Senior Play Next Wednesday

"HE COULDN'T MARRY FIVE" IS THE SUBJECT

Once again the holiday season rolls around — Christmas — New Year's. Everybody's in a dither — all except Donald. The Holiday Season is perfectly immaterial to him. HE has a much BIGGER problem. And can you blame him? Who could concentrate on Christmas with 5 glamorous girls just waiting for the ring?

Imagine it — 5! If this happens to be anyone's pet interpretation of "Utopia", believe us, after you've seen Dave Wade as "Donald" in "He Couldn't Marry 5", you'll know it isn't Utopia, just a pain-in-the-neck.

However he handles the situation fairly well until he has . . . but that's telling! Why not come up to the High School next Wednesday, Dec. 11, at 8 p. m. and see Aunt Etta as she does all she can to complicate matters — and simplify them, too, all at the same time. It can be done you know — and addita can see it done for only 40c, students 25c.

The play is under the direction of Mr. Vaun Ogden.

Farm Topics

EATON, THE NEW OAT VARIETY READY FOR GENERAL PLANTING

Eaton, the new oat variety developed by plant breeders at Michigan State college, will be available for general planting next spring.

E. E. Down, farm crops research specialist at MSC, says this new variety has proved outstanding because of its stiff straw and high yield. Over-state tests in southern and central Michigan showed its yield slightly higher than the new Clinton variety.

Since it is resistant to all forms of rust, has white grain and a test weight equal to any other Michigan variety except Hyton, Eaton may prove highly satisfactory. Down said, however, it does not seem to be well adapted to the upper peninsula as it does to lower Michigan.

Eaton oats grow about four inches shorter than Huron and 4 to 6 inches taller than Vicland.

In the first field tests, George Moore of Elsie produced 1,156 bushels of cleaned seed from 12 acres in 1945. In 1946 field tests, the lowest yield was 40 bushels per acre and the highest 109 bushels per acre. The differences were largely due to weather conditions, Down believes.

The Michigan Crop Improvement association is preparing a list of growers of this new seed. After January 1, county agricultural agents will have information as to where seed may be purchased. Farmers interested may also write the Michigan Crop Improvement association, Farm Crops department, MSC, East Lansing, Michigan.

GIVE SPECIAL CARE TO SWINE BREEDING HER FOR BET- TER PIG CROP

The farmer interested in good large litters of quality March pigs should now be giving special care to his swine breeding herd. W. N. McMillen, research associate in animal husbandry at MSC, reminds farmers that sows to farrow in March must be bred in November or early December.

Adequate floor space and warm housing is necessary to prevent flu and other diseases among the sows. Oiling the animals for lice and spraying with lime sulphur for mange should also be accomplished. The breeding stock should be fed some distance from sleeping and housing quarters to insure plenty of exercise.

McMillen recommends salt, ground limestone and bonemeal as especially good minerals. If meat scraps, tankage, soybean oil meal or other protein supplements cannot be bought, it is advisable to feed about 1 1/2 percent mineral and include 20 percent more alfalfa or clover meal in the ration. This will help take the place of hard-to-get supplements.

The swine specialist reminds that you should remember to provide plenty of water at all times. Hogs often suffer from a lack of water in cold weather.

MICE AND RABBIT DAMAGE TO TREES CAN BE REDUCED

Now is the time to act to prevent damage to valuable fruit and ornamental trees by rabbits and field mice. H. A. Cardinell, horticulturist at MSC, says they are after their fall and winter tonic of tannin and bitters.

Experiments have been conducted to find the best protection against rabbits. More than 250 different formulas were tried by MSC scientists. The best repellent found against rabbits was a mixture of rosin and alcohol. Use seven pounds of powdered wood rosin in a gallon

WITH THE ANTRIM COUNTY -AGRL AGENT

W. Kirkpatrick, Extension Agent

The formation of the Antrim-Charlevoix Breeders' Association is a definite milestone for better dairying in Antrim and Charlevoix counties.

The Breeders' Ass'n will assure all members breeding from sires having daughters in production that have already demonstrated their ability to produce from over 400 to upwards of 900 pounds of Butterfat yearly. Nearly three years will elapse before these first daughters from artificial breeding will come into production. Membership in the Ass'n assures farmers not only increased production but will eliminate the risk involved when it is necessary to keep a herd sire. In place of the herd sire another cow can be kept and her profit will not only pay the building costs in most instances but leave a nice profit for the farmer besides.

The formation of the Ass'n has taken much time and effort on the part of many farmers and is an accomplishment they can point to with considerable pride. The initial start was made in early January when a meeting of farmers was called by the County Agricultural Agent, Walter G. Kirkpatrick, for the purpose of helping them make out a "Program of Work for 1946". At this meeting the formation of the Breeders' Ass'n was voted the most important task for 1946.

The Ass'n got underway Thursday, November 14, 1946 when the Inseminator Manager, Francis Finch of Ellsworth, received his first shipment of Semen from the Central Laboratories at East Lansing. Fifty-five members have signed five hundred and fifty cattle of the Guernsey and Holstein breed for service. Additional memberships are being received weekly. It is hoped that sufficient Jerseys can be added soon, making a total of one hundred, needed to add that breed to the Ass'n.

Dog Tax Notice

THE LADY AND THE GYPSY, BY ETHEL VANCE

The famous author tells of a story book sounding romance that really happened. Read about the English general's daughter who married a gypsy—and is living happily ever after. Read it in The American weekly Magazine with this Sunday's (December 8) issue of The Detroit Sunday Times.

A Chinaman had a toothache and phoned the dentist for an appointment.

"Two-thirty all right?" asked the dentist.

"Tooth-hurtee all right, but what time do I come?"

Did you ever notice how often a narrow mind and a wide mouth go together.

Commercial ethyl alcohol. It can be painted or sprayed on the trunk and bark of trees or plants to protect them against rabbits.

Of course, Cardinell says, the greatest protection is wire cloth. A small-meshed fine fence around a planting will keep out the rabbits, but not the mice.

No good repellent against mice has been discovered, Cardinell says. The best procedure is to poison the pests. Poison bait made under government supervision is very good, and county agricultural agents can supply information on where it may be purchased.

If mouse runways from mulch and piles of grass refuse to the trees are spread with poison bait, mice can be eliminated. Runways should be baited often during the winter when the snow is on the ground and runways are easy to distinguish.

Woman Slain In Boyne City

MATE TURNS GUN ON SELF, AUTHORITIES SAY

William Tryon, 34, of Boyne City, fatally shot his 30-year-old wife, Opal early Monday and then seriously wounded himself in a suicide attempt, Charlevoix county and state police authorities reported.

