Victory Garden Proclamation

CLARENCE HEALEY, MAYOR OF EAST JORDAN, SETS VICTORY GARDEN WEEK MAR. 21 - 27

Whereas, the present emergency requires the production of greatly increased quantities of foods, not only for our armed forces, our civilian population, and for shipment abroad to our allies, but also since the responsibility of feeding the starving men, women and children of occupied and re-occupied countries has fallen upon the American people.

And, Whereas, the farm labor shortage and shortage of farm machinery and equipment makes it difficult for truck farmers and commercial vegetable gardeners to greatly increase their production, and

Further, since the transportation facilities of the country are taxed to the limit with the hauling of the instruments of war, and since even the local delivery of vegetables and similar foods from the farm to the city requires large expenditures of gasoline and rubber

Now, Therefore, I, Clarence Healey Mayor of the City of East Jordan, do call upon each citizen who has or can obtain suitable land, to plant a Victory Garden in 1943 and to produce and preserve, can or store all food to the limit of his ability.

I do further, hereby, officially set aside the week of March 21, 1943 as Victory Garden Week and call upon every resident to complete plans for the planting of that garden during this week so that he will be in readiness to start planting as soon as weather and soil conditions permit.

CLARENCE HEALEY, Mayor of the City of East Jordan

Car Drivers, Be Reasonable

With the pre-spring thaws and pedestrians forced to use the center of the streets, it seems as though car-drivers should consider those on foot and not splash water and dirt on the pedestrians, in their haste to get nowhere fast.

This is just a gentle reminder to the auto driver that a person on foot in the streets of East Jordan have as much right there as you driving a car.

May we ask the sincere co-operation of all auto-drivers to be considerate of the man and woman pedestrian.

Harry Simmons Chief of Police

Temple Hits

There's much of the usual in the current offerings at the Temple with three extra fine attractions listed for the week. The dynamic team of Clark Gable and Lana Turner in, "Somewhere I'll Find You," have the Sun-Mon-Tues. spot and again turn in a virile and convincing performance. It is the tempestuous story that you'd expect from this volatile combination and exciting enough for anyone!

Fri-Sat presents those enjoyable hill-billies, the Weaver Brothers and Elvira in story of the mountains, "Shepherd of the Ozarks," and as usual the picture is repeat with their special brand of comedy and fun and back country tunes.

Family nites on Wed-Thur feature John Wayne and our old favorite Joan Blondell in a really swell evening's entertainment, "Lady For A Night." A dandy story that carries a cargo of hearty enjoyment for you and the whole family.

This Has Been Northern Michigan's "Winter of Discontent"

Old timers are racking their thought-tanks these days, trying to remember when Northern Michigan and this region has had such a severe winter as is just coming to a close — maybe — although there are no indications of it.

It started the first of December and now, with March 21st next Sunday, there is little indication that Spring Is Just Around The Corner.

The past week or so has been typical of it all. Temperatures ranging from below zero to above freezing. Most of the time below the freezing point. A thaw over the week-end Monday last, freezing weather and a fine sleet storm that left the earth covered with fine granules of ice.

Early Wednesday morning a westerly wind brought another snow storm that completely blocked our already one-lane highways, although most main roads were opened every day.

Roads and streets were already piled high alongside with snow, and now, at this writing, there are many spots where only one-way traffic is possible.

Tuesday noon a convoy of 4 large trucks pulled into town from Mancelone, having got as far as Kalkaska Monday night, Mancelona, Tuesday morning, and waiting until noon for M-66 to be opened into East Jordan.

School busses came in Wednesday morning only to start on the return trip almost immediately. Thursday there was no school held.

Monday nights storm, instead of being snow, consisted of granules of ice, frozen just hard enough so it wouldn't pack. Footprints in this ice would simply disappear after the foot was lifted. Tuesday morning's thaw made this a solid mass of hard slush. We met the snow-plow coming up Mary St hill, with the plow raised up and he said "This stuff is so heavy I can hardly move it," the depth of slush on the hill at the time not being over three to four inches.

NYA Starts Girl Training Program

GIRLS, 16 TO 25, MAY TAKE A 90-DAY COURSE IN A VARIETY OF OCCUPATIONS

The National Youth Administration war manpower division has established a new training program for girls at Traverse City.

Any young woman, age 16 to 25, regardless of educational qualifications, is eligible to take a ninety day course of training and may have their choice of clerical work, machine shop operations, welding, aviation sheet metal, or parts inspection.

The period of training is set at ninety days, although many women students finish the training in less time, and are given positions in private industry at good wages.

The government pays all expenses during the training period including transportation to the project, room and board, medical and dental care, and a small cash wages each month for incidental expenses. There is also a recreation and health building program.

Young women in Charlevoix county who are interested in this girl aid training may communicate with Mrs. Berenice Wexstaff, 230 Antrim St, Charlevoix.

Crimson Wave Win 2 In Tourney

EAST JORDAN HIGH DEFEATS BOYNE 26 — 25

Friday March 13, our local basketball team ventured to Petoskey where they engaged Boyne City in the first round of the tournament.

The starting lineup showed the absence of two East Jordan regulars, Tyson Kemp and Bruce Woodcock, both of whom suffered injuries prior to the game.

Both teams displayed fine defensive ball throughout the game but the red and black of East Jordan finally came out on top by sinking a couple of timely buckets during the final period.

HARBOR SPRINGS DEFEATED BY EAST JORDAN

Having defeated Boyne City during the first round of the tournament, East Jordan's high spirited basketball team arrived in Petoskey Saturday March 14 ready to battle against the Orange and Black of Harbor Springs.

Harbor, holding two decisions over East Jordan during regular season play was quite confident of a victory over our local boys. It looked like a sure bet for them for at the end of the first period, Harbor led 8-2, and at the half, the score stood 14-10. Then Damoth's Crimson Wave came through and piled up the score to take a 21-16 lead.

The Rams retaliated by holding our boys scoreless, while tacking points on to their score. An over-time period settled the hard-fought contest with East Jordan's coming out on top 25-24. This game gets our vote for being the most spectacular of the season.

Saturday night, our boys go to Petoskey to play Pellston for the championship. This sport's reporter suggests that we all pool our limited gas supplies and get to see the game. It's true the Pellston fellows are tall, but there's the old saying, "The bigger they are, the harder they fall!" So let's back our boys!

Welcoming Party Given for Margaret Collins

A very pleasant evening was spent last Thursday when nine former classmates of Margaret Collins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Collins, who has been a patient at Gaylord Sanitorium for nearly two years and has just been released to her home, gathered at her home to welcome her.

The evening was spent in recalling school experiences, after which the guests left for home wishing Margaret a continued gain in health.

A feature of the evening was a cake bearing the inscription "Welcome Home, Margaret."

Moves Old Barn To New Location

How to get a $5,000 barn and still stay within the War Production Boards $1,000 limitation on farm buildings was recently demonstrated by Carl Kester of Mason when he had to provide an additional barn for his herd of Jersey cows.

Mr. Kester conceived the idea of moving an old but sound barn from an adjacent farm and placing it at right angles to his own dairy barn. He then jacked it up and built a concrete masonry one story foundation wall 32 by 62 feet, which houses 22 cows and provides a number of calf pens at the east end.

Conforming with grade A milk production requirements, he put in a concrete floor. He also built the feed mangers of concrete. These he claims, conserve feed and prevent dirt and other debris from becoming mixed with the feed.

Regarding his new barn he asserted, "It would cost me $5,000 to duplicate it in entirely new materials." Mr. Kester, whose 22 Jersey cows produce a daily average of 500 pounds of milk, also built a masonry milk house, 16 by 22 feet, which offers ample room for cooling tanks and washing equipment.

A number of Michigan farmers have been known to have greatly improved their barns by following similar methods. Such improvements win the approval of the W. P. B. because they can be done within the $1,000 building limitation and because cement and masonry are not on the list of critical war materials. Building repair problems can be answered by county agricultural agents.

Our Job Is to Save Dollars Buy War Bonds Every Pay Day

Who's News This Week

By Delos Wheeler Lovelace

Consolidated Features.—WNU Release.

NEW YORK.—The biggest tenth of the 1943 Red Cross War Fund is being raised by Chester M. Colby who knows as well as Morgenthau how to make the money roll in.

It's in the Cards That Colby'll Top Red Cross Quota

A nationwide drive for $125,000,000 is now on in full swing and the Colby assignment is to find just a nip under $13,000,000 in New York city for Americans on all the fighting fronts.

Thirteen makes a lot of millions, and more when they buy blood plasma, not to count lesser benefits, but Mr. Colby goes after them without blinking. Over 20-odd years in an ascending spiral that finally reached the chairmanship of the board of General Foods corporation, he has learned to deal easily with even millions.

They may fill his day, but come evening they have small chance against Lincolnia or, for lighter hours, a crossword puzzle.

Just the same he will probably work day and night for the Red Cross since the money is all for the army and navy, and tradition joins the Colby family with both services.

Mr. Colby, 65 now and handsomely gray, was a major in that littler World war although, oddly, he was born at the Naval Academy and was practically raised on sea water. His father was Rear Admiral Chester M. Colby and his son, third to bear the name, is in the Naval Air service.

Fresh out of the army, Mr. Colby was mulling over three proffered jobs when a fortune teller said that she saw him at the head of a big food concern. He joined the old Postum Cereal company shortly, and deftly pyramided that into General Foods.

SOME day the world may worry over geologic-politics as it worries now over the geo-politics of Maj. Gen. Prof. Doktor Karl Haushofer whose rare bit of Heartlands, Crosslands, and Offshore Islands gave Hitler dreams, and all the rest of us nightmares.

Geologic Politics To Control World Peace—Prof. Leith

If this happens, another professor, bony C. K. Leith, may get chief praise, or blame. He comes up now to take the Penrose Medal for "eminent research in pure geology," but he has been broadcasting the political virtue of his subject for a quarter of a century.

As far back as 1919 at Paris he was advisor to the American Commission to Negotiate Peace, and every word he let fall must have packed political dynamite. Next he said, and probably wishes he hadn't, that lack of ore for steel permanently removed Japan as a world war menace. Later he warned, more wisely, that world peace was sadly endangered by prohibitions against the free search for minerals. These days, as advisor to the administration in Washington, he insists that by controlling the world's minerals the democracies can control the peace.

The professor is 67 years old. His face in repose is severe, but his full lips meet lightly as lips do that smile easily. Born in Wisconsin, he was graduated from the state university and has taught there for 40 years. His wife and 2 sons complete his family.

IF THE United States should, after peace, nip Britain in a race for sea power, Sir Archibald Hurd's quarter-century and more of worry will be vindicated.

Warns Britannia Is About to Pass Her Trident to Us

His warning in London that "Britannia is about to pass her thousand-year-old trident across the Atlantic" is only the last of a long series of warnings. As he sees it surely, the United States will be stronger all around, in men-of-war, in ships, in airplanes.

