P.-T.A. To Sponsor Cub Scout Program

GROUND WORK LAID MONDAY NIGHT FOR A CUB SCOUT PROGRAM IN EAST JORDAN

The Parent-Teachers Association of East Jordan held its regular meeting at the band room of the East Jordan high school, Monday evening, March 24, with a fair attendance, a good portion of which arrived rather late, resulting in the meeting ending at 11:30 p. m.

President Mrs. Wm. Shepard called the meeting to order and turned it over to Mrs. Marvin Benson who acted as chairman of a panel discussion. Those participating were: Mrs. E. K. Reuling representing the home; Mrs. L. B. Karr representing the school; Alex Sinclair representing the service club; and Rev. Howard Moore representing the church.

Mrs. Reuling's talk was divided into three parts: the spiritual, the physical, and the mental. She pointed out that a child that trusts in God, is well fed, and has a happy home life, is reasonably sure to make a success of his life at school.

Mrs. Karr showed how a broken home, or dissention in the home, is immediately reflected in the child's mental attitude at school, and how a good teacher can, by analyzing her pupils, place her finger on the children with disrupted home life, very accurately.

Alex Sinclair told how the East Jordan Rotary Club has sponsored the Boy Scouts; Hallowe'en parties; and 4-H Club activities, which provides entertainment and promotes sportsmanship-like attitudes in the child.

Rev. Howard Moore brought out the question, "Who and what is the church?" He pointed out that the church has the child only one hour out of 168, therefore the church can go just as far with the child as the parents are willing to go. This placed the child right back in the parents hands, inasmuch as "The parent is the church." He also spoke on the urgent need of competent parent-teachers in the Sunday Schools.

Mrs. H. Watson, treasurer, gave a short report, stating that the P.-T. A. consisted of 221 members, who joined voluntarily, and that they now have $72.50 on hand in the treasury.

A committee was appointed to decide how to spend the money to the best advantage.

Richard Malpass spoke of the effects of liquor and late hours on children, pointing out that children are apt to do things a bit thoughtless and flighty in the wee small hours of the morning.

A lively discussion followed, during which Mrs. H. Watson pointed out that East Jordan has all the makings of a good child (school, churches, etc.) and it was up to the parents the successful influence these assets can have on the child.

Roy Willard, Boy Scout Field Director, spoke about the formation of a Cub Scout Pack in East Jordan. He told how Cubbing is for boys of the 9-10-11 year age group, how parents are very closely connected with this movement, and therefore would like to have the P.-T. A. sponsor a Cub Scout Pack in East Jordan.

A lively discussion followed Mr. Willard's talk, for the most part by non-parents of boys of the 9-10-11 year age group, after which the meeting was adjourned to the Home Economics room where refreshments were served.

The meeting was again called back to order by Mrs. Shepard.

It was then moved by Mrs. Priscilla Lisk, that the P.-T. A. sponsor a cub scout plan. This was then brought to a vote and carried unanimously.

Parents present of boys of the 9-10-11 year age group the adjourned to a side room with Mr. Willard who planned a meeting for Friday, April 11, at 7:15 p. m. to acquaint parents of boys of this age group, with Cub Scouting.

Large Crowd Attends M. S. C. Caravan

A crowd of nearly eleven hundred people from all parts of Antrim County attended the Michigan State College Rural Progress Caravan held at the County Road Garage at Central Lake on Friday, March 21.

This year's Caravan differed considerably from last years. Many more panel exhibits were shown and Specialists from Michigan State Colleges were on hand with individuals concerning their problems. Of particular interest was the kitchen exhibit. Many modern labor saving features were shown and interesting talks on the fundamentals of a well organized kitchen were given. Throughout the day a number of people were personally assisted in drawing plans for their kitchen of the future.

Even a ship can't stand a permanent wave — so what chance has a poor male.

Junior Red Cross Leaders To Meet in Boyne City Friday, March 28

American Junior Red Cross leaders from ten counties have been invited to a Junior Red Cross meeting scheduled to convene morning and afternoon at the Hotel Dilworth, Boyne City, Friday, March 28.

Miss Zelma Burks, JRC field representative from the Northwestern Area, will lead a round table discussion on basic organization and further expansion of the Junior Red Cross program.

Particularly instructive will be detailed information on international and domestic correspondence, carried in the JRC program among school in the United States and abroad.

Luncheon will be served at the Hotel Dilworth at 12 o'clock noon and entertainment is being prepared by Mr. Wilfred Viljo, music instructor of the local school.

Sessions open at 10 a. m. and continue until 4 p. m. Weather permitting, counties represented Friday at the meeting will be Otsego, Benzie, Antrim, Crawford, Roscommon, Charlevoix, Missaukee, Emmet, Kalkaska and Grand Traverse.

TO THE VOTERS OF JORDAN TWP., ANTRIM COUNTY

I will be a candidate (on slips) for office of clerk of said township at the regular spring election April 7th, 1947, and will appreciate your support.

Much Interest In City Election

PRIMARIES HELD IN SECOND AND THIRD WARDS FOR ALDERMAN

Much interest is being shown in the coming City Election. In the first ward, only two candidates have filed for alderman and their names will appear in the ballots — Roy Nowland and Charles H. Strehl.

PRIMARY MARCH 24
The second ward primary, held last Monday gave results as follows:— For Alderman — Archie H. Griffin 70, Cort Hayes 36, Harold Moore 29.

Third Ward — For Alderman, Earl Clark 100, Charles Dennis, Jr., 46, Orval Davis 44.

CITY AT LARGE
For Mayor — Verne J. Whiteford, Henry J. Drenth.

FIRST WARD
Supervisor — William F. Bashaw
Constable — Harrison Ranney

SECOND WARD
Supervisor — Robert Barnett
Constable — Leo LaLonde

THIRD WARD
Supervisor — Barney Milstein
Constable — Ed. Kamradt

PROPOSITIONS
In each of the three wards in addition to above two ballots, the following two propositions will be handed the electors:—

Special Tax Assessment
Shall a special assessment district be created in the City of East Jordan whose boundaries shall be the present boundary lines of the City and that on all real property situated in said special assessment district a special assessment of ten mills for each of the next five years commencing with the 1947 assessment be made, the proceeds of which shall be placed in a separate fund and used solely for the repair and improvement of such streets within the City of East Jordan as the Mayor and Common Council shall direct; the special assessment to be paid annually at the same time as the regular City taxes are paid and to be a lien against the property if not paid in the same manner as the general real estate tax?

[] Yes.
[] No.

Sale of Water Front Land
Shall the Mayor and common Council of the City of East Jordan, be authorized to sell property it now owns on the water front on the West side of the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix and now leased to Carl Shedlin plus an additional 100 feet of frontage west of said leased property to such person or persons and on such terms as it by a majority vote shall deem suitable and proper.

[] Yes.
[] No.

Birthday Dinner
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Looze of East Jordan entertained 34 relatives with a birthday dinner at their home, Sunday, March 23rd, honoring their mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. William Looze of Boyne City, whose birthdays were March 19th.

The following were present:— Mr. and Mrs. Fred Looze and daughter Beverly of Charlevoix; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Chambers and five children of Cadillac; Mr. and Mrs. Perry Looze and two children of East Jordan; Mr. and Mrs. John Looze and two children of Boyne City; Mrs. Joe Kline and three children of Petoskey; and Mr. and Mrs. James Austin and two children of Traverse City.

Amateur Show In Charlevoix
Audition for the Amateur Show being sponsored at Charlevoix by the Kiwanis Club will be held April 5.

The show itself will be the night of April 10 and like the auditions will be at the Charlevoix high school gymnasium.

An entry blank for amateur performers appears on the inside of this paper. Anyone wishing to compete for the $100 in cash prizes being offered should fill it out and send it to Dean Davenport.

All applicants will be sent personal notice of the auditions which will start at 7:30 p. m. Two sets of judges are being lined up by the club committee. One group will hear the auditions and select those acts which are good enough to compete at the April 10 show. Another group will be at the show and select the cash winners.

Any kind of amateur act can compete. The tentative plan is to divide the performers into age groups and have similar ages compete against each other. Final decisions on this will be made later.

MARRIAGES

Saganek — Miller

Miss Katherine Saganek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Saganek of East Jordan became the bride of Harold Miller son of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Blanchard of Charlevoix, Thursday evening, March 20 at 8:00 P. M. at Wyandotte, Mich.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Jackson. The bride was attended by Mrs. Agnes Saganek and the groom by Mr. Charles Saganek of Wyandotte.

They returned home Friday and are staying at one of Ed Bowermen's cabins.

Christ Lutheran Church

The Aid Society of Christ Lutheran Church, Wilson Township met last Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. August Knop for the purpose of packing boxes of clothing and shoes for the destitute families of Europe. A total of twelve 11 lb. packages was prepared for shipment.

