Business Changes In East Jordan

SOME STORES CHANGE OWNERS.
OTHERS OPEN NEW ENTERPRISES

Many changes have taken place the last few weeks in East Jordan's business section. In some instances it is a matter of sincere regret to learn that some owners have decided that 'tis time for a resting period. Some have during the past few years it has been hard at times for The Herald to keep up with the recordings. The Herald regrets the going out of business of former associates — welcomes the new ones.

Mr. Hawkins purchased the men's clothing and shoes in the midst of the depression and moved in the Temple building where he has carried on until July of this year when he went out of business, selling his stock and fixtures to Chris Taylor.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, who have owned and operated the Coffee Cup twelve years, decided to go into the men's and boys' furnishings and sporting goods, and after alterations and re-decorating opened for business Monday, Sept. 16th. Clyde W. Hipp will assist Mr. Taylor as business manager.

Small Game Areas Must Be Silent Prior to Opening Season

For two weeks of every year, just before the gun fire of hunting season begins, Michigan Fields and Woods should be silent. In the fifteen (15) days preceding the start of small game shooting, no one is permitted to carry hunting firearms in game territory.

In the Upper Peninsula the period of quiet runs from Sept. 15 to Oct. 1st, and in the Lower Peninsula is from Sept. 19 to Oct. 5. Gun permits authorizing the carrying of firearms for predator control and other lawful activity during the closed season are void during these 15 days.

BOWLING

Clark's Homewreckers and the Bank stood out Monday evening as they took clean sweeps from the Recreation and Bader's Gas Station respectively. Very few high scores were posted as the off-night seemed to strike most of the men at the same time. Barney Adair arose from a sick-bed to roll the high single game — 212. His team-mates are now hunting more spiders, insisting if they can keep Barney sick enough, he will be a valuable man to the team. Harper of Bader's also hit the 200 mark with a game of 201.

Results were as follows: Bank 4, Baders Station 0; Clarks Homewreckers 4, Recreation 0; Auto Owners 3, Post Office 1; Ellsworth Electric 2, North's Tavern 2; South's Tavern 2, St. Joseph's 2, Cal's Tavern vs. Canning Co. was postponed.

In the women's league Tuesday evening the Bank took Cal's 3 to 1; St. Joseph won over the Creamery 3 to 1 and the Recreation took a 3 to 1 verdict from Andy's. Mildred Campbell had the high game of the evening with a 209 score. Mickey Hamerski put games of 168, 191, 159 together for the evening's high series of 518. Carol Adair, subbing on the Creamery team, just missed hitting the two hundred mark in her final game of the evening, rolling 198.

Farm Topics

LADINO CLOVER

The place of Ladino clover in Michigan has not yet been determined by the farm crops department of Michigan State college. Although a few tests and over-state trials have been started, farmers are cautioned against planting the new legume crop until small acreages at the start.

The clover is white and very similar to ordinary white pasture clover, except that the plants are four or five times larger than Michigan pasture clover. The plants have runners that grow along the surface of the ground and at intervals take root. Seeds of the two plants are identical in size, color and shape.

Ladino originally came from northern Italy. It is a perennial plant and appears to be sufficiently winter hardy for Michigan conditions. Since it is shallower rooted than alfalfa, it cannot withstand the drought as alfalfa can.

The following suggestions are for anyone wishing to try Ladino clover:

- 1-Try only a small acreage until you see what Ladino will do.
- 2-Ladino and fertilize as you would for alfalfa.
- 3-Prepare a fine seed bed and be especially careful that it is firm enough to prevent planting too deep.
- 4-Plant from one-half to two pounds of Ladino per acre depending upon whether it is to be seeded in mixture or alone.
- 5-Seed in early spring and if planted with oats, reduce the rate of seeding of the oats.
- 6-Don't plant on a droughty soil.
- 7-Don't overgraze as this injures the stand.

MASTITIS:

Injuries to teats and udders of dairy cows cause immediate loss of milk and are considered as the most importance primary cause for mastitis.

Improper stable construction, insufficient bedding and careless milking practices are the three most common management errors which cause teat and udder injuries to dairy cows. Many stanchion-type stalls are too small, with too little width and length for even medium-sized cows. A cow in a short stall lies partly in the gutter and, in narrow stalls, she must flounder around to get up. Damage to teats and udders may result in either case.

Concrete floors are usually rough and hard, so sufficient bedding is needed to provide comfort and protection from injury.

Operation of milking machines with a higher vacuum pressure than recommended by the manufacturer may also damage the cow's teats and udder. Leaving the milking machine on the cow after milk has stopped flowing can cause serious trouble.

Ed. Reiman, Co. Agr'l Agent.

Great Romances: Ellin Mackay and Irving Berlin. They were in love. Social barriers and her father stood between them. But there was music. How powerful was that music is told by Charles Robbins and George Holland in The American Weekly, the magazine distributed with next week's Chicago Sunday Herald-American.

Loveday — Campbell

Announcement of the marriage of Patricia Ann Loveday, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Weller Loveday of Detroit, and Marlin J. W. Campbell, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Marlin J. Campbell, also of Detroit, has been received. The service was held at four o'clock, Saturday, Sept. 14, Christ Church, Cranbrook.

The bride was gowned in eggshell satin and wore a lace bertha, which had belonged to her great grandmother, pinned at the throat with an heirloom sunburst of pearls and diamonds. Her finger-tip veil was caught to a rose point lace headdress, her bouquet was of white roses, gardenias and stephanotes.

Shirley Tate, as maid of honor, and Jeanie Campbell, sister of the bridegroom; Margaret McKenzie, Mrs. Gordon Gable and Sue Porter, were identically gowned in aqua silk jersey. The maid of honor carried flame colored gladioli and the bridesmaids yellow gladioli.

Supreme Court Upholds Mich. Bell Telephone Co. Contention Rates Illegal

The State Supreme Court has upheld the Michigan Bell Telephone Company in its contention that retroactive rate adjustments are illegal, setting aside an order of the Michigan Public Service Commission directing the company to refund $3,500,000 to customers on 1944 bills.

In a unanimous decision, the court affirmed the opinion of Justice Leonard W. Carr, who ruled in favor of the company when on the Ingham Circuit bench. Justices Carr and Bushnell, along with Former Justice Raymond W. Starr, did not participate.

The ruling is expected to invalidate ordered refunds totaling $7,000,000. A second order directs refund of $3,500,000 for 1945, but Justice Williams, assistant attorney general, has said the order will be amended to eliminate the refund.

Justice Williams said the Commission's retroactive rates is limited to orders made prospectively effective, but the court held that the regulation exceeded its powers in attempting to enforce its order retroactively.

Besides the refund provision, the Commission's second order of 1945 directs the company to reduce future rates by some $4,500,000 a year. The order is now before the Commission for reconsideration on Circuit Judge Paul G. Eger, of Lansing, and will be returned to him for final arguments and his decision.

In both cases, Michigan Bell has contended that its earnings are not sufficient to justify any downward rate adjustment and that any rate cut would constitute a threat to the quality of service rendered customers.