Tryon, in critical condition, was declared by Lockwood hospital attendants at Petoskey to have "improved slightly" since his arrival there early Monday.

Investigating officers said the shooting was witnessed by the Tryon's son, William Jr., 13, who ran in his nightclothes to the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Sandel, who reside near the Tryon home. The Sandels notified Boyne City police.

Police Hunt Motive
Police said they were waiting Tryon's recovery in hope of establishing a motive for the slaying.

According to Charlevoix county authorities, Tryon and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harbaugh of Flint, had spent Sunday evening at a bowling alley later at a restaurant before Tryon returned home at 3 a. m. Harbaugh's wife, Genevieve, is a sister of the slain woman.

Coroner S. B. Stackus said two slugs from a 12-gauge shotgun had entered Mrs. Tryon's chest.

Stackus, who earlier ordered an immediate inquest, agreed to postpone the examination on request of Prosecutor C. M. Bice, pending Tryon's condition.

The Tryon's other child, Patricia, 11, also was in the home at the time of the shooting.

Tryon is vice president of the Michigan CIO council, president of local 245, International Leather Workers union, of the Michigan Tanning and Extract Co., and president of the Sunset Co-op Grocery Co. at Boyne City.

Night Patrolman C. A. Ploughman, who answered the grandparents' call and found Mrs. Tryon dead and her husband unconscious beside her, said Tryon recovered consciousness for a few minutes in the ambulance and said: "You know what I did; I'm bad and I want to die."

Ploughman asserted Tryon then lapsed into unconsciousness again without giving a motive for the shooting.

How to maintain public services of government, at home and elsewhere, despite today's postwar inflation which is yet to reach its crest, poses a top problem of acute proportions for Michigan's new state legislature.

Governor-Elect Kim Sigler will deliver his inaugural message to legislators on January 2.

At a good will dinner in Detroit the governor-elect told legislators that it was up to them to lead Michigan out of the financial wilderness created by the voters' diversion of 76 per cent of state sales tax revenues to home governments.

Regardless of what the legislature finally decides to do, it is apparent that a lot of people are going to be dissatisfied. They will be dissatisfied because they are dissatisfied with today's inflation—the root of the trouble.

Actually, the voters' dissatisfaction on Nov. 5 was prompted as much by the AFFECTS of inflation as by anything else.

We registered our protest against shortages, strikes and high prices by marking our ballot accordingly. Government is blamed for affects of inflation. In hard times the reverse has been true: Business is held responsible.

It is doubtful that the sales tax amendment would have been adopted if it had not been for the affects of inflation. Retail prices are mounting, ever higher. Department stores expect an all-time record in sales this year which means mere tax revenues for the State Treasury at Lansing. Spiral in prices has kept tax revenues ahead of operating costs. On July 1, 1945 the state treasury had a surplus of $5,219,000. Twelve months later the surplus had grown to $21,532,000—an increase of more than $16,000,000.

Proponents of the sales tax amendment made capital of the fact that the treasury had cash balances in excess of $125,000,000—all of which was sufficient proof, it was implied that the state had too much money on hand. These idle millions, so the logic went, should be returned back home to pay for increased costs of cities, schools and other home governments.

While it was true that the cash balances at Lansing were in excess of $125,000,000, it was equally true that only $21,532,000 of this sum was available to the legislature for appropriations. All other funds have been tagged, restricted, appropriated, earmarked—choose your own word for it. The veterans' trust fund, for example, is $50,000,000; state highway fund, $11,453,000; primary school fund $14,417,000; appropriation balances for buildings and improvements (delayed due to lack of materials, etc.), $27,881,000.

Inflation caused higher prices, and higher prices caused more taxes to be collected. The surplus at Lansing—built to unrealistic heights by emphasis on the $125,000,000 cash balances—collided squarely with inflation in operating costs.

The result was a voters' dissatisfaction with affects of inflation. It is very doubtful that this amendment would ever have been adopted in normal times. Inflation created the condition whereby voters acted as they did.

Now comes the news at Lansing that inflation of operating costs—higher cost of food, supplies, labor, etc.—will require higher appropriations for state departments and state institutions, such as prisons, hospitals and colleges. Requests for legislative appropriations have risen to $212,000,000 for the coming fiscal year. However, revenues are estimated at only $144,000,000 because of the diversion of 76 percent of the sales tax revenue back to home governments.

The difference is $68,000,000. The final amount may be less or more.

Clarence W. Look, deputy revenue commissioner, estimates the prospective deficit at $55,000,000. He points out that state aid to local governments and public services has mounted from $41,000,000 in 1932 to $180,000,000 by last June 30. It will go higher next year at a time when the state is being asked to finance a veterans bonus, maintain facilities for education of veterans at colleges, and otherwise provide ser-

Rebekahs-Oddfellows Party

About one hundred and fifty Odd Fellows and Rebekahs gathered at the IOOF Hall, Friday evening, for a Thanksgiving party, sponsored by the Rebekah's of Jassamine Lodge, No. 365.

Both round and square dancing were the order of the evening. Music being furnished by the Archer Orchestra of Deer Lake. Otto Miller of Boyne City called for the square dance. Donna Holland favored the group with vocal numbers.

Another feature of the evening was a skit, "Hillbilly Wedding" put on by several Rebekahs.

Refreshments, which were greatly enjoyed, were served from a small bar. Much credit is due the committee in charge for a pleasant and enjoyable evening.

Tom and Bill were arguing as to which had the lazier wife. "Come home with me and I'll prove that I have," said Tom.

They arrived at Tom's home and his wife was propped up in bed peeling the potatoes.

"That's nothing," said Bill. "come to my home."

Arriving at Bill's home they found his wife crying bitterly, sitting close to the big fire in the fireplace.

"What's the matter?" asked Bill. "I'm getting scorched," his wife replied.

Doctor: "Stick to an exclusive vegetable diet and you'll have a trim figure."

Lady: "Did you see ever notice the figure a cow has?"

vices all of which have been authorized by state legislators elected from home communities.

The state's current dilemma is much the same as the inflation problem confronting all business and industry. James D. Mooney, president of Willys Overland, explained the paradox of inflation the other day in these words: "During October we operated at a loss because our sales prices were out of line with increased costs. Prices are too high because costs are too high. Costs are high because we are spending too much money for too little production."

Irving Fisher, noted economist, warned Nov. 20 that we are living in a fools' paradise due to governmental mismanagement of money—sale of too many government bonds to banks in return for newly created credit—checkbook money or "invisible greenbacks"—which now total $110 BILLION DOLLARS. The banks' demand deposits last week were in excess of $39 BILLIONS. That's a lot of money, a lot of pressure at a time when shortages are widespread.

