Turkey Shoot Successful Affair

LARGE CROWD OF WOULD-BE RIFLE SHOOTERS IN ATTENDANCE

Regular fall weather, a little snow, a little wind, a good natured crowd of about 150 would-be rifle shooters, combined to make the Annual Turkey Shoot a bang-bang success.

No other sporting event of the season permits so many individuals to take part. No need to sit on the side lines, you can shoot, work, or kibitz. Not too many of the fellows were on the beam — evidence that such an event is a MUST to get your gun and eye limbered up for the deer season, which opens this week Saturday. And to prove that East Jordan hunters look for horns, not one shot at the paper-mache man who occasionally walked out instead of the deer.

And the Boy Scouts really put the "bee" on some of the old boys who thought they could shoot. Don Bowers took a fine turkey away from some seasoned deer hunters. Other Daniel Boones winning turkeys included Dr. Litzberger, John Hodge, Eldon Neumann, Ray Dennison, Stewart Atkinson, Ted Malpass, J. Neumann, Dick Malpass, Joe Bugai, Mr. Bell, and Mr. Housding.

The object of the shoot is a good clean sporting time, and not a money making proposition. The Club made a profit of 50 cents on the days events.

The youngsters had a whale of a good time shooting at a bounding rabbit with their 22's. A list of the winners of the chickens in this event is not available.

Michigan Mirror

"America will have lost its traditional character if it refuses (fuel and famine) relief under proper auspices," said Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg in an address at the University of Michigan.

The senator's remarks, favoring additional food and coal for Western Europe, were expressed at Ann Arbor in ceremonies commemorating the Dutch settlement of Michigan 100 years ago.

Simultaneously, and by coincidence, Governor Kim Sigler announced the Michigan Citizens' Food Committee led by Prof. Herman J. Wyngarden, head of the Michigan State College economics department.

Senator Vandenberg added an important "if": "We must frankly canvass our own resources lest we impair our own economy and thus vindicate the sinister hopes of those who expect our economic collapse to end all democracy for keeps. . . We must know the total bill."

Vandenberg declared we should strive for an "unpartisan American foreign policy."

Governor Sigler stressed our patriotic obligation. "It is not a question of whether we agree with the President's program. The President of the United States has asked the people to cooperate. Those responsible should know the food situation in Europe. We in Michigan should, as in the past, do what is necessary to cooperate."

During World War II, more than a half million Michigan young men — and a thousand or so young women — left their homes for military duty. Most of them returned home safely. Some did not.

Our directing military genius, wartime chief of staff at Washington, was General George C. Marshall. Marshall is now secretary of state.

Quoting Secretary Marshall: "During this critical period in world affairs, food is a vital factor in our foreign policy. The attitude of Americans towards food can make or break our efforts to achieve peace and security throughout the world."

Why did General Marshall and Senator Vandenberg both stress the importance of food and fuel?

The national citizens' food committee vouchers for the following:

Frost, drought and floods in Europe reduced the wheat and rye production in Western Europe by 200 million bushels. The U. S. wheat crop was a record 1,450 million bushels, while our corn yield was down 900 million bushels.

Europe needs 570 million bushels of wheat to tide them over the coming winter. And we have only 470 million bushels at hand for export — 100 million bushels less than needed.

That's why you are being asked by your leaders — President Truman, Secretary of State Marshall, Senator Vandenberg and Governor Sigler — to cooperate by conserving food. It's just as simple as that.

As Mr. Marshall bluntly puts it, "our foreign policy has entered the American home and taken a seat at the family table."

Pomona Grange Install Officers at Maple Grove

Last Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Lee Sneathen installed the officers of Charlevoix County Pomona Grange at the Maple Grove Grange Hall. The officers are: Master, Clyde Warner; Overseer, Joe Clark; Lecturer, Anna Warner; Steward, Orville Hilton; Assistant Steward, Bert Lumley; Chaplain, Georgia Murphy; Treasurer, Fred Willis; Secretary, Howard Brumm; Gatekeeper, Joe Leu; Ceres, Hattie Murphy; Pomona, Fay Leu; Flora, Edith LaCroix; Lady Assistant Steward, Helen Lumley; Member Executive Committee, LaVern McGhan.

Charlevoix County Pomona Grange sponsored a resolution which was adopted by Michigan State Grange in the recent Hillsdale session. It was concerned with the 18,000 farms in Michigan still not serviced with electricity and that existing rural electric administration funds are inadequate to extend lines and service. It also pointed out that 12 Michigan Congressmen last spring voted against the increase of $25,000,000 for the REA loan fund. Further it revealed that REA appropriations to projects are not gifts, but are repaid to the government with interest when due. The REA program is the only means by which most farms can get electricity.