Sir Archibald is 73 years old now. He added the knighthood 15 years ago, but even before that other naval experts were quiet when he wished to speak. The son of a modest solicitor, he wrote himself into such fame that admirals of the sea did not snub him. His books fill a big shelf, and cover an unrated range of subjects as wide as the Atlantic itself.

His most vigorous pieces, however, have contemplated the future of British sea power and have not been happy about it.

He always had qualms, but his first major alarm was raised just after the 1914-17 or sample World war. He was sure then that the U. S. Shipping board was out to cripple the British merchant marine. While the fighting still raged he had called upon the United States for men and material to replace British bottoms sunk by German submarines, and presumably some replacement had been made.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Meat Ceilings to Check Black Market; Bismarck Sea Triumph Forecasts U. S. Drive to Sweep Japs From New Guinea; Small Firms Get Billions for War Work

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Even the most advanced air base in Tunisia gets its mail, as pictured above. This photo of the mailman arriving and being welcomed at an advanced U. S. air base of Gen. Dwight Eisenhower's army, should be an incentive to those on the home front to write and keep writing to loved ones no matter how far away on Uncle Sam's service they may be.

BLACK MARKET: Action on Meat

Action rather than words was the keystone of a program sponsored by the OPA and the department of agriculture to smash the black markets in meat.

First barrage laid down in this offensive was Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown's order imposing specific retail price ceilings on meat, beginning with pork products. Second attack came in the announcement by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard of orders licensing livestock slaughterers as well as those who buy and sell livestock for slaughter.

Effective April 1, the meat ceilings were expected to check black markets and end an "unjust squeeze" on packers. Mr. Brown said they would also lay the groundwork for the start of meat rationing about April 15. Pork ceilings were to be followed by uniform regulations on beef and lamb.

When red meat rationing is undertaken, the order will include bacon, butter, cheese, lard and other cooking fats.

With prices uniform throughout a community on all cuts of meat, Brown said, it would be difficult for dealers to get rid of illicit meat at higher prices.

RUSSIANS: Repeat Old History

Back over the snowy Russian steppes where Napoleon's army perished long ago reeled the retreating German legions.

While the collapse of Nazi resistance at Rzhev had been of high immediate strategic importance to the Red command it was prophetic of further Nazi reverses, for with the whole German salient west of Moscow unhinged, the fate of Orel and Vyazma to the east virtually sealed.

The rapidity of the Russian advance was indicated by the capture soon afterward of Olenino 35 miles west of Rzhev giving control of the railway running from Moscow to Velikie Luki.

While German spokesmen described the Rzhev defeat as a strategic withdrawal to shorten Nazi lines, Allied military observers saw in it a threat to all Axis defenses from Smolensk to the Baltic sea.

In the South the Russians had moved forward more slowly, impeded by the first thaws of oncoming spring. But Red forces were reported driving forward from recaptured Lgov, important railroad center west of Kursk.

WAR COST: Exceeds 43 Billion

More than $43,830,452,651 was spent for war purposes in the first eight months of the current fiscal year, it was disclosed by the treasury department.

The war department spent the most for war—$27,303,243,684. The navy spent $11,502,653,956, the maritime commission $1,685,143,236 and the war shipping administration $733,211,740.

Expenditures by the government for all purposes during the eight-month period totaled $47,600,944,727, while net revenue totaled $9,512,808,497. The government's deficit for the eight months was $38,084,682,608.

SMALL BUSINESS: Good News Ahead

Good news for small business concerns was forthcoming from Charles E. Wilson, executive vice chairman of the War Production board when he announced that war contracts placed with smaller companies "will run into billions of dollars by the end of the year."

Wilson said that more than $30,000,000 of work a week is being placed now with small business firms through the efforts of the Smaller War Plants corporation.

The WPB's program for small business, Wilson said, includes: 1—An increase in the number of prime contracts placed with small plants; 2—Widening of WPB's lending policy to make loans to small business easier; 3—Certification of more small plants to handle war contracts.

BISMARCK SEA: Disaster for Japs

Three facts of major significance to the future of the war in the Pacific emerged from the stunning victory of General MacArthur's bombers over the 22-ship Jap armada in the Bismarck sea, approaching New Guinea.

Fact No. 1 was that in sinking the 22 enemy ships and bagging 82 Jap planes, MacArthur's airmen proved that a force of land-based bombers manned by skilled pilots is more than a match for a sea-borne invasion force. Fact No. 2 was that the victory removed the danger of invasion to the Australian mainland for the time being at least. Fact No. 3 was that the enemy garrisons at Lae and Salamaua, New Guinea, would not be reinforced, for it was estimated that 15,000 Jap troops perished when Yankee bombs sank their transports.

Military observers believed that one of the immediate results of the Jap disaster would be an increase in pressure by General MacArthur's armies besieging Lae and Salamaua with the object of driving the Japs entirely from New Guinea.

The clean-sweep character of the American triumph was summarized in General MacArthur's terse communique: "We have achieved a victory of such completeness as to assume the proportions of a major disaster to the enemy."

NAVY: Predict 10% Losses

A navy "big enough to dominate all seas over the world" was envisioned by Secretary Frank Knox, who added a warning that the American people must be prepared to expect a 10 per cent casualty rate in navy personnel before the war's end.

Secretary Knox and ranking naval officials unfolded a program for building up personnel strength to 2,250,000 by July, 1944, in testimony before the house subcommittee on naval appropriations. Appropriations totaling $3,816,000,000 to implement this program were approved by the subcommittee.

The navy had 3,205 ships in commission on January 1, 1943, according to Rear Admiral Randall Jacobs, chief of the bureau of personnel. This number will be increased to approximately 4,100 by the end of the year, he added.

NORTH AFRICA: Rommel in Reverse

As Allied troops continued their drive in Tunisia, it became increasingly clear that Marshal Rommel's short-lived Kasserine Pass offensive had been a gamble. If he succeeded, he would follow it up. If he failed, he would waste no time in retiring. This was emphasized by the rapidity with which American and British forces had regained the ground lost in Rommel's first push.

Reports disclosed that some units of the British Eighth army had made contact with American troops in the Gafsa area of central Tunisia after circling the Mareth line from the south and advancing through the Chott Djerid marshes which had hitherto been regarded as impassable.

American forces pressing Rommel's retreat from the Kasserine pass were reported well beyond Sbeitla on the way to the Faid Pass, the key to German north-south communications.

In the northern mountains west of Axis-held Bizerte heavy Nazi attacks had bent the British lines back. The Allied air arm remained dominant over North Africa, however, and in the Mediterranean, sharp enemy losses to British submarines were reported. Seven Axis ships were sunk and nine others damaged.

ABSENTEEISM: Wage Docking Urged

"Hit them in the pocketbook. If you dock their wages you are hitting them where it hurts."

This was the prescription for curing the problem of persistent absenteeism by war plant workers proposed by Secretary of Navy Frank Knox. Testifying before the house naval affairs committee, Knox advocated remedial legislations covering both draft-age and non-draft-age workers.

A large share of the absenteeism is caused by men safe from the draft, he told the committee which was studying measures to require periodic reports to local draft boards on absentees of military age. Best results in curing absenteeism would be to deprive such workers of earnings for part of the time they were actually at work, he added.

DRAFT: Fathers Go Soon

Draft boards will begin inducting fathers into the armed forces in many areas of the United States about May 1, informed officials in Washington indicated. These officials added that they expected drafting of married men with children to be general throughout the country by early summer.

Acknowledging that some married men with children have already been inducted, selective service officials declared that most of these had acquired their dependents after December 8, 1941. Other fathers, it was said, may not be inducted without authorization from selective service headquarters. It was predicted, however, that such authorization would be forthcoming this spring.

PIPELINES: Relief for East

Blunt-spoken Harold L. Ickes, petroleum administrator, served notice that he had decided to build a 20-inch pipeline from Texas to the Middle West, despite the objection of

PETROLEUM BOSS ICKES

Midwest senators who had urged that any new pipeline construction should be instead, from the Middle West to the East Coast shortage area. This will be in addition to the recently completed 24-inch line.

Mr. Ickes assured the Middle West senators in testimony before a committee in Washington that he also hopes to complete a 20-inch pipeline from the Midwest to the East coast this year.

Meanwhile, he insisted, building the western end of the second pipeline first would speed the job and increase deliveries to the East coast of from 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 barrels during the most critical period of the shortage. This would provide the most effective method.

CHILD LABOR: 2,780,000 Employed

Reflecting the war's impact on the nation's labor supply, a report by the National Child Labor commission revealed that 2,780,000 youngsters of less than 18 years of age are employed either full or part time in industry and agriculture.

Citing a noticeable increase in illegal child labor, especially in night work, the report said that 580,000 of the group were in the 14 to 15-year age class and the remainder 16 and 17.

Hitler in Mental Decline? Close Observers Say Yes

Reliable Reports Indicate Fuehrer Subject to Uncontrolled Emotions; German Physician Believes He Will Have Mental 'Explosion.'

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

Where is Hitler? That question can't be answered with any certainty at this writing and nobody seems to care. For more than a month, the communications from the German High Command have not borne the Fuehrer's signature. The anniversaries of two of the great events in Nazi history have come and gone, the celebrations were held with very little display in comparison with other years and entirely without appearance of the No. 1 Nazi himself. Hitler has made no public appearance for months.

It is true that communications supposedly from the Fuehrer have been made public but always through a second party, notably the speech on the anniversary of the founding of the National Socialist party. The set excuse is that Hitler is with his troops in the Russian front. But at the rate that front is moving these days, it is doubtful if he is very near it. It is quite possible that he is elsewhere or even nowhere but the interesting thing is that this man, who has managed to turn the world upside down, does not seem at all essential to the great political and military machine he has built up. It may be functioning without him and this would seem to indicate that if he is not dead, but should suddenly die, it wouldn't make much difference.

Some time ago, a report received from underground sources was received in London. It said that "Hitler either has been given an ultimatum by his generals, who pointed out his military blunders, or he is suffering from one of his hysterical fits and is in ill health as a result of his Russian reverses."

Recent Developments

What about these fits? They are no fiction but well-authenticated events. Before several witnesses he has frequently burst into tears, and in other ways given vent to utterly uncontrolled emotions. But these fits are of less importance than certain other likewise well-substantiated but not widely known developments which have taken place within the last year or two.

There are several stories which I heard from the lips of a man who has closely watched Hitler's career from its earliest beginning. The man is Fred Oechsner, a former colleague of mine. In fact, I was instrumental in having him sent to Berlin as correspondent for the Consolidated Press just about the time Hitler was beginning his political career.

Long before anybody else took Hitler seriously, Oechsner wrote to me: "This man is some day going to be the bull in Europe's china shop." Oechsner, who is now in Washington, told me the following story which he also repeats in his excellent book, "This Is the Enemy."