James Truslow Adams, noted historian and writer, declared Nov. 19 that "the next crash will make 1929 look like a piker." Listen to this:

"After every war, eventually the loss of capital goods has to be made good, and it can only be made good the hard way. In this World War we have destroyed more capital goods than ever before in the history of the world, and the crash will be correspondingly great."

Randall R. Penhale, state director of the school savings program sponsored by the U. S. treasury department, dropped in at the writer's office last week to discuss the need for thrift in today's period of fantastic inflation. Penhale's remedy: Buy on-much money as you can. Today's inflation is certain to be followed by times of great distress.

We extend to the legislature our personal sympathy in their efforts to allay Michigan's financial distress. Regardless of what they do, it will be wrong to some persons.

East Jordan Edged Out By Harbor

LOSE OUT BY THE NARROW SCORE OF 25 TO 22

Last Wednesday evening, Nov. 27, the local gym was the scene of the closest and fastest moving basketball game that one could ever hope to see. Alternately loud cheers and low moans came from the large local crowd as the East Jordan team forged ahead or fell behind.

The East Jordan boys got off to a good start, using a strong passing attack they quickly rolled up a 4 point lead, but before the quarter ended the Harbor team fighting back strongly, had tied the score at 4 all. East Jordan led at the half, and again at the 3rd quarter by scores of 13-9 and 15-14 respectively. But at the end of the all-important 4th and last quarter—the end of a regular game—the score stood East Jordan 19, Harbor Springs 19.

A hurried discussion among the officials resulted in a 3 minute overtime period, and therein lies the game for the Harbor team piled up 6 points to East Jordan's 3 to make a final score of Harbor Springs 25, East Jordan 22.

Coach Jankovik's second team provided plenty of warm-up heart-breaking score of 21-20. Glen Persons put in a fine performance, scoring 8 pts. for his team.

Dec. 6 East Jordan invades Pellston for a game that should provide plenty of excitement for basketball fans.

Celebrate 25th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Kiser were pleasantly surprised Sunday evening, by a group of old and new neighbors and relatives who helped to celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary.

A very pretty set of dishes, service for eight, was presented by the group to them, after which a very nice lunch was served, topped off by a beautifully decorated cake.

A nice time was had by all and congratulations given the couple, with expectations of having another party in the future to "initiate" the new dishes.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Labor Eyes Outcome of Miners' Walkout as New Wage Guide; Japs Staging Slow Recovery

Released by Western Newspaper Union.
(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

LABOR: New Crisis

Once again it was John L. against the government!

This time, Washington appeared determined to force a showdown with the burly United Mine Workers chieftain, but it had its job cut out for it as 400,000 UMW members stood steadfastly by their leader and both the AFL and CIO threw in their support.

As in previous UMW walkouts, Lewis held a hand full of aces. Punish him as it might try, there were the 400,000 skilled and irreplaceable miners who refused to go down into the pits before clarification of the status of their contract; there were approximately 12,000,000 members of organized labor who looked with disfavor upon government use of the injunction to break a strike, and the courts were still to decide the legality of terminating the UMW-government pact.

But, encouraged by the country's overwhelming swing to the right in the recent elections and the possibility that the courts might decide in his favor in interpreting the legal

Coal Mining Red Style

From Russia, where the Communist commissariat has its own method of settling labor problems, comes word of the working of a gigantic new coal field in northern Siberia by slave laborers from Lithuania, Estonia, Latvia, Ukraine and Crimea. Consisting mostly of political prisoners, the laborers are housed in wooden barracks and subsist on porridge and 600 grams of bread daily. About 35 mines have been developed in the 5,000 square mile field.

aspects of the case, President Truman was set to push John L. to the limit in his efforts to wring wage and hour concessions from the government.

Under the UMW-government contract, the miners received $75.25 weekly for a 54-hour week, in contrast to $23.88 weekly for a shorter week in 1939. Lewis' latest demands were said to call for a 40-hour week with earnings approximating those for 54 hours.

Arrival of the latest soft coal crisis saw the government prepared for emergency distribution of bituminous stocks. Only householders, hospitals, utilities and other essential public services were to receive deliveries. Railroads were scheduled to haul only food, clothing, medicine, fuel and other necessities and to reduce locomotive passenger service by 25 per cent.

Humming again after the crippling strikes of last winter, industry faced another slow-down to conserve fuel supplies and spread them over the period of the walkout.

CIO Goal

Like the AFL, the CIO watched the coal strike with interest, not only because of the injunction proceedings generally condemned by labor but also because Lewis' acquisition of new wage concessions promised to blaze the way for boosts all along the line.

States Push Aid for Vet Housing

Five states have made multi-million dollar appropriations for emergency housing this year, with New Jersey the most recent addition to the list, according to the National Association of Housing Officials.

New York, California, Connecticut and Ohio have supported housing this year through large legislative appropriations. New York earmarked 35 million dollars last spring

John L. formed the CIO 11 years ago, CIO Pres. Philip Murray sounded the battle cry for another round of wage increases by lamenting the rise in prices which offset previous boosts and assailing the uneven distribution of wealth.

Seeking to indicate the extent to which recent price rises have crossed out the 18 1/2 cent an hour wage raise won by the CIO earlier this year, Murray said that steel workers now are earning $13.04 less a week than they did last March. Pointing to the ability of industry to bear higher wages, Murray said that profits in the last quarter of 1946 would total 15 billion dollars compared with 10 billions for 1944.

JAPAN: On Mend

From General MacArthur's monthly report the U. S. could draw a picture of a vanquished nation struggling to its feet after surviving the effects of total defeat. Suffering from postwar abnormalities itself, the U. S. has none of Nippon's problems of rebuilding a shattered political structure, a war-battered industry and a crippled production plant.

MacArthur reported: —Passage of a bill providing for election, rather than appointment, of local officials.

—Increases in production of lumber, oil, paper and aluminum to offset slumps in iron, steel and coke and shutdowns in tin, nickel and antimony plants. Arrangements to boost exports to Russia, England and Australia to pay for needed imports.

—Expansion of trade union membership to 3,745,000, with 24 per cent being women.

—Prospects of improved rice, wheat, potato and barley yields to relieve a severe food shortage, necessitating substantial imports.

HOUSING: New Wrinkle

The public received its first good look at the Lustrom corporation's heralded porcelain enameled steel home in Hinsdale, Ill., outside Chicago, and the showing marked another step in the battle of the company with the Tucker automobile corporation for possession of the huge Dodge-Chicago plant.

The battle took a sensational turn with charges of Preston Tucker, the auto magnate, that a prominent Washington attorney had promised to use his influence in having the National Housing authority remand its order turning the Dodge-Chicago plant to Lustrom if given the Tucker corporation's legal business plus a stock interest. Named as the attorney, Theodore Granik vigorously denied the allegation.

