F.D.R. Elected To Fourth Term

GOV. KELLY AND ENTIRE STATE REPUBLICAN TICKET WIN

Franklin D. Roosevelt was re-elected to a fourth term, Tuesday. Both House and Senate are predominately Democratic according to the returns. In Michigan up to a late hour Wednesday night, our electoral vote was still in the balance. Dewey was leading still 171 precincts missing as well as some 2000 "lost" ballots in Wayne county, caused by some ununiformed precinct boards separating the soldier vote from civilian. Wayne County election board meets this Thursday when the matter will be cleared.

Congressman Fred Bradley of this district was re-elected. In the state, with one exception, all candidates for Congress were re-elected.

In the State, Governor Kelly and the entire Republican State Ticket was elected.

In Charlevoix County, all Republican candidates having no opposition, were elected. On the non-partisan ballot, acting Judge of Probate Rollie L. Lewis was elected.

Of the proposed four amendments, only one seems to have carried. Amendment No. 1, relative to water supplied by cities and village, has been endorsed.

To give our electorate a clear picture of the voting in Charlevoix County we present a tabulation on this page of incomplete returns received at Charlevoix at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday. It is strictly unofficial. The Herald's compiler states there is a mixup in figures for the first ward of East Jordan. Owing to the lateness, it is impossible to check these returns.

"King of Kings" Coming To East Jordan
Friday, Nov. 17th

Under the auspices of the Rotary Club the greatest motion picture ever produced, "The King of Kings", will be presented at the High School auditorium on the evening of Friday, Nov. 17. The history of this undying movie is a truly amazing saga. Produced in 1927 by Cecil B. DeMille at a cost of $2,400,000, with a cast of 6000 and the biggest stage Hollywood had ever seen, it has been viewed by 600,000,000 people in every part of the globe and translated into 27 languages. A law in England against the re-presentation of Christ in a theatre was set aside to allow its presentation. Priests in our southern mountains have shown the picture to audiences who have seen no other picture. Missionaries are showing it in India, taking it in canoes up the Ganges and the Congo. During the last year it has been shown to our soldiers in the Aleutians, North Africa, Iran, New Guinea, in 62 Army Camps in the United States and in one Jap concentration camp. At the film's premier at the Grauman Chinese Theatre, seats sold for $11 and the six months' run still stands as a record.

Tickets for this treat will be obtainable from all Rotary members and at the following business establish-

The groom is a graduate of Morton High School, Berwyn, Ill.

The bride returned to Lansing where she is now employed as R. N. at St. Lawrence hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crowell Honored With Farewell Party

One of the most enjoyable events of the season, was the farewell dinner given by the Birthday Club, Thursday, Nov. 2, honoring their member and husband, Sadie and Frank Crowell, who are leaving for Florida where they expect to make their future home.

The party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Karr on Second Street with Mrs. Gladys Davis and Mrs. Florence Swoboda as assistant hostesses. The guests on arrival located their place cards and then went into the dining room where a delicious dinner was served cafeteria style.

Later the guests of honor were remembered by gifts, presented by Myrtle Gidley, representing the Birthday Club. They responded in a pleasing manner. Frank telling how East Jordan had been his home for the past sixty-one years and that it will always be home to him. Sadie was one of the first members of the Club and has always been an active worker in the group, ever ready to do her best, as well as in the Red Cross, church and other societies. We very much regret their leaving East Jordan, but wherever they locate, our best wishes will go with them, and what is our loss will be some other community's gain.

These Men Called Or About To Be Called By The Charlevoix County Selective Service Board No. 1.

The following registrants were accepted by the branch of service opposite their names at the Chicago Induction Station on November 3, 1944:

Our Exhibitors Win at Gaylord

BOYNE FALLS, BOYNE CITY, EAST JORDAN RESIDENTS ARE WINNERS

Charlevoix county again held its own in state-wide competition at the District Potato and Apple Show held at Gaylord on November 1st and 2nd. Perhaps the outstanding accomplishment was that of the Boyne Falls 4-H Club who won first in competition with thirty counties. Not alone this, but Miss Anna Tymoc won the sweepstakes award for having the best peck sample in the junior division. Anna Kondrat won second, Eddie Salisz third, and Ralph Harmon fifth. Thus the Boyne Falls group of 4-H Club members had all of the top awards in the competition.

The Boyne City Smith-Hughes had the best exhibit in the vocational agriculture department. Edward Behling won second on Russets Burbanks, Robert Behling fifth, Joe Chanda fifth on Russet Rurals and Tom Johnson sixth.

In the adult division, William Shepard and George Ferris won first and second respectively. Harry Behling won fourth with his peck of Pontiacs. In the poster contest for rural schools, Marie Bauman of the Wallon Lake school won first in a big field. In the tablestock exhibit consisting of twenty-five pound samples, William Potts and Ole Omland won blue ribbons, while the following were in the fair group: Charles Shepard, William Zoulek, Lee Danforth, Carl Prohaska, Ronald Koteskey, Melvin Sommerville and Bert Lumley.

In the apple department, which, by the way, was a wonderful sight, Floyd Griffin of Boyne City exhibited and won a first on a bushel of Wealthies, a second with Wagners, and a fourth on a Spy. In plates, he had two seconds, one third, and two awards of merit. In the junior judging and grading contests, it is reported that the Boyne City vocational agriculture students placed in the highest group, but the definite placing is not known at this time. All exhibits by Charlevoix county farmers, and particularly the fine work in all, we are indeed proud of. The 4-H Club members & Smith-Hughes students. Year by year our farmers continue to walk off with many of the highest awards of the Show.

Sixteen Home Economics Extension Groups Met Thursday

The first lesson in this winter's Home Economics Extension project was given last week Thursday by Miss Agnes Gregarek of MSC on the subject "Planning Meals From The Abundant Foods." Thirty leaders representing sixteen different extension groups were present and enjoying the discussion of the subject matter. It was a very interested group and great enthusiasm was evident throughout the day.

We are greatly pleased to note that this was an increase of five groups over last year and with prospects of one or two additional groups. The ladies actually prepared the menu enjoyed during the noon hour. All reports indicate that the meal was served on time and with proper style and they had a lot of fun in doing it.

Subject to future correction, the following communities and leaders were in attendance: Norwood — Mrs. Bertha Parsons & Mrs. Alice Richardson; Marion — Mrs. Sophia Withers & Mrs. Ludwig Greiner; Ironton — Mrs. Audria Saunders & Mrs. Edna Nielsen; Chandler — Mrs. Constance Gallop and Mrs. Marion Howard; East Jordan — Mrs. Ida Kinsey & Mrs. Frank Cook; German Settlement — Mrs. Selma Eggersdorf & Mrs. Nellie Knop; Deer Lake — Mrs. Rena Newkirk; Boyne City — (Group 1) Mrs. Constance Van Hoesen & (Group 2) Mrs. Dorothy Sage; Charlevoix — Mrs. George Meggison & Mrs. Gibelyou; Peninsula — Mrs. Hattie Healey & Mrs. Edith LaCroix; Evangeline — Mrs. Louvinia Lockman & Mrs. Lena Zell; South Arm — Mrs. Clarence Lord & Mrs. Bertha Williams; Burgess — Mrs. Ida Burns and Mrs. Alice Willis; and Barnard — Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Morrow.

A Living Memorial

A living memorial to the young men of this locality who have given their lives in this great World War is being sponsored by the East Jordan Garden Club.

As a location, the committee selected the parked boulevard which leads from trunk line 32 (West Side) to the mouth of the Jordan River and are having evergreen trees set out in the parking — one for each boy who sacrificed his life. The cost of each tree, plus labor of setting it, is about $4.

Some of the individual members have each contributed the cost of a tree, and if any other citizens feel like helping out on the expense of future settings they can do so by contacting any members of the committee who have worked this out — Mrs. Loveday, Mrs. Brabant, Mrs. Hegerberg, and Miss Porter.

So far seven trees have been set out, four more should be added now, and of course there is a possibility of more at most any time.

Final Game Goes To Boyne

LOSS OF GAME GIVES CHAMPIONSHIP TO BOYNE CITY

In a battle Saturday afternoon, East Jordan was overpowered by a Boyne team, determined to take the championship. The score, as the final whistle blew, was 14 - 0 in favor of Boyne City.

Although the Jordanites put up a great battle and showed some very fine sportsmanship, Boyne was too strong for them.

There were 13 first down scored during the game. 8 for East Jordan and 5 for Boyne City.

In the third quarter Coach Damoth sent in the second team and they put up a remarkable fight.

Although the game went to Boyne, the East Jordan fans saw a hard fought battle which was not easily won.

Hedda Hopper: Looking at HOLLYWOOD

THIS is the story of three actresses who brought the home front right into your home. Primarily, however, it's the tale of one star who had the courage to depart from ingenue leads — who took a chance at a mother role and then found herself mothering two other stars in real life as well.

