EAST JORDAN, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, AUGUST 29, 1947

NUMBER 35

Labor Day Next Monday

PRECAUTIONARY DRIVING AN ESSENTIAL FACTOR

Be cautious over the long Labor Day week-end, one last fling at summer vacation may be your last fling, the Michigan Department of Health advised recently.

The Department pointed out that while this week-end's hazards are similar to those of all the summer vacation time, the added hazard, that of excessively heavy traffic on the main highways of the state, makes added precautions imperative.

More cars will be on Michigan's highways during this week-end than during any other time of the year. Not only will Michigan people be enroute to a last vacation or enroute home for school opening, but myriads of out-of-state visitors will be similarly occupied. Traffic on Michigan's main highways last Labor Day week-end stretched as far as the eye could see either direction, without break.

If you will travel during the week-end, the Department advised these precautions: Before leaving home have your brakes, horn, tires and steering apparatus checked. Start early. Take your time. Give the other fellow an even break. Be especially careful of country intersections at dusk. Avoid drinking if you are to drive, and avoid riding with a driver who has been drinking. Obey traffic signs; most automobile accidents are caused by failure to obey traffic laws. Other than traffic, other hazards to be considered seriously during the week-end lie in careless swimming and boating, over exposure to the sun, and other exertion.

LOG RULE SCALE MADE AVAILABLE

A handy pocket size Log Rule and Lumber Scale is available to farmers of Antrim County, for the asking says, Losey Wright, Chairman of the Antrim Soil Conservation District.

This Log Rule and Lumber Scale was developed by the Antrim Soil Conservation District Directors through the cooperation of the Bellaire Lumber and Supply Company. The Log Rule is the International Scale which is the legal scale for Michigan and considered the most accurate of all Log Rules in use.

4-H CLUB NEWS

4-H POTATO TOUR SUCCESS

Forty 4-H club members and leaders from Antrim, Kalkaska and Crawford counties spent a very profitable day on a tour of several potato fields in Antrim County. The group met at Darius Buell's farm where they first saw Dick Owens and Jack Hummel of Crawford County put on a demonstration on the proper methods of cutting seed potatoes.

Next they had the opportunity of seeing Mr. Buell's irrigation system work. It was interesting to find out that the system was putting on about 500 gallons of water per minute. Other crops on the farm were looked over and special attention was given to the five acre plot that belongs to the ten 4-H members in the Elmira Club.

After a very fine lunch at noon, the group toured to Thomas Colter's farm where they observed the different plots of various varieties of potatoes. Mr. Colter also irrigates and was pumping water at a distance of over one mile from the well.

The last stop was at Albert Colter's and Mr. Allen's farms where Mr. Leyton Nelson, Crop Specialist from Michigan State College, gave a very interesting and educational demonstration on identification of potato diseases.

After the tour, the Antrim County potato club members challenged the club members from Kalkaska and Crawford counties to a soft ball game. The Antrim boys won by a very close margin. The boys who did not get a chance to play in this game played the leaders. The boys won the game very handily.

The East Jordan "Merchants" rapped out 16 hits good for 17 runs, as they walked over Indian River 17-1 Sunday. Chuck Saxton rapped up his 15 win against one loss for the season, as he struck out 18 and scattered 7 hits.

Three Indian River pitchers allowed 11 walks, and their team-mates were guilty of 3 errors. Chuck Saxton aided his own cause by getting 3 hits, one a lousy triple, while his brother Bill got 4 singles.

The sons, Louis, Ralph and Robert had been searching for the body, Tanner reported, since shortly after their father left home ostensibly to go to one of their homes, and failed to appear.

Coroner Diton quoted the sons as saying Mr. Taylor had been despondent because of ill health.

Development of Sports

Great Britain is among the most sports-minded of nations, and several athletic contests besides cricket have originated or developed there. Among the earliest of English spectacles were the jousts, or tournaments, in which knights on horseback tilted lances.

Tennis in some form descended on England from France not later than the 14th century, when Chaucer wrote, "But canstow playen racket to and fro?" Henry VIII was a tennis enthusiast and installed courts on the grounds of Whitehall palace.

He also set up a bowling green, but like his predecessors forbade bowling because its popularity was thought to interfere with more important archery. From the reign of Edward I to that of Queen Elizabeth, all English lads were required by law to practice with bows and arrows.

The first football game in England took place in 1710, but football play dates back at least six centuries. A writer in 1531 criticized the sport as nothing but beastly fury and extreme violence. Until the organization of Rugby football in the last century, the English version of the game consisted wholly in kicking the ball.

