Band Concert Next Tuesday

FIRST CONCERT OF THE YEAR
AT H. S. GYMNASIUM

On Tuesday evening, May 7, the East Jordan High School Band will give their first concert of the year. The new band uniforms will be worn on this occasion and it is hoped that there will be a large crowd to see these uniforms. This concert will be given in the form of an appreciation affair as our thanks to the people of East Jordan for the donations they so generously contributed last fall towards the purchase of these uniforms.

In addition to solos, trios, marches and swing numbers, our selected numbers for the spring festival will be presented. On Friday, May 10, the band will travel to Traverse City for the annual Northern Michigan festival. If anyone is planning to attend this festival in Traverse City, please get in touch with Mr. Winkler as he would like to have a few cars to take some of the band members.

Spare Stamp No. 49 Now Good For 5 lbs. Sugar

With the expiration of Sugar Stamp 39, April 30th, spare stamp No. 49 was validated May 1st for five pounds of sugar through Oct. 31. OPA said provisions will be made to validate a spare stamp for summer home canning in June or July. Sugar for spring canning was provided with recent validation of spare stamp No. 9.

Boy Scout News

The Beaver Patrol of Troop 10 in East Jordan really came through for us in the district first aid meet by taking top honors. The winning of the contest at Boyne City entitles them to compete in the next contest the 14th of May.

The eager Beavers are: Donald Bowers, Donald Karr, Robert Saxton, James Nachazel, Robert Farmer. These are the boys on the team.

Monday night the American Legion Post 227, Rebec-Sweet, presented the troop with an American flag, jointed flagstaff and a gold plates crest of the American eagle. The presentation was made by post chaplain Vern Whiteford. The ceremony was very impressive and the boys all wish to extend their sincerest thanks for a swell gesture.

Friday, May 3rd, the troop will camp overnight at Graves Crossing and then on Saturday, May 4th, make the trip down in canoes and boats, stopping at noon for a Boy Scout chow.

TERROR IN THE AFTER HOUSE

By Peter Levins

Along with an invisible killer, with no way to attack, no way to escape. Nine survivors of a triple murder faced the situation on a sailing vessel. One of the nine was the killer, but who? Read America's most blood-chilling sea mystery, with this Sunday's (May 5 issue) of The Detroit Sunday Times.

Canadian gold mine promoters are mailing sales literature to Michigan residents from Toronto, peddling stock with luring balldoon of future profits. The U. S. securities and exchange commission, to which this activity has been a headache, estimates that the Canadian promoters are selling at least $1,000,000 worth of this stock each week to gullible U. S. citizens. The old rule still is good: Investigate before you invest!

John Benkema, secretary of the Muskegon Chamber of Commerce, tells a yarn of Florida postwar inflation. The Zerkens spent the month of March at Fort Lauderdale.

"The owner of a small resort hotel was approached by a real estate agent who said he had a client seeking a hotel property for investment," said Benkema. "Just put a price on your property," insisted the real estate agent. "I want my client to think I am doing something for him."

"And so the hotel owner set a price of $175,000 — just 100 grand more than it was worth. The buyer offered $165,000, and the deal was closed. Two weeks later the buyer re-sold the same property for a half million — and no doubt the latest owner hopes to turn it in again at a further profit."

Refugee money from Europe is partly responsible, according to Benkema, for the Florida resort boom.

Michigan's number one problem, according to the Michigan United Cancer Action Club, is pollution of streams. Unless Michigan and other states get to put an end to the industrial practice of dumping chemical wastes into streams and require cities to install sewage disposal plants, the problem is likely to provoke Con-

Children's Pictures Taken In May

AND TO BE PUBLISHED IN THE
CHARLEVOIX COUNTY HERALD
LATER ON

"The best investment is in children," says Wm. J. Cameron. "You had better take a good look at them as they pass you on the street, for they are the ones who are going to make a new world for you, and you can catch some glimpse of the dawn in their fresh young faces."

That is a bit of philosophy in which the publishers of this newspaper firmly believe. And because we think our readers should "catch some glimpse of the dawn," we intend to help them do it. That is, of course, with the cooperation of the mothers and fathers of the children of this and surrounding communities.

Nationally Known Studio To Take Pictures

The only way we can give all our readers a good look at these future "world builders" is by publishing pictures of them in a feature series titled "Citizens of Tomorrow."

To assure the latest and best reproduction picture — they must be of uniform size and quality — we have made arrangements with the Woltz Studios, nationally known children's photographers, to take these special pictures for us.

Expert children's photographers for the studios, with all the necessary equipment for this specialized work, will be here Wednesday, May 15. The special studio will be set up in the American Legion Hall and will be open from 1 p. m. to 8 p. m.

There Will Be No Charge to Parents!

There is no charge to the parents! There are absolutely no strings to this invitation. There is no age limit. It is bonafide in every sense of the word. Parents do not have to be subscribers, nor even readers of this newspaper to take advantage of this feature. Neither are they obligated to purchase pictures after they are taken. Those who want some additional prints may obtain a limited number by arrangement with the studio representative when they select the pose they want printed in the paper. It is entirely up to them!

The More Pictures The Better.

The Herald simply wants pictures of all the youngsters and the more the better. So Mother and Father of the community in which the Herald circulates should remember the day and hours and not fail to bring their children to the photographer.

You will be mighty glad, afterwards, if you did, and very, very sorry if you fail to allow your children to participate in this event. The kiddies will have much fun and both Mother and Dad — and the youngsters, too — will be very proud to see their pictures in print later. Many will clip them out and preserve them until junior grows up.