Attended Circuit Meeting — Saint John's Church of Cheboygan was host last Sunday evening to a meeting of the clergy and lay-representatives of the Alpena Circuit. Representing Christ Church of Wilson Township was John Schroeder. Christ Church of Boyne City was represented by James Porter and William Crozier. Albert Bathke attended in the name of Zion Church of Petoskey. Pastor Norman Kuck accompanied them. There was a discussion of the approaching Centennial Celebration which will be observed throughout the Missouri Synod Lutheran Church on April 27. A feature of the observance will be a 3 1/2 million Centennial Thank-Offering in which the above congregations will take part in appreciation of God's grace for a century of the pure Word and Sacraments in America.

Illegal Firearms

The country is flooded with hand guns, including pistols and revolvers, both American and foreign make. These guns are being sold and exchanged in violation of the Michigan State law.

The state law forbids the sale of any hand gun, without a license to purchase. All hand guns must be registered. Failure to conform with the laws regulating the registration and sale of hand guns will be met with prosecution, and the guns themselves are liable to confiscation.

Harlem Globe Trotters Here

MARCH 28 CANNERS FACE WORLD FAMOUS COLORED STARS

The Local "Canners" will play the famed "Globe Trotters" Friday evening at 8:30 p. m.

The "Trotters" present one of the greatest colored basketball teams in the United States.

At full strength again the Globe Trotters boast a record of winning 90 percent of their games over the past 17 seasons.

This will be the last time out for the "Canners" after a very successful season.

The local boys dropped only three games all year and finished second in the Tournament here.

A preliminary game is scheduled between the Boyne City and East Jordan Eighth Graders starting at 7:00.

A real final for another season — High School Gym Friday 8:30.

Patient: "Why stick me in the ward with that crazy guy?"
Doctor: "Hospital's crowded is he giving you trouble?"

Patient: "He's nuts! Keeps looking around saying 'No lions, no tigers, no elephants' — and the room's full of them."

Bachelors are fellows that look before they jumped.

Farm Topics

PIGS NEED DIRT

Little-pig anemia is common when the pigs are confined on cement or wooden floors more than 2 weeks and are receiving only their mother's milk.

The external symptoms are paleness of the skin, lack of vigor, roughness of the hair coat, and later a loss of flesh. Many of the pigs with the ailment die, and recovery for survivors is slow, requiring 2 or 3 months.

It is not sufficient to feed the sow minerals to prevent the anemia in young pigs. Nature furnishes iron and copper in the soil eaten by the pigs—so it is a good idea to supply them with the needed soil. Put sod in the farrowing pens every few days as long as the pigs are kept inside, that's very effective as a preventative.

You can get the minerals directly to the pigs by swabbing or spraying the sow's udder daily with a solution of 1/2 pound of copperas (ferrous sulphate) in one quart of water.

FIND WAY TO CLEAN 2,4-D FROM SPRAYER:

Sprayers that have been used for the new weed-killer 2,4-D can be cleaned so that spray equipment will be ready for other uses. B. H. Grigsby, specialist in botany at MSC, describes a method using household ammonia for cleaning spray equipment.

Mix one part of ammonia to 100 parts of hot water (1/2 cup ammonia to 3 gallons of water.) Fill the metal equipment completely full of the solution and soak for 18 to 24 hours. For a larger tank using cold water, let the equipment soak for 48 to 72 hours. All parts should be rinsed thoroughly after soaking. The sprayer is then ready for other uses.

GUARD YOUNG CHICKS AGAINST DISEASE:

The danger of disease in chicks is always prevalent, and J. M. Moore, extension poultryman at MSC, says the alert farmer is always on the watch for signs of disease.

Coccidiosis usually affects chicks from 4 to 12 weeks of age, but may come before that time. One of the new sulfa drugs — sulfaguanidine is being used in its control.

You can help to prevent coccidiosis by putting all waterers on wire stands and by not allowing any pools of stagnant water on the pullet range.

A. J. Hite Was TB Victim

AFFILIATED WITH EAST JORDAN'S BUSINESS INTERESTS FOR MANY YEARS

Amos Jay Hite passed away at the Gaylord Sanitorium, Sunday evening March 23, where he had been taking treatment for several months for an advanced form of tuberculosis.

Mr. Hite was born at Armada, Mich., June 5, 1880, and spent a part of his youth at Lapeer. He came with his parents, to East Jordan, graduating from East Jordan High School in the class of 1896. Later he took a course at the Marlette School of Pharmacy. In his youthful days he was considered an expert on the flute playing at almost every social occasion in East Jordan and vicinity.

During the years 1906-1908 he traveled under a lecture bureau with Moro, the magician, all over the U. S. from coast to coast, settling in East Jordan in 1910 in the drug business. He has been a member of East Jordan Lodge, No. 379, F. & A. M. for many years. A man of agreeable nature, he made many friends in our city, who are indeed sorry for his seemingly untimely demise.

On April 13th, 1909 he was united in marriage to Miss Winfred Gagnon at Northport, Mich., who survives, together with two daughters Mrs. Virginia Egan of Detroit, and Miss Marjorie of East Jordan. A son, J. M. of East Jordan a sister, Miss Mina, a brother E. B., East Jordan, and one grandson.

Funeral services were held at 2:00 p. m., Wednesday, at the Watson Funeral Home, conducted by Rev. Howard G. Moore, pastor of the Methodist Church.

Interment at Sunset Hill under Masonic auspices.

Load Restrictions in Force

The Charlevoix County Road Commission hereby notifies all vehicle operators that the Spring load restrictions were made effective as of midnight, Monday, March 24th, 1947 on all State trucklines in this part of the Michigan State.

The load restrictions enforced by the Michigan State Highway Department are also applicable to the County and Township roads in Charlevoix County.

LENTEN MESSAGES

Christ to the Rescue
"I am the Way."—John 14:6.
Can you show me the Way to the 'Land of Content,'
Where the struggle with self is done?
Where the disappointments and vain regrets
Are gone with the evening sun?
Where pride and anger play no part,
Where only Truth can live?
Where wrongs are forgotten and blotted out,
And the best in us can live?"

Life had opened many doors for a brilliant and talented woman. First came a splendid educational advantage; next a brief but brilliant career on the stage; then, a fine marriage. In all this, she seemed to find no time for religion or the Church.

One day troubles began. In swift succession mother and sister followed each other in death. Her own health failed and in a little while the light of life went out. Her sorrowing husband placed this little poem in the hands of the minister. "The Land of Content" had been written by her during her hours of stress.

It is a tragic thing we miss the Way. Jesus said, "I am the Way."

Late one afternoon a party of young men started out on an overnight hike. But they were overtaken by darkness in a dense woods. The faint trail was soon lost in the darkness and they became lost. There was nothing to do but follow their compass. The compass was to be their guide. But first they had to remove certain things from their persons that interfered with the compass. A Maine guide once advised a traveler: "Always believe the compass." This party of young men believed their compass and soon found their Way to safety.

In the Way of life we may safely trust Jesus to be our guide. Believe in Him who is The Way. He will lead to the "Land of Content."

Pastor, Methodist Church.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

End Farm Equipment Strike; Bi-partisan Support Develops For Truman Check on Russia

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Senators and congressmen sit in close attention as President Truman delivers his momentous message to congress urging aid to Greece and Turkey to check Russian expansionism in middle east. (See: D (Diplomacy) Day.)

LABOR: End Long Strike

Beaten in their attempts to obtain "union security," Local 180 of the CIO-United Automobile Workers ended its 14½-month-old strike at the J. I. Case tractor and harvesting equipment plants in Racine, Wis. Previously, union members had returned to work in Case's Rock Island, Ill., Burlington, Ia., and Rockford, Ill., factories after prolonged walkouts.

Asst. Sec. of Labor John W. Gibson was successful in bringing the company and the Racine local together. Abandoning efforts to obtain a union shop, maintenance of membership and a compulsory dues checkoff, the local settled for an average 25 cents an hour wage raise, new grievance machinery and improved vacation provisions.

Settlement of the strike posed a labor problem for Racine since many of the 3,500 strikers had taken other jobs during the course of the walkout. Their action eased the strain on the union treasury although other workers received strike benefits. The plants were completely shut down during the dispute, with the union maintaining effective picket lines.

ASKS BAN ON REDS

Questioned about a bill outlawing Communists from official positions in labor unions, Secretary of Labor Schwelmbach rasped: "It does not go far enough. Why should we recognize the Communist party in the U. S. Why should they be eligible to run for office when their purpose is to destroy the government? Why should they be theoretically able to get elected to congress? I just can't see any reason why we should have that."

D (DIPLOMACY) DAY: Back Truman

Despite its radical departure from traditional American foreign policy and inherent threat of conflict with Russia, President Truman's program for aiding Greek and Turkish resistance to Soviet pressure in the strategic Middle East gained strong support in congress.