Nutritive Value of Food

Should Be Guide in Dieting

In spite of all the advice on dieting to reduce weight offered through the years, many overweight still have mistaken notions about foods that should or should not be eaten. Many a "reducer" avoids potatoes, cereals or bread, yet takes pie for dessert or refuses milk but fills up on soft drinks or nibbles on nuts or crackers between meals.

Too often a calorie list is the sole guide to dieting without regard to the nutritive values of the different foods. For those who are trying to pare off pounds, the following list on which to base the daily diet is suggested:

Skim milk, one pint; egg, cooked without fat—in shell or poached; lean meat and fish, such as beef, lamb, chicken, veal, heart, liver, or cod, haddock, perch; potato—plain boiled or baked and served without butter, but not fried; vegetables, such as asparagus, snap beans, broccoli, cabbage, cauliflower, greens of all kinds, squash, tomato, turnips—without butter or cream sauce; fresh fruits in season, without added sugar, cream or pastry; bread or cereal, small size serving.

Bleaching Mahogany

Before attempting to bleach mahogany, remove any finish which it may have with paint and varnish remover, which is obtainable in paint stores. Then, rinse off any residue of the paint remover with turpentine, as any traces of the paint remover left on the wood may interfere with the bleaching process. The wood then may be bleached with a bleaching preparation for wood, which is purchasable from paint dealers. After bleaching to the desired degree of lightness, all traces of the bleach, which should be used only according to the manufacturer's directions on the container, should be thoroughly washed off, and the wood thoroughly dried before any attempt is made at refinishing. When perfectly dry, the piece may be very carefully rubbed down with very fine sandpaper or steel wool, if it is not perfectly smooth, but care should be taken not to make any fine scratches on the surface. Finally, the surface may be finished with two thin coats of clear varnish, lacquer or shellac, making sure that the first coat is perfectly dry before the second coat is applied. A final coat of furniture wax is a further help to protect the piece against soil or staining and helps to facilitate cleaning.

Dry Cleaning

If you must do your own dry cleaning use only a non-flammable cleaning fluid. A fluid may be marked "non-explosive" and still be flammable. Never, under any circumstances, use gasoline, naphtha or kerosene for garment cleaning purposes. Do the cleaning outside the house, where toxic and other vapors will be quickly dissipated. Store cleaning fluids outside the house in a marked container. Keep hands out of the solvent—use a suction washer. Avoid getting cleaning fluid on clothing or exposed parts of the body. Dry garments or articles thoroughly outside before taking them into the house. Keep children at a safe distance from the cleaning operation.

Nutritious Vegetables

Spinach may be Popeye's favorite vegetable, but to the Wyoming experiment station there are other kinds of greens which have more to recommend them. Two less commonly known leafy vegetables, kale and mustard, are being urged for wider use, while the station indicates some doubt about such old reliables as chard and spinach. Kale and mustard, says E. J. Thiessen, foods and nutrition worker at the station, have a low oxalic acid content, which makes them desirable for cooked greens. Chard and spinach, she said, have a higher oxalic acid content, and there may be some question as to the effect of this substance on the utilization of calcium in the human body.

The average maximum for 26 days in August was 89 degrees. We have had hotter weather, but not for so long a time.

Played it Safe

An astrologer who had foretold the death of one of the mistresses of Louis XI of France, which prediction had been fulfilled, was summoned into the royal presence to hear his own death sentence pronounced as a consequence of his wicked prophesy. "Seeing you know everything," said the King, "tell me, when will you die?" "Three days before your majesty," replied the astrologer. He kept his head.

WILLING TO WAIT

"How dare you swear before my wife," demanded the indignant husband.

"I am very sorry," replied the intoxicated man, "I was unaware that your wife wanted to swear first."

Vacancy Coming Up

There's a tale going around a college campus of a certain English professor who went over to a local apartment house and asked to see the list of people living in it. He didn't have to go through very many names before he found the one he was looking for, and said, "Put my name down for this man's apartment, please. I just flunked him, and he'll be dropping out of school any day now."

Worth the Trouble

"I believe you are thinner than the last time I saw you, Mrs. Jones. Are you taking treatments or dieting to lose weight?" "Oh no, I'm losing weight because of all the trouble I'm having with my new maid." "Why don't you fire her?" "I'm going to just as soon as she worries me down to 140 pounds."

Night Golf

Wife—Well, what excuse have you for coming in this time of night? Hubby—Well, my dear, I was playing golf with some friends and... Wife—What? At 2 a. m.? Hubby—Sure; we were using night clubs.

