Tire Thieves Are Apprehended

DEPUTY SHERIFF SIMMONS RUNS INTO JUST FOOL LUCK

What always trips the law violator is some little thing that is most unexpected.

About a week ago, thieves removed a tire from a car parked near Cal's Tavern. Deputy Sheriff Simmons was notified, got the tire number, and upon inquiry judged the theft was made by parties living at Charlevoix.

As Mr. Simmons entered Charlevoix he spotted the car he was looking for, took the culprits into custody and landed them in the County Jail.

State Police were called in and it was found that the men, Lawrence Barger, 22, and Michael DeBucee, 23, had tires in their possession which the State Police said, were taken at Cheboygan.

It is said the activities of the pair had been traced to Grand Traverse, Antrim, Cheboygan as well as Charlevoix Counties.

Lusk — Bos

Miss Ruth Lusk of Holliday, Mo., and Henry Bos, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bos of Atwood, were united in marriage, Friday evening, Sept. 20, at the home of the groom's parents.

Rev. G. A. Alberts performed the ceremony in the presence of twenty-five guests. Their attendants were Miss Barbara Lusk, sister of the bride, and Adrian Bos, brother of the groom.

After a short wedding trip the couple returned to East Jordan, where the bride will finish the season as government inspector at the East Jordan Canning Co. The groom is employed at the East Jordan Locker plant.

And I further urge all employers to place all their job orders with the United States Employment Service so that disabled veterans and other handicapped workers may be given an opportunity to prove their value in productive and self-respecting jobs.

Employ Physically Handicapped

EMPLOYERS URGED TO GIVE THIS SPECIAL THOUGHT THIS COMING WEEK

By Presidential proclamation, the week of October 6-12 is "National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week." The President has asked that employers make use of the abilities of the physically handicapped rather than turn away from jobs because of their disabilities. Experience has shown that the physically handicapped, fitted to the right job, can often out-produce the able-bodied in many jobs, that they are more careful against further accidents, and that they are a good employment risk.

This program should be heartily endorsed by everyone of the East Jordan area, for there are few communities in this State that have suffered greater casualties per capita in World War II.

We must not forget those who are disabled or handicapped as a result of wounds or injuries sustained in our wars. They deserve consideration as workers and producers here in this area, and they deserve that consideration now. Not for pity, gratitude or patriotism, but because they can do a week's work for a week's pay as well or better than the next fellow.

Employers are asked to list jobs for handicapped persons with the United States Employment Service at the East Jordan Municipal Building on Tuesday afternoons or at the office at 208 East Mitchell Street, Petoskey, Michigan.

It's good business to hire the Handicapped Worker.

Farm Topics

POTATO SHOW:

The Northern Michigan Potato and Apple Show will again be held this year. It will take place on November 6th and 7th at Cheboygan. Exhibits are to be set up during the first day of the fair and will be judged by specialists from Michigan State College. On the evening of the 7th there will be a banquet and a program for those interested. Farmers who are harvesting potatoes at the present time are asked to save out samples for exhibits. The premium book is not yet off the press but will be almost identical with last year's premium book.

SOFT CORN:

How to handle and what to do with soft corn may be a problem for some Charlevoix County farmers. Corn to crib satisfactorily should be down to a moisture content of 75%. Such corn when cribbed will be down from 16 percent to 17 percent after three or four months in the crib. Soft corn that will not do it crib continues to lose some moisture when on the stalk in the field. Many experiments have been conducted comparing soft corn containing 30% moisture with hard corn containing 17 percent moisture. In all of these trials the soft corn compared very favorably for livestock feeding.

Corn silage made from the entire crop is unquestionably the best way of saving a soft corn crop. Where silo space is not available consideration should be given to the construction of a pit silo or crib silo to conserve the crop. Directions for the construction of a temporary silo can be obtained from the County Extension Office.

DON'T THROW FEED AWAY:

Market the culls and feed the pullets better. Feed is not getting more plentiful and less expensive, and winter is no time to keep non-producing hens.

When new grain is harvested, it should be fed to poultry gradually to avoid upsetting of the birds. Give a small amount of the new grain with other grain that is being fed. Watch the birds and if no digestive or other trouble shows up, gradually increase the new grain.

To tell a good hen from a poor one—or a producer from a non-producer, follow this advice:

COMB—is large, bright red and glossy in a producer. Is dull, dry, shriveled and scaly in a non-layer.

FACE—is bright red in a layer but has a yellow tint in a "boarder."

VENT—is enlarged, smooth and moist in a producer. Is puckered and dry in a non-layer.

PUBIC BONES—are thin, pliable and well spread in a layer but are blunt, rigid and close together in a non-producer.

ABDOMEN—is expanded, soft and pliable in laying hens. In non-layers it is contracted, hard and fleshy.

SKIN—is soft and loose in a good layer but is thick and underlaid with fat in a "boarder."

October Six Is World Wide Communion Sunday

Next Sunday is World-wide Communion Sunday. For the past few years the first Sunday in October has been increasingly observed as the time when churches all around the world celebrate the sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

The purpose of this is to make the churches increasingly conscious of the spiritual unity that binds them together in spite of color, race and outer forms. It is expected that this year more churches will observe this day than ever before.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS: Trade Pact

Pres. Juan Peron and his entire cabinet looked on as British Ambassador Reginald Leeper and Argentine Foreign Minister Juan Bramuglia signed trade accords cementing commercial relations between the two countries. Pleased by the event, Peron announced that he had ordered three shiploads of meat to be sent to Britain before Christmas with the compliments of his government.

Peron might well have been tickled with the agreement, which calls for Britain's purchase of 83 per cent of Argentina's exportable meat surplus in the first year at prices 25 per cent over prevailing levels. During the second year, Britain will take 78 per cent of Argentine supplies. The latest price boost brings the total increase up to 45 per cent over the 1939 level when Britain first went in for large-scale buying.

In another accord, the British relinquished their control of Argentine railways in exchange for shares in a new company including Argentine government and private capital. Under a third agreement, Argentina will be permitted to utilize blocked wartime trade balances in Britain for retiring sterling debts, buying out British investments, or making cash withdrawals of 25 million dollars annually.

PUBLIC WORKS: Huge Backlog

Helped by federal aid in planning, states, cities and counties have drawn up a huge $4,107,136,000 public works program. Along with federal projects running into the billions, the nation's overall program not only promises to provide necessary public improvements but also a possible source of bolstering employment in the event of a business let-down.

State, city and county programs are broken down into those using federal funds for planning and others blue-printed by the various governmental units themselves. In obtaining U. S. money for planning, applicants must show a capacity to build within four years with their own funds and agree to repay federal advances without interest at the start of construction.

Of the 4,630 projects totaling $1,298,997,051 mapped with federal funds, sewer, water and sanitary improvements costing approximately $546,000,000 constitute the largest item. Following are school extensions or new buildings, $319,000,000; public buildings, $117,000,000; hospitals and clinics, $73,000,000; highways, roads and streets, $46,000,000; parks and other recreational facilities, $30,000,000; bridges, viaducts and railroad overpasses, $28,000,000; airports, $20,000,000; and miscellaneous projects, $116,000,000.

FIRE LOSSES:

Estimated U. S. fire losses totaled $40,019,000 for the month of August, an increase of $5,923,000 or 17 per cent over losses of $34,096,000 for August, 1945, the National Board of Fire Underwriters disclosed in a report.

The losses were the highest recorded in August of any year since the national board began tabulating monthly losses in 1929. They were a bare 2 per cent under losses of $40,998,000 recorded in July.

FREIGHT RATES: Wind Up Hearings

Department of agriculture representative bucked the railroads' petition for a 25 per cent rate increase in final hearings before the Interstate Commerce commission in Washington, D. C., while the carriers argued that the boost was necessary to prevent deficit operations. Department opposition was based upon two points: First, that an increase in freight costs to farmers would retard the electrification of rural regions, and, second, that it would impose a heavy burden upon the fish industry and curtail the movement of its products.

Railroads are destined to lose more than 200 million dollars at present rates next year, the carriers argued. Since 1939, wages, fuel and supplies have risen 50 per cent to a total of 2 billion dollars, they said, and even with the present high volume of traffic they only figure to earn 30 million dollars in 1946. Pending settlement of the carriers' petition, the ICC held over a temporary 10 per cent wartime raise.