Manhunt Ends In Gun Battle

STATE POLICE QUELL TWO-MAN ARMY SUSPECTED OF RAID- ING MORE THAN 20 N. MICH- IGAN STORES

A two man crime army that raided more than 20 Western Michigan garages and obtained loot valued at over $1000 met defeat at the hands of State Police early Tuesday at Fife Lake.

Lester Lundberg, 28, Muskegon, surrendered after a gun battle with police at the Fife Lake school where he was trapped.

Charles Enders, 23, also of Muskegon was arrested Monday when a farmer picked him up while Enders was hitch-hiking and intentionally drove his truck into a state police road blockade between Lake City and Kalkaska. The farmer recognized Enders by his description and picked him up to effect the arrest.

Lundberg jumped from the Fife Lake school house and fired four shots at the pursuing posse of Sheriff's officers, conservation men and state police. He surrendered after running into a wire fence where he bent the ejector on his revolver. No one was injured by the exchange of shots.

The pair is suspected of executing more than a score of burglaries in various Northern Michigan cities. They operated as far north as Charlevoix. They broke into garages at Atwood, Kewadin and stole cars at Kalkaska and Elk Rapids.

With two important amendments to the state constitution and a $270 million veterans' bonus, plus the election of the state officials, congressmen and a United States senator, coming up Nov. 5 for a ballot show-down, thousands of Michigan citizens in cities, villages and townships of less than 5,000 population may lose their right to vote on these issues.

"Why? There's no dictatorship in Michigan!" you reply.

Vouchsafed for by Secretary of State Herman H. Dignan, the statement still stands. All citizens now residing in cities, villages and townships of less than 5,000 population MUST re-register by Oct. 16 with the town clerk.

If any citizen fails to re-register by Oct. 16 — the last day HE CANNOT VOTE on Nov. 5.

"Act 291 of the Public Acts of 1945 provides for permanent registration in all townships, cities and villages regardless of population," states Secretary of States Dignan.

Permanent registration of electors is now mandatory in all election precincts in Michigan. In 1931 the state legislature amended the election law to require permanent registration of voters in all townships and provision to governmental units of less than 5,000 population.

Failure to vote within a period of two years will automatically cancel registration unless application for continuation is made within 90 days from receipt of notice from the clerk.

Education Views of Michigan's two party nominees for governor — Murray D. VanWagoner and Kim Sigler were solicited recently by the Michigan Education Association.

Ballot proposal No. 2 at the Nov. 5 election would divert one cent of the state sales tax to local governments and would "freeze" into the state constitution a formula for state aid to public schools. Based upon the 1946 tax collections, school state aid would be increased from $60,000,000 to $100,000,000 a year.

Van Wagoner's statement to the M. E. A. whose membership comprises school teachers, points out that the "crux of the entire issue" is the "restricted narrow local tax base", the 15-mill tax limitation which was put into the state constitution in 1932.

"Enabling legislation is needed, I profoundly believe to permit the broadening of the local tax base, both to give the municipalities badly needed funds, and to encourage democratic self-government at the local level.

"Given sufficient funds municipalities would, I am confident, be compelled to face up honestly to the educational demands of their communities."

It is the opinion of Van Wagoner that "sales tax funds, subject to fluctuations in amounts from year to year and subject to demands of reservations of an oftentimes hostile legislature, provide no firm or lasting basis for a constructive and progressive school aid program."

— "Consolidation of small, inefficient school districts is one of the most crying needs in any over-all solution to our school problem," states Van Wagoner. "Hundreds of school districts in Michigan with 15 or less pupils, simply point up this wasteful, inefficient phase of our education picture. In further evidence of my good faith toward a betterment of education, I appointed as Governor in 1942 a State Public Education Study Commission made up of the best cross-section of urban and rural educators I could find, and representatives from both major and political parties in the House of the Legislature. If re-elected to the office of Governor in November, I pledge a continuing and forceful effort in behalf of our educational system."

Sigler's views of the proposed constitutional diversion of state sale tax revenue include the following excerpt taken from his statement to the M. E. A.:

"Public education, as I see it, is one of the most important functions of government. It is more — recognized by the Michigan Constitution as a state responsibility. But it is more — much more — than a responsibility. It is a real moral obligation.

"However, down at the grass roots of our educational system is the local school district. That is as it should be. It is a guarantee of the application of democratic principles in the conduct of our educational system. But I am entirely aware of the fact the local districts are restricted by the fifteen-mill tax limitation in the amount of money that can be raised locally for school operation.

"Thus, in addition to the supervisory advantages of centralized leadership and guidance, the State has a definite financial responsibility. But in a consideration of this responsibility I again insist upon being realistic rather than politically expedient. And I repeat that such responsibilities should and must be met on the basis of financial availability and public approbation, keeping in mind of course that public education is one of the most vital functions of government. I'll never be in favor of ignoring the public in the expenditure of public funds. But by the same token, I can assure you that I will always support any expenditure necessary to guarantee to the people of Michigan an honest, efficient, and forward-looking administration of their State governmental affairs. For this, I assume, is a standing order among honest citizens everywhere.

"I am entirely in accord with the principle of a sound teacher's retirement with adequate pensions and a proper retirement age. The teacher's retirement fund should be ample to meet all equitable needs, and should receive adequate and proper State aid. So far as tenure is concerned, it should be based upon performance and never upon whim or the highest type of service expected of them, teachers should be given a maximum of security in the jobs, and I consider the leadership and guidance involved in this guarantee to be the direct responsibility of the State."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JESUS AND THE LAW OF THE STRANGER

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 22:21-23; Deuteronomy 24:14, 15; Matthew 25:34-41.
MEMORY SELECTION—The King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me.—Matthew 25:40.

There is as much need today for the words of counsel and admonition regarding strangers which we find in our lesson, as there was in the days of Moses, for there seems to be an almost complete breakdown of neighborliness both between nations and individuals.

I. The Law Required Neighborliness (Exod. 22:21-23; Deut. 24:14, 15).

Our heavenly Father as revealed to us in his Word is a Father indeed, one greatly concerned about his many children; but especially does he care for those who are weak and needy.

The laws of ancient Israel made provision for the feeding of those who had no fields. The corners of the field were left uncut at harvest-time, some of the grapes were to be left on the vine, etc., so that the poor could enjoy the sense of self-respect as they picked for themselves what God had provided (see Lev. 19:9, 10; 23:22; Deut. 24:19-21, and other passages).

The poor man who found work was to receive his pay when needed. For the one who hired him to do otherwise was to bring upon himself the judgment of God. He listens to the cry of the hungry worker and his family (Deut. 24:15).

Strangers were in a peculiar way subject to the possibility of extortion. They are even today the easy mark of the one who lives by his wits, the "confidence" man and sneak thief.

If any such person reads these notes let me warn him solemnly to keep his tricky hands off the stranger, for God is watching and will hear their cry (Exod. 22:23).

The same is true of widows and orphans. God is their keeper and their defender.

