New Marriage Law Has Teeth

LICENSE MUST BE USED IN 30 DAYS, OR BECOMES VOID

Justices, ministers and newlyweds will need to watch their step after Oct. 11 when the new marriage law takes effect.

Under the present act, once a marriage license is issued it is good indefinitely. Not so under the new law which says the license must be used within 30 days and is void after that.

The entire procedure, according to County Clerk F. R. Bulow, is:

The couple first obtains their two health certificates from a physician, which expire in 30 days, showing freedom from venereal disease. Then they apply for their license at the county clerk's office. But they must show the health certificates when they apply.

Five days after the application they can get the license. So far, the procedure is the same under both the old and the new laws. But after Oct. 11 the license must be used within 30 days or it becomes void. If this happens, the couple must start all over again with new health examinations to obtain another license.

The change, Bulow says, was made to prevent dodging of the law's purpose. With licenses six months, or six years old, either or both parties might have contracted venereal disease in the interval. The change aims to prevent this.

Asked what would happen if a justice or a minister married a couple having a license 31 days or more days old, Bulow said:

"They wouldn't be legally married. And that justice or minister would be in plenty of trouble himself."

Antrim County Farm Bureau Selects Roll Call Manager

Spencer Arnold of Central Lake Township has been selected as roll call manager for Antrim County's 1948 membership drive. Antrim County finished the 1947 membership year with 426 members. Mr. Arnold says we can do as well this year also.

Dues in the Farm Bureau this year will be $10 — with $3.00 remaining in the County treasury instead of $1.00 on the $5.00 plan. This will enable the counties to carry out a much more expanded program to benefit their membership than ever before.

Mr. Arnold has chosen a staff of four people as quartermen to assist him in organizing the roll call work. Those chosen are Joe Higgins, Creswell group, Wren Chellis, Ellsworth group, Mrs. Wm. Ballard, White Valley, Leo Montgomery of the Karney group.

Walter Chellis, Jr. of Ellsworth tops the list for the 1948 roll, being the first to take out a Farm Bureau membership for 1948. In order to take out Blue Cross Hospitalization, a service which Farm Bureau offers to its membership and available only through an organized group. There are six Farm Bureau groups in the county now enrolled in the Blue Cross.

POTATO GRADING DEMONSTRATION AT ELLSWORTH

All potato graders, loaders, and dealers in Antrim County are urged to attend the special Potato Grading meeting to be held Tuesday evening, October 14 at the Ellsworth Community Hall at 8 P. M. This is one of a series of potato meetings being held throughout the state to demonstrate potato grades and standards and provide an opportunity for discussing the same.

Uniform interpretation of the standards will be stressed so that a better understanding of grades will be had before the heavy shipping season begins. Those attending the meetings will have an opportunity to see potatoes graded and hear the grading reason explained. Demonstrations will be conducted by Earl I. Biddick, Federal Supervisor for the Fruit and Vegetable Inspection Service of the State Department of Agriculture which is cooperating in the demonstrations.

These meetings were scheduled as a result of the Governor's Study Committee for the purpose of eliminating much of the differences in grading as has been experienced the past few years.

Anyone having to do with the grading, shipping, or loading of potatoes is urged by the County Agricultural Agent, Walter G. Kirkpatrick, to attend this meeting.

MARRIAGES

Ingalls — Brown

Miss Dorothy Evelyn Ingalls, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Ingalls of Chestonia and Henry J. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. of East Jordan, spoke their marriage vows Saturday evening, October 4, at 7:30 o'clock. The double ring service was read at the Methodist parsonage by Rev. Howard G. Moore.

An altar was formed with tall white baskets of salmon pink and white gladioli and baby mums with tall white lighted tapers. The bride descended the stairs on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage, by the strains of Lohengrins wedding march played by Mrs. G. E. Moore. Mrs. Moore also sang "I love you truly." The bride chose a white satin gown fashioned in princess style with lace yoke and fitted sleeves. Her finger tip veil was held in place by a halo of seed pearls. She carried a bridal bouquet of white roses. Miss Doris Griffin was bridesmaid and wore a formal gown of Aqua marquette trimmed with small bows of peach velvet and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The bride's brother Glen Ingalls was best man.

For her daughters wedding, Mrs. Ingalls wore a black dress with black accessories and wore a corsage of pink rose buds. The mother of the groom wore a navy blue dress with pink trim and a corsage of pink rose buds. Both of the young people's grand mothers were present at the wedding. Mrs. Eunice Sommerville, East Jordan and Mrs. Maud Grover of Detroit. Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the groom's parents. The brides table was attractively centered with a four tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom, white tapers, and vases of white gladioli and baby mums. About 100 friends and relatives attended the reception and were served with

M. at the Methodist parsonage. Rev. Howard G. Moore read the single ring ceremony. Their only attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Vale Shepard.