This is the behind-the-scenes story of Claudette Colbert, Jennifer Jones, and Shirley Temple in "Since You Went Away" — a combination that is smashing box office records across the land. Every time a

Claudette Colbert story breaks about how well "Since You Went Away" is doing I feel Shirley Temple like going up to David Selznick and giving him a pat on the back — not alone for the picture, but for taking my advice and casting Claudette as mother.

Jennifer Jones

It all started one day while David was scouting around for a top star to play the heroine of the home front — mother.

"Why don't you get Claudette Colbert for it?" I asked.

"She wouldn't consent," he countered.

Subtle, Wot?

"Let me run a little yarn that you want her for it and we'll get her reaction," I said.

D. O. S. agreed.

Next day I came out with a story. At 8:30 a. m. sharp Claudette had me on the phone. She wanted to know where in the devil I had gotten such an idea — what ever gave me the notion that she would consider playing the mother of a couple of girls that old?

Then I went to work on her.

"David Selznick doesn't make anything but good pictures, does he?" I asked.

"Well, no."

"You don't expect to be an ingenue all your life, do you?"

"Well, no."

"You're an actress, aren't you?"

"I've been accused of it."

"Well, why don't you think it over?"

"All right, but Selznick hasn't asked me yet."

"He will," I replied.

She was receptive and asked to see a script. Naturally, at that stage of the game there was none.

U. S. Fleet Secures MacArthur's Supply Lines to Philippines; Authorize More Civilian Goods

U. S. Doughboy is shown knocking out Nazi tank with bazooka on western front.

EUROPE: Clearing Holland

Pushed back in France and Belgium, the Germans were being shoved out of their last holdings in Holland by Canadian and British troops applying a double squeeze on some 60,000 Nazis in the southwestern part of the country.

Only in Holland was there major action on the western front, with rain and snow bogging U. S. drives about Aachen, Metz and the Vosges mountains.

Even though the British 2nd army had overrun the entire eastern section of Holland in a drive that the Nazis only stopped at the gateway to their important Ruhr valley, the Germans held their ground in the western part of the country for the purpose of denying the Allies use of the great North sea ports for the supply of their onrushing armies.

Principal port denied the Allies was Antwerp, which the Nazis blocked off by occupying both sides of the Schelde river leading inland to the city. Dotting one side of the Schelde are the Walcheren and South Beveland islands, connected to the mainland by a causeway below Bergen Op Zoom. In attempting to knock the Germans out of their strategic positions along both sides of the Schelde, Canadian troops cut into the enemy's defenses on the south bank of the river, and fought to capture the causeway below Bergen Op Zoom and cut off island communications with the mainland.

Meanwhile, British troops smashed through Nazi defenses to the north, with the aim of racing toward the sea and thus cutting off all German troops along the Schelde to the south.

Capture of Antwerp and Rotterdam would give the Allies at least two great ports for funneling in supplies for the drive on Germany and relieve the need for a reliance on smaller, crowded facilities.

Speaking in the house of commons after his conference with Josef Stalin in Moscow, Prime Minister Churchill declared: "Unconditional surrender in the sense of no bargaining with the enemy is still the policy of the government."

Slow Going in Italy

In Italy, German Field Marshal Albert Kesselring seemed to be pulling his lines northward in a slow, withdrawing movement hinged on the big communications hub of Bologna, as Allied troops pushed further through the mud onto the broad plains of the Po valley.

Russ Reach Norway

Norway was the latest European state to be invaded by the Russians, with Gen. K. A. Meretskov's northern Red army driving into the Arctic port of Kirkenes in the wake of its abandonment by 25,000 Nazi troops.

Russian entrance into Norway coincided with the Reds' all-out offensive against East Prussia, noted wooded and lake country of the Junker military caste. Calling panzer formations into action along roadways leading to the heart of the province, the Germans sought to stall the Russians' advance westward, originally paced by an estimated 600 tanks.

Compelled to throw additional forces in Hungary to stave off the Russian drive on Budapest, the Germans fought hard to protect the broad gateway to Austria from the western end of the country. In raging tank battles, the enemy succeeded in slowing the Red advance 50 miles from Budapest.

PACIFIC: Save Communications

Long in hiding, Japan's imperial navy came out for battle in an effort to smash the American supply line to General Douglas MacArthur's forces in the Philippines, and limped off in defeat as the U. S. 3rd and 7th fleets shattered the attack and secured the vital communications.

The Japs' attack took the shape of a three-pronged assault, with one enemy force coming in through the narrow Surigao straits south of Leyte; the second driving in through the San Bernardino straits north of Leyte, and the third heading southward from Formosa waters.

Apprised of the Japs' approach by alert U. S. carrier planes, Vice Adm. Thomas C. Kinkaid divided his outnumbered 7th fleet into two forces, which, with the aid of carrier planes, dealt the enemy a telling blow before he could fully develop his attack. Meanwhile, Adm. William F. Halsey's 3rd fleet, made up of warships, carriers and subs, caught the Japs sailing down from Formosa.

After the smoke of battle had cleared, two Jap carriers, two battleships, five cruisers and three destroyers were sunk, with three more warships probably sunk and a dozen damaged. For their part, the Japs claimed to have primarily struck transports and landing craft.

As the crippled Jap fleet limped homeward licking its wounds, General MacArthur's ground forces consolidated their hold on Leyte island despite mounting enemy resistance and also strengthened their grip on Samar island just across the San Juanico straits.

HOME FRONT: News for Consumers

On the home-front, consumers heard this news:

There will be less meat for civilians in November but more of the better grades. There will be less cheese but the same amount of butter as in October.

Approximately 800 plants were authorized to produce 152 million dollars of civilian goods during the next year.

Infants' and children's clothes were expected to be in greater supply next January, February and March. Cotton textile controls will be maintained after Germany's defeat.

Possessing available facilities and labor, the 800 plants will be permitted to manufacture vacuum cleaners, bed springs and innerspring mattresses, automotive parts, building materials, plumbing and heating items, household aluminum ware, electric irons, lamps, lawn mowers, furniture, church goods, fountain pens and sporting goods.

Because of pent-up demand, made even more formidable by swollen purchasing power, the mount of goods authorized represents virtually a drop in the bucket.

To assure production of more infants' and children's wear for the first three months of 1945, the War Production board moved to release sufficient material for 30,000,000 garments, and also laid down specifications for the type of goods and workmanship to be employed.

The WPB hurried the program even as its chairman, J. A. Krug, announced that because of drops in output of cotton textiles due to labor difficulties, controls will be extended after Germany's downfall to prevent acute shortages.

ODT Says Women Are Different, After All

Rosie the Riveter notwithstanding, there's a basic difference between men and women workers, the Office of Defense Transportation says.

In a bulletin to employers, the ODT says: "The average woman differs from the average man in certain physical, psychological and experience factors which have a direct bearing upon her ability. . . ."

For instance, ODT points out, the elbow and the knee are constructed differently in women, partially accounting for their tendency to grasp tools differently from men and be less steady on their feet.

According to ODT, most women are handicapped in the men's world because they never play with mechanical toys, mow lawns or drive heavier vehicles. Because of their sewing and other finer tasks, however, they possess greater manual dexterity, ODT concludes.

SURPLUS HOLDINGS: Disposal Problem

With U. S. holdings of industrial facilities amounting to about 16½ billion dollars — or 20 per cent of the total private and public facilities in the country — the government already has taken steps for disposal of its properties in the postwar period.

Difficulties are expected to rise in the sale of the bulk of such facilities as aircraft, shipbuilding, and munitions, however, since these industries have been greatly expanded to meet wartime requirements, which will drop sharply with peace.

Of the government's 3 billion dollar investment in war housing, permanent buildings must be sold when no longer needed, and fabricated structures must be dismantled, with materials made part of general surplus property.

ROAD BUILDING: Huge Program

With urgent highway construction in the early postwar years exceeding 10 billion dollars, the vast quantities of labor, material and equipment needed for carrying on the program should act as a stabilizing factor in the future economy, the American Road Builders association's engineer-director, Charles M. Upham, declared.

By next October, the states will have drawn up plans for one billion dollars of highway construction deferred because of the war, and city, county and local road projects will amount to another billion.

"Postwar plans of business and industry call for greater production and distribution of goods," Upham said. "That means roads and streets must carry greater burdens. Obviously, inadequate roads and streets will hold back business and industrial activity."

BIG DEAL: $161,000,000 Check

Wall street gave way to LaSalle street when the Commonwealth Edison company refinanced 180 million dollars' worth of bonds in the biggest private financing operation in the nation's history.

Featuring the deal was the purchase for resale of 155 million dollars of new bonds by the big Chicago investment house of Halsey, Stuart & company, which with Otis & company of Cleveland, Ohio, has been bucking the great Wall street banking firms.

