Scrap Paper Is Badly Needed

LOCAL DRIVE ON FOR THIS SATURDAY IN CITY AND COUNTRY

Are you one of those millions of persons who, thinking of son of daughter or brother or sister in our country's military services, has said, earnestly, again and again: "Golly! How I wish I could do something REAL to help fight this war?"

If you are, here's your chance to go ALL-OUT!

One of the indispensable raw materials of war is plain, ordinary paper—paper of every kind and description. It is, at present, indispensable for the transportation of shells, bombs, medical supplies, food, bullets, shoes, and 10,000 other items.

To back up our fighting forces we have to keep up a constant flow of supplies involving more than 700,000 different kinds of items. In each and every one of them paper is a factor, either as a production material or as a wrapper or container. In strictly military uses more than 600,000 tons of paper are consumed every month. In turn, we have been collecting only 500,000 tons of waste paper. Something must be done to bridge that gap.

Every shell we ship to shoot at the enemy travels in a paperboard container. A ton of waste paper will produce 1,500 shell containers; or 47,000 boxes for 30 caliber ammunition; or 71,000 dust covers for airplane engines; or 36,000 practise targets. Army ordnance plants require 30,000 tons of paperboard each month for packaging shells. Of lend-lease materials 9/10ths must be protected by waterproof paperboard.

To keep the armed forces supplied with milk, the army needs a million paper milk containers a day. To pack the 10,000,000 army shirts purchased this year 750 tons of paperboard were required. To pack canned tomatoes for the army another 1000 tons were needed, and to produce the paperboard for that purpose 5,000 tons of waste paper were required.

The army has been ordering target paper in 750 carload lots. More than a full carload of blue-print paper is needed to lay out plans for a single battleship. Each time a pursuit airplane is built 20,000 sheets of protective paper are required.

A national crisis has arisen. It's been developing for some time. Now, suddenly, it has become ACUTE. Unless met, NOW, it can and will slow up our whole war effort. We, as a nation, are RUNNING SHORT OF PAPER. Raw paper stock has been cut, lumberjacks and papermill workers have gone to war, pulpwood is going for other purposes. We're running short of paper.

To grapple with the emergency the War Production Board has asked for a nation-wide waste paper drive—a drive to continue unremittently until the end of the war—a drive to save, collect and send to war every scrap of every kind of paper that the American people on the home front are capable of salvaging.

The drive is national. It's URGENT; the need is NOW. Michigan has a part and responsibility in and FOR it. That means that Charlevoix County shares that responsibility. From now on the letters "E-S-C" (Every Scrap Counts) must have a deep purposeful meaning—an urge to sustained action.

E-S-C! Every Scrap Counts! To keep munitions and supplies going UNINTERRUPTEDLY to our fighting men the WPB and the county and local salvage committees, augmented by this newspaper and every other newspaper in the country, is calling on you to save newspapers, magazines, old books, catalogs, pamphlets, bags, wrapping paper, wastepaper, scraps of every kind and color. PAPER IN ANY FORM. E-S-C! Save it.

Newspapers should be tied in bundles from 12 to 15 inches high. Paper cartons, and corrugated boxes and containers should be pressed flat and tied in bundles, but whether tied or loose—please pile it on your front porch (if in East Jordan) not later than 9:00 a. m. this Saturday morning. If in the country, please bring or send it in and place in waiting box car.

This is the last waste paper drive until Spring but we will take anything from 5 pounds to 5000. Be Patriotic—be thrifty—help your armed forces—your country—your Boy Scouts and your local committee.

Vencel Wanek, 88, Passed Away Monday, Dec. 6

City Hall Rest Rooms Have Been Re-decorated Please Keep Them Clean

The rest rooms in the City Building have recently been redecorated at considerable expense.

This item of itself seems unimportant. The point is that they should be kept clean. And this can only be accomplished by the hearty co-operation of the parents and guardians of our boys and girls. It seems a sort of insane desire on the part of youths to immediately start to mark up clean walls of a rest room. They would not do this in their own homes but a public place seems to give them license.

The odd part is, so The Herald is informed, that our girls and young women are the worst violators. Drawing designs with lip-stick on the walls seems to be a favorite pastime. With the rest-rooms re-opened only a few weeks, already defacing marks are appearing on the walls. In the men's room, match and pencil marks are already appearing.

Parents are urged to talk with the youths of their home about this matter. It is wanton, unnecessary—a lack of consideration of public property.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayes had lived on the farm the past five years and during these years had completed many improvements on the dwelling.

The two-story frame dwelling, together with the contents, were completely destroyed. Only a nominal insurance was carried.

Chamber of Com. Go Into Action

PLAN EXCELLENT PROGRAM FOR COMING YEAR, COVERING WORTH-WHILE PROJECTS

The special dinner meeting of the East Jordan Chamber of Commerce at the Jordan Inn last Friday evening was one of the most successful of the year.

Twenty-six leading business men were present and elected a board of five directors for 1944 consisting of Howard A. Taft, Earl H. Clark, Howard P. Porter, Fred Vogel and L. B. Karr. Reports were given of the annual meeting of the West Michigan Tourist and Resort Association in Grand Rapids October 28th and the Aeronautics meeting sponsored by the Traverse City Chamber of Commerce at the Park Place hotel November 26th at which the speakers were George C. Ross, Planning Consultant, State Board of Aeronautics, and C. K. Stephens, Airport Engineer for the State Board. Two proposed "Round-robin" routes of the Northern Michigan Air Lines, the newly incorporated Traverse City company, cover the following towns: The north line contacts Traverse City, Charlevoix, Pellston, St. Ignace, Cheboygan, Rogers City, Alpena, Oscoda, Grayling and Traverse City; the south route is Traverse City, Frankfort, Manistee, Ludington, Big Rapids, Cadillac and Traverse City. The only reason East Jordan is not included is the lack of a landing field. Mayor Healey stated that City Council is considering the purchase of the land approved by Mr. Stephens last spring and it was voted that a delegation from the Chamber of Commerce meet with the Council Monday evening to urge completion of the deal.

The Board of Directors will meet next Friday evening to elect officers from their number and appoint a secretary-treasurer. The budget for 1944 has been set at a minimum of $1,000.00.

Class In Repairing Farm Machinery

RESUMED AGAIN THIS YEAR AT H. S. SHOP STARTING NEXT TUESDAY

There will be an adult class in Truck, Tractor and Farm Machinery Repair, held each week over a period of twelve weeks this early winter.

This class will be conducted and instructed again this year by Gilbert Sturgell. Mr. Sturgell did an outstanding job in that capacity last winter.

The first meeting of the season will be held Tuesday evening, Dec. 14th. It will commence at 7:00 o'clock and will last four hours.

The repair of farm machinery will take place again, this year, in the High School Shop. It has proven to be a satisfactory place for the work.

All men of the East Jordan area are cordially invited to attend these 12 meetings. This also includes seniors in the East Jordan High School. There is no expense to those who enroll. The program is made possible because of cooperation between our Federal Government, the State Board of Control for Vocational Agricultural and our own East Jordan Board of Education.

Remember the first meeting; Tuesday evening, Dec. 14th at 7:00 o'clock.

Local War Fund Chest Is Over-Subscribed

The Soliciting Committee for the East Jordan Branch of the Community War Fund takes this opportunity to thank all the men and women who so kindly and efficiently put the local sale over this Fall.

The total amount donated by East Jordan people is $1557.00. Our quota was $1245.00. As usual we have "Gone Over the Top" beautifully. The Charlevoix County Committee is also very appreciative of this splendid East Jordan achievement.

Wallace Beery & Lulubelle and Scotty At The Temple

Have you ever heard of a "rave week" before? To be quite frank, neither have we—but it seems the only way to describe the grand parade of hits the Temple has on this weeks schedule. Lulubelle and Scotty, backed by an array of radio top-notchers, open the week on Friday and Saturday; Wallace Beery and Fay Bainter head the super cast of "Salute To The Marines", in blazing technicolor, for Sunday and Monday; Donald O'Connor, Susana Foster, Peggy Ryan, Lillian Gish and Richard Dix in, "Top Man", for Tuesday and Wednesday; And last but not least is Bobby Readick, Bill Gargan and Frank Craven in the swell horse story, "Harrigan's Kid", as a special treat for Family Night fans on Thursday.