WORLD LABOR: Wage Warning

As delegates to the 29th general conference of the International Labor organization convened in Montreal, Que., Director Edward J. Phelan issued a warning against rising wages not based upon increased production.

Hitting against inflationary wage boosts in a 113-page report reviewing the world reconversion picture, Phelan told delegates from 51 member countries including the U. S. that workers should refrain from strikes crippling resumption of large-scale output; employers must keep prices within reasonable limits, and governments should act to bring capital and labor into harmonious agreement.

Wage boosts based on increased productivity are essential to continued prosperity, Phelan declared. While more goods will tend to lower prices, higher pay will permit a greater consumption, bolstering both employment and business. Under those circumstances, profit-sharing represents a fair measure for wage determination, Phelan said.

MARRIAGE: Rocky Road

For every three marriages in 1945 there was one divorce, the Federal Security agency reported in the first government reporting of such statistics.

From the rate of 1.9 divorces per 1,000 population in 1937-'39, separations jumped to 3.6 in 1945, also was revealed.

Except for the depression years, the divorce rate has gone steadily upwards in the U. S., even rising supposed to the wartime period when marriages dipped between 1942 and 1945.

FSA studies showed that marriage and divorce rates rise with prosperity and war and sink with depression.

EUROPE: Proposes Union

Winston Churchill echoed U. S. Secretary of State Byrnes' proposal for a strong, unarmed Germany in calling for a united states of Europe to work within the framework of an international organization to preserve peace.

Speaking at the University of Zurich in Switzerland, Churchill suggested that a reconciled France and Germany form the cornerstone of a continental union, with the British empire, U. S. and Russia lending assistance. In welcoming Germany back into the family of nations, Churchill asked that the people be distinguished from their Nazi leaders.

A united states of Europe established to preserve peace in the old world would not conflict with the United Nations, Churchill argued. On the contrary, he said, success of the U. N. was dependent upon a natural grouping of western countries strong and desirous enough to meet threats to security.

TIRES:

Passenger car tire shipments reached a record during the first seven months of 1946, the Rubber Manufacturers' association reported. However, the day when motorists can walk into a dealer's shop and buy new tires "all the way around" is still months away.

Manufacturers shipped almost as many replacement passenger tires between Jan. 1 and July 31 of this year as they did in the entire year of 1941, which was the highest since 1929.

Washington Digest Life in Soviet Russia Lacks Utopian Promise

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—As relations between the western world and Russia grow rapidly no better, many reports are coming in to show that Communism, which reached the peak of its prestige with the end of the war, is losing some of its popularity in Europe.

Baukhage

The lack of proof provided in the eating of the Soviet pudding has had its effects, and many a wall of anguish is dimly audible behind the iron curtain which stretches from the Baltic through the Balkans. This, of course, doesn't prevent our own little family of loyal American "Commsies" from screaming the praises of all within the Soviet's gates.

I have been looking over some facts concerning two of the great postwar American problems—housing and union labor demands—with an eye on similar conditions in Russia. Nobody but an optimist with rose-colored glasses and a five-year lease would say that we have no housing problem in America. But Stalin has one in Russia too. And how, To-varish! (Don't answer me now, there's a plain clothes man behind the samovar.) I know about that letter workers wrote to Uncle Joe, pledging their tireless work and a promise to "liquidate all shortcomings" on the housing industry. That word "liquidate" has an unpleasant sound. And when Russian papers are allowed to criticize production, putting the blame on "local Soviets," it means—the situation needs criticizing!

But what were Russian housing conditions before the war? According to a recent Library of Congress report, "Communism in Action," even before the devastation of western Russia the average floor space in Moscow was only 45 square feet per head. But the privileged (workers with high records on the speed-up plan) had much more. Hence, the ordinary Russian worker had much less.

By way of contrast in Washington, D. C., under the National Capital Housing authority, the smallest housing unit (a one-bedroom apartment) must allot 165 square feet to the living room alone, and the total space must be 250 square feet. In Russia the usual arrangement is one family per room in a six-room apartment with common use of the kitchen and bathroom.

Figure Out Floor Space Per Person This was the situation before the war. Today, in the Ukraine, according to an article in Harper's by John Fischer, who spent some months in the Ukraine and Byelo Russia with UNRRA, conditions are such that the Russian press may well be allowed to criticize—if that will do any good.

In Kiev, says Fischer, a person is supposed to have six square meters of living space, which is a strip of floor about ten feet long and six feet wide. Less than that is available in Kharkov.

If you want to know how a typical family in the Ukraine lives, Fischer tells you to imagine you and your wife and children occupying the smallest room in your house, with the clothing, beds, furniture and possessions that are absolutely indispensable. You'll have a brick stove instead of a radiator or cooking range, a bathroom with no hot water shared by several other families — and probably a few relatives to share all that!

Probably you could stand this if you knew it was temporary. But in Russia, according to Fischer, because of the five-year plan for the expansion of heavy industry (said to be a part of Soviet war preparation) Russians are going to have a bitterly hard life as far as consumer goods and facilities go, for another 10 to 15 years.

I can't verify Fischer's views, but I know that authorities agree that Russia cannot possibly do much to raise the standard of living of the less privileged even if she doesn't continue the present military preparation.

And what has Communism done for the laborer as such? Under the five-year plan industrial workers' pay is supposed to go up to 500 rubles a month. Fischer estimates the present rate at between 300 and 350, which he says amounts in terms of American purchasing power to about $30 to $35.

Labor Unions Under Government Wing

According to "Communism in Action" (the U. S. government document I mentioned earlier) the Russian labor unions started out under Trotsky as independent, fighting organs of labor. But when Trotsky was ousted and made his very hasty departure from the Utopia he helped found, one lap ahead of the liquidators, things changed. As in the case of Nazi Germany the union became a limb of the party.

And no one would say that American unions, like the Russian variety, "are not organized to conduct strikes." This is reported by "Communism in Action," which says that there hasn't been a strike in Russia since 1921. The document further points out that unions in the United States have as their primary purpose the privilege of their members to deal on equal terms with their employers on all matters of mutual interest.

In the U. S. S. R., on the other hand, the unions are a part of the apparatus of the employer (the government) and since the government is supposed to act in the interests of all, the workers can't complain against any of its decisions.

Tough Sledding For the 'Ins'

There seems to be agreement between some of the political leaders of both parties that the voters are going to indulge in a good deal of indiscriminate hurling of brickbats next month and it is entirely likely that many an innocent, bystander congressman is going to suffer for the sins of his colleagues. Clarence Brown, No. 2 man in the Republican national committee, admitted to me that he was counting heavily on the "throw the rascals out" vote. In other words people are going to take out their various personal grouches on the incumbent, regardless of record or party affiliation. This view was reflected on the Democratic side by that experienced politician, Senator Russell of Georgia. He said to some of us the other day:

"It's always like this after a war. A great many people have complaints of one kind or another. It's a natural thing for many of them to decide to vote against the people who have been in office."

That line of reasoning, when pursued by a good Democrat, might be wishful thinking if he were casting his eyes at the gubernatorial contest in New York state. Many people take for granted that Governor Dewey, if he wins, will try to use re-election as a stepping stone toward the presidential nomination. In any case, the way the issues are being played now, if Dewey is re-elected, it will strengthen the arguments the Republicans are emphasizing that the next presidential campaign will be "safety and solidity" versus "wild-eyed radicalism."

Issues will be joined on this point by the National Citizens Political Action committee (CIO-PAC's twin) when the latter makes the following statement at the conference of "progressives" in Chicago at the end of the month:

"The November elections will decide the nation's future—the independent voters . . . will determine whether the voice of privilege, of hate and bigotry will dominate the 80th congress, as they did the old, or whether the progressives who fought against great odds in the 79th congress will find new allies." The Republicans are offering themselves as "new allies" by making the claim that they represent true liberalism, and telling the "progressives" that they must either choose the Republican brand of "liberalism" or support the so-called "radicalism" of the Democrats.

Evidence to support the view that the "ins," whether they are Democrats or Republicans, are going to get the brickbats from disgruntled voters was contained in a letter recently received by two Democrat "ins."