As you know, Hitler was always a teetotaler. He never drank anything but some very weak beer especially brewed for him and he only took sips of this pale beverage. Recently his habits changed.

"Persons who visited him at his headquarters early in the winter told me," Oechsner says, "that he was becoming grave and irritable and that it was not uncommon for him on a cold night to drink three or four glasses of grog. He also took occasional drinks of a Bavarian liquor called Enzian which is not unlike gin."

Now Oechsner is an exceedingly reliable reporter and when he says the Fuehrer finished three grogs in an evening, I believe it—also I believe that a man unused to taking alcohol must have been higher than Berchtesgaden when he went to bed.

Oechsner also said: "There is a German physician of international repute who believes that some day Hitler will have a brain disturbance of a serious nature. This physician has treated Hitler since 1921 and knows his physical condition as well as his personal life. It is his opinion that Hitler is an outstanding example of a half-trained, half-educated person with a phenomenal talent for absorbing and co-ordinating information and detail gleaned from other sources. This attention to detail and pattern, he says, is obvious in Hitler's drawings, in his speeches, his military campaigns. It is a phenomenal mental power but some day it is going to explode."

Suicide the End?

Without revealing the source, I have heard the opinion expressed by a man who has seen and met with Hitler many times and is exceedingly familiar with his life, that it is quite possible that a mental decline has started which, he believes, may end in suicide.

On my own score, I may say that when I heard Hitler deliver his famous speech at the start of the war in 1939 in which he said that he was going to the front and would lead Germany to victory, that he would not take off his uniform until this had been achieved, and in the next breath named his successors, I thought he was preparing for suicide.

I doubt if he is now dead. He may not even be ill but the thing is, there has been no report of any public appearance for a long time.

That, of course, is hearsay evidence—or long-distance diagnosis but what Oechsner reports comes from first-hand authority.

So Hitler may already be in a padded cell—and nobody seems to care!

Fourth Term—Does FDR Want It?

Will the President run for a Fourth Term?

A number of cross currents are definitely in motion, some directly moving toward an attempt to draft Mr. Roosevelt as candidate in '44; some which at present seem to be carrying him in the opposite direction.

One thing that many people fail to realize is the fact that when the precedent against a man serving in the White House for more than two terms was broken, the first olive was out of the bottle and the chief obstacle to a fourth term was removed. As has been pointed out, the American people never before wanted a man for a third term candidate, although twice before candidates would have made the attempt—Grant and Theodore Roosevelt.

When the first whispers for a possible third term for Franklin Roosevelt were heard, I talked to a seasoned political observer. He said: "The President doesn't want to run again but he will be persuaded by his friends."

I make bold to state at this juncture that exactly the same statement can be made today with one modification: The President doesn't want to run for a fourth term but his friends are trying to persuade him to.

I feel sure that the President does not want to run again. I do believe he passionately desires to preside at the peace table. But some of his friends have a different view. As Joseph Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson, once remarked about the White House: "It's a nice boarding house, you hate like the dickens to move out."

Friends' Demands

Two things are acting in favor of persuading the President: One, his earnest and insistent demand of his "friends" who don't want "to move out" and some of whom honestly believe that it would be for the general good if the President stayed on. Their arguments are many.

The second factor and the one which could elect Mr. Roosevelt for a fourth term, if he does run again, can be expressed in the well-known slogan, "Don't swap horses while crossing a stream." It is the reasoning behind this homely expression which, of course, provides the most persuasive argument to any President.

On the other hand, if by 1944 Hitler has been defeated, the President might feel that he could serve even better at the peace table if he were not the head of a political party, if he were not bound by certain domestic policies which the head of an administration must administer with one eye on the votes in the next election.

I believe that if the President felt positively that he would be allowed to play the principal role in the peace-making, even though someone else were in the White House (perhaps a Republican), or if he felt that as President, he would be less effective as a peacemaker, he would not consider a fourth term.

All rural women are being asked to enroll in the national Victory Home Food Supply program.

The brother of the king of Sweden, Prince Oscar Bernadotte, has resigned the chairmanship of the Swedish Young Men's Christian association. Reason—advancing age. He has held the post for more than 50 years!

One reason Russia is not so anxious to make peace with Finland is because 100,000 German soldiers would be released for duty elsewhere.

Twenty-two states have entered into co-operative arrangements with the Forest Service to develop a forest products marketing service for farmers.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

LONDON: "Take a towel with you when you go visiting" was, in effect, what Britons were told in a new set of rationing regulations. In announcing towel concessions for factory and medical workers, Hugh Dalton, president of the Board of Trade, said that in future "we must be prepared to take our towel with us if we go away to stay, or if asked to do so, to the hairdresser."

LOS ANGELES: Canned baby food is becoming more popular—particularly with adults, according to Sam M. White, secretary of the Southern California Retail Grocers' association. The reason, he says, is the present rationing system. The low ration point value of canned baby foods constitute their chief appeal. A purchaser can get a 4 or 5½-ounce can for one point.

Soldiers Trained as Weather Observers To Assist Army in Mapping Plans; Information Important to Bombers

The strategic and tactical importance of weather predictions, both short and long range, in waging the present war cannot be overestimated. This is particularly true in regions of the world where rapidly changing weather situations are characteristic throughout the year. Over the Atlantic ocean, and in Europe changing weather is prevalent in latitudes from the foot of Italy northward. In eastern Asia, significant and frequent weather changes occur throughout the year in latitudes from Burma northward; while over the North Pacific ocean, this is true from a line running from Tokyo and Los Angeles northward. Both Berlin and Tokyo lie within the areas where the weather element is of importance the year around. Therefore, any successful strategy aiming a blow at the heart of our enemies must include the weather factor.

The two men are about to release a radio-meteorograph. This little instrument when carried aloft by the balloon will transmit radio readings of pressure, temperature, and humidity to a station below. There is also a parachute attached to bring the instrument back.

To this end, courses have been established to train personnel for weather work in all parts of the world. Among these courses are those designed to train enlisted men as weather observers; enlisted men as forecasters to assist the weather officers; a weather reconnaissance squadron training course; and an aviation meteorological cadet course.

In using the weather factor to determine the effectiveness of the air-ground team or the co-ordination of land, sea and air forces, the army air forces have evolved a few simple rules which have, in part, been verified from a study of the strategy and tactics employed by the enemy.

The weather forecaster must always keep in mind a chronological history of the weather passing his station. This soldier is looking over the weather maps to obtain a picture of what has taken place in the previous 24 hours.

Clear Dry Weather Permits Attack by Air-Ground Team

1. In clear dry weather, the air-ground team can launch an attack most effectively. Under these conditions the attackers must have air superiority. These conditions permit the use of all types of air support, minimize the problems of observation and recognition of friendly and enemy aircraft and troops, and insure the maximum mobility of ground forces.

2. Dry weather with low clouds and good visibility permits limited air-ground operations. The types of attack by supporting aircraft are restricted. This kind of weather is fairly favorable to the operation of aircraft carriers even in areas controlled by land-based aircraft since the field of vision of the patrolling aircraft is greatly restricted.

3. Dry weather with extremely low clouds and conditions producing rather poor visibility can be used effectively for the consolidation of scattered ground units or the movement of ground forces into a position for attack. These conditions, even with rain, are favorable for the movement of an aircraft carrier into a position for attack when the weather improves. In both cases, the attacking forces are relatively free from observation or attack.

This war has shown that a detailed knowledge of existing weather conditions over the theater of operations, over enemy territory, and frequently over the friendly zone of the interior may be of great value to officers directing or planning campaigns or movements of personnel, motor vehicles, aircraft, or supplies. Usually the future weather is of more value than present weather, in planning, but for certain types of operations the current weather information may be valuable. Information, such as this, is needed to correct for weather effects on range and deflection of projectiles, drift of airplanes, and on the speed and direction of sound travel. It is of use in handling captive balloons and in landing and take-off of airplanes.

Reports Advise Army of Sudden Changes in Weather

The primary purpose of the army air forces weather service is to provide reasonable accurate forecasts of future weather. A knowledge of present weather conditions is, for most types of operations of little value if sudden marked changes are pending and forecasts of the changes are not available.

All branches of the army need weather forecasts. An army that conducts operations without keeping its staff advised of prospective weather changes is imposing a serious handicap on itself. The personnel, equipment, and supplies of a field army are usually not well protected against inclement weather. A squall, a thunderstorm, a heavy rain, or a strong wind seldom passes over a temporary army camp or bivouac without doing damage. Freezing weather, coming on suddenly, generally causes damage to equipment and supplies and discomfort to personnel.

Here the men are obtaining temperature and humidity readings. The man on the left is whirling a sling psychrometer in order to determine the relative humidity and dew point.

The influence of weather may frequently be present in military maneuvers seeking to gain surprise in their execution. In air operations, restricted visibility and adverse weather conditions serve to provide cover for attacking aircraft during the approach to the target, and aid surprise assaults. An effective cloud layer at an altitude suited to the type of attack which is planned provides an ideal cover for approaching aircraft.

Weather affects the planning and execution of all aircraft missions. Lack of weather information may cause frequent failures of missions and many losses of planes and personnel. In general, every time a flight mission is conducted the flight commander should have an accurate knowledge of weather conditions to be expected during the flight, otherwise both personnel and equipment may be subjected to unnecessary hazard.

All army air forces weather forecasting stations furnish medium and short range forecasts. Short range forecasts are the most accurate type of forecasts made. Therefore, they should be given to every flight commander just prior to his take-off. These forecasts should give the weather conditions to be encountered, including state of the weather, that is, whether the sky is overcast or clear or with broken or scattered clouds; the type and intensity of precipitation; the height of the ceiling; the visibility; the wind speed and direction, both at the surface and aloft; any hazards to flight, such as fog, icing areas, fronts, etc.; and any special phenomena, such as tornadoes. Medium range forecasts are used for planning flight operations. Also short and medium range forecasts are necessary in the case of a very long flight requiring 8 to 10 hours or more for completion. For long flights, if the weather is at all uncertain or changeable, the flight commander should endeavor to obtain, if possible, one or more additional short range forecasts by radio, especially for the period of landing and for the terminal of the flight.

Pilots must know the ceiling, amount of cloudiness, and types of clouds to be encountered on a flight for the entire route in order to plan and execute the flight properly. If a cloud ceiling exists, the pilot must either fly underneath it, fly in instruments in the clouds, or climb through and fly on top of the clouds. Flying at low altitude is usually hazardous and particularly so at night or in hilly or mountainous country with low visibility. Low ceiling or instrument weather at the point of takeoff should ordinarily be no hindrance to individual planes, provided the weather at the final destination is suitable for safe descent. However, instrument weather offers a very definite handicap to a formation of planes. The types of clouds also should be considered if instrument flight is to be made, as they will indicate the smoothness or roughness of the air. Instrument flight in clouds where thunderstorms or icing may be encountered involves a hazard to the aircraft that must be balanced against the military importance of continuing the mission. Thus, the pilot is much concerned with the ceiling and clouds to be found on every flight.