For her wedding the bride chose a blue suit and wore a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Shepard wore a grey dress with a corsage of pink glads. Immediately following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the home of the brides mother on the Boyne City road to twenty eight relatives and a few friends. The table was centered with a three tiered wedding cake and bouquets of mixed asters on either side of the cake.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Grutsch left, after the dinner, on a short honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls. They returned Sunday and are making their home on their recently purchased farm known as the Ruhling farm on the Boyne City road.

The young couple left to spend a honeymoon at Green River Lodge and Detroit and will make their home in Detroit. For travelling the bride wore a taupe gabardine suit with brown accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Out of town guests here for the wedding were: Mrs. Maud Grover, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Grover and son Ross, Mrs. Josie Ostrum, Mr. Harry Wilcox, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Topolewski, Mrs. Henry Posmara, Mrs. Lawrence Martin and daughter Harriet, Mrs. Gertrude Martin, Mrs. Lela Remmert and son Walter all of Detroit; Mrs. Mae Crandall, Earl Crandall and son Roger, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Barber of Charlevoix.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS
Solons Ponder Special Session;
Great Britain to Leave Palestine;
Farm Land Values at Peak Level

Released by WNU Features

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

DECISION:

Up to Congress

Congress had the decision, as a direct gift from President Truman, on whether or not to call a special session this year to deal with interim European relief.

Mr. Truman requested congressional committees concerned with appropriations and foreign relief to meet as soon as possible "to consider the urgent need for aid to Europe." The President indicated he would call a special session, probably early in December, only if committee response is favorable.

He estimated that $580,000,000 would be needed to carry out the relief program to March 31, 1948, for France, Italy and Austria. France and Italy, he observed, might not "survive this critical winter as free and independent nations" if they are not given help.

Congressional opinion, however, by no means was united in favor of extending aid this winter. Speaker of the House Joseph Martin predicted that a special session would convene, but he said that a frank and complete statement by the President on spending needs would be essential.

Most of the people's choices in congress are inclined to be extremely wary. They fear that extended food shipments abroad will continue to affect prices at home unless prices are controlled, and that subject is dynamic.

Finally, the Republicans, who are in the majority, seem to be taking a dim view of the gravity of the situation as stressed by the administration. Many of them don't believe all they hear.

All factors considered, it was doubtful that any action would be taken before January.

EXODUS:

British Style

This was the real Exodus, 1947: Great Britain will pull out of Palestine and turn the whole sorry mess over to the United Nations, for better or worse.

Arthur Creech-Jones, British colonial secretary, made the formal announcement of the new official British policy before the U. N. general assembly's special committee on Palestine.

Regarded as the most important policy statement Britain has made about Palestine since the white paper of 1939 restricting Jewish immigration into the Holy Land, the announcement said, in effect:

"We've had all we can take; this is a problem for the world at large to solve."

Great Britain, it was disclosed, is in "substantial" agreement with the recommendation for partitioning Palestine into Jewish and Arab states. It believes that independence should be granted as soon as possible.

Thus, the touchy puzzle of little Palestine, which long had had a fiery international significance in the minds of many of the world's peoples, became truly international in scope.

And in the United Nations, uneasy delegates may have felt that they had been handed a crown of thorns.

HEADLINERS

IN WASHINGTON . . . Sen. J. Howard McGrath (Dem., R. I.) (above) received juicy nomination as chairman of Democratic national committee after Postmaster General Robert Hannegan resigned.

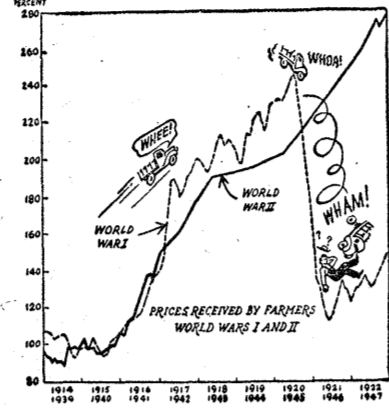

IN DUBOIS, PA. . . Charles Mike, 78, sold his grocery business a year ago, got tired of sitting around, opened another store, sells his goods at miraculously reduced prices because he wants "to divide my profits with my old customers."

IN INDIANAPOLIS . . . Floyd Bains, having a bedtime cigarette, discovered his mattress was on fire, seized his shotgun, fired two blasts out the window, quick-witted neighbors understood the alarm signal, rushed in to quench the flames.

