Cherry Harvest A Big Problem

SHORTAGE OF LABOR FEARED.
ALL WHO CAN, URGED TO REGISTER

An army of something over 25,000 pickers is needed this summer from now till August 15 to harvest Michigan's 120 million pound crop of sweet and sour cherries, says Gerald A. Rouse, secretary of the Michigan Association of Cherry Producers. With wartime labor shortages, Rouse views the problem of recruiting these pickers as a tremendous one. The usual army of transient laborers, tourists and unemployed from other states is missing from this year's scene of action. Therefore, growers make the appeal for all who can to spend some time in the Michigan fruit belt picking cherries.

Dates for cherry harvest run from July 4 to July 15 in the South Haven area; from July 10 to August 1 in the orchards around Shelby, Hart and Ludington; from July 15 to August 10 in the Traverse City region, including Charlevoix and Antrim counties. It is estimated the former area comprised of Oceana and Mason Counties has approximately 25 million pounds of cherries to pick. The five counties comprising the Grand Traverse region will harvest 65 million pounds. Rates of pay are set at a minimum of 50c per lug box, which amounts to 2c per pound. With the good picking afforded by this year's crop it means harvesters can earn from $4 to $7 a day. Exceptional pickers will make as much as $10.

Parties wishing to drive their own cars may apply for special gasoline rations. Detailed information of these arrangements is available through B. C. Mellencamp, Charlevoix County Agricultural Agent, Boyne City or Antrim County Agricultural Agent Wm. Kirkpatrick at Bellaire. In Detroit, applications for cherry harvest are received through the Emergency Farm Labor Office, McKerchey Building, 2631 Woodward Avenue.

Those who can are urged to travel into the cherry belt with their own house trailers or tents. Emergency housing has been provided in the form of 1,200 tents and 3,000 cots which are available to cherry pickers through the orchard owners. In every case, however, vacationists are instructed to bring their own bedding, cooking utensils and a cook stove if they have it. Be sure in every case to bring your ration books. Other details are available through your County Agricultural Agent.

Those who participate in cherry harvest will enjoy their part in the response to a patriotic appeal for harvesting of one of the nation's important food crops. It means every additional picker in the Michigan cherry belt will be another valiant soldier in Uncle Sam's gigantic food army.

In This Area

Canning plants will open about July 10. The yield prospects are even better than two weeks ago with estimated tonnage increased to 2,000 tons.

Growers are becoming alarmed over the scarcity of pickers. All those who possibly can join the corps of pickers in the East Jordan area are urged to register at the office of G. E. Boswell, City Treasurer.

In loving memory of our dear mother, daughter and sister, Othilia R. Brintnall, who passed away 6 years ago today June 26, 1938. She suffered many years of pain. Without a word of deep complaint. Her faith in God and loving trust made her just like a living saint. She could not bid us a fond farewell. As the heavenly gates were opened wide, Nor know how much we miss her. Our dear sister from our side. Our lives will never be the same. For memory fills our hearts with pain. But God he loved her too, and thought it best. To take her home with Him to rest.

Men Behind The Chamber of Commerce

Roman (Ray) Klimkiewicz was born in Poland, and came to Syracuse, New York, at the age of seventeen, attended night school and business college. He moved to Detroit in 1924, and went into the insurance business. Ray made good, because his personality, and business ability gave him the chance to prosper. He has been spending his summers here for the last few years, and liked the community so much that he decided to locate here, and so bought the Jordan Inn, and moved here in September, 1943. His family consists of a daughter who lives in Detroit, and a son who is here, and his wife, Stella, who is his real reason for his success. Stella has done a remarkable job at the Inn, she is a grand person, and a marvelous hostess. She is a glutton for work, and we all hope that these people make good so we can have them here with us for ever and ever. Ray's hobbies are fishing and hunting, and his fishing reel is always ready. (Just two nights ago he caught a 24 1/2 inch pike just three blocks from his hotel). Why don't you strangers come in and get acquainted with these two. They need our moral support just as much as our financial support. The best of luck to you two grand people, and with best wishes from the Chamber of Commerce.

Pickle News

By H. E. Brumm, Dist. Mgr.
H. J. Heinz Company
Charlevoix, Michigan

To effect the greatest return possible in growing contract pickles, a grower should not overlook the necessity of having one or two hives of bees per acre near the pickle field. Pollination is affected almost entirely by bees carrying the pollen from the staminate blossoms to the fruit bearing blossoms which will produce a pickle only after being fertilized in this manner. The fruit bearing blossom has a number of sections and each section must be pollinated to insure the development of a well shaped fruit. No doubt the growth of some misshapen sizes can be laid among other reasons to unfit or partial pollination. A pickle field affords very good bee pasture and hives should be located within a half mile of the field to insure good working condition for the bees.

No matter how much fertility you have provided and how promising a vine growth you have secured, it is realize a satisfactory yield of pickles necessary to have bees present to les. When this is overlooked, it in the yield secured which is hard to explain when a good vine growth sometimes leads to a disappointment is considered. For these reasons, growers should take advantage of every opportunity to have some hives of bees near the pickle field.

LOOKING BACKWARD

From the Herald Files of Forty, Thirty and Twenty Years Ago
Compiled by Mrs. Mabel Secord

July 9, 1904

East Jordan celebrated the 4th in 1904. It rained in the forenoon, which curtailed the size of the parade. However, the firemen, Calithumpians, and a nicely decorated float of the Argo Mills lined up but soon took to cover.

In spite of John Kenny's cheerful assurance that there would be a "ball game right after the rain," it looked dubious. It cleared off at noon and East Jordan defeated Harbor Springs 8 to 1. Joe Maddock was the umpire.

The Herald states, "A crowd of several thousand were here, and, in spite of rain and mud, seemed to thoroughly enjoy the day."

L. C. Madison was Marshal of the Day. A one-act farce, "The Coal Heaver's Revenge," was given on a staging across from the Bank. "Daredevil Grant gave several stunts on a bicycle, winding up with a trip down a 70-ft. ladder placed on a building on State St. The ladder was not a "trick" ladder in which the rounds are only six inches apart, but a common paint ladder. "In this act Grant jeopardized his life the handle bars breaking just as he neared the ground. He received several bruises but escaped any broken bones."

Winners in the various contests were: walking greased pole, George Jepson, Jr. Tub race: Ben Weikel, first; Wm. Ivory, second. Sack race: Harry Simmons, first; Guy Pearl, second. Boys' running race: first, Lawrence Monroe; second, Guy Pearl; third, Lee Gilbert. Lawrence Monroe caught the greased pig. The tug-of-war was coached by Maddock and Gotham, the latter's end winning the box of cigars.

The East Jordan Military Band presented a fine drill and gave concerts during the day. In the evening the Dramatic Club of Elk Rapids presented a play, "Little Buckshot," at the Loveday Opera House.