Many Republican senators and representatives crossed party lines to back Mr. Truman's proposal to lend Greece and Turkey 400 million dollars within the next year to bolster their economies and buy arms and provide military experts to train key personnel. Senator Bridges (Rep., N. H.) summed up congressional sentiment: "If we are ever going to try to stop the spread of Communism, now is the time."

Critics of the program did not so much oppose the forthright action proposed to check the Red tidal wave in eastern Europe as they inveighed against past state department practices in aiding the Soviets and their puppet states in strengthening their hold on oppressed people. With the entire nation sensitive to growing Russian dominance, critics were expected to lend their support for maximum safeguards against precipitating hostile action.

Mr. Truman made no bones about administration intentions of resisting Russian expansionism, declaring that U. S. foreign policy remained dedicated to the principle

MENTAL DISEASE: Appalling Condition

Ten million of the current U. S. population will be so crippled by mental illness as to require hospitalization sometime during their lives. One of every five families in the nation will be affected.

The Council of State Governments reports that issues directly related to this appalling prediction, made by the National Committee for Mental Hygiene, are being studied by at least 15 legislatures now in session.

of freedom for all people. After lambasting Communist interference in Greece and imposition of totalitarian regimes in Poland, Romania and Bulgaria, he asserted that all nations faced the choice of dictatorship or democracy.

Significantly, the Middle Eastern trouble spot lies at the crossroads of the East and West. Whoever controls this strategic area controls the gateway to two worlds plus the huge oil deposits of Iran, Iraq and Arabia, in which the U. S. and Britain have heavy interests.

Strengthening of the U. S. attitude toward Russia came as the Reds crimped opening of the Big Four conference in Moscow on the German and Austrian treaties. Defeated on a proposal to discuss the Chinese situation at the outset, Russian Foreign Minister Molotov came right back with the charge that the U. S. and Britain have retarded demilitarization of western Germany.

PHILIPPINES: Welcome Americans

By an overwhelming vote, the Philippines approved a constitutional amendment granting American citizens the same economic rights as natives. The measure carried in rural provinces and big cities alike, with a heavy swing in Manila resulting from an attempt on the life of Pres. Manuel Roxas, champion of the provision.

Recognizing the U. S. as the strongest economic force in the world, Roxas and his adherents asserted that adoption of the plan afforded the only real opportunity for postwar reconstruction in the war-torn islands. Opponents charged that the measure surrendered Philippine sovereignty over economic matters.

Under the amendment, the peso will be tied to the dollar to stabilize exchange rates. Trade between the two countries will remain duty free for eight years, with gradually increasing tariffs for the next 20 years. Americans will be guaranteed equal rights in development of natural resources, management and control of public utilities, and ownership of land.

Wages . . .

Payrolls distributed to employees in iron and steel making plants in 1946 totaled approximately $1,550,000,000, declining only 5.8 per cent from the 1945 total, despite the fact that 1946 steel production was 17 per cent below the 1945 output. Hourly earnings of wage earners during 1946 averaged approximately 134.7 cents per hour, a record, compared with an average of 124.8 cents per hour in 1945 and 84.2 cents per hour in 1939.

RAIL MURDER: FBI Enters Case

Congressional concern over the shotgun slaying of Pres. George P. McNear of the embattled Toledo, Peoria and Western railroad brought the FBI into the case in an effort to track down the killers of the millionaire rail executive.

The justice department authorized the FBI investigation on the grounds that the federal government was interested in what otherwise might have been a local incident because of McNear's recent testimony before the house labor committee.

Committee Chairman Hartley (Rep., N. J.) revealed that McNear had charged the Railroad Brotherhoods with inciting violence on the T. P. & W. to prompt government seizure of the line during the war. Brotherhood officials replied by accusing McNear of a lack of knowledge of railroading, Hartley said.

McNear had clashed with the unions over his insistence on running his own properties without interference or what he termed hampering restrictions.

BIG BUSINESS: Growing Bigger

Pointing out that 1,800 companies have been absorbed by purchase or merger since 1940, the Federal Trade commission urged adoption of a bill sponsored by Representative Kefauver (Dem., Tenn.) that would prevent such practices where they tended to create a monopoly.

Under present provisions of the Clayton anti-trust act, only stock purchases forming a monopoly are prohibited. Operators have been able to get around this provision, however, by outright purchase of a company's assets or exchanging stocks through a merger. Kefauver's bill would plug the present loop-hole and empower the FTC to rule on mergers.

Traditionally small business fields like food, textiles and non-electrical machinery have been subject to one-third of the purchases and mergers since 1940, FTC disclosed. Indicative of the trend, American Home Products corporation acquired 38 companies, including manufacturers of baby foods, spaghetti, floor waxes, paints and insecticides; Burlington Mills corporation took over 19 companies, comprising textile mills, finishing plants and hosiery producers.

Drys Gaining Ground

One-third of the U. S. embracing about 30 million people now is under some form of prohibition, the Anti-Saloon League of America has reported.

Of 3,070 counties, 978 now bar hard liquor, 887 bar wine and 480 bar beer, Secretary Laura Lindley declared. In addition, 4,814 cities, towns and districts in wet counties bar spirits, 3,939 bar wine and 2,948 bar beer.

Since repeal in 1933, 20,469 local option elections have been held, with the dries winning 12,519, Miss Lindley said. The total may be even higher since reports of results of these elections are not required. Leading dry states follow:

State	Total Counties	Dry Counties	Cities, Districts
Alabama	67	47
Arkansas	75	32	32
Florida	67	20
Georgia	159	126
Kentucky	120	92	161
Maine	16	1	357

Totally dry regarding spirits and wines, Kansas and Oklahoma permit sale of beer.

PRESIDENCY: Curb Tenure

Senate and house conferees were scheduled to put their heads together to work out a compromise constitutional amendment to be submitted to the states limiting the tenure of a president. Legislatures of 36 of the 48 states would have to ratify the amendment within seven years for it to take effect.

While agreeing to the principle of limiting the presidential tenure, the two houses differed over the time allowed the vice-president if he should take over an unexpired term. The house restricted his tenure to eight years in all while the senate permitted two years of an unexpired term and two additional full terms, or 10 years in all.

The senate also adopted an amendment by Senator Taft (Rep., O.) which would permit President Truman to serve two full terms after completing his present unexpired term of three years.

NURSES: More Needed

Enrollment of approximately 45,000 new students in the nation's schools of nursing will be the objective of a nation-wide program to be conducted by American Hospital association throughout 1947, John H. Hayes, association president, announced.

Low student enrollment, now 13,000 under school capacities, means the present acute shortage of graduate nurses will become worse within the next few years.

WASHINGTON. — A couple of months ago I wrote a piece about Korea for this column.

It was largely a factual report and when I wrote it I realized how little I, and perhaps some of you, know about Korea. I have been realizing that for many years but not too many. I think that the first time Korea meant anything more to me than a smear on the map was when I was quartered with a young fellow in a barracks in France in world War I. He talked in his sleep. That was bad enough, but I couldn't understand what he said. So I asked him. He said:

"My father was a missionary in Korea. I was born there. When I have a nightmare I talk Korean."

Korea est omnis divisa in partes duas, unam incolunt Red army et unam (south of a dividing line drawn by Stalin and Roosevelt) by the American army.

The agreement was that the two nations would set up a unified provisional government and lure the Koreans back into democratic life.

Then things began to eventuate. Roosevelt died and he couldn't tell Stalin that "democracy" meant one thing to Americans and something quite different to Marxian schooled Russians. Oh, quite different.

But regardless of academic definitions, this has happened, according to General Hodge's own statements: The Russians have drafted Koreans in their zone into an army. They have set up a Communist regime in their sector.

We haven't done so well with our brand of democracy in our sector. Not because of lack of good intentions nor of the efforts of General Hodge (so his enemies admit) but due to a lot of things including the spectre of the past which has harassed the Koreans. They like America. But all they have got from us in the past is vague promises. Other nations beginning with Japan took them and tore them. They have faced a historical array of broken promises from the great nations.

Koreans thought they were promised independence "in a few days" after American occupation. That misunderstanding was due to the fact that the Moscow agreement was translated by a Korean who was possessed of more native optimism than knowledge of the English language. From then on, the Americans attempting to abide by their understanding of the Moscow decisions have tried in vain to get an agreement out of the Russians which would be the basis of a unified Korea behind a unified provisional Korean government.

Today Korea has become one of those explosive areas where two ideologies meet; where the two great empires left in the world (the U. S. and the U.S.S.R.) face each other for better or for worse. Neither thinks it should retire and allow Korea to erect a government which would take its pattern from the other.

What's going to happen now? We are going to get a little tougher with the Russians, and if we can be released from that ambiguous agreement will let the Koreans in our zone set up their own provisional government. They already have a parliament of their own, but General Hodge has a veto and he will keep it until we see some kind of a coalition, free from Communist pressure—or any other kind of pressure, of which there are a lot.