Clear Weather Is Needed For Reconnaissance Aviation

The primary mission of observation and reconnaissance aviation being to observe and report, their operations are facilitated by high ceilings and excellent visibility over the area where they operate. Reconnaissance aviation must operate great distances over enemy territory where weather conditions may or may not be known. Whether or not this weather is known will depend in a large measure upon the reconnaissance aviation itself since one of its missions will be to make weather reports from points over enemy territory. Bombardment aviation will also make a certain number of weather reports, and if these are sufficient in number and cover enough territory, it may be possible to make fairly accurate forecasts of weather for the following day. The capabilities of reconnaissance aviation in the execution of its tasks, are definitely limited by weather, particularly in the matter of visibility and wind. Their effect must, therefore, always be considered in planning missions to determine radius of operation and number of aircraft required.

Bombardment aviation has probably the greatest need for weather information. Bombardment units may, and frequently will, be called upon to perform their own reconnaissance. Like reconnaissance units, they may operate over great distances and return to their home airdromes with gas tanks nearly empty. A forecast before take-off of weather to be encountered upon return is essential. Bombardment aircraft may pass through much bad weather en route to and from their objective, but to avoid wasted effort it is very important that the weather be suitable at the objective for bombing, and that this be known before take-off. Objectives should be chosen, when possible, based on the weather forecast; that is, objectives should be chosen for which weather conditions will be most suitable.

Within the theater of operations, there will normally operate an air task force and a ground force. The air task force may have its units scattered throughout the theater. There are one or more air bases, one or more sub-air bases, and then the various combat units. If weather reports are required from points within an area where no weather stations are located, special observer stations must be established at these points. Such weather observer stations will be established, where needed, within both the combat zone and the communications zone.

THE public is cheated because Paramount doesn't always shoot Susan Hayward in technicolor; her red hair and reddish-brown eyes that almost match it are something to look at! Visiting in New York when "Reap the Wild Wind" was being released nationally, Susan was interested in seeing old friends from Brooklyn, her home town, buying clothes, seeing the new plays, rather than being formally introduced as a successful young star. She's remarkably pretty — without benefit of makeup, except lipstick. Clara Bow was the first Brooklyn

Michael Harvey, husky six-footer making his screen debut in "So Proudly We Hail" with Claudette Colbert, Paulette Goddard and Veronica Lake, is the third of three "youngsters" who grew up together in Atlanta to hit motion pictures. The others are Evelyn Keyes and Dixie Dunbar. The girls beat Harvey to the screen; he stacked up a record in Broadway plays before Hollywood got him.

All of a sudden Turkey has become very important to motion-picture makers; three studios have announced that they'd do pictures with Turkish backgrounds. Columbia's is "Constantinople," Paramount's "Dateline-Istanbul," Republic's either "Istanbul" or "Ankara."

Don't wear slacks; be interested in the man, not his uniform; know how to talk; don't dish out a line — he probably knows yours better than you do.

Thirty-four-year-old Edward Dmytryk, director of "Hitler's Children," has had 20 years' experience in pictures. Three years ago he turned director.

Dick Keith, the "Bright Horizon" actor was so well liked by the fans of another radio serial that letters piled in demanding that he marry the heroine. That was impossible, since he played a character so wealthy that, if the heroine married him, she'd have no troubles — and there'd be no more serial. The problem was solved by killing him off at the wedding ceremony.

Peggy Allenby, actress on Phillips H. Lord's "Counterspy," regrets the realism which Jay Hanna, the director, brings to his work. ## Marines Bring Troubles to Chaplains

"Don't tell your troubles to me, boy. See the Chaplain."

These 10 words contain the most frequently voiced sentiment in the marine corps. Let one of them complain about his chow or the unexpected deprivation of liberty and he will receive this response from his friends in the corps.

Spiritual problems confronting marines on foreign soil in most cases outnumber the secular. Sudddenly they are confronted with the reality of war and their gamble with death. They flock to the chaplain to guide them through the spiritual maze in which they find themselves.

One chaplain said that the men on the battle lines are much more religious than might be supposed. "They've told me they pray very often," he said, "especially in the thick of a fight."

LOOKING BACKWARD

From the Herald Files of Forty, Thirty and Twenty Years Ago
Compiled by Mrs. Mabel Secord

A little way south of Charlevoix, where M-66 climbs around a curve onto the terrace there is a lonely little old cemetery on the west side of the road.

When Brookside Cemetery was established, many of these graves were moved to the new cemetery, but not all.

Somewhere among the weeds and blackberry brambles, there is a grave with an East Jordan, or rather South Arm, story connected with it.

Solomon Isaman came here from Olean, New York, in 1866, nearly 80 years ago. A few years later a fifteen year old nephew came from the old home to visit his uncle. In the midst of the winter the lad was stricken with pneumonia.

The Indians living here used all their primitive remedies and methods, while Mr. Isaman started on foot for Traverse City to get medicine for the boy.

He returned, to find the boy dead. A coffin was made and the body placed in it, then it was put on a hand sled and the men drew it from here to the little cemetery south of Charlevoix. They tried to mark the grave so it could be found when the deep snows were gone but were never able to locate it again.

(Note: The issue for March 21, 1903 is missing from the file). As there are no items available from it I am copying details of a trial here, March 23-26, 1903, that must have attracted wide attention at the time.

Released The Prisoners

Probably no examination ever held in a criminal case in Northern Michigan has attracted such wide-spread attention as that of Robert Muirhead and Phillip Chandler, charged with burning the Bush & Co. mill at South Arm on the night of January 2nd, 1902.

For months, Bush & Co. have had a detective investigating the case and acting on the theory the mill was burned to secure the insurance, they had worked up a strong case of circumstantial evidence against the accused and, their case being supported by a score or more of affidavits, Prosecutor Nicholas was compelled to cause an examination to be made.

The examination was conducted before Justice Clement and was held in the Town Hall, commencing at 1:00 p. m., Monday, March 23rd. Pros. Atty. Nicholas appeared for the people and Messrs. North of Pontiac and Weter of Mancelona for the accused.

Alexander Bush, the complaining witness, was first to be examined and testified that at the time of the fire the title to the property destroyed was vested in Peter Muirhead and that the property was insured for $10,000 and the insurance assigned to Muirhead.

G. C. Kelly, Ellsworth liveryman, swore that on the afternoon of Jan. 2, 1902, he let a rig to a stranger who arrived on the train from the south. The rig started toward East Jordan and was returned next morning in good condition. He identified the stranger as Robert Muirhead.

John Tremain, next witness, testified to the rig passing his place in the evening and again in the morning but could not identify the occupants.

John Proctor told of being at Dan Reed's road house on the night of the fire. There were three strangers there, one of whom he thought he recognized as Robert Muirhead but the description he gave of the man did not tally with that given by Kelly.

Nettie Wilson, inmate of the road house, remembered the three strangers but would not positively identify the man.

Cyrus P. Toby swore to going out to Reed's place that evening, but he also swore to so many contradictory things that it made the stenographer's head swim, putting it all down.

No evidence whatever appearing against Chandler, Mr. Nicholas asked that he be released from custody.

S. A. Bush was the last witness examined and before the cross exam-revue to select a representative to enter the national revue during the 22nd National 4-H Club Congress. The State winner will receive an all-expense trip to the Congress from a Chicago firm, which provides all awards in this activity. National winners will be chosen from state entrants.

FIVE WIN COUNTY 4-H VICTORY GARDEN AWARDS

Outstanding achievements in one of the most important projects in this year's 4-H Club program — Victory Gardens — have won special recognition for five clubsters in this county, Extension Agent Walter G. Kirkpatrick announced today. The five county winners are:

Donald Holmes, Alba; Keith Kelly, Allen Moore, Bellaire; Clyde Troyer, Mancelona; and Doris VanDeventer of East Jordan.

Each will receive a gold-filled medal. One of the five will be named to compete for State honors, in which four representatives of the blue award group will receive a $25 U. S. War Savings Bond.

Ninety-nine clubsters in Antrim County participated in the 4-H Victory Garden competition.

ination was finished, Mr. Nicholas threw up the case and moved that the prisoner be honorably discharged.

The examination lasted from Monday to Thursday afternoon and its sessions were attended by from 300 to 500 men.

Mr. Bush has spent hundreds of dollars in developing the case and he has our sympathy in that he has been duped by untrustworthy witnesses.

Supplementary Sweetening

Sugar rationing may start some amateurs to collecting sap for boiling down to maple syrup this spring, and farmers with well kept sugar bushes, sap buckets, collecting kettles and boiling pans are preparing to make the most of the available supply. They are encouraged by the high wartime ceiling price, but obtaining suitable containers is a problem. Novices are advised not to expect too high returns. Ordinarily it takes 40 gallons of sap to make a gallon of syrup, even more boiling to make sugar.

Are you, Mr. Taxpayer, getting your money's worth from the dollars returned by the State of Michigan to Charlevoix and Antrim county for enforcement of liquor laws?

Here are some interesting facts:
1. Municipalities and townships in Charlevoix county received the sum of $4,974.49 (in Antrim county it was $2,635.00) last year from the State of Michigan for the purpose of enforcing liquor laws within the county. For the 83 counties the allocations totaled $2,420,889.52.

The above allocations to Charlevoix and Antrim county represented 85 per cent of all license fees paid by persons or firms for the privilege of selling alcoholic beverages by the bottle, or by the glass, or possibly both, depending upon the wish of the local public.

3. If the licensed establishment is within a town, 85 per cent of its fee is returned to the municipality to help pay the salary of the village marshal, the local police and otherwise to maintain the law enforcement service.

4. If the licensed establishment is outside of a town, this percentage is returned to the township board — also for the same purpose.

One weakness in the above system whereby local towns and townships derive a substantial revenue from the sale of liquor, is the fact — whether you like it or not — that in some instances this revenue has become almost a "vested right" in the minds of local officials for use in any way they see fit.

We know of instances in Michigan where a town government will order its police officers to stay out of licensed places even for purpose of inspections, and yet gladly receive the allocation of license fees for purpose of law enforcement!

We're not arguing the point. But in the state law the burden of enforcement of the law (at least 85 per cent of it) is placed squarely upon local officials.

Let's look at the language: "The sheriff of the several counties and their deputies and the village marshal, constables, officers or members of the village or city police, and members of the department of state police, and inspectors of the state commission, are hereby empowered and it is hereby made their duty to see that the provisions of this act and the rules and regulations made or authorized by said commission are enforced within their respective jurisdictions."

Nothing vague about that. Furthermore, failure to enforce the law or even "wilful neglect" makes the official subject to a fine not to exceed $500 or a jail sentence not more than 90 days, or both.

This penalty is imposed by the state legislature, and the section of the law begins with these words: "The people of the State of Michigan enact".