Poultryman Answers 'Egg Withholding' Charges

Denying emphatically that egg stocks are being withheld from the consumer, Dr. Cliff D. Carpenter, president of the Institute of American Poultry Industries, listed three reasons which he claims are responsible for high egg prices today. They are:

1. Purchasing power for food is at an all-time high; 2. Prices of competitive foods are also at all-time high levels, and 3. Industry did not

FARM LAND

Values at Peak

Prices of U. S. farm land provide one of the most reliable of all inflation barometers, reflecting directly the level of farm income.

Today's average farm values, according to the bureau of agricultural economics' farm land price index, are only eight points below the 1920 inflationary peak which immediately preceded a sudden and disastrous drop in land values.

The index now reads 162; however, between March 1 and July 1, 1947, there was only a three-point increase, smallest over-all rise that has occurred in any reporting period in recent years.

(Above graph shows, not the price index, but comparative percentage increases in farm land values for the periods following World Wars I and II. On a percentage basis, the present peak is already above the boom level reached in 1920.)

Despite ominous inflationary trends, nevertheless, indexes in 11 states turned downward between March 1 and July 1 for the first time since 1941. In 10 more states, the indexes remained constant, while in the remaining 27, the movement continued distinctly upwards.

The downturn in 11 states indicates that the thought is spreading among farmers that prices cannot continue aloft indefinitely, and there is growing evidence of caution and preparation for a possible break in farm commodity prices which inevitably would lead to a reduction in land values.

SOLUTION:

Not Passive

Mohandas K. Gandhi, who has spent most of his life preaching and practicing the doctrine of passive resistance, now believes that there probably is just one way to stop the rioting and persecution which is rife in India.

That one way, he said, is war. A Hindu war against Moslem Pakistan might be the only way to stop Moslems from persecuting Hindus and Sikhs in their new dominion since the partitioning of India.

Violence in India, however, has not been one-sided. Moslems have slaughtered Hindus and Sikhs by the thousands in Pakistan, and Hindus and Sikhs have killed off thousands of Moslems in India.

But Gandhi said he would not rest until every Hindu and Sikh driven from Pakistan had been returned to his home "with honor and dignity."

War is no joke, he said sadly, as he predicted that the Indian government might have to take that course, but he could not advise anyone to put up with injustice.

CORN SAFE:

85 Per Cent

Another milestone along the path toward getting a hungry world fed was passed when the U. S. department of agriculture announced that the nation's corn crop, key to the domestic and international food crisis, was considered 85 per cent safe from frost damage by the end of September.

This was good news, particularly since rains and summer drought already had reduced the corn crop to the near danger point, and any further loss through frost would have been a major setback.

Further optimism was engendered by the agriculture department's revelation that the crop had progressed sufficiently to insure good quality corn for at least four-fifths of the out-turn.

In Washington, government leaders were contented to know that the principal weapon of their foreign policy would not be too weak this year.

YOU CAD, SIR:

Soviet Insult

"This is an affair of honor," thought Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, U. S. ambassador to Moscow, when he read a vituperative article in the Russian Literary Gazette in which the author, one Boris Garbatov, drew an odious comparison between President Truman and Adolf Hitler.

Garbatov, who, like all other Russian writers, is probably a tool of the Communist press, accused Mr. Truman of seeking "world domination through Wall Street," and charged that he was "straining for the laurels of the corporal from Munich."

But when Ambassador Smith lodged an angry protest in Moscow, Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov heaved up on his haunches and charged back.

His government was not responsible for all newspaper articles, he said, and then launched his favorite tirade against the U. S. press: "The U. S. press from day to day inserts lying and slanderous articles about the U.S.S.R. and its statesmen and inflames hostility between peoples."

Smith had said just about the same thing in his note of protest which accused the Soviet press of disseminating "an increasing flood of half-truths, distortions of truth and utter falsehoods about my country and my government."

But, free speech or no free speech, the important thing was that Molotov did not even come close to apologizing for the insult to Mr. Truman.

U. S. TASK:

Ford Style

Henry Ford II made the news headlines with a speech in which he placed, more or less, the entire responsibility of rebuilding the world for peace on the shoulders of the U. S.

"Unless the whole world achieves greater wealth and security, America cannot hope to maintain high living standards."

Democracy and the high productive capacity of the United States are inseparable and interdependent, Ford asserted. He scoffed at other nations for "taking unworkable political shortcuts and using phony economic systems."

"Communism is the kind of cockeyed notion I am referring to."

Whatever else Ford's remarks might have been, they were sure to make fine ammunition for another Soviet volley against the "bloated capitalists" and Wall street dictators.