It will cost money.

Blast Proposal for Higher Teacher Pay

My folks came originally from New England. We followed the various migrations west in jerks. But my New England ancestry is the only reason I've always been proud of American schools. As school boy I had a tough time because I wasn't tough enough. There were a lot of fights that had to be negotiated. But I came out with the idea that I'd take the public schools of America because they taught democracy whatever else they didn't teach. Later, I studied abroad and didn't change my mind.

Then I joined the army and discovered from my buddies (I got five francs for writing letters for them), that parts of America I hadn't grown up in were as illiterate as parts of Europe which I'd held my nose going through, and that some of Europe was more literate than the United States, although at our worst we had a better school for the poor man, proportionately, than Great Britain.

Years passed and finally I began hearing complaints about our schools—including the high-literacy areas. I realized what teachers were being paid compared to dog catchers and garbage collectors and bartenders (not as much). I mentioned it on the radio. Most people complimented my stand for higher remuneration for education. (Of course we couldn't expect to pay as much as we pay for liquor to redden our noses or the women pay for cosmetics to redden their lips).

But what shocked my New England soul was some of the letters on the "other side":

From a teacher of "long and varied experience":

"The most important teachers in the world are the mothers and fathers, who are now earning wages less than the teachers in a great many cases. Lack of adequate pay for them is the greatest cause of education failure—and failure it is—because it does not aid properly those who need it worst."

From a California teacher who is "almost in despair over the situation":

"The school cannot substitute for the home; it can only supplement it. You can't teach children who have had no home training; you can't even teach those who have if your whole time and strength are consumed by those who haven't. Most parents will pay whatever they have to pay for a parking station for their children and will ask no further questions. More and more of the parking attendants are unwilling to deal with such children at any price."

From a Pennsylvania mother:

"If monetary remuneration were the only consideration for our services in this life—would there be nurses, doctors, welfare workers and ministers? Yet they abound in love and kindness and tolerance."

From a Virginia man:

"There is an adage to the effect, 'you get just about what you pay for.' The point is, when the school teacher does his job as well as the street cleaner or garbage collector, he will be paid accordingly; but as long as the educators are content to have the street cleaners do their job better, the educators should not complain that the street cleaner is better paid."

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

FOOD PRICES EXPECTED TO STAY AT PRESENT LEVELS

WASHINGTON. — The labor department has been ardently fanning the fears of another food price inflation. A United Press dispatch said: "A labor department spokesman predicted the cost of living will climb to a new price record peak by the end of June. The department reported that on January 15, retail food prices were 30 per cent higher than on the corresponding date a year ago." On the basis of this supposedly official, although anonymous, interpretation of the Chicago increases in hog, corn and wheat market figures, a break occurred in the New York stock market. Naturally Wall Street traders whetted their fears that food price increases would cause another round of wage increases in coal, steel, autos and the other spring contracts awaiting renewal, and thus break our economy up into a still higher inflationary level, if not break the accepted economic program entirely.

Actual facts of the matter do not justify all these fears. Indeed they fall so far short of justification you might hastily conclude offhand that the unions and the labor department must be throwing their pressure weight behind the food price increases, so they can collect another wage increase. This may sound foolish to some, and possibly it is not true, yet you can find some evidence in the government itself to substantiate such a suspicion.

The government has been warning farmers against over-production, which certainly had lent encouragement to food production deficiencies. Actually it has advised against accelerated production of beef cattle, although the figures upon which it bases such advice seem to be wrong, inasmuch as they do not calculate the increased population and increased demand likely in a period of widespread availability of money, such as we are in now. Worse than that, the government actually has created the shortages in wheat by its export program, and expects to continue to do so.

A HANGOVER FROM OPA DAYS

Despite this evidence, I do not accuse the government of fostering the food price increases to encourage the wage demands of its strongest following. The truth of the matter seems to be they are merely taking advantage of an abnormal and temporary situation in foods in order to further the union demand. The actual food situation is this:

Farmers require about a year and a half to develop a new pig crop. Only about seven months have elapsed since OPA went off, ending the confused condition of the farmers, which induced them to avoid full hog production. The crop of last spring has just about all been sold, and the fall crop (started after OPA) has not come in yet, so we are at an in-between period on hog production. Furthermore, deliveries at markets have been abnormally low because of snow and wintry weather (much of the deliveries these days being by truck.)

Actually we had a good corn crop last year. The hog crop is low but yet undeveloped. And we cannot know anything about the coming season's production until fall, so we must conclude that if the farmers go ahead normally they will produce enough hogs to keep us away from further inflation.

If pork chops go to $1 or $1.25 a pound in this interim period, the cost of living need not increase for most people, except in the government statistics.

WE HAVE ENOUGH WHEAT

Wheat is a somewhat different story, but to the same effect. Last year we had 100 million bushels carryover at the end of the crop year, and this year the milling people are alarmed because officialdom expects 125 million bushels (millers figuring that if the government is wrong again, we will be skating too near thin ice). But our government itself will largely influence our wheat supply by the extent to which it exports in answer to foreign demand. England is buying here, with the money we gave her—pardon me, "loaned" her. Russia is not buying, and so far as I know, has not attempted to influence our markets lately.

Perhaps government statistics have increased 30 per cent on food prices "since a corresponding period last year." Last year, the government statistics were warped by price ceilings on foods not available at any price. Now they cannot fool themselves but must take actual market prices. Yet if they encourage another round of wage increases on that basis, prices will go still higher, and everyone will be worse off.

Thus the realities of the situation fall somewhat short of justifying their conclusions and predictions.

Gets Wasps Straight

Sixteen-year-old David Shappirio of Washington, D. C., one of 40 finalists in the sixth annual Westinghouse science talent search, cleared up an entomological "triangle" by mating "Mrs. Wasp" with her proper spouse. The books had been wronging this couple for years. David's own collection of wasps runs into the thousands. He captures most of them in Rock Creek park and seldom gets stung.

Cold in Moscow. Reporters there warned the foreign ministers to bring their long underwear for a long session.

A towel marked 1910 has been returned to the Pullman company. Maybe I'll get back the shirt I sent to the laundry when I enlisted in the army in 1918.

A state secret in Washington is something that columnists release upon receipt.

Between V-J Day and October last year, 10½ million people moved out of the county they were living in, according to a census made by Business Week. What did they move into?

Running the Lansing one-man jury, complicated as it must have been, was "easy" compared with the staggering task now confronting Governor Kim Sigler, top executive of the State of Michigan.

When Sigler wanted to get things done, he had only to talk things over with Judge Leland W. Carr, Ingham County Circuit Court Judge. Sigler had no financial investigation and prosecution. The Carr-Sigler team swinging unitedly into action, got results in a hurry.

And results bring satisfaction both to the principals and to the taxpayers.

Contrast the above, simplified of course, with the 1947 job of being Governor of Michigan.

Instead of getting approved of one person for a program, Governor Sigler must submit his recommendations to the Legislature, membership of which includes 130 persons throughout Michigan and who represent all types of economic activity.

Governor Sigler came to the conclusion in February that a solution of the state's present financial dilemma was to re-submit the sales amendment to the voters at the April spring election. The House of Representatives agreed with his recommendation, but the program was upset by a minority of state senators who prevented the necessary two-thirds majority vote for approval.

Because of his experience with certain lobbyists during the Lansing Grand Jury investigations, Governor Sigler has carefully avoided applying political pressure on members of the Legislature and hence engaging in lobbying for his own administrative measures.

In his budget message to the Legislature on February 11th, Governor Sigler expressed his personal distaste for lobbying in the following words: "There is no lobbyist for the aged. There is no lobbyist for the mentally afflicted. Dependent children have no representatives, except those public-spirited citizens who have been giving of their time behalf, and the consciences of all good citizens. The taxpayers has no lobbyist. The man who is burdened with taxation and abhors the thought of new taxes has no lobbyist. You and I must represent all the people, without bowing to pressure groups, without being worried about political futures."

The Senate Judiciary Committee on Tuesday (March 25) held a public hearing on proposed legislation to register lobbyists at Lansing. The Capitol Club of Lansing, whose membership comprises secretaries of 37 state trade associations, presented a formal statement in which the Club raised no objections to registration of legislative agents or payments of a registration fee to a state office. The Club made no major objection, this being to granting power of subpoena to a member of the Legislature, such as the Ivan Johnson committee which sought to smear Mr. Sigler in 1946.

Harlem Globe Trotters Here This Friday Night

The world famed Harlem Globe Trotters will play the East Jordan Cannons at the EJHS Gymnasium, this Friday, March 28, at 8:30 p. m.

The Globe Trotters have only a six man squad and feature fancy plays, trick shots, fancy ball handling — really putting on a display of basketball skill. This is their 17th season on the road, during which they have won 90 per cent of their games.