"H. A. Kimball has started work on his new store building between the Miles saloon and the new block going up of Messrs Monroe, Warne and Steffes. When finished those buildings will make a handsome addition to the business portion of our village. The buildings are to be constructed of brick, the cement block idea having been abandoned."

"Clark Haire, General Manager of the Detroit and Charlevoix railway was in our village Saturday, looking for a dwelling and if he finds one suitable he will move his family here from Deward in order to give his children the advantages of our schools." (The Haire family lived in the present John Porter house.)

The Antrim Iron Co. at Mancelona had a rule carrying insurance on all employees who had been with them more than a year. This would be cancelled, should the man leave their employ and secure work with another firm. Ed Touchstone, who worked for them a number of years, left their employ and engaged in farming near East Jordan and soon afterwards died. The company, not being informed of this, supposed he was working elsewhere and cancelled the insurance. On learning of Mr. Touchstone's illness and death, they renewed it and the widow received a check for $1,000 June 20th.

Lydia Blount, who has been teaching in Porto Rico, is home for the summer vacation.

Miss Anna Wagbo went to Harbor Springs Tuesday, where she has a position.

Wheat Cradlers to Enter Unique Contest at Tecumseh, July 8

Nationwide interest will focus upon a wheat tithing project and old-timers' cradling contest scheduled July 8 at Tecumseh, Mich., to reap 14 acres of grain planted from the parent wheat of one cubic inch used for seed originally in 1940.

With the Tecumseh Friends church to get its annual one-tenth of the harvest in the six-year venture, onlookers will watch three classes of contestants, grouped by age.

According to Perry Hayden, Tecumseh miller and sponsor of the project, cradlers bringing their own ancient equipment will be matched up to 59 years as juniors, from 60 to 79 as hustlers and from 80 years and up as pioneers.

The wheat selected and planted in 1940 is Bald Rock, a variety developed by plant breeders at MSC. The original 360 kernels produced 18,000 in 1941, with one-tenth to the church. The harvest in 1942 was 70 pounds, a 55 fold return and seven pounds worth 14 cents went to the church. In 1943 the yield was 17 bushels, threshed out at M.S.C.

The 1943 plantings to be harvested this month cover 14 acres of land provided by Henry Ford.

Cradling contest judges will be Charles Figy, state commissioner of agriculture; Roy E. Decker, head of the college farm crops department, and Garfield Farley, Albion, a director of the Michigan Crop Improvement association. Points for scoring will be evenness of stubble, uniformity in row of cut grain, uniformity of swath and scarcity of gleanings.

Bond Sale Lags Coming To A Close

EVERY CITIZEN MUST DO THEIR SHARE TO MEET OUR OBLIGATIONS

With end of the 5th War Loan only a matter of hours away East Jordan is making a last minute effort to complete our $140,000 quota and to maintain the fine record we have set in all previous drives. As we go to press the committee announced that to date 238 separate sales have produced the total of $58,125 in Bonds. Commitments and pledges now on record will add an additional $40,000 . . . still leaving approximately $50,000 to be sold by Saturday night. Special features of this 'over the top' drive include a barrage of circulars, a Mayor's Proclamation and an intensified individual effort by the full force of volunteer bond-men. No stone is being left unturned in the effort to bring home to every person in East Jordan the great importance of filling our quota and meeting the responsibilities of the war shoulder to shoulder with our boys on the world flung battle fronts.

If YOU haven't put the last cent possible in another Victory Bond, then do it now — today. This is the biggest, the most vitally important financial effort of the whole War. Go to the Bank, or the Post Office, before Saturday evening AND BUY MORE THAN BEFORE.

GOP FORESEES VICTORY WITH DEWEY-BRICKER

Republicans Unite Solidly Behind Governors' Ticket For Presidential Race.

By GEORGE A. BARCLAY
AMID scenes of harmony and enthusiasm that proclaimed to the nation the Republican party's unity of purpose, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York was chosen the party's wartime nominee for the presidency at the national convention in Chicago.

The delegates, whose nominating intentions had been apparent long before they assembled in Chicago, picked the 42-year-old governor by a 1056-to-1 vote. Then they made it an all-governer, East-Middle West ticket by choosing Ohio's John W. Bricker for the vice-presidential nomination. A single Wisconsin delegate, Grant Ritter, farmer of Beloit, had cast a single ballot for Gen. Douglas MacArthur for the presidency. Governor Bricker was nominated unanimously.

Wendell L. Willkie, Republican standard-bearer in 1940, was quick to congratulate Governor Dewey.

"You have one of the great opportunities of history," he told the nominee in a message sent from New York City.

Flies to Chicago.

As Franklin D. Roosevelt did in 1932, Governor Dewey flew to Chicago from Albany, New York, to deliver in person his acceptance speech to the delegates. Vast crowds surging around the Chicago Stadium hailed the nominee when he arrived from the airport. Inside the convention hall he was given a triumphant ovation that ended only when Congressman Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts, house minority leader and permanent chairman of the convention, succeeded in gaveling silence.

Governor Dewey's speech was forthright and direct. It was received with rousing cheers by the delegates and the 25,000 citizens who thronged the convention hall to the rafters.

The nominee accepted his great new honor with a pledge to "end one-man government in America," crush Germany and Japan's will to make war and devote himself to "rewinning freedom" at home.

The New Deal administration, he told the delegates, has grown "old and tired and quarrelsome in office" and is unequal to the great, pressing problems of war and peace.

Keep High Command.

Declaring that the military conduct of the war "must remain completely out of politics," Governor Dewey said he wanted to make it "crystal clear" that any change in administration would not involve changes in the high command. Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, and Adm. Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the U. S. fleet, are doing a "superb job" he declared and should retain their present position and responsibilities.

Governor Dewey made known unmistakably that he will stand squarely on his party's foreign declaration and brook no postwar international plan that contemplates a super-state. He did envision, however, American participation with other sovereign nations in a cooperative effort to prevent future wars.

He pledged that he will make full employment a first objective of national policy. He declared the New Deal had never had an employment policy and finally got people to work only after the country had entered the war.

High interest had centered in the platform-building job on which the drafting committee headed by Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio had toiled. Special attention was focused on the controversial foreign policy plank which had offered the only issue capable of producing a rousing inter-party battle.

The result, however, was a compromise—a middle-of-the-road statement calculated to conciliate internationalist and pro-nationalist elements in the party at the same time. This foreign policy plank favors American participation in postwar security measures through "organized international cooperation," but shuns membership in a World State.

In sessions of the platform committee preceding the presentation of its report, the governors of 15 states had sought to have more positive and binding commitments on post-

Highlights . . . . .