Preschool Clinic

There will be a Preschool Clinic, Tuesday, May 7, at the Masonic dining room, East Jordan, from 9:30 to 11:30.

The Clinic will be conducted by Doctor J. VanDellen, assisted by Mrs. Marian Rice, Charlevoix County Nurse.

Looking Backward

April 14, 1906

The East Jordan Military Band gave a concert at the Loveday Opera House April 10th, assisted by other local talent including William Webster, violin, and Harriet Hoyt, Grace Barrett, and Mrs. Suffern, pianists. Of the 19 members listed I know of only three who still live here: Charles Malpass, Leonard Swafford and Cleve Isaman. Other members were: O. H. Moyer, baritone and conductor; Ellis Malpass, W. E. Palmer, F. E. Brotherton, William Madison Swafford, Arthur Howard, Harold Boyd, Ernest Lanway, William Kenyon, Austin Sheldon, William Supernaw, Orvie Hurlburt, James Green, Oral Misenar, Charles Barrett, and John Green.

The steamer, Missouri, was in port at Charlevoix Monday on her first trip of the season.

Jay Hite is here, guest of his parents. He has been touring with an orchestra.

Harvey S. Bashaw and Miss Ida Berg were married at the bride's home Wednesday evening.

From the school notes: "Grace Keenbolts has left school to take up a position as teacher in the Boyne Falls school." "Hazel Farrell and Marle Jones have entered the first grade."

Harry Price has secured the contract of erecting the $45,000 First Nat'l Bank building at Ludington.

April 21, 1906

The leading article on the front page states that surveyors were soon to be on the grounds, staking out lots at Terrace Beach. It continues: "Before the resort season of 1906 opens there will probably be from a dozen to 20 cottages ready for summer visitors." In reality only two were built at that time. About 20 years later one more cottage was built, two more were moved across from the Chemical plant on the ice and a fourth one was brought out from town. The real development of the tract began when A. L. Watson acquired the major portion of it and built some fine log cottages in recent years. He has several more under construction.

Health Officer Diehl and Marshal Johnson have been looking up the Village's sanitary condition the past week and a number of defects are to be remedied, including the pond just west of the town hall.

The family of Sandy Dean are now residents of East Jordan, moving here from Central Lake this week.

George W. Kake and Miss Harriet L. Hunt were married Tuesday by Justice F. E. Boosinger at his home.

"The word 'funny' being exclusively applied of late to the colored sheet in a newspaper, no longer means anything that will cause anyone to laugh."

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Cut Civilian Meat Supplies; MacArthur Affirms Purge Policy; House Conservatives Curb OPA

Released by Western Newspaper Union.
(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Presently held by Italy but sought by Yugoslavia, strategic Adriatic port of Trieste has been troublesome bone of contention in the peace-making. During visit of United Nations commission to area, Yugoslavs staged rally demanding port and civil guards are shown dispersing straggling demonstrators with fire hose.

MEAT:

Cut Supply

Following close upon the restoration of slaughtering quotas to provide for a more equitable distribution of meat, the department of agriculture announced that civilian supplies would be lower in April, May and June than in the previous months though well above the same period last year.

In renewing slaughtering quotas, the department sought to check the heavy diversion of livestock from major packing centers by smaller operators. The big packers' inability to match smaller buyers' bids and remain within OPA ceiling prices pointed up charges that much of the meat being processed was diverted to black markets.

With 15 per cent of the April, May and June meat supply allocated to the army and foreign relief, civilian stocks will be at a rate of 132 pounds per person as against 147 for the first three months of the year. Despite the reduction, the supply still will be 16 pounds over that for the same period in 1945.

FAR EAST:

Mac Answers Russ

In answering Russian inquiries on the effectiveness of his purge of anti-democratic elements in post-war Japan, Gen. Douglas MacArthur stood by his past actions and reaffirmed intentions of continuing to carefully weed out undesirable elements from commanding positions.

Holding fast to previous measures, MacArthur disputed the four-power Allied council's authority to review his past administrative actions in the defeated country. He also met insinuations that he might have dealt lightly with Japanese figures in some instances by asserting that the council possessed sufficient data to study his measures and did not require copies of all directives issued.

Answering Russia's request for a new election if the recent balloting resulted in the selection of undesirable representatives, MacArthur said he could not take any action which might reflect upon any party or favor another. Undesirable elements would be removed from parliament through continuing investigations, he indicated.

CONGRESS:

Curb OPA

Demanding equal profits for all and the free play of economic forces to spur production and reduce the threat of inflation with more goods, the southern Democrats and conservative Republicans again banded in the house to curb OPA control and extend the agency's life for nine months instead of one year.

Even before house action, the bill was appreciably modified by the banking committee. Attacking OPA practice of compelling retailers to absorb part of higher manufacturing costs, the committee decided to allow them a full markup, and it also abolished the OPA regulation requiring clothing makers to balance output of cheaper and more expensive lines.

When the bill reached the floor,

Industry Briefs . . .

While a host of new building products will appear in the postwar period as the government's housing program gains momentum, most of them will represent improved forms of old materials rather than revolutionary innovations, the trade predicts. Established building material makers are keeping their feet on the ground in pushing output of basic materials and in concentrating their efforts on the development of critical items in short supply.

however, the conservative coalition went to work in earnest.

By a 209 to 189 vote, OPA's life was reduced to nine months from a year.