Another weakness in the present system is the fact that while the sheriff is held responsible, he derives no part of the state's law enforcement funds. And that goes also for the prosecuting attorney.

Glenn Dunn, chairman of the state commission by appointment of Governor Harry F. Kelly, informs us that he personally favors a change in the law whereby 35 per cent of local license revenues would be returned to the county government and earmarked by the county treasurer for use by the sheriff and prosecuting attorney for the SPECIFIC purpose of enforcing liquor laws.

A three-man committee, comprising the prosecutor, sheriff and the chairman of the finance committee of the county board for supervisors, would be given power to allocate the 35 per cent fund and see that it was expended efficiently.

In many counties this 35 per cent fund (figure it out yourself from your county's total share) would make possible the employment of special deputies and an assistant prosecutor whose main duties would be to keep conditions clean in the rural roadside taverns and hot-spots.

Take Marquette county as an example. The county has 88 taverns or places where alcoholic beverages are consumed.

Last year the county received $29,918. Under Mr. Dunn's plan the county treasurer would earmark $12,318 to finance the costs of special deputies and an assistant prosecutor. Transcripts of all cases would be sent to Lansing.

Maybe this plan isn't the best in the world. But it does possess obvious merit of having law enforcement by local officials who should know local conditions. If you leave the job to the state, then you must expect a hit-and-miss kind of law enforcement.

State inspectors make a flying visit, often catch the more decent operators in an occasional violation, and then the citizenry howls about the results.

Dancing at rural taverns should be abolished outright, at least in the judgment of state inspectors. Minors are attracted to these places of entertainment. Violations occur. But here again the home community has a social obligation.

As one state official put it, "If small towns would assume some responsibility for providing recreation for their young people, they would have less difficulty on this score. Sturgis has a night club for high school youngsters run by a creamery. We never have trouble there. In some towns the Legion post opens its hall several nights a week to young people."

Do you agree with him? And if so, what is your town doing about it?

Penalties are also an important factor in law enforcement. If penalties are stiff, licensees are apt to be more careful. The new state commission, headed by Chairman Dunn, is imposing heavier penalties than did the former commission, and it is interesting to note that the former commission got progressively tougher the longer it stayed in office. Yes, the trend is definitely toward stiffer penalties.

This liquor problem is as old as the hills. We have only touched upon a few aspects of it. We might sum up our observations as follows, and if you disagree, your local newspaper will gladly print your views:

Enforcement of liquor laws is chiefly a home rule responsibility. By-the-glass licensees MUST get approval of township, village or city boards before the state will issue a license, and the state MUST revoke any license if the local board requests such action.

State control of the liquor business is to be preferred to a return to bootlegging, speakeasies, Al Capone gangsterism and other evils. In other words, we concur with majority opinion. Our home town is bone dry. We prefer that, also.

But state control means just that — CONTROL. And here we get right back to you Mr. Taxpayer. Are you getting your money's worth?

This season some trappers may develop a sideline in beaver meat, little used in recent years though much esteemed by early residents of the state.

W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY SO FAR: Ann Lee and Cole Cody, beneficiaries under two identical wills of Old Bill Cole, sought to discover who had fired the fatal bullet at Old Bill. Suspicion centered around Rance Waldron, who was living at the ranch when Ann and Cody arrived. Doc Joe and the Judge, commissioned by Old Bill to carry out his last wishes, were returning to town from the ranch (each with a will for safekeeping) when they were held up by a masked bandit whom they recognized as Rance Waldron. To divert suspicion Rance then killed his accomplice, Tom Gough. Cal Roundtree, foreman of the ranch, learned meanwhile that Doc Joe still lived.
Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER XVII

Doc Joe pulled up the chair close to the bed and spoke softly, throbbing his voice down to a near-whisper.
"For one thing, I ain't dead now, never was and don't intend to be for a spell yet," he said. "Get that in your head, Cal. Don't go thinking ghosts."

"You don't look anything like what I might suppose a ghost would look," Cal said curtly. "Now, let's get after this: What in the name of blazes you been playing dead for?"

"For a spell, I had to," said Doc Joe. "If I hadn't, Rance Waldron would have killed me sure, like he did the Judge and Tom Gough. He nicked me side of the head." He put his finger gingerly to a bit of taped gauze over his temple. "It sort of dazed me. I lay on my side and saw him step over to the Judge. He shot the Judge between the horns before I could wiggle a finger. Then he looked at me. Maybe I sort of fainted a minute; I don't quite know or rec'lect. I was scared enough to faint anyhow. He came back dragging Tom Gough. He shot Gough twice and rode away. I tried to get up. I got dizzy and sure did faint for good. When I woke up and the boys hauled us into town, I was out cold. They thought I was dead. Me, I got to thinking. I let 'em keep on thinking so. Nobody knows but Doc Evans; you and him, now, Cal. And you're both going to keep your mouths shut until I give the word."

"Rance Waldron is downstairs right now," said Cal, stubborn and eager. "He killed the Judge, you says. And you saw him? And it's almost a dead certainty that either him or his hired hand, Tom Gough, potted old Early Bill!"

"Shut up and sit down and keep your shirt tail tucked in! Now, listen. The Judge and me, we had those two wills that old jackass Bill Cole drew up. And Mr. Rance Waldron's got 'em now."

And now Cal Roundtree, telling this to Cole Cody as the two jogged along, came to a halt. Then he began to swear explosively. And in the end, grown quiet after his struggle with himself, he muttered disgustedly.

"Cody, I don't know which end I'm standing on. There's something I know that I got to keep under my hat, like I been doing; I almost blew my top off and let the cat jump with old Doc Joe; I'm near doing the same thing with you."

"Why not, Cal?" said Cody quietly. "You and I haven't known each other all summer, but—what's on your mind, old timer?"

"No," Cal growled. "Let me be. Let me go on now and tell you the rest that I can; what old Doc Joe has got in his mind. He says Rance Waldron is smart like a whole herd of foxes; he says, no, Waldron won't destroy those wills right off; he says Waldron will play safe, and hide 'em darn good, where the devil himself can't find 'em, until he sees for sure which way the wind blows. What he says, is this: Waldron will try to gobble the King Cole Ranch and anything else left hanging. If he makes a go of it, he'll burn the papers. If there's any slip-up along the trail, well then, with the two wills in his war bag, he can dicker."

After a long while Cody asked, "What does Doc Joe plan? How long is he going to play dead?"

That started Cal Roundtree off again. But he got himself in hand ultimately and explained some part of Doc Joe's plan.

"Late tonight the other doc, Parke Evans, will find a paper in Doc's room, signed by Doc Joe himself, dated a couple of years ago, saying when he's dead he yearns to be packed up and shipped back to his boyhood's home which is in dear old Tennessee!" Cal spat far into space. "So Doc Evans will pack him in a box, and haul him off with him tomorrow, going back to Rim Rock, and to the railroad at Christmas Forks. They'll ship some sort of a bundle and Doc Joe will hide out for a spell with Doc Evans. Later he'll get a chance to creep back this-away by the dark of the moon. Meantime we're to watch and wait for Rance Waldron to be making his play."

Arrived at the ranch they unsaddled, cared for their horses and said good-night. Cal to turn in at the bunk house and no doubt tilt his bottle to a long gurgle, Cole Cody hastening up the slope to the ranch house.

In the starlit patio he came upon Porfirio lounging on a bench, waiting for him. Porfirio's glowing cigarette described a quick, small arc in the gloom as Porfirio came to his feet.

"I'll see you in the morning, Porfirio—"

"But wait!" exclaimed Porfirio excitedly.

"What the deuce is it?" muttered Cody, stooping to see better. "Not a dead cat, is it? Somebody's old black tom—A hat!"

Cody led the way into the living room, while he was lighting a lamp. Porfirio explained how his persistence had brought him to his discovery. From the place where the man had hidden when he shot Early Bill, Porfirio on horseback had ridden a score of times, following each time a slightly different path, thinking, Now if it was me, and I was riding like the wind, I'd go this way; thinking, And I would get rid of that hat my pronto. And he had looked at all the possible hiding places, had looked even for signs of a small hot fire. And then at last his keen eyes had seen a stick, a small dead pine limb, its end sticking out from under a sizable boulder!

Aha! He had it! For how could a stick get itself shoved under a rock like that? If a man had moved that rock now, and had been in a hurry setting it back, and in a hurry to ride on, he might with a careless boot have kicked that stick where it got caught under the stone! Porfirio sweated over the boulder, moving it—and found the hat.

Yes, there was a bullet hole drilled through it. There was more. There was everything; Cole Cody could only regret that its message from violating Cal's confidence, just as it had been a man's job for Cal to keep from blurting out something else he knew, something he felt bound to keep to himself.

Little by little, out of these drifting silences, they fell to talking briefly and sketchily about each other, about themselves.

They laughed a little together, and came closer each other than ever before, when they started to speak at the same instant and with the same thought:

"Why, your father and mine, too, must have been great friends!"

Cody made himself another cigarette and, instead of smoking it or even remembering that he had made it to smoke, sat rolling and rolling it with his lean, strong fingers. He said without looking up, "I could almost be glad—in a way, I would be glad if it wasn't that Rance Waldron might come to profit by it—that those two wills are, anyhow for the present and maybe for good, out of the picture. All we've done, maybe all we've ever do, is fight like cat and dog over the darned place! Maybe now—well, maybe we can get along without fighting! It might be fun for a change, Ann Lee?"

"I'm a beast most of the time, I'm afraid," she said contritely. "And I try so hard not to be! Honestly, Bill Cole Cody, I try terribly hard."

He put his hand on hers; she permitted the contact for a long moment, then gently slid her fingers out from under his and, palm upward, let them curl again on her lap.

"I guess I shouldn't have spanked you—so hard, anyhow!"

"I deserved every bit of it—and harder!" But he saw that the hot color in her cheeks now was not altogether the affair of the fire.

"And I guess I oughtn't to have kissed you on the stage—the way I did!"

"Let's not quarrel any more, ever," she said hurriedly. She lifted her eyes to his. "We have been friends, in a way, haven't we? We do like each other, even after all that's happened; I know we do."

He said soberly, "You're being mighty sweet, Ann Lee. I never knew a girl like you!"

"I love fireplaces! One like this; look how the coals are forming now! Do you like to find pictures in them? Of course, everybody does. The fireplace is one of the things that makes me love this room." She stirred slightly and sighed; she moved her arms, crossing them, her hands on her shoulders, giving herself a little hug; she said, "Dear old Early Bill, he did try, didn't he? Tried so hard to 'have him his fun' and at the same time to do something splendid for you and me, for his old friends' son and daughter. Well, I've a tiny fireplace all my own at home, and when I go back to teaching—"

"Ann! What are you talking about? You haven't forgotten, have you, the money he left for us in the bank, fifty-fifty? We know that Buck-tooth Jenkins got that ten thousand into the pot; you heard the Judge say there was a whole lot more! And you talking about teaching!"