ROMANCE: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dewey became acquainted in Chicago in 1923, when Mrs. Dewey, the former Frances Hutt of Sherman, Texas, and Dewey were both music students at a summer course. Five years later when both had gone to New York for further study they were married. Mr. Dewey was practicing law at the time, and Miss Hutt was singing the lead in a musical comedy.

war international collaboration included. Their views had the vigorous support of Wendell Willkie. But the prospects of any convention-fueled battle quickly faded when the delegates shouted their acceptance of the platform without any audible dissent.

Hail Dewey Leadership.

The convention's action on foreign policy as well as on other planks in the platform confirmed the view that the Republican party will look to Governor Dewey for decisive leadership. For the delegates left to the nominee the responsibility for interpreting the platform and translating its planks into a definite program.

The platform's statements urging safeguards for the trenchment and expansion of American farming, industry, commerce and labor were expressions of traditional Republican doctrine.

The farm plank, for instance, recommended what it calls an "American market price" as opposed to subsidies, at the same time leaving the door open for aid from the government when and as needed. It promises the American farmer abundant production of food and fiber crops. It proclaims the need of guaranteeing farmers "freedom from regimentation and confusing government manipulation and control of farm programs."

Realistically enough, the farm plank gives heed to the fact that new surpluses might develop in the postwar world, with markets declining, and it endorses the principle of crop adjustment only in times when surpluses to be dealt with are judged to have become abnormal and to have exceeded "manageable proportions."

Domestic Objectives.

In the field of domestic policy, the platform enunciates a number of objectives. These include "taking the government out of competition with private industry" and promotion of fullest employment through private enterprise.

The platform pledges full support in restoring small business to a profitable basis by elimination of "excessive and repressive regulations and government competition."

Decentralization of government controls, return to constitutional government, abolition of "wasteful government spending," protection of the rights of "free American labor"—of which the party proclaims itself the "historical champion"—all are given their place in the program which the Republican party seeks to effectuate.

The labor plank is paced by a vigorous denunciation of the New Deal administration of labor laws.

Gov. Warren's Keynote Address. Governor Warren's keynote address was a vigorous performance. He listed these objectives of the party:

"To get the boys back home again—victorious and with all speed.
"To open the door for all Americans—to open, not just to jobs, but to opportunity.

"To make and guard the peace so wisely and so well that this time will be the last time that American homes are called

Briefs . . . . .

ALBANY TO WHITE HOUSE: The New York gubernatorial office has been the training course for four Presidents and two unsuccessful candidates. Dewey is the seventh nominee to come before the national electorate after serving in Albany as governor. Four of the previous governors have reached the White House: Martin Van Buren, Grover Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

on to give their sons and daughters to the agony and tragedy of war."

Elaborating on the principle of providing jobs as well as opportunity, Governor Warren declared that the formula lay in stimulating production to full blast, in a climate favorable to free enterprise.

After accepting the permanent convention chairmanship, Representative Martin ripped into the New Deal ideology, which, he said, ". . . lives upon vast streams of government debt, and taking its shapes and destinies from the directives of a bureaucratic elite under the command of a self-inspired leader."

"The first thing the Republican party will do when it comes into power will be to restore to congress its responsibility and function as the people's special instrument of control over their government," Martin said.

Herbert Hoover Speaks.

As the party's elder statesman versed in international affairs because of his experience as Allied food administrator during the first World War, Herbert Hoover took up the question of foreign policy, saying:

"It is obvious from the rise of nationalism that ideas of world supergovernment, no matter how idealistic, are already dead. . . . Peace must be based upon cooperation between independent, sovereign nations."

Speaks for Women.

Speaking for the women, Rep. Clare Boothe Luce of Connecticut raised the question of the U. S. doughboy's wants in the future.

"G. I. Joe wants his country to be secure, from here out. . . ." she declared.

"If Jim could stand here and talk to you, he'd say:

"Listen, folks, the past wasn't perfect. But skip it. Get on with the business of making this old world better.

". . . . We come to choose a president who need not apologize for the mistakes of the past, but who will redeem them, who need not explain G. I. Jim's death, but will justify it."

Bricker Stirs Delegates.

The honor of nominating Governor Dewey for the presidency went to Gov. Dwight Griswold of Nebraska. Governor Bricker who had withdrawn his own candidacy seconded the nomination with an eloquent speech in which he declared he was "more interested in defeating the New Deal philosophy of absolutism than being president of the United States," so he was asking the Ohio delegation to cast its vote for Governor Dewey.

Household Hints

Damp clothes well hung are half ironed, and a clean line keeps clothes clean.

If a paper towel is used to line the bottom of the vegetable hydrator in the refrigerator it will absorb excess moisture and prevent spoilage.

When painting around light switch plates or similar metal surfaces, coat such surfaces with vaseline before beginning and it will be easy to wipe off surplus splashes.

Voile, lawn or organdy curtains will wash more easily if the dust is first shaken loose, then the curtains dipped in cold water before using warm water. Warm water sets the dirt, cold loosens it.

"Frosting" Glass may be done easily by simply painting the glass with white lead and oil. This can be painted on smooth, or given a stipple effect by twisting the brush.

A marble or two dropped in the toe of stockings will keep them from blowing and wrapping around the line when hung outdoors in windy weather.

Reveille on the Jordan

Just a little message to the boys in the service from the folks back home. Sponsored by the East Jordan Community Service Club.

Dear Friends:

The date 1776 stands out in most of our minds as an important time in the history of our country. We can rightfully regard this Fourth of July as an important time in our lives. In the past we have rejoiced with enthusiasm in celebration as we recalled the great freedom, liberty, and independence that we as citizens of America were able to enjoy. Now that freedom, liberty, and independence are at stake again, you, our fighting men and women, are doing your all to preserve it; we at home still enjoy much of this liberty; we have not been left homeless by falling bombs, we have not been left starving, we are not deprived of our freedom to worship. We do however, feel a deep concern for the people of other countries who have been deprived of many of these liberties. As this holiday nears our thoughts are not centered entirely on this past independence day but rather we are looking ahead to a greater day when the Liberty bells will again ring out the news of a freedom from opposing foes; a freedom to be enjoyed by all those who have been oppressed by our ruthless enemies. Our hopes and prayers are that God may grant us this independence in the year of 1944.