By 259 to 137, OPA was ordered to allow every manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer full operating costs plus a reasonable profit in fixing price ceilings.

By 241 to 182, meat subsidies were abolished by July 1.

By 245 to 150, all food subsidies were to be gradually eliminated by December 31, with compensatory price increases allowed.

By 228 to 166, price ceilings were ordered removed on all goods reaching the June 30, 1941, level of production.

Having strongly diluted the coalition's anti-strike bill, senate action on OPA was awaited in the face of urgent administration demands for preserving maximum powers of the agency to head off inflation. Senate disagreement with the house measure would require a conference between the two bodies to iron out differences.

CHINA:

At It Again

Back in China after reporting to President Truman on his efforts to end civil strife in that long-suffering country, Gen. George C. Marshall found the nationalist and communist forces at each others' throats again despite the recent conclusion of a truce.

The new clashes centered in Manchuria where the nationalists sought to seize control of key sites in the wake of Russian withdrawals. While Chiang Kai-shek's forces took over smaller strongholds, an estimated 40,000 Reds using captured Jap equipment smashed 6,000 nationalists defending the Manchurian capital of Changchun.

Marshall's appearance on the scene coincided with the resumption of discussions between the disputants for reconciling the nationalists' desires for protecting the central government's strategic economic interests in the territory with the communists' demands for political power.

UN:

Rip Franco

Alone in championing Russia's position in the Iranian issue, Poland drew stronger support in its demand that the security council condemn Spain as a threat to world peace and recommend that the 51 member countries of the United Nations break diplomatic relations with Madrid.

Russia, Australia, France and Mexico proved sympathetic to Polish Delegate Lange's charges that 100,000 Germans and Vichy militiamen were in Spain and German scientists were developing new weapons of war within the country.

Franco had answered earlier Polish suggestions that German scientists were working on atomic energy in Spain by inviting the UN to send an investigating committee to the country.

While expressing no love for Franco, the U. S., backed by Britain, China, Holland and Brazil, cautioned against hasty action in the case of Spain, reiterating its policy of giving every encouragement to the Spanish people to organize a new government peaceably without stirring another bloody civil war.

MUSK-OX:

Taking advantage of winter conditions unparalleled in the U. S., American observers at the Canadian army's arctic "Exercise Musk-Ox" are making discoveries expected to prove valuable not only to the army but also to civilians living in the extremely cold winter climates of the northern United States.

On-the-spot changes in types of American clothing, food and equipment are being made and new products developed in the U. S. on observers' recommendations.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS
by Lynn Chambers

Cookies made from the new emergency flour tend to be darker in color but they can be made acceptably if directions are followed.

Emergency Flour Meets Tests for Breads and Cakes

Just what does 80 per cent extraction flour mean? How will it affect our own home baking? How can it be used? These are some of the questions you're probably asking yourself as the packages of emergency flour appear on store shelves.

Well, let's start with the first question. Eighty per cent extraction means that instead of the 72 per cent and 28 pounds of animal feed that the miller has been getting from every 100 pounds of wheat he will now get 80 pounds of wheat to be used as flour and 20 pounds as animal feed.

The new flour is slightly gray in color instead of the creamy white which we are accustomed to seeing. The color is due partially to the parts of the wheat kernel which naturally contains some color or pigment.

Emergency flour is considerably better than what we first had anticipated. To date, in tests which have been made in actual home baking, the flour has behaved satisfactorily. In biscuits and breads, the color of the finished product has a slight grayish cast, but in other baked products such as muffins, cookies and cakes, the use of eggs tends to push the gray into the background.

As for pie crust, you'll find that the new flour gives pastry a much better color than the flour we formerly used. It seems that in pastry, the crust comes out a more golden color than before.

How to Use.
You will be seeing new recipes in this column from time to time giving you tips on how to use the emergency flour. However, if you want to convert your old recipes, a safe rule to follow is to take 2 tablespoons out of each 1 cup of flour that the recipe requires.
In using the emergency flour with baking powder, soda or sour milk,

Lynn Says:

Conserve Fats and Oils: Better use can be made of drippings — those fats that cook out of roasts, bacon and sausage. While the fats are still liquid, strain them through cheesecloth and store them in a cool place. They are especially good for seasoning vegetables; they may be used for gravies and sauces and even some baking, in highly spiced cookies and cakes.

Save fewer fried foods to save on fat. If you do fry, use the shallow fat method or the oven.

Save the fats and oils which have been used for frying and re-use them whenever possible. Otherwise, give the fats to your butcher.

Render the excess fat on meats and use it either at home or turn it into the fat salvage. Dried bread crumbs can be used for puddings such as apple or peach betty, for dipping meats and fish, or other foods that are baked or fried.

If you have dried cake, crumb it and use for a cake crumb crust for pie. Mix the crumbs with a little melted butter and sugar and press into a pie plate.

Now that you've been asked to save wheat, do the following things to save on bread:

Serve creamed meat on top of mashed potatoes instead of toast or biscuits.

For lunch, serve open-faced sandwiches instead of the closed variety.

Top meat casseroles with crumbled potato chips; use mashed potatoes or corn meal mush for topping meat and vegetable casseroles.

It seems advisable to use a minimum amount of stirring and mixing after the flour has been added. The rule which you have known so long, "Mix only until flour is moistened," as far as quick breads are concerned applies particularly to this new flour.

In making yeast-leavened products, handle the batters and doughs lightly, especially after the first rising. Another must is to let the product rise not so much, so start working on it just before it doubles itself.

Texture in Cakes.