Someone may say that all this is Old Testament in its background and principle. What about the follower of Christ in our day? The answer is that

II. Christ Expects Neighborliness (Matt. 25:34-41).

This is a prophetic picture of a great judgment scene. It is not, as many suppose, the same as the judgment of the Great White Throne of Revelation 20.

The scene here is not in heaven, but upon the earth. It is not individuals who are being judged, but the nations of the earth. They are not being judged regarding personal salvation, but for their treatment of Christ's brethren.

Who are his brethren? First we think of his brethren, after the flesh, the people of the Jewish race. Scripture reveals again and again that God is watching over his chosen people, even though they are now scattered in judgment for their unbelief. He will not hold any guiltless who harm his people (Gen. 12:1-3). The word "brethren" is also used in such a passage as Matthew 12:46-50 to include all who do the will of God. That suggests a broader application of these words.

Our attitude toward God expresses itself in our attitude toward our fellow man. That which we do toward those about us is not a matter of indifference, but is the basis for God's judgment of our lives. Each of us must answer for the deeds done in the flesh whether they be good or evil. That is true even of the believer (II Cor. 5:10), whose salvation has already been determined by his faith in Christ.

Here in our lesson, however, the failure to do that which shows forth God's law of love is made the ground of eternal judgment. This is not because an act of kindness itself can be regarded as the ground of division, but because the failure to give it or do it reflects an attitude of heart toward our God and his Christ which is in reality a rejection of his way of salvation.

Judgment is thus a revelation of the attitude of the heart, which marks a man or woman as being either saved or lost. It may be possible to so becloud the thinking of our friends and neighbors that we may go through life looking something like a Christian, but when Christ judges, it will all be revealed.

Notice the importance of a proper attitude toward those who need our kindness and help. All too often the only concern of men and women is to look out for "number one" and let the rest of the world shift for itself.

Observe also that the Lord identifies himself with his brethren—what is done to and for them is counted as done to and for him. Compare the experience of Samuel (I Sam. 8:7) and of Paul (Acts 9:5). Touch God's people and you touch him. Fail them and you fail him. Serve them and you serve him.

Star Dust
STAGE SCREEN RADIO

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

By VIRGINIA VALE

PAUL WHITEMAN, "The King of Jazz," saluted this column on September 16 when he played Hogy Carmichael's "Star Dust," one of the favorite tunes of thousands of people, including V. Vale. Of course you're familiar with the Whiteman program, "Forever Tops," Monday evenings on ABC. He plays the hit songs of yesterday, and recreates their periods through anecdotes about the fashions and slang of their day. The great Whiteman has helped to launch many of our popular tunes; like his program, he's "Forever Tops." Eugenie Baird, who skyrocketed to fame singing with Bing Crosby, was selected from more than 50 girls to sing the top tunes of all time.

The photograph of any person, either living or dead, cannot be used in a motion picture without written permission. So Bess Flowers, character actress, received a full day's pay from Warner Bros. A likeness of her was hung on a wall for a scene in "Cry Wolf," starring Barbara Stanwyck and Errol Flynn. Miss Flowers just stayed home and relaxed and collected her pay.

Danny Kaye has planned a two-month personal appearance tour following completion of his current film, "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty"; it'll consist of one-night stands, and 30 performers will go along, including an orchestra. There's a nice story about Kaye. Several children appeared with him on the stage in "Lady in the Dark," and now he not only remembers them, he goes to see them!

They were photographing the Goldwyn Girls ("Secret Life of Walter Mitty") against a studio snow storm, made, of course, of bleached corn flakes. But the corn flakes were full of tiny black objects, which no DDT affected. Come to find out, the black objects were boll weevils, and the theory is that they migrated from the wardrobe of Senator Claghorn, making "It's a Joke, Son" on an adjacent stage.

A CBS "Academy Award" rehearsal is a good place to study film stars. Joseph Cotten goes through his script holding his glasses, never wearing them. Douglas Fairbanks Jr. chews gum vigorously, stuffs cotton in his ears if shots are to be fired. Humphrey Bogart draws intricate doodles—and Henry Fonda telephones his wife every hour.

David O. Selznick's "Little Women" cast is pretty well lined up, with Jennifer Jones, Shirley Temple, Bambi Linn and Diana Lynn playing the four girls, Ann Revere as the mother, and the English actor, Philip Friend, making his debut as the love interest.

Frankie Carle knows the habits of the movie companies all too well. When his pretty daughter Marjorie was offered a contract he turned it down unless there was a clause guaranteeing that she'd be used in motion pictures, not just in publicity stills.

Kay Kyser has signed a new, long-term contract with his sponsors, and beginning October 2 he's cutting his program from one hour to half an hour, at his own suggestion. He's been on that Wednesday night spot on NBC since March 30, 1938.

As a boy Robert Merrill wanted to sing like Bing Crosby. He's done all right singing his own way, what with his Metropolitan Opera engagement and radio work—and he'll sing with Bing if plans for a charity concert to be held in October go through.

ODDS AND ENDS—Kay Kyser introduced the score from Columbia's technical production, "The Jolson Story," starring Larry Parks, on his first post-vacation program. . . . Eighteen Hollywood stunt men have been engaged for a battle royal in RKO's "Katie for Congress," starring Loretta Young, Joseph Cotten and Ethel Barrymore. . . . "Okay for Pictures," one-reeler, will take us behind the scenes at Warner Bros., presenting glimpses of forthcoming feature films. . . . M-G-M specialists "bombed Hiroshima" 25 times before they got the right photographic and sound effects for "The Beginning of the End."

Fall work won't wait for worn Tractor Tires

NOW'S THE TIME TO RETREAD WORN TIRES BY THE Firestone FACTORY-METHOD.

NO WAITING LOANERS AND EXCHANGE TIRES AVAILABLE

CORN PICKING, plowing, disking, seeding and other fall jobs place extra heavy demands on tractor tires. Worn tractor tires slow down your work and may fail you completely when time is most valuable. No matter what make your worn tires are, you can have them retreaded without delay by the Firestone Factory-Method, giving them the same quality tread rubber and patented Ground Grip design of new Firestone tires.

Loaners and exchange tires are available at Firestone Dealer Stores and Firestone Stores. Bring your worn tires in now and you won't have to lay your tractor up for even one day. Firestone Factory-Method retreading gives your worn tires the full pulling power of new Firestone tires.

Study Concludes Eastern Europe Over-Populated

There were before the war 44 million too many people on the land in eastern and southern Europe, according to a study of those areas recently published under the auspices of the economic and financial department of the League of Nations.

A comparison of levels of agricultural production throughout Europe in the late interwar period provides the basis for the estimated surplus rural population. Written by Prof. Wilbert E. Moore of Princeton university's office of population research, the study makes a comprehensive survey of the economic and population problems in the least developed parts of Europe. He concludes that, although the techniques of agricultural production could be substantially improved in peasant farming, this improvement would offer no possibility of raising the income of eastern European peasants to that of farmers in western Europe. Only a wide program of economic, including industrial, development could bring substantial relief. The surplus rural population must be provided with other productive employment if even moderate income levels are to be achieved.