In using its emergency powers to help speed vet housing, the NHA moved to award the huge Dodge-Chicago plant to Lustrom after War Assets administration had leased the facilities to Tucker. In eyeing the Dodge-Chicago plant, Lustrom declared that it could build 85 of the five-room, radiant heated houses a day six months after going into large-scale output, and 400 a day within 14 months. The houses sell for $7,000.

for statewide housing projects, and more recently authorized low-rent slum clearance projects.

A 41 million dollar veterans' housing program was initiated in New Jersey when the recent special session of the state legislature passed measures appropriating 6 million dollars for immediate housing operations and providing for a 35 million dollar bond issue.

CAPITOL HILL: Lobbyists Register

Lobbyists have long become a part of the nation's capital, but until passage of the registration act recently the public has enjoyed little knowledge of their identity or worth to the interests they represent.

Although lobbyists as a whole have attained a certain notoriety, they exercise the perfectly legitimate function of protecting the interests of their clients by seeking passage of favorable legislation or fighting bills considered inimicable. While recognizing this function, congress also realized the necessity for placing the business above board and apprising the public of the interests at work in Washington.

As the lobbyists registered under penalty of losing their lobbying rights or incurring fine and imprisonment if they failed, Purcell L. Smith, representing the power interests, emerged as the highest paid, drawing $85,000 a year plus unspecified expenses.

CHINA: Going Backwards

While Japan marched back up the road of recovery, neighboring China remained beset by the political differences and economic evils that have retarded her progress during this century.

As both Nationalist and Communist forces prepared for a bloody civil war for supremacy, Chinese currency took a terrific nosedive, with the U. S. dollar commanding as high as 5,000 Chinese dollars on the black market. Coal jumped from 350,000 to 450,000 dollars a ton. Housewives scrambled frantically for commodities.

Throughout the Communist stronghold of northern China and Manchuria, Red battalions threw up fortifications and girded for battle as Gen. Peng Teh-hwai predicted stirring victory over the Nationalist invading forces. These forces were reported pressing into Shantung province along the Tientsin-Pukow railway.

RUSSIA: Struggle for Power

From behind the iron curtain came whispers of a mighty tug-of-war between Russian officials for the driver's seat when Josef Stalin passes from the picture.

While Stalin first favored Andrei Zhdanov, 50, chairman of the Soviet parliament, for the mantle of succession, Georgi M. Malenkov, 45, has slowly come to the fore, recently being promoted to the all-powerful politburo shaping Russian policy.

Also in the struggle for power are Lavrenti P. Beria, head of the dread secret police, and Gen. Nikolai A. Bulganin, vice minister of armed forces. Despite his prominence in foreign affairs, V. M. Molotov lacks party support for the No. 1 spot.

Writing in the French paper, L'Ordre, Claude Vivier declared that Russian officials are anxious to avoid war during the unsettled state of party affairs to prevent rival nations' use of bickering to upset the Communist regime.

BUSINESS: Making Money

Payments of extra dividends indicated the general prosperity of American business.

$$$—Goodrich brought payments for 1946 to $4.50 per share by declaring a dividend of $1 and a special payment of the same amount.

$$$—By authorizing an extra dividend of $1.25 a share in addition to the quarterly payment of 25 cents, Briggs & Stratton boosted disbursements to $2.25 this year.

$$$—Elgin National Watch company declared an extra dividend of 50 cents a share besides making a quarterly payment of 25 cents.

$$$—Keystone Steel and Wire company increased its quarterly dividend from 30 to 50 cents and authorized a special payment of 25 cents.

$$$—In declaring a 40 cent dividend, Homestake Mining company brought payments up to $1.40 for this year after making no disbursements last year.

Meanwhile, the treasury department ordered all corporations to report on their 1946 tax forms if they paid out at least 70 per cent of their earnings in dividends and reasons if they did not. In this way, the government hopes to prevent withholding of dividends to scale down stockholders' income taxes.

FARM PRICES:

Prices for farm products in October, 1946, were 154 per cent above the average level in 1935-39, were 16 per cent higher than the previous peak reached in 1920, and were the highest ever recorded up to October.

Many observers of price trends predict a break in price levels in the latter part of 1947, with the break coming earlier if various groups ignore present danger signals and continue to push for higher prices and incomes.

GOP Sweep Frees Truman Of Burdensome Program

WASHINGTON.—There is a feel of Christmas in the Washington air which is prompted by more than the evanescence of the joyous spirit of Noel — just try to get onto a Connecticut avenue car headed for the F. street shopping district.

The White House presents its usual decor of pine and ribboned wreath. And, at this writing, the chief tenant is, I believe, dreaming of a Missouri Christmas among his friends.

Whether he spends the holiday beneath his own roof or the one which Uncle Sam so generously provides, it can be said that it will be a far merrier occasion than a year ago. He will be among his friends as well as his family, and as one of his official circle put it, with his "professed" enemies (the opposite party) in power his "unprofessed" enemies (officially his friends) having no further opportunity to toss brickbats or bandy threats about his head.

I recall another crisp, cool winter day last February a year ago, when we wended our way to the President's weekly press and radio conference. Bemused pansies (I recorded in this space) showed frost-bitten faces in the garden of the White House grounds.

We were discussing the difficulties and differences which President Truman already was encountering at the hands of his own party in congress.

"Congress has to be realistic in an election year," I quoted someone as saying. "They are facing real issues. And the President's program isn't realistic."

"Whether or not it is realistic," another member of the group replied, "it isn't his program. He inherited it. It's New Deal and New Deal is Old Hat now. It doesn't represent Harry Truman's ideas at all, but he has to go through with it."

As we look back, it is plain enough that whether it was New Deal or what it was, the program of the President was one that the people rejected on election day, the moral obligations of the past, the effect of the pressure groups, the ukase of the party of bigwigs were swept away and Harry Truman, who didn't want the job that was thrust upon him when death commanded, was made a free man.

The President's satisfaction springs not from any spirit of "I told you so" hurled at his alleged supporters, not from any lack of loyalty to a cause well lost. It was simply the weary but happy flood of relief of a man who, having attempted what he knew was an impossible task, saw that task ended, and friend and foe forced fairly into the open.

War Terminated—Honeymoon With Congress

My mind goes back to another scene shortly before the death of President Roosevelt. I sat in the office of the vice president talking of days when the caissons were rolling along and both of us — many miles apart — rode beside them. We talked also of the then forthcoming San Francisco conference of the United Nations and Mr. Truman's theme was what he felt to be his function. Paradoxically enough—as it turned out later—it was helping establish liaison between congress and the White House, complementing the highly successful effort of Secretary of State Hull which resulted in the forging of a bi-partisan foreign policy. And in so short a time, after Mr. Truman became President, that liaison between Capitol Hill and 1600 Pennsylvania avenue snapped in twain, never to be reunited.