Following the installation ceremony conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Sneathen a lunch was served in the dining room. Representatives were present from the Barnard, South Arm, Deer Lake, Rock Elm and Maple Grove subordinate Granges.

Drive Carefully Please

With sloppy weather here autoists and pedestrians are both urged to be careful. Autoists are urged to drive carefully, particularly in the main district to avoid spattering pedestrians.

In crossing streets, pedestrians are asked to keep away from approaching cars at a reasonable distance.

A little judgment on the part of both driver and pedestrians will save clothing from becoming smeared.

Legion Auxiliary Hold Interesting Meeting, Monday

The American Legion Auxiliary held its regular meeting at the Legion Hall, Monday evening, Nov. 10. A delegation from Ellsworth attended our meeting to receive assistance in conducting their newly formed auxiliary. A very interesting report on the 11th District Conference meeting held at Cheboygan was given by Mrs. Edward Kamradt. Followed by a rapid business meeting and appointments of chairmen for the coming year.

It was voted on by the auxiliary for a delegation to attend the Legion meeting to be held on Tuesday to present the American Legion with a $50.00 check the Auxiliary received from the Publishing Company on the recent published edition of General Marshalls Victory Report and to extend to them the promise that all money received by the Auxiliary on the sale of these books would be turned over to the American Legion to do with as they may seem proper.

The meeting was adjourned, and the hostesses for the evening, Mrs. Edward Kamradt and Mrs. Thomas St. Charles served a very tasty lunch.

Farm Topics

USE CARE WITH INSECTICIDE
Benzene hexachloride, the new insecticide, shows promise of controlling pests such as peach curculio, wireworms, poultry and cattle lice, hog mange, and spittle but. But Ray James, Extension Entomologist at Michigan State College, says care should be taken in using it.

Benzene hexachloride has a musty odor which flavors such foods as potatoes and possibly onions. If applied too close to harvest it flavors peaches and strawberries.

When used on cattle or laying hens it will flavor milk and eggs.

James advises that materials such as sodium fluoride; nicotine sulfate, 40 percent; and DDT can be used to control lice on poultry; and DDT or rotenone for control of lice on milch cows. These materials do a good job of control if used correctly and also avoid the danger of flavoring the milk or eggs that is present when benzene hexachloride is used.

MAKE NEXT YEAR'S FARM PLANS NOW

Plans for the 1948 farm operations should be made with care, believes L. H. Brown, farm management specialist at Michigan State College.

As a word of warning, the specialist points out that farm expenses on Michigan farms are more than double (almost two and one half times) what they were before the war. Expenses in central Michigan in 1947 are almost double the gross income on farms in the period 1935-49. If a recession should take place, these expenses will not fall as fast as will gross income.

As long term recommendations, Brown advises that farmers avoid long-term debts and that they get the farm plant ready for a period of lower farm income. The farm business should be kept large enough to keep all machinery in profitable use and excessive investments in machinery should be avoided — particularly if it means going further in debt.

Low inventories, culling of old animals, heavy animals, and low producers is advisable. Highly speculative farm enterprises requiring borrowed capital should be avoided. Surplus funds should be invested in high grade securities or farm improvement.

CONSERVATION OF POULTRY FEED

Poultry raisers can do a lot to help in the conservation of feed grains. Here are a few of the recommendations made by Michigan State College poultry specialists:

1. Use more green feeds. This conserves grain. For example, place alfalfa hay in a rack in poultry house and put the birds on range whenever possible. Good range will save a lot of grain next summer.

2. Keep your flocks healthy. Only healthy chickens make good use of grain.

3. Reduce the mortality rate — it's averaging about 17 per cent. Buying quality chicks and pullets will help to cut the death rate. Each bird lost represents less poultry meat and eggs for consumer use as well as some loss of feed. Other helps will be better sanitation practices . . . greater care in raising chicks and pullets . . . use of vaccines for communicable diseases . . . and the purchase of disease-free chicks.

4. Here's another point and it's important . . . don't overfill hoppers. More frequent filling will avoid waste.

Gauche Reigns as Cowboy Of South Brazil Prairies

To the rolling plains of the countryside of Brazil's southernmost state, Rio Grande do Sul, there corresponds a human type, which is thoroughly characteristic — the "gaucho." Arisen out of the struggle against Castilian domination and reared in an atmosphere of intense combative excitement, the "gaucho" has inherited from his ancestors an ardent, arrogant temperament, generous, yet overruling—a born leader. He is the cowboy of the south.