In completing the transaction, Halsey, Stuart's president handed Commonwealth's representative a check for 161 million dollars, also covering interest due on the bonds and the premium paid for getting the business.

In addition to the 155 million dollars refunded with new bonds, Commonwealth retired an additional 23 million dollars of securities with its own cash.

RAIL RATES: Wants Boosts

Supporting their petition for continuation of the 10 per cent increase in passenger fares, and immediate application of the 4½ per cent freight rate boost, railroad representatives declared the carriers faced decreasing revenues when war traffic subsided.

Previously, federal agricultural agencies opposed the freight rate increases on the strength of continued high farm traffic for at least two years after the war.

Unless rail revenue is bolstered by rate increases, said Vice President Walter S. Franklin of the Pennsylvania railroad, the financial structure of the carriers will be seriously impaired in the postwar years, with the result being " . . . a very much less effective operation, and a serious impairment of the railroads' ability . . . to be ready to do their part in meeting the employment problem after the war."

BRITISH LAND

Steering clear of any political battle between conservatives and liberals that might upset the present coalition government, Britain's house of commons passed a bill for postwar reconstruction.

Passage was aimed at avoiding an all-out battle between the two political elements over the bill's provision that landlords only be paid prewar prices for land condemned for reconstruction use, with increases up to 30 per cent for occupying owners.

War-Making Powers Issue In Peace Organization

Big Question Is Whether Congress Can Delegate Function to U. S. Representative On World Council.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

When the last election bet is collected; when the echoes of the windiest argument have died on the November breeze, a lot of people will believe that when they cast their ballots on November 7 they were deciding the question of whether America was to join an effective world organization to preserve peace.

Not at all. It was plain long before the election that the question of whether the United States was willing to join an international organization with teeth in it did not depend on the candidate selected.

The day in October that Senator Ball, Republican of Minnesota, announced that he would vote for Franklin Roosevelt and not for Dewey for President, we had a press and radio conference in his office in the Senate office building. As we crowded five deep around Ball's desk, somebody remarked: "He ought to have used the caucus room." Except that Ball is inclined to keep his head down like a bull, instead of his chin out like a bulldog, the young, former newspaper cide whether he would support Dewey until he had heard both presidential candidates speak on the subject.

He listened to two one-half-hour speeches by Dewey and then, after the one by Roosevelt before the Foreign Policy association, said he would support Roosevelt because Roosevelt met "squarely and unequivocally the two vital and controversial issues on which the isolationists kept us out of the League of Nations and will fight our entry into the United Nations security organization. He insisted that the United Nations organization be formed without delay, before hostilities cease, and that it be granted power to use military force against future aggressors without requiring individual approval of each member nation."

Senator Ball went on to say that Governor Dewey "has opposed delay but has not met squarely the second vital issue. He has spoken for a strong international security organization, but in each speech has so worded his commitment that both internationalists and isolationists could find comfort and support in what he said."

I quote that paragraph at length since it is quite possible that you have not seen it in print—I copied it from Ball's own statement—and because I think a great many people, some of whom supported Mr. Roosevelt, forgot that he was for going the "whole hog" and that "whole hog" in Mr. Ball's language and the language of those who are going to fight for this organization in the congress, may mean more than some people realize. It shouldn't to anyone who heard or read Mr. Roosevelt's speech and took it seriously—but we don't always take political speeches seriously. The President said the American member of the Security Council of the United Nations, which would be made up of eleven member nations, should "be empowered in advance by the people themselves, by constitutional means through their representatives in congress, with authority to act."

Constitutional Procedure Involved

This is generally interpreted as meaning:

(1) Congress would pass a law stating that if the American representative on the Security Council felt that American military forces (with those of other members of the organization) should be used against an aggressor he had the power to commit this government to order such support. In other words, to enter into what might amount to war, later on.

(2) Congress would likewise pass a law permitting the majority vote of the Security Council to supersede the vote of the American representative, to use American (and other) military forces against an aggressor.

As to point two, if the Russians had their choice as expressed in the conferences at Dumbarton Oaks this clause would not be effective—they argue that no step should be taken by the council without the unanimous agreement of the great powers. In other words, the single vote of the representative of Britain, Russia, China and the United States, at least, could veto any step proposed.

But the representatives of Great Britain and the United States at Dumbarton Oaks said that they were both willing to make majority rule the basis of action. It is conceivable that if Russia were convinced that the United States was wholeheartedly in the organization, she would come around to that view.

So far the question of the constitutionality of a law which would arm the American delegate to the Security Council with the necessary powers, has not been debated. The New York Times points out that the Constitution designates to congress the unique power to declare war, except when American territory is invaded; but does not state that the use of force cannot be delegated. In any case the chief question is whether the people will have the courage to venture into this new realm wherein the United States government would accept the majority wishes of a group of world states, just as we accept the wishes of the majority of congress.

U. S. Schools Must Prepare Young People To Cope With Difficult Problems of Future

Citizens Are Urged To Visit Their Local Learning Centers

Labor, industry, educators, the churches and women's clubs are uniting in a call for the observance of American Education week, November 5-11. The week is dedicated to public tribute to schools and is sponsored by the National Education association, the American Legion, the United States Office of Education, and the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. An annual pilgrimage to the nation's schools is made in more than 4,000 communities by more than 10 million persons during the week's program of school activities.

Calling upon the "citizens to visit their schools," President Roosevelt asks observance of American Education Week to "become better acquainted with those faithful servants of the nation's children and youth—the teachers."

In the President's message to "patrons, students, and teachers of American schools," he asks that teachers be encouraged in their task of "cultivating free men fit for a free world. For these teachers are the conservators of today's civilization and the architects of tomorrow's world of promised peace and progress. They serve within the very citadels of democracy, devotedly whether in war or in peace."

"When victory on the fields of battle shall have been achieved, the work yet to be done through our schools will be enormous," the President continues. "I therefore call upon the teachers of America to continue without flagging their efforts to contribute through the schools to that final consummation which alone will make possible of fulfillment all plans of education for new tasks."

Realizing that the schools play a vital role both in the prosecution of the war and laying the foundations for the peace, "Education for New Tasks" is the theme for the 24th annual observance.

"Schools are preparing children and young people for the new tasks which confront our country," states F. L. Schlagle, president of the National Education association, "the new tasks of making postwar readjustments, maintaining economic security at home, improving intergroup relationships, assuring justice to minority groups, adapting our life to the new technology, and improving community life. Only a people of intelligence, character, goodwill and earnestness can meet these issues with success."

Program for the Week.
Daily themes in the development of "Education for New Tasks" are:

- Sunday, November 5 — Building Worldwide Brotherhood.
- Monday, November 6 — Winning the War.
- Tuesday, November 7 — Improving Schools for Tomorrow.
- Wednesday, November 8 — Developing an Enduring Peace.
- Thursday, November 9 — Preparing for the New Technology.
- Friday, November 10 — Educating All the People.
- Saturday, November 11 — Bettering Community Life.

"When the war is over, our country will be faced with a problem of readjustment which in many ways will be as difficult as the problems of mobilization for the war," warns Mr. Schlagle. "Millions of men and women must be retrained for new jobs. Boys and girls in schools must be aided in adjusting to postwar conditions. The war has emphasized the nation's need for youth. We cannot afford in the postwar period to permit youth to become the lost generation again," he says.

"Building Worldwide Brotherhood," topic for Sunday, opening the week's program, will be observed in the churches throughout the nation. According to Everett R. Clinchy, National Conference of Christians and Jews, "Brotherhood is giving to others the dignity and rights we want to keep for ourselves. We need to make universal brotherhood part of the learning experience." He points out that this can be done by thinking scientifically on questions of race, religious cultures, and nationality differences which divide people into groups.

Monday's theme, "Winning the War," is a reminder of the wartime job being done by the schools in pre-induction training, adjustment of courses to permit pupils to do wartime work, rationing and registration programs, conducting scrap and bond drives, as well as continuing their regular program of education for 25 million American children.

"Improving Schools for Tomorrow emphasizes the steps needed for improving American education. Equalization of educational opportunity through state and federal aid, payment of adequate salaries to teachers, streamlining the administrative organization of education in many areas, and the building of school programs around real life problems are among the pressing needs for better schools in the post-war era.

Hope For Enduring Peace.
"Education is a potent force which can be used for the promotion of peace," underlies Wednesday's topic, "Developing an Enduring Peace." Proposals for the international organization following the war include a council on educational policy which would become a permanent international agency for education. The purpose of such an agency would be to lift educational standards, to encourage education for international understanding, and to report for action to the general international body attempts in any nation to promote war through education.

"Preparing for the New Technology" points to the reliance technology and science have upon education. The need for intelligent management and the reduction of unskilled labor are emphasized. The ever-increasing need for specialization on the part of workers calls for cooperation and mutual helpfulness. "The promise of a new world depends upon technology. To reach that promise we must develop through education people capable of using it," Mr. Schlagle points out.