Well, there it is folks — the most-of-the-bests we've seen for a long long time. So just help yourselves to the cake—but leave some for us!

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

U. S. Forces Advance in South Pacific As New Air, Sea, Land Blows Hit Japs; 1944 Farm Machinery Output Doubled; Germany Stunned by Bombing of Berlin

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union.

SOUTH PACIFIC: Outposts Crumbling

Less than a week after U. S. forces under Maj. Gen. Holland Smith swarmed onto the shores of the Gilbert islands of Makin, Tarawa and Apamama, the stars and stripes floated bravely over them and most of their 6,000 Japanese defenders lay dead.

Even as U. S. forces were mopping up the Gilberts, from which the enemy once menaced Allied supply lines to the southwest Pacific, American airmen struck another heavy blow at

Maj. Gen. Holland M. T. Smith

Jap naval forces serving their embattled troops on their last Solomons' holding of Bougainville island. Of a force of six Jap destroyers, two were sunk by torpedoes and two more by gunfire by a smaller squadron of U. S. warships.

In ground fighting on Bougainville, U. S. forces expanded their base of operations under support of heavy artillery barrage and bombing attacks of Mitchells and Venturas.

FARM MACHINERY: Doubling Output

Rationing of farm machinery will be reduced to 31 types next year as increased raw material allotments will allow the manufacture of almost twice as much equipment as was made in 1942 and about 80 per cent of the 1940 total. Production of repair parts will be unrestricted.

With sufficient carbon steel available, only uncertainty of supplies of anti-friction bearings, malleable castings and forgings is ruffling farm machinery manufacture. As in all mechanical production, bearings are the chief bottleneck.

Despite the improved outlook for farm machinery, difficulties may arise from the scarcity of hauling vehicles, including trucks, and in acquiring replacement tires for trucks now in operation.

LIVING COSTS: Up 23 Per Cent

While the War Labor board's "Little Steel" formula restricted wage increases to 15 per cent over the January, 1941, level, living costs have risen 23.4 per cent since then, according to figures of the department of labor.

Originally, WLB awards were based on a 15 per cent increase in living costs from January, 1941, to September, 1942. Since September, 1942, however, there has been another 5.6 per cent rise, with labor demanding a corresponding reduction in living costs or higher wages to equalize the present condition.

Further, labor charged that the government figures on living costs were inaccurate, and the President appointed a special committee to look into the subject.

WORKING WOMEN: More Needed

With 16 1/2 million women already at work, another million are needed to round out war production demands.

As of October, only 700,000 people remained unemployed, and with this sharp reduction in the number idle, it has been found necessary to call on women to fill in many jobs, especially in busy war production centers.

The extent to which women have been recruited for industry since the armament program got under way can be glimpsed by the fact that only 10,800,000 were working in October, 1940.

CONGRESS: Ban Subsidies

To the senate for approval went a house bill prohibiting payment of subsidies to reduce or maintain retail food prices and only allowing their use to stimulate agricultural production.

Championed by the administration as a means of keeping living costs down, retail subsidies were attacked in the house as inflationary, in that such savings to consumers only added to their purchasing power, and money borrowed for the purpose increased the national debt.

The administration is now spending approximately 800 million dollars annually on retail subsidies for meat, butter, milk, and other products. Under the house bill, subsidies would be continued only for domestic vegetable oils, fats and oil seeds.

In approving subsidy payments to stimulate production, the house voted to extend the life of the Commodity Credit corporation to June 30, 1945, and maintain its borrowing power at three billion dollars. CCC also was given permission to resell at a loss perishable fruits and vegetables bought to support prices.

Vote for Higher Taxes

Also to the senate went a house bill providing for 2 1/2 billion dollars in additional taxes, far below the 10 1/2 billion dollars requested by Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau.

Largest source of new revenue in the bill would be obtained from taxes on goods, such as beer, liquor, jewelry, luggage, bulbs and cosmetics, and from services such as telephones and telegraphs, amusements, transportation and club dues.

Adjustments in individual and corporate income taxes would provide substantial revenues, with approximately 600 million dollars being obtained from additional levies on business.

Local postal rates would be increased to three cents and charges would be raised on money orders and special deliveries.

EUROPE: Fortress Smoulders

With its home front rocked by Berlin's devastation by 1,000 RAF bombers, Germany sought to bolster the southeastern flank of her smouldering Fortress Europe by turning to military maneuvers to influence wavering, neutral Turkey.

While Berlin's populace dug out of its ruins, Germany was reported moving troops through Sofia, Bulgaria, to the Grecian frontier, fronting Turkey. The moves closely followed the Nazis' recapture of the strategic Aegean islands of Kos, Leros and Samos, from where they could threaten Turkey's western coast.

The Germans' movements appeared to be their answer to Allied pressure on Turkey to cast her lot with the U. S., British and Russian cause. Under terms of the Turkish-British alliance of 1939, each country promises to come to the assistance of the other if attacked.

In Italy, Britain's 8th army occupied lowlands along the Adriatic coast, in preparation for an assault against the Nazis' mountain positions immediately to the north. U. S. casualties in Italy since September 8 were placed at 1,613 killed; 2,685 missing, and 6,361 wounded.

STAINED SINK

Question: How can I clean brown spots from my sink? They have appeared around the drain.

Answer: The cure will depend somewhat on the nature of the stain. Try filling the sink with water—after you have finished with it for the evening—and mix in two cups or so of Javelle water or some similar bleaching liquid containing chlorine; grocers usually have two or three kinds in stock. Let it stand all night. If this does not work try continued rubbing with a scratchless cleaning powder made into a paste with kerosene; ammonia also would help. One of my readers had success with a mixture of salt and lemon juice.

Waxed Floors

Question: My oak floors have been given several coats of a penetrating wax finish. What is the best way to clean soiled spots at the entrances to rooms and stairs? Is it advisable to use a non-rubbing wax to touch up the spots?

Answer: The easiest way to clean the kind of floors you have is to moisten some cheesecloth with a liquid wax (not the non-rubbing variety); go over the floors with this, turning out a clean part of the cloth frequently. Polish with a thin coat of paste wax, allowing it to dry hard before polishing. You may be able to get a booklet on the care of floors from the manufacturer of your own particular finishing wax.

DAMAGE FROM OXALIC ACID

Question: After removing varnish from a mahogany mirror frame, I stood the mirror in my bathtub while applying a solution of oxalic acid to the frame. When I attempted to clean the tub I found the acid had roughened and eaten into the porcelain. Is there anything I can do to restore the tub to its original condition?

Answer: I am sorry to say that the damage to the porcelain finish on the tub is permanent. Never use a tub or sink for acid mixtures of this kind, as most acids have a tendency to destroy the porcelain finish on plumbing fixtures.

Holes in Furniture

Question: I have seen a substance used for filling the holes in antique furniture that gives good results. It is not as brittle as a shellac stick. I think that it is a combination of beeswax and something else, with color added. Do you know what it is?

Answer: There are many different essences; one of them is a mixture of fine sawdust or wood flour and varnish, with oil stain added to match the color of the wood. Wood putty, on sale at many of the better stocked paint stores, also is used for this type of work.

Attic Stairway

Question: The stairway to our attic starts inside the closet of one of the bedrooms and is not closed off by a door. The closet is cold in winter. The attic floor is insulated, and there are two small windows in this area. Should I put a door at the foot opening into the closet?

Answer: A door in the closet may prove impractical; a hatch-type door at the top of the stair would be better. To avoid any possible accumulation of moisture in the attic area above the insulation, it is advisable to keep the attic windows open somewhat.

Musty Odor

Question: Our brick house on a lake is used on week-ends only. On opening it after an absence there is a strong musty odor. There is no basement. A four-foot space under the house is damp at times. Would insulation help?

Answer: No; what you need is waterproofing. This should begin with a concrete floor under the house, for it is the dampness of that space under the floor that is making the trouble. Also, the space should be thoroughly ventilated. Continued dampness may be rotting the wood work; better make an inspection.

When you see news photos of soldiers "off duty" in camp or behind the battle-lines—notice how often you'll see them smoking a cigarette. There's a good reason for that. Army officials say that cigarettes are an appreciable factor in maintaining morale—and the soldiers themselves add that a carton of cigarettes from home is always welcome. What brand? Well, sales records in Post Exchanges and Canteens show that Camels are the favorite cigarette with men in all the services. Though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to Sailors, Marines, and Coast Guardsmen wherever they are.—Adv.

