

With their business already in jeopardy, as the fate of the present price control determines in part whether we are to have further inflation, Michigan retailers are out to sell war bonds and stamps in July in an aggressive campaign.

Both independent and chain stores are participating in the July drive.

The Independent Food Distributors Council, representing 200,000 independent grocers, has built its promotion around the Revolutionary war heroine, Molly Pitcher. There are Molly Pitcher war bond booths, and there are Molly Pitcher wardens selling 25 and 10 cent stamps.

The Institute of Distribution, the national chain store clearing house for 16,000 retail outlets, is operating separately under a slogan, "Buy War Stamps—This Store's Best Buy."

Within a few weeks another big war campaign will break.

Following the current collection of scrap rubber by the petroleum industry will be a steel salvage drive sponsored by The American Steel and Iron Institute, a glorified name for American junk dealers.

Endorsed by the War Production Board as a greatly needed effort, the junk salvage collection will seek to get every available piece of unused metal in Michigan.

An old flatiron will provide enough iron scrap to make two steel helmets or 30 hand grenades. An old heating radiator would make seventeen .30 calibre rifles; a medium sized garbage pail, one thousand .30 cal. cartridges. Even a wash pail can be converted into three bayonets.

That is putting scrap in terms everyone can understand.

The tremendous demand for steel in war production has created a serious problem. The collection of scrap iron and steel is said by the War Production Board to be urgently needed.

A heavy tank, for instance, requires 50,000 pounds of steel for which 28,000 pounds of scrap can be used.

A 3-inch anti-aircraft gun, which might possibly protect the Sault Ste. Marie locks during an air raid, requires 20,000 pounds of steel for which scrap iron can be used for 10,000 pounds.

Communities will be asked to spur their efforts by a house-to-house, or farm-to-farm collection of scrap iron. This war is getting serious. We are not winning yet. Hence, Michigan is being asked to do its part, not only for buying of more war bonds and stamps, but in turning over to local junk dealers every available piece of unused metal and rubber.

As the slogan makers put it, "Keep 'Em Firing—With Junk."

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The Garand semi-automatic rifle, which is the standard issue today for the U. S. army, is superior to the old Springfield rifle in many respects. We literally need millions of these fast shooting powerful rifles to equip our army. They cost $85 each and are being manufactured at the rate of one a minute. They fire sixty 30-calibre shells a minute.

Every one of the 40,000,000 employed persons in America could easily buy one of these rifles for the army. Not that we need that many, but the reserve could go into shells and other much needed supplies. Buy more and more War Bonds and top the quota in your county by investing at least ten percent of your income every pay day.