He lives a simple life, throwing himself down after a hard day's work in the cabin close to his field of action. His favorite dish is the "churrasco," a steak cut from a half-carcase roasted on the spit over an open fire. Nor will he go without his "chimarrao," mate with water from the boiling kettle, sucked from a gourd through a silver strainer. His raiment is characteristic: wide-brimmed hat, "poncho" hanging in easy folds, brightly-hued neckerchief, broad leather belt about his waist and pistol in its holster, quick to the draw. Trousers bagging over top-boots with outside spurs complete his outfit.

A first class horseman, skilled in casting the lasso or the "boleadeiras," three leather-covered stones held together at a yard's distance by thongs and thrown to bring a runaway steer to a standstill by encumbering its legs—he adores races and rodeos.

Brazilians are accustomed to apply the name "gaucho" to anyone born in Rio Grande do Sul, whereas in reality the "gaucho" is a type of his own, peculiar to the prairies. The truth is that the term, by the pride of its meaning, takes on the honors of a compliment.

Specialists Determine DDT Harmless to Humans

DDT is not so dangerous after all; there is remote risk of accidental poisoning by swallowing some of it in food. These statements are made by Dr. William F. Hoskins, professor of entomology in University of California college of agriculture.

He points to a test where public health service doctors fed a person half a teaspoonful of pure DDT in five teaspoonfuls of olive oil, on an empty stomach, with no ill effects.

"Fear of the danger of DDT to humans internally seems unwarranted," says Dr. Hoskins. "Whether there is possibility of poisoning by ingestion, taking small amounts over a long time, has not been proved. Tests with animals have been reassuring, no symptoms of sickness developing when they are kept on a diet containing several parts per million of DDT."

Nor is the human body endangered through absorption of DDT, he says, recalling an experiment where 15 men sprayed ships daily for a month with 5 per cent DDT in kerosene without injury. He believes, too, that DDT in "bug bombs" is entirely safe to use.

More Live Longer

In the interval from 1900 to 1944, life expectancy at birth in the United States rose from less than 50 to over 65 years, an increase of 32 per cent. This improvement, however, is not shared equally, by all ages. In contrast to the 32 per cent increase at birth, the increase in life expectancy at the age of 45 is only 10.8 per cent while that at the age of 6 is almost the same, 10.4 per cent. This discrepancy exists largely because the control of infectious diseases and the improvements in medical care which have been developed have benefited children and youths, rather than the middle aged and elderly. This means that a larger fraction of Americans is living into middle and old age, although nearly the same proportion die each year thereafter as used to.

Treatment of the Heart

Digitalis, generally given a position of first importance in the treatment of heart failure, acts directly on the heart muscle to increase the force of its contractions. Frequently, however, especially in more acute cases, digitalis does not relieve all the symptoms. In order to achieve complete relief, additional measures become necessary, and to this end, mercurial diuretics are employed. These agents act on the kidneys to increase the formation of urine, resulting in withdrawal of excess fluid from vital organs in which it has accumulated due to the heart condition. Cornell Medical center reported to the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

Alaska Adds Wealth

Nearly two billion dollars have been added to the national wealth by Alaska, during the 80 years of United States possession. The country still contains vast unexploited natural resources. In the prewar years, the territorial fisheries were yielding about 60 million dollars annually to the national income, the mining industries about 24 million dollars a year, mostly from gold, and the fur trade about 2.25 million. Since purchase of the territory by the United States from Russia in 1867, fur-trapping and fishing have contributed about one billion dollars and the mineral interests slightly under a billion dollars.

Powerful Stuff

Two mountaineers who had never seen water come out of a faucet went to town and prepared to spend the night at a hotel. They were awed by the wonders of the city and just before retiring drew two glasses of water. As one tried a couple of sips, a power failure occurred, throwing the room into total darkness.

First Mountaineer — Hev you drunk yore's yet?

Second Mountaineer—Nope.

First Mountaineer — Well, don't touch it. I took one swig and I've gone blind as a bat.

Alternate Method

The old lady passing the insane asylum stopped an approaching inmate on the grounds and said: "Can you tell me the time?"

The cloistered brother took out a foot rule, then got out a slide rule and a compass and a T-square. After fiddling with them for about five minutes he said, "It's just four o'clock."

"Wonderful," said the nice old lady, "but what can you do if it's raining, and you can't measure the shadow?"

"Oh," shrugged the inmate, "in that case, I have to look at my watch."

STRONG ENOUGH

"Women are not very strong physically."

"Perhaps not, but they can put the cap on a fruit jar so that it takes a man twenty minutes to take it off."

Worth Enduring

The brilliant political writer, Raymond Aron, former editor of Combat, was defending liberty in a little circle of close friends.