"Honestly, cross my heart and hope to die," she exclaimed, "I had forgotten all about that part of it! Why, there are thousands and thousands there, all yours and mine!"

Aunt Jenifer cleared her throat considerably in the far, dim end of the long room.

"Mind if I come in, you two?" she asked, and came straight ahead. "I'm close to getting the jim-jams, all alone in my room. And I got to thinking about a pot of coffee and—you two fighting again?"

Cody gave her his chair, squatted on the corner of the hearth and started a fresh cigarette. Ann Lee began to laugh.

And thus began on the King Cole Ranch a short period of time into which entered many a pleasant moment, with moments of quiet peace, moments of spontaneous happiness, fitting all too swiftly because always the shadow came back, moments when Ann Lee surprised a look in Bill Cole Cody's which he did not know was there, which no other girl had ever put there; and times when he, trying to read what lay in her mind, what she felt deep down in her heart even, dreamed his dreams.

They rode together hours on end, memorizing the lovely details of the vast King Cole Ranch. Once Ann Lee, as they came to the crest of a rise of land from which they could look for miles across a glory of undulating panorama, exclaimed breathlessly, "Oh, Cole! If this really could be ours!" And he repeated within himself, not looking at her but into the furthest blue distance, his jaw hard and his eyes narrowed, "Ours!"

And his thoughts switched swiftly, as so often they did, to the vanished Rance Waldron. For since that night in Bald Eagle, none at the ranch had seen or heard of him. Rance Waldron had simply faded out of the picture, leaving no inkling of where he had gone or why or for how long.

And so the days drifted by, with summer ripening, and Cole Cody and Ann Lee with Aunt Jenifer lingered on.

He put his hands on hers; she permitted the contact for a long moment.

came too late. In the sweat band were the initials, tooled through the leather, "T.G."

"Tom Gough, that's who it was, Porfirio," he said as he tossed the hat, now of no interest, to the table. "But Rance Waldron—Look, Porfirio, Tom Gough is dead already. He's the stick-up gent that fought it out with the Judge and Doc Joe."

Porfirio began cursing softly in the tongue of the south. He started to the door; he said good night sullenly—Then of a sudden he whirled and cried out "Dead, the cabrone! And so he gets away from me like that, does he, Don Codito?" He laughed, and it was an evil sound when Porfirio Lopez laughed that way.

Cody, not yet of any mind for bed and sleep, started a quick blaze in the fireplace and dragged a big comfortable chair in front of it. Sunk deep into Early Bill's pet chair, rolling what he thought was to be a good night cigarette, he did not hear a door open and close softly, nor did he hear light oncoming steps. What he heard first was a subdued voice saying,

"Hello, Cole Cody. Mind if I join you and the fire a minute? I can't sleep—can you?"

He rose and drew up a companion chair; the young firelight, catching at a stick of pitch-pine, flared up and shone brightly on his face and little Ann Lee's as they stood a moment looking seriously at each other; it shone in their eyes and made them bright.

"Ann Lee," he said after a while. "What is it, Cole?" she asked. Both their voices were quiet, hers hushed.

"You realize by this time, don't you, that there's not a chance in the world of either you or me ever coming to own any part of the King Cole Ranch?"

"Yes." She spoke very simply, not seeming or sounding in the least concerned; scarcely interested. He heard her long, quivering sigh before she added, "Maybe it's funny, but I don't seem to care any more. After what has just happened—those two dear old men—"

Darn your hide, Doc Joe! It was hard for Bill Cole Cody to keep

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

BY HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for March 21

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

OUR LORD'S INTERCESSORY PRAYER

LESSON TEXT—John 17:1-8, 18-26.
GOLDEN TEXT—"Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are."—John 17:11.

There are some times and places so sacred that one is instinctively hushed into reverent devotion. When Christ prayed in holy intercession (as recorded in John 17) on the night before His suffering His disciples must have been lifted into the very presence of the Eternal One. It was a holy experience.

He prayed for Himself, but even more did He pray for His believing followers. To know that someone is praying for us is indeed an anchor in a time of storm, a strong help in the hour of conflict or of service for Christ.

But to know that the Master prayed for you and me—that is enough to send us, like the disciples of old, out to face an unbelieving world in His conquering name. He prayed for Himself—and He prayed for me!

I. He Prayed for Himself (vv. 1-8).
He looked up and said: "Father," and then He was ready to pray. So close was He to God that there was just this simple recognition of their communion. In Christ are we not as close as He?

What did Jesus ask for Himself? At first thought it seems a little unusual that He asked

1. For Recognition of His Divine Glory (vv. 1-5).

Why would He who had just given the disciples an example of and an admonition to humility desire to have His glory manifested? Be sure it was not a matter of selfish pride. He had finished His work (for He counted redemption as complete throughout His prayer), and now the glory which He laid down when He came to earth (Phil. 2:6-8) was to be resumed.

He wants man to see Him now not only as the compassionate Son of man, but the glorious Son of God, able to save. It is right that the glory of Christ should be magnified and recognized by the whole creation. He is worthy!

2. For the Manifestation of His Grace (vv. 6-8).

The Father had given Christ the heart devotion of those who believed in Him. Note that their faith rested on the name of God (v. 6), and upon His Word which had come to them and to us through Christ.

He recognized their position and standing in Him and established it before God and man. He then prayed for them (read vv. 9-17) that they might be kept in an evil world as a testimony to the grace and power of God in the human heart.

This leads to His intercession for all believers.

II. He Prayed for All Believers (vv. 18-26).

Christians are not simply the avowed adherents to a particular form of belief, they are "sent" ones. As the Father sent Him into the world, "even so send I them into the world," said Christ.

Christ has gone to be with the Father, but He has left those who believe in Him as His witnesses, His representatives. For this they need holiness. He prayed:

1. For Their Consecration (vv. 18, 19).

For their sakes He consecrated Himself. Surely if He needed it, we do far more. It is not only His will for us, but His prayer. How wonderfully that prayer was answered we see as we look back over the intervening 19 centuries, from His immediate disciples on through the martyrs, the missionary pioneers of all ages, the faithful preachers and teachers of the gospel, yes and "livers" of the gospel too. He knew, He prayed, God answered. Are you in that blessed host of consecrated believers?

2. For Their Unity and Glory (vv. 20-26).

There is a refreshing simplicity about the Christian faith which is utterly different from all the complications which man has prepared and superimposed upon it. Essentially it is a matter of God having sent His Son into the world to be the Redeemer of men. He and the Father are one, He and His followers are one, and so we are all one. We who today believe are included (read vv. 20-23).

This is an inward unity of the Spirit, not an outward union of organizations. The answer to our difficulty is not the dissolution of denominations (although there do seem to be far too many subdivisions, too), but the uniting of all groups in a oneness of love and devotion to Christ, and a united emphasis on the gospel.

There is something more here. This unity puts Christ's followers into the place where His glory may be revealed in and upon them. It is His prayer that we should behold in our Saviour the glory which God had given Him because He loved Him before the foundation of the world.

Make Slip Covers for That Unusual Chair

THIS cover was a twofold conservation measure in the most literal sense. Its purpose was not to cover shabby upholstery but to protect handsome damask from everyday wear and tear. If you have an especially difficult chair to cover, you will save time by fitting a muslin pattern first. Then you can snip until it fits perfectly around arms and other supports and, if you make a mistake in the pattern just stitch a patch over it and start over again. Before removing the pattern from the chair, plan the openings so that they will lap neatly and be sure they are long enough. In the finished cover either bindings or facings may be used for irregular edges.

Household Hints

Do not mix new milk with old, except when it is to be used immediately.

Rub over the inside of a cushion with hard soap before you fill it. Then the points of the feathers will not come through.

Grease can be removed from an iron by rubbing it with corn meal.

It will help keep your shoes if you put them on shoe trees or stuff the toes with paper when they are not being worn. Always wipe them dry of moisture and dirt after exposure.

Used brooms can be made stiff and clean by dipping them in a pail of boiling soda water, and drying them in the sun. If the broom is sprayed or sprinkled occasionally with a little kerosene, it gathers the dust much better.

Here's a hint for the workshop: In filing a saw, first smoke the teeth with a lighted candle. This will make it easy to see the fresh filing and to hold the file at the right angle for the job.

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

FIRST-AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger B. Whitman

Roger B. Whitman—WNU Features.

ENAMELED TO NATURAL FINISH

Question: The house we bought has white enameled woodwork in the living room and dining room. How can I restore it to its natural finish?

Answer: You can take off the present finish with a commercial varnish and paint remover. Be careful to clean off all traces of the remover with benzene afterward. Both liquids are inflammable. Be careful of fire and have plenty of ventilation. Or you can use a hot solution of trisodium phosphate, three pounds to the gallon of water. This will soften the old finish so that you can scrape and wipe it off. Rinse thoroughly and allow to dry. You then can refinish with clear varnish, or whatever you wish. When using a paint remover, be sure to clean it all off after removing the paint; if any trace is left, it will continue to soften the new finish.

Rust Spot on Tile Floor

Question: I kept a steel cabinet in my bathroom for quite a while. When I moved it to another room I found it had left a large rust spot on the tile floor. Scrubbing with scouring cleanser does not remove it. What should I use?

Answer: Dissolve one part sodium citrate in six parts of water, and add six parts of commercial glycerine. Mix a portion of this with enough powdered whiting, hydrated lime or other absorbing powder, to form a paste, and spread on the stain in a thick coat. When it is dry, replace with fresh paste or moisten with the remaining liquid. A week or more may be required for the complete removal of the stain.

Covered Radiators

Question: I have metal covers on all the radiators; these are on top, but not the front and back. Does this lose much heat? I feel that the covers, besides keeping curtains cleaner, may divert the heat closer to the floors where our children play. We do not need the upper three or four feet in the room.

Answer: Heated air rises; therefore, in heating a room the warm air builds up from the ceiling down. A cover of any type on a radiator naturally would have a tendency to cut down the efficiency. The kind of cover you are now using does not reduce the heating efficiency of the radiator as much as a complete enclosure.

Sticky Enamel

Question: Recently we removed the finish from a walnut table with paint remover, then refinished with two coats of white enamel. Newspaper print and lint from clothes stick to the top. We have waxed it, but it still remains sticky. Is there any remedy?

Answer: I make the guess that after removing the old finish you forgot to clean off the paint remover, which still is active in softening the new finish. You had better start over again by taking off all the finish; but this time clean off the paint remover with benzene (being extremely careful of fire). Sandpaper, if necessary, and refinish.

Shutting Off Radiators

Question: I have a hot-water heating system. Would I save on fuel and not interfere with the flow of water—if I shut off the third-floor radiator and possibly one or two on the second floor? Would it be better to remove the radiators entirely?