Three months after the President took office I recorded: "The political armistice in Washington will end shortly after the President's (Truman's) return from Berlin—by that time domestic discontent will be crystallizing, the honeymoon will be on the wane."

And I then had the temerity to predict that if . . . "the Japanese war should end . . . within the year . . . President Truman will be stripped of the protecting armor of the Commander-in-Chief. Then the slings and arrows which even Roosevelt's enemies were wont to deflect to congress and other government agencies will be aimed squarely at the man in the White House."

That prophecy required no gift of the occult. Mr. Truman knew it then—or I wouldn't have. From now on the President is his own man. The legislation he offers, whatever its fate may be, will be moulded to suit his own heart's desire. He has fought the fight to the best of his ability, assailed from the right and the left and the rear as well as the front. Now he will write his own ticket, be it good or bad. Few Presidents have had such an opportunity or faced a more severe test.

Presidential Bee Hums in Capitol Dome

Washington withdraws from official activity for the holidays without getting any real impact of the advent of the new regime. There has been the preliminary hurly-burly of reorganization on Capitol Hill but the same old faces are evident and the same old voices speak. The active Republican leaders in both houses of congress have been so much in the limelight for the last year anyhow that they merely appear to be stepping up, rather than stepping in. It all seems quite routine and casual.

There was just a touch of the excitement of the beginning of a new era when house and senate steering committees had their first meetings and made their first official statements concerning legislation and policy. Most of the steps had been foreshadowed and the change of venue was not fanfare.

Senator Taft Politically Cautious

The last 14 years make up the longest period of lean years that any party has suffered. I witnessed the end of two 12-year droughts through which the Democrats thirsted; close of the one that began with William McKinley and ended with William Howard Taft, when Wilson accompanied the "new freedom" to the White House. And the next, another 12-year period, when the New Deal followed Hoover's exit.

The Democrats had only a short interlude at the pie-counter between Taft and Harding and their return in 1933 came in the midst of such a domestic crisis, with the mad days of the NRA following on the heels of the bank holiday, that our attention was diverted from politics. But what the Democrats did to the Republican officeholders "wasn't good," as one Republican put it recently. He added: "We are going to do the same for them."

Congress begins with the Republican Presidential plum within easier reach than any which have dangled in many a year and it is no wonder many hands are reaching hopefully for it. In fact, Senator Vandenberg early sounded the warning that more thoughts should be concentrated on the responsibilities following the victory of '48, for the good of all concerned.

The battle between the Taftites and the anti-Taftites began even before election and the Ohio senator himself is so determined that this time he will win the nomination that he leans over backward to avoid criticism. He refused to go on a broadcast for even a three-minute statement of Republican policy and he took off for Central America shortly thereafter.

Why is it that when a party is sure it's going to win a presidential election, it tries to pick a candidate with the least popular appeal?

RUSSIA STRIVES TO WRECK U. N. PEACE DISCUSSIONS

WASHINGTON.—The patient courage of Messrs. Byrnes, Vandenberg and Bevin is holding the United Nations peace discussion together in the face of persistent Russian pressure to reduce it to a babble. Those who know the ins and outs here recognize the personal courage of these three men is responsible for keeping the peace ideal aloft—a courage such as Byrnes displayed in resisting the Wallace boring within his own administration, the Vandenberg refusal to take up and make sound political capital out of the Democratic drifts toward the Communist-dominated American Labor party, and now the Bevin resistance to a pro-Communist appeasement drive led by an Oxford professor in his own British parliament. These men are sincerely fighting for a fair way of life, and they will not let go, or give in, even when it hurts. Such diplomatic courage is a rare thing.

The tribute is more appreciated by those on high as the new Russian line of friendliness without abandonment of antagonism has come into affect—a sort of attempt at social grace while scuttling the common theory of world justice.

TERRIBLE 'NONSENSE'

Without these three men the peace movement would fall to the unbelievable level of Russian world nonsense, to wit: Albania, controlled by a Communist dictator, actually proclaims the right of murder of innocent men. It refuses to let its internationally used waters be cleared of mines which already have sunk several British naval ships and killed British seamen. Any government of any hue, desiring the simplest human justice, would have demanded those straits be swept after the first accident to save lives, but not Albania, which stands somewhat as Yugoslavia did in the shooting down of American airmen.

And Yugoslavia has sent to jail a religious man, a Roman Catholic bishop, who fought against the Nazis and in the defense of Jews, simply because he refused to accept a repugnant Communism. Tito proudly proclaims the Catholic fear Communism, just exactly as the Nazis tried to make all Jews fear them by concentration camps.

But perhaps the most serious current Russian attempt to make the world accept nonsense as a policy is on the question of American bases.

Now Russia got all her bases out of the Jap victory completely as her own. She took the Kuriles and Sakhalin islands north of Japan as Russian territory, as well as a part of Korea. She gave nothing to the world organization to be put under trusteeship. Yet when President Truman comes forward now with a proposal to let the United Nations have an international trusteeship over those vital air bases, the islands southeast of Japan (which we conquered with American blood alone), if only the trusteeship will let us manage them and not veto us—Russia arises in opposition. She wants the right of veto over our own bases!

OUR FIRST DEFENSES

The generous Truman offer is supposed to have been worked out by the state, war and navy policy committees. It was so generous some authorities erroneously thought it was a campaign gesture to the leftists and their Communists because it was made just before election. The Marshall, Marianas and Caroline islands were won by Americans alone just as surely as Russia won her territory on the eastern front of Europe (but not Japanese territory because she did not enter that fight until it was won).

Even Britain has offered to put under trusteeship three remote African regions, the Cameroons, Tanganyika and Togoland, but she did not offer Gibraltar. The Pacific islands are our Gibraltar as far as future peace and protection against Communist revolution are concerned in the Pacific. With an international trusteeship, Russia will learn all we are doing there. The Truman proposition was simply that we decide ourselves, without Russian veto, what to do there in the future air world, while letting the world keep in touch with what we do through its trusteeship.

The Russian position is even worse nonsense than these facts imply. Actually if she defeats the Truman proposal, we will keep the islands and can veto any U. N. action about our actions. We can keep them and run them without Russian veto. The only thing she can accomplish by her position is to sabotage the trusteeship system in U. N.

The question thus cannot be avoided as to whether Russia also is trying to sabotage world common sense, the common world belief in justice, as well as the trusteeship system in its infancy.