"There just aren't any diapers," an expectant, incensed father wrote to his congressman, "and it's someone's fault. Regardless of where and how you place the blame, you represent us in our government which has allowed this national disgrace to come about and are, therefore, to a greater or a less degree, personally responsible for it."

BARBS . . . by Baukhage

A Kentucky physician received a tribute from his townfolk the other day for delivering 5,492 babies in 47 years. And not a wrong address in a pram-load.

An 84-year-old mountaineer whose 31-year-old wife had a nine pound baby wants the government to increase his old age pension. Not with these young ideas!

Terminal leaves end just like the ones that grow on trees.

A short circuit which tied up the telegraph line in Lombard, Mont., was caused by a big fish lodged on the cross-arm of a telegraph pole. Probably dropped by a fish-hawk which didn't realize there were some currents even a fish couldn't swim against.

TOO MUCH CURRENCY ALMOST AS BAD AS 'SOCIAL CREDIT'

IT WAS IN the early twenties that Manchester Boddy, then, as now, the editor and publisher of the Los Angeles Daily News, called on me when I was in Los Angeles for a few days. The purpose of his visit was that he might explain to me the idea of social credit and, if possible, secure my support for that scheme, which he was vigorously promoting through his newspaper.

I do not remember all the details, as I was not interested, but I do recall the general idea, and in general how it was to work. He was proposing that the government make a detailed and thorough inventory of all that represented wealth in the nation; all the farms, homes and factories; the transportation systems, both rail and boat and other kinds; the mines, forests and oils; all merchandise and farm crops, everything having a value that could be expressed in dollars and cents.

Whatever the total of that inventory, representing the total wealth of the nation, the government would issue money enough to cover all of the amount. That money was to be divided equally among all the people of the nation, men, women and children, on a per capita basis.

Boddy estimated the wealth of the nation at that time as something over 200 billion dollars. It would mean the government would issue, of purely printing press money, something over 200 billions of dollars in currency. Of this great sum each individual would receive an equal share. Collectively we would have sufficient money to buy everything in the nation on which a dollar and cents value could be placed.

To me, at the time, it was but another of the fantastic schemes, emanating in California, for getting something for nothing. I was in no way interested, and did not think of it again until the present danger of inflation, fanned by too much circulating currency, began attracting national attention. Then I realized what a wild ogre of inflation that Manchester Boddy idea, had we attempted it, would have produced. It would have been all, and more of what Germany experienced following World War I, when the billions of German marks issued by the government were so worthless as to have less value than the paper on which they were printed. Everyone would have oodles of money in his pocket with nothing any individual could buy. When the headache was over a limited few would have the wealth, and the masses would have the worthless currency.

With our constantly increasing amount of currency in circulation we are on the way toward Manchester Boddy's social credit. Deficit financing on the part of the government is the fundamental reason for that continued increase, and the sand foundation on which a runaway inflation is built. The more of it that is issued the less each dollar will buy.

WRITER'S WORK IS HIS OWN

AN ACQUAINTANCE of some years ago delighted in being known as the friendly man. He expressed his friendly sentiments in verse. He had the ideas for such sentiments, but not the ability to put them into poetry. A lady of his acquaintance could do that, and he employed her to write for him his friendly sentiments. It worked nicely until he offered them for publication under his byline. As he saw it the verses were his, for he had bought and paid for them. But the lady brought suit, and my acquaintance found the law made a distinction between owner and author. He owned the verses, but he had not produced them, and could not have them printed as having originated with him, though he had supplied the idea. It was an expensive lesson, and one it may be well for others to know, and to remember.

FRANCES PERKINS, in a series of articles running in Collier's, says Roosevelt went to Teheran to get Stalin. Secretary Byrnes has reason to believe that all the late President secured was a temporary restraining order.

THE CITY OF LOS ANGELES found its first 100 years the hardest. It was founded in 1781 as a full fledged Spanish pueblo, with a population of 62. At the end of that first 100 years, in 1881, that population had increased to 12,000. In the last 50 years the number has grown to nearly two million. Los Angeles was founded before Chicago was even thought of. We think of it as a young city, but it was a going concern when George Washington was still fighting the British. But that first 100 years were tough.

GLAMOUR TAKES TO THE TURF
Sleek, thoroughbred horses always have had an attraction for fair ladies. "Beauty and the Beast" is not a fairy tale insofar as it applies to the love of beautiful women for beautiful horses. Dan Parker writes about famous women followers of racing in The American Weekly with this Sunday's (October 6) issue of The Detroit Sunday Times.

ATTENTION EAST JORDAN

Let's persevere democracy. As being spoken to by the Holy Ghost to come to East Jordan I am here Friday evening holding meetings to proclaim and display the old Bible salvation and his healing, and saving, cleansing, keeping, power. People have been healed of cancers, acute pectitis, etc. in my ministry. Also there is no room in God's word for his elect people to be divided. And in due season by the help of the Holy Ghost and God's holy word it will be revealed to the public what is separating his people. Now, if you want a meeting or several in your home or church see me at the creamery or phone at Alba 20-F4.

(Edited by Mrs. Tom Kiser)

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gagnon called on Mr. and Mrs. Albert Omland, Friday evening.

Mrs. Pat Ulvund passed away last Thursday evening. We extend our sympathy to the family and relatives.

Seek Japanese in 30 Million Theft

BATAVIA, JAVA.—A mysterious Japanese colonel, believed to have the bulk of a reported fabulous $30,000,000 treasure stolen during the occupation, was trailed after the Eurasian mistress of his subordinate talked so much she exposed the theft.

British army personnel, Dutch and Japanese were involved. Allied investigators on the elusive path of the 10 steel trunks and five crates of jewels, gold and cash said eight arrests had been made. A British captain and sergeant and the woman were among those held. Other Britons en route to England faced arrest, investigators said.

The investigator reported $8,000,000 of the loot including "diamonds as big as your thumb" had been recovered.

Authoritative sources said that three days before the Japanese surrender, a Japanese secret police officer, Capt. Hiroshi Nakamura, commandeered the trunks and crates containing the treasure from the Batavia state pawnshop and took them to the residence of his slender 28-year-old Eurasian mistress, mother of his two children.

The Japanese told the woman to take her pick. She chose about $6,000,000 worth of jewels, and Nakamura turned the rest over to the colonel, whose name authorities did not disclose.

A Dutch civilian posing as an intelligence officer gained her confidence. He learned of the loot and tipped the British captain, a member of the field security service.

The captain and a sergeant arrested the mistress.

The case broke when Nakamura's mistress lodged a complaint charging the British captain with mistreatment.

Forbid Exports of Autos
Through 'Baggage' Ruse

WASHINGTON.—The government moved to break up what it described as a practice of shipping automobiles abroad as "personal baggage" and selling them there at exorbitant prices.

To halt it, the commerce department's office of international trade forbade export of cars as personal baggage unless the traveler proves he has lived in the United States continuously for a year and has owned the car for six months.

Officials said reports from Mexico and Cuba were that large numbers of tourists have taken out cars ostensibly for use in their travels and then sold them at "fabulous" prices. Some were being reshipped to Europe for an even bigger profit.

Silver Shortage Holding Up Goods, Industry Says

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—Electrical appliance manufacturers "will probably be forced to halt deliveries in a few weeks because of the scarcity of silver, the General Electric company announced.

"The same condition holds true for the automotive, motion picture, food processing, farm machinery and many other industries," H. L. Erlicher, G. E. vice president in charge of purchasing, asserted in a statement.

Erlicher said that industry had been unable to buy silver since the expiration of the Green act last December 31, which, he added, authorized industries to buy from the treasury department's surplus supply.

Eagle Twice Attacks Big Passenger Plane

MOSCOW.—The newspaper Izvestia recently published a dispatch from the North Caucasus reporting that an eagle twice attacked a passenger plane and crashed into the wing on its second assault.

According to the story, the eagle threw itself at the plane like a stone in the first attack, but missed because the pilot took evasive action.

On the second try the eagle hit the plane, crashed through the wing and was caught in the wing flaps. It was found dead in the wing when the pilot landed at Stavropol.