Answer: You should disconnect each radiator and plug the branch or pipe at some place below the unheated space to keep it from freezing. In the average hot-water heating system, the cutting off of a radiator should not interfere with the operation of the rest of the radiators and will effect a saving of fuel.

Freshening Up Leather Chairs

Question: What can be done with a maroon leather office seat that fades when sat upon during warm weather? The color comes off also.

Answer: Begin by washing the leather (without using much water) with saddle soap, which can be had at a leather goods store. Rinse well and allow to dry. Then paint with good quality enamel, just as it comes in the can, without thinning.

Heel Marks

Question: Could you tell me how to get rubber heel marks off my polished hardwood floor?

Answer: Wipe with turpentine and fine steel wool. If this does not remove the marks, put a little scratchless cleaning powder on a damp cloth and rub lightly. Then wipe with a clean, damp cloth and re-wax the spot.

Today's Cake Fixings Are Simple, Food Saving (See Recipes Below)

Bake Your Own!

Those of you who have chosen homemaking as a career can set aside a half day for baking your own goodies right in your own oven. There are few things nicer than coming into a kitchen full of busy bustling, testing the cake, plumping fat loaves of bread on racks to cool, or packing cookies in fresh wax paper for pantry shelves—for those fine boys in the service!

When sugar rationing first came into the picture, most of us feared that it would not allow enough for home baking needs, but we have found ways to make sugar stretch. Or, perhaps we should say, corn syrups and honey to make baking possible.

With eggs up in price and fats becoming scarce, we have changed our recipes to fill these needs, too! Today's recipes may not call for the quantity of materials that yesterday's did, but they can make just as tempting a product.

*Hot Water Sponge Cake. (Makes 2 8-inch layers)

- 1 cup sifted cake flour
- 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon lemon juice
- 6 tablespoons hot water

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Beat eggs until thick and fluffy, about 10 minutes. Add sugar gradually, beating constantly until thick enough to hold a soft peak. Beat in lemon juice, add hot water, and beat until thick after each addition. Fold in flour in small amounts. Bake in ungreased tube pan or lightly greased layer-cake pans in a moderate (350-degree) oven. A tube cake takes 45 minutes to bake, layer cakes 25 to 30 minutes.

Ever tried a fragrant gingerbread baked in a ring? The slices can be fairly thin and the cake will really go far! Or, you can fill the center with apple sauce and serve as a dessert!

Gingerbread Ring.

- 1 cup molasses
- 1 cup sour milk
- 2 1/4 cups sifted flour
- 1 3/4 teaspoons baking soda
- 2 teaspoons ginger
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 egg, well beaten
- 1/2 cup melted shortening

Mix milk and molasses. Sift dry ingredients. Add to milk and molasses, then mix in egg and shortening and beat until smooth and

Lynn Says:

Tie a String Around Your Finger: The technique's different when you do your own vegetables—and you must keep these pointers on tap if you would get the most out of them: Peel potatoes thinly—their mineral treasures are hidden right under that skin. Use green vegetables as soon as possible after buying. They lose quantities of their vitamin C just sitting and being exposed to air. Add dressing immediately to vegetables and fruits after cutting them. The coating prevents some vitamin loss. Put away the soda box when cooking green vegetables. It's alkaline and destroys vitamins. Shell peas or lima beans only just before using. Wash leafy greens just before cooking. The percentage of vitamin loss will be lessened.

Start cooking frozen foods before thawing. It is believed that less vitamin C is destroyed by that method.

SPEECH DEFECTS

A pupil at public school was a member of a special group preparing for scholarships. This class, of which I was a member, remained in the classroom until 5 p. m. and attended Saturday morning 9 to 12. When the results were announced this girl stood first despite the fact that she stammered so badly that she was unable to read in front of the class. As she was very brilliant I was not surprised at her beating the rest of us, but I figured she would lose so many marks in her reading that some of us might overtake her. The explanation was that when she took her reading examination she read before the teacher only and read clearly and distinctly without stammering in the slightest.

Despite the fact that school teachers knew this fact that stammerers did not stammer amid home or familiar surroundings it is only within recent years that the general public and stammerers themselves are learning that while some speech defects are due to some disturbance of the structures that control speech, most cases of stammering are due to nervousness and self-consciousness.

I am writing about stammering at this time as I have at hand a handbook of the Chicago Speech Correction society. The society was organized by a group of speech correctionists in the Chicago area, its purposes and qualifications being in accordance with the standards and ethical codes of the American Speech Correction association. The purposes of the society are to foster ethical principles and practices in the field of speech correction. To this end the qualifications demanded for membership are very high.

"The speech correctionist or therapist is one whose technical training has been such as to enable him to conduct the examination, make the diagnosis (find the cause of the defect) and direct re-education of (1) individuals whose voice or speech problems call unfavorable and embarrassing attention to themselves and constitute an educational, social, or business handicap; and (2) individuals who suffer from voice or speech conditions that are abnormal to such a degree that they are able to converse with others to a very limited extent."

My thought is that as the stammerer or a sufferer with other speech defects can now be helped, he should look well to the qualifications of the speech correctionist he consults.

Why Overweights Dislike Exercise

It is estimated that about nine of every ten cases of overweight are due directly to overeating, another 5 per cent to inactivity of certain glands, and the other 5 per cent to overeating combined with lack of gland activity. This means that 95 of every 100 overweights should follow a reducing diet containing an insufficient number of calories, the extra calories really needed to do the body's work being made up from the excess fat in and on the body.

What about exercise? If overweights realized the benefits derived from exercise, they would be more willing to take it regularly. All that most of them find is that exercise increases their appetite and so little or no weight is lost.

Why do overweights so greatly dislike exercise? Exercise means effort and there is less than the normal desire for effort in overweights. Every movement they make—walking, jogging, bending—means the lifting or carrying of much more weight than for one of normal weight. So, rather than use this severe effort, they are willing to do without some of their daily intake of food. They simply choose the lesser of two evils.

If, however, they are willing to take the exercise instead of doing without the food, they will not only use up the excess fat and so bring their figure back or nearly back to normal, but will get rid of their dislike for exercise and be more willing to take it regularly. As they grow lighter and more "limber," they may actually develop a desire for exercise.

Remember, exercise is useful in reducing weight before middle age. After middle age, cutting down on food is the safest method.

Doomed Dogs Expensive To Reprieve in England

In England, the owner of a dog that has been condemned to death pays a daily fine of one pound or about $4 as long as he refuses to have the animal destroyed, says Collier's. In one recent case, a family has so far paid $2,300 to keep their dog Rowley alive.

In another case, a man has paid $500 to keep Bobbie, most of this money having been raised by a Bobbie Club, consisting of neighborhood children who organized themselves specifically for this purpose.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Akron, Ohio had its beginning as the WORLD'S RUBBER MANUFACTURING CAPITAL in 1870 when its first rubber plant was started by Dr. B. F. Goodrich.

The switching of Dakar, French West Africa, to the side of the United Nations meant the establishment for the Allies of an important port for the shipment of crude rubber, among other important war essentials.

Atabrine, the chemist's answer to the war time shortage of quinine, is serving to step up the collection of rubber in the malaria-infested jungles of Brazil. Here is a case of a synthetic product being used to stimulate the gathering of a natural product that is rapidly being replaced by synthetics in the United States.

Ordinary tires are now cured in molds at factories in 40 to 50 minutes. Before organic accelerators were developed by B. F. Goodrich it took about five hours to vulcanize a tire.

Reveille on the Jordan

Just a little message to the boys in the service from the folks back home. Sponsored by the East Jordan Community Service Club.

ED REULING — EDITOR

Dear Fellows:

As reports come in from those of you who are overseas I'm starting to wonder if we are doing as good a job of getting the home town news to you as we could. A good many have reported receiving a few papers but they do not seem to be getting through very fast, and, a lot of them don't get through at all. Every Friday this paper is wrapped individually and mailed to everyone of you. I wouldn't know for sure—but judging by my mail, I guess that not more than 10 percent of the papers mailed to our overseas boys, finally reach their destination. We realize that Uncle Sam has a terrific job on his hands in getting this news to you fellows that are a lot more important than home town papers and we surely do not wish to be misunderstood as criticizing him in any way. As a matter of fact I think that getting even 10 percent of the papers that are mailed to you is something just short of a miracle. As near as I can figure out there are two ways we could go about it to do a little better job of getting the news to you. They are: First: We could keep on wrapping the papers as we have but, place a 3c stamp on all overseas mail and thus possibly insure a little speedier handling—or Second: We could possibly arrange to print one page (both sides) with this column and other home town news on it, fold it and mail it in regular three cent envelopes. Just offhand I kind of favor plan No. 2, but, am not, as this is being written, sure that it could be worked out. According to my records 41 papers go c/o postmaster New York, 31 c/o postmaster San Francisco and 6 scattered. As more of you keep shoving off for over there that number will be considerably increased. We would, of course, keep on mailing the paper in the same old way to those of you who are still on this side.

What I would like to have you fellows do is kind of scout around and see if from your CO or someone else you can find out the best means of assuring the paper of reaching you when you go across—then—drop me a line and let me know which plan you favor. All the folks back home want to do is to do the very best job of being of service to all of you that they can. Let's hear from you as to how we can do it.

Your faithful correspondent and friend, Ed Reuling

HOME TOWN CHATTER

The talk of the town, and rightly so, is the two wins our high school basketball team have earned (and I really earned) in the Petoskey Tournament. They topped Boyne City in what you fellows in the service would call a really x "rugged" game last Friday night 26 to 25 and then came back the following night to knock Harbor Springs off 25 to 24 in as exciting a finish as you have ever seen. I expect the high school reporters can do a much better job of reporting the games to you than I could so I'm going to let them do it—although—they won't get any more pleasure out of it than I would if I were to do it. Anyhow it reminds me of the good old days when Abe got his team of 1940 to the finals in the State Tournament at East Lansing. That team as I remember it now had Jack Isaman, Chris Bulow, Smokey Antoine, Frank Crowell and Pee Wee Gee for it's regulars and Harold Hayner and Augie Woodcock, among others for subs. At least four of those guys are now fighting for Uncle Sam—I'm not sure about Harold Hayner but think he is too. I well remember how just before game time Jack came down with a healthy belly ache and before the night was over he was minus his appendix. I don't suppose you remember too much about that wild ride we took to the hospital, Jack, but I'll bet Charley Dennis who was holding you can still get a thrill out of yours truly running all those stop lights to get you there. Them were the good old days, boys, and from present signs, these are too.

When I wrote last week's copy I didn't know that Eugene Umlor's brother, Carl, was expected home. I learned it more or less to my sorrow last Tuesday night. Carl had been trying to catch up with me and finally did around 6 p. m. when I was doing a bit of shoveling up in front of the house. For my youngsters a soldier boy stopping in front to talk to their Daddy was such an exciting event that my youngest, Todd, pushed Eddie (age 5), through the large front window. No casualties but glass 'aint hay. Anyhow, Carl, I'm sure glad you stopped the broken window to the contrary notwithstanding. My memory isn't too good, but, as I recall it now, it's the first time that two brothers in the service, have been able to get home together. Here's luck to you as you go back to your work with a medical detachment at Hunter Field, Savannah. If you get lonesome and want to chat with someone from the old home town you might look up Lt. Elizabeth Sidebotham White in room 202 of the Savannah Post Office Bldg. I'm sure she would be mighty pleased to see you.