It is assumed by Capitol observers that the Legislature will enact some form of a law requiring registration of legislative agents — one of the administration reforms sought by Mr. Sigler as a result of his Lansing Grand Jury experiences.

Instead of having ample funds to get things done, Governor Sigler is faced with the dire and grim prospect of a staggering deficit. The voters of Michigan approved a $27,000,000 bonus for veterans of World War II without authorizing any taxation whereby such payments are to be financed.

How the Michigan veteran bonus is to be financed is as much a mystery today as it was one year ago, prior to the Michigan primary, when candidates were making political capital of the proposal.

Only last week a majority of the members of the House taxation committee, headed by Representative Elton R. Eaton of Plymouth, rejected an administrative proposal to finance the bonus by a two mill state property tax.

Such a tax would take priority over the needs of local government, and consequently it was vigorously opposed by the representatives from areas in which 15-mill limitation cities predominate.

The legislature is now nearing the final week of the third month of continuous sessions, and Governor Sigler finds himself in the situation of having no answer yet to this financial problem involving a mere $17,000,000 a year.

Governor Sigler's former associate in Grand Jury days, Judge Leland W. Carr, is now a member of the Supreme Court of Michigan.

This court is currently about to begin deliberations into the constitutionality of the controversial sales tax amendment, as adopted by the voters last November.

Uncertain as to what decision the Supreme Court will make, the State Legislature has been virtually marking time on the entire problem of state finances.

During the primary and fall campaign, Governor Sigler made a number of commitments for speaking engagements throughout the state. Trying to live up to his promises, the Governor sought during the first several months of 1947, to fulfill all speaking engagements possible, despite the many involved problems before him, the greatest of which was a 130-man Legislature in session.

Although the Governor delights in flying his own plane throughout the State on speaking engagements, he recently discovered that it was not possible to devote time to such engagements and at the same time meet the exacting demands of the Executive's office at Lansing. Consequently, many engagements have been cancelled by the Governor — and reluctantly so.

Michigan's new governor has proved so far to welcome suggestions and counsel from a variety of advisers. He seeks to get a cross-section of information in this manner, and when the time comes when a decision is required, he makes it promptly and then forgets the responsibility and turns immediately to new problems. This ability to throw off the responsibilities of an Executive office was one of the characteristics of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt. Running the state of Michigan is a lot more complicated job than running a Grand Jury investigation under the leadership of an circuit court judge.

Lake Michigan is reported frozen over clear across from Northport to Manistique.

"The local telephone Exchange will install about thirty phones in the Bohemian Settlement as soon as the weather will permit. Farmers nowadays must have these modern conveniences and the farming community around East Jordan is not behind the times. Four years ago there were only six farmers using the telephones of this Exchange and now there are more than ninety."

In the roller skating contest last Friday evening Mrs. Harry Curkendall won the ladies' prize and Orville Hulbert, the gentlemen's prize. Friday, Feb. 22nd will feature a masquerade on roller skates at the opera house with prizes for the best costumes for ladies and gentlemen and for the funniest mens' costume. If the Methodist Ladies' Aid should duplicate the supper, served at the Waterman home Feb. 1st, 1907 they wouldn't lack for crowd. For the big sum of fifteen cents they served pressed meats, escalloped potatoes, baked beans, buns, cabbage, potatoes, cucumbr salad, cabbage salad, cheese, cake tea and coffee.

Apple Tree Versus Wheat Field

If you ever visit Jeb Crowell's farm, he'll take you right out on that back porch of his and show you his apple tree.

"There," says Jeb, "is nature's noblest creation—fifty years, and bearin' still the finest cider apples in the county!"

But last fall, when a group of us was there, Lud Denny points across the river to his grain fields and says: "There's an even finer sight! Acres and acres of golden grain you can make dozens of appetizing things with—including wholesome, sparkling beer."

Both of them got so eloquent on the subject, that the rest of us worked up quite a thirst; so Jeb goes to the icebox for beer and cider. And when the refreshments come, Lud chooses cider, and Jeb takes the beer!

From where I sit, that's the answer to most disputes. You can talk all you want, but when it comes to tastes and preferences, there's just no argument.

ROCK ELM.....

(Edited by Miss Margie Nachazel)

Everyone enjoyed the supper and cake walk at the Rock Elm grange hall Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. John Knudsen and Ole Nielsen were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell of Boyne City, Sunday.

Russell Thomas spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Thomas.

Mrs. Frank Lawton is leaving Wednesday to spend a week visiting relatives in Nashville.

The Jr. Farm Bureau will meet with Miss Thelma Saunders on April 1st. They will choose committees to plan for a banquet to be held for the Boyne City Co-ops.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Larsen of Boyne City called on Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zitka Friday evening.

Mr. Ray Williams and Johnny Valance accompanied Ricky and Jeanne Russell to visit their grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Russell Sunday afternoon. Later they went to visit their aunt and Uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Russell.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Babel were Sunday afternoon callers of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Boyer.

A number of the Rock Elm grangers are going to initiate a group in the 1st and 2nd degree at the Wilson grange hall, Thursday evening, March 27.

Miss Martha Swoboda called on Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zitka Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Josifek and Miss Mary Stanek attended a birthday supper given in honor of Mrs. Antony Josifek at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Zitka, Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Nachazel and Mrs. Amanda Clark called on Miss Edna Clark who is at the Charlevoix hospital, Sunday evening.

CRIMINAL AT LARGE

Down in southern Alabama a young woman discovered that the young man with whom she was in love was already married. With tragic promptitude she wrote him a note of farewell, added the bitter postscript "Good-bye, Casanova," and committed suicide.

The police questioned the man, but could bring no charge against him so he was released.

"Well," remarked a deputy, "that closes the case."

"Not by a long shot," rejoined the sheriff. "Go out and bring in that other fellow."

"What other fellow?"

"That guy Casanova."

OUT OF THE MOUTH OF BABES

An elderly lady, the widow of a Roman officer, had for many years appealed to the Italian government for recognition of her husband's services, but had never received an answer. At length she was struck with the happy thought of addressing a plea to the infant daughter of the king, "Her Royal Highness the Princess Yolanda."

When the letter was handed to the king, he read the communication, first with surprise, and then with amusement. Assuming a grave expression, he bade his chamberlain take it to the princess and read it to her. The chamberlain went to the baby and gravely read the letter aloud to her, and then returned to the king.

"Well," said the king, "what did the princess say?"

"Nothing, your majesty."

"Very well. Silence gives consent. Honor the lady's petition."

Strange Notes

The accompanist had done his best to help the beginning soloist, but after an hour of practice, he was weakening.

"Mademoiselle," he said, shaking his head sadly, "we can't go like this. I give up. I play on the white keys. I play on the black keys. But you always sing in the cracks!"

Modern Miss

The young daughter of a radio announcer was called upon to say grace at a family dinner. Much to the dismay of the visiting minister, the child bowed her head and said in low tones: "This food comes to us through the courtesy of Almighty God."

Fancy Name

Betty—That girl is grace personified.
 Lettie—What did you say her last name was?

If you're going to jump at conclusions you can't always expect a happy landing.

Find Ancient City

Examination of bomb craters which had been formed in Canterbury, England, disclosed evidence of an ancient city built on the site soon after the Roman conquest, 43 A. D., including pottery illuminating the life of the ancient Romans. Foundations of a Roman villa were unearthed. Digging in Hampshire brought to light remains of Roman pottery, many ancient vases and a ball of potter's clay bearing fingerprints. Craters of southeast London uncovered Roman pottery and tools.

Synthetic Cloth

One hundred per cent skim milk fiber looks and feels very much like wool. It can be made into cloth for draperies, dresses or even dish cloths. A bag of peanuts can become a dress or a suit, too, if you know the process recently discovered by scientists in Great Britain and the United States. They are experimenting with peanut protein, which produces a synthetic fiber similar to wool, and can be mixed with other fibers to make fabrics. And British scientists have already produced from seaweed a cloth which has the appearance of nylon.

Cooking Utensils

As far back as 1900, there were more than a dozen concerns which were manufacturing aluminum cooking utensils, either spun or cast, and it was during this period that aluminum steam-jacketed kettles were first produced.

Refuel Navy

Refueling the United States fleet calls for a unique tanker, says Ships. It must be able to tie up at sea alongside a battleship or carrier and pump aboard thousands of tons of oil. On the other hand, it may service a "cockleshell of a j.g." boat whose "fill 'er up" order is but a 10-gallon squirt.

Defenses Reveal Caves

Extension of Gibraltar's underground defense system opened up a cave 60 feet long and 30 feet high, containing stalactites and stalagmites. In a clay-filled fissure about 200 feet behind the eastern face of the rock, and several hundred feet from the top, were found fossils of antlers, jaws, sets of teeth, and vertebrae. Two caves a hundred feet above sea level yielded pottery, stone tools, and other remains indicating occupation of the caves possibly from the Mousterian period to Roman times.