For the emergency, you'll have to forego your elaborate, velvety textured cakes. Simple cakes—the two egg type—are quite acceptable made with the new flour, but the texture is not as soft and fine as you are accustomed to. You see, the flour is just not as soft and fine as the bleached flours which we recommend for really fine cakes. In addition to the simple white or gold cakes, you may also use the flour for devil's food or chocolate cakes and spice cakes.

Thickening Qualities.

For all practical purposes, the new flour has the same thickening quality as regular all-purpose flour. Use it the same way as you would our regular flour in thickening gravies, sauces, stews, pie and cake fillings.

Another point which it is well to remember in regard to the new flour is that it will not keep as well as regular flour. Don't stock up on it! Buy limited quantities, but buy them more often.

The same storage that we give regular flour is doubly important in this case. A covered container is recommended, and it's best to keep this in a cool, dry place.

Food Value.

Some people have said that the emergency flour is a fine thing because it has more "good in it." Well, of course, the bran in the flour is nourishing because it gives us more thiamin, niacin, riboflavin and iron than regular flour. It gives us only about half as much as enriched white flour, however.

Are we going to be our "brother's keeper" in 1946 to starving Europeans, allies and former enemies? Michigan observed the traditional Christian event, Easter Sunday, with thankful hearts and with bountiful dinner tables.

Yes, the war is over. Thank God for that. Two-thirds of Michigan's men and women in military services — 406,133 as on April 1 — are now back home.

No Michigan homes were bombed during the war. Pay checks were at record highs. Michigan consumed more food in 1945 than in 1940, a pre-war year.

Strange, isn't it, that frantic appeals for food to avert starvation of hundreds of thousands of war-distressed human beings in Europe is meeting with apparent indifference and callous disregard of Americans at 1946 Easter Sunday! Ordinarily the American response to such a call would be immediate — emphatic and generous.

Why, then, all this in 1946?

According to the U. S. department of Agriculture, the off-farm wheat stocks on April 1 totaled 175 million bushels while the on-farm stocks, now being held by farmers for stock feed or for higher prices, totaled 203 million bushels. The over-all aggregate for 378 million bushels.

And yet this latter amount is not available immediately for shipment to Europe. If it were, American ships could transport needed wheat at once to hungry millions abroad and the emergency export goal could be met successfully without resort to a mandatory 25 per cent cut in wheat stocks processed by flour millers.

Charles Figy, director of the state department of agriculture, recently pointed out in this column that the milling order would not adversely affect the average Michigan farmers. We quote again: "Most Michigan farmers have general farms whereby grains are grown for feeding of livestock and chickens. They are going to see that their livestock and chickens are fed."

President Truman's famine emergency committee has recommended that grain prices should be increased to discourage the feeding of grain to livestock and poultry. The president asks Americans to go voluntarily on a European diet (one-half what we ordinarily eat) two days a week to save food that most Americans eat too much anyway and we waste too much food.

But is the food situation in Europe so critical? Here are some facts as vouched for by reliable persons. Judge for yourself.

"Unless I get 300,000 of wheat within the next few days, hundreds of thousands of people will starve to death." — Fiorello H. LaGuardia, director general of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

"There is not enough food within the borders of the American zone in Germany from German sources to sustain life even at starvation levels," — Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, commander of the United States Forces in the European theatre in a statement to Herbert Hoover.

A fact-finding committee of American newspaper editors recently visited Germany to get information first-hand for their newspaper readers. Here are a few shockers:

"The American people do not want to see anyone starve whether enemies or friends. Now that the war is over, we must convince the American farmer that he must get his food out the same as during the war." — Robert Reed, associate editor of the Kansas City Star.

"If we do not feed the Germans adequately, it is inevitable that a great deal of chaos will result and there will be a tendency to swing Germany toward the-soviets which I consider unfortunate." — Garner Cowles Jr., Des Moines Register-Tribune.

"We have to feed the Germans or throw Central Europe into the hands of Communists." — Paul Bellamy, Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"If we do not provide adequate food for the people of Europe, anything may happen over here. In the United States zone in Germany, people are getting 1,600 calories a day. Democracy cannot successfully compete with communism when such a situation prevails. The American people must be made to realize our great responsibility in this disturbing situation." — Frank Gannett, president of the Gannett newspapers.

"We had better either give the Germans enough food or get out. We cannot democratize the Germans on 1,200 calories a day when communism is being taught on 1,600 calories in the Russian zone." — Edward T. Leach, Pittsburgh Post.

After years of war strain, Americans in 1946 are in a mood for a holiday. We shun post-war responsibilities of winning the peace; we rush madly into demobilization of our military strength; we hasten to Florida and other resort spots; we spend money furiously in gambling, entertainment, and luxuries.

On top of this, Washington's attempts to compromise reality with the holiday mood of the voters and yet to fulfill our national obligations overseas have resulted only in vacillation and confusion.

It is difficult to believe that Americans, once informed of the emergency abroad, will pursue the path of selfish pleasures and will disregard the Christian call to be their brother's keeper.

Tomorrow the responsibility of guiding the destinies of the world will be placed upon their shoulders. All are invited and urged to participate in this featured event. Among our children are those destined to fame and fortune, so let's not omit any of them!

Proofs of all poses will be submitted to the parents, and sets of approved poses will be prepared, identified, written up, and printed in this paper.