SERVICE NOTES

That anxiously awaited word from Ye Merry Ole England has finally arrived. The only word direct, however, is a V-mail letter from BILL SANDERSON, in which he gives us a new address. Even though Bill's letter was dated prior to D-day, yet we are sure that he was one of the fellows that helped to make the invasion successful. Bill as well as EUGENE CRANDALL are members of the ground maintenance crews stationed in England. This reminds us too of a news release from the public relations office stating that Eugene was one of a crew who prepared a B-24 Liberator for take-off missions to support the first landing operation in France on June 6th. Any news coming out of England is very welcome, but we cannot expect that all news will be good news considering the vastness of this new operation. This fact is again brought to our attention by the news that HARRY PEARSALL, from whom our last letter from England was received prior to invasion day, is now again back in England recovering from wounds received while in the French operations. We do not know the extent of Harry's wounds but are anxiously awaiting a letter direct from him giving us more details. No doubt several of you are in on the big push but so far we are only sure of two of our local servicemen who are taking part, namely, ERVIN MURPHY and CHARLIE DENNIS. Erv writes home that on the first three days of the invasion he was at a place where there was plenty of noise and it wasn't caused by people popping popcorn. We learn that Charlie landed in France a few days after D-day and reports the country to be very beautiful although much destruction is in view. We are also told that while still in England, Charlie happened to meet LEONARD BARBER. At the time of this writing no further word has been received and we hope that the old saying of no news is good news is true in this case. . . . Your former editor, ED REULING has left Great Lakes where he received his recent assignment and is now located at the Naval Advance Base Personnel Depot in San Bruno, California. . . . Two soldier names have been added to the mailing list this week. They are BRYCE VANCE, who is beginning training at Camp Robinson, Arkansas, and JAMES BOWEN stationed at Camp Lee, Virginia. . . . ELDON NEUMANN was very fortunate this past week in being transferred to his home state for further army training. He is now stationed at Selfridge Field, Michigan, with the 78th AAF Base Unit, AACSS, S and R center. . . . We mentioned last week that we were not expecting too much mail from the South Pacific area for a time at least due to the extensive naval operation then in progress. We certainly missed the mark when we made that statement as this week including one letter from Burma we have a total of five letters from that area. As you probably guessed the letter from Burma comes from DUANE "SONNY" HOSLER who reports in a change of address as he is now a scout with the infantry and getting along fine so far. The fact that the invasion news is being watched by everyone regardless of location is apparent from Sonny's letter as he remarked about the news as it was then coming to them in that area on June 10th, the day his letter was written. In the same sentence, though, he does not forget his own heater of action as he goes on to tell us that they have the Japs on the run and only hope that the run is completed before the monsoons set in. To keep you posted on the boxing career of Sonny we quote the last paragraph of his letter: "There are several good boxing teams here. I have been offered the middleweight spot on an American team to tour India but I feel as though my place is with my outfit and I don't think I'll accept. I am scheduled to fight a British officer the 20th of June and after that my boxing career will be over for the duration." . . . The only letter received from a sailor this past week comes from JACK GOTHRO who writes from the New Hebrides Islands. He reports in that he has a slight change of address due to his having been transferred to the naval air force; of course, Jack considers this to be a good deal. Everything is going oke with him and he enjoys good sleeping quarters and good food. Swimming is also very enjoyable until a shark interferes. . . . Another letter from that area and the first one received from WILLIAM H. CLARK came in this past week. The rule seems to be that it takes sometime for the paper to catch up with the fellows after being sent overseas and Bill's case is no exception to the rule. He tells us that in his being overseas nearly two months only one paper has reached him and a few letters from home. We hope that by this time some of this long awaited mail has caught up with him and we feel certain that it has as his address was correct on the mailing list. . . . The same thing holds true for RUDOLPH CIHAK who also is awaiting the last few months issues to catch up with him. We hope that Rudy's change of address isn't the cause of this delay. Life seems to be going on the same for him and reports the weather to be much improved over the rainy season. . . . Supporting a nice 45 Tommy Gun on the battlefield of New Guinea is the job of HERSHALL NOWLAND. Hershall wonders if this gun would not work for deer hunting back home as he says it really sprays lead. A few weeks ago we listed the fellows from home that are also located on this island with the APO number of 322 and for the benefit of those we will list a few of the fellows who have the APO number of 31A and are serving with the 149th Field Artillery division. They are JACK ISAMAN, TARENCE "BUD" STALEY, CLOVER SCOTT, ROY GOKEE, WILLIAM HOFFMAN, and Hershall. We hope that by listing these APO numbers many of you will be able to contact each other. . . . Former coach ABE COHN acts as an advance agent and informs us of the good news that Marine BUD STREHL is now on his way home after completing a rough stretch of overseas duties. He tells us that Bud is looking good in spite of his experiences in participating in the South Pacific warfare. Sports still take up much of Abe's extra time and he recently participated in an official way with the sports tournament on the island in the baseball, softball, boxing, and basketball play-offs. He finds it good practice to keep up with the new rules and to help him to keep from getting rusty on his pet pastime — athletics. . . . After leaving Camp Van Dorn, Mississippi, where he received basic training, BENNY BENSON was moved to Camp Phillips, Kansas, and is with the 939th Ordnance Company. CARROLL BARTHOLOMEW who also took basic training at Camp Van Dorn remains there but is now with the 496th Ordnance company. . . . The only letter received from the Italian front came again from CLIFFORD GREEN. Cliff wrote in this week to tell us he is one of the fellows that shared in the march into Rome and at the time of his writing the letter, had already seen much of the famous city. Cliff wants us to use this means to summon Chief of Police Harry Simmons to the fact that he owes this soldier a letter. Cliff still rates the honor of being Reveille's best correspondent. . . . One of the more recent additions to the mailing list, LAVERN ARCHER, writes in from Fort McClellan, Alabama, his new location. LaVern was at first stationed at Fort Sheridan, Illinois, where he worked as cook for four weeks. His expectations are that he will remain at this camp for eighteen weeks and hopes that his next transfer may be to some northern camp as the heat of Alabama is a little extreme. . . . A brief letter received from BRUCE WOODCOCK gives us his new address as being Station Hospital Ward 9, Kelly Field, Texas. He tells us that this is not an address that he is pleased with as it means a stay in the hospital as he recently underwent an operation. Bruce, like many others of our servicemen, is anxious for that boat ride and doesn't appreciate having these operations keep him, back. We wish Bruce a speedy recovery and hope that before long we'll hear that he's well and has again joined his buddies. . . . News came this past week that HAROLD THOMAS has arrived safely in England. The trip over was very enjoyable and he finds living conditions overseas to his liking. . . . We note that WALT THORSEN has moved to Camp Cooke, California, and is with the 834th AAA AW Bn. (SP). An old friend of Walt's is also stationed there, namely, STUB BOWMAN, who is with Co. A of the 22nd Tank Bn. Let us know if it has been possible for you to meet. . . . CLIFFORD DENNIS, who is in the same vicinity as Abe Cohn has now been put in charge of the motor pool in that location. We also learn that Cliff's mother is expecting a package soon with some home made gifts from him. A came with mother of pearl trim is one of the articles that he has made and mailed to her. His brother DELBERT is still located in England and has written his parents that on invasion day he was granted a 24-hour pass which he spent in town. . . . For the first time we are consolidating what has formerly been classed in Home Front News along with the news of those in the service who are away from home, in the column which you notice we now call service notes. This week found BOB PRAY, LELAND HICKOX, and HARRY MOORE in the home town once again. Bob, who has been stationed at Lawson General Hospital in Atlanta, Georgia, was sent to Camp Grant, Illinois, recently and finding the place to be overcrowded was granted a furlough which enabled him to spend some time with folks at home. He rather expects that his group will be again shipped out of Camp Grant to another camp. While at Lawson he helped care for many war casualties since he is with the medical corps. . . . Harry Moore came home on a short furlough from Camp Campbell, Kentucky. He expects that their outfit will shove off very soon for across and Harry is anxious to do his part with their tank destroyer outfit. . . . Leland says he is gradually becoming accustomed to his new line of duty having recently been transferred to the infantry along with so many thousand others.