Professor Moore considers that the prospects for industrialization are only moderately good, and generally not favorable to heavy industry. Resources, labor, and limited domestic capital are available for light industry, however, if political and social conditions can be stabilized.

Armed Forces Leave Act of 1946
 Now that Congress has passed the Armed Forces Leave Act of 1946, and the President's signature has made it the law of the land, there are probably thousands of questions on the minds of millions of exservicemen and women. Answers to some of the more important questions that will probably be asked:
 Q—First of all, just what is the Armed Forces Leave Act of 1946?
 A—Well, the law provides for compensating the exservicemen and women who were separated under honorable conditions for the furlough or leave time unused by them at the time of their separation. No service prior to September 8, 1939, can be (Continued on last page)

PENINSULA...

(Edited by Mrs. E. Hayden)

A large turnout from the Peninsula attended the funeral of "Bob" Jarman at the Stackus Funeral Home in Boyne City in spite of the deluge of rain which started at 1 p. m. and continued until about 7 p. m. Interment was in the Advance Cemetery where his parents are buried. Mrs. Jarman came from Ann Arbor and her mother, Mrs. Mahoney and a friend from Ohio. They occupied the Jarman farm house at Gravel Hill, south side, Sunday and Monday nights and started on the return trip Tuesday evening in the drowning rain. Mr. and Mrs. Elton Jarman also motored to Old Mission after the funeral.

It's the same old howl — defective telephone service.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Martin "Buddy" Staley came the middle of the week from Detroit where they were married Saturday evening, Sept. 7. Mrs. Loyal Barber of Knoll Crest held a reception and shower for them at the Star Community Building Saturday evening, Sept. 14, which was a grand success, a large crowd attended and the happy couple received many beautiful gifts. Mrs. Barber had the cooperation of the whole community. The pot luck supper was simply immense and those who wished danced after the tables were cleared away. The young people are now launched on the sea of matrimony in the proper style and are sure to make a running start. We all wish them all happiness and success possible. They will reside with Bud's father, Geo. Staley, at Stoney Ridge farm. (It was impossible to get more details because of the telephone service.)

 Mr. and Mrs. Orvel Bennett and family spent Saturday helping Mrs. Bennett's sister, Mrs. Edith LaCroix of Advance Dist. with silo filling.
 LeRoy Nicloy, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Nicloy of Sunny Slopes farm, who spent his furlough on the farm, started his return trip, Tuesday, by bus. He reported to a camp in California and expects to go overseas soon.

Mrs. Carolina Loomis of Gravel Hill, north side, is visiting relatives in Charlevoix for a few days. There were 15 at the Star Sunday School, Sept. 15.

Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Tibbits of Cherry Hill spent Friday in Petoskey. Beautiful warm sunny weather after the heavy rain and frost the first of the week.

The McNabb's, who spent 10 days here, started on the return trip to Stanford, Texas, 1500 miles, Monday a. m., wrote from Gibson City, Ill., Monday evening, stating they had made 493 miles the first day. No further word has been received from them.

A regular epidemic of coughs and sneezes has hit this section.

Supervisor Wm. Sanderson wishes to call the attention of the residents of Eveline township and others that the new sign erected over the former Mountain School house proclaiming this is Eveline Twp. Hall. The building is well painted and it is hoped the sidewalk, road repairing and stone walls will soon be built as contemplated, making the building an attractive Town Hall.

place. Unexpectedly they met up with Mr. Lester Walcutt. Francis and Berton also attended the Conservator School at Higgins Lake for a week.
 Mr. and Mrs. Jake Brock and family were Saturday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Potter of Barnard.

Thelma Saunders and Jeannie Russell spent Sunday night with Rena Knudsen.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Brock were Sunday afternoon visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Flemming of West Branch.

Marjorie Thomas left Sunday morning to enter nurses training at Hurley hospital.

Fats and Oils to Continue Scarce For Many Months

There's not much relief ahead for the homemaker who has skimped on fats and oils. They are among the wartime food shortages that have carried over into peacetime. Foods and nutrition specialists at Michigan State college say reports received from the department of agriculture indicate little or no relief this year.

Stocks of fats and oils in July were the lowest since 1926. While we will probably import more fats and oils from the Philippines and the East Indies, the increase will not be large. The United States has severely cut lard and oil shipments overseas due to the acute situation here at home.

So the American housewife is going to be required to learn to make that old fashioned "boiled dressing"—which really isn't boiled. It's just cooked in a double boiler and made from milk, eggs, flour, seasonings and a little butter or other fat.

Another substitute dressing is made by combining a little lemon juice, a bit of sugar and a sprinkling of salt. It is fine for a topping on salads—either fruit or vegetables.

Many women have learned to relieve the shortage by rendering their own fat for dressings. They use fat trimmings from meat and chicken running them through a grinder. Then it is melted in a double boiler and strained through a cloth. Keeping the grease in a cold place will prevent it from getting rancid. That's why it isn't a good idea to keep fat around the hot kitchen—on the stove or in an open can—as many people do.

AN APPRECIATION

I wish to express my deepest appreciation for the many cards, letters and other remembrances received on my birthday.

Seizes Jewels, Cash as Diplomats Reach Japan

YOKOHAMA. — The U. S. 8th army confiscated five million dollars worth of American currency, diamonds, watches and other items said to be illegally possessed by Japanese diplomats and their families on the repatriation ship Tsukushi Maru when she docked at Uruga recently.

The 300 Japanese repatriates were returning from Europe. Maj. J. W. Duff, 8th army military government repatriation officer, said that when Japan surrendered the Japanese government ordered all its representatives in Europe to turn over to the Allies all government funds in their control.

"Many Japanese on this boat were not co-operative about handing over funds in Europe," Duff said. "These funds belong to the United Nations for reparations."

Search plans were kept secret so that passengers could not dispose of their valuables. Duff said all family keepsakes would be returned to the owners as well as other goods which the owners could prove were purchased with their own money.

It ain't the number of hours a man puts in, it's what a man puts in the hours that really counts.

DO YOU WANT ANOTHER 3% TAX PUT ON YOUR PAY CHECK?

Do You Want a Government Bureau to Decide What Medical Care You Need When You Are Sick?

UNDER a so-called National Health Act of 1945 introduced in Congress by Senators Wagner, Murray and Representative Dingell, proposal is made to take away your right to select, without hindrance, the doctor you want to treat you. Instead, the Act offers the services of whatever government doctor isn't busy — and makes you pay for his advice by taking a new 3% from your paycheck. If you don't use the government doctor you still have to pay at least 3% of your wages for his support and for the cost of administering the plan.

THE TOTAL YEARLY COST OF THIS WAGNER-MURRAY-DINGELL BILL IS ESTIMATED AT $4,000,000,000.00.

Right now, without any four thousand million dollar Act, your family doctor is available 24 hours a day to treat you. He is well trained . . . He knows you personally. And, if you don't like what he prescribes, you can get a different doctor! If you want to continue to choose your own doctor without red tape . . . If you want the best health care that medical science and personal care can give you — urge your Congressman to vote against the Wagner-Murray-Dingell Bill.