How to Stop Worrying

I guess folks in our town do about as much worrying as in yours—over housing and prices, and crops, and jobs—and the little domestic problems that are always coming up.

Dad Hoskins, who's lived to the happy age of eighty, has a simple formula for stopping worry. About every problem, he asks himself: Is there anything I can do about it? If there is, he never postpones making a decision, or taking necessary action.

If there isn't anything he can do about it, he sets aside a "worrying hour" after dinner, and gets his worrying over in one concentrated period. When that's over, he relaxes over a friendly glass of beer with Ma Hoskins—and they talk about pleasant things together, until bedtime.

From where I sit, that's as workable a formula as you could find... right down to the mellow glass of beer that seems to wink away your worries.

Murder in Plain Sight

by GERALD BROWN
W.N.U. FEATURES

Duke McCale, private detective, is investigating the murder of Curt Vallaincourt, who was about to marry Veronica Bigelow, heiress to thirty million dollars. McCale extracts some damaging admissions from Shari Lynn, singer and former wife of Vallaincourt. Later, Victoria, Veronica's sister, calls at his office and asks his help in recovering some letters from Vallaincourt's apartment. McCale tells her that the letters are not in the apartment, but hints that Shari Lynn may have them. Because of circumstantial evidence, the police believe that Veronica is the murderer. McCale does not think so, but has not yet formed a conclusion. There are many contradictory clues.

CHAPTER XI

The telephone was ringing insistently. McCale rolled over, opened one eye, swore, and finally grabbed the extra pillow, bundling it under his head. He fumbled with the light, snapped it on, lifted the telephone off its cradle.

"McCale speaking," he growled.

"Rocky, boss?"

"Where are you?"

"Corner of Aspinwall, opposite the Vallaincourt den. Didn't you tell me to keep a lookout?"

"Oh, yeah. All quiet?"

"All quiet now. Listen, boss, 'long about five this morning—"

"All right. What happened at five o'clock?"

Sleep still hugged him tightly and there was an unreasonable barb in his voice.

"Okay, okay. Around five, a girl showed up with a key to the Vallaincourt ron-day-vo."

"Who was it?"

"Hold on to your hat, now. It was Victoria Bigelow."

"Victoria Bigelow?" Surprise jerked him wide awake.

"Uh uh. She was after some letters of hers, she said."

"Well, well." Victoria had certainly had a busy night, he thought. "The place was clean, like you said. No secret panels, either. I—that is—I finally helped her hunt for them."

"Go home and grab yourself some grub and shuteye," said McCale. "Get here about one o'clock. I'm going to be busy this morning."

At eight forty-five he called Ann Marriot on the telephone.

To her cool "hello," he said, "Good morning. This is your boss."

"Oh, good morning, dar—boss. Anything important? I'm on my way in about five minutes."

"No hurry. In fact, this is just to say you might shop for an hour if you want to and then do an errand for me. I want you to drop in on Shari Lynn, Suite 802."

"... And pray what shall I use as an excuse for dropping in, as you say? Don't tell me you're sending me along to smooth the way for you—a more subtle approach, so to speak?"

"No—and that's comedy enough for now, my girl." He grew serious. "I saw her myself late last night, for that matter."

"You rat!"

"I'd like a line on how she is this morning. You know—sad, gay, expectant? Ask her for her autograph. Anything to get in. Talk about Vallaincourt if you can without being thrown out."

"That all?"

"Yes. Just a check-up to satisfy a point that's been nagging me. She's fairly transparent. It ought to be easy."

"Oh, yes, indeed. It sounds too, too easy. All right. I'll do my best. See you when?"

"About noon. Here. 'Bye, sweet.'"

He dressed leisurely and carefully. He felt like a twentieth century warrior going forth to civilized battle. He knew that to solve this problem, he had first to break down the buttresses of tradition that surrounded the Bigelows. He knew he was up against something that even the overestimated awe, or if you will, majesty, of the law could not up-end. He had to break down that smug superiority which was so secure in the belief in its own intelligence that it made its own rules as it went along. He rather pitied them momentarily, and smiled wryly at the pure cynicism of his own thoughts.

Sybil Becomes Implicated

On impulse he dialed police headquarters and asked for Donlevy. After a slight delay, the curt, incisive voice of the lieutenant came through.

"Donlevy here."

"McCale, lieutenant."

"Oh—sure. Not out yet hunting the foul criminal?"

"On the way. I'd like to know what the Bigelow women were wearing when they came in yesterday—outside of the green thingamajig Veronica reported."

"Of course. Didn't I mention that?"

"No."

"Well, here it is. Victoria, an oiled-silk affair, yellow; Karen, a black velvet suit, black cape; Sybil, a light brown raincoat. That help?"

"Uh uh. It was Sybil, then, who walked away into the fog."

"You think so? She claims to have been in the drugstore."

"Not for my money."

"I kind of think not. That family! It's almost impossible to get them to admit anything. They're all protecting one another. What?

"I've had a devil of a time and got nothing so far."

"You'll get less, very likely, now they've had a chance to compare notes."

There was a pause. Then Donlevy said, almost cheerfully, "I guess Veronica's our girl."

"You really think so?"

"The Lynn woman's evidence will put the finish on it."

"Oh," McCale pondered over that for a moment, then decided to add, "I'd keep a sharp watch on the Lynn woman."

"Why?" Donlevy's interest was immediate.

"I would. That's all."

"Now, Duke, you must have a reason. Why be mysterious?"

"I'll drop in to see you later in the day. Okay?"

"By all means."

McCale dropped the receiver onto its cradle. An emotion of concern crowded his mind and he sighed a sigh of sheer desperation. His brain seemed dulled, inactive, depressed. There was something there, something that would make it clear. It was evading him. Until he could grasp it, he must blunder along, without help, without even the confidence of the ones he was trying to help. Damn the medieval reserve of such people, anyway.

The police commissioner had come and asked a few pertinent questions, stayed barely an hour, and departed. At eight o'clock the district attorney had attempted to bully the police in charge as well as the suspects. He had left at eleven in a huff.

The body had been removed to the morgue and laboratory for fuller examination. Lieutenant Donlevy and his squad had finished with the preliminaries. The hungry press had been thrown a bone to nibble on. Men had been sent to Vallaincourt's apartment to look over papers and belongings for a possible clue. The orderly hubbub of official procedure was over, for a time at least. The night had been quiet—the quiet of nervous exhaustion perhaps, but quiet.