The Studio will also take pictures of adults and family groups, and submit proofs without charge, but these pictures will not be published in the paper.

by GWEN BRISTOW

THE STORY THUS FAR: Spratt Herlong, motion picture producer, met and married Elizabeth, whose first husband, Arthur Kittredge, was reported killed in World War I, but who later appeared in Hollywood and went to work with Spratt. Under the name of Kessler, he was not recognized and became a good friend of the Herlongs. Kessler told Elizabeth, Cherry and Dick about conditions in Nazi Germany which resulted in the suicide of Margaret's parents. Dick went to see Kessler to get his advice and to tell him just how he could convince his folks that he must go into the war. They had a long talk, during which Kessler explained to Dick what caused wars, and the result is a country did not defend itself.

CHAPTER XX

Dick announced to his parents that he was not going to finish this year at UCLA, and not going to wait at home until he was eighteen. He was going to join the Marines right now, if they'd have him.

Spratt told him to go ahead. "This is one place where you've got to make up your own mind," he said. "I'm not going to boss you."

To her own surprise, Elizabeth was able to answer him steadily. If it had to happen, it had to happen. She said, "Go ahead, Dick. It's all right with me."

"Thanks," Dick said shortly. But he stood there, evidently wanting to say more. After a moment he pulled up a chair with his foot and sat straddling it. "I was talking to Kessler the other day," he began. "He told me a lot about the war, and all that. He said he thought I ought to tell you—" He hesitated.

"Tell us what, Dick?" Spratt prompted him.

"Well—about making you understand that I didn't want to join the Marines just because I was excited or anything like that. About why this war is something we've got to do. You know it's got to be done, don't you?"

"Yes, we know it's got to be done," Spratt answered decisively. "I don't mind saying I'm sorry you've got to do it, Dick. But since you've got to, I'm glad you want to."

"And this war's got to be different from the last one," Dick persisted. "This time we've got to finish it, not leave everything up in the air the way it was before. You understand that too, don't you?" He looked at Elizabeth.

"Oh yes!" she exclaimed fervently. "I'm not very good at praying, but I feel like going down on my knees a dozen times a day to ask, 'Oh God, make this one different!'"

"That's a coward's prayer," Dick blurted rudely.

"Why—what do you mean?"

"I mean it is. Honestly, I've got a lot of things straight I never had before. Kessler didn't say just this, but I mean—well," he said defiantly, "just asking God to make this one different is being like some squish-bottomed middle-aged dame eating chocolates and praying, 'Please God, don't let me get fat.' God answered her prayer when he gave her brains enough to know candy would make her fat. The rest is up to her. If this war is going to be different we've got to make it be different—don't you see? It's up to us. Unconditional surrender, and then go on from there. Don't you see what I mean?"

He spoke with a pleading earnestness. His parents were hearing him in astonishment. They had never heard Dick talk like this before.

But instead of trying to evade it he had tried to understand it, and now, in halting sentences full of clichés and schoolboy colloquialisms, he was trying to make them understand it too.

"Well, I didn't figure it out all by myself. I'm not that smart. But in times like this, you do like to know what you're doing." Dick stood up and kicked his chair aside. "I guess you do understand," he said, and gave them a grin that was half embarrassed and half relieved.

Elizabeth came over to him. "Yes, we do. Go ahead, Dick. I mean it." She took his face between her hands and kissed him. It was the first kiss she had given him in a long time, and he kissed her back without minding it.

Early in March Dick and his friend Pudge went down to enlist in the Marines.

Elizabeth was in her room writing checks for the month's bills, when he telephoned her.

"Mother!"

"Yes, Dick? What happened? Tell me!"

"Mother, they took me!"

"This is your chance, Elizabeth," she was telling herself. "Do it right."

"Oh Dick, they did really? I knew they would!"

"They took us both, me and Pudge both! He's phoning his folks now. They took us both, mother!"

"After all, how could they help it? As if they wouldn't be proud to get you."

"Well, I sort of thought they'd take me, but you know how it is. They said there was nothing wrong with me, and gosh, by this time they'd sure know if there was. You never heard of such an overhauling as they gave us. There's nothing wrong with your son, Mrs. Herlong."

tension 200, please," she said. "Lydia? This is Elizabeth Herlong. May I speak to my husband? Spratt, this is Elizabeth. Dick just called from downtown. He's passed his physical. They took him."

"They did? Sure, I knew they would. Nothing wrong with Dick." He hesitated an instant. "And you?"

"Fine."

"You mean it, don't you? You sound like it."

"Of course I mean it. I'm all right, Spratt."

He laughed softly. "Good. Keep it up."

Dick left for boot-camp. Elizabeth was not sure what either she or Spratt had said to him. There was a great deal of "Lucky it's only to San Diego. You'll be getting in for Sundays sometimes." And Dick, "Wait till you see me in a GI haircut. Won't know me." Spratt shook hands with him, grinning in spite of a faint mist about his eyes. Elizabeth kissed him goodbye. As she did so, Dick whispered to her. "You own talking had given him time to get control of his emotions. Kessler was thinking now that all the time he had been assuring himself that she would not recognize him, he must have been unconsciously expecting this, for he was more ready for it than he knew. His fierce grip on himself made his voice very low when he replied,

"Mrs. Herlong, I repeat that I don't know what you are talking about. You think I am somebody else. My name is Erich Kessler."

"Your name is no more Erich Kessler than mine is. Please, please—I can't bear this! Tell me the truth!"

"I can't tell you more than I've told you," he answered.