Fish Lays Eggs in Plants; Trout Is Lassoed in Leap

Thread-finned fish of the Amazon river leap out of the water and lay their eggs on overhanging plants.
A trout was lassoed by a fisherman as it leaped out of the waters of a California stream. It weighed six pounds, measured 28 inches. A U. S. forest ranger has a photograph to prove it.
Blackfish which live in the weedy swamps of Alaska and eastern Siberia can be frozen in the ice for months, but when thawed out become as lively as ever.

This Fish Uses Its Mouth As Incubator, Nursery

Some fish have curious breeding habits. The curious haplochromis, for example, uses its mouth as an incubator, meanwhile going on a self-denying diet. This fish is only two to two and a half inches long, as a rule.

When the time comes for spawning, the male will make a hollow in the sand, and in this the eggs are deposited and fertilized. The female then picks up the eggs in her mouth, carrying them about this way for about two weeks until the young hatch out.

The mouth of the female continues to act as a refuge for the little fish until they are able to forage for themselves. During the period of hatching the mother does not take food, but after hatching she chews food particles fine enough for her offspring to devour.

Reveille on the Jordan

Just a little message to the boys in the service from the folks back home. Sponsored by the East Jordan Community Service Club.
HENRY DRENTH — EDITOR

Dear Friends:

For the first time in the history of Reveille on the Jordan it has been necessary to find a new editor, due to the fact that our mutual friend, Ed Reuling, has recently decided to devote his time to the services of the U. S. Navy. All of us who have taken an interest in this column and, should we say especially you who are now in the service, owe much to Ed for his time and past services that he has so faithfully devoted to this task. Those of you who have had the privilege of having a furlough and taken time to visit with Ed have no doubt noticed that he has always taken time to lay aside his work for a friendly chat. Many of you, not so privileged, have nevertheless found in this column thoughts that would lead your minds back to good old East Jordan and its surrounding territory. You have also found Ed always ready to accommodate you in any services such as sending you addresses or others you might correspond with or meet. Many constructive and destructive criticisms have also been handed or thrown his way but still the column appeared weekly. Ed is to report for duty with the U. S. Navy on December 15th at Princeton, New Jersey, with the commission of Lt. (j.g.) and has moved his family to East Lansing where they will remain with Ed's parents.

To Ed, let us all say "Thank You" for past favors and may he prosper in his new venture as a fellow serviceman.

Although we do not feel capable of continuing this column as it has heretofore been written, nevertheless we at home do not feel justified in letting our fighting men and women down who are doing so much for us. Therefore we are planning to continue, but will need your support more than ever before. You can help us by writing letters or cards reporting your change of address promptly and telling us of any happenings that others are interested in knowing. We are anxiously awaiting your letters and we pledge our continued service to you. Address your correspondence to Reveille on the Jordan.

HOME FRONT CHATTER

Even though deer season is over, there are quite a few who still have the hunting bug. Monday afternoon Earl Danforth spied a wild cat in a tree by Pinney's Bridge. The result a 40 lb. dead wild cat which will be transformed into a rug for their home.

We hear the town is speckled with service men this week but so far have only visited with two, namely CALVIN DOUGHERTY and OSCAR MILLER. We caught Cal just a few hours before he headed back for Camp Houze, Texas, where he expects to go back on the rifle range. Oscar dropped in to tell us a little bit about his boot training at Great Lakes. He and Cal both left with a list of addresses of fellows in or near their camps so some of you can expect a visit with them soon. We hear JOHN SKROCKI, ROMAN DUBAS, EUGENE MUNUSKO, ERWIN MURPHY, and HAROLD MOORE are here too. Harold was given a big party at the Milan Greenman's, and leaves Monday for Rhode Island. Hope to be able to give you some first hand information on the rest next week.

NEWS FROM THE FRONT

The "Man on the Street" caught GAYLE SAXTON roaming around in Chicago, where he is stationed, and gave him a chance to say hello to Mom and Pop, brothers, and sister via radio. Sorry they weren't listening but Joe Cummins was, and passed the word along. Word comes from BUD ST. ARNO via his brother JIM, that he has been promoted to S. 2c. Bud is now cooking for the chief petty officers, and will sure make a good wife for some handsome lady riveter. Congratulations to TED MALPASS for his promotion to ski instructor at Camp Hale, Colorado. His first students will be a bunch of paratroopers from Fort Benning. Sorry you miss-seeing GLEN TROJANEK at Lowrie Field, but he has recently moved to the Will Rogers Field in Oklahoma City. Marine LEW KAMRADT was figuring on a warm winter in Southern California until he was sent to Sitka, Alaska. We have sent the addresses along that you asked for. Sure glad you had a chance to chat with LEON PETERSON and JR. ST. CHARLES before being moved. Thanks for your letter. TEDDY KOTOWICH warns that he will be with us to see the old year out and the new year in. By the way, Teddy, who is your blond secretary or do you clang those typewriter keys yourself? Sgt. COLIN SOMERVILLE in England has received his Xmas package and has it on the shelf waiting for the 25th to roll around. The APO number you asked for is 550. No doubt by this time the delayed papers have caught up with you. Pfc. HAROLD LEWIS can now be found at Mac Dill Field, Tampa, Florida with his same chemical company. Sailor BOB KISER has been moving around a bit too fast for the East Jordan paper to keep up with him. Bob's address is now Seattle, Washington. A Spectator at the Great Lakes-Notre Dame football game was our sailor BARTON VANCE. We appreciate his report on the game and are a bit envious we weren't there ourselves. Bartons night hours will be well taken up as he will be attending night school for 16 weeks, studying a course for electricians mate. East Jordan's lone SPAR, Yeoman 3/c LUELLA NELSON W. SKINE, stationed at Sewickley, Pa. was among the 18 SPARS at Pittsburgh Pa. Was that cake as good as it looked? Cpl. RUDOLPH CHIAK reports a transfer from Najave to Camp Pendleton, Calif. Lt. WILLIAM SWOBODA is also there, and we are sending his address along. HOWARD HOSLER postcards from Georgia enroute to his new station in Florida. Write and tell us about it, Howard. Cpl. BOB STREHL is now at the Naval Air Station in San Diego. Sailor BILL RUSSELL at Camp Peary, Virginia, is receiving the paper for the first time this week. RUSSEL GEE has written for the addresses of PETE HAMMOND and CALVIN DOUGHERTY who are about 65 miles from his camp. Hope you can find them and have a good old bull session. After Louisiana maneuvers Pvt. JAMES CHANDA has returned to Camp Bowie, Texas. Sgt. EUGENE CRANDALL has arrived in England and finds it to his liking because of the neatness and friendliness of the people. HAROLD GOEBELS is on maneuvers in Tennessee, while LOUIS BUNKER is likewise in Louisiana. Capt. Tom Thacker sent his wife some silk stockings, and could work up quite a business supplying the local gals with more of the same. Cpl. JOHN TER AVEST and Sgt. BILL SIMMONS are transferring this week — let us know where, boys.

And so for another week Reveille has been written. We hope you haven't been disappointed due to our inexperience; but in its own small way, may it have accomplished its purpose. Don't forget, KEEP WRITING TO KEEP US WRITING.

WASTE PAPER CRISIS HITS WAR PLANTS

Tons of Waste Paper Wanted At Once for Food and Ammunition Containers

TURN IN YOUR WASTE PAPER... YOUR COUNTRY NEEDS IT NOW!

As you read this, paper mills are closing... others are running only a few days a week. These mills make the paper boxes, cartons, and shipping cases in which our soldiers and sailors get their food and ammunition.

Without these cartons, they won't get vital supplies! Such cartons are made from waste paper pulp.

And it's a fact that there isn't enough waste paper to make the enormous quantities of boxes called for... to keep K-rations and cartridges flowing out to the fighting fronts! There isn't enough waste paper to make the cardboard packages now substituting for metal on the home front!

Right here is where you come in. Clean out your cellar and attic now!

SAVE THESE WASTE PAPERS... Newspapers... Magazines... Cardboard Boxes... Paper Bags... Wrapping Paper... Letters... Envelopes... Advertising Matter.

This shortage is serious! Never in history has so much waste paper been needed so fast! So tell your friends and neighbors about it. Every boy and girl can be a paper hunter, too!

Above all... don't burn any waste paper. Don't throw any away! Scour every corner... save every scrap.