"Educating All the People," topic for Friday, emphasizes that despite the great strides in establishing a system of public education, there are 13 1/2 per cent of our adult population having only a fourth-grade education or less. Hundreds of thousands of men fully qualified in every other respect have been found by the Selective Service to have less than a fourth-grade education.

"Bettering Community Life," topic for the last day of American Education Week, underlines the role of the school as a community center, serving adults as well as children, and acting as a force for bringing the people together so that plans for improved community life may be made and developed.

Problems of Future.
American Education Week grew out of the First World War. It was first observed in 1921. Twenty-five per cent of the men examined in that draft were illiterate; 29 per cent were physically unfit; many were foreign-born and had little understanding of American life. These were startling disclosures. Unfit as they were for war, these men were also incapable of serving their country most effectively in time of peace.

Members of the newly formed American Legion wished to correct these conditions. They saw in this situation an opportunity to serve their country after the war. When a campaign of education appeared to be the only answer they consulted the other sponsoring organizations and as a result the first American Education Week was observed.

"All the new tasks which confront our society as a whole are the ones with which our schools must deal. For the schools are of society and their task is to build society by developing good citizens," Mr. Schlagle further points out. "Let us utilize the power of education to further fulfill the promise of America and to enable us to do our part among the family of nations in the establishment of a just order of affairs in the world," he urges.

Six Billion Investment.
The National Planning committee, a private agency, most of whose directors are businessmen, recently stated that if we make our economic system work reasonably well after the war we shall have a national income of at least 110 billion dollars. The report goes on to relate that according to the estimated figures, we shall spend: 25 billion for foodstuffs as compared with 16 billion before the war; 16 billion for housing as compared with 9 billion; seven billion for automobiles as against four billion; three billion for recreation as against one and a half billion; 13 billion for household operations and equipment as compared with six and a half billion.

"Shall we," asks Mr. Schlagle, "under such conditions refuse to increase the two and a half billion which we have been spending for schools and colleges: Shall we, with the highest per capita income of any nation in all history, use our increased wealth to feed, clothe, and house ourselves in comparative luxury, to buy entertainment, airplanes, automobiles, radios, and refrigerators, and neglect to spend any of our increased income for the educational improvement of our children? We can readily afford the five or six billion dollars which a genuinely adequate educational program for all would cost. This would be the wisest investment that American citizens could make," he contends.

Eric A. Johnston, president, United States chamber of commerce, says the organization "is glad to give its support to the observance of American Education Week, 1944. Business recognizes the relation between education and an expanding economy. There is no more important task before us than the development of the kind of educational program which will promote good citizenship and economic well-being."

My Sincere Appreciation

It will be my endeavor, as your Congressman, to represent the district along those lines which the voters have approved, as indicated by their support of my candidacy in this and previous elections.

Many individuals have given of their time and effort in this campaign and they have my personal thanks. To the voters, many of whom I am unable to see in such a widespread district, may I express my sincere thanks for their help, which I accept not only as support of my candidacy, but as support of the principles of government which our party represents in that great people's body—the Congress of the United States.

By Donna Holland HALLOWE'EN PARTY

The Gym was the scene of much gaiety last Tuesday night when the high school students were given a Halloween party sponsored by the East Jordan Rotary Club.

Students took part in many games some of which were: Pie eating contest, apple eating contest, laughing contest, basketball race, jumping rope race and others. Three prizes were offered, the first being ten dollars which was won by the Sophomore class, the second prize was six dollars won by the eighth grade and the third was four dollars won by the Seniors. A door prize was also given and the holder of the lucky number was Joyce Ann Petrie.

Moving pictures were shown and doughnuts and cider were served. A very good time was enjoyed by all and to the Rotary, we, the students, say thanks.

WAR STAMPS
Starting this Monday a race will be on between the six grades in high school. Each week a different class will have charge of the selling of War Stamps and the grade that sells the most will be rewarded.

Stamps will be on sale every Monday and Tuesday. So come on, students, let's put all we've got into this and really make a success of it. Don't forget that the boys are fighting for us, too. So let's help them fight by buying all of the War Stamps we possibly can.

PEP MEETING
Because this week was the last one for football we were given an hour for a pep meeting, Friday.

The Senior speech class got together and put on two hilarious skits which were not supposed to be comedies! The first one was "The Lamp Went Out" and the second one was "The Ghost Walks." They were enjoyed very much by everyone.

Another feature was the display of the Boyne casket which was draped in red and blue, Boyne's school colors.

The band also played several numbers and a sextet gave two songs. It was a very good pep meeting and we certainly hoped it helped the boys in their game Saturday.

SNAKE DANCE
Friday night, students of all ages gathered around the blazing bonfire and watched as Boyne City was ceremoniously burned. The students joined in yells and songs and later snake danced down through Main Street where more yells and songs were given. The snake dance was led by Pfc. Harry Pearsall who was home on a furlough. Our thanks to him for the grand time.

REPORT CARDS

HOMECOMING DANCE

With a background of cornstalks and pumpkins, students danced to the music of a new juke-box Saturday night at the gym. The gym was beautifully decorated and a harvest moon looked down from up above.

The dance was sponsored by the Junior class and a door prize was given. Phyllis Gothro held the lucky number.

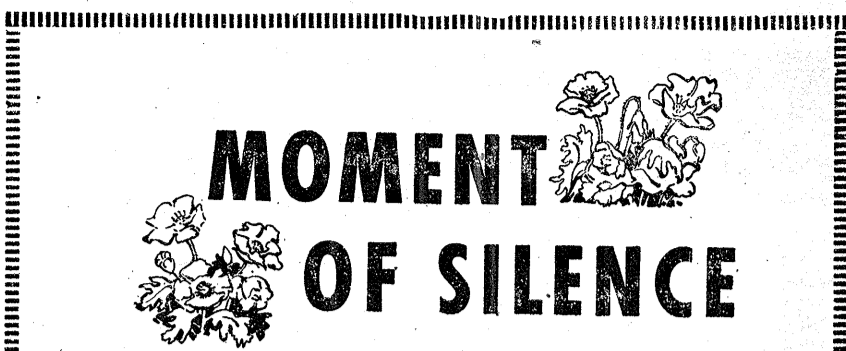

It is hoped that there will be another dance at Thanksgiving!

An Armistice Day Message

New fields of poppies have sprung out of old battle-grounds. Fresh rows of white crosses mingle with the weathered gray ones of World War I. Sons of the men of 1918 are scarring and reddening the same fields where their fathers fought.

What are our thoughts as we observe Armistice Day again in the midst of war?

We are thinking of our obligation to the dead, to the living, and to the unborn. Nazi tyranny and barbarism must be ended forever. We must win a peace that will last.

Among the records of the world's most tremendous historical events, and in all the greatest writings of all times, nothing even remotely, approaches the awe inspiring magnificence of the story of Jesus of Nazareth; the King of Kings; whose words and deeds have swayed humanity for almost two-thousand years. In the eye of the motion picture camera, under the wizardry of a master director and the reverent genius of great players, the story of Christ has taken human form and greater understanding. Here we have a story so tense, so absorbing, so massive in its spirit of munificent self-sacrifice and passionate grandeur, so breath-taking in its tremendous climax, that its force is beyond description.

GIRL OVERBOARD

by GEORGE F. WORTS

W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY THUS FAR: Zorie Corey is railroaded into taking a job she does not want, helping Admiral Duncan write his memoirs. She is in love with Paul Duncan, the admiral's grandson. While aboard the Samoa en route to Hawaii she is thrown overboard, but is rescued. Pearl Harbor is bombed while they are steaming towards Hawaii, and two destroyers escort them to the island of Oahu. After landing Zorie and Paul overheard Paul's handsome brother, Steve, with whom Zorie is infatuated, plotting with Winthrop Lanning to deliver some radar equipment to the Axis. Believing Steve is in danger Zorie rushes into the night to save him and discovers the body of beautiful Amber Lanning on the ground.

CHAPTER XIV

"I didn't!" Zorie wailed. "Pierre did it! Just this minute! He must have strangled her!"

Mr. Lanning held the light not too steadily on her face. "Miss Corey," he said, "this is tragic. This is very, very tragic."

The next thing, his hand was clamped over her mouth and he was holding her tight against his body with his other hand and arm. She could not move.

In the silence, she heard footfalls on the other path, and the sound of men's voices. She identified them as Pierre's and Steve's. They were going to the garage.

She struggled. She tried to free herself, but Mr. Lanning was prepared for it. He held her so tightly that she could not move.

He held her until the sound came of a car starting, then the soft low whine of its gears. The crisp sound of its exhaust retreated and faded.

Holding her securely, Mr. Lanning shook out a folded handkerchief. It was, she discovered later, a large one. He forced the thick center part into her mouth and tied the ends tight behind her head, so that she could not cry out.