Then, at nine this morning, a plainclothes man had interrupted breakfast with an urgent request for Veronica. He was politely insistent that she must come at once to the office of Lieutenant Donlevy for further questioning. She was not to be alarmed. It was a matter of routine. But—

Miss Adelaide Agrees To McCale's Plan

The library was dim and still and only the sound of a piano being played in the drawing room upstairs came through the oppressive quiet as Adelaide Bigelow finished her recital of events, and looked at McCale sadly. McCale did not speak for a minute. The weight of his senses closed down on him like a stone. He wondered idly whether it was the gloom or the helplessness in the old lady's voice that caused this feeling of futility. He wondered why Karen Bigelow was playing the Liszt Preludes so passionately—those romantic things so richly interlaced with religious mysticism. A strange woman, Karen, but merely more obviously strange than the others. Only the woman before him, resigned, determined, with great courage, seemed to belong in that house. Her voice brought him awake again with a start.

"What are we going to do?" she asked.

"I think," he answered, "that I may be able to see a little further, get a little more than the police were able to. That is, if I can gain their confidence. If you will ask them to come in"—he rose as she got up, smiled and added—"one by one, if you please. It might be easier that way."

"To trap them, I suppose," she murmured, surprisingly.

"Why, of course." He bowed, the smile leaving his lips.

He felt the subtle antagonism leap between them. Then she came over to him, impulsively putting a thin patrician hand on his sleeve.

"Forgive me," she whispered.

Stephen Tells of His Chicago Trip

"No." His hands shook a little as he fumbled for a cigarette and lighted it. "Just a couple of fellows I had known in the navy. At one time, you see, things were not very well, pleasant at home. I ran away and joined up. I made a few friends while I was in the service. I corresponded with them from time to time after I got out. We are not a particularly happy group, McCale, in a family, so to speak. So when things got boring again, and—er—a little squawky, I decided to hop out to Chicago and visit a chap who had since married and done quite well for himself."

"Sort of run away again, is that it?" McCale's grin was sardonic. He thought—as you've run out on everything unpleasant since you were a kid, I can bet.

"Well, I suppose you could call it that."

"You took Victoria with you?"

"No, she came to fetch me back, as it were. All is forgiven, you know. That sort of thing. Victoria had met Curt in some of her wanderings. I had met Karen by then and didn't want to leave until there was an understanding of some sort between us. We stayed almost a year, until I married her. Vicky corresponded with Vallaincourt for a while after she came home. It was she who finally got him here. Ran into him by accident in New York or something, and she brought him along for a visit. He just stayed, that's all."

He settled back in the chair, a little less jangled, as if a job had been done and rather well done.

McCale settled back in his chair and looked at Stephen Bigelow with unconcealed disgust. Then he decided to try a shot in the dark and see what it would hit.

"Of course you know that Curt Vallaincourt was married at some time in his lively career."

"Oh, yes. He was," Stephen admitted, completely off guard.

"To Shari Lynn?"

"Sarah Linsky to you," Bigelow blurted, then bit his lip, realizing the trap.

"You knew her, too?"

The hungry press had been thrown a bone to nibble on. Men had been sent to Vallaincourt's apartment to look over papers and belongings for a possible clue. The orderly hubbub of official procedure was over, for a time at least. The night had been quiet—the quiet of nervous exhaustion perhaps, but quiet.

"It's only that I am so upset. I know how things must be from now on. I see a whole way of life disappearing before my eyes, an empire slipping away. I know—"

"That below the surface, things have not been what they seemed for a long, long time," he interjected, keeping the pity carefully from his tone of voice, for he knew that this she would not have.

"Yes—yes. You won't need me again?" She spoke as if that would be abhorrent to her.

"No. It is better that I do my—dirty work alone." He smiled once more, as he watched her leave the room.

He stood by the fireplace, staring moodily into the ashes of last night's fire, until he heard the door open and close behind him. When he turned, he saw Stephen Bigelow standing irresolute and nervous in the gray morning light.

It was clear, as he sat down in the chair opposite McCale, that he was completely shaken. Although it was no doubt partly hangover, McCale intuitively sensed that not a little of it was due to the fact that he was on his own. A complex lad, this one, he thought, riddled by complexes. He had seen enough of Stephen to know that in spite of his high-nosed arrogance, he was lost without the support of his wife and silly mother. He pondered as to which one of them had been clever enough to send him in first, so that either or both could expertly deny any break he might make.

In a business like way, McCale said, "I am willing to take the police report of your actions yesterday afternoon verbatim. However, I'm more interested in something that may not seem relevant to the murder. If you will only have confidence in me, I can assure you it will probably go no further. I ask it entirely in the hope of helping your foster sister, Veronica, out of a ticklish situation. I know, of course, that you are eager to be of any assistance possible to her."

"Oh, quite." The answer came readily enough. McCale studiously ignored the contemptuous curve of the lips that accompanied the remark.

"Very well, then. I'd like to know if you had known Curt Vallaincourt before he became engaged to Veronica. What you know of him. What you thought of him, to be exact. How, for instance, did it happen that he came so suddenly to this city to be taken up immediately by your family? I'd welcome anything you can tell me."

He saw relief come over Stephen's face, relief that the question was not the one he had feared. Stephen smiled—a thin-lipped, uneasy smile.

"I met him in Chicago," he said calmly, "about six years ago. Victoria was running around with him. I had gone there for a couple of months, just to renew a few old acquaintances."

"Anyone in particular?"

Stephen Tells of His Chicago Trip

"No." His hands shook a little as he fumbled for a cigarette and lighted it. "Just a couple of fellows I had known in the navy. At one time, you see, things were not very well, pleasant at home. PAUL ADMONISHES THE CHURCHES

LESSON TEXT—I Corinthians 11:20-27; Romans 13:13, 14; Ephesians 5:18-21.
MEMORY SELECTION—Let us walk modestly, as in the day.—Romans 13:13.

Temperance is readily taught from the epistles of Paul for he was constantly moved by the Holy Spirit to exhort the churches and individual Christians to a careful and worthy walk before God.

In doing so he was not afraid to speak plainly about the use of intoxicants. Perhaps his brethren in the ministry today should consider him and take courage.

Our lesson is a temperance lesson, and since some twist that word "temperance" to fit almost any kind of indulgence, we should like to quote a careful evaluation of it by Dr. W. R. White:

"Temperance is a seriously misunderstood word. The best definition we know defines it as abstaining from that which is harmful, and using moderately that which is legitimate. We would not advise a man to be moderate in teasing a rattlesnake. We would not tell him that it is all right to steal, lie or commit adultery just so he is temperate about it. We would not tell a man to use dope moderately. . . . We could tell a man to be moderate about eating meat or any other wholesome thing."

The only way to be temperate about liquor is to let it alone!

I. The Wrong Way and the Right Way—in the Church (I Cor. 11:20-27).

There were a number of disorderly things about the Corinthian church which needed correction. One of these concerned the Lord's Supper. A time which should have given them a blessed unity in fellowship and love had become just the opposite.