Keep the paper coming... and you'll keep the war goods rolling! Start now!

HERE'S WHAT YOU DO WITH THEM...

In East Jordan, pile your waste paper on the front porch or at the curb early this Saturday morning. Commencing at 9:00 a. m. the Boy Scouts will gather it up and load on trucks.

Those in the Country are requested to bring or send theirs to town and load in a box car at rear of the E. J. L. Co's lumber yard office. Saturday only.

Turn Your Paper In --- It's Sorely Needed!

(Published by National Biscuit Company in cooperation with local committee.)

SOLDIERS NEED BOXES—Millions of boxes are needed for the K- and C-Rations eaten by our soldiers on the battle lines.

SAILORS NEED BOXES—It takes tons of paperboard to pack shiploads of munitions for the long voyages to the other side of the world.

THE HOME FRONT NEEDS BOXES—Huge stocks of paper are needed for the containers which have replaced metal for dozens of grocery and household products.

Predict Water Levels To Remain High This Coming Spring

With the rise of ground water levels in north central Michigan. 41' from mid-October to mid-November breaking previous records and making November water levels the highest on record, state geological survey field men predict that with normal rain and snow during the winter, water levels will again be high in the spring of 1944.

November levels as computed from measurements made at 43 shallow wells were .81' higher than a year ago, .25' higher than the record November high of 1941 and .93' higher than the 9 year average for November.

Water levels are lower now than they were during the spring and summer, but geological survey men attribute this to the normal winter decline and state that it is not an indication of an actually lower water level.

According to the rate of rise recorded in previous years, a winter of normal rain and snow should bring water levels up a foot or more to a high which may equal the record established in 1943.

Misadventure of 1943. An English baby is called to colors, burglars are scared stiff by the things they stole, a bus driver stands up all his customers—and other queer instances of the old year's most curious happenings are told in The American Weekly, the magazine distributed with next week's Sunday Chicago Herald-American.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

"Will Broadway ever be 'Broadway' again?" (The inquirer is a graying lad practically born on the street known over the world.) "It's a question constantly propounded on the highways and byways of America. One does not have to be an old-timer to recall with a sigh the Broadway of yesterday. The lights flashing the name of 'Rector's' at 48th street, diagonally across from Churchills's where now there is a news reel theater. The Bal Tabarin, with Ted Lewis and his orchestra, and Eva Tanguay, where now there is a dark and silent night club. The Moulin Rouge, Shanley's, the Monte Carlo, the Pekin, the Strand Roof, the Ziegfeld Roof; the Claridge where producers and stars, grifters and drifters, song pluggers and agents lunched and munched words. What a street it was only a quarter of a century ago!

"Broadway, a street of bright lights—but no orange juice stands. No cheap carnival attractions. No monotony of little shops displaying goods at cut—and cut-throat—prices. A few dignified shops made up its daytime appeal. Large stores displaying the class merchandise of the town, evening apparel, Paris-inspired; swank haberdashery. Color, charm, wealth, beauty, glamour—these were the attributes of the Broadway of yesterday. What happened? Why the great change? S-s-sh, quiet, and I'll tell you. Prohibition was the cause. The act that bore the name of Volstead was what shattered the big Broadway resorts. When that act became law, the Broadway of song and story passed into the realm of memory.

"Though Broadway died, its habits remained very much alive. There was a call for help and the answer came from the speakeasy. Broadway was too famous, too well lighted, too public for undercover operations. Prohibition agents Izzy Einstein, Moe Smith and their ilk, made it too dangerous to provide luxury. Out of the blue they came with axes and warrants. A G-man then was a prohibition agent; he had no other identity. No one could flaunt luxury in his face—he destroyed too quickly and ruthlessly. So in place of the pretentious homes of revelry on Broadway, came cellars and back rooms, uncomfortable chairs, cramped quarters, stuffy aromas and high prices for doubtful goods. Broadwayites, who never before had known what a side street looked like after dark, suddenly became acquainted with the lights and shadows from Seventh to Park.

"Prohibition finally came to an end. Little swallow-faced speakeasy owners, head waiters et al, were finally able to emerge for a breath of fresh air. Their places turned legitimate and they along with them. So they spruced up their establishments, opened the windows, purchased advertising space and instead of hiding their locations, designated them with neon lights so that they could be found all the easier. Furthermore, they used Uncle Sam's postmen to carry their propaganda to long lists of patrons. And former customers continued to go back to the filling stations that had taken their money during the so-called 'dry era.'

"They've been going back ever since. The night life addict thinks of Broadway only as the name applies to the theater. Night owls, that is, those with money enough to pay the tariff, have decided that the East Side is swanky and therefore the place to go. They had become accustomed to the 'intimate' type of rendezvous and the habit got them even though now they do not sit on two by four benches in barren surroundings or gain admittance by giving three raps and asking for Tony. The speakeasies, now eminently respectable, with many catering to society, continue to prosper. New places, attracted by their success, have opened in their vicinity."

About Town: Sightseers viewing activities on the Hudson from the pergola at Inspiration Point—an apt name since looking at the broad river there is indeed an inspiration. Two little tugs shepherding a long line of barges which, heavily loaded with gravel, silently slip down stream. The rumble of trains passing beneath the parkway between Riverside drive and Henry Hudson drive—New York's "bread-line," so-called because so much food passes over those tracks each day. The only lighthouse on Manhattan Island—a little red brick beacon tucked away under George Washington bridge on a point, so I've read, where in the old, old days, pirates were hung.

C. F. Dunnette, Boyne City Civilian War Service Ch'm.

Charles F. Dunnette, of Boyne City, has been appointed Civilian War Service Chairman for Charlevoix County by the county defense council.

Captain Donald S. Leonard, Michigan Director of Civilian Defense, in a letter to Floyd A. Supp, county defense council chairman, commenting on the appointment said: "It is especially pleasing to know that you have made so excellent a choice as Mr. Charles F. Dunnette. From my previous acquaintance with him, I am sure that he will carry out the duties of this important post in a very satisfactory manner."

Prior to coming to Boyne City and engaging in the oil and gasoline business, Mr. Dunnette was a member of the Dearborn, Michigan, police department and actively organized the war protective services there.

Kentucky Rifle Still Gets Deer

Reminiscent of Michigan's early hunters and settlers is sportsman Les Fitzgerald of Pontiac who gets his buck with a long Kentucky rifle. Fitzgerald, dressed in authentic buckskin hunting clothes, has shot a deer with this heavy-caliber flint-lock rifle for the last three seasons. Ammunition for this type gun, which has not been in general use since pioneer days, is a 52 caliber, 1/4 oz. ball that is wrapped in a canvas patch and forced down the barrel with a wooden ramrod. It is accurate up to 100 yards in the hands of a marksman like Fitzgerald.

BOWLING

Life and bowling are funny games! When Howard Darbee called in Don Clark to help him beat Agnes (she had just taken three straight from hubby) the old Magee not only took both Howard and Agnes but beat Howard out of the weeks High prize money. Don's first two games of 236 and 224 were a good start for a super series—and then he rolled an even 100! Well, that's the way it goes.

Lots of interest has been aroused around the Recreation over a piece in last month's Boylers Journal regarding a mechanical pin-setter that will possibly be on the market after the war. The problem of pinboys has bowling generally pretty much up in the air although locally for the past several weeks the situation has greatly improved. The cutting of kick-backs to allow easy movement between pits makes it possible for a worker to keep two lanes in full operation and almost doubles the earnings of the setter. Several of the boys at the Recreation have checked in with enough lines to earn them the equivalent of 70 to 80 cents per hour—and that's real money!

An Ellsworth invasion carried off the Women's Weekly High when Marie Essenberg tipped a nice 198. The East Jordan girls vow that it won't happen again—if they can help it!

A local match team featuring Hud Summerville, Milt Ward, Greg Boswell, Ed Nemecek and Ed Reuling went into action Tuesday evening against the ace Bellaire aggregation of Rinckey, Clark, Whiteford, Bechtold and MacQueen. The hard fought battle resulted in East Jordans victory by a scant 93 pins—but enough to keep the local boys out in front in this inter city bowling feud.

A great deal of interest is apparent in the Doughouse League over the Deer Shining With The Tops of Their Heads contest between Ken Isaman & Milt Ward. Betting is strictly even money and we await with bated breath the results of this unusual event.