HAVE YOU A TRUE PICTURE OF YOUR ELECTRIC BILL?

MANY folks don't. They're as far from the real facts as this photo in an amusement park mirror!

Proof? In a nation-wide survey, 42% of the people sharply overestimated the amount of their last electric bill. 59% didn't realize that rates had been reduced in the last fifteen years—and 95% didn't realize how much!

Actually, the average American family gets about twice as much electricity today as it did fifteen years ago for the same money.

“For the same money.” That's the clue. You don't realize that rates are down, because your bill may be as much as it was fifteen years ago—or perhaps even more. But you have more electric appliances now. You're using more electricity—and you get about twice as much for what you pay.

Seeing is believing. We have just witnessed with our own eyes a remarkable days demonstration by the 76th division at Camp McCoy Wisconsin in which American doughboys from 48 states demonstrated the combat use of such modern weapons as the automatic rifle, machine gun mortars, pistols, grenades, anti-tank guns, flame throwers, and rocket firing bazooka.

We have seen doughboys go through the rigorous bayonet drills, hurl grenades at pill boxes, wield the deadly machete knife in practice combat against Japs, and harden their bodies and steel their nerves by crawling on their bellies through mud holes and barbed wire toward an enemy trench while live bullets cut through the air three feet above their heads, and while dynamite blasts rocked the earth one to five feet away.

We saw doughboys protected by an artillery barrage advance upon fortified points with the aid of the finest military weapons the world has ever seen. All the product of the genius and labor of American industry.

We saw 10,000 doughboys parade in division review amid a blinding rainstorm that drenched everyone, General to Doughboy will merit well the highest honors that a grateful country can bestow. The Navy, the Air Corps, the Marines and other branches of their service have big jobs to do. Yet it's still the doughboy armed with a rifle, pistol and other equipment weighing seventy-six pounds in all who is the first to engage the enemy in hand to hand combat and who is the last to hold the land which he has thus seized. The exploits of their branches of the service have been well publicized. Now seems an appropriate time to give a hand to the man who takes the greatest risks and performs an indispensable service.

The 400 industrial leaders were given a real taste of army life. Arriving in special trains from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan, they were garbed in military fatigue clothing, given field rations for a mid-day lunch, fed and lodged in army barracks.

Visitors had the opportunity to witness actual demonstrations of the use of modern weapons from anti-tank guns to the well known bazooka which fires rocket shells. Artillery guns laid down a barrage of 105 and 15 millimeter shells while doughboys simulated an advance toward enemy positions.

The impact of the day's experience was tremendous. We had come from a civilian world into a military world with only a few hours time between them back at home with the normal security of life, we grumbled a bit over gasoline and food rationing, we fuss over lack of this and that. Following this impact of the military is hard, you feel ashamed that any Michigan worker would go out on a strike or that you had ever grumbled about any petty annoyance of civilian life.

Picture if you can the following experience that every man in an infantry company must undergo before he is permitted to enter actual combat. It is called infiltration training. The setting is a simulated no-mans land, criss-crossed with barbed wire and pocketed with shell holes, leading to an enemy trench.

The doughboys armed with rifles make their way toward the enemy trench, machine guns are firing live bullets in criss-cross fashion over their heads, in a control tower an operator sets off deafening blasts of dynamite that spout up high in the air like the burst of an artillery shell. The blasts spray mud over the men. The whirl of live bullets is in their ears.

Thus the army conditions each infantryman to actual battle scenes. It is a grim business as it makes you think and think.

The days program was concluded with a division review. After a hot day clouds appeared in the west and soon a heavy thunderstorm broke loose. The 100,000 infantrymen took it as part of the war training. Without raincoats, General and Private alike participated in the event while civilians caught the spirit of the occasion and shouted round after round of cheers as the units marched by.

Seeing is believing. We only wish that every person on the Michigan front could have shared these experiences and could have seen for themselves what the American boys in camp or overseas today are doing for them. It would have made you more proud to be an American.

The indispensable man in this war isn't the general. No siree!

And it isn't the admiral either, important as he may be. Our nomination for the honor, and such should be, goes to the man who, armed with a rifle, cold steel bayonet and a pistol, meets the enemy face to face in actual combat. It is kill or be killed — not a pleasant alternative to choose. You either vanquish the other man, or you become a victim yourself of his rifle or bayonet or perhaps an enemy shell or grenade on which your name has been written.

Eye-witness experience as an observer at Camp McCoy, Wisconsin, where some 10,000 men are being trained today for infantry duty overseas, prompted the above observation. We offer it in all sincerity, and with full appreciation for the sacrificial service performed by men in other branches of military service.

The impression is reinforced by personal experiences of the writer during World War I, both in this country and in France. Yes, we have met the doughboy before, although our own branch of the service was the horse-drawn artillery, assigned to an infantry division.

As we reported last week, seeing is believing. Sure, you are patriotic. You're doing your part to help win the war. But until you can see for yourself just what this war means in terms of personal sacrifice by the young man in the infantry you are utterly unable to grasp its real significance.

What are you going to do tomorrow?

Well, brace yourself for this experience, all in a day's work for the American doughboy.

First call is at 5:40 a. m. Breakfast follows shortly afterwards. Then you spend a few hours practicing bayonet drill in which you ram cold steel into a stuffed dummy or parry the thrusts of an associate as he practices on you, a make-believe foe. It means plenty of hard, hard physical exertion.

You undergo judo training that is designed to help you out-fight a tricky Jap. Wielding a long machete knife is just one part of it. It's tough and hard. Kill or be killed. Japs don't take prisoners, and neither do we.

Or perhaps you practice hurling hand grenades at distances of 30 to 128 feet into enemy fox holes. Your duties will depend, of course, upon the task the army selects for you. You may be attached to an automatic rifle team, or a 60 or 81 millimeter mortar squad. You may be assigned to a light or heavy machine gun squad, or even an anti-tank gun team or the 105 millimeter howitzer cannon which is used by the infantry, stangely enough in combat fighting.

Firing of many infantry weapons must be done on ranges where there is plenty of room for practice shooting force of an artillery shell.