Fall always brings forth freaks in the vegetation line. Tuesday, Eugene Scott, living on his farm near the Bohemian Settlement, brought to The Herald office an apple twig about four feet long. At its base were several ripening apples. Above this, on the new growth, were clusters of blossoms for about a yard. He informs us that the tree, a spy, is in full bloom on top, with the lower branches loaded with apples.

Alba promises to write the Herald periodically and inform us of their progress.

Pasteurization Assures Safe Milk for Use

There is no assurance that any milk is safe for human use unless it is pasteurized. Typhoid fever, septic sore throat and other bacteria causing human disease may be added to milk by people who handle it.

Frequently large numbers of bacteria are added to milk because of poor milking practices and improper sanitation on farms. Inadequate cooling increases the number of bacteria because warm milk is favorable for their growth. Souring and objectionable flavors and odors develop from the growth of these bacteria, and a decrease in quality of milk results, making it a less desirable food. There is adequate evidence to indicate that intestinal disturbances in infants have been caused by the presence of extremely large numbers of bacteria in raw milk.

Even though all possible care is taken in producing high quality milk, animal diseases such as tuberculosis and Bang's disease (undulant fever in humans) may develop in cows at any time and be passed on to people who drink the milk. The only certain way to avoid disease from milk is to heat it sufficiently to kill all disease-producing bacteria—in other words, to pasteurize it.

British Develop Food Yeast as Diet Supplement

The Germans had used yeast in World War I to supplement protein and by 1941 the British had developed a type on a commercial scale. For palatability they selected the yeast scientifically known as Torula utilis. In the West Indies a place was found where it could be grown economically on waste molasses.

Food yeast has less energy value than dried eggs, wheat or whole milk powder. But Torula utilis depends for its nutritional value not on calories but on its enormous concentration of protein and vitamins. In this respect only liver eclipses yeast. Though yeast is deficient in methionine, an essential amino acid, its supplementary value is equal to that of milk proteins when added to a diet consisting mainly of cereals. Calcium salts and cod-liver oil must also be given to avoid rickets.

Experiments made in England prove that yeast can be added to soups, gravies, rissoles and even to bread. Pupils of a village school in Oxfordshire put on more weight with a yeast diet than did a control group.

Forested Country

Paraguay's area of 175,000 square miles makes it almost three times the size of Georgia. A third of the country is virgin forest, and lumbering is one of the principal industries. Wood is of primary importance in Paraguay because of the lack of other fuel. It powers steamships and 700 miles of railroad, as well as Paraguayan factories which produce shoes, soap, sugar, flour, cotton fabrics, canned goods, cigarettes, beer and other beverages. In forested countries it is customary to float logs down streams. Much of Paraguay's wide variety of hardwood will not float, however, and heavy logs are drifted by attaching three lighter logs to each.

Compare Nicotine Content Of Cigars, Cigarettes

"Thirty cigarettes, weighing about one gram apiece and containing about 2 per cent nicotine in the tobacco, might contain just about the same amount of nicotine as six cigars weighing about 5 grams apiece and with the same nicotine content," the Journal of the American Medical Association says in answer to an inquiry.

"About one-fourth of the nicotine content of the tobacco may be expected to appear in the puffed smoke, though this figure may vary greatly, depending on the manner of smoking," the Journal said. "Only about 12 per cent of the nicotine escapes with the exhaled smoke after inhalation, as compared with about 33 per cent after simple puffing without inhalation, but in either case the bulk of the nicotine appears to be deposited in the mouth or air passages. Accordingly, it might be possible for the 30 cigarettes inhaled to yield about the same amount of nicotine absorption as the six cigars not inhaled."

"Since either cigarettes or cigars may vary greatly in their nicotine content, however, and the latter especially may vary greatly in size, and both may be smoked at widely different rates and with the discarding of greatly different amounts of tobacco and retained constituents of the smoke in the unburned stumps, this conclusion required much caution. Moreover, much nicotine may be absorbed from the unburned stump of a cigar by the user who chews or sucks as he smokes, while on the other hand the habitual spitter may rid himself by expectoration of some of the nicotine taken in."

Oil Discovered in France Back in 1498

The earliest known oil fields of France, in the extreme northeastern corner of the country, were discovered near Pechelbronn in 1498. Exploitation did not begin until 1785 when the oil was used for lubrication and for lighting—in old boat-shaped metal lamps with open wicks, smelly and smoky.

This field extends southwest from the vicinity of the Alsatian border town of Wissembourg, says the National Geographic society. Drilling was not introduced until the 1880s; before that time the bituminous sand was mined and the oil extracted, until oil finally flooded the deepening shafts.

The total output from this field has been estimated at less than 20 million barrels in the two centuries of operation. Before the war the wells were producing annually about a half million barrels of oil—less than 1 per cent of French needs.

French Indo-China

French Indo-China is an Oriental land with western trimmings. It is a place where native kings live in fabulous splendor, and where homesick colonial officials have built themselves overseas editions of Paris. Wit in its borders lies one of the world's great unsolved mysteries, the ruins of the medieval city of Angkor, reclaimed from the jungle but still bearing the mark of the advanced people who once inhabited it and then disappeared without trace. French Indo-China, easternmost member of the huge southeast Asia peninsula, occupies a key position among international holdings in that part of the world. It bulges into the South China sea about halfway between British Hong Kong and Singapore. Eastward across the sea, only 600 miles away, are the Philippine Islands. South and southeast stretches the long chain of the Netherlands Indies.

Hardy Vegetable

Scientists point out that kale has few insect enemies and can be grown in many types of soil in home gardens and commercial market gardens. Because kale is hardy and frost resistant, it survives under heavy snow and provides a fresh green for winter and early spring and after frost in the fall. Better preparation and cooking would increase the popularity of kale. To make it most appetizing, cookery scientists advise using only the leafy parts and discarding the tough stems or midribs, which have little nutritive value. Cook the leaves in a little water until just tender to avoid the strong taste that comes from overcooking. Serve with hot fresh dressing, or with a combination of lemon juice or vinegar and hot meat drippings. Chopped onion also adds good flavor.

Earthworm Beneficial

Scientists generally agree that the earthworm is a major factor in the building of topsoil. Worms carry bits of vegetable matter down into the soil and bring minerals up. Soil is taken into the mouth and as it passes through the body it is acted on by digestive juices and acids that put this soil into better condition for use. As a soil conditioner, the earthworm is unexcelled. Without their continual working and reworking, much of our soil would be as heavy and sticky as a lump of clay. Water is taken in more rapidly and penetrates the soil more quickly. A supply of organic matter is necessary if the earthworm is to do his best job, or, in fact, even to live in the soil.