STATE PARKS AND RECREATION AREAS RULES AND REGULATION

Michigan State Parks and Recreation Areas belong to the people of the state and are for the recreational use of the public. Visitors are welcome. To prevent abuse and misuse of the privileges and facilities provided, the following rules and regulations governing public use are adopted under authority of Act 17, Public Acts of 1921, as amended by Act 337, Public Acts of 1927, Section 3-a of such act being quoted in part as follows:

"Any person who shall do or perform any act prohibited by such rules and regulations or who shall fail, refuse or neglect to do or perform any act required by such rules and regulations concerning the use and occupancy of lands and property under the control of said commission of conservation, which shall have been made promulgated and published as in this Act provided, during the same time such rules and regulations shall be in force and effect or who shall violate any such rules and regulations thus made shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be subject to a fine of not more than $100.00 together with costs of prosecution, or to imprisonment in the county jail for not more than 90 days, or both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court."

DRIVE SLOW WHEN STREETS ARE WET

I have observed lately that we have quite a few discourteous drivers who seem to delight in driving down our streets when they are full of soft snow or slush and spattering all pedestrians within range. Such acts not only constitute reckless driving — but — can be prosecuted as such. A little more consideration for the fellow on foot is needed. If such carelessness continue my only alternative will be to file a proper complaint and let the violator take the consequences.

1. As used in these rules and regulations, the word "park" shall mean State Park or State Recreation Area.
 2. It shall be unlawful to remove without written permission, to deface, or to injure any building, property, or vegetation.
 3. Cans, bottles, papers, or other rubbish shall be placed in receptacles provided, and shall not be dumped and left on the ground or in lakes, streams, or springs.
 4. Open fires shall not be started except in places designated for that purpose and fires shall not be left unattended.
 5. Riding of horses is prohibited on areas posted against such use and on beaches, picnic grounds, playgrounds, camp grounds, and foot trails.
 6. Firearms shall not be carried nor had in possession unless unloaded in both barrel and magazine, except that this regulation shall not apply in portions of parks which are open to hunting by order of the Conservation Commission during such open period. Shooting of air rifles and possession of fireworks and firecrackers are prohibited. Shooting with bow and arrow is prohibited except in portions of parks open to hunting and in other locations designated for that purpose.
 7. Dogs are not allowed on bathing beaches, either in water or on shore. In other parts of parks dogs shall be securely tied with chain or controlled on leash, such chain or leash to be of not more than ten feet effective length, except that the provision shall not apply when dogs are used in hunting on portions of parks open to hunting by order of the Conservation Commission. Dogs shall not be left unattended.
 8. Speed limit for vehicles shall be 25 miles per hour except where otherwise posted. Motor vehicles are not permitted on beaches, picnic grounds, playgrounds, nor other areas posted against such use.
 9. Washing or depositing of liquid waste of any kind is prohibited near wells, springs, or water outlets except where designated.
 10. Changing of clothing in toilet buildings and in motor vehicles is prohibited.
 11. Drunkenness, profanity, fighting, indecent exposure of the person, or other disorderly conduct, is prohibited.
 12. The use of loud speakers or public address system is prohibited except under written permission of an authorized representative of the Department of Conservation.
 13. It shall be unlawful to sell, or offer for sale, beer, wine, or intoxicating beverages in parks.
 14. The sale, or offering for sale, of eggs, milk, cream, butter, native fruits, native vegetables, ice, and newspapers by a vendor other than one operating under an approved concession lease is permitted if such vendor first secures from the park or area manager written permission specifying the items which may be sold and the locations in which sales may be made. All food items offered for sale must have been produced by the vendor and must conform to state food laws. All other vending, peddling, or advertising is prohibited.
 15. Persons or groups desiring to camp must first obtain a permit from an authorized representative of the Department of Conservation. Permit may be refused to persons under seventeen years of age unless accompanied by an adult. Camping is permitted only in those areas specifically designated for that purpose. During the period when these rules and regulations are in force, by the Director of Conservation any park may be closed to camping, the number of camps in any park at any one time may be limited, or a time limit for continued occupancy by a camp in any park may be established. When any such time limit has expired, the camp must move from park for not less than 24 hours before another permit for camping in the same park will be issued.
 16. The use of buildings, facilities or accommodations for organized group camping shall be governed by these rules and regulations and such supplemental controls as may be issued by the Director of Conservation.
 17. Parks, or portions thereof, may be closed entirely or to certain uses during certain hours of each day, as may be determined by the Director of Conservation, and posted. During such hours, it shall be unlawful to enter or to occupy such closed area contrary to posted regulations.
 The park officers is in full charge of the park, with police authority. Inquiries, suggestions, or complaints can be filed with the officer or submitted in writing to the Department of Conservation.
 By order of Commission of Conservation, Lansing, Michigan. These rules and regulations shall be in force and effect until April 1, 1952.

Denazification

One of the current stories running the rounds in Germany carries its little jibe at the occupation forces.
 A glum-looking individual was sweeping the sidewalk on one of Munich's boulevards. A crowd rapidly collected and watched him. One of the observers stepped forward and asked: "How long have you been at this job?"
 "Since yesterday," replied the other curtly.
 "I'm interested, because I formerly had the job."
 "Why didn't you keep it?"
 "The Americans — they wouldn't let me because I'm a Nazi."
 "So am I," grunted the sweeper; "that's why they gave me the job."

SAME OLD THING

The cannibal king was impatiently awaiting his lunch and he demanded of the royal cook: "What am I having for lunch today?"
 And the cook answered apologetically, "Two old maids."
 "Ugh!" grunted the king. "Left-overs again!"

Dark Dealings

A certain Yankee householder recently laid in his winter's supply of coal. When the bill came from the dealer he noticed that it boasted the slogan: "It's a Black business, but we treat you White."
 The householder wept a little when he noted the amount of the invoice, then, wiping away his tears, he bravely made out the check. But with it he sent a little note reading: "May I offer a suggestion? I think you should change your slogan to 'It's a Dirty business, but we Clean you good.'"

Too Many Stones

Lord Birkenhead proudly announced to his family that he had obtained a lucrative contract for a series of articles to be called "Milestones of My Life." They discussed what incidents he proposed to use.
 "You might put in our marriage," Lady Birkenhead suggested; "and the birth of your first child."
 "I said milestones, my dear," rejoined Birkenhead, "not millstones."

Useless Expense

"Brother Jones," said the deacon, "can't you-all donate some small contribution to de fund for fencing in the cullud cemetery?"
 "I dunno as I can," replied Brother Jones. "I don't see no use in a fence around a cemetery. You see, dem what's in there can't get out, and dem what's out sho' doan wanta get in."

A Preview

Pierre Labouchere, the French historical writer, retained his good humor even on his deathbed. Shortly before he passed away, the table lamp at his side was accidentally tipped over. As it hit the floor, it flared up. Startled, Labouchere opened his eyes.
 "Flames?" he murmured incredulously. "Already?"

SAFE PLACE IN A STORM

Lawyer—How'd you get along with your wife in that fight over that bridge hand the other night?
 Answer—Oh, she came crawling to me on her knees.
 Lawyer—Is that so? What did she say?
 Answer—Come out from under that bed, you coward!

Sportsmanship

"My young son is extremely polite," announced the wag.
 "Why, whenever he's on a street-car or train, he's always pointing out an empty seat to another passenger — and then racing him for it."

Booming Business

"Did you know that Bill is in the fireworks manufacturing business, now?"
 "No; how is he getting on?"
 "Well, so far, all the reports have been favorable."

Soldier Come Home

BY BETTY ZANE WATSON

Johnny Davis, returning from service, falls in love with Kit Willett, a reporter on his father's newspaper, but finds she is engaged to his cousin, Basil Martin. He and Kit see Martindale on fire. Learning from the butler that his grandmother, Jennifer Martin, is trapped in her bedroom, Johnny rushes into the house and carries her unconscious form to safety. Basil comes upon the scene and, hearing that his grandmother did not know who rescued her and that probably no one had seen Johnny, takes credit for saving her. Johnny suspects Jerry Murphy, town fanatic who threatened to get revenge on Mrs. Martin for the accidental death of his father, of starting the fire. Basil had also run over Jerry's child.

CHAPTER X

Jerry Murphy closed the door behind him quickly, not waiting for J. D.'s invitation to enter the house. "Come upstairs, Murphy." J. D. knew that he would have to talk to the fellow in order to get rid of him and he was not anxious to have anyone see them talking.

Johnny showed his surprise when the two men entered the room.

"Suppose you know about the old lady's house?" He waited until they nodded their heads, and then continued. "Well, I wanted to talk to you, see? And straighten up any ideas you might be havin'. I suppose you figured I done it? Well, I didn't, see, an' what's more, I can prove where I been all evenin'." I got witnesses, see?"

Johnny interrupted him. "Why tell us all this, Murphy?"