Old Red Eye

"I hear the sergeant drinks something awful." "Yeah, I tasted it."

"She: 'I'm getting so thin you can count my ribs.' He: 'Gee thanks.'"

I'll never have my face lifted — hope, not after what happened to my Aunt Minnie. She went to a plastic surgeon to have her wrinkles tightened up. He overdid it and now every time she raises her eyebrows it pulls up her stockings.

Antiques today are just furniture that is paid for.

A COMMON FAILING

Passing by a small negro church recently, a traveler was attracted by the organ-like tones of the parson's voice coming from within. He paused to listen to the morning prayer, and learned a new term to describe sin, which was expressed in the following:

"Oh Lord, dis yere little flock ob mine am prone to gossip! Oh Lord, dis yere flock ob mine am prone to bear false witness! Oh, Lord, dis yere flock ob mine am prone to steal! Oh Lord, dis yere flock ob mine am prone to do things which ain't fitten to mention in de house ob de Lord! Oh Master, deliver dem from de prone!"

NO ADVICE WANTED

Smith's legal expenses had been running high, so when he met his lawyer on the street, he said:

"Nice day, isn't it? Remember, I'm not asking you, I'm telling you."

Executive Type

Jeremiah agreed to cut the grass for two dollars, but when Mrs. Stephenson returned home from a shopping tour she found him lolling under a shade tree while another man was painfully pushing the lawnmower over the grass.

"Shame on you, Jeremiah," the lady admonished. "Hiring someone else to do your work for you. How much did you agree to pay him?"

"Two dollars and fifty cents, ma'am," was the lackadaisical reply.

"Why, Jeremiah," exclaimed the startled Mrs. Stephenson, "that's 50 cents more than I agreed to pay you!"

"Ah know dat, Miz Stephenson," was the calm rejoinder, "but it am wuth 50 cents to be boss all afternoon."

Why Work?

The famous psychologist had just delivered a most interesting lecture, and was now conducting a question session.

A timid little man down front held up his hand, and was recognized. "Doctor," he said most respectfully, "did I understand you to say that a good poker player could successfully handle any sort of executive job?"

"That's exactly what I said," was the confident reply. "Tell me, Doctor," asked the little man, "what would a good poker player want with a job?"

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Probe Treatment of U. S. Troops; Steel Accused of Price Monopoly; Army, Navy To Get Needed Oil

Released by Western Newspaper Union
 (EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Horace Greeley's famous advice "Go West, young man," has found plenty of takers since April, 1940, the U. S. census bureau has revealed. Above map is documented to show population increases and decreases in those states most vitally affected by the great westward movement.

COURTHOUSE LEE:

Heat Was On

The heat was on, but good, for Lt. Gen. John C. H. Lee's command at Leghorn, Italy.

In a series of articles, Robert C. Ruark, Scripps-Howard correspondent, sharply criticized Lee, commander of the Mediterranean theater of operations, for forcing enlisted men to live under adverse conditions while allowing officer personnel all possible comforts and privileges.

Gen. Lee

Ruark charged "Courthouse" Lee's command looked like "a combination of junket, political shakedown, misuse of government material, maltreatment of subordinates and a happy hunting ground for desk-bound brass."

As Maj. Gen. Ira T. Wyche, the army's inspector general, left for Italy to investigate the charges, General Lee issued his own reply, claiming the articles were unwarranted and distorted and openly inviting inspection of his theater by the army and the press.

Lee was in command of the large area behind the western front during the last days of the war in Europe when combat soldiers on short leaves in Paris were arrested and fined for failing to have their shoes shined, shirts fully buttoned, helmets on and for other "spit and polish" reasons.

Whether or not the charges against Lee would be substantiated, the army, closely watching its declining enlistment rate, was worried. Full impact of the anti-Lee attitude probably would be reflected in the enlistments — where adverse opinion hurts the worst.

BLAST:

Cadiz Wrecked

The port city of Cadiz, Spain, was digging out from possibly the worst explosion in modern Spanish history after its huge naval arsenal erupted in a titanic blast which killed at least 200 persons and injured between 5,000 and 6,000 others.

Cadiz, a city of 87,000, was described as virtually in a complete shambles, particularly the harbor area, as troops and fire-fighters battled fires which swept the city after chemicals, torpedoes and depth charges had blown up in the original explosion.

Lying on the southern tip of Spain, northwest of Gibraltar, Cadiz is one of the country's greatest ports and a naval base.