Lime and Stone Company Locates Near Charlevoix

A much needed, but little publicized industry, the Charlevoix Lime and Stone Company, has located almost within the city limits of Charlevoix. The objective of the plant is to produce a sufficient amount of finely ground, superior, agricultural limestone for farms of Charlevoix and adjacent counties which farmers have been unable to obtain in the past. The need for this type of conservation material has been recognized for several years, however, due to shipping rates it was impractical to bring the material in from outside sources of supply. Inasmuch, as this county has high test lime deposits, Walter H. Henley, AAA Chairman promoted the plan of developing a lime plant within the county. Through his cooperation and others interested in making limestone available for this area, the plant is now under production being owned and operated by Ivan M. Porter, of Boyne City.

The plant is located west of Charlevoix on a limestone outcrop which begins at Boulder Park and runs along Lake Michigan for 14 miles ending near Norwood. A state survey made in actual tests from rock on the site showed the calcium content of the rock to be 96 percent. In the quarry, an air compressor is used to drill for blasting the rock. The rock is then placed on a 60 foot conveyor which leads to a jaw crusher and crushes the material down to three quarter inch and under. The product from the crusher is elevated to a vibrating screen which separates finer particles and the balance passes through a set of roll crushers for pulverizing. The finished product, which all must pass through an 8 mesh screen is then carried to a 70 ton storage and loading bin. The bin has been erected over truck scales, so that every load is accurately weighed before it leaves the plant to the farms. The equipment is driven by two 65 h. p. motors.

Agricultural limestone, once a dusty waste or at best a by-product in small demand, is now recognized as a fertilizer essential in the production of nutritious crops. It is now an important product of quarry and crusher, and is applied by millions of tons throughout the entire country as a necessity in the building of productivity in the soil. The service of limestone in making better crops, both legume and non-legume, is no longer so much one of only reducing the soil acidity, it is rather one of supplying the plant with calcium. Calcium is a necessity in the soil which provides the essential mineral for good bones, teeth and good health. The importance of calcium in the daily diet of all people cannot be overemphasized. In reports made by the Federal Government and by eminent soil specialists, we are warned that the problem of mineral-depleted land must be attacked on a national scale. When the minerals are taken from the soil and not replaced the crops grown on that soil suffer as do the stock that feeds on the crops and eventually the human beings who are nourished by the vegetables, dairy products and meats. Therefore, we must start with soil, basically, the means by which we survive and keep it in "good health." In addition to the production of agricultural limestone, the plant will produce crushed stone for use in building roads and drive-ways. However, this material will not be made until all lime contracts have been filled. It is expected that by next year new additional equipment will be added to the plant which will greatly increase the production of limestone and other rock products.

Instead of tryin' to find so many new things maybe we'd all be better off if we tried to understand some of the old ones.

LOOKING BACKWARD

From the Herald Files of Forty, Thirty and Twenty Years Ago
Compiled by Mrs. Mabel Secord

September 22, 1906
George H. Fykr and Miss Ella Gagnon were married at Charlevoix Wednesday.

John Hanson, Manger of the East Jordan Lumber Co.'s store at Hitchcock, was a Charlevoix visitor the first of the week.

Olives are a common article of food today but forty years ago they were seldom served and still more seldom appreciated. On the front page of this issue is a picture of a large party of Grand Rapids Wholesalers who were touring the State in an eight-car all-steel vestibule train. There were 75 in the party besides the members of the Furniture City Band that accompanied them. Over-night stops were made in Cadillac Petoskey, Grayling and East Jordan. Perhaps 30 years ago there were hotels enough to care for such a delegation but it would have a hard time now to find sleeping accommodation in East Jordan for that many people.

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

WNU RELEASE

THE STORY THUS FAR: "You are lying, Martha," Bob Reynolds told Martha. "You did not kill her; your sister did." Martha's story was beaten down, and she admitted that Letty, the mental patient, had done it. "It's like a terrible dream," Meg told Larry. Tenderly Larry reminded her that Tom Fallon was a free man and loved her. She was too upset to know. But good came out of it, for Jim MacTavish, now humbled, decided to do something for himself. He announced that he was to become the editor of a nearby newspaper while its publisher was in the armed forces. "Larry asked for you," her father stated. She had not seen him for several days, and there was a tingle sent through her.

CHAPTER XVII

Suddenly he broke off, and after a moment he said, "Oh, yes, I knew there was something I had forgotten. I saw Laurence while I was in town."

Megan was startled to discover that her needle had slipped and pricked her finger, startled at the sudden tingle that ran through her at the mention of Laurence's name. She looked up, feeling her father's eyes upon her, and knew, by the sudden warmth of her face, that she was blushing. Which, she told herself furiously, was pretty silly, anyway you looked at it.

"He asked about you," said Jim when she did not speak. "He sent you his love."

Once more the needle slipped and Megan winced, but her voice was quite steady as she asked, "Are you sure he said his love?"

Jim took his pipe out of his mouth and stared at her as though surprised. "Well, of course I'm sure," he said. "How's Megan? Give her my love and tell her I'll see her soon."

And Megan, a little warm something stirring in her heart, bent her head above her sewing, and a tiny, secret smile touched her mouth for a moment.

The busy, crowded days of early spring melted into the even busier days of late spring. Early summer came and the crops stood lush and green in the fields, but Laurence had not come.

Jim was finding the newspaper business exciting, though he quarreled with Mrs. Morgan and came home occasionally smarting with fury at some fancied slight or some contradiction she had given to one of his orders. But his editorials had been well received.

On a late June evening, when the whole world seemed locked in a golden haze of loveliness, Megan came up from the fields, intent on nothing more exciting than a brisk shower and fresh clothes, when she saw a car standing at the gate.

She came on into the kitchen and said, "Have we got company, Annie?"

Annie's lower lip was thrust out, an indication that Annie was angry about something; but her tone was, as usual with Annie under such moods, almost expressionless, when she answered: "Yessum—he waitin' in de settin' room."

Megan stripped the gaily figured scarf from her head, shook out her tumbled curls, and walked into the living room. The man who stood at the window turned to face her—and Megan was still, rigid with shock. Because the man who faced her was—Tom Fallon.

He had aged, and his face was set and grim, his eyes those of the tragically lost. But as he looked at her, some of the haggard look vanished from his face and he said in a tone just above a whisper, "You're lovelier than ever."

"Please sit down," she said. "I've been offered the job of principal at the school again this year," he said.

Megan caught her breath. "But—surely—you wouldn't want to come back—here?" she gasped.

He studied her for a moment, and then he said quietly, "You can't possibly imagine my being willing ever to return here, to Pleasant Grove, can you, Megan?"

"Well—no, I'm afraid I can't," Megan answered him quite honestly. "Because so much of tragedy happened to me here?" he asked, and before she could answer he added gently, "But I had a very small and very perfect glimpse of Heaven, too, Megan. Perhaps one could cancel the other—or could it?"

Megan said huskily, "I—don't quite know what you are talking about."

"Let's not beat about the bush and tell polite lies, Megan," he said with a forthrightness that was rather staggering. "I know that it will be a long time before I can—speak to you of love, Megan. It would be the worst possible taste for me to do so now. But there was an evening, Megan, when we spoke our hearts—for the briefest possible moment. I haven't forgotten. Have you?"