FLAPS DOWN:

Production, Too

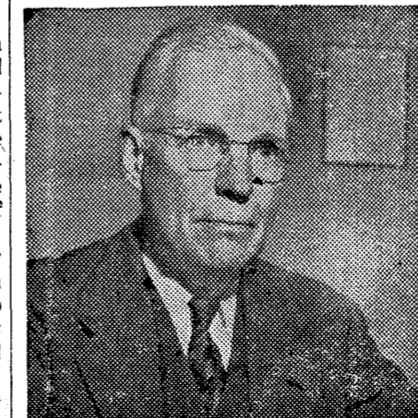

U. S. warplanes may fly at speeds above 650 miles per hour, but the aircraft industry itself is far from jet-propelled now, industry spokesmen are complaining, pointing out that present production is below the 1939 level.

Presenting its case for long-range planning, the industry reminded President Truman's special air policy commission of the contrast between Russia's surge toward air power and America's postwar dissipation of factories, tools and skills.

Said Oliver P. Echols, former AAF major general, now president of the Aircraft Industries Association, ungrammatically: "I think Russia is doing everything it possibly can to develop air power, and I think they can."

The point, said the industry in needling for greater air power, is that the U. S. could not expand from its present position rapidly enough to meet an emergency.

On Food Committee

Albert S. Goss, master of the National Grange, farmers' organization, has been named by President Truman as a member of the 26-man committee to work out food conservation program in U. S. to help feed poverty-stricken foreign countries.

'Homing' Missile

One of the new and fearsome weapons that will be used if America should be attacked by aircraft or any form of aerial missile is an electronically guided flying explosive that seeks out its target.

James C. Coe, radio engineer at the U. S. naval air missile test center at Pt. Mugu, Calif., said that the missiles have been test-launched from land, air and ships to determine speed and performance.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

How to Tell You're Getting Old

Doc Walters gave me this formula: It's a sure-fire sign you're getting old when you resent other people having a good time.

And the Doc means it hasn't much to do with age. There are old folks in our town who get a big kick out of seeing other people enjoy themselves—seems to keep them young in spirit, with a twinkle in their eyes!

And there are some others who resent the young folks going fishing; who feel that community games and dances are just a waste of time; or who criticize temperate people for enjoying a mellow glass of beer with friends.

They're often well-intentioned folks, too. But from where I sit, the minute we criticize our neighbors for enjoying wholesome pleasures—like a game of horseshoes, a glass of beer, or an afternoon's fishing—it's a sure sign we're growing old (in spirit anyway) no matter what our age is.

Wake up, mister, it's time to get up! The hour is 3:30 a.m.

First, get the sand out of you eyes and start a quick fire under the boiler. The boiler generates steam, and steam pasteurizes milk so it will be safe for public use.

Next plug in two milking machines. Into your spick and span white parlor — and such is its name — come 40 placid, temperamental, valuable and much pampered cows, four at a time, for their regular morning "giving" of milk. You don't milk the cows; the cows let down their milk. If a stranger is in the parlor, the cows won't enter. Feminine temperament, they say.

At the rate of about 20 cows an hour, you're through the first of two milkings bees during your work-day. And then, of course, thrown in for good measure to keep you awake, are such miscellaneous chores as getting feed to the mangers in the pen or loafing barn, bedding down the barn for the herd, feeding the heifers and a couple hundred chickens, and other odds and ends until it's milking time again at 4 p.m.

Such is the daily routine of Earl Parks, husky and energetic, one of four men employed by Ernest W. Reuhs who owns and operates the Rosemont dairy farm at Caledonia. Caledonia is 17 miles southwest of Grand Rapids in Kent county.

Mr. Reuhs, one of Michigan's outstanding dairy farmers, is president of the Michigan Guernsey Breeders Association. He began farming in 1918, nearly 30 years ago. He started the Rosemont dairy farm in 1921, added a second farm in 1927 and a third farm in 1946, making 360 acres in all. He sells his own bottled milk in his own store in Grand Rapids — 90,000 gallons a year!

All this we learned a few days ago when we pulled our 19-foot house trailer into the farm yard adjoining the Rosemont Farm. We spent part of a day and two nights there. We learned much about life on a Michigan's dairy farm and some of its problems.

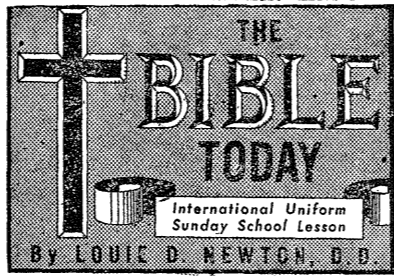

Michigan's dairy industry — seventh among all the states — grossed $207 millions last year. That is aside from the investment of cows and buildings and land. More so than the average Mid-West state, Michigan has made rapid gains in dairying. Rosemont at Caledonia is a symbol of this growth.