Theresa and Ken Isaman are a couple we're going to miss a lot when they leave shortly. Our loss will be Detroit's gain and we hope to have them back in the old home town where that big job of licking the assorted dictators is completed. Good luck—and hurry back, Theresa and Ken.

Polly and Alex Sinclair have signed on with the Doghouses and fill the Isaman vacancies. Polly and Alex are both good bowlers and good sports and will fit into the League perfectly. Welcome, folks to the Doghouse.

"No, this is not O'Toole's Garage!"

POOR LADY! This morning she got a call for Ben's Men's Haberdashery. And yesterday one for Larry's Bowling Alley. Judging from the piece of her mind she gave the last caller, her peace of mind is definitely disturbed. Unfortunately, mix-ups like these are bound to occur when people trust to memory in calling telephone numbers. Even more unfortunately, a wrong number means an extra call on the already overburdened telephone system to correct the mistake. You will get fewer wrong numbers—and every one will benefit—if you will follow these practices:

- 1 If you are not absolutely sure of a number, check it in your telephone directory.
- 2 If you compile and use your own telephone list, go over it once in a while and eliminate obsolete numbers... write in the correct ones.

RURAL PANTRIES LINED FOR WINTER

At least 48,200,000 quart jars of food form shiny rows on storeroom shelves in 200,000 suburban and farm homes of Michigan, according to a conservative estimate of the work of foresighted families in bridging the winter food season of 1943-44.

Figures just compiled by Miriam Eads, MSC nutrition specialist, show that 1581 families reported canning 105,737 quarts of vegetables, 190,209 quarts of fruit, 82,919 quarts of tomatoes and tomato juice. With an average of 3.5 members in these families, this provides 35.3 quarts of fruit, 19.7 quarts vegetables and 16 quarts tomatoes. An adequate canning budget to give good meals rich in needed mineral, vitamins and other nutrients suggests about 50 quarts of fruit, 30 quarts vegetables and 35 quarts of tomatoes for each adult.

The amount stored and eaten fresh must be counted in too, says Miss Eads, who points out that these records were compiled before full amounts to be stored were in cellars or pits. Families have an average of 3 bushels of vegetables and nearly a bushel of fruit for each person in the family. Since potatoes, 1 1/2 to 4 bushels for each person, are not included in the amount, the quantity stored is close to the 100 pounds recommended. These 1581 homemakers report just 5197 quarts of fruit and vegetables in freezer lockers.

There were 460 who improved their storage cellars, 104 who used a pressure cooker for the first time this year, and 1058 who helped their neighbors. More than 18,000 folks attended more than 1100 demonstrations that reached 81 counties. Other agencies cooperating were the O.C.D., F.S.A. and community nutrition committees.

100,000,000 Volts In X-Ray Machine

New Electron Accelerator Is Given Credit.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. — Two years of study and experimentation with high-voltage x-ray machines culminated here with the production at the General Electric laboratories of rays carrying 100 million volts, 100 times more powerful than the largest industrial x-ray in use today, and the highest x-ray voltage ever obtained. The record-breaking voltage was achieved with a new electron accelerator.

The production of the elaborate mechanism which gave off the giant rays for the first time, catching company officials unprepared for making a detailed announcement of the feat, was completed under the supervision of Dr. W. D. Coolidge, laboratory director; Dr. E. E. Charlton, chief of the G. E. X-ray division, and W. F. Westendorf, his assistant.

The actual production of the record-breaking rays indicated the discovery of a character of electron radiation differing from that produced by machines with which present-day scientists are familiar. For that reason, Dr. Coolidge said there would be no further announcements concerning the new mechanism until after further study.

The operation of the electron accelerator is similar to that of the transformer, used for changing the voltage of electricity.

MP's Must Keep Eyes on Air as Well as Ground

UNITED STATES ARMY HEADQUARTERS, NORTH AFRICA.— Add to the duties of United States army's overseas military police, that of keeping alert for enemy commando-type raids and parachute assaults.

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, commander of the Seventh army, is one officer who has charged his MPs specifically with guarding his headquarters against such infiltration tactics; and it means that the MP must keep an eye not only on the ground but at the same time one on the air.

Such duties would qualify him, when he comes marching home, for air and ground traffic work—for keeping autos in their proper lanes and, simultaneously, seeing that flivver planes and helicopters don't encroach on earth-bound vehicles.

In general, the combat MP is chiefly charged with seeing that organizations reach the right pre-battle points, that roads are clear and that troops understand where mine fields are laid. They direct, thus, military traffic, but at the same time they must be a friend, mentor and guide to the individual soldier.

Most glamour surrounds the combat MP when dignitaries visit his particular area. They guard the headquarters of all high officers and when such personages as the president of the United States, the king of England, Winston Churchill or others visit these headquarters, the MP is charged with their safety.

It takes big men, well qualified, well educated, intelligent and resourceful to do the job. The military police are just that.

Paging Santa Claus

by Jane Corby

McCLURE SYNDICATE - W.N.U. FEATURES

Jan Payson sings in the floor show at the Devon Arms. She used to sell magazines there, and support her invalid sister, Dora, but Paul Harris, the manager, discharged her when she was late for work on Thanksgiving. He gave her the floor show when he found that the rich William Anthony Deverest knew her, thinking Deverest's influence would bring patronage. Jan, however, thinks Deverest is his own chauffeur, Tony Williams; and he does not dare enlighten her because she tells him she hates Deverest because of his wealth. The show is not a success—Deverest does not bring his friends. Harris blames Jan and she tells Tony her predicament—that Harris thinks she knows Deverest.

CHAPTER IV

The sunny morning wore on. Jan returned to the room after rehearsal, glowing after a bit of unexpected praise from Zambrini. A new verse had been added to her Jingle Bells song, and the orchestra leader declared she had learned it perfectly. Dora was napping, so Jan retired to the bedroom and busied herself with the little details of mending which kept her show costumes in good condition. The muted ring of the house telephone interrupted her and awakened Dora. The clerk was announcing the arrival of Dr. Curtis.

Jan stood watching the doctor's deft movements, her amber eyes glowing with the gratitude she felt for him. How wonderful it must be to have spent a lifetime bringing happiness to others! Of course Dr. Curtis had not really spent a lifetime yet, Jan reminded herself; Tony had revealed that the doctor was only a little over thirty-five. Then suddenly Dr. Curtis looked at her above Dora's fair head and said quietly:

"I think this young lady is about ready for our experiment."

Jan could only stand and stare at him. He had always refused to admit that the operation would be anything more than experimental in nature, although Jan suspected he hoped it would give Dora a new life.

"Oh, Jan, isn't this wonderful?"

"Of course, dear," Jan swallowed the lump in her throat and tried to be casual as she answered her sister. But she could not overcome the horrible fear that Dr. Curtis' simple statement had aroused. Dora—her helpless little sister—lying on an operating table! The smell of ether—those dreadful hours of waiting without being able to help. She heard Dr. Curtis' voice as from a great distance.

"Your sister is going to be fine, Jan. She's been one of my best patients so far, and I know she isn't going to disappoint me now." He patted the pale slender hand lying on the coverlet and rose briskly. Only then did Jan remember that the question of paying for the operation had not been discussed.

"But—but Dr. Curtis! The money—"

His warm hand rested reassuringly on her shoulder a moment. "I haven't mentioned it, have I?" he asked, smiling.

The morning after Dora's operation, Jan returned to the hotel with feet that fairly danced across the lobby.

"Dr. Curtis said she would surely be home in time for New Year's," Jan said breathlessly to Paul Harris. For once his iron reserve seemed broken and he had to clear his throat before he spoke.

"I—I'm delighted to hear it, Jan. Dora has become very—very firmly established in my—in all our affections. Last night when you came back from the hospital I was afraid—"

Jan looked up and remembered that she had heard Paul's wife had died in a hospital following an operation. For the first time he seemed to her not a stern and worldly hotel manager, but a sympathetic friend.

Later, when she answered a ring at the door, Jan was surprised to see her former landlady, Mrs. Mallord, framed in the doorway.

"I would have taken them to the hospital to your sister, only I couldn't get there during visiting hours . . ." she began. "I'm taking a chance being away as long as this, anyhow. How is the poor darling?"

"She's just fine, Mrs. Mallord. Everybody says she couldn't be better." Jan pulled forward an easy chair and settled her visitor comfortably. "Let me help you off with your coat."