He seemed to have recovered his composure. He was, once again, the calm, urbane gentleman she had known on the "Samoa." He was meeting an emergency, a serious crisis, as men of his sort always do, with finesse and sureness.

"I'm so sorry, Miss Corey," he said. "But this is really necessary. This is a very critical time, I assure you, and you have stumbled upon something that is very embarrassing to me."

He carried her along the path to where it joined the other path. He carried her into the garage. With his flashlight, he found some short pieces of rope. He tied Zorie's feet together, and he tied her hands securely behind her.

"I am really so sorry about this, Miss Corey," he said. "But I can't leave you here. I assure you, you are most embarrassing to me. I have to keep an appointment, and I dare not leave you here."

He found some soft cushions and placed them on the floor of a sedan. He arranged Zorie on these cushions, and he was extremely gentle about it.

He closed the door, then got into the driver's seat, backed the car out, and started. Zorie knew when they were climbing the hill out of the cove to the cliff, and she wondered if he intended throwing her off the cliff.

The car stopped presently and Mr. Lanning got out and opened the rear door. It was now raining hard.

He removed the gag from her mouth, but he did not remove the cord from her wrists or ankles.

Zorie's lips were numb and there was a bitter taste in her mouth. He took off his coat and draped it about her shoulders. He gathered her into his arms and started at a trot through the rain.

In the light of his pocket torch, which danced as he ran, she saw the house—a large cabin painted a dull green, now shining wet with rain.

Mr. Lanning carried her up on a porch, unlocked a door and carried her inside. He directed his light about the room.

It was a cozy, nicely furnished room—typically a man's idea of what a comfortable living-room in a mountain cabin should be.

He carried her through this room and into the one beyond, a smaller room at the back of the house. It was a combined study and breakfast room, and beyond it, through an open door, she caught a glimpse of the kitchen.

Mr. Lanning gently set Zorie in a chair beside a window. He closed the living-room door and lighted a kerosene lamp on the table.

He sat down in a chair facing her. He looked her over with anxious solicitude. Her lovely sun-pleated star-sapphire gown was spattered with purple-red mud.

As she stared at him, all her courage, the fortitude that had been sustaining her, threatened to leave her. She had a quick appalling glimpse of the girl she had once been, the girl who had changed so miraculously. She felt herself slipping back irresistibly into that perpetually meek, timid, frightened girl.

Then her wavering eyes returned to Mr. Lanning's flushed face and steadied. Strength and courage came back in a flood. She told herself she would not revert to her old self! She had won that fight! She wasn't afraid! No matter what happened, she would not let her old meekness return!

"I am very sorry," Mr. Lanning said, "to have to keep your hands and feet tied, Miss Corey. But this is an extremely dangerous situation. I may be occupied with other things, and you must realize that, under the circumstances, I cannot entirely trust you."

He took a flat quart bottle out of his hip pocket. He undid the foil about the neck of it and unscrewed the cap.

"Brandy," he said, "is always so comforting in a crisis. Will you join me?"

"No," Zorie said huskily.

The precautions he had taken were alarming. If he merely intended to detain her a while, to question her, he would have untied her hands and feet. And something in his manner, in his eyes, was alarming, too. For the first time since he had discovered her bending over Amber's body, she felt thoroughly frightened. During most of the ride she had been too occupied with thoughts of Steve to give much thought to herself. She had reasoned that he and Pierre would probably not go to Kokee. Pierre would doubtless shoot him as they drove along. She was sure that Pierre intended to kill Steve. He might be dead now.

Her thoughts returned briefly to Paul. She could recall so clearly his vindictive expression as he said those things that he should have known might sentence Steve to death. A man of Paul's type was not to be trusted in a situation calling for honest thinking. At this moment, her feeling for Paul was one of sheer loathing. Because of his vindictiveness and his unpredictable nature, his brother was possibly dead and she was in a position of the utmost gravity.

"What are you going to do with me?" she asked.

Winthrop Lanning tilted the bottle to his mouth and drank. His hand was shaking a little. He put the bottle back on the table.

He looked at her. The steadiness of her stare seemed to disconcert him. He glanced away. He made a grimace.

"Nothing," he answered. "The matter is no longer in my hands."

"Whose cabin is this?"

Mr. Lanning's dark eyes were vague. The gray flesh under them looked more puffy than usual. He bent forward.

"Miss Corey, you have in your possession an extremely dangerous piece of information. I regret exceedingly that it happens to be in your possession. I am very much afraid that the outlook for you is very serious. I am very much afraid that there is no hope at all for you."

He sighed heavily. "You are entirely innocent. I admire you very much. And I do wish there was some way out of this for you. I will gladly help you in any way."

Zorie's mouth was very dry. "Do you mean—I won't leave this cabin alive?"

Mr. Lanning avoided her eyes. He seemed to be genuinely upset. "The gentleman to whom this cabin belongs will be here presently. He will have to decide. Meanwhile, since things are so completely hopeless for you—is there anything I can do?"

"What is happening to Steve?"

He lifted his shoulders slowly and let them fall. "I do not know, Miss Corey. I haven't the faintest idea. I will gladly answer any question you care to ask."

"I think I'm beginning to understand," Zorie said. "It's either your life or mine. Isn't that true?"

"Only partly, Miss Corey. It is really a little more comprehensive than that. If you should be set free, you can say so many dangerous things, not only about me but about other people."

"But if I disappear, how will that be explained?"

"Many people disappear and it is never explained."

"How will Amber's death be explained?"

His eyebrows went up. "But my dear Miss Corey, I thought that was quite obvious to you. You are such a clever young lady I sometimes forget you've had no experience with this sort of thing."

"Are you saying," Zorie gasped, "that her death will be blamed on me?"

"But it is already blamed on you!" he said, as if he were greatly surprised. "Where do you suppose your compact is? Where do you suppose your handkerchief is?"

"By her body!" Zorie cried.

"But of course, Miss Corey!"

Zorie took a deep breath. Mr. Lanning was gazing at her sadly. "Men in your profession do things so thoroughly," she said. "I'd forgotten. As you say, I'm not used to this sort of thing. When Amber is found, with those simple proofs that I killed her, the authorities will assume that, in grief or panic, I went off and perhaps threw myself off a cliff. I suppose that's very obvious."

He was nodding. His attitude remained one of mild amazement. It was all so obvious, so logical, to him.

"You're sorry," she said quietly. "You're awfully sorry that I must be—liquidated. But you've arranged it so that I haven't a chance."

Mr. Lanning shook his head. "No, Miss Corey, I don't say quite that. There may be an alternative."

"Is there any alternative to my being killed in cold blood?"

"I do not say that there is," he answered. "I only say there may be."

"Where did Steve and Pierre Savoyard go?"

"I don't know, Miss Corey."

"But don't you assume that Pierre will fill him?"

"I think that Pierre will try. But Steve is very clever. If he was aware that your fiancé said the things he did, he would be better prepared to cope with Pierre. But he wasn't aware. Therefore, Pierre has a slight advantage. But only a slight advantage. It may not be enough. I am speaking very frankly. Pierre is not clever. He is relentless, but his intelligence is not always alert. And in this profession, cleverness counts more than relentlessness. Therefore, Steve has an even chance of coming out of it alive."

Zorie believed he was being honest. If Steve had a chance of coming out of it alive, he might come to this cabin. It would improve Steve's chances—and her own—if she could persuade Mr. Lanning that Paul had been lying maliciously and that Steve had been honest in his dealings with these people.

If Steve reached this cabin alive, she was certain he would not let them kill her, provided he was given a voice in the matter. It came down to that very ironical basis: Her only chance to get out of this cabin alive was to convince Mr. Lanning, and anyone else who came in, that Steve was what he actually was—a true-blue Nazi! And if she could somehow save her own life, she would have a chance of trapping them all.

She suspected that Mr. Lanning, in his present frame of mind, would be an awfully hard man to convince. First, she must secure all the information he would part with.

"Who owns this cabin?"

"One of your dinner guests—Basil Stromberg. You are surprised?"

"And Mr. Stromberg will have the final say, whether I'm to live or not?"

"Yes, Miss Corey."

"When will he be here?"

Mr. Lanning looked at his watch. "I told him two-thirty. It is now twelve-forty. He is usually very punctual, but he had certain arrangements to make and he may be a little late."

Zorie supposed that these arrangements had to do with getting the precious cabinet containing JY-419 off this island. Mr. Stromberg was doubtless contacting a Japanese agent who would arrange to have JY-419 delivered to a Japanese submarine.

"Are we in Kokee?"

"Yes. On the edge of Waimea Canyon—the most beautiful canyon in my opinion, than the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. I sincerely hope you will live to see a Waimea sunrise, if this rain will only stop. You will see it from this window. The edge of the canyon is only a hundred feet away. From this window, the view is superb."