PRICE WAR:

First Attack

First blow in the government's avowed fight against rising prices was a blow leveled at the nation's huge, tough steel industry.

Nature of the action followed a previously announced pattern: The federal trade commission charged the steelmakers with conspiring to fix prices and hogtie competition.

The FTC charged that by "destroying price competition" steel producers are able to "dominate and manipulate the markets in which their unorganized customers and consumers must buy."

No immediate comment was forthcoming from the industry which had already gone on record as inviting investigation of its price policies. The complaint specifically named the American Iron and Steel institute of New York and its 100-plus members, including U. S. Steel.

Action came just one month after industry-wide price increases of from $5 to $7 a ton had been put into effect in order, steelmen said, to offset higher costs of coal.

FTC's complaint was linked with the justice department's newly announced investigation of food, clothing and shelter prices in that the department may seek anti-trust actions against steel because of its importance in construction costs.

MILITARY OIL:

Alarm Modified

Official military alarm over the possibility that armed forces use of petroleum products would have to be sharply curtailed this year has been considerably modified by assurances from the industry that military and naval requirements will be given priority over civilian needs.

Whether or not this prospective action will leave the civilian motorist high and dry is still a moot point.

Immediate result is that the ultimatum which the government was planning to send to the industry requiring fulfillment of specific army and navy needs has been withheld because of voluntary industry cooperation.

Drastic government action still remained a possibility, however, if the petroleum industry's promises are not fulfilled or if supplies were found to be inadequate to meet military and naval demands.

The government's official point of view was that fuel oil and aviation gasoline requirements for defense and training purposes must be met regardless of how the domestic economy is affected.

HOLIDAY:

Labor Protest

Ten million working men will register en masse their protest against the Taft-Hartley labor law by taking a work holiday next election day, William Green, American Federation of Labor president, has announced.

Outlining the most intensive program of political action in the history of the AFL, Green said the work holiday will be taken as a measure to get out the largest possible vote against congressmen who voted for the Taft-Hartley act.

He predicted defeat for most of those legislators, adding that he had never seen America's workers "so aroused."

Branching out from domestic issues, Green described labor as being apprehensive about world peace negotiations and U. S. foreign relations. He foresaw a United Nations repeal of the Big Four veto power unless Russia changes its now consistently negative stand.

ONE BILLION:

Debit or Credit

In what was obviously a move to establish another roadblock in the Communist path, the United States canceled a one billion dollar debt owed by Italy, thereby softening considerably the peace treaty with that erstwhile axis nation.

Wiping out of the debt was expected to act as a moral and economic reinforcement to Italy's non-Communist government by enabling it better to curb inflation and restore the country's smashed economy.

A—HEM
Up or Down?

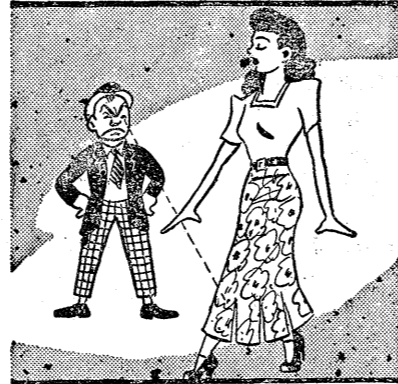

From the atomic age point of view it may be a temperate teapot, but over the teacups and bridge tables the battle of the hem line is being fiercely joined by America's style-conscious opposite sex.

The issue, of course, is the new, low-slung skirt which fashion designers in Paris and New York have decreed shall strike the female tibia at a point only slightly higher than would be reached by a pair of bobby sox at full staff.

Many women like the sub-knee length dresses. Many others do not. Both sides are vociferous in their arguments.

In Dallas, 1,300 militant women organized the Little Below the Knee club as an outright revolt against long skirts. "Why should a girl cover up her legs—they may be her best selling points."

Whether or not the struggle against the gravitating hem line would be futile remained to be seen. Those mysterious molders of fashion in far away places traditionally have exerted an almost hypnotic influence over the ladies. That they would not have their way this time seemed slightly improbable.

And there was another factor: Manufacturers, it was rumored, just aren't making short skirts.

AIRLINES:

Not Just One

Calling for continuation of competition as a stimulus to aviation development, President Truman's air coordinating committee flatly rejected the idea of a single airline doing all of America's commercial flying abroad.

The committee's recommendation was considered a virtual death-blow to the "chosen instrument" policy which figured largely in the Howard Hughes contract investigations.