It was their custom to eat a so-called love feast before the sacrament, and instead of making it a time of loving and sharing, the rich ate their sumptuous meals and let a poor brother gnaw on a crust of bread.

Then feasting led, as it so often does, to excesses. Some became drunken on the wine and even partook of the Lord's Supper while intoxicated.

We are not so much concerned with the Lord's Supper in this lesson as we are with the behavior of those who attended. Think of coming to the holy table drunk! It seems impossible, and yet it happened.

Do we not still let the poor in our midst shift pretty well for themselves? The rich flaunt their affluence and let the poor get along on their crust of bread. The church needs to renew its scriptural appreciation of what fellowship and communion really means.

II. The Wrong Way and the Right Way—in the Community (Rom. 13:13, 14).

This chapter of the epistle to the Romans concerns the right behavior of the believer in his civic relationships. He is a citizen of heaven, but he is also a citizen of the community in which he lives.

The use of intoxicants which a generation ago was a shameful thing is now generally accepted. The home in which liquor was served was a disgrace; now "cocktail" is one of the first words children learn.

What is the explanation? Is liquor any less destructive and demoralizing? Certainly not! Is it then true that people are more candid and open about what they do? No, it is rather that moral standards have slipped to the point where they are no longer ashamed when they should be, if they thought straight!

Along with the liquor go all the things enumerated in verse 13. Oh, the awful depth of sex degradation, of plain ordinary indecency and dishonesty, of strife and envy. It is not a nice picture, but it is true.

The right way is found in verse 14. It was reading these two verses in his mother's open Bible that led Augustine to Christ. He saw and took the right way. Will others do likewise?

III. The Wrong Way and the Right Way—in the Heart (Eph. 5:18-21).

This is a personal matter. The man or woman who finds satisfaction in wine wants the overcoming power of the narcotic influence to take away the sense of responsibility for life. It is a weak and hopeless way to avoid facing reality.

The right way is to let the Holy Spirit take full control of the heart and life. This is to be an experience of complete surrender, being "filled with the Spirit."

Does life then become drab and uninteresting? No, indeed! For the first time you will be really joyful. That inevitably leads to thankfulness, a grace too little known and practiced. It is for all things at all times. Do not overlook that fact. Then too there will be a delightful attitude of consideration and respect for one another (v. 21) and of devotion to God.

PAUL ADMONISHES THE CHURCHES

LESSON TEXT—I Corinthians 11:20-27; Romans 13:13, 14; Ephesians 5:18-21.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Here's an Easy-to-Serve Dinner (See recipes below)

Simple Dinners

While talking to a young bride recently, she expressed a desire to learn how to entertain nicely, but simply, because, as she expressed it, "I don't know much about cooking, but I do so want things to taste and look wonderful."

Well, that's a problem all of us might give some thought to, every now and then. It's a good idea to have some menus all filed away that we can rely on as being successful both from the standpoint of being good to eat and looking attractive.

In case you're in a sort of a rut about entertaining because of the past several year's food difficulties, take yourself in hand and look over our suggestions today. I'm all for simplicity in entertaining, especially if cooking and serving doesn't come to one as easily as it seems to others. In that case, plan a simple menu, but carry it out well, and you'll really get bouquets to go with it.

Before company comes, and even before you start getting the dinner itself, have the house, linens, tableware and cooking equipment in order. Once this big worry is out of mind, then you can concentrate on the cooking itself. Do everything you possibly can ahead of time, so too much won't be left for the last minute.

Make out a schedule of when things should go in the oven or when they should be put on the range. Be sure this is worked out in advance so you won't be worried that things will not all be ready at the same time.

I'm going to give simple but festive recipes today because they will be easy for the novice to prepare, but just wait until you see how they look on the table. UMMMMMMM!

Start off with a minted fruit juice, as this is refreshing and will not take cooking.

Chill citrus fruit juice before serving—pineapple and orange juice is a good combination—and pour into dainty glasses. Add a few crushed mint leaves to each glass. Serve.

Everyone is bound to like lamb chops and here's a grand way to prepare those chops so they look like a roast:

- LYNN CHAMBER'S MENU
- Pot Roast of Beef with Spiced Prunes
  - Browned Potatoes
  - Glazed Carrots
  - Green Bean-Celery Salad
  - Muffins
  - Coconut Custard Pie Beverage

Mock Crown Roast of Lamb. (Serves 6)
6 frenched lamb chops
Melted butter or substitute
Salt and pepper

Have the butcher french the lamb chops. Place them under moderate broiler heat and broil 8 to 10 minutes on each side until they are well browned. Baste with melted butter as they brown. Sprinkle with salt and pepper just before removing from the broiler.

Just before serving, pile a mound of fluffy mashed potatoes in the center of a platter. Stand the lamb chops around the mound of potatoes, as illustrated, patting them well into the potatoes so they don't fall down. Arrange cooked sliced carrots around the platter for the vegetables. Place paper frills, if desired, around the lamb chops before serving.

Orange Flower Cake.
1 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
3/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1/2 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, unbeaten
1/2 cup orange juice

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Add orange rind to shortening and cream together thoroughly. Add sugar to shortening and cream until fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with orange juice, in small amounts, beating thoroughly after each addition. Pour into greased cake pans and bake in a moderate (350 degree) oven for 30 minutes. This recipe will make two 8-inch layers.

This cake may be frosted with a fluffy boiled icing and sprinkled with orange rind or garnished with orange segments. Whipped cream, if available, may also be used. Or, if you prefer, an orange-flavored butter cream icing may be used with orange segments arranged on top.

Orange Frosting.
1 scant cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
Pinch of cream of tartar
1 egg white
3 tablespoons orange and lemon juice, mixed

Beat all ingredients together in top of double boiler until it stands in peaks. Use on top and in between layers of cake.

LYNN SAYS:
Suggestions for Hors D'Oeuvres:
When you're entertaining, make up a plate of simple appetizers to serve with chilled fruit or vegetable juice, and let your company get into a chatty, informal mood for dinner.

Anchovy-Bacon Rolls: Lay flat strips of anchovy along a slice of bacon. Roll tightly, jelly-roll fashion, and fasten with toothpick. Broil until bacon is crisp. Remove the toothpick and insert a fresh one, and serve hot.

Lettuce Rolls: Use fresh, crisp lettuce leaves which have been washed and dried carefully. Spread with any softened cheese, well-seasoned and roll for serving.

Apple Wedges: Cut firm, red apple wedges into 1/2-inch-thick slices, but do not pare. Cut each slice into three wedges and dip in pineapple or orange juice. Spread with softened cream or Roquefort cheese and garnish with cheese forced through a tube. Serve with toothpicks.