Megan felt the color rush to her face and she could not quite meet his eyes.

"So it's like that," he said very quietly, his tone tired and heavy and old. "I should have known that I was just seeing something that didn't really exist. You were emotionally upset and you were sorry for me—was that it, Megan?"

Megan sat very still. Because that was it. She knew it now. She had imagined herself in love with Tom because she had been caught by pity for his unhappy plight, and she had let herself be deceived into thinking that her pity for him was a stronger, more vital emotion. But now she saw clearly, in the light of the past few months' clarity of vision and peace of mind.

Tom stood up and said quietly, "Well, that's that. I didn't have a great deal of hope, of course. Maybe the reason why I even for a moment considered coming back to Pleasant Grove was because I did not want to face the facts. I wanted to go on believing that what we saw and felt that night was as real for you as for me. But, of course, I see now that I was a fool."

"I'm terribly sorry, truly—" she managed with tremulous lips, her eyes misted by tears.

He turned towards the door. Megan said swiftly, "Will you come back to Pleasant Grove?"

He shook his head. "There is nothing to come back for—ever—now," he told her in that same quiet, almost toneless voice.

On Sunday morning, a glorious June morning with a brilliant sun lying like a benediction on green fields and gardens burgeoning with roses and zinnias and marigolds, Megan went again to the Ridge.

She had dreaded this return to the Ridge. She had avoided it all these weeks, pretending to herself that she was too busy, that there were tasks to be performed that made it impossible for her to make her favorite walk. But now she knew that she had lied; she had been afraid.

The sudden barking of Dixie warned her of the approach of some stranger. She turned sharply and looked across the meadow, and her heart stood up on tiptoe. She felt as though it, too, yelped with excitement. For even at this distance, she knew that figure. It was Laurence.

She sat very still and watched him, while a new, sweet warmth spread throughout her body. Her heart shook a little and her hands closed themselves tightly in her lap. The sunlight glinted on Laurence's bare head as he walked with his hands in his pockets, his shoulders drooping a little.

And watching him as he plodded up the meadow slope and across the fence, she knew a contentment so deep, so warm, so sweet, that she was one with the June scene all about her.

And then he was close enough to see Megan, and he said with a little quick, meaningless smile, "Hello! Mind if I intrude?"

"You're not intruding," she told him, and smiled and patted the rock beside her, inviting him to sit down.

Looking down at Megan he said quietly, "Annie thought I'd find you up here. Why did you want to see me?"

Megan's eyes widened a little and she asked, "Why did I want to see you? That's a funny question—"

Laurence frowned. "Well, after all, when Annie telephoned me—"

Megan gasped, and the hot color flowed into her face as she stammered, "Annie telephoned you?"

Laurence nodded. "She said you wanted to see me and that it was important, so I hitched a ride over. Why? What's the matter?"

Megan was scarlet. She could not quite meet his eyes.

"Annie—Annie had no right to do anything of the sort. She's really getting beyond herself—" she stammered.

Laurence's tired face hardened a little and his eyes were cool. "I take it, then, that you had nothing to do with the call? That Annie was mistaken in saying you wanted to see me—"

"I had nothing to do with the call," Megan cut in. "But of course, I always want to see you, Larry. Why wouldn't I? You are my oldest and best friend."

"Thanks a lot," said Laurence dryly. "But that's not good enough, Megan. You know where I stand, where I've always stood, so far as you are concerned. But I made up my mind a good while ago that you were not for me, and I'm not fond of torturing myself, so I've kept away. I thought this morning when Annie telephoned me, that you were in some kind of—well, of a jam, and that you needed me. And of course, that would always be the one thing that would bring me as fast as I could travel. But if Annie was wrong—"

"Look, Larry," said Megan huskily. "I've—well, there's something I have to tell you and it's not very pretty. I'm—ashamed—but you'll have to know it—"

"There's nothing I have to know about you, Meggie, that would be hard for you to tell me," he interrupted her swiftly, his eyes upon her, tired, somber, steady.

Megan caught her breath on a sob and burst out swiftly, "Oh, Larry, don't be humble! I don't deserve it. I've been an awful fool—but now that I can see clearly—now that I know what it's all about, you make me so ashamed!"

Laurence stared at her, puzzled, a little resentful. "Why should I make you ashamed, Megan? I think I resent that! You'd better explain," he said sharply.

Megan put out her hands in a little gesture of pleading.

"That's what I'm trying to do, Larry," she told him unsteadily. "I'm trying to explain that I was fool enough to believe that I—was in love with Tom Fallon. And now I know that I wasn't—that I never was, really—"

Laurence stared at her, his brows drawn together. His hands made a little involuntary movement towards her, but he stopped himself just before he could touch her.

The deep, rich color poured into her face, but her eyes met his steadily. "Because I know now that—it's always been—you, Larry," she told him huskily.

He bent and swept her up into his arms and held her so close and hard against him that she could scarcely breathe.

His cheek was against hers, as he said, "I lost you once, Meggie, and it—well, it just about finished me. I thought everything was fine between us and that we were going to be married, and then you kicked me out of my fool's paradise, by saying it was Fallon. I couldn't quite take it if you changed your mind again. It's got to be—well, final, this time, one way or the other."

There were tears in her eyes, as she stood on tiptoe and framed his face between her hands, and set her mouth on his, her warm, soft mouth that was faintly tremulous and very sweet and that flowered beneath his kiss.

"Oh, Larry—darling Larry—I do love you! I'll always love you. Forgive me?" she whispered unsteadily.

For answer, his arms tightened and his lips found and claimed her own.

And Susie, the cat, was a wise cat and knew there were times when humans were interested only in each other. This, of course, was one of those times.

Household Hints

Less time is required and there is less danger of doughnuts slipping back into the hot fat if a wire egg whip is used to lift them instead of a fork.

You can't afford to be careless with delicate curtains these days. When washing them, baste the curtains into muslin bags or pillow cases to protect them.

If sunshine fades your colored clothes, you are an accessory after the fact. Hang colored garments in the shade after laundering to preserve their colors.

When painting, wear an old sock over your shoe to wipe up drips on the floor without stooping.

Before soaking a cooking pan in cold water, allow it to cool a few minutes after it is taken off the stove. Rapid cooling may warp aluminum, chip porcelain, or crack iron utensils.

considered. Under this law, settlements will be made in non-negotiable bonds, maturing in five years and bearing 2 1/2 percent interest.

Q—How about the women who served in the various services? Are they eligible for payment also?

A—Of course. Women who served in the WACs, WAVES, SPARS, or Marines and who had furlough or leave time coming to them at the time of their discharge are eligible under the terms of the law.

Q—How about service in the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, does that come under the law?

A—No, it doesn't. Only that service from July 1, 1943, when the Women's Army Corps was established as a Component of the Army of the United States can be counted. W-A-A-C was only an auxiliary service.

Q—What type of discharge is required to qualify for payment?