"Listen to me," she exclaimed. "You are Arthur Kittredge, you were born in Chicago, you came to Tulsa, Oklahoma, as a research chemist for the Lerith Oil Company, in 1918 you married a girl named Elizabeth McPherson, in 1917 you joined the army—don't tell me you have forgotten!"

Kessler's answer, when he spoke, was like the answers he had given her that other time they had sat outside in the dark talking to each other—steady, rigidly controlled, his only evidence of agitation that restless poking at the grass with his stick.

"I have not forgotten," he said. Elizabeth sprang up. "Then you do remember me, Arthur!"

"No," he returned quickly. "Sit down, Mrs. Herlong." He spoke so forcefully that she obeyed him. "You interrupted me," he went on. "I was about to say I have not forgotten anything that happened to me before the war. My name is Erich Kessler, I was born in Berlin. I was in this country many years ago, but I was never in Tulsa, Oklahoma, in my life, and I never saw you until your husband brought me here for dinner one night last October. Now believe me." He spoke to her earnestly. Elizabeth sat listening, half convinced by his insistence. "You told me," he continued, "that I recognized you of someone you had once known, and you couldn't remember who it was. Now you have remembered; something about me—I don't know what, since I never saw him—calls your first husband to mind. Tonight, under a great strain, you suddenly realize who it is I recall to you, and your surprise is so great that you are even persuaded not only that I have some traits in common with that man, but that I am that man." He paused a moment, then resumed his argument. "Talk to me about it now, if that will be any relief to you. But there is one thing I beg of you."

"What?" she asked breathlessly.

"Don't say anything to your husband about this."

"Good heavens above, you sound as if I were a lady in a crinoline!" She heard herself beginning to laugh again, and again made herself stop. "Do you think I'm sitting here agast at the notion that my second marriage isn't legal, that my children—I'm not such a fool as that. There's nothing wrong with my present marriage, Arthur. You're legally dead, the United States Government says you are, they even wanted to pay me a pension. That has nothing to do with it. But you're you."

"Yes, I am me," he returned with an attempt at lightness. "But I am not that other man."

"Then where did you get his eyes, his voice, his mind? I know you, Arthur. I loved you, I was married to you—"

"You were nothing of the sort," he interrupted her harshly. "And if you don't get this illusion out of your mind you're going to be miserable the rest of your life. There is nothing I can do but deny it—no, there is something more I can do, and I'll promise you to do it."

"What else?"

"I'll go away. You'll never be troubled by me again. If I had dreamed this was going to happen no power on earth could have brought me here to destroy your peace. If you say the word, I'll go tonight."

"No!" she cried. "That won't change anything."

"Very well," said Kessler. "But you will make me a promise too."

"What is it?"

"Stop what?"

"Stop what?"

"Stop what?"

"Stop what?"

"Stop what?"

"Stop what?"

"Stop what?"

It might have been her fancy, or it might have been agitation on his part, or merely his German accent, but his words sounded so thick she could barely understand them.

"I didn't know you before," she exclaimed. "All of a sudden tonight I knew. Arthur, please, please stop it!"

"Mrs. Herlong—" he began, but she interrupted him.

"Why don't you call me Elizabeth? You know me well enough!" She began to laugh, and checked herself. "Don't tell me I'm under a strain; from Dick's going away, or that I've had too much to drink. They're both true, but they don't matter right now. Maybe it took that to stir up all the old memories that suddenly tonight showed me who you were. So stop this idiotic pretense, can't you?"

Elizabeth did not know it, but her own talking had given him time to get control of his emotions. Kessler was thinking now that all the time he had been assuring himself that she would not recognize him, he must have been unconsciously expecting this, for he was more ready for it than he knew. IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for May 5

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

TWO BROTHERS LEARN TOLERANCE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 3:14-17; Luke 9:49-58; I John 4:7, 8. GOLDEN TEXT—And this commandment have we from him, that he who loveth God love his brother also.—I John 4:21.

Intolerance is soundly condemned in our day, and we agree that the spirit which hates or hinders a man because he is of a certain race or color is definitely wrong. Even within Christian circles we could well learn more of that fine spirit of Christ which is epitomized in the words, "no respecter of persons." A word of caution is needed, however, lest we come to extend our tolerance to that which is sinful, wicked or destructive. One should never tolerate poison in a child's food, or in his textbooks. One does not tolerate a fire while it destroys one's house. Nor should one be tolerant of false teaching which breaks down faith in the Bible as the Word of God.

James and John were outstanding in their places of leadership for God. We learn in our lesson for today that

I. God Wants Powerful Men (Mark 3:14-17).

There seems to be an impression current in some places that being a Christian is practically synonymous with being a weak, frightened, negative person without either personality or power.

The fact is that the gospel of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ rightly interpreted, and fully received into the heart and life of a man, brings such a tremendously enriching and transforming experience that it appeals to all, including the vital, dynamic type.

These two men were "the sons of thunder"; that is, they had that flashing alertness and power of personality which made them quick to understand and decisive in action. True, it showed itself in an impatience which was wrong and a desire to bring down judgment, when they should have shown compassion, but that was power out of control, always a dangerous thing.

II. God Wants Balanced Men (Luke 9:49, 50).

Power goes to a man's head, and he needs the balance of God to keep him from going astray. Then too, strong men have intense loyalties and are not afraid to assert them, and are prone to condemn all who do not conform.

John was here exhibiting that dreadfully sectarian viewpoint which persists even in our day. To him it was not enough that a man was doing the Lord's work; he must either join their particular circle or quit. He was willing to stop a work of grace because this disciple of Christ was not in the regular group. That same spirit prevails today.