"The cows keep us. We don't keep the cows", said Mr. Reuhs, whose German name is pronounced "Rees." "There's nothing very fancy here at Rosemont. We do produce high quality milk on an economical basis. Our pen barn enables the cows to run loose. Feed to the mangers comes by gravity from the barn loft. And so does the bedding, tons and tons of it. "This straw becomes valuable fertilizer. A manure loader spreads it upon the fields where it helps to maintain soil fertility and to produce better yields of crops. See that tall corn over there? The result of lots of manure. The cows help the soil to produce more. As I said, the cows keep us. We don't keep them."

When you take a glass of pasteurized milk in your hand think, of Earl Parks. Getting up at 3:30 a.m. is no picnic, especially on cold winter mornings.

It reminds us of the story they tell about the Danish farmer who told a visitor that he drank 18 to 20 cups of coffee each day. "Good heavens, man!" exclaimed the visitor. "Doesn't that much coffee keep you awake?" The farmer nodded in agreement and replied: "Yes, it helps."

If every Michigan dairy farmer drank 18 to 20 cups of coffee a day, it wouldn't surprise us one bit. They put in long hours at work. They invest hard-earned dollars in livestock and buildings. They well earn the relative small sum which we, the consumer pay for a quart of milk — nature's perfect food.

Apostle of Better Things

Lesson for October 12, 1947

THIS lesson opens, Hebrews 3:1-8, with the explanation that Jesus Christ is the minister of better things in that he is the apostle and high priest of our profession, perfectly faithful to him that appointed him. The comparison is made with Moses, who was also faithful, but within a very small circle as contrasted with the Son of God.

Called to God an high priest after the order of Melchisedec, Christ, the author of eternal salvation, dealt no longer with symbols, but offered himself as the perfect lamb to take away our sins. "And for this cause he is the mediator of the new covenant (testament), that by means of death, for the redemptions of the transgressions that were under the first testament, they which are called might receive the promise of eternal inheritance," Hebrews 9:15.

Dr. Newton

Jesus and the Bible

JESUS is introduced in Matthew 4:1-4, as he quotes the Old Testament to Satan in the wilderness temptation. Having been reared by a God-fearing mother, Jesus was familiar with the Bible as a child.

What is the best thing any parent can do for his or her child? I would answer without hesitation: Teach them to hide God's words in their hearts in the impressionable years of youth. A Bible verse learned in youth will serve through all life's testing situations.

"I will not forget Thy Word," Psalms 119:16.

He Helps Us Use the Bible

THE better ministry of Jesus is reflected in the fact that, "We have a great high priest, that is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God. . . . For we have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin. Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need," Hebrews 4:14-16.

Study the example of Jesus in his answers to Satan in the wilderness temptation, and He will teach us when and what to say to Satan. We are not dependent upon our wisdom and words. Our great high priest will supply wisdom and words to match any situation that Satan ever presents.

I think of a story of a junior boy, recently accused of stealing. The boy was the victim of a wicked man who sought to turn circumstantial evidence upon him to cover his own sin. The boy told me that he was innocent. I went with him to the juvenile court. The judge asked him if he was guilty. He looked straight into the eyes of the judge and said:

"Sir, I have not sinned. Who convicted me of this charge?"

The man dropped his head, and said: "Your honor, I ask for the privilege of withdrawing the charge."

His Laws in Our Hearts

"I WILL put my laws on their hearts, and upon their minds also will I write them," Hebrews 10:16. Jesus declares, "I do always the things that please him," and he enables us, by his grace, to do the father's will by his indwelling in our hearts. Thus, his will becomes the law of our lives, through the grace of Jesus Christ.

It is impossible for us to keep the law perfectly, but Christ, the better Christ, becomes our righteousness, and then his law is kept by his grace. In the olden times, men claimed to keep the letter of the law, without the spirit, as in the case of Moses. Now, through the offering of Christ, we are enabled to satisfy the spirit of the law.

The Sufficient Christ

THIS lesson should enhearten every trusting child of God, since it makes clear that, "He is able to save unto the uttermost them that draw near unto God through him," Hebrews 7:25.

He is not only able, but yearns to save unto the uttermost. He wills to save everyone. God has done everything he can do to save every sentient soul on this earth. Those who go to hell do so because they decide to go to hell. It is not the pleasure of God that any should perish, but that all should repent and be saved.

It was examination time in grammar and composition. The teacher directed the class to write a brief account of a base ball game. All the pupils wrote busily except one small boy. Such Ignorance!

Mr. and Mrs. Newrich were staying at an exclusive seaside hotel. One evening at dinner the conversation turned to music, with special reference to Mozart.