That involves a nice, long hike there and back.

shooting mud and dirt and smoke high into the air, with the sound and And the pack on your back — brother, you haven't seen anything! You must carry a rifle, bayonet, pistol, gas mask, field glasses, raincoat, first aid kit, entrenching tool to dig your own fox hole, a shelter half with poles and pins, blanket, canteen and cup, meat can, knife, fork and spoon, cartridge belt, three grenades and grenade launcher, anti-tank grenade, ammunition bag and six rounds of mortar, plus your clothes and shoes. Yes, all this, mister. And it weighs only 92 pounds!

For an afternoon's diversion, you may undergo the following.

It's required of every man in the infantry — private or officer — before he is permitted to enter actual combat dangers.

It is called infiltration training, and mister, is it mean! You must crawl over a simulated no-man's land, pocketed with shell holes filled with mud and criss-crossed by barbed wire. Live machine gun bullets whistle over your head. In fact, observers can view each bullet's path, as it is marked by trails of red fire. This tracer shows you exactly where the bullet travels.

You crawl on your belly, head down, inching your way toward the enemy trench. Inside a watch tower overlooking this no-man's land is an officer. He has a map on which is located land mines. He presses a button, and off goes a dynamite blast. The day's field work over, you march back to camp.

Your feet are tired. You are weary all over. It's no strawberry festival. And then perhaps for an evening's climax you will have an event known as a divisional review. In the case of the Camp McCoy party, various infantry units started to assemble at 4:30 p. m. to march to the reviewing field although the review itself was not to begin until 7 o'clock — two and a half hours later.

At 5:30 p. m., while the guests were enjoying a chicken dinner, a thunderstorm roared out of the west. The sky was purple black. It rained in sheets. At 6:30 p. m. it was time for us to leave in jeeps and trucks for the parade ground, and it was still pouring cats and dogs.

This divisional review was a classic. Major General William R. Schmidt, the "old man" of the 76th Division, and his aides including Brig. General H. C. Evans, (artillery), stood in a blinding, torrential rain. The band marched and played bravely, and doughboys in battalions of about 500 men in each slogged by the divisional staff and the visitors' reviewing stand. Everyone was wet as drowned rats. You don't call off a war when it rains, and you don't postpone a divisional review if the weather is bad.

Witnessing the 76th division in action at Camp McCoy, we grasped anew why modern war is a young man's war. We retreats couldn't the method of putting together the simple six-inch quilt block shown here and that is why the pattern was called the kaleidoscope. This quilt has just the right flavor for today's decorating trends. It will make a stunning spread for your bed either in the colors suggested here or in any other combination that suits your room. Get Into Action For Full Victory!

MR. WINKLE GOES TO WAR
By THEODORE PRATT
W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY THUS FAR: Forty-four-year-old Wilbert Winkle, who operates a repair shop in the alley back of his home, is notified by his draft board that he is in 1-A. He breaks the bad news to his domineering wife, Amy, who now hates to part with him. On arriving at camp Mr. Winkle is given his physical and to his great surprise and dismay, is accepted for service. He is sent to Camp Squibb, a thousand miles from home, where he meets Mr. Tinker, a man of his own age. After much hard training, Mr. Winkle is called in before his superior officer and told he is over 38 and can go home if he chooses, but Winkle says he'll stay in the army. He graduates from Motor Mechanics school.

CHAPTER IX

Mr. Winkle peered at him through his glasses and blinked. He had seen the Army work other wonders, even on himself, but never a miracle like this. "That's all right," he murmured.

"I suppose," Freddie went on, "I'm responsible for you being called 'Pop,' too."

"I don't mind," Mr. Winkle assured him. "In fact, I rather like it."

"Me," said Mr. Tinker, "I don't believe it. It's somebody else pretending to be him."

"He's a reformed character," Jack agreed.

Freddie looked at the bar. "I'm not so reformed I won't buy everybody a drink."

Over their glasses, in the noisy bar, Freddie explained how he had come to see the light. He was articulate about it.

"I'm not so reformed I won't buy everybody a drink."

"The kid here did it," he said, indicating Jack. "When I figure the Army made him almost up to licking me, I thought it must have something. Even for me. I got a look at myself, I mean, what I had been. I didn't even like my mustache."

"What about the Alphabet?" Mr. Winkle inquired.

"He isn't so bad," Freddie answered, "when you get to know him."

"You see?" Jack asked. "He's got the right attitude. Of course, he may still need a little polishing here and there, but I'm doing that."

Jack gave a practical demonstration of this when Freddie's gaze wandered to girls in the bar. "Come on," he told Freddie, "you're a strictly USO type now."

The next day Mr. Winkle was given a week's furlough. The permanent post to which he and the other Motor Mechanics School Graduates were to be sent wouldn't be ready to receive them for this length of time. He could, if he wished, return home at his own expense.

He sent Amy a telegram and then boarded a train.

Amy was at the station to meet him. At first they just stared at each other without being able to do anything else. It was an awkward moment. Then Amy cried, "Oh, Wilbert, I didn't think I would ever see you again!"

They embraced. He felt clumsy when he kissed her. It was almost as strange coming back to her as it was leaving her.

"Why," said Amy, "I hardly know you." She seemed surprised. She touched the buttons of his uniform.

"How are you?" he asked.

"I'm fine." She examined him again in some admiration. "I never thought you'd look like that in a uniform. And your stomach—it's gone. You'll have to have your picture taken."

"Well," he asked again, "how are you, Amy?"

"I'm fine," she repeated. Mr. Winkle drove, for the novelty of feeling a regular car under his hands. It seemed light and dangerous after the trucks and command cars with which he had dealt lately in his field training.

He sensed Amy looking at him. "You've put on weight." She spoke in an aggrieved tone.

"I wrote you about it," he reminded.

"At least ten pounds."

"Twelve and a half."

"You never did that before." She sounded still more hurt. "No matter how much I fed you."

"It isn't the cooking," he assured her. "It's the exercise and being outdoors that makes you eat more."

Though he knew she felt better after he said this, a restraint remained between them. They found they could not at once, and easily, take up where they left off. The months in between, during which each had had another life, interfered and came between them. They had to get to know each other all over again.

Mr. Winkle sensed her staring at him anew, in a different way. He glanced at her, and saw that her gaze was contemplative, searching, a little suspicious.

He feared that she was reverting to being a temptress, and that the effects of his suddenly being made into a soldier were wearing off. He supposed he couldn't be sure about that until after the war and he returned, if he did, to his regular life.

"Wilbert," she asked, "did you see any women?"

"I told you I'd send you a postcard when I found somebody else," he said. "You didn't get one, did you?"

"No," she admitted slowly. She sat staring at him and he turned to look her for an instant straight in the eye. "I'm glad I didn't," she told him in a low voice.

Mr. Winkle was happy when she dropped the subject.

It was his turn to feel hurt when they reached the house and sneaked inside so none of the neighbors would see him.

Penelope, instead of greeting him joyously, as would have been expected, scrunched down on the floor, growling and barking, and glaring at him with disapproval. Mrs. Winkle scolded her, but it made no impression. Even when Mr. Winkle spoke to her coaxingly and let her sniff his hand, she wouldn't accept him or have anything to do with him. So far as Penelope was concerned, he was a stranger in his own house.