He went around the table and opened the window.

"We don't have to blackout here," Mr. Lanning said. "There is nothing across the canyon but swampy wilderness. Of all the dreary restrictions of modern warfare, the one I detest the most is the blackout."

He returned to his chair. He had another drink. The level in the bottle had already gone down amazingly. Zorie recalled the seven or eight cocktails he had had before dinner. His eyes were as clear, his hands and his voice and evidently his brain were as steady as if he hadn't a drop.

Those red point problems won't iron out by themselves. They need the expert guidance of the homemaker who makes a hobby of working out her point budget to suit her own particular needs.

We've discovered lots of delicious foods since food rationing began, and not the least of those is fish. It's a fairly inexpensive food and gives you a wealth of protein, vitamins and minerals.

Fish may be purchased whole or as fillet or steaks. Scales may be left on when the fish is cooked for they usually soften in the cooking process. The methods usually employed for preparing fish are the same as used for meat—broiling, frying, baking and even boiling. If well cooked and seasoned, fish can be a welcome addition to your table.

Broiling Fish.

When using a whole fish for broiling, clean thoroughly, then wipe dry and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Brush the broiler pan with fat and place fish on heated rack, about two inches from broiling unit. Broil until fish is well browned and flakes when tried with a fork. It will take from 6 to 12 minutes to broil the fish, depending upon its size.

If you are broiling fish fillets, brush them first with melted fat and sprinkle lightly with flour to give them a crispy surface after broiling.

Baked Haddock with Dressing.

(Serves 4)
2 haddock steaks (about 1 1/4 pounds)
1 1/2 tablespoons chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped mushrooms
3 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon chopped parsley
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon water
1 1/2 cups fine bread crumbs

Place steaks in shallow, buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Saute onion and mushrooms in butter for 5 minutes. Add all remaining ingredients. Spread over fish. Bake in a moderate oven for 30 to 35 minutes. Serve plain or with celery sauce. Strips of bacon may be placed on top of dressing before baking.

Tartar Sauce for Fish.
1 teaspoon minced onion
2 teaspoons chopped sweet pickle
1 teaspoon chopped green olives
1/2 teaspoon minced capers
1 tablespoon minced parsley
3/4 cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon tarragon vinegar

Drain first five ingredients and fold into mayonnaise. Add vinegar. Bass, halibut, perch, pickerel, pike or trout may be substituted for the haddock in the above recipe.

Mackerel with Bacon and Onions. (Serves 4)
1 pound fillet of mackerel
Salt and pepper
1 cup sliced onions
4 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup fine, soft bread crumbs
2 slices crisp, broiled bacon

Unit Shelves Easy For You to Build

WHETHER you have a house of your own or whether you move often, unit bookshelves are the answer to many a problem. They may be scaled to fit almost any space; you may add to them as needed and they may be shifted from one place to another according to your mood. They may start in the living room and end in the children's room or in the kitchen. The units may be divided, multiplied or used in various combinations.

ONE OR MORE CENTER UNITS MAY BE MADE TO FIT ANY SPACE. DEEP SHELVES HOLD WIDE MAGAZINES. NO SHARP CORNERS. SIMPLE CUTS AND EASY CONSTRUCTION. MADE RIGID WITH NAILS AND MODERN GLUE.

You need no special skill to make the three units shown. These well proportioned shelves were designed especially for amateur homecrafters to make with the simplest tools. A compass saw from the five-and-dime will cut the curved shelves of the end units. Because the shelves were designed by a homemaker, a simple method of constructing them with no open dust space at the bottom was worked out and special thought was given to the width and depth of shelves so that they would have the maximum usefulness and still be made of stock sizes of lumber.

NOTE: Pattern 270 gives a full size pattern for the curved shelves of these book cases and large diagrams with dimensions of all the straight pieces. Also a complete list of materials required and illustrated directions for each step in the construction of the units. To get this pattern enclose 15 cents with name and address and send direct to:

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE CHURCH DURING WAR AND PEACE

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 5:43-48; Romans 13:1-7.
GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are the peacemakers; for they shall be called sons of God.—Matthew 5:9.

Everywhere men are talking about the coming peace. They are concerned lest having won a war we may lose the peace through the selfishness or the indifference of men. It is a great problem and one about which we are rightly concerned.

Why is it then that the most important factor in assuring a just and friendly settlement of the problem is left out of men's deliberations? Why is there so little (if any) thought of God and prayer to Him for the needed guidance and wisdom?

We know that there can never be an abiding peace until Christ comes to establish His kingdom, but in the meantime, we should seek to bring Christian principles to bear on the relations of men and nations. We are to show:

I. A Higher Measure of Love (Matt. 5:43-48).

The world has established its own principle of conduct based on selfish advantage. It pays to be polite to those who can favor you, so cultivate their good will by acts of courtesy and kindness. Your neighbor may be able to help you in an hour of need, so do good to him as you have opportunity.

But an enemy—what can you gain from kindness to him? Hate him, and treat him like an enemy.

Christianity knows nothing of such a spirit. Even though it be necessary to fight against wicked men in order to hinder their evil plans, we need not lose our love for them. Even those who despitely use us may be loved for Christ's sake.

"Consider Him that endured such contradiction of sinners against Himself" (and went right on loving them), "lest ye be wearied" (in your own love for those who bear the sad name of enemies (see Heb. 12:3).

This is admittedly a high standard, but it is not too high for those who know the love of Christ.

II. A Higher Degree of Loyalty (Rom. 13:1-4).

An intelligent Christian is the best citizen. He knows that all government is based on the power and authority of God, and hence he recognizes the legality and authority of duly constituted governmental agencies.

No matter how much man has perverted or degraded government, yet it is in essence the expression of a ministry of God (v. 4). How deeply ashamed that should make those who regard political office as a means of personal gain and advantage, or who use their authority to permit or promote that which is against God.

Every public official should recognize God as the giver of his authority and seek the Lord's special grace and guidance in the discharge of his duties. Every citizen should highly regard the one who rules as having a power ordained of God (v. 1), for the good of the nation (v. 4).

Here then is the solution of the political problems which are causing upheaval all over the world, namely, a revival of Christian testimony and faith, for it will lead to a loyalty on the part of the people which is quite unknown where Christianity does not bring its true influence to bear.

That kind of love for men and loyalty to government necessarily brings about:

III. A Higher Standard of Patriotism (Rom. 13:5-7).

There is more to real patriotism than flag waving and high-sounding oratory. There must be a conscientious willingness to serve the nation in willing obedience to the command or the request of proper authority.

The Christian gives just that kind of patriotic support to his country (v. 5). His enlightened conscience demands it, and he responds.

Then too, there must be support of the government by the payment of taxes. Think of the thousands who are engaged in the business of evading their just share of the cost of government.

The Christian has no share in such things, for he is ready to pay his share of the expense of government as a ministry of the Lord (v. 6).

No government can function properly nor long endure which does not have the respect and confidence of those governed. There can be nothing but criticism, discontent, and disobedience in such an atmosphere.

Ernie Pyle's Slant on the War:

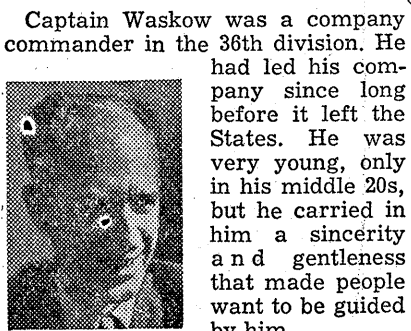

Officer Won Lasting Respect of His Soldiers

Wounded GI Artist Becomes Most Popular Cartoonist to Soldiers

By Ernie Pyle

(Editor's Note: Pyle retells some of his experiences while he was with the Doughboys during the Italian campaign. He is now taking a long-needed rest in New Mexico.

AT THE FRONT LINES IN ITALY.—In this war I have known a lot of officers who were loved and respected by the soldiers under them. But never have I crossed the trail of any man as beloved as Capt. Henry T. Waskow of Belton, Texas.

Ernie Pyle "After my own father, he came next," a sergeant told me. "He always looked after us," a soldier said. "He'd go to bat for us every time."

"I've never known him to do anything unfair," another one said. I was at the foot of the mule trail the night they brought Captain Waskow down. The moon was nearly full, and you could see far up the trail, and even part way across the valley below. Soldiers made shadows as they walked.

Dead men had been coming down the mountain all evening, lashed onto the backs of mules. They came lying belly down across the wooden packsaddles, their heads hanging down on the left side of the mules, their stiffened legs sticking out awkwardly from the other side, bobbing up and down as the mules walked.

The Italian mule skinnners were afraid to walk beside dead men, so Americans had to lead the mules down that night. Even the Americans were reluctant to unlash and lift off the bodies, when they got to the bottom, so an officer had to do it himself and ask others to help.