One wonders how some narrow sectarians can read the words of Jesus without blushing in shame and rushing to his feet for forgiveness and cleansing.

God wants dynamic men to work for him; but he wants them to be poised and balanced in their dealings with others, especially with the brethren.

III. God Wants Patient Men (Luke 9:51-58).

The friction between the Jews and the Samaritans dated from the time when the latter—a half-Gentile people—were denied the right to help in building the temple. That became the foundation for long and bitter strife, which showed up in such a discourteous act as to refuse a night's lodging to travelers because their destination was the hated city of Jerusalem.

Their offense viewed from another angle was far more than a bitter lack of courtesy, for they were turning from their door the Son of God, the Lord of glory.

Stubborn prejudice combined with spiritual ignorance to make this tense and explosive situation. The sons of thunder had an answer ready—let's blow them off the earth. Simple, wasn't it? Yes, but neither right nor kind. These poor people should have drawn forth their compassion, not their hatred or a desire for revenge.

Whenever and wherever you see a man set to get revenge on another, you see a man who knows nothing of the true spirit of Christ (v. 55).

IV. God Wants Loving Men (I John 4:7, 8).

Love is not merely something that God shows toward men or inspires in their hearts. God is love. Being God, he is love, and that love is not a passive quality but an active one. He loves.

Because he is love, those who profess to belong to him are also to love one another, to love a world lost in sin, yes, to love even the utterly unlovely.

Volumes have been written on this subject, but here we must be satisfied just to state the fact and to ask ourselves the direct question, Do I manifest the love of God in my life? Well, do you?

Nations Must Submerge Sovereignty for Peace

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

HUNTER COLLEGE, THE BRONX, N. Y. — These notes are being jotted down in the basement of a room that once sounded to the dull staccato-thud of rubber-soled gym shoes as the girls came tripping downstairs from the floor above to scamper into the showers, pull on their bobby socks and other strange accoutrements which distinguish the modern female collegiate.

It is during a lull in the session of the security council of the United Nations. There are no bobbysocks present but there are some rather solemn-looking females here in the "press lounge" along with their not-quite-so-solemn male counterparts, snatching a pause that is supposed to refresh. I hear the rapid flow of French, some guttural Slavic, sing-song Chinese and liquid Spanish. In a corner is a television set which, at the moment, reveals America's representative, the white-haired, handsome Mr. Stettinius, scratching his left ear. He is speaking and his words come over the loud speaker. The camera moves and we see the delegates one after another, some listening, some whispering — for Stettinius has stopped and the loudspeaker is translating his words into French.

I have just gone over these notes and others that formed the basis of later broadcasts from the studio which looks down on the council chamber. I am seeking in them an answer to the question which has been asked of me many times since I have been here in New York, a question that perhaps you would ask, too, if we could reverse the sound waves and let the listener speak and the speaker listen.

Is the United Nations really going to get anywhere?
First, let me admit that as I write, we are walking a tight-rope stretched between two crises, either of which might wreck us or might be forgotten by the time these lines reach the printed page.

And, of course, the rock upon which the United Nations may founder is the veto. Most people don't understand the veto. Briefly, it is the right of any of the Big Powers, the permanent members of the executive council, to say "no" to the discussion of any matter which said power doesn't want raised.

Power Politics Still in Force

In other words "power politics" is still in force and the only advance we have made is that compromise, which is the basis of all democratic action—is the only possible solution of controversial questions. The undemocratic alternative is the use of power, which in this case may be exercised without the will of the majority. The right of the veto is, as was brought out in a recent University of Chicago round-table discussion, really the insistence on the expression of national sovereignty, the sovereign right of a nation, if it gets mad enough, to promulgate the organized savagery of war.

We can, it is true, never hope for any permanent peace until we are willing to yield that sovereignty to a higher authority which expresses the will of the majority of all peoples.
The United Nations at present has not been granted that authority.
But there is hope which I have watched grow as international proceedings move forward under the impetus of a will to peace and the implementation of ever-growing publicity which creates the understanding to bolster that will—it is this: as the United Nations continues to discuss those matters which are not affected by the veto, as it deals with social and economic problems, as it plans to do, such a strong public sentiment can be built up behind it that nationalistic world-minorities cannot stand up against it.

There is that hope. There is another. Atomic energy.
As Chairman Corbett of the department of political science of Yale university put it:
"When it comes to that . . . (control of atomic energy) . . . I think that the discrepancy between the legal situation in the UN (he refers to the power of the veto and the nationalistic insistence on sovereignty) and the actual needs of international collaboration are going to become so glaring that we are going to have to make a direct attack upon this problem of the veto."

BARBS . . . by Baukhage

Would an army-navy air corps merger mean that the army ground forces would be allowed to wear those rakish caps you can sit on the kind the air corps wears? I doubt that the air corps would stand for that.
The difference between a meat-legger and a bootlegger is negligible. Both represent a victory of the stomach over good sense and good citizenship, and a violent pain in the purse.
The United Nations council decided they would have to keep the purr in Persian, even if they had to give the Bear the air.

Camera snaps Baukhage at Hunter college with Iranian flag in background.

In his early circuit court days, Lincoln did a great deal of walking, mostly for economic reasons. On one such enforced hike he was overtaken by a stranger driving to town.