For a few days last week it looked like we might get a break in the weather. As this is being written it started to snow again. Will it ever stop? A lot of us are getting slightly bored doing so much shoveling.

How about those tall tales you fellows were going to send in? Also with over 300 of you now on the mailing list it seems like my mail ought to be increasing. Instead it's been kind of falling off of late. It sure would be a help to me if you fellows would write. About all I try to do is act as sort of a clearing house of information for all of you. I can't fire the ammunition unless you get it up to the front line, fellows.

NEWS FROM THE FRONT

Flash from Camp Custer—Johnny Skrocki post cards in to say he's in—and—would rather have a chicken on his knee than an eagle on his shoulder. When you get to be a Col. instead of a Pvt., Johnny, we are going to ask you again what your ideas are... Fred Haney Bruce Robinson & Jerald Davis sure took themselves a long hop from Custer to Fort Lewis, Wash., We haven't heard from them but know they are there. Why don't you tell us yourself, boys... Speaking of Freds—Freddie Bechtold was No. 2 from the top in his outfit and has made expert with the rifle. That's good shooting, Fred, and that extra $5 in pay you will get because you are an expert 'aint hay either. Incidentally your Mom is chewing her finger nails these days. She says "why in blazes do I have to step out of the house for just a minute just as my boy calls up from California to talk, and only his Dad was there on one end of the twoway 'phone to answer?" Sorry, Fred, you missed talking with Mom when you called but Pop sure got an awful bang out of hearing of your progress (even though he will pay the collect charge of six odd bucks) Here's luck to you as you emerge out of boot camp and get a taste of real marine life on the desert... Wonder if Stub Bowman is going to make it home this month. The last I heard Stub had been out on one of those week-end brawls (that's what his Mom calls it) but actually it's some sort of a bivouac. Anyhow Stub is being persuaded to take a try at OCS. Personally, Sgt. Bowman, I think you would make one (censored) good officer. If you get a crack at being one—don't miss it, incidentally, Stub, congratulations on the promotion to Staff Sgt... Teddy Malpass got what he was after when he landed with the ski troops out at Camp Hale, Colorado. If you fellows had seen him buzzing around here on skis the last few days before he left you would wonder at his ability to get what he was after. Here is luck to you, Ted—but—you must tell us more about it... I haven't had but two letters from Bud Strehl and they are almost ancient history by now... But—I hear via the grapevine that Bud has gone across and that, when he gets home, he will have some real experiences to relate—such as—being on one of our transports in the Pacific that got what for, losing all of his worldly possessions (except Mom, Pop, sisters and friends), living in such jungles with nothing except a root to stick his toe under to keep the mosquitoes from taking off with him, etc. Bud—you are a mans man in our book, and, I know that your brother Bob, who is going in on the 23rd is an exact duplicate. It kind of tingles the old spine to think of four Strehl kids (Bud in the marines and across, Helen a nurse, Bob about to go in and Betty—a would be WAAC) all in the service of Uncle Sam. That's a record that Mom and Pop, and, the rest of us, are mighty proud of... Congratulations to you, Harvey Kyes, on the new corporal rating. Why not try writing to ask instead of Minnie, from your Fort Monroe, Va., base and tell us more about it?... I've often regretted that we had no artists in the gang from here that were in. After seeing Teddy Kotowich's effort on his latest letter to The Duck Inn I have no more regrets. Teddy let himself go and drew a picture of a couple of squirrel a top The Duck Inn sign filling their bellies, full. You really must have missed your calling, Teddy—but (censored) don't you look up Dick McKannon and the camp ads from here that are at camp flood?... The latest word from the Saxton family (it's a long time to hear, Joe) is that Tich (Richard) will go in on the 3rd of April and will be one of the MSC College boys that are called. We hope to see you go, Tich, but if we don't see you there's luck to you... I'm wondering if the Camp Carrabelle, a resort life is too much for Bugs Blair, or, if he is just too busy to get the news that Mrs. Bugs (to be) won a one hundred buck jackpot in a bingo game and he is too flabbergasted to write... The same thought, just about, goes for all of the rest of you lads you haven't reported in recently... Sailor Chum Simmons has been shifted to a new boat, and, new responsibilities in the Atlantic. We sure would like to know more about it QM 1/c Chum Simmons... Geo. Trojanek didn't much more than get back to Camp Shelby than his transfer to an M. P. outfit at Camp Beauregard, La. came through. Thanks for telling us about it, Geo., but, we would still like to know more... Those younger fellows that went out of here the last while just don't seem to give us the news. Off hand I can think of Karl Kamradt, Danko Gee and Gale Brintnall (all in the airforce) who are overdue... I could think of a lot more of you'se guys that are overdue too if I wanted to start mentioning names... For instance—Lt. Gerald Clark better report in on his rendezvous with Sgt. Bob Blair at Esler Field, La., and I sure would be interested in learning what Lt. Bud Hite does to Jack Bowman when they collide out in Denver... Coast Guard Bob Somerville writes his Mom that he will be somewhere in the Atlantic and that we should not send the paper anymore. If you ever get an address, Bob be sure and give it to us and you will be back on the mailing list... Colie Sommerville is still resorting with the air force in Florida (that's my idea) (I mean the resorting.) If I'm wrong, Colie, you might point out that 14 hours per day of work isn't exactly what you would call resorting... Stan Belzek is another of those that have gotten away without my knowing it. Just now Stan is at Kessler Field, Miss. getting some air force ground crew training... Johnny Umlor sends word in that he wound up at Camp Swift, Texas with an engineering Bn. As far as I know, Johnny, you are the only one from here at that camp. You are on our list as of now. We sure hope we are on yours... Ralph Stallard has a shift from his resorting at Miami Beach to Hiram, Ohio for further training with the air force... I hear the Mason Clark reports in from San Diego almost daily. Those second handed reports just don't seem to stick, Mason. Why not give us something really concrete to refer to... The same for Chris, Bill, Fred, Lawrence, Ernie and the rest of you marines at Camp Elliott... Clarence Healey surely is a picker of names. He is now resorting at the Princess Martha Hotel (with the air force) at St. Petersburg, Fla. Just who is Princess Martha, anyhow Sonny?... Pete Hammond sounds off from Camp Howze, Tex. to tell us that he hasn't written before because he doesn't have time. Eight hours of school and four of drill does seem like a long day, Pete,—but—if you are to be a commando you've got to be tough because Uncle Sam wants his guys just that... Jim Chanda says, from Camp Bowie, Tex., the army isn't as bad as some people say. Here's luck to you, Jim, in your M. P. training. Sure hope you keep us posted... Abe Cohn sends in a new APO San Francisco address: Gosh, Abe, it kind of raises a lump in our throats to think of you, and, all of the lads from here that are, or, are about, across. We know, Abe, just how tough it is to leave Helen behind—but—we hope you take courage in the fact that you are not alone—and—that the folks from back home here in East Jordan are with and behind you two hundred (and more) per cent. If, as and when you can, we hope you keep us posted old man... Carl Grutch is another of the lads that got shifted from Shelby, Miss. to Camp Beauregard, La. How about more about it, Carl?... Bob Lapeer went all the way from Alabama (home of the big rattlers) to Camp Adair, Oregon where he gets further training with a signal Co... I've had a number of inquiries as to the whereabouts of Adam Sinclair (Alex's brother.) Sorry fellows I just don't know. Could you help us out, Alex? I have an idea he is in OCS but am not too sure even about that... Just about the time that Archie Griffin pulled out of Camp Blanding for Nashville Charley Dennis gets assigned there. According to Charlie, Blanding isn't what it's cracked up to be—so—maybe I'm all wet on this Florida resorting business I've been kidding you boys about... Willie Howe came through from Texas with a dandy four pager. Most of what he had to say was strictly on the q. t. and not for publication. I'm darn sure, Willie, that you are doing a swell job of being a good soldier down there in Texas. Here's luck to you, Sgt., and to all your glider pilot pals... Sgt. "Windy" Winstone sure is a guy to get around. Just now he is in Massachusetts for a weeks training tour after which I think he pops back to Topeka. That's all your address in our book, Windy, —if there is any change let us know... I sure hope that Harry Porcell makes connections with Charley Dennis down at Blanding. If you haven't found him yet, Charley you had better look him up in the Co. — 1st Bn. of an Inf. outfit that is just 11 less than yours... I just had word from Dar Penfold that he is shipping out soon. He doesn't know where he is going nor when he will be back. It sure makes the wire tingle, Dar, to think of you here in the Atlantic—or—wherever you will be going—facing that you surely will have to. Here's lots of luck to you, young man. Our hopes and prayers and thoughts will be all with and for you—and—we will be expecting that report when you get back... Harold Bates has reported in from Camp Hood. He says "the army is a great life and don't think for a minute there is ever a dull moment." Sure hope you contact Dick and Teddy down there soon, Junior... Walter Bolser is another of our lads that is getting training at Great Lakes. Just now Walter is going to a shipfitters school taking courses in arc and acetelene welding, blacksmith, sheet metal and riveting work besides courses in math and mechanical drawing. You have your hands full, Walt, but I know that you will turn out to be the good sailor that we expect... Just a few days ago I read a squib in a Grand Rapids paper about Orrin Sutton, a Charlevoix boy, who was with the same outfit as Tiny Cihak, Frank Cihak, Dale Richner, Carlton Smith and Albert Jackson. The article was an account of an interview with a disabled soldier now recuperating at the new home in Battle Creek. It told of Orrin dozing beside a tree, waking enough to see a Jap rushing his buddy, pulling his whatchamacallit and getting the Jap in the belly and then getting his machine gun into action within thirty seconds. Well boys—I suppose a lot of you have seen a lot more than that—but to us folks back home it sure makes our hair stand on end.

And so another Sunday has slipped by—It's 5 p.m. and I've been pecking away for many an hour. It takes time but it's fun at that just sitting down and having a Sunday chat with you'se guys. Until next week, then, at the same old time—It's Good Luck and So Long.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"How do you feel about this idea of stopping 'em from selling liquor anywhere near army camps, Judge?"
"I was just talking about that with Will down at the barber shop about ten minutes ago. Tell you what I told him, Ned. I say it's up to the Army to decide. Why should we walk in and tell the Army how to do its job

... any more than I should tell you how to go about putting out a fire? And here's something that strikes me funny. All this worrying seems to be about the boys' conduct around the camps here in this country. You never hear a word of worrying about them drinking when they go abroad. Kind of queer, isn't it, Ned?"