"Well, seems as though you and me was always runnin' into each other out there and so naturally I knew you'd think I done it—but I didn't, see?" He was on the verge of going into his explanation of his witnesses again and then remembered he had already assured them of his innocence. "Well, nobody would get any ideas like that about me 'cept you two, and I just wanted to make sure you got it straight. Why, you know I wouldn't never do nothing like that. All I ever wanted was to get some money outa them, see?"

His face was flushed red with the exertion of his explanations.

"You know how much we all been through today, my woman and me. Why, you don't know what that kid of mine means to me. And I sure am goin' after the old lady for that, even if he doesn't die. I can still get plenty for it. I'm gonna get me a good lawyer. I'll get her this time!"

He saw that J. D. and Johnny had lost interest in his words and he hastened back to the subject he had come here to discuss.

"You wouldn't be putting any ideas in their mind, now, would you, about the fire?" "Specially since you know I didn't do it." He looked directly at Johnny. "Might get mixed up in it, yourself, huh, Martin catchin' ya that night an' all. Where were you, or have ya got a excuse, too, Davis?" He threw back his head and laughed loudly.

Johnny, knowing this to be a mild assertion of blackmail, stood up as if to end the conversation before anyone went too far.

"I can watch out for myself, Murphy. I only hope you can do the same." He walked out the door and down the hall to the bathroom.

The next days were busy ones for Kit. She had called the office the morning after the fire and told J. D. that she would be needed at Martindale for a few days at least. He told her to come back when she felt she could—and not before. Mrs. Martin had awakened to full consciousness that morning and had wanted Kit with her the entire day. She had said little to Kit, but seemed to rally in her presence. Lying against the white of the pillows, Kit decided she looked more like a helpless child with a weakened face than the tyrant she was supposed to have been.

She took food from Kit's hands alone and muttered vaguely about poisoning and attempts on her life. Kit took these imaginings for hallucinations, and such they were, for no one had even a vague notion of murdering the old lady. Undoubtedly she had seen their hatred for her in their eyes and now that she was helpless, she imagined that they would take advantage of her.

Basil's Boast Surprises Thomas

Kit slept only while her patient slept, and under her care the old lady seemed to grow stronger each day. Her white face took on color again and on the sixth day she asked Kit to help her brush her hair.

Kit was anxious to help her and to tell Basil quickly of this definite sign of her improvement. She met him down in the front living room later that evening.

"That's fine, baby," he answered her sarcastically when she told him how his grandmother had progressed that day. "Only with you coddling her she'll live to be a hundred!"

She turned to him quickly. "Well, Baz, if you wanted her to die so quick, why did you bother saving her?"

"And let her leave half of Martindale to that no-good Davis?" He knew by the look on her face that he had said the wrong thing and hastened to correct himself. "Of course, that's not the reason I saved her. I—well, honestly, Kit, that's a hot question to ask me—why I saved my own grandmother!"

"You mean half of Martindale is willed to Johnny Davis?"

"That's right, it is now. But all that will be changed." He continued after a moment, "I wouldn't mention it to him, if I were you. He doesn't know anything about it. It was all arranged before Dad's sister died when Davis was born. The old lady made her some kind of promise. But as I say, I'd not mention it to him, because you never know what characters like him might do to collect a little money." He raised his eyebrows.

Kit looked at him defiantly. "You mean to say that Johnny might try to... Oh, Basil! That is the most ridiculous statement I have ever heard." She turned her face from him.

"You have a mistaken idea about our friend Davis, Kit. Why, you know how he tried to take the credit for rescuing the old lady when I ery speeches, was finding the going hard. "You've stuck by me when I needed you, girl, and I'll remember you for it. Johnny's the best son a man ever had and I only wish I could have had a daughter as fine—that would have to be you, Kit." He smiled at her and she saw his eyes were misty.

When she started to speak she found that J. D.'s compliment had affected her own emotions. She swallowed hard and ran over to him and kissed him on the forehead, putting her arms about him.

"That's just about the nicest thing anybody ever said to me, J. D."

She saw that this show of affection embarrassed him and she turned to Johnny. "What was it you started to say, Johnny?"

"I guess—I was just going to wish you happiness and all that, Kit. I do, you know. I want you to have the best of everything—always!" And with that he turned and walked into the outer office.

Kit looked puzzled that he should leave so suddenly when he had seemed so genuinely glad to see her a few minutes before. She turned back to J. D.

"How is the Murphy child? I read in the paper that he is some better but still in danger. Do you think he'll make it, J. D.?"

"We all try to think he will, Kit. He's a plucky little fellow. Johnny and I have been over several times. He likes Johnny, and we always try to take him something that will amuse him."

"I'd like to go with you to see him, J. D. I've had to stay pretty close to Martindale all week or I would have gone before."

J. D. knew he should ask about Jennifer Martin but he didn't want to seem prying. "How is—everything?"

"Fine, if you mean Mrs. Martin. She'll be eighty-seven next spring and she's as spry as most people middle-aged." She remembered this subject might not be too easy for J. D. and hastened to another.

"But seriously, J. D., I think you won't have any trouble finding a girl for my place, will you? Basil wants me to set a definite date and I thought perhaps the 28th—that's Thanksgiving, you know. Do you think I could leave by then?"

"If it will make you happier, Kit, you can leave today. I want you to be happy, honey. That's the most important thing, and if you have to quit here to be—"

"J. D., it isn't that. I've never been happier than I've been working for you. I only wish I could keep on working—but—"

"Johnny and I will miss you, Kit."

She seemed embarrassed and added quickly, "Well, I guess that will be mutual, J. D. But we've still some time left and I'm not going out of town, you know. I'll still come around."

J. D. looked at her and they both smiled, knowing how this would be impossible.

"All right, Kit, we'll keep a promise on that anyway," he answered as she left the room.

"See you Monday then." She closed the door behind her. As she walked out the outer door she saw Johnny coming up the steps. He smiled at her but did not say anything and passed her on into the office. As she walked towards Martindale she could not understand why she was so upset.

She took her time to reach the house. Basil and his mother and father had gone out of the city early that morning to make preparations for the coming engagement announcement.

She was surprised when Thomas let her in to learn that Mrs. Martin was sitting in the downstairs living room awaiting her.

"Oh, how nice to see you here, Mrs. Martin. You must be feeling pretty extra special this morning." She sat on the stool at the old lady's feet.

"Thank you, my dear, I feel much stronger. And—I wanted to surprise you. They said you were out. Did you have a nice morning?" She was sitting by the fire and looking down at Kit with more tenderness than she had shown anyone for long years.

A Conversation Between Two Women

Kit held her breath. She was about to tell her about J. D. and Johnny when she remembered. As yet she had never had the courage to tell Jennifer Martin that she had worked at the Clarion.

The little old lady was regarding her with such earnestness that she felt she could not deceive her any longer.

"Mrs. Martin, I think you should know where I was. Someone might tell you some day that I work there and you would think badly of me—and that I don't want. I work for J. D. Davis—at the Clarion office. I've worked there for several months now. He was kind enough to let me come here this week to look after you."

The old lady's lip grew tight and her face looked whiter in the light from the fire. She breathed deeply for her little frame as if there was courage in the very air she breathed. Finally she spoke. Her voice was shaken and uneven.

"Fine, if you mean Mrs. Martin. She'll be eighty-seven next spring and she's as spry as most people middle-aged." She remembered this subject might not be too easy for J. D. and hastened to another.

"But seriously, J. D., I think you won't have any trouble finding a girl for my place, will you? Basil wants me to set a definite date and I thought perhaps the 28th—that's Thanksgiving, you know. Do you think I could leave by then?"

"If it will make you happier, Kit, you can leave today. I want you to be happy, honey. That's the most important thing, and if you have to quit here to be—"

"J. D., it isn't that. I've never been happier than I've been working for you. I only wish I could keep on working—but—"

"Johnny and I will miss you, Kit."

She seemed embarrassed and added quickly, "Well, I guess that will be mutual, J. D. But we've still some time left and I'm not going out of town, you know. I'll still come around."

J. D. looked at her and they both smiled, knowing how this would be impossible.

"All right, Kit, we'll keep a promise on that anyway," he answered as she left the room.

"See you Monday then." She closed the door behind her. As she walked out the outer door she saw Johnny coming up the steps. He smiled at her but did not say anything and passed her on into the office. As she walked towards Martindale she could not understand why she was so upset.

She took her time to reach the house. Basil and his mother and father had gone out of the city early that morning to make preparations for the coming engagement announcement.

She was surprised when Thomas let her in to learn that Mrs. Martin was sitting in the downstairs living room awaiting her.

"Oh, how nice to see you here, Mrs. Martin. You must be feeling pretty extra special this morning." She sat on the stool at the old lady's feet.