(During the hearings, Hughes accused Sen. Owen Brewster (Rep., Me.), chairman of the senate committee investigating the national defense program, of offering to call off the inquiry if Hughes would agree to merge his Trans-World airlines with Pan American Airways and support the single international airline plan.)

Three reasons were advanced by the President's committee for their rejection of the plan: That it would retard development; that it would allow a small group of individuals to "interfere in policies of great international interest," and that there is no national security need for it.

"Continuation of competition among U. S. airlines in the international field" was recommended by the committee in its documented report.

HEADLINERS

IN BEVERLY HILLS, Stephan Hero (above) was languishing in jail after his father-in-law, Jose Iturbi, bigtime pianist, had charged him with child-stealing. Children were Hero's own, who had been placed in Iturbi's custody in 1943.

IN SEATTLE, Secretary of Commerce Averill Harriman, former ambassador to Russia, had a harsh word for his former stamping grounds. Soviet leaders, he said, are counting on a U. S. depression to give them "an opportunity to push forward and expand the areas of their domination."

IN SANTA MONICA, Virginia Warren, 18, daughter of California's governor, hee-hawed rumors of a romance between her and Alabama's governor James E. Folsom, 33, widower, father of two children, who flew west for a visit in California. Said Folsom, "No comment."

Nazi Gold Put to Use

American military government authorities in Berlin have revealed a plan whereby about one million dollars in nonmonetary gold looted by the nazis will be sold for the benefit of refugees who cannot return to their own countries. It is being turned over to the International Refugee organization as the first installment of plunder, valued at several million dollars, recovered in Germany and Austria.

Population Gains Nine Million Since 1940

Marking an approximate gain of 9.16 million in the seven years since 1940, population of the U. S. has increased to 141,228,693, on the basis of a recent census bureau estimate.

Area of greatest growth was the west coast, the census bureau reporting that a "great westward movement" has swelled the civilian population of Pacific coast states by more than one-third since 1940. As a result, California, which ranked as the fifth largest state in 1940, moved up into third place ahead of Illinois and Ohio which dropped back to fourth and fifth.

California also had the greatest numerical gain—2,485,000, followed by Michigan with 797,000, Ohio with 594,000, Washington with 435,000, Texas with 419,000, Oregon with 361,000 and Florida with 358,000. Those figures apply only to civilian populations of the states.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON TEXT FOR AUGUST 31—Proverbs 6:6-11; 18:9; 24:30-32; Ecclesiastes
5:12.
MEMORY SELECTION—Whatever thy

Ecclesiastes 9:10.

cation; used by permission.

By WILLIAM CULBERTSON, D. D.
Of The Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

WISE indeed is that legislator who understands that there are two extremes to be avoided in dealing with the problems of the working man. The one extreme is that heartless, cruel exploitation of labor which grinds men to powder, which deals with individuals as chattel. The other extreme is to provide such an amount of free time for the individual that both his personal life and economic prosperity are in danger.

Work is good. It is well to keep in mind that before the fall man was commanded to tend the garden. Perhaps to some of us that command is not a command to work, because the evidences of sin in a cursed creation were not present!

Life without purpose, life without activity for good, would be vain and actually intolerable.

I. An Illustration of Prudence and a Warning Against Indolence (Prov. 6:6-11; 18:9).

THE illustration from the creature world is apt. Ants, as this scripture states, have no overseer, and yet they are diligent in providing for the time of need.

It would seem as though they are constantly active in caring for present and future needs. In Palestine, where they may be active throughout the year, there is still the need of stored provisions for the rainy season, and so it is true that the ant gathers food in the harvest for future need.

Anyone who is tempted to be indolent would be wise to consider the ways of the ant, and to manifest as much concern for present and future needs.

The sluggard is described as one asleep, as one who is never satisfied, but constantly wants more slumber. Such folding of the hands, such indolence, brings poverty, and that poverty comes as a robber.

Indolence is not mere passivity. The man who fails to work is not guilty of omitting to do what he should do, but he is actually a robber of society. There is an active element involved in indolence; not only has the man failed to contribute, but, in addition, the good that he might have done has remained undone. The sluggard is therefore a brother to the destroyer (Prov. 18:9).

II. An Illustration of Indolence and a Lesson in Prudence (Prov. 24:30-32).

IT IS striking that the Word of God presents the ant as the illustration of prudence, but when it comes to an illustration of indolence it directs our attention to man.

The illustration is that of the man who is lazy, who is void of understanding. The Preacher visits him. Going to his field and vineyard, he finds it grown over with thorns, covered with vetches, and the stone wall broken down.