It was barely daylight when he awakened. He expected to hear the bustle of many men moving and cursing and the bugle tooting its dreadful call. He listened, not quite sure of where he was. He heard Amy's light breathing. He looked at his watch. It was exactly 5:45.

He tried to go back to sleep again. This was the morning of his kingship.

But the king couldn't sleep any more. Harsh habit interfered, refusing him his crown.

It being also his accustomed time to eat, he felt hungry. After a time he got up quietly, put on his bathrobe, over his pajamas, and went out. Downstairs, Penelope growled, snarled when he spoke to her, and snapped when he made to pat her. He wandered outdoors just as a strange newsboy delivered the paper. The boy looked at him, startled, then interested, then wise, and went away whistling.

Mr. Winkle didn't approve of such precocious behavior in one so young.

He investigated the kitchen, over Penelope's continued protests, and devoured odd assortments of food. He had an idea that tickled him.

Sometime later, with a daintily prepared tray and the newspaper resting at one side of it, he went in to awaken Amy. Her eyes went wide and staring as he saluted and announced "Breakfast in bed for you, queen."

Mr. Winkle visited his shop to see that his tools and machines were in good order. He made small repairs about the house. He had his photograph taken so that Amy could have him up over the mantel while he was away, or if he didn't ever return.

He talked with Mr. Wescott, who first laughed outright at the sight of Mr. Winkle in his uniform and then was prone to be triumphant about his prediction for him. "What did I tell you?" he crowed. "You're being used as a mechanic, just like I said. You'll stay right here."

Formerly he and Mr. Wescott had considered together the large and broad scale aspects of war, and now his neighbor expected that, as an actual military man, he would have some expert ideas.

"Our antitank guns," Mr. Wescott inquired, "are they going to be able to stop the Germans?"

"I don't know a thing about them," said Mr. Winkle.

"But surely in your training—"

Mr. Winkle coughed apologetically. "I never saw one."

Mr. Wescott considered. A little of his pompousness left him and he proposed, "Perhaps I shouldn't be asking such questions. You probably have your orders not to let out any military secrets."

"No," said Mr. Winkle, "that isn't it. I don't know any military secrets."

"Thanks?" asked Mr. Wescott. "I've never seen a tank."

Mr. Wescott stared at him. He dropped the subject, and took up the Mediterranean campaign.

"How is it coming along?" Mr. Winkle asked.

"Do you mean to say you don't know?" demanded Mr. Wescott.

"Well," said Mr. Winkle, "I hardly ever saw a paper in camp. Since I've been home I've glanced at the headlines a little, but I haven't read the details much."

"You," spluttered Mr. Wescott,

"above all people, you, in the service—"

"There isn't much time to think about it," Mr. Winkle apologized.

"But you don't even sound interested," Mr. Wescott complained.

"Somehow," said Mr. Winkle, "I've come to leave that up to the generals."

"Of course," said Mr. Wescott stiffly. "Yes. Of course." He gathered the forces of his indignation and scolded pettishly. "All I can say is that you aren't any more of a soldier than I thought you'd be."

Too late, Mr. Winkle realized that he had offended his neighbor, that Mr. Wescott thought he meant to squelch and ridicule him as an armchair strategist. That had not been his intention at all. It was simply that he and Mr. Wescott had grown apart, that they had become strangers.

Domestically, the Winkles were as happy as they ever had been. They lived the few days he was home like a honeymoon taken up from where it was dropped many years before.

Amy seemed intent on making up to Mr. Winkle the period she had been shrewish, and he decided to enjoy this, no matter what might happen after the war.

She sewed on several buttons for him, and though her way wasn't exactly the manner in which he had learned to sew, he was delighted to have her do it. After that first morning, Mr. Winkle managed to stay in bed long enough for Amy, by getting up very early, to bring him his breakfast there.

The weather was fine and Mrs. Winkle squandered her gasoline ration by going on a picnic with him every day into the woods. On these trips even Penelope agreed to wag her tail sluggishly at the soldier, though she still wouldn't accept him wholeheartedly.

They spoke little of the war and his portion of it. Not that they took it for granted, or had become fatalistic about it, but they wished to forget it during the time they had together. Only on the day of his departure did the war come again between them.

Once more he held her in his arms. She wept, and he felt like crying, too. Then, when they parted, for a fleeting instant before they spoke or moved again, he saw that she looked at him defiantly, nearly with antagonism. But it wasn't a hen-pecking look. It was like the unreasonable anger of a person who loves another a great deal when the other has put himself in mortal danger.

Sergeant Technician Wilbert George Winkle would have preferred to be alone in one of the upper berths rather than occupying a lower berth with Corporal Technician Tinker. But that was the way the Army said it was to be on the troop train roaring through the cold night, and that was the way it was.

Mr. Tinker, besides taking up most of the space with his bulk, leaving only a few inches for Mr. Winkle, was in addition restless because, having boarded the train at night, none of them even knew in which direction it was going.

All they were sure of was that they were being shipped to an embarkation port.

Mr. Tinker twisted, nearly knocking Mr. Winkle out of the berth, and stared out the window. "Not a star," he said. "Mebbe I couldn't read them anyway, but you say you can."

"I think we're going south," the man above them called down.

"What do you think we're going to, the Civil War?" someone demanded. "I hear they ain't finished fighting it down there yet."

"Naw," another differed. "It's east. That means England and the Nasties." This was for Mr. Tinker's sake, to devil him about being sent to fight the Germans instead of the Japs.

"What's it matter which way?" someone else wanted to know. "You ain't going to get off and catch an other train, are you?"

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Latest government figures show that 80 per cent of the nation's war workers travel to and from their war jobs by automobile. Still an important reason why available tires have to be distributed cautiously.

B. F. Goodrich has created and is now beginning to produce an improved general-purpose synthetic rubber, the details of which must remain confidential until after the war. Introduction of a certain abundant natural material has developed a synthetic rubber that approaches natural rubber in characteristics during processing and has proven superior in large truck tires.

"80.6% of sufferers showed CLINICAL IMPROVEMENT after only 10-day treatment with SORETONE"

Foster D. Snell, Inc., well-known consulting chemists, have just completed a test with a group of men and women suffering from Athlete's Foot. These people were told to use Soretone. At the end of only a ten-day test period, their feet were examined in two ways: 1. Scrapings were taken from the feet and examined by the bacteriologist. 2. Each subject was examined by a physician. We quote from the report:

"After the use of Soretone according to the directions on the label for a period of only ten days, 80.6% of the cases showed clinical improvement of an infection which is most stubborn to control."

Improvements were shown in the symptoms of Athlete's Foot—the itching, burning, redness, etc. The report says:

"In our opinion Soretone is of very definite benefit in the treatment of this disease, which is commonly known as 'Athlete's Foot.'"