Father Saves Baby's Life After Boat Upsets in Sea

SWAMPSCOTT, MASS.—For 45 minutes, 15-month-old Marion Drake was held aloft by her father to save her from drowning after a squall upset their fishing dory. When the boat went over, the father grabbed the baby while his wife, Hedwick, and a friend swam for their lives.

Another fisherman sighted the swimmers and hauled them aboard his boat.

Smokers Cause Many Fires on Rural Property

Matches and smoking cause a greater number of fires than any other known cause according to Fred Roth, Michigan State college fire prevention specialist. The annual fire loss in the United States from this cause alone is 43 million dollars.

Many farm fires result from carelessly discarded cigars, cigarettes, matches or pipe contents. Roth says the house should have plenty of ash trays to encourage proper disposition of smokes. It's a good idea to fasten tin cans partly filled with water or sand near the entrances of the barn and other buildings in which combustibles are stored. This provides a safe place for discarding smokes before entering the building.

"No Smoking" Signs should be posted near the cans, and smoking in these buildings should be prohibited.

Safety type matches should be used and kept in metal, or any other incombustible containers. Children are fascinated by matches and must not be allowed access to them.

On the farm, it is especially important to put out all cigar and cigarette butts because sparrows and other birds have been known to start fires by carrying these lighted firebrands into their nests in buildings.

Four Brothers Evaded War by Hiding in Attic

Give Up When Warned a Nation-Wide Hunt Was Being Organized.

CHICAGO.—The strange story of how four brothers, sons of a Du Page county farmer, spent 47 months hiding in a tiny attic room in their Ontarioville home in Du Page county to avoid the draft was brought to light when the brothers voluntarily surrendered to Federal Bureau of Investigation in Chicago.

Each of the brothers was sentenced to three years in the federal penitentiary. In passing sentence, Judge Buy of the federal district court said: "The finding that amazes me is to find four brothers all equally disloyal. Your actions were certainly cowardly in letting others fight for you. If you'd done this in Austria, from where your family came, you'd have been shot."

The brothers, pale but showing no other ill effects from their long imprisonment, appeared at FBI offices after their father, Charles Gabriel, was warned by federal agents that a nation-wide search was being organized.

FBI Agent Edward W. Halloran, who has been working on the case for two years, said the brothers escaped detection by barricading themselves in a tiny room in a corner of the Gabriel two-story frame house on the outskirts of Ontarioville, 10 miles southeast of Elgin.

Mother Helped Out.

As soon as FBI agents appeared, Halloran said, the brothers, Albert, 40; Frank, 29; Henry, 26, and Ernest, 23, would draw a curtain across the single window in the attic room. Downstairs their father and mother, Josephine, would prepare to enact a dramatic scene. Mrs. Gabriel would feign illness and fall across a bed in a faint. The elder Gabriel then would expose a cancerous wound on his neck and pretend that he was nearly unable to talk. In response to questions by FBI men about the whereabouts of his sons he would only mumble replies that they had disappeared years before.

Although a close watch was kept on the place, farm agents failed to see the brothers because they would leave their room only on moonless nights to exercise by running up and down a cow path on a lonely part of the farm.

The brothers began their flight from army service on the day Albert received a notice to report for induction on July 8, 1942. At that time they formed a pact to hide out together and protect one another from induction because their religious beliefs did not allow them to fight. The younger brothers never registered for the draft.

Savings Are Spent.

Taken before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker by Assistant United States Attorney John A. Looby Jr., Albert pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to report for induction and was ordered held under a $5,000 bond. The three younger brothers pleaded guilty to charges of failing to register for the draft and also were held under $5,000 bonds.

The family told Looby that they spent their entire savings of $1,500 to provide food and clothing for the four boys. The youngest brother, Ernest, is a cripple, FBI agents said, and probably would not have been taken by the army or navy.

At his home the elder Gabriel said he could not read, and professed to be unaware that the war is over. He has no radio, and said his sons seldom talked with him. Gabriel, a pensioned railroad employee, formerly lived in Chicago.

Britain Opens Luxury Gates to Banned Goods

WASHINGTON.—The British board of trade opened the gates recently to renewed imports of 34 miscellaneous types of U. S. merchandise which had been banned under wartime controls.

High in interest to women in England were ladies' felt hats, artificial silk clothing, lipstick and rouge, face powder and other cosmetics, all difficult to obtain when the accent was on "austerity."

U. S. producers, under an agreement announced by the board of trade and the department of commerce, may ship to Britain annually 20 per cent of their average during 1936-37-38. They may ship two-thirds of an annual quota for the remaining months of 1946.

U. S. Warns Against Danger in 2 New Drugs

WASHINGTON.—A danger area in which the new drug streptomycin increases rather than decreases deaths from infection was reported by United States food and drug administration researchers.

Penicillin, another war-born drug, may also have this effect, the report added on the basis of preliminary studies.

In tests on more than 2,000 mice, the scientists found the amount of streptomycin used determined whether the drug killed or cured. Disease-fighting concentrations lie relatively close to those that stimulate disease.

Farmers May Receive 1946 Potato Loans

Producers of late-crop potatoes can begin to take out Commodity Credit Corporation loans on their 1946 crop beginning this month, according to Walter H. Henley, Chairman of the Charlevoix County AAA Committee.

Loans are the only method the Government has to support prices on potatoes. The loan rate will be approximately 75 percent of the September bulk support price for potatoes. Loan rates for Charlevoix county are $1.15 per cwt. for U. S. No. 1 quality potatoes.

To promote orderly marketing of the crop under loan, borrowers can deliver 20 percent of their crop or one car load, whichever is larger, any time after completion of the loan.

Loans will mature on demand, but not later than April 30, 1947, and will bear interest at the rate of 3 percent. Borrowers who repay their loans before the maturity date will be entitled to price support only on potatoes still under loan at that date. The loan program will be administered by the County AAA Committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Chub Smith of Northville were guests this week at the home of their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Bader.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Putman, who have been spending the summer at the East Jordan Tourist Park, will return to their home in Sparta, Friday.

M. E. A. Region Five Conference to Meet

Teachers of sixteen northern Michigan counties will assemble in Petoskey October 3 for the annual Region Five Conference of the Michigan Education Association.

An extensive program of speakers has been scheduled for the Region Five Conference. It will be headlined by Robert Kazmayer, author, news commentator, and world traveler. Mr. Kazmayer will discuss "What Lies Ahead for America." Eugene B. Elliott, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and Lee B. Durham, president of the Michigan Education Association, both will address general sessions of the conference.

Two more headline speakers are Clarence Sorenson, geographer and foreign correspondent, who will discuss "We Re-Map the World" and Major Hamilton Long, author and soldier, who will talk on the subject

"Will America Permit Peace?"

Band, Choral Group to Appear Music for the general sessions at Petoskey will be furnished by the Petoskey High School band, under the direction of Max Smith, and by the Petoskey High School Girls' Sextette and chorus, both under Wilmer Moyer.

Registration headquarters for teachers attending the Region Five Conference at Petoskey will be in the main entrance to the high school auditorium. Registration will begin Thursday morning at 8 o'clock and the first general program will take place at 10 o'clock in the high school auditorium.

Counties included in M.E.A. Region Five are Emmet, Cheboygan, Presque Isle, Charlevoix, Leelanau, Antrim, Otsego, Montmorency, Alpena, Benzie, Grand Traverse, Kalamazoo, Alcona, Wexford and Missaukee.

Throughout all of its eight regions, the Michigan Education Association has undertaken this year particular efforts to keep the Conferences abreast of national and state affairs. The Conferences are "in-service" education for teachers who attend; and schoolmen feel that at no time in the history of the Conferences has the need for their enlightenment and inspiration been so keen. "Atomic age" is regarded by Michigan educators as no idle phrase, and they point to national and world news and the questions of their own pupils as ample evidence of this.

As in the past, the Regional Conferences have been officially designated state teachers' institutes by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction; teachers may therefore attend without loss of pay.

Three types of program Programs are divided among general, division, and section types. The general program is for all who attend a Regional Conference and will present outstanding state and national speakers. Division—the larger classifications of education effort, such as adult education and P.T.A. work—will hear prominent educators and laymen discuss topics of the times, as will sections, which consist of groups organized about individual study subjects, such as geography and arithmetic.