LOOKING BACKWARD

From the Herald Files of Forty, Thirty and Twenty Years Ago
Compiled by Mrs. Mabel Seefeld

The cantata, "The Living Christ," was sung at the Presbyterian church last Sunday evening by the choir of the Charlevoix Cong'l church, assisted by a number of members of the East Jordan choir. There were 36 voices in the ensemble. The accompaniment consisted of organ, piano, violin, clarinet, flute, cornet and saxophone. Mrs. A. J. Stelter was the director.
Mrs. Maybel Carlisle left for Toronto Thursday for a three-weeks visit with her two sisters.

April 28, 1906

From Wilson correspondence: "Mamie and Charlie Shepard attended the birthday party of their sister Mabel, held in East Jordan Tuesday evening." "Mel Hudkins has recently purchased a new top buggy and when he has his colts hitched up goes right out in style."
"Fred Korhase now has his livery barn in first class order. All his buggies are brand new and the horses are good drivers."
"Human sponges will absorb anything but water."
"Dr. C. A. Sweet and George Glenn purchased a steel canoe from Grand Rapids parties this week and after May 1st trout will begin to get scarce in Jordan River."
The first barge of the season came in Monday. It was the Robert C

Wente and loaded with white pine at the Ward dock. Several schooners are loading with hardwood lumber.

Frank J. Burkley, aged 55, died of pulmonary consumption, Tuesday, at his home on the corner of Esterly and Second streets.

April 29, 1916

Roscoe Mackey has commenced the erection of a brick garage at the corner of State and Second Sts., on the side formerly occupied as a livery barn.

Clifford Mayhew and Miss Anna Willis were married at the bride's home Thursday afternoon.

April 30, 1926

The tuneful operetta, "Miss Cherry Blossom," was given by the music department of the High School Wednesday evening, April 21st, under the direction of the Music Supervisor, Miss Josephine Mitchell. Margaret Gunderson and Howard Snyder played the leading parts.

Rev. C. W. Sidebotham was at Petoskey last Friday morning attending the funeral of Rev. John Redpath, aged 84. Rev. Redpath had spent more than 54 years in Northern Michigan, and organized most of the Presbyterian churches (including East Jordan's) in this part of the State.

One million acres of Michigan land have gone out of agricultural use in the last five years. . . . In 1890 Michigan rated first in lumber production; today, Oregon holds the lead. . . . A recent survey of Michigan homes disclosed that 80 percent were built either entirely or partially of lumber. . . . If the Upper Peninsula's reserve of low-grade ore can be utilized through electrostatic, flotation or magnetic method — an accomplishment yet to be achieved — the economic future of this northland would be greatly brightened. It would open the way to a new industry in the Lake Superior region — the smelting of iron ore close to the mines. Mining is gradually becoming more difficult and more costly in the Upper Peninsula, as shafts sink deeper and labor costs rise under union pressure.

Michigan is second only to Florida in recent development of airports and landing fields, according to Bruce Anderson, chairman of the state advisory committee on aviation. At the beginning of the war Michigan had 124 airports and fields; during the war, 72 more fields were built and put into operation.

"There is no sportsman who will ever fly from the south to the north in Michigan without experience a great thrill when looking down on the great resources that nature has given us," says Anderson.

Twenty-two percent of all crimes in Michigan during 1944 were committed by youngsters who had not reached their twenty-first birthday. These teen-age kids were responsible for 35 per cent of all robberies; 51 per cent of burglaries; 35 per cent of larcenies; 63 per cent of automobile thefts.

Representatives of 17 leading trucking companies operating in Michigan told members of the public service commission recently that they paid $1.05 for every $1 of revenue received during the third quarter, 1945. Union teamsters have been demanding a contract clause that a company refuse to haul "unfair" freight as defined by the union.

CLERK OF JORDAN TOWNSHIP.

ANNOUNCES Reappointment

Gilford Coon of Boyne City has been appointed to resume his pre-war position with the Kalamazoo Stove and Furnace Company as franchise dealer for Charlevoix County and surrounding districts.

Mr. Coon attended the first meeting since 1942 on March 25th at the Park American Hotel, Kalamazoo, Michigan, where the store managers and salesmen saw the first new merchandise on display — the new Supersteel Furnace and Bristol Model Gas Range. Many other important developments, pertaining to Kalamazoo merchandise were discussed at the meeting.

The company has established a new experimental retail store in Kalamazoo's business district to serve as a furnace engineering and sales training school for their store managers and salesmen. The first course is expected to start in early May.

The Kalamazoo Stove and Furnace Company plans to have Furnaces available for this territory starting in May, Gas Ranges will follow, also Electric Ranges, Combination Ranges and Coal and Wood Ranges. The furnaces include different types, as gravity for coal and coke fired; forced air system for coal and coke or for oil; also an upright designed oil burner which can be installed on first floor in a utility room and conversion oil burners to bring your present furnace up to date.

The company expects to add additional related items as stokers, coal and wood heaters, oil heaters, washing machines and refrigerators in the near future.

The new styling of our stove and furnace line, by Walter Dorwin Teague and Jack Morgan, and the superior new features of our line have earned the comment that Kalamazoo is "a full year ahead."

Announcement of the complete new line of Kalamazoo products is made in April 29, 1946 issue of the Life Magazine in double page 4-color advertisement, featuring its 1947 line. Kalamazoo will use 4-color advertisements throughout 1946 in Life Magazine, the Saturday Evening Post and in other national magazines.

As soon as merchandise is available for display the store will reopen at 211 Lake Street, Boyne City, across from the theatre, but until then you may contact me at my home at 519 State Street in Boyne City or you may place your order now by mail for the new Kalamazoo Home Appliance.