So if Athlete's Foot troubles you, don't temporize with this nasty, devilish, stubborn infection. Get SORETONE! McKesson & Robbins, Inc., Bridgeport, Connecticut.

PRIMARY ELECTIONS, JULY 11th

REPUBLICANS ADOPT CONSTRUCTIVE AND SOUND PLATFORM

The platform adopted by the Republican Convention at Chicago contains no "weasel" words. It is a frank and simply worded declaration of purposes with no opportunity for any misinterpretation. It outlines in definite terms a constructive program designed to relieve the people of bureaucratic regimentation; to put a stop to prodigal spending with continuing deficits; pledges the reestablishment of constitutional government, the free enterprise system and our American way of life.

Win the War Pledge.

The preamble is a tribute to the men and women of the Armed Forces with a pledge to prosecute the war, in cooperation with our Allies, until the Axis powers have been completely and decisively defeated; with no interference with the General Staff of the Army or the Office of Naval Operations as to the conduct of the war. With the final defeat of our enemies it promises the return of all those serving in the Armed Forces whose enlistment periods have expired and who do not volunteer for further overseas duty. It says: "We declare our relentless aim to win the war against all our enemies; for our American security and welfare; to make and keep the Axis powers impotent to renew tyranny and attack; for the attainment of peace and freedom based on justice and security. We shall seek to achieve such aims through organized international cooperation and not by joining a world state."

Postwar Foreign Policy.

It favors full responsible participation by the United States in post war cooperative organization among sovereign nations to prevent aggression and to attain permanent peace with organized justice in a free world. It proposes definite methods of accomplishing such results, and very definitely proposes that the United States shall not sacrifice any of its sovereignty by becoming a part of a world state. While the platform would have this country assume a fair and full share of the responsibility for the rejuvenation of the world, and a maintenance of world peace it proposes methods of accomplishing such purposes through international cooperation, and not through the establishment of any super-government. On the prosecution of the war and the establishment and maintenance of world peace it leaves nothing to be guessed about or misinterpreted.

Farm Plank Definite.

On no subject is the platform more definite and emphatic than that of agriculture. It calls for full production at all times, without interference of any kind or any form of farm regimentation. It insures a price for farm products that will mean farm prosperity. It would provide that price through tariff protection for the whole market; the establishment of support prices on the part of the government; commodity loans to the farmer; the development of new uses for farm surpluses; support of farm co-operatives; crop insurance; a soil conservation program, and other practical provisions to insure the farmer an income fair and equitable in comparison with labor, business and industry. It opposes subsidies in any form or any interference with farm management or farm production. It proposes to provide a market at a profitable price for whatever the farmer may produce and in whatever quantity. The farm program calls for the development of paved roads and the extension of rural electrification.

That farm plank provides for a practical solution for the farm problem without imposing bureaucratic regulations. It would make of every farmer, owner or tenant, a free and independent individual.

Restore Free Enterprise.

The Republican Party proposes to restore and maintain the free enterprise system with business free from bureaucratic control. It would take the government out of business competing with free industry. It would dispose of, on an equitable basis, all government owned industrial plants; provide such legal regulations as to prevent monopolies; to protect the public, and especially small business which the platform pronounces "the basis of American enterprise." It would protect small business against discrimination and provide equality of opportunity.

The platform does not stop with such declarations but proposes definite methods of accomplishing such purposes.

Reduce Taxes and Waste.

On the subject of taxation and government expenditures the platform is decidedly definite and emphatic. With the ending of the war it calls for an immediate reduction of the rates of taxation on individual incomes, on corporations and consumption to such an extent as is consistent with the payment of the expenditures of an economically operated government, with a promise to eliminate from governmental costs every wasteful and unnecessary expenditure, including the discontinuance of the many duplicating government bureaus and agencies, and a reduction in government pay-rolls.

That plank definitely, and in no uncertain terms, rejects the New Deal theory of restoring or maintaining prosperity through government spending and deficit financing.

The above is a very brief summary of a truly remarkable and constructive platform. Those responsible for its preparation did not write words in criticism of the past, but confined their efforts to providing constructively for the future. It is an unusual political document that fully meets the needs of an unusual time in the history of the nation.

Planless Planners

No Gas—Less Oats

A Democratic congressman from Oklahoma, member of a House subcommittee investigating gasoline rationing practices, cites the experience of a farmer in his state who couldn't sow his oats because two ration boards each contended the other should issue his gas ration.

The farmer has his farmhouse in Pottawatomie county, while most of his land is in Seminole county. So he applied to the Pottawatomie board for gasoline for his tractor, but was told he should go to the Seminole board. The latter board refused the request, telling him he really belonged to Pottawatomie in the first place.

The buck-passing continued for several days while the farmer, forced to leave his work, used up gasoline shuttling back and forth between the two counties seeking relief. By the time he finally got the gas, he had to give up planting 160 acres of oats in a region where there is an acute feed shortage.

The congressman told the chief of OPA gasoline rationing enforcement that OPA maladministration is forcing honest citizens into technical violations of OPA rules "so they can get on with the war. OPA rulings are misapplications of regulations are making violators out of American people who don't want to break any laws but are forced into technical breaches so they can do their jobs."

When a candidate for Congress in a Southern state remarked in a campaign speech, "Now I am going to do something that will tax your memories," a voice from the audience was heard to exclaim, "Heavens, are they going to tax that too!"

DO YOU KNOW—

That in the seven years 1933-1940 total blank check appropriations to the Executive Departments of the federal government were almost twenty billion dollars, or approximately eight times all the discretionary funds appropriated by Congress from 1789 to March, 1933?

That at the end of World War I there were 30 federal administrative units, including the wartime emergency bureaus; today there are 208 federal departments, commissions, boards and independent agencies, which maintain 1594 branch offices thruout the country (not including local rationing boards)?

That the cost of federal government publicity amounts to at least $69,200,000 a year—or the cost of 250 flying fortresses?

It's easy to love justice when it is meted out to the other fellow. Business exists to serve customers and unless it does that it fails.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"The men overseas don't mince any words about the way they want to find this country when they come marching home... do they, Judge?"

"They certainly don't, Herb... and they shouldn't. They're doing a masterful job fighting over there to protect our rights and they have good license to expect us to protect theirs back here at home. One thing they're mighty clear on is their stand on prohibition."

"Their position on that subject was stated very emphatically in a poll taken recently among American service men in England by the British Institute of Public Opinion. When hundreds of men were asked point blank how they would vote on prohibition, 85% of them stated, in unmistakable terms, that they would vote against it. There's no doubt about it, Herb... the men overseas don't want any action taken on that subject while they're away."

"And they're 100% right, Judge, because I know how I felt when I came home after the last war—only to learn that we had been over there fighting for so impractical a thing as Prohibition."