A portion of the general session in each region has been given over this year to a discussion of the proposed sales tax amendment, Proposal No. 2 on the November 5 ballot.

This year's eight Regional Conferences open October 3 with the Petoskey, Region Five, and Escanaba, Region Seven, institutes. They continue throughout October on Thursdays and Fridays, ending with the Detroit, Region One, and Grand Rapids, Region Four, Conferences on October 24 and 25.

USING THEIR HEADS

Col. Samuel Weatherby, a Union cavalry officer and a valiant fighter in the war between the states, was a great student of aphorisms and proverbs, favoring his men with a pithy saying to cap every occurrence. One day Colonel Weatherby and his hungry company sought to run down and slaughter four wild hogs with their sabres, but without success.

Into the breach came some equally hungry infantrymen, who devised a rude enclosure out of some loose fence rails, and into it drove and incarcerated the desperately wanted porkers.

"Ah," exclaimed the proverb-minded Colonel Weatherby, "see, gentlemen, the pen is still mightier than the sword!"

THEY GROW UP, THOUGH

Tourist—Any big men born here?
 Native—Nope. Only babies born here. Different in the city, I s'pose.

Champions Meet
 Patrons of a restaurant noticed tacked on the wall a sheet of paper on which was printed in bold characters:

"The umbrella in the stand below belongs to the champion heavy-weight fighter of the world. He is coming right back."

Five minutes later umbrella and paper had disappeared. In their place was this notice:

"Umbrella is now in possession of the champion marathon runner of the world. He is not coming back."

A Last Resort

In that trying period preceding the program, the visiting lecturer was being entertained by a local social leader of the fluttery type.

Hard-pressed for conversational topics, she at length inquired, "And do you believe in clubs for women?"

"Oh, yes," said the lecturer. "Yes, indeed," and then, pausing significantly, he added, "but, of course, only when kindness fails."

One Best Reason

The employer listened patiently as the youth sought to explain his failure to convince an important client in a business transaction.

Many reasons were given, with detailed explanations.

When the explaining was finished, the employer said, "Young man, there was one other reason."

"What was that, sir?"

"You didn't believe you could do it."

Down the Hatch

An elderly and somewhat innocent couple was vacationing aboard one of the big luxury liners. The wife, who took a lively interest in fellow passengers, remarked to her husband: "Did you notice the huge appetite of the man opposite us at dinner?"

"Yes," replied her husband dryly, "he must be what they call a stowaway."

LONG ODDS

Golfer—Sorry to be so late, boys. It was really a toss-up whether I should come to the club or stay at the office—and I had to toss 15 times.

All Lovelies

Jack Haley tells about visiting the small-town birthplace of a famous Hollywood star. "Does he ever come back here?" Haley asked. "Yep," replied a villager, "he's been back five times."

"Did he ever bring his wife?"

"Yep," was the answer, "each time and five prettier girls you never saw!"

Take Your Time, Buddy

"Who's waiting at this table anyway?" demanded the angry customer.

"Madam," replied the busy waitress, "you are, until your turn comes."

Perforated

Mother—What on earth happened to your shirt? It is full of holes.
 Junior—We were playing grocery store and I was the Swiss cheese.

Who Wants to Know?

Billy—Would you marry a man for his money?

Car in Reverse, but Boy Is Not Backward

PALO ALTO, CALIF.—Chief Gordon R. Davis discovered a new wrinkle in college boy economies. Davis said a policeman stopped a student driving backward and received this explanation: The car was rented on a mileage basis, and the student was driving backward because the speedometer did not register.

Crude Operation Saves Boy's Life

Ruptured Appendix Forces Unusual Efforts.

SEATTLE.—The story of how an army doctor operated on a table of crudely sawed boards on a ship in the Pacific to save the life of a 20-year-old youth, whose appendix ruptured several hundred miles off Yokohama, was told here.

The youth is Albert Bahoot, reported recuperating at his home in Asbury Park, N. J. The doctor is Capt. Howard C. Rufus of Lancaster, Pa. It happened aboard the army repair ship W. J. Connors.

A steam potato cooker served as a sterilizer. A Swedish chief mate, who once had witnessed an appendectomy, was the medical assistant, wrapped in a sheet.

To check on blood types for a transfusion, a flashlight lens served as a slide for the microscope. Test tubes were rigged on an electric fan for a centrifuge for separating the blood.

Then came the most severe setback.

The small penicillin supply aboard was outdated. By radio an SOS went out for the drug that was needed to fight the gangrenous infection.

The SS Cape Clear, bound for Seattle, hove into sight next morning. But seas were rough. Transferring the patient was out of the question. After a four-hour fight against the elements and after lines twice were snapped by the pitching of the ships, the lifesaving drug was brought aboard.

Girl Weds Another on Trip to Join G.I. Fiance

PHILADELPHIA.—Eunice Eaton, 19-year-old British model, made up her mind in 20 days on land to accept the hand of an American army sergeant in marriage. But 13 days on the high seas changed it.

Bound for America to meet the G.I., Richard Simmons, 30, of Manchester, Conn., she was married in a ship-deck ceremony to the vessel's purser, Thomas Hennessey, 22, Brooklyn.

Simmons was waiting on the dock when the Liberty ship William D. Pender arrived with what he thought was his bride-to-be.

All Simmons knew, ship Captain Francis M. Burns said, was that his fiancée had wired him the time of arrival, assuring him "all my love goes with this."

Burns said that since leaving her in London last November, Simmons had written her 200 letters, sent her $500 to buy a wedding ring and some clothes and paid for her passage here.

Chief Engineer S. S. Redwin, best man at the wedding, which occurred just 20 miles from shore, walked down the gangplank to break the news to Simmons and said, "Believe me, the guy took it like a man." He did insist on seeing Eunice, Redwin stated. "What they said I don't know."

Cat Falls Nine Stories, All Nine Lives Spared

NEW YORK.—Felix, a cat, slipped while cavorting in the window of an apartment house and fell nine stories.

He landed on his four feet on a ledge around the building's ground floor and hopped lightly down to the sidewalk.

Robert D. Jordan came rushing down in the elevator, expecting to find the pet of his daughter, Mary, 16, a corpse.

Instead, he found a very live cat whom he took to a veterinarian, Dr. Sidney Schiff. Dr. Schiff could find no broken bones, but there was indication of internal bleeding and he reserved judgment on Felix's nine lives for 72 hours.

Some 10 hours after his fall, Felix's internal bleeding had stopped and he was walking about, looking somewhat dazed by it all but showing no sign of injury.

Felix is three years old, half Manx and half nobody-knows.

Loot Stolen During War Is Found Along a Road

LONDON.—Jewels and art treasures valued at $160,000, stolen in the course of the war from a Yorkshire estate, were found strewn along a highway between Sheffield and Manchester.

A constable discovered the mass of silver, porcelain and other valuables, packed in tea chests and other boxes.

The treasure, owned by the late Louis Cartier, famous jeweler, was hidden in the garage of Ingre Hall, Sotrage place, Yorkshire, in 1939. The theft was discovered last November although, presumably, it had occurred several months earlier.

Murder in Plain Sight

by GERALD BROWN
W.N.U. FEATURES

Duke McCale, private detective, has established an enviable reputation in Boston in a short time by solving some difficult cases. He is consequently surprised and chagrined when Miss Adelaide Bigelow, extremely wealthy and aristocratic old lady, engages him to guard the presents during the festivities surrounding her niece's wedding. McCale accepts the commission only because he senses that Miss Bigelow is afraid of something, and that she wants a competent detective around the house in case of some outbreak. "If something were stolen, if something did happen, you'd have to investigate, wouldn't you?" inquires Miss Bigelow, meaningly. McCale grasps the obvious hint.

CHAPTER II

A nursemaid's job to a lot of iced-tea spoons. "Phooey!" The big young man hitched his long legs over an arm of the chair and snorted in irritation. "Holy Mike! What are we broke? I thought we were definitely out for the big stuff—no more small time. I run my legs off getting dope on this Vallaincourt guy—and what for? What has the bridegroom got to do with seeing that the friends of the family don't snitch all the silver plate? I suppose you expect him to run around the corner to the hock shop with the punchbowl between the ceremony and the reception."