"Thank you, my dear, I feel much stronger. And—I wanted to surprise you. They said you were out. Did you have a nice morning?" She was sitting by the fire and looking down at Kit with more tenderness than she had shown anyone for long years.

her. I—well, honestly, Kit, that's a hot question to ask me—why I saved my own grandmother!"

"You mean half of Martindale is willed to Johnny Davis?"

"That's right, it is now. But all that will be changed." He continued after a moment, "I wouldn't mention it to him, if I were you. He doesn't know anything about it. It was all arranged before Dad's sister died when Davis was born. The old lady made her some kind of promise. But as I say, I'd not mention it to him, because you never know what characters like him might do to collect a little money." He raised his eyebrows.

Kit looked at him defiantly. "You mean to say that Johnny might try to... Oh, Basil! That is the most ridiculous statement I have ever heard." She turned her face from him.

"You have a mistaken idea about our friend Davis, Kit. Why, you know how he tried to take the credit for rescuing the old lady when I

ery speeches, was finding the going hard. "You've stuck by me when I needed you, girl, and I'll remember you for it. Johnny's the best son a man ever had and I only wish I could have had a daughter as fine—that would have to be you, Kit." He smiled at her and she saw his eyes were misty.

When she started to speak she found that J. D.'s compliment had affected her own emotions. She swallowed hard and ran over to him and kissed him on the forehead, putting her arms about him.

"That's just about the nicest thing anybody ever said to me, J. D."

She saw that this show of affection embarrassed him and she turned to Johnny. "What was it you started to say, Johnny?"

"I guess—I was just going to wish you happiness and all that, Kit. I do, you know. I want you to have the best of everything—always!" And with that he turned and walked into the outer office.

Kit looked puzzled that he should leave so suddenly when he had seemed so genuinely glad to see her a few minutes before. She turned back to J. D.

"How is the Murphy child? I read in the paper that he is some better but still in danger. Do you think he'll make it, J. D.?"

"We all try to think he will, Kit. He's a plucky little fellow. Johnny and I have been over several times. He likes Johnny, and we always try to take him something that will amuse him."

"I'd like to go with you to see him, J. D. I've had to stay pretty close to Martindale all week or I would have gone before."

J. D. knew he should ask about Jennifer Martin but he didn't want to seem prying. "How is—everything?"

"Fine, if you mean Mrs. Martin. She'll be eighty-seven next spring and she's as spry as most people middle-aged." She remembered this subject might not be too easy for J. D. and hastened to another.

"But seriously, J. D., I think you won't have any trouble finding a girl for my place, will you? Basil wants me to set a definite date and I thought perhaps the 28th—that's Thanksgiving, you know. Do you think I could leave by then?"

YOU SHOULD KNOW YOUR RADIO!

by T. M. Luxford

Last week I started a discussion of the relationship between customer and radio repairman. The dishonest repairman was mentioned. The unreasonable customer also might well be mentioned, the one whom no one can ever satisfy. Many times, however, radio repairmen think a customer is unreasonable when such is not the case. The customer simply was handled wrong. I, nor anyone else, can produce a method by which an unreasonable customer can be successfully treated. Likewise, there is no way to do business with a dishonest repairman. This discussion will concern only transactions between a reasonable customer and an honest repairman. We will start first by taking an average case.

The customer, Mr. C. brings a radio to repairman, Mr. R. C says his radio needs repair. R says C can have his radio in about a week, and puts an identification tag on it. C wants to know what it will cost. R says he won't know until he checks it. C leaves and in one week returns. R says the radio is ready, presents the bill, and C finds the charges are more than he thought they would be and says so. R explains, C pays the bill, and walks out.

What's wrong with the transaction? R has been fair and honest in his charges. C is the average customer, not unreasonable, and willing to pay. What does he think of R? He has no way of knowing that R has been honest. R didn't explain anything until after the radio had been repaired. In the very least C is skeptical. Maybe he even thinks R took advantage of him and charged what he pleased. C is not going to be a good advertisement for R. Here is the way R should have handled C:

R tells C to wait a few minutes and he will check tubes and perform a preliminary check on the radio and try to give C an approximate idea of the cost. R explains that he may not be able to tell definitely in the few but that he may be able to arrive somewhere near it. In a few minutes of cursory examination of the set and talking with the customer they reach a mutual understanding. C either says "go ahead" or comes to the decision that he doesn't want the radio repaired. If C decides to have R repair the set, he returns in one week knowing what he has to pay because R has told him that if, after further examination, troubles were revealed which would cost more than the original check showed, he would notify C.

Isn't that a much better way for R to treat C? In some larger radio shops it isn't

An ex-GI brings back this story Rattling along on a small freight train in Burma, the engineer saw an elephant squatted on the track ahead. Stopping the train, he leaned out of the cab and requested the elephant to move, which the beast did very graciously.

The train moved on a bit farther and came upon a second elephant, whom the engineer also asked to move. But this beast refused point blank. The engineer told him he had no such trouble with the other elephant up the road.

At this the second elephant got up in disgust.

"Aw," he said, "that other bum has gone and spoiled everything. We were playing bookends."

A strange man had spoken to her on the street and she resented his rudeness.

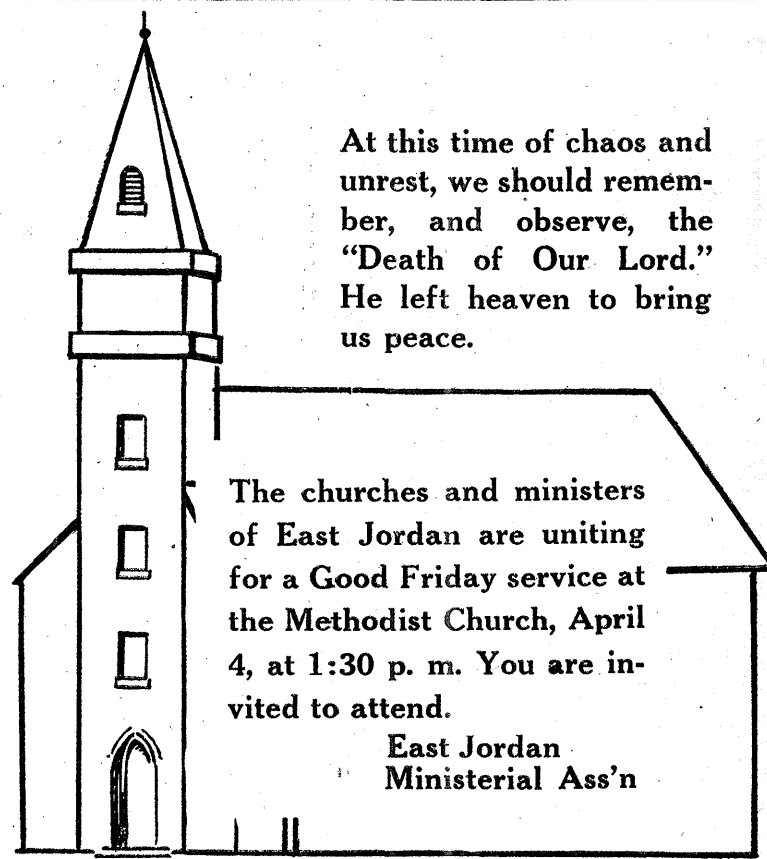

"I don't know you from adam!" she exclaimed.

"You ought to," was the reply, "I'm dressed differently."

possible for C to contact the repairman directly. He leaves his radio with a receptionist. In that case C either should be asked if he wants the repairman to use his own judgment and repair the radio regardless of cost, or does he want to be notified first. Chiefly, a thorough understanding should be achieved between C and the repair shop before any work is done. This minimizes the possibility of any misunderstanding. C is more likely to know he is being treated fairly. In the event the cost is more than C thought it would be and even though R has explained carefully, sometimes C is somewhat skeptical. The fact that C knows nothing about radio technically, makes it quite impossible for R to prove that it was necessary to go to that expense. C may think that R is doing more than is necessary, just to get more money out of the job. It would be very nice indeed if R could show C positively and convince him but because of C's lack of knowledge of radio it is hard to do. I am treating this case thoroughly and very carefully because you as a customer and I as a repairman know that this condition often exists. Not only does it exist in radio repair but in automotive, appliance and many other types of repair work. Your knowledge being limited or none at all with respect to the article you are having repaired, makes it necessary that you trust R's fairness and judgement.

Let me point out one thing where-by you may find out whether or not R is dishonest. If R follows the philosophy that he can gyp you and you won't find it out he will gradually become more brazen about it and finally reveal his true colors in the end. He becomes more confident and finally lets the cat out of the bag. At radio meetings I have attended, this has been discussed, cases brought up and this fact proven. It is like the 'teen age boy who, when a child stole apples from the grocer and got away with it. He becomes confident to steal cars and finally rob banks. Finally he is caught. Contrary to public opinion, there are many radio repairmen who run their business honestly. They know it pays dividends.