"What a coincidence," said Mrs. Newrich. "Only this morning I saw him on the No. 5 bus with his wife; they were going to the beach."

A curious silence followed for the rest of the meal.

As soon as they were alone, her husband spoke to her.

"I told you that when you don't know anything about what's being discussed you're to keep quiet."

"But what did I say wrong?" queried his wife.

"You've been here long enough to know," berated her husband, "that the No. 5 bus does not go to the beach."

Little Keepsake

He was a beetle-browed, hard-looking chap who had been interrupted doing a job on a delicatessen. During the routine questioning, his belongings, among which was a pair of brass knuckles, were inspected. "Be careful with dem knuckles, sarge," he requested a bit bashfully. "They mean something to me."

The knuckles were examined more closely and this inscription was found inside the little finger: "With truest love, from Mildred."

SEEMED TAME, NOW

"Are you the man who was married in a cage of lions?"

"Yes, I'm the man."

"Did it seem exciting?"

"It did then. It wouldn't now."

Parable

"You're getting very bent, old man," said a prosperous businessman to his farmer friend. "Why don't you stand up straight like me?"

"Well," replied the old man, "d'ye see that field of corn?"

"I do," answered the city man. "Why?"

"Well, you'll notice that the full heads hang down, but the empty one stand straight up!"

Identified

Discussing his epitaph, Sir John Strange said, "I want no fuss, nothing fancy. I simply want these words on my stone: 'Here lies a lawyer who always spoke the truth.'"

"But," a friend protested, "no one will know who rests there."

"Oh, yes, they will know," Sir John replied. "All who read will say, 'That's strange!'"

Played His Cards Right

"I hope you enjoyed your game with the major," said the hostess to one of her guests. "He's a very clever hand at cards, isn't he?"

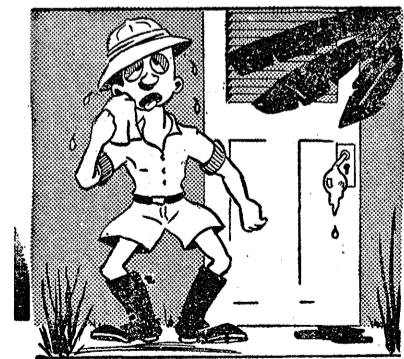

"He certainly is," replied the guest. "He started by telling my fortune and now he's counting it."

Cold weather in India, the noted author said in the Bengal section of "Following the Equator," is merely "a conventional phrase come into use through the necessity of distinguishing between weather which will melt a brass doorknob and weather which will only make it mushy."

Presidential Life Span Not Governed by Voters

The U. S. presidency is more of a man-killing job than it used to be, according to figures furnished by Representative Bell (Dem., Mo.).

Statistics gathered by the Missouri representative shows that the first 15 presidents took office at an average age of 54 and lived an average of 11 years after they left the White House. The next 14 men who held the office ending with Calvin Coolidge, were inaugurated at an average of 49 and lived an average of 5.9 years after retiring from the presidency.

Representative Bell presented a bill to the judiciary subcommittee to give all former presidents a pension of two-thirds of his average annual salary while in office.

On the basis of the present salary, Ex-Pres. Herbert Hoover would receive $50,000 a year pension. Federal income taxes would cut that down to a little under $25,000. All former presidents have not been as fortunate as President Hoover, and the pension would have been welcomed in many cases. Herbert Hoover has retained most of the wealth he accumulated before becoming president.

After leaving office Calvin Coolidge added to his bank account by articles in a national publication.

Congress has provided a pension for widows of former presidents in every case, although few if any have been left in need of financial support. Those still alive have been spending considerable time and money in various charity endeavors.

Milk Ranks as Major Food In Diet of American Home

More than 50 million quarts of fresh milk and cream a day are distributed to consumers through doorstep deliveries and stores. Milk and its products comprise more than 25 per cent of the foods estimated to be consumed annually by the average American.

Milk is one of the largest single sources of cash farm income and was 14 per cent of all farm income in 1945—larger than hogs, over twice wheat or eggs, and three times cotton or tobacco. Cash farm income from milk was exceeded for the first time by cattle and calves. One out of every 15 U. S. families is dependent on milk for a livelihood.

Milk production on the farms continues above prewar averages and demand for milk and dairy products is strong. As an economical food containing vital components of the diet, the ever-widening use of milk seems destined to bring about an increased scale of milk production on farms.

Americans enjoy the best milk in the world and economical distribution, sanitation, pasteurization and other safeguards have made our system of milk supply and distribution a world standard.