Instead of citing the particular lessons learned, the Preacher simply observes that he looked on, thought deeply, and received instruction. Perhaps the best antidote to laziness is to see it in its inaction. The squalid conditions, the inability to cope with emergencies that we normally see in the life of the man who wants only ease are sufficient to warn most of us against it.

Entirely apart from the dignity of labor, the homely recompense of being able to meet our own needs is the compensation of self-respect that initiative and resourcefulness bring. May we have a higher goal as we labor than merely providing for our own needs, though this is certainly important. Beyond it, of course, is the ability to help others also (cf. Eph. 4:28).

III. A God-Given Reward for Labor (Eccles. 5:12).

ONE of the great compensations of faithful labor is sleep. This passage speaks of the sleep of the laboring man as sweet. When as Christians we have fulfilled our duty, when we have given an honest day's work, the recompense of the Lord is surcease from labor.

The great stress of the Word of God is similarly on the man in authority doing that which is right for those who labor under him, and on the laborer, to be worthy of his hire. Thus does the Bible guarantee a cordial and happy relationship between employer and employee. When either party departs from biblical standards, chaos results.

Here is a plan as up-to-date as the present hour, as workable as the most precise mechanical device ever made. All that is necessary is that the Word of God be followed.

More from the private notebook of your Michigan Marco Polo:

We stirred up things with our critical blast against lagging state parks in the Upper Peninsula by our personal experiences in four parks from Lake Gogebic to the Straits. Now comes an interesting letter from Harry H. Whiteley, a veteran member of the state conservation commission and a newspaper editor at Dowagiac. Harry calls em as he sees em. He has been doing this for years. We can't recall when he withheld a punch. He has contributed thousands of hours to public service.

"Your comment as to parks, ok as far as it goes, does not hit the spot", says Harry. "The lack of park facilities is purely due to a lack of money. We are obligated to operate parks with inadequate manpower.

"Until we get a different attitude on the part of legislators, we cannot do any part of a job in our parks. Everybody wants more and better parks, but no one pins the direct responsibility where it belongs, on the legislature and on the budget office. Give us money and we will give you park service."

State parks are visited literally by hundreds of thousands of people each year. They are popular, and rightly so. They afford an opportunity for wholesome recreation and much needed relaxation.

Michigan is way ahead of the average state in its public recreation program. It recently started to purchase 100,000 acres in the southeastern section of the state near Detroit, and it is committed to buy some 20,000 acres in the Porcupine Mountains state park area in the Upper Peninsula.

This acquisition of land has promoted a new "gripe" which I have been hearing with increasing frequency. It is this: The state is ever seeking to acquire more and more land, but it is ever neglecting to open up this land for public use.

Surly one of the big jobs ahead is the development of state lands, not the purchase of more land. How can this development be financed?

To remedy the lack of funds whereby the state might provide better and more facilities — a "must" if the public is to use the land — the conservation commission sponsored a bill in the 1947 legislative session, this measure — House Bill 289 — proposed to give the commission authority to charge (if it desired to do so) a public fee for three things: Admission into a park, parking within a state park, and camping overnight within a state park. The bill was defeated in the Senate.

We have no delusions that our views are any better than anyone else's. But I have always felt that it is one thing to charge admission into a state-owned park; it was quite another thing to charge a fee for the use of SPECIAL service to those who asked for them. If you wish to reserve a locker in a bath-house for your clothes, why shouldn't you pay a reasonable fee for this privilege? If you wish to use a log cabin at Mirror Lake in the Porcupine Mountains, as we did, why shouldn't you pay a reasonable fee? If you wish to reserve a camping area for your own use, why shouldn't you pay a reasonable fee for it?

A use fee, limited to special services such as these, would be one happy solution of the problem as presented so frankly by Mr. Whiteley, conservation commission member. Those who desire better park facilities should be given an opportunity to help pay for them. We predict that such a use fee is coming in Michigan.

No News Is Good News

The Herald likes to give its readers complete news. And we know that names make news. But we do not want your name in the news as a holiday accident casualty. Please observe the National Safety Council's advice to take it easy in traffic and be on the alert for other drivers who are not smart enough to be careful. We don't want to break the news to the other folks that you or some other member of your family fell victim to a holiday accident. Don't make news that way — please.

The people of the United States last year wasted 99,000 lives, over $6,400,000,000, and an immeasurable amount of well-being and happiness in accidents. That was the stupendous cost of carelessness and indifference! Can YOU afford to have an accident?