Ann Marriot came in on the last part of the harangue. She set a coffee percolator on the desk, and bustled herself with cups and saucers. "Keep your shirt on, Tiny," she said to the big fellow. "Duke has a hunch. Why not let him do the talking? We only work here."

Rocky made appropriate noises, adding, "So this is a conference?"

"What did you think it was—the wedding breakfast?"

"All right, all right. So Duke has a hunch. Go ahead, master-mind. Go into your trance and tell us all."

McCale helped himself to a sandwich. "There isn't anything definite, Rocky. The old lady Bigelow, aunt of the bride, comes in here to hire special service—that of guarding the wedding gifts. That's her story. But look here. She doesn't want half a dozen men planted here. She's after only one inconspicuous man; not for the day of the wedding, but starting now—for the duration. That in itself is screwy. Besides that, she doesn't want the police and she's turned down operators from all the big agencies. To top it off, she acts as though the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse were tracking her down."

Rocky's eyes narrowed. "Skipping the mythology, maestro, I think I do see a glimmer of light. In other words, she doesn't give a hang if the wedding feast is lousy with kleptomaniacs. She's got other troubles."

"Exactly."

"Go to the head of the class," said Ann.

"Well, where do we come in?"

McCale accepted coffee from Ann and lit a cigarette. He spoke into the first puff of smoke.

"You've got me there. I'm not sure the lady knows herself, but it's certain she wants someone around. We're elected, anyway. So my first move is a file on the family and the dashing bridegroom, just in case. What did you get on Curt Vallaincourt?"

Mystery Surrounds Vallaincourt

"Not much, I'm afraid," Rocky flipped open a notebook. "Showed up around these parts about a year ago. He's from New York City, or so he says. Definitely not Harvard nor Blue Book. Seems to have plenty of dough. Lives in a swank apartment on the Riverway. Doesn't work. Goes everywhere with the society crowd. The girls all do cartwheels whenever he shows up anywhere. Anyway, he's marrying twenty million dollars next week. Make anything mysterious out of that?"

McCale shrugged. "Plenty if I wanted to let it run away with me." He turned to Ann. "Did you line up the Bigelows for me?"

"Well," she began, "the Perkinses and the Bigelows go right back—long before the Tea Party—if that's the sort of thing you want."

"Skip that. Bring us up to date."

"Okay. The money all comes from cotton mills in Lowell, and clipper ships and the Oriental trade before that. The Perkinses and the Bigelows intermarried, and so on. Adelaide Bigelow, our client, and her brother, Joel, are and were, respectively, the last of the line. Adelaide never married. Joel married twice. His first wife is dead. Is that clear?"

"Perfectly."

"Joel's second wife, Sybil, is apparently not of the royal purple. Her family only seems to go back a generation or two. Probably she was considered fast or nouveau riche or something, as she was a widow when he married her. She's a lot younger than he, too."

"Where did you get the nouveau riche stuff?"

"Oh, I didn't. Just surmise. In fact, I don't know whether she has any money of her own, or not. He was seventy when he died, five years ago, and she was forty-three then. She had two children by her first marriage, a son, Stephen, and a daughter, Victoria. Their name was Bennett, but he adopted them, and they changed to the Bigelow surname."

"Then Veronica, the bride, is a daughter of this second marriage?"

"No. The first Mrs. Bigelow died in childbirth—that is, in giving birth to Veronica. The old gentleman married Sybil Bennett three years after. Am I bawling this up?"

"No, indeed. It's very clear. Go on."

"There's not much more. Stephen was married two years ago. He didn't go to Harvard or Groton, like the rest of the Bigelows. M.I.T., I believe. He's an airplane designer at present. He married a girl from St. Louis—Swedish descent, but social and all that. A Karen Cristofen. Not much fuss around here about it."

"What's that?" He picked up a folded square of paper that had fluttered from her lap to the floor.

"Oh, I nearly forgot that. It's a rotogravure cut of Veronica Bigelow from the Sunday Herald of a few weeks ago."

McCale unfolded it and spread it flat on the top of the desk. The likeness of a very pretty girl looked up at him. It was a carefully lighted study of the photographer's conception of how a well-groomed, quiet, aristocratic young woman should pose.

"That really doesn't do her justice, I should say," mused Ann. "I understand she has gorgeous red hair and a beautiful figure."

"Well, we shall see," said Duke, handing it back to her. "Tuck it away with the rest of the data and transcribe Rocky's notes for a file on Vallaincourt. I'm due at the ancestral mansion for tea with Miss Adelaide at five—or thereabouts."

"Whee!" It was Rocky. "No-blesse oblige and old pewter mugs."

"Quiet, stooge. You and Ann hold the fort here. I don't even know whether our client expects me to take over twenty-four hours duty or not. I'm darn sure she's not really worried about the wedding presents. If by any chance she is, you may have to put on crepe soles and puffyfoot around there through the wee small hours. I'll call you."

McCale Senses That Something's Amiss

The Bigelow house was on that mound of Beacon street that slopes gently to Charles street and the Gardens. It was almost in the shadow of the State House dome and you could have thrown a pebble easily from the front stoop onto the paths of the old Common. Four stories high, its narrow dusty brick facade gave the lie to the roominess and depth within.

Adelaide Bigelow was waiting for McCale in the drawing room on the second floor. A butler, old and quiet and unobtrusive, had answered his knock and led him through a dim hallway, preceding him up dark, thickly carpeted stairs.

The room was at the front of the house. Heavy red draperies at the wide high windows were already drawn. Frail Miss Bigelow stood in its exact center, small and patrician, against the background of a huge black marble mantel.

He bowed slightly, and as she sank onto a Victorian sofa, he made a half-hearted gesture of fumbling for a cigarette. A clock on the mantel ticked a long minute as he hesitated to light it.

"Please do smoke," Miss Adelaide said in her soft, troubled voice. "This room is rather overpowering, isn't it? It has never been changed since the days of my grandparents. It takes the children to cheer it up. They should be along soon. There was a rehearsal at the church this afternoon." She sighed.

McCale struck a match, thinking that there was something wicked about hereditary possession and what it could do to people's lives.

"If you'd like to mix yourself a drink, Mr. McCale, there's a variety of liquor on that table." He shook his head.

"I'll wait, I think."

He was obsessed with the thought that although her voice was calm, unhurried, there was something empty and trembling in her. She seemed to be watching, too, watching the way the freelight flickered across his lean, hard jaw, and reaching out to him in some uncertain way for strength.

Letting the smoke out of his lungs, he said slowly, his voice low, "Perhaps you have something to tell me before the others arrive."

She looked up quickly, one fist tightly clenched in her lap. "Oh, no."

"Damnation," thought McCale. "What is the matter with this woman? Or is it me? Am I getting out of practice? I can usually catch something significant in my own subtle way, but this baffles me. I'll stake my life that there is something seriously wrong in this room, in this house. Something is going to happen. The Irish in me tells me so. It's crawling up the very small of my back. I've got to have something to go on."

She rose and walked past him to the door, her dress rustling like dry leaves. "I want you to see the wedding gifts," was all she said, closing the door of her mind sharply in his face.

A quick black anger flared up in him. His impulse was to stalk from the house, but reason held him, reason and the disturbing unrest that had remained in his brain and nerves ever since her visit to his office that morning. He followed her downstairs.

Heavy double doors intricately carved in designs of fruit opened off the lower hall into an immense dining room. There was faded scenic paper on the walls and huge sideboards against opposite sides of the room. Two exquisite crystal chandeliers, wired now for electricity, hung over a long narrow table. Along the dado which outlined the room, a dozen or more Adam chairs arched their dignified backs. Table and sideboards were loaded with silver, lamps, expensive glassware; rare, beautiful, odd, pretentious gifts for the bride and groom.

McCale walked around the display slowly, nodding at Miss Bigelow's remarks: "Very valuable: an heirloom; priceless," and so on. He marveled at the value placed on some simple piece, shuddering at the ostentatiousness of others. He was ready to grant the necessity of protection for this collection, was beginning to push away the odd hunch he had been playing all day, when he felt, rather than saw, a sudden change in his client.

A quiver rippled over her frail shoulders. Her hands fluttered helplessly as she came to a sudden frozen stop. They had reached the far end of the table. He heard her gasp and looked down to see the strangest gift of all.