"I don't know as that's necessary," the woman replied, smoothing the plaid design over her knee.

"It's new, isn't it? And I do like your hat, Mrs. Mallord."

"I'm after having myself a complete new outfit."

"Really, Mrs. Mallord! Don't tell me someone's left you a fortune?"

"Well, now—and that's just what happened," began Mrs. Mallord.

"You mean your uncle had money?" Jan interrupted.

"He did that. And he's after leaving it all to me."

"Oh, Mrs. Mallord—I'm more glad about it than I can tell you," Jan cried. "Now you won't have to work any more."

"Listen to the child!" scoffed Mrs. Mallord. "And what should I be doing if not working, as I've done all my life? No, four hundred and eighty-seven dollars is what I had left after I bought some new clothes to her that a group of prominent business men had taken a table and were anxious to have her and some of the other girls share it with them.

Jan found herself between a man who introduced himself as "Mr. Frazier, a right smart lawyer to you," and Clem Hallack, the big "brooch and bracelet man" introduced to her by Mickey.

Jan smiled a little wanly, and shook her head in response to the insistent, "What'll it be?"

"Oh, no. Please. Nothing to drink," murmured Jan hastily, and pushed away the card the waiter offered her.

With a pudgy forefinger Clem Hallack reached out and touched the bracelet gleaming on Jan's wrist. "Nice little junk pile there."

"It is pretty, isn't it?" agreed Jan, "I think it's wonderful the way they can imitate diamonds nowadays."

"Imitation!" cried the now wide-awake and astonished Clem. "That's no imitation, sister. Looks to me like something out of the Rajah's jewel chest!"

By this time their talk had attracted the attention of the rest of the table.

"If I were in the mood I could tell you where that shining bauble came from," observed the grinning Mickey. "If you look closely you will probably find the initials W. A. D." She broke off suddenly, and a look of pain crossed her face.

The rest of the evening was a nightmare to Jan. Sick with horror, she had no idea how she finally managed to get away from the others and escape to her apartment.

Mickey's reference to supposed initials inside her bracelet had not disturbed her. She had steeled herself to such references, feeling that it was part of the role that, for Dora's sake, she had to play. It was the knowledge that the bracelet Tony had given her was valuable that frightened her.

"Some party last night."

Molly, the telephone operator, turned eyes full of eager curiosity toward Jan, stopping her as she tried to pass her switchboard. Jan smiled, but refused to be drawn into conversation.

"Sorry, Molly, I have to rush," apologized Jan, and fled up the lobby.

Her mind was so full of Brad Curtis that she had forgotten Tony and the problem that confronted her as she entered the hospital reception room. Tony, standing by the window, whirled at the sound of the opening door and was puzzled as he saw the light go out of Jan's face.

"Hello, Tony," Jan said lifelessly, in answer to the "Hi!" that was his habitual greeting accompanied by a hand snapped upward in salute. "Let's get going. Dora's probably waiting."

The uneasiness that had gripped her earlier in the day enveloped Jan again like a cloak as she stepped into the car. Tony used this car as if it were his own. The thought stabbed her consciousness, so that she spoke sharply before Tony pressed the starter.

"I've decided not to go shopping," they had planned that this was to be a shopping day.

"You haven't time?" Tony asked. "I have to do something else." She fished around in her bag and drew out the bracelet that the odious Clem had admired the night before.

"Take it back, Tony. I can't bear to think that you—"

"That I what?" said Tony, mystified, making no move to take the bracelet. She slipped it into his overcoat pocket.

"Let's not talk about it," said Jan. "Only—only don't give me anything like that again. Please, Tony."

That wasn't what he had meant to say. She had meant to be stern, and at the same time pleading. She would coax him to tell her the truth about the bracelet, make him promise to return it however he had managed to come by it. Now, with Tony beside her, Jan found it hard to speak at all.

There was a silence. "Okay," said Tony finally. "If that's the way you want it."

"If you don't want to go shopping, maybe you have time for a ride?" Tony asked.

"I think not," said Jan. "You've run up a lot of mileage on my account. I think that had better stop too."

"Oh, there you are, Jan!"

Paul Harris, stepping from behind a screen, set down the Christmas wreath he was carrying close to a pile of evergreens on the table.

Jan's face paled. Paul had given her suite to someone else! A wave of anger swept over her suddenly.

"Somebody else taking these rooms?" she asked, trying to keep the quiver out of her voice.

Paul, to her astonishment, moved across the room and pinched her cheek.

"Always the little worrier," he commented. "I'll have to begin giving you lessons, Jan, in looking on the bright side of things. We have to have the place looking nice for our Dora when she comes home, and of course we want you to be pleased too, Jan."

Yule Accidents Mar Festivities

Christmas is usually the happiest day of the year, but at the same time it is a day in which many serious home accidents are likely to occur, unless certain precautions are taken.

In fact three times as many fatalities caused by fires occur in December as in July, when the nation celebrates with firecrackers, Roman candles and the like. About twice as many people die from burns, scalds and explosions, excepting conflagrations, during the last month of the year as compared with July, and there are twice as many firearm fatalities in the homes this month as there are in July, according to the National Safety Council.

Light-weight materials, tree decorations or even "Santa Claus" himself may catch fire from candles. If electricity is available in the home, it may be far less expensive to purchase a small set of bulbs and wiring for the evening decorations. Candles burning in windows with loose curtains are equally dangerous and should not be used.

Falls from icy steps and walks, especially when they are covered with snow, are among the most common accidents of the Yuletide season. Although it may give an unattractive appearance, scattering ashes or sand over the ice may prevent a broken arm or leg, or perhaps, a fatal injury to a member of the family or to visitors.

Sharp and bulky toys left on the floor, stairs or in a doorway frequently cause injuries to those stepping on them when the room is in semi-darkness.

Highly-polished, waxed floors and icy shoes form a combination that increases the danger from falls.

Fatigue from keeping late hours during the holiday season and the hurry associated with Christmas preparations are likewise conducive to home accidents.

Santa's Friend

The rather sad gaze this youngster is giving Santa Claus was replaced by a happy smile when the old gentleman assured her that her Christmas list had reached him in good shape and that it would be taken care of at the proper time.

What Dickens Thought About Christmas

Christmas time! That man must be a misanthrope indeed, in whose breast something like a jovial feeling is not aroused—in whose mind some pleasant associations are not awakened—by the recurrence of Christmas.

Who can be insensible to the outpourings of good feeling, and the honest interchange of affectionate attachment which abound at this season of the year? A Christmas family party! We know nothing in nature more delightful! There seems a magic in the very name of Christmas. Petty jealousies and discords are forgotten; social feelings are awakened in bosoms to which they have long been strangers; father and son, or brother and sister, who have met and passed with averted gaze, or a look of cold recognition, for months before, proffer and return the cordial embrace, and bury their past animosities in their present happiness. Kindly hearts that have yearned toward each other, but have been withheld by false notions of pride and self-dignity, are again reunited, and all is kindness and benevolence! Would that Christmas lasted the whole year through (as it ought), and that the prejudices and passions which deform our better nature were never called into action among those to whom they should ever be strangers!

Government Lends Silver To Take Place of Copper

Because copper is urgently needed for war materials, the treasury department has recently lent, to several new government-owned or operated plants, sufficient silver to take its place in their power distribution lines, says Collier's. Silver thus employed will not be consumed or destroyed and can be returned after the war.

One installation in Michigan, which would have required $185,000 worth of copper, contains silver valued at $15,000,000 and, therefore, is constantly under armed guard.

U. S. Military Courts in Britain

Of the dozen or more Allied Nations whose troops are stationed in Great Britain, the United States is the only one that has been permitted to establish its own military courts.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Military requirements take the major portion of available rubber supplies for tires (for planes, trucks, and other war vehicles), treads for tanks, boats, balloons, raincoats, ponies, shoes, surgical supplies, and hundreds of other essential military items. That's why patriotic civilians take the restrictions on their rubber use in an understanding spirit.

According to the court historian to Philip II, and recorded in 1615, Columbus was credited with having found natives bounding rubber play balls (1490-1500) and to have brought some back from Hispaniola to Queen Isabella.

THE TWITCHELL CHILD-DISARMAMENT PLAN

Elmer Twitchell came out today with a proposal for a Disarmament Conference to precede the end of the war. "I want it at once in the interest of national safety," he declared. It was quite startling until Mr. Twitchell explained that it would apply to children only.