London's Ice Fairs

The unusual appearance of vast ice fields in the heart of London has resulted in festivals known as "frost fairs." At one of these fairs, in 1814, some 30 flag-bearing booths were set up on the ice. Many served refreshments. Sheep roasted on the ice and served as "Lapland mutton," sold at a shilling a slice. Musicians provided for dancing; skittles were played; horse and coach races, puppet shows, merry-go-rounds and swings supplied the gaiety of country-fair amusements. Printers set up small hand presses on the ice, running off broadsides about the fair. They also collected six pence apiece from hundreds of patrons for printing their names, the date and the place. John Evelyn's diary described one fair as "a Bacchanalian triumph or carnival on the water." The diarist also recorded the presence of a King Charles and his queen.

PENINSULA...
(Edited by Mrs. E. Hayden)

Kenneth Russell of Maple Lawn farm spent this week across the Straits.

Clayton Healey of Willow Brook farm, who has been in the dairy business for several years, sold his route and equipment to the City Dairy in Boyne City, Wednesday. The change took place Oct. 1. Mr. Healey plans to confine his efforts to general farming.

When one of Orvel Bennett's farm horses did not show up with the rest, Wednesday, he went to look for it and found it shot to death in his back pasture, locally known as the old Haskins place. Apparently the horse had been shot at close range with a high powered rifle. The charge entered the back of its shoulder and came out its breast. Why anyone would be in that locality with a gun this time of year is a mystery. There is some talk of deer shining. Mr. Bennett had heard a shot in that direction several days before while he was picking apples at Cherry Hill but thought nothing of it. The animal had been dead some time and was so decomposed it had to be hauled out of the swamp by the Nicloy Caterpillar and buried.

Silo filling is finished except for a small amount. It is impossible to get help for any hand work.

Mrs. Clayton Healey of Willow Brook came home from Little Traverse hospital, Petoskey, Sunday, bringing home little Miss Healey who arrived Monday night to make her home with the Healeys. Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Healey and the little Miss and her brothers Fritz and Terry were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Healey at Far View farm, Sunday.

Mrs. W. E. Gray, The Heberling sales lady, and her helper, Mr. Preble of Petoskey were on the Peninsula, Wednesday, in the interest of her company.

Mrs. Charles Arnott of Maple Row farm went to Petoskey, Friday, to have a small growth removed from the corner of her eye. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Ray Loomis of Gravel Hill, north side, and Mrs. F. K. Hayden of Pleasant View farm. They all called on Mrs. Clayton Healey and little new daughter at Little Traverse hospital.

Mrs. F. K. Hayden of Pleasant View farm had a cousin and family of Big Rapids spend Sunday evening with her Sept. 28.

The Reich boys, Buster and Billy, of Lone Ash farm are becoming quite handy. They just recently completed a cement block hen house for their father, A. Reich, at Lone Ash farm, and last week worked on the foundation of Lewie Kitson's house on the Boyne City - Ironton road, and Saturday moved their mixer to their brother Dan Reich's farm in Advance Dist. to put a cement floor in his barn.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Winger of Lansing, who occupied one of the Whale Cottages for the week end, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lance Russ on Lake Shore Dr.

Mr. Lance Russ of Lake Shore Dr. is the champion fisherman, having caught 13 steelhead over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Fitch Tooley and little daughter of Lake Shore Dr. spent the week end across the Straits with Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Tooley of Boyne

City at their hunting cabin.

Mr. and Mrs. F. K. Hayden had for Sunday night supper guests Miss Arlene Hayden and Kenneth Staley of Charlevoix, Miss Betty Lou Hayden of Dearborn, Miss Ardith Welda of East Jordan. Also Mr. and Mrs. Leo Beyer of near East Jordan who expect to make a trip to Arizona very soon. The young folks called at Orchard Hill also.

Miss Alfred Crowell and children, Ruth Ann and Bobby were Sunday dinner guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Gaunt in Three Bells Dist.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Gaunt and Mr. David Gaunt had for Saturday evening guests, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Graham of East Shore farm and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Myers and daughter Eleanor of Mountain Dist., and for Sunday afternoon company, Mr. and Mrs. James Earl and Mr. Walter Gaunt of Charlevoix.

Everyone took advantage of Teacher's Institute Thursday and Friday to have the kids help with the farm work.

Discovered Helium
Helium was discovered on the sun many years before it was found on the earth. The previously unknown element was noticed during a spectroscopic study of an eclipse.

Keep Old Heads
Certain government stations in head-hunting Borneo keep a few old heads on hand to be borrowed by native tribes for ceremonial occasions.

Foreign Flags Take Over
At the close of the 19th century only 10 per cent of our foreign commerce was carried in American ships. A century before, our ships had carried 90 per cent of our trade with countries across the seas.