The first one came down early in the morning. They slid him down from the mule, and stood him on his feet for a moment while they got a new grip. In the half light he might have been merely a sick man standing there leaning on the others. Then they laid him on the ground in the shadow of the low stone wall alongside the road.

I don't know who that first one was. You feel small in the presence of dead men, and you don't ask silly questions.

We left him there beside the road, that first one, and we all went back into the cowshed and sat on water cans or lay on the straw, waiting for the next batch of mules.

Somebody said the dead soldier had been dead for four days, and then nobody said anything more about it. We talked soldier talk for an hour or more; the dead man lay all alone, outside in the shadow of the wall.

Then a soldier came into the cowshed and said there were some more bodies outside. We went out into the road. Four mules stood there in the moonlight, in the road where the trail came down off the mountain. The soldiers who led them stood there waiting.

"This one is Captain Waskow," one of them said quietly.

One soldier came and looked down, and he said out loud: "Damn it!"

That's all he said, and then he walked away.

Another one came, and he said, "Damn it to hell anyway!" He looked down for a few last moments and then turned and left.

Another man came. I think he was an officer. It was hard to tell officers from men in the dim light, for all were bearded and grimy. The man looked down into the dead captain's face and then spoke directly to him, as though he were alive: "I'm sorry, old man."

Then a soldier came and stood beside the officer and bent over, and he too spoke to his dead captain, not in a whisper but awfully tenderly, and he said: "I sure am sorry, sir."

Then the first man squatted down, and he reached down and took the dead hand, and he sat there for a full five minutes holding the dead hand in his own and looking intently into the dead face. And he never uttered a sound all the time he sat there.

Finally he put the hand down. He reached up and gently straightened the points of the captain's shirt collar, and then he sort of re-arranged the tattered edges of the uniform around the wound, and then he got up and walked away down the road in the moonlight, all alone.

The rest of us went back into the cowshed, leaving the five dead men lying in a line end to end in the shadow of the low stone wall. We lay down on the straw in the cowshed, and pretty soon we were all asleep.

Sgt. Bill Mauldin appears to us over here to be the finest cartoonist the war has produced. And that's not merely because his cartoons are funny, but because they are also terribly grim and real.

Mauldin's cartoons aren't about training-camp life, which you at home are best acquainted with. They are about the men in the line—the tiny percentage of our vast army who are actually up there in that other world doing the dying. His cartoons are about the war.

Mauldin's central cartoon character is a soldier, unshaven, unwashed, unsmiling. He looks more like a hobo than like your son. He looks, in fact, exactly like a doughfoot who has been in the lines for two months.

And that isn't pretty. His maturity comes simply from a native understanding of things, and from being a soldier himself for a long time. He has been in the army three and a half years.

Bill Mauldin was born in Mountain Park, N. M. He now calls Phoenix home base, but we of New Mexico could claim him without much resistance on his part.

Bill has drawn ever since he was a child. He always drew pictures of the things he wanted to grow up to be, such as cowboys and soldiers, not realizing that what he really wanted to become was a man who draws pictures.

He graduated from high school in Phoenix at 17, took a year at the Academy of Fine Arts in Chicago, and at 18 was in the army. He did 64 days on K. P. duty in his first four months. That fairly cured him of a lifelong worship of uniforms.

Mauldin belongs to the 45th division. Their record has been a fine one, and their losses have been heavy.

Mauldin's typical grim cartoon soldier is really a 45th division infantryman, and he is one who has truly been through the mill.

Mauldin was detached from straight soldier duty after a year in the infantry, and put to work on the division's weekly paper. His true war cartoons started in Sicily and have continued on through Italy, gradually gaining recognition. Capt. Bob Neville, Stars and Stripes editor, shakes his head with a veteran's admiration and says of Mauldin:

"He's got it. Already he's the outstanding cartoonist of the war."

Mauldin works in a cold, dark little studio in the back of Stars and Stripes' Naples office. He wears silver-rimmed glasses when he works. His eyes used to be good, but he damaged them in his early army days by drawing for too many hours at night with poor light.

He averages about three days out of 10 at the front, then comes back and draws up a large batch of cartoons. If the weather is good he sketches a few details at the front. But the weather is usually lousy.

"You don't need to sketch details anyhow," he says. "You come back with a picture of misery and cold and danger in your mind and you don't need any more details than that."

Mauldin Still Just a Kid

Even though he's just a kid he's a husband and father. He married in 1942 while in camp in Texas, and his son was born last August 20 while Bill was in Sicily. His wife and child are living in Phoenix now. Bill carries pictures of them in his pocketbook.

Unfortunately for you and Mauldin both, the American public has no opportunity to see his daily drawings. But that isn't worrying him. He realizes this is his big chance.

After the war he wants to settle again in the southwest, which he and I love. He wants to go on doing cartoons of these same boys who are now fighting in the Italian hills, except that by then they'll be in civilian clothes and living as they should be.

10-GALLON SWEATERS

Spain, from all reports, is keeping right in step with modern scientific progress. For instance, in Spain you can now buy a sweater made out of skimmed milk.

Just imagine a customer walking into a clothing store in Madrid.

"I'd like to see a sweater," he requests.

"Yes, sir," bows the assistant.

"What size, please?"

The customer scratches his head. "I'm not sure," he replies, "but I think I take a size 14 quarts and 1 pint."

Illiterate

Tired, a distinguished congressman in Washington handed the menu to the waiter and said, "Just bring me a good meal."

A good meal was served, and the congressman gave the waiter a generous tip.

"Thank you, suh," the waiter said, "and if you got any friends what can't write, yo jus' send 'em to me, suh."

A farmer ran to tell his neighbor that his wife had suddenly gone insane. "I don't know where she could have caught that insanity bug," he explained, "she ain't been outside our kitchen for twenty-five years."

Reveille on the Jordan

Just a little message to the boys in the service from the folks back home. Sponsored by the East Jordan Community Service Club.

Dear Friends:

Having just returned from a meeting at the local school auditorium which is of vital interest to you, perhaps we should use this column to briefly outline the program as presented. We know the plans of this program are very important as they deal with the returning veterans of this war, either from actual duty, medical discharge, or any other honorary release.

Already figures of our local county selective service board show at least one hundred and sixty of such releases within this county. With the increasing number of these returning veterans, the need is being felt for a council board to be established for the purpose of advising and instructing these veterans as to the GI rights and facilities available. Already this plan is being worked out in the southern part of the state, however, each county is responsible for its own organization. At the meeting tonight (November 3rd) a committee composed of Burl Braman, Barney Milstein, Joe Bugai, Oscar Weisler, and Bill Shepard, was established to represent East Jordan in a tri-city meeting to be held next week. Friday evening at the local American Legion Hall, this meeting will also be open to the public. The purpose of the meeting will be to appoint a full time county councilor whose duty will be to visit all returning veterans. Each township in the county will also have a representative who will act as sub-councilor for his district.

Under the selective service act, all veterans, and remember this includes women as well as men, have certain rights and privileges such as educational, medical, and employment, in which this county councilor will be well informed. Remember, friends, this service is being rendered without charge and strictly for your benefit and we hope, that should the occasion arise, you will take advantage of it. We hope to have further information as to the name of the county councilor and the local appointments after we attend next week's meeting.

SERVICE NOTES

We find it difficult this week to begin our service notes to you as our last week's writings four of our number have paid the supreme sacrifice, namely, GEORGE WRIGHT, JOHN PUCKETT, PAUL WILKINS and FRANK JANIK. Word came on Saturday, October 28, that George had been killed in action in France. A few weeks ago we told you about the telegram which told of John being reported missing in action in France since September 28th and we now learn he was killed on that day. Friday, November 3, the message arrived stating that Frank had been killed in action on October 15 in Belgium. We expect he may have been shot down while on a bombing mission from his base in England. Eleven gold stars are now on our honor board, nine of this number having died on foreign soil. Those of our number who have given their lives for our country are: Keith Bartlett, William A. Clark, Charles Kotalik, Peter Boyer, Lloyd Prevo, Francis Haney, Harold Bates, George Wright, John Puckett, Paul Wilkins, Frank Janik.

We know not how many will have to pay the supreme sacrifice before peace shall be restored, we know not how God chooses those he calls, but we do know that He will call and it is for us as well as you in the service to be ready to answer His call.

Those of you who have just recently gone overseas no doubt have been wondering about your Christmas parcels reaching you and also the possibility of their being mailed. As you know October 15 was set as the deadline for mailing overseas Christmas parcels without a request, however, special permission for mailing such packages has been given providing the sender can provide a dated letter or card from the addressee giving the new overseas address. If you have not already done so it would be advisable to supply your friends and relatives with a card or letter for this purpose.