It was a model, to scale, of a small modernistic house, set in miniature landscaped grounds. Complete with casement windows, sun deck, glass-walled patio, it was an architect's dream of the plus ultra in a civilized dwelling place. There was even a tiny roadster on the curved highway, a swimming pool in the rear, a statue in the small, geometrically plotted garden. The model had evidently been on display somewhere, for an engraved card attached to one corner of the base read:

Model of 1942 House—The Nest
Crystal Cove, Nahant
Architect—Christopher Storm
Beside McCale, Miss Bigelow swayed. Her face blanched. With eyes half-closed, she reached for and held up in her trembling fingers a long legal envelope that had been lying beside the model. From it, she took a folded document, opened it slowly. Over her shoulder, Duke saw it was a deed, ceding the property and buildings of Christopher Storm at Crystal Cove, Nahant, Massachusetts, to Curt Vallaincourt.

Beautiful Blonde Enters the Scene

Wordlessly, as McCale bit his lip to keep silent, Adelaide Bigelow replaced the deed in its envelope. She turned slowly, motioning him to leave the room with her.

The bright brilliance of "The Firebird" rippled through the gloom of the upper hall on a shaft of yellow light from the open drawing room door. Someone was playing the Stravinsky and playing it well. McCale, following Miss Bigelow inside, saw that the room was now occupied by three women and a man.

As his client drew him forward, his glance was irresistibly drawn to the woman at the piano. She was exceedingly beautiful in an almost cinematic way. Her body was long and thin and exquisitely draped in a white jersey tea-gown, the wide sleeves of which swung rhythmically as she played. The high cheekbones of her face shadowed the faintest of hollows. You could have swept the floor with her lashes, behind which glowed humorous blue eyes. Her mouth was sensuous, and thick with vermilion lipstick. As if all this were not enough, hair the color of flax hung in a long bob to her shoulders.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

Lesson for October 6

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

PAUL'S BACKGROUND AND EARLY LIFE

LESSON TEXT: Acts 21:39; 22:3, 27, 28; 26:4, 5; Philippians 3:5, 6.

MEMORY SELECTION: Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth.—Ecclesiastes 12:1.

God works through men. When we study his work we study the lives of men—all types of men—but all yielded to him, and used by him.

Paul stands out as one of the most influential characters in all history. His life and letters, which we are to study the next three months, have had a tremendous effect on the human race. Especially is this true of his position and influence in the Christian church.

Under God he was the one who carried the gospel to the Gentile world, and then began the great missionary program of the church, which goes on to this very day. His writings are the steady and extensive foundation of much of our study and teaching of Christian doctrine.

I. Birthplace (Acts 21:39).

The place of a man's birth has a definite influence on his personality and usefulness. Tarsus, where Paul was born, was one of the most cosmopolitan cities in the world of that day. It was a Roman province, where men proudly held their citizenship in the great empire. Greek, the language of world culture, was spoken there.

Tarsus was a great educational and university center. It was in a rich and fertile area. It was at the head of navigation on the river Cydnus and on a great Roman highway. It was the capital of the province.

II. Education (Acts 22:3).

After his early training in the home and under rabbis in Tarsus, he went to Jerusalem to study in what was probably the best-equipped Hebrew college of that day, under one of the greatest teachers, Gamaliel.

Somewhere in his rearing he was taught a trade, for every Jewish boy learned to support himself with his own hands (see Acts 18:3).

He was instructed in the Word of God, and had a consuming zeal for religious things. Until he was converted, it counted against Christianity, but afterward it became a flaming fire to spread the truth in all the world.

His combined zeal and knowledge made him a man of truly broad mind and tolerant spirit (Acts 5:35-39).

III. Citizenship (Acts 22:27, 28).

The mighty power and prestige of Rome stood behind every Roman citizen. Paul used his citizenship for protection. It helped him in his service for the Lord. Its prestige was used for God's glory.

It is a good sign when a man is proud of his national background, and it speaks well for the nation to which he belongs. But Paul came (as every Christian does) to know and appreciate a higher citizenship.

IV. Religion (Acts 26:4, 5).

Though a free-born Roman citizen, Paul was a Jew, and loyal to the religion of his people. He was a member of the strictest sect, the Pharisees, in which his family had held membership for generations.

He lived consistently in the observance of the laws and customs of his religious faith, and none could point to any flaw in his doctrine or failure in his life.

When he became a follower of Christ, there was no ground on which anyone could dismiss his conversion and his witness as the outbreak of a new viewpoint on the part of a renegade Jew.

It is to a man's credit that he faithfully lives up to the beliefs of the religion he professes. The result of such sincerity will be conversion, if he, like Paul, meets Christ and honestly faces the question of loyalty to him.

V. Race (Phil. 3:5, 6).

Paul counted it to be an honor to be known as a Hebrew and gloried in the fact that he was born, trained and lived within that racial as well as religious circle.

No one need ever be ashamed of his race, although he may be ashamed of things which members of his race have done. But there are even more things of which to be proud, and a man may add to the standing of his race by living his own life in cleanness of character and nobility of purpose. It is never a commendable thing to be ashamed of the race of one's fathers.

We must remember, however, that all the things in which Paul gloried, he found to be but refuse when he compared them with Christ (see Phil. 3:7, 8).

Everything worthwhile in a man's life God can glorify and use. But none of them, no matter how precious they may seem to be, compares with fellowship with and service for the Lord.

Invite the Neighbors for a Harvest Special! (See Recipes Below)

Harvest Party

If you're planning to ask some of the neighbors to drop in and help you with that last batch of harvesting, weeding, gardening or what-have-you, then be sure you have plenty of good food that can be served to them, family style.

Should the weather be warm and lovely, plan to eat under the shade of the old tree, or on the porch, as you'll find the outdoors makes even ordinary food taste pretty special. Set the table with your checked gingham and have plenty of paper napkins for buttery fingers and hands still wet from the succulent fruit.

Everything in the way of food should be simple, but good, and make sure there's plenty of it. This will be the reaping in of everything that's edible from your season's produce and the table should be as bountiful as you can possibly make it.

Tomato Soup.

(Serves 6)
12 fresh tomatoes
8 scallions
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper, freshly ground
1 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon sweet marjoram
1/2 teaspoon thyme
Juice of 1 lemon
2 teaspoons grated lemon peel
3/4 cup sour cream
1 teaspoon curry powder to taste
Dash of salt

Peel tomatoes and press through a coarse sieve. Add minced scallions, salt and pepper, sugar, herbs, lemon juice and peel. Chill for 2 hours or longer. Heat until just hot, then serve in soup plates with sour cream and minced parsley, if desired.

If you're having barbecued chicken or ribs of beef or spareribs, then you'll certainly want to have some of these picnic-type beans:

Baked Beans.

(Serves 4 to 6)
3/4 cup minced onion
1 1/2 cups minced green pepper
4 tablespoons butter or substitute
4 cups canned baked beans
1/2 cup diced dill pickle
1/2 cup grated American cheese
1/2 cup soft bread crumbs

Saute the onion and green pepper in 2 tablespoons butter. Add beans and arrange in alternate layers with cheese and pickle in a buttered casserole. Top with crumbs mixed with remaining butter. Bake in a hot (400-degree) oven for 25 minutes.

Red Cabbage With Apples.

(Serves 6)
1 1/2 pound head of red cabbage
1/4 cup boiling water

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU

Pan Fried Pork Chops
Apple Rings
Candied Sweet Potatoes
Carrots and Celery
Frozen Pear-Grape Salad
Muffins
Peach Pie Beverage
*Recipe given.

3 large cooking apples
3 tablespoons melted butter or substitute
1/4 cup vinegar
1 1/2 teaspoons flour
1/4 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper

Finely shred cabbage, discarding core and tough portions. Add the boiling water and cook, covered, 20 minutes or until cabbage is tender. About 10 minutes before cabbage is done, add peeled, cored apples which have been sliced and cook 10 minutes longer. Then add remaining ingredients, combined, tossing lightly with a fork. Heat and serve.

With all these vegetables, you'll want to savor of a light fruited salad such as this one:

*Frozen Pear-Grape Salad.