"I am for the disarmament of kiddies under the age of eight," he said. "The infants are swarming all over the premises heeled to the teeth, blood in their eyes and disposed to give and take no quarter."

"Little Willie, aged seven, sleeps with a tommy-gun, comes to breakfast with a mortar and spends all his spare time doing commando work. Jackie, aged five, attends him as a sort of armed bodyguard. Jerry, aged three, toddles around the house dragging a cannon, a couple of tanks and an airplane carrier. Wallie, aged one and a half, has a big force of toy soldiers, a dozen airplanes and a hangar in his crib."

"There ain't a toy in the home that doesn't represent carnage. Hardly an hour passes that mother doesn't find the kids in the course of remodeling a chair or vacuum cleaner into a landing barge for amphibious operations."

"The infants seem to be concentrating their attack on the skies, but amphibious stuff comes next. They do all kinds of ground and under-seas fighting, too; heavy rocks through the windows now and then for purposes of realism."

"What are the nicknames of little children today, 'Red,' 'Skinny' and 'Huck'? Not at all. They are called 'Butch,' 'The Gaffer,' 'Two Gun' or 'Kayo.'"

"Every visitor is a Jap or a Nazi. The minister called yesterday and the kids decided he was an enemy airplane carrier and stalked him during his entire visit. The maid has to be on the alert every minute or she will be set upon as hostile territory."

"The little dears insist they are only playing, but you can tell from the hard glint in their eyes that they would love to have mother say: 'Now if you are good and eat your spinach you can have a real rifle and go out and shoot up Mr. Burns next door this afternoon,' or 'I want you to be quiet for an hour and then I'll let you set fire to the Woolson house and throw Mr. and Mrs. Woolson into a stockade.' I heard a kid ask, 'Mommer, can I have a roll of barbed wire?' yesterday."

 To prove 'em very overrated;
 We'd even land a kayo but
 We all are so annihilated.

We sock 'em here, we sock 'em there—
 They flee with signs that read "No Waiting!"
 It's wonderful how helpful is
 A little stiff annihilating.

We've got 'em groggy on their feet

Conserve Sugar, but Satisfy Sweet Tooth
 (See Recipes Below)

Saving on Sugar

Extensive summer and fall canning has left many a family low on sugar. Homemakers are writing in and asking for recipes which will give their families "just something to satisfy the sweet tooth"—but that something must be sugar-saving.

Now that jellies are rationed you may have to use what sugar you can get for putting up those juices you canned during summer for jelly—and that means there will be less sugar than before left for baking uses. Sugar substitutes can be utilized not only in cakes and cookies but desserts and icings. Many cake recipes, too, can be made with less sugar than they call for.

Fruits-in-season now include cranberries which are perfectly delicious in this steamed pudding:

Steamed Cranberry Pudding.
 (Serves 4)
 2 cups fresh cranberries
 1½ cups flour
 ½ teaspoon salt
 ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
 ¼ teaspoon cloves
 ¼ teaspoon mace
 2 teaspoons soda
 ½ cup hot water
 ½ cup molasses

Mix flour, salt, spices and soda; cut cranberries in two and add to dry ingredients. Combine hot water and molasses; blend with first mixture. Transfer to greased pudding mold; cover and steam 2½ hours. Unmold and serve with your favorite pudding sauce.

Do chocolates satisfy the sweet tooth in your family? Here is a light, lovely dessert:

Chocolate Puff Souffle.
 (Serves 6)
 ½ 7-ounce package semi-sweet chocolate
 1 cup milk
 3 tablespoons sugar
 Pinch of salt
 1 tablespoon vanilla
 3 eggs

Melt chocolate with milk in top of double boiler. Beat with egg beater until smooth. Add sugar, salt, vanilla and unbeaten eggs; beat with egg beater 1 minute. Cover, and cook over boiling water 20 minutes without lifting cover. Remove from heat and serve immediately with cream.

It is possible to make cakes without any sugar at all, but better results can be achieved if some sugar is used in the cake. Too many all-syrup cakes have a coarse texture to which we are unaccustomed after years of light, fine-grained cakes. Here are suggestions which you can be proud to add to your wartime cookery collection:

Lynn Says:
Starve the Garbage Can! Precious vitamins lie right underneath the thin skin of carrots. Don't pare, just scrub the vegetable.

 Tops of spring onions make wonderful seasoning. Celery tops are grand for soups, salads. Coarser parts of celery can be pureed for soup.
 Carrot and radish tops are attractive for garnishes. Parsley and lettuce are more than garnish—they're to be eaten.
 Check refrigerator every morning—and the bread box, too. Use every bit of leftover in that day's meals.

All-Bran Prune Cake.
 (Makes an 8 by 8 inch pan)
 ½ cup milk
 ½ cup bran cereal
 ¼ cup butter or margarine
 ½ cup sugar
 1 egg
 1 cup flour
 1½ teaspoons baking powder
 ½ teaspoon nutmeg
 1 teaspoon cinnamon
 1 cup chopped cooked prunes

Pour milk over bran cereal and allow to soak for about 10 minutes. Blend butter and sugar thoroughly, add egg and beat until mixture is light and fluffy. Stir in soaked bran cereal. Sift flour with baking powder and spices; mix with chopped prunes and add to first mixture. Spread in greased cake pan and bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven about 35 minutes.

*Molasses Gingerbread.
 1 cup molasses
 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
 ¼ cup sour cream
 2 eggs
 1 cup flour
 ¼ teaspoon salt
 1 teaspoon soda
 1 teaspoon ginger
 ½ teaspoon allspice
 ½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
 ½ teaspoon ground cloves

Heat molasses and butter. When the latter is melted, remove from the fire; add sour cream and beaten eggs. Mix remainder of ingredients together and sift into liquid mixture. Pour into cake pans lined with greased paper and bake in a slow oven about 30 minutes. Serve hot with cold applesauce or frost with cream cheese-powdered sugar icing, flavored with lemon or orange juice.

Have you enough sugar for a favorite white cake but not enough for an icing? Then here's the answer in a lovely topping which does not require too much honey:
Honey Topping.
 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
 4 tablespoons sugar
 4 tablespoons flour
 4 tablespoons honey
 ½ cup chopped nuts or coconut
 Cream butter, add sugar, mixing well. Add flour and honey and beat until well blended. Fold in nutmeats or coconut. Spread on cake which is still warm from baking and place under broiler until topping bubbles.

A cookie recipe that's low on all ingredients is this delicious wafer which is lovely to look at, too!
Oatmeal Honey Wafers.
 (Makes 16 wafers)
 1 egg
 ½ cup honey
 1 cup rolled oats
 ½ teaspoon salt
 2 teaspoons melted butter or margarine
 ¼ teaspoon vanilla
 ½ cup chopped nuts
 Beat egg until light; add honey, continuing to beat. Then add remaining ingredients. Drop by spoonfuls, about 2 inches apart, on greased baking sheet. Flatten slightly with a knife dipped in cold water. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) about 10 minutes or until a light delicate brown.

CHRIST'S NEW COMMANDMENT

LESSON TEXT—Mark 12:28-34; John 13:34, 35; 15:10-14.
GOLDEN TEXT—A new commandment I give unto you. That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another.—John 13:34.

The "new commandment" of love which Christ gave was not new in the sense of then first being known, but new in its application (John 13:34). Only since Christ had come did men know how to love in truth.

This commandment of love was also first in time, being given before the Ten Commandments (see Lev. 19:18). Then, too, it declared the fundamental of all spiritual life, the first thing man needed to know, that God is love.

It also must take first place in man's thinking, for even as the Decalogue (Ten Commandments) is the heart of all moral law, so love for God and our fellow man is that which makes the Decalogue effective in our lives. Love and obedience go together (John 15:10).

I. Love God (Mark 12:28-30)

Because "God is love" (I John 4:8) He desires man's perfect love toward Him. Because the essence of His being is love, He loves us, and enables us to love Him.

There is more here than a commandment or the performing of a duty. There is the recognition of a controlling principle of all life. In a day of multiplication of powerful machines and organizations, when man is "power conscious" in an unusual way, it is well to recall that the greatest power in all the world is the power of love.

II. Love Your Neighbor (Mark 12:31-34)

Everything about our relationship to Christ and to God expresses itself in our living. No spiritual truth is simply to be admired, or kept on a shelf as a cherished possession. It is to be put to work in the affairs of life.