A—Any discharge under honorable conditions. However, those persons who received discharges other than honorable but who later obtained a correction of their record to show that their discharges were under honorable conditions, are also eligible for payment. All claims must be supported by submitting the original discharge certificate along with the claim. This is to make certain that the claim comes from a bona fide ex-serviceman or woman. There are severe penalties provided for knowingly making false claims.

Q—Will the discharge certificate be returned to the claimant?

A—Yes, by mail after it has served its purpose.

Q—I suppose there'll be special forms required to file a claim?

A—That's right.

Q—Where will these forms be obtainable?

A—Proper forms with instruction sheets will be available at all Post Offices throughout the country as soon as distribution can be made to them, probably within 45 days.

Q—After the forms are filled out, where are they to be mailed?

A—The instruction sheet will state where to mail them and how to fill them out. Your local community Advisory and Information center, or your State or County Veteran's service officer may be consulted for assistance.

Q—Suppose a man served in both the Army and Navy since September 8, 1939, and has an honorable discharge certificate from both services. Will he have to submit both his certificates?

A—Yes, but in order to simplify matters, he will submit both those certificates only to the service from which he was last discharged. In other words, let us take the case of a man who served in the Navy from 1940 to 1942, was honorably discharged and then served in the Army from 1942 to 1943 from which he was also honorably discharged. He would submit both his Army and his Navy discharge certificates to the Army Finance Office designated on the instruction sheet.

Q—Would he have to fill out two separate applications, one for Army and one for Navy service?

A—No. He will only have to submit the one application together with both discharge certificates to the branch of service from which he was discharged, that is, the Army.

Q—What if a veteran has lost his discharge?

A—Veterans who have lost their Army discharge may get an application for obtaining a certificate in lieu of discharge at any Army Recruiting Station. After filling out this application for lost discharge, it should be mailed to The Adjutant General's Office, 4300 Goodfellow Blvd., St. Louis 20, Missouri. Former Navy personnel should write directly to the Navy Department, Bureau of Personnel, Washington 25, D. C.; former Marine Corps personnel should write directly to the Director of Personnel, Headquarters U. S. Marine Corps, Washington 25, D. C., and former Coast Guard personnel should write directly to the Commandant, U. S. Coast Guard, Washington 25, D. C.

Q—May these claims be presented in person?

A—I'm glad you brought that up. And I'd like to save a lot of time for the veteran and for the paying office. Do not present any claims in person. I'd like to emphasize that. Do not present any claims in person; it will only delay the orderly procedure of settling claims. Send your claims in by mail only.

Q—Will any settlements be made in cash?

A—No, settlements will be made in bonds mailed to the claimant's address. United States bonds will be issued to the highest $25.00 multiple of the total amount due the veteran; the balance, if any, will be paid by Treasurer's check. Where the total amount due the veteran is less than $50.00 or if the veteran was discharged prior to January 1, 1943, it will all be paid by check. These bonds, as we stated previously, are non-negotiable and will mature in five years. However, Congress has made the provision that the bonds may be used immediately for repayment of loans made prior to July 31, 1946 on Government or National Service Life Insurance and for payment of premiums on Government or National Life Insurance policies.

Q—Who's going to settle these claims?

A—The branch of service from which the ex-serviceman or woman was last discharged; that is, the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard.

Q—Suppose an individual received an appointment as an officer or warrant officer after serving as an enlisted man? Does the Act provide for payment on the unused furlough time that he accumulated as an enlisted man?

A—Yes, it does, but not to exceed 120 days including his terminal leave as an officer.

Q—I've been told that the widows and dependents of veterans of World War II are eligible for payment under this Act. Is that true?

A—Yes, but only if the veteran has died since discharge.

Q—Should the survivors use the same application form as the veteran? A—No. There will be special forms for survivors. The instruction sheet which will be available at all post offices will tell survivors how to apply.

Q—What about the dependents of those persons who died while in service?

A—The law provides no benefits for the survivors of persons who died while in the service. Benefited to the six months' death gratuity pay. This law applies only to those veterans who have been honorably discharged from the service and are still living or to the survivors of those veterans who have died since discharge.

Q—What service can be counted when computing leave or furlough?

A—All periods of active service in the Army, Navy, Marines, or Coast Guard, since September 8, 1939, except time AWOL, time over leave or time spent in confinement under sentence of courts-martial.

Q—Can you give us an example in computing net furlough or leave time due a veteran?

A—Well, suppose the veteran had 18 months of active service. He would have earned 2 1/2 times 18, or a total of 45 days of furlough or leave time. Now suppose he had used only ten days furlough while in service. There would remain 35 days payable under this law. However, if he was AWOL for 30 days, or in confinement for 30 days his total active service would be reduced to 17 months and his total furlough or leave time reduced to 42 days. Now minus those ten days furlough taken, would leave a total of 32 days for which he could be paid.

Q—Would that be 32 days pay at the grade or rating he held at the time of discharge?

A—That's right. If he were a corporal at the time of discharge, he will be entitled to one month and two days pay at a corporal's base pay, plus longevity pay, for length of service, if any.

Q—Is the ration money allowed under this law similar to that allowed for furlough or leave taken while in service?

A—Yes, but this law provides for a subsistence allowance at the rate of 70 cents per day for each day of unused furlough or leave.

Q—Is there any limit on the amount of unused furlough or leave time payable under this law?

A—Yes. One hundred and twenty days is the maximum furlough or leave time for which pay is allowed.

Q—When does the claim have to be sent in?

A—Anytime within a year but not later than September 1, 1947.

Q—How soon do you think the veteran can expect to get his settlement for the amount due him after he has mailed in his claim?

A—There will be approximately 15 million of these claims to be processed. The services will make every effort to settle them as rapidly as possible. However, as the result of demobilization, they are operating with greatly reduced staffs. The length of time required to settle these claims will depend largely on how carefully the applications are filled out and how much administrative research is required on each application. And remember this, your bond will be dated as of the first of the quarter following that in which you were discharged, so that whether you actually get your bond next week or six months from now, it will still bear that date. Let me repeat that: your bond will be dated the first of the quarter following that in which you were discharged. For example, if you were discharged anytime in October, November, or December 1945, your bond will be dated January 1st, 1946.

Q—How soon will application forms be available at post offices?

A—Millions of these forms must be printed and distributed all over the country. This will take time, but it is believed that they will be available in approximately 45 days. Remember, that these forms, may be obtained only at post offices. Therefore, do not write to the Armed Services, or anywhere else requesting these forms.

Q—As a final question, have you any further suggestions as to how the veteran may help speed settlements?

A—Indeed I have! After mailing your claim to the proper paying office, you can help speed up settlements by keeping inquiries down to a minimum. If numerous letters of inquiry are received by the paying officers, they will have to take time off from processing claims to answer these letters. So you can see how a lot of letters will delay settlement. However, in the event that you change your address during the waiting period, you should notify the paying officer in writing immediately. I recommend that you just sit tight and watch for further detailed information. In closing, let me assure you that the services will do everything they can to get the settlement in your hands just as soon as possible. I can assure you that the services will appreciate the cooperation of every veteran. For further information contact your local counselor, Gilbert M. Lindsay.