(Serves 6)
6 to 8 pear halves, canned or fresh
1 3-ounce package cream cheese
Green or tokay grapes
Salad greens
Dressing

Mash the cream cheese and add sliced grapes to it. Stuff into cavities of the pears. Use 1 cup pear juice or mixed fruit juice and add six tablespoons french dressing to it. Beat with a rotary beater, adding to this mixture one extra package of cream cheese and mixing till smooth. Place stuffed pears in refrigerator tray, pour beaten mixture over them and let freeze until firm. Serve on greens with extra salad dressing.

Bran Refrigerator Rolls.

(Makes 2 dozen)

1/2 cup shortening
6 tablespoons granulated sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup boiling water
1/2 cup bran
1 cake yeast
1/2 cup lukewarm water
1 egg, beaten
3 to 3 1/2 cups sifted flour

Mix shortening, sugar and salt with boiling water; then add bran and cool to lukewarm. Soften yeast in lukewarm water; add with egg to bran mixture. Stir in enough flour to make a soft dough and beat thoroughly. Cover and store in the refrigerator overnight. Form into small balls and place three of the balls in each greased muffin pan. Cover with a clean towel. Let rise in a warm place until almost doubled in bulk. Bake in a hot (425-degree) oven for 15 to 20 minutes.

Dutch Plum Cake.

(Serves 6)
1 cup sifted flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons granulated sugar
1/4 cup shortening
1 egg
1/2 cup milk
3 1/2 cups peeled, pitted plums, cut in eighths
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add 1 tablespoon of the sugar. Cut in shortening with pastry blender or knife and work mixture together until it looks like coarse meal. Stir in egg and milk which have been combined. Spread in a greased or oiled pan. Place cut plums on top, sprinkle with cinnamon and remaining sugar, and butter. Bake in a moderately hot (400-degree) oven for 40 to 45 minutes or until plums are tender. Serve warm, cut in slices with foamy sauce, vanilla sauce or plain cream.

The controversial sales tax diversion amendment, sponsored originally by mayors of Michigan big cities and now supported by public school teachers, is due for a showdown in about 30 days.

On November 5 the registered citizens of Michigan — those who qualify by registration laws to cast a ballot — will make a fateful decision.

This column has presented both sides of the issue pertaining to diversion of one-third of the state sales tax revenue to local governments, plus freezing of a state aid formula into the state constitution that would remove public school appropriations from the legislature.

It is becoming increasingly apparent that public school teachers, caught in the postwar inflation, are badly underpaid and are in need of better salaries. Kim Sigler and Murray D. VanWagoner will not dispute this fact.

It is also becoming more and more apparent that something has got to give way if Michigan voters authorize a $270,000,000 bonus for Michigan war veterans and also authorize a bumper state aid formula for schools and cities. How both of these proposals can be put into effect without badly disrupting state services, which for the most part involve people in home-town communities, has been a subject of considerable concern with administrative officials at Lansing.

Democratic nominee VanWagoner has referred recently to the likelihood of the two proposals being approved by the voters on November 5. This likelihood, he warns, increases the need of Michigan having an experienced state administrator in the governor's chair who knows how to handle the new problem.

State Treasurer D. Hale Brake, who is a nominee for the same office on the GOP ticket, has sharpened his pencils recently and arrived at an estimate that the $270,000,000 veterans' bonus would require the additional expenditure from the state general fund of approximately $17,500,000 a year for many years to come. This amount, significantly enough, is a little more than the surplus accrued in the general fund during the 1945-46 fiscal year after all disbursements had been made.

Latest figures from the office of John D. Morrison, State Auditor General, indicate a year's surplus of approximately $16,300,000. Had the veterans' bonus been in effect during the past year there would have been no surplus at all!

It is generally conceded that the veterans' bonus (Ballot Proposal No. 3) has a much better chance of being approved by the voters than the sales tax diversion amendment (Ballot Proposal No. 2).

We have noted little if any attack on the bonus proposal. We have noted considerable controversy — pro and con — about the projected school aid and big city amendment to secure state money.

Therefore, when the latter issue is being considered on its merits, it seems logical to take for granted that the bonus will be approved. Personally, we believe that such is the case.

If such is done, you arrive automatically at a point where the much talked about surplus becomes non-existent, as the above reasoning indicates. Retail department store sales are currently running about 50 percent over the same period one year ago — an astonishing fact, but nevertheless quite true. How much longer the postwar inflation boom will continue is anybody's guess, although government economists have been warning in consistent unison that a readjustment or recession is due sometime in 1947 and that we should get ready to see supply and demand more in normal balance.

It was actually not so long ago — during the Frank Murphy administration — when the auditor general's office was buying red ink by the gallon. A treasury deficit grew into the millions. Welfare demands were high, and people could not be left to starve. A deficiency was created by the welfare load, and Republican politicians began to make political capital of the fact that the Democrats were running the state into debt and that it was high time the voters turned to Republicans to do something about it. Sure, it's right on the record.

While state payrolls have increased steadily administration after administration, the record also shows unmistakably that state aid to local governments has gone up steadily. It is not easy to paint the other fellow's kettle black. For example,

State payments returned to and benefiting local governments grew from $89,000,000 in 1937 to $178,000,000 in 1946 — a ten-year period. The total of operating expenditures and reserves (for all purposes) climbed from $160,000,000 to $281,000,000. Read this paragraph again. Who's taking advantage of whom?

Republican Nominee Sigler has declared repeatedly that legislators should get more money; that legislators, as well as school teachers, are "underpaid." Democratic nominee Van Wagoner has his own proposals calling for more state financing, one of them being for veteran homes at low interest rate and at a nominal down payment of around $500.00 each.

With the veterans' bonus added to the state expenditures, it seems unlikely that the state government will reduce its spending in the next administration. In fact, the chances are that new taxes will be imposed — especially if the sales tax amendment is added to the bonus as additional drains on public funds.

The above facts do not take into consideration other interesting factors. The University of Michigan and Michigan State college, by legislative authorization, have already run up overdrafts (deficiencies, if you please) of around $6,400,000 to cover cost of veteran educational demands. The state welfare department has a deficiency at present of around $3,500,000.00, due to higher living costs. On top of this there are other operating deficiencies in sight.

The much talked about surplus at Lansing is largely an illusion, if prudent citizens take into consideration an impending veterans' bonus and existing deficiencies in state funds. This discouraging thing about the entire problem is the indifference of many people. "Lansing has too much money," they say. "Here's a chance to get some of it back home!" We wonder.

Cattail Leaves Replace Broken Reed Chair Seat

If you're worrying about how to replace the weaving in ladder back and slat back chairs, you might gather some cattail leaves. Ruth J. Peck, extension specialist in home management at Michigan State college suggests you gather the leaves before freezing weather.

Rush is common to most localities in Michigan. It should be gathered when full grown and still green. When the tips of the leaves turn brown is an ideal time. Use leaves from swamps of fresh water and cut a few inches below the water line. The leaves should be dried in the shade, preferably in a darkened room. Let them get thoroughly dry before using them.

Before starting to weave the seat or back of chair, place the rush in water for two hours. Place the leaves in wet burlap so they will hold moisture while you are working. Cut off the butt ends about a foot from the base.

It is best to make a cord by twisting together two leaves. Always twist in the same direction.

Miss Peck says reseating of chairs is an enjoyable and profitable pastime for long winter evenings. Extension bulletin, E168, "Reseating Chairs" gives the directions for weaving rush type seats. Your county agricultural agent's office will furnish you a copy or you may write to the Bulletin Office, Dept. of Public Relation, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

SHERMAN'S

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Bert Childers and the Melon Patch

Bert Childers put an ad in the Clarion the other day. Here's what it said:
"Planted more melons than I can eat this year. Stop by and pick as many as you want. All free."
As you can guess, plenty of folks sent their kids over and plenty of the parents came too. Stripped Bert's melon patch in no time. And as they went away, Bert treated the kids to lemonade, and offered the grownups a glass of ice-cold sparkling beer.

Naturally it puzzled some folks... but Bert explains: "It gives me a kick to share things when I can afford to—whether it's the melons, or the lemonade, or beer. I guess I just like to indulge my whims."
From where I sit, if we had more "self-indulgent" people like Bert—who believe in share and share alike, live and let live, this tired world would be a whole lot better off!