Two who have recently shipped out are Seabee BRUCE MALPASS and GERALD SIMMONS. Bruce is with the 103rd Construction Battalion and his address is in care of fleet post-office, San Francisco, Calif. Because Gerald was at a point of embarkation, a family gathering at the Simmons home recently could not be complete. The occasion for the celebration was a birthday dinner given in honor of CHUM, who is now home on leave after several months at sea. It was the first time in six years that this sailor had spent his birthday at home. Last week we listed Gerald's address as we had it then for DON WALTON in answer to his request and it is for his benefit that we list the new overseas address. Cpl. Gerald Simmons, (36-568,276), Hq. Base SU 359th Ser. Gq., APO 5655, c-o Pmr., San Francisco, Calif. . . . For GLEN TROJANEK we will list the address again of DUANE "SONNY" HOSLER as he too has sent in a different address from his location in Burma. The new address, Glen, is different from the one listed last week in that Sonny is now serving as an infantry scout with Co. E, 2nd Battalion, 475th Infantry and his new APO number is 218. The up and coming boxer writes in to tell us that the arm wound suffered a short time ago is healed and as good as new and he is all prepared to use that arm to operate his tommy gun, which he says can really spit the shells. As for boxing, he believes he will hang up the gloves until the big fight is over or at least until his return to the states. . . . As the mercury is trying to drop again after some beautiful warm autumn days we are beginning to envy GALEN SEILER more and more. After receiving the gold wings of a navy pilot and being commissioned an ensign, Galen received his assignment while home on leave to report to Miami Beach, Florida. He now reports in from his new location to tell us that on his first night there he met up with BILL SIMMONS, who is now home on a fifteen day furlough, and the two enjoyed a swell chat. The meeting was cut short however, as Bill was prepared to leave that evening for home but Galen is looking forward to more meetings with him upon his return from his furlough. While Galen was home on leave his brother, PARKER, left for navy service and while Galen was enroute back he stopped off at Great Lakes to see how his younger brother was making out as a sailor and the report is excellent. At the present time this navy pilot is flying torpedo bombers which are carrier based and described the sensation as being quite different than when flying fighters. Good flying, Ensign. . . . A short note came in this week from LEONARD LAD-EMAN, who is sailing on the USS Alabama. You will remember our printing a poem written by this sailor in a few issues back and it was the printing of this poem which prompted another sailor, MARLIN INGALLS, to send in an original poem that he wrote shortly after he entered service. Coincidentally, this poem arrived this week along with a short letter from Marlin, who, too, is sailing out in Pacific waters. The poem which Marlin wrote is entitled "It Seemed So Wrong" and goes as follows:

It seemed so wrong to send him into war,
His sternest look was once a gracious smile,
To blight his gentle spirit at the core,
And all his innate loveliness defile.
What should he know of hatred and of death
Whose battle fields are covered o'er with blood,
Who has imbibed with every youthful breath
Only the true, the beautiful, the good,
And if this war shall dim his spirits gold,
And quench the sunlight, glowing in his eyes,
And leave his body prematurely old,
Will not the ghost of his last youth arise
To haunt us in the crimson of the dawn?
For beauty once had been, but now is gone.

We wish to thank Marlin for this contribution to your column and hope this may help to inspire others to use their originality in similar ways. Your contributions are most welcome so send them along and if it is possible we will print them. . . . Picture postcards of the hometown, pictures of football and basketball teams, and newspaper clippings about the hometown are some of the things which help AUGUST LAPEER to remember what a swell place he has to come back to while he is on duty in the South Pacific with the navy. We suspect that this sailor may be one that participated in the great naval victory against the Japs as when he wrote the letter he was being kept extra busy and the letter was written at the time the battle was taking place. Can you tell us, Angie, if we are right in our suspicions? Many of our sailors inquire of us as to how many shell backs East Jordan can claim, however, we cannot give the answer as we have not classified our sailors as to polly-wogs and shell-backs and we could only get this information by having you write in your letters as to what classification you belong. We do know that there must be several of you who have crossed the equator and taken the initiation but just how many is questionable. Augie reports his classification as a shell-back and states that he has crossed the equator several times and has helped in transforming a lot of polly-wogs into shell-backs. So sailors, when you write in don't fail to let us know whether you're a "polly" or a "shell" and we'll try and compile the information and report the answer to you at intervals. . . . The news of the promotion of FRANK STREHL to the rank of Staff Sergeant reached us this week. Frank, as you remember, was one of our group who was wounded in France in the early part of the invasion. . . . If you had read last week's paper in its entirety you would have noticed a local item mentioning the marriage of GAYLE SXTON. We know that you would want us, in your behalf, to wish Gayle the best of everything, so to the newly married couple, congratulations and best wishes from all your friends in the service. . . . We have been wanting more news concerning BILL WALDEN'S duties in the South Pacific and when we noticed a news release which came in this week about him we thought we had something. We believe we would have had something too had the censor left his scissors in his pocket as in the release were neatly carved two little holes; however, we remain content in not knowing what we're not supposed to know. The release did tell that Bill is with the famed 13th Air Force and that he is operating as an aerial gunner from a base in the Netherlands East Indies. This air force fought throughout all of the Solomon's campaigns and also played an important role in the neutralization of the Japanese bases at Rabaul, Truk, Yap, Woleai, Pulu, and the Halamabera Islands. Bill left for overseas duty in August of this year. . . . GEORGE SECORD has left for across on another trip which he believes may be longer than the others which he has made. George usually reports in as soon as he arrives back in the states so if you do not see any mention in this column that he has returned, you may assume he is still on his mission. We have mentioned before of the meeting of ROD CARNEY and LEN BARBER in the land of France and this week brought a letter from Len in which he told of their meeting for a second time. He reports Rod to be looking good and that he is located not too far distant from him. Len has asked that we print the address of PETE HAMMOND as he would like to write to him to tell him that he has met his cousin, EDWARD HAMMOND, from Detroit, who happens to be in the same outfit. The address is Cpl. Harry Hammond, (36,450,023), 86th Rcn. Troop, APO 450, Camp San Luis Obispo, Calif. . . . Everyone must have stayed pretty well put this week as we note only two changes of locations and that is of WILLIS RUDE'S move to Ft. Meade, Maryland, and of JAMES HURLBERT to Camp Wallace, Texas. LAVERN ARCHER, who was recently home on a short furlough, has arrived at Ft. Geo. Meade too for reassignment. . . . The only soldier home that we had a talk with was HARRY PEARSALL who is now located at Percy Jones Hospital in Battle Creek. Harry told us that he came back to the states on the ship, Queen Mary, and also aboard this ship was Prime Minister and Mrs. Churchill, who were on their way to Canada. After docking at New York, Harry and thirteen other patients and four army nurses flew from New York to Battle Creek where they are being hospitalized. We are glad to be able to tell you that Harry is recovering from his wounds satisfactorily although he will have to be under medical care for sometime and that he now does duty at the hospital besides taking a course in carpentry.

Some of you may receive this paper as soon as a week after it is mailed, for others it may be months but whenever it reaches you we sincerely hope it finds you safe and enjoying good health. Wishing you the best of everything, we remain,
Your friends of the Community Club,
by Henry Drenth.

SCENE: First floor of the Hastings home
TIME: The evening of August 1, 1944

1. The desk at which Mr. Hastings opened his monthly bills and wrote an indignant letter to the electric company, protesting against their advertising that the average family gets twice as much electricity for its money as it did fifteen years ago.
2. The electric clock at which Mr. Hastings looked to see if he had time to mail his letter before dinner.
3. The family radio, with Junior parked close beside it, listening to "Jerry and the Jeeps."
4. The porch light which Mr. H. switched on to guide the dinner guests.
5. The percolator, ready and waiting to do dinner duty.
6. The electric range, filling the kitchen with appetizing odors.
7. The refrigerator, from which Mrs. H. was taking trays of tinkling ice cubes.
8. The iron, with which Nancy was pressing a dress for her date.
9. The back porch, on which Mr. H. paused to think things over — realizing that his family did use a lot more electricity nowadays, and maybe the company was right after all!
10. The trash can into which he tossed his crumpled letter.

ELECTRICITY JUST BECAUSE IT'S CHEAP AND ISN'T RATIONED!

MICHIGAN PUBLIC SERVICE CO.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"That's really a great editorial you just read to us, Judge. Where did you say it appeared?"
"In 'The Stars and Stripes'... the newspaper of the U.S. Armed Forces in Europe. Kind of gives us folks back home something to think about, doesn't it, Bill?"
"It certainly does, Judge. Particularly the last paragraph. Would you mind reading that again?"
"Glad to, Bill. It says, 'We can remember the days of prohibition, when moonshine whiskey made quick fortunes for bootleggers, crooked politicians and dishonest police officials. As a result, we claim we know what we want in the way of liquor legislation and feel those at home should wait until we return before initiating further legislation on liquor control.'"

"Out of fairness to our boys over there fighting, Judge, how could we disobey such a wish?"