Love for God means love for our neighbor. If we do not love our neighbor (and that means our fellow man—Luke 10:25-42) how then does the love of God abide in our hearts?

It is worthy of note that the recognition and appreciation of this truth on the part of the scribe brought him near to the kingdom of God, but not into it. He was "not far from," but he was not in it. It is terrifying to think how close men may come to entering without doing so. Reader, have you entered into eternal life through Jesus Christ?

III. Love Your Brethren (John 13:34, 35)

Here we come within the circle of believers and see that the distinctive thing about their fellowship should be love for one another.

The old commandment of love becomes a new one because Christ shows that the measure of that love is to be His great love for us. How did Christ love us? With a perfect, unselfish and thoughtful devotion, which so deeply desired the very most and best for us that He was willing to lay down His holy life as our Saviour from sin.

The thing which marked the early church with glorious distinction was that in a world that hated, they loved one another, and in a world that killed and destroyed, they were even willing to die for their brethren. Tertullian of Carthage (Tunis) said, in the second century, that the enemies of Christianity said of the Christians, "See how they love one another."

IV. Love is Obedient, Joyful and Sacrificial (John 15:10-14)

Love is not an impulsive, erratic movement of man's nature which tries to make up for neglect and unkindness by occasional displays of generosity and thoughtfulness. No indeed. Love walks the straight and steady way of obedience to God's commandments.

Keeping God's law is not accomplished by reading it, or talking about it, or even learning it by heart, but by definitely practicing its precepts.

This brings joy into our lives—the real and perfect joy of Christ. How little we appreciate what this means. Our fellowship with the Lord calls for obedience and sacrifice, but that is not a burdensome, dull, distressing experience. It is a joyful one. Who counts it a trial to do that which pleases a loved one? Do we really love God? Then we will rejoice in our response to His will, yes, in any possible act of devotion.

Love draws no limiting line beyond which it will not go. Love says: "I count not my life dear, if in giving it I may bring deliverance to my friends."

We shall not question His guidance nor blush to own His name, even though the testimony may mean our death. This we shall do for a Christ's sake, and for the sake of a suffering humanity.

Merle Faught skated too close to the channel cut by the steamer Fletcher on her last trip and broke through the ice. A playmate, Russell Harrington, son of Postmaster Harrington, managed to get close enough to grasp his hand and pull him out on the ice.

The steamer Gordon, on her way back to Charlevoix last Thursday p.m. got as far as Holy Island when she was struck by two large pieces of ice which cut a large hole in her bow. Capt. Guard and the crew managed to block it with canvas and the tug Wheeler came from Charlevoix and towed her back to the harbor.

Know them better than they wish you would,
Know their hobbies, their fads and whims,

Just keep a postoffice.

If you want to lose all your self conceit,
Work hard with your hands, mouth, eyes and feet,
Get up early and go to bed late,
Get blown up hourly, sure as fate,
Know everything human and divine,
And speak the language of every clime,
Just keep a postoffice.

If you want to know everyone's Christian name,
Their uncles and aunts and from whence they came,
The names of their kids, from the baby, up;
The tabby cat and the brindle pup,
Their brothers, sisters, cousins and beaux,
And everyone else that anyone knows,
Just keep a postoffice.

If you want to know more than a mortal should,
Of everything bad and everything good,
About everyone who lives in your town,
From the chief executive all the way down,

Know all of this and 'hold it in trust,'
Until your're so swelled you are likely to bust,
Just keep a postoffice.

Michigan continues to hold the national spotlight in today's home front battle against inflation.

First it was Prentiss M. Brown who sponsored the price-fixing bill for the Administration which he was a member of the United States Senate. Brown is an able man, and his rise to leadership is proof of his talents. But when he ran for re-election, he was defeated by the Michigan farmer.

Then Brown became the nation's price administration. Fixing and controlling prices when the national income is almost twice the value of all available merchandise is a tough job at its very best. Brown knew it. He said "No" to the President repeatedly until he finally submitted to the appointment on the war-time responsibility of obeying our commander-in-chief. And with the aid of selective subsidies, he was moderately successful in "holding the line" for three or four months and thus keeping the cost of living from further rises of the inflation spiral.

In the meanwhile, the Michigan farm revolt which resulted in Brown's defeat at the 1942 polls has continued — and, in fact, has actually increased in intensity. The gap between farmer and war worker has widened. This is interesting for a state which has received a greater percentage of government war contracts than any other state in the nation. It merely reflects the extreme difficulty which Governor Kelly experiences in trying to deal with both farm and labor groups on matters of this kind. The milk situation was a recent illustration.

This widening gap between farm and city labor has been due, perhaps for one reason more than any other, to the conviction of the farmer that the Administration has been following an easy wage policy with respect to labor, which being unwilling to give the same favored treatment to the farmer. That industrial wages have risen far beyond the cost of living prices and far beyond the comparative earnings of the farmer is the firmly held belief of the average Michigan farmer today. The city workman, paying perhaps 70 cents a dozen for fresh eggs, forgets that the farmer may receive only about one-half of this amount despite high feed costs.

Also to illustrate how complex this inflation problem has become, the action of the House at Washington in defeating food subsidies is being interpreted by competent observers there as a coalition protest by southern Democrats and northern Republicans against a Fourth Term. And there you have the emotional situation of politics eclipsing economics — a negative action that leaves the basic problem of inflation still unsolved. Responsibility for the partisan vote can be argued indefinitely, like which came first — the chicken or the egg?

The farmers' revolt, based chiefly on a belief of economic inequality, has come a congressional revolt on a 1944 political issue. That food subsidies are inflationary to the degree that they are financed by the U. S. Treasury and hence are payable out of taxes of some kind, tomorrow or a 100 years from now, there can be no question. That the removal of food subsidies would start a rise of food prices that would lead inevitably to higher wages for the city war worker is also conceded. And that the middle class — the so-called white collar folk — would be hurt worst of all is also generally admitted. Try to reconcile these statements!

What then is the solution — if any? Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, who enjoys a national reputation for sound leadership, believes that the basic trouble lies in the Washington policy of trying to control wages by Presidential directives and prices by legislative restrictions. The two are like oil and water; they won't mix and won't work.

Senator Vandenberg is of the opinion that we should follow the example of England and Canada in linking together wages and prices, even at this late hour in a war that for us has gone more than two years. If the Administration were required to hold wages along with prices, then the John L. Lewis type of irresponsible labor leader — and he is in a minority — could be restrained from raiding the consumer's pocketbook in the form of higher coal prices that have already followed the granting of higher wages to the coal miners. Then the cost of living could be stabilized through limited, and selective food subsidies, and the expense of these subsidies would be far less than the cost of higher prices which become, in reality, hidden taxes. And since the government itself is the greatest consumer of commodities today — food or munitions — the public would ultimately benefit through a brake on the national indebtedness. So goes the logic.

"Cost-plus" has made the manufacturer inclined to be indifferent. If the government grants higher wages, the extra production cost doesn't come out of his pocket — the government pays it. The higher the costs, the higher the profits — except for the profits reclaimed through excess profit tax or renegotiation.

This combination of cost-plus profits and wages — one being dependent upon the other in an endless cycle — is another invitation to inflation, & is probably one of the prices we must pay in conducting the hazardous business of a war.

Senator Vandenberg has pointed out that inflation is the deadliest menace today on our home front. He warns that unless something is done at Washington with wisdom and courage — putting national interests ahead of selfish interests — a lot of Americans are going to be badly hurt when inflation gets out of control.

We are inclined to believe that Vandenberg has something worth thinking about. The Michigan senator may have the answer.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Never knew that before, Judge... I would have sworn it was just the other way 'round."

"No, Arthur, the grain used in distilling war-alcohol is not wasted. In an efficient distillery up to 29% of it is reprocessed and is returned to farms like yours in the form of premium-quality livestock feed.

"Remember, this nourishing remainder is plumb full of protein, vitamins and carbohydrates and becomes a highly-prized feed concentrate.

"By developing new products from this processed grain, the modern distilling industry has taken a leading part in solving the vital shortage of cattle and poultry feed ingredients which are rich in vitamins B-1 and B-2, so essential to satisfactory growth and production.

"And what I have told you about the absence of grain waste in making war-alcohol, Arthur, also applies in the making of whiskey, although not a drop has been made in this country for over a year."