Elastic Cloth
A new development is an elastic cloth made without rubber. The trick is to curl rayon thread into a spiral—like a spring—before the cloth is woven. Electron heating gives a uniform and permanent set to the spiral thread. The fabric does not lose its elastic properties by washing or ironing.

Arctic Plants
Some plants, such as cabbages, grow faster and bigger in parts of the Arctic than they do in the temperate zone or the tropics. Possible explanation is that the daylight is continuous during the Arctic summer, providing more growing time; at Fort Yukon, Alaska, on a day that varies from 65 degrees F. to 95 degrees F. there would be as much growing time as in two ordinary days in the tropics.

One Last Meanness

Old Angus MacNab had been a hard, cruel man, and among his relatives the news of his suicide had been received with more rejoicing than sorrow. But his son, Sandy, in whose home the old man had met his quietus, persisted in moping over the affair.

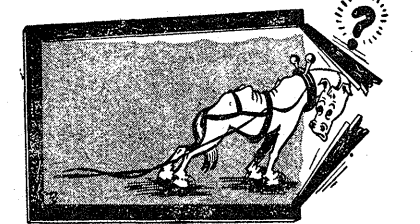

"Sandy," admonished a brutally frank acquaintance, "why do you carry on so? The old man was a regular torment to everybody, and you know, down deep in your heart, you're glad he's gone."

"That I am," admitted Sandy. "It's cruel to admit it, but it's true."

"You're not thinking he suffered, when he took off, are you? He just turned on the gas and went to sleep. So what's eating on you?"

"Mon, oh, mon," groaned Sandy, "just look at this terrible gas bill the old coot left me!"

HORSE PLAY

Critic—The picture of the horse is good, but where is the wagon?
Artist—Oh, the horse will draw that.

Befuddled
A college professor, well known for his absent-mindedness, was gazing reflectively at the passing landscape when the train conductor stopped for his ticket. The professor searched himself frantically, but to no avail.

"That's all right, professor," the conductor said. "I know you, and I'm sure you have your ticket. When you find it, just mail it to the company."

"It isn't that," the professor said earnestly. "What I want to know is, where in the world am I going?"

Evidence
A man, evidently drunk, sagged down in the seat in the lobby beside a clergyman. "Fine (hic) day," he began.

"Yes, it is," from the clergyman. "This's fine hotel."

"Yes, I find it very comfortable." "Wontcha have a drink?" the man asked, encouraged by the courteous replies of his chance acquaintance.

The pastor's face set severely. "No thank you," he said, "I never indulge."

"Shay, watcha giving me? You gotcha collar on backwards now."

Nothing to Lose
One night recently the quiet air of the Birmingham Police Department was disturbed by the voice of a darky calling over the telephone: "Help! Police! I've been robbed!" "You've been robbed?" confirmed the voice of the call officer.

"We-ell—half-robbed," cried the darky.

"Half-robbed?" demanded the police. "What do you mean—half-robbed?"

"I didn't have no money," the darky replied.

THAT EXPLAINS IT

Diner—Waitress, the service is terrible. You gave that man at the next table a steak twice as large as mine. Where's the manager?
Waitress—That man is the manager.

High Finance
After vainly trying to collect $40 due him from one of his customers, the colored man consulted his lawyer.

"What reason," his lawyer asked, "does he give for not paying this money?"

"Boss," said the colored gentleman anxiously, "he's gimme a mighty good reason, sah."

"Well, what is it?"
"He done say, Boss, dat he's been own' me dat money so long dat de interest has et it all up."

Passing the Buck
The young lady eyed her escort with extreme disapproval. "That's the fourth time you've gone back for more ice cream and cake, Albert," she said acidly. "Doesn't it embarrass you at all?"

"Why should it?" the hungry fellow shrugged. "I keep telling them I'm getting it for you."

An Also Ran
The dear old lady, wandering about hazily at the wedding reception, came upon a young man in faultless dress.

"Oh," she chirped, "dear me, you're the bridegroom of course?"
"No," he answered sweetly, "I was eliminated in the quarter finals."

"SURE, it's a LIGHT BILL!"

"And I don't mean electric light bill, either. I mean a light electric bill. Because lights are only a small part of it."

It's a cooking bill and a cleaning bill and a heating bill and a cooling bill and a hot-water bill, as well. It covers food preservation and entertainment washing and ironing and a lot of other things besides. It's the biggest bargain in my family budget. When the cost of practically everything else has gone UP, the price of my electric service has stayed modestly LOW. I know I'm getting twice as much electricity for my budget dollar as Mother did 20 years ago—and electricity is doing many, many more jobs than it did then.

"It's a LIGHT bill, of course!"