"But, after all, don't you find that the abuses of freedom are frequently disgusting?" one of them asked.

"Because there are drunkards," said Aron, "you do not dig up the vineyards."

Young Artist

"Yes," said the host to his visitor, "the walls have been papered beautifully." At that moment the host's small son came in and with a crayon drew a big pink elephant all over the new wallpaper.

"Look," said the startled visitor, "did you see what your boy did?"

"Yes," said the host proudly, "and do you know, he has only seen an elephant once!"

Like Father, Like Son

Little Johnny brought home his report card, and with it was a note from the teacher. "Dear Mrs. Ostrom," said the note, "Johnny is a bright boy but he spends all his time with the girls. I'm trying to think up some way to cure him."

Mrs. Ostrom studied the note, then wrote the teacher the following: "I'm having the same trouble with his old man!"

Most Likely

Husband—Mary, here's a hair in this pie crust.

Wife—It looks like one of yours, Henry. It must have come off the rolling pin.

IDENTIFIED

"Good morning, ma'am. I'm from the gas company. I understand there's something in the house that won't work."

"Yes. He's upstairs."

Quiet, Please

Gold Digger.—Thank you so much for this lovely pearl necklace, Rich Married Man — Don't mention it, don't mention it, don't mention it.

If your telephone grew in SIZE
the way it's growing in VALUE...

It's a good thing we don't have to make your telephone bigger every time we make it possible for you to call more people. You'd have to move out of the house to make room for the telephone.

Except for the increasing size of your telephone directory, you may not realize how the telephone system is being enlarged. We're adding thousands of new telephones every month.

Each of these new telephones means someone else you can call. It may be a butcher, a baker, a hardware store, a doctor or lawyer or druggist. Or it may be a friend or relative you've not been able to reach until now.

The point is that each new telephone means more errands your telephone can run for you . . . more jobs it can do for you. It's getting more valuable every day.

Common Sense Methods

To Withstand Heat Given

Ability to withstand hot weather varies greatly from person to person, but nearly everyone can increase his own tolerance of heat.

Here are a few practical methods of beating the heat:

1. Eat well balanced meals, including meats and other proteins; fresh fruits and vegetables, but avoid greasy and fatty foods.
 2. Drink liberal quantities of water; 8 to 10 glasses are sufficient, more will do no harm, but avoid excessive use of alcohol because it increases susceptibility to the ill effects of heat during exceptionally hot periods.
 3. Increase the use of salt. You can add a pinch of salt to each glass of water. (Administration of salt is a specific preventive of heat cramps, an acute illness caused by excessive loss of salt in perspiration.)
 4. Wear light colored, light weight, loose clothing, which does not check evaporation of perspiration.
 5. Don't expose yourself unnecessarily to direct sunlight.
 6. Get sufficient and regular sleep.
 7. Use leisure time for rest. Don't play too hard.
- Remember heat and fatigue can make a vicious circle—heat makes you tired and being tired breaks your defense against heat.

Biggest Ranch Started

By Steamboat Captain

Largest ranch in the United States, with an acreage variously estimated at between 900,000 and 1,250,000 acres, known throughout the world as King ranch, lies between Corpus Christi and Brownsville, Tex., and runs into nine counties. Marked by 1,500 miles of fence, it is 55 miles deep and 35 miles wide, so that there is a full month's difference in seasons between the southernmost boundary and the northern tip. An inspection tour by car would take a week. Round-ups at King ranch sometimes have run as high as 10,000 head.

Few hotels could "bed" those employed on the ranch. No restaurant or dining room could feed the "hands." Any New York store would be able to "survive" by selling only to King ranch and its cowboys.

Started in 1854 by Capt. Richard King, an ex-steamboat owner, the ranch is now a nation in itself with its own schools, stores, churches and community life.

"Assault," the Triple Crown winner of 1946 (Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes) carries the King ranch colors.

Guatemala Indians

A series of physical measurements of living Cakchiquel Indians of the highlands of Guatemala, among the purest extant representatives of the Maya peoples, has been completed by Dr. T. D. Stewart of Smithsonian institution. The Cakchiquel are so-called "highland Maya," as distinguished from the "lowland Maya" who built in pre-Columbian times the great temple cities of Yucatan. They belong, however, to the same racial and linguistic stock, and their own pre-Columbian civilization, while little known up to the present, was of a high order. It is believed that the living Cakchiquels are quite close to their ancestors, as there has been little mixture with other races. There has been considerable inbreeding in limited areas, which at least has tended to keep the racial stock pure. These Guatemalan Indians have been very conservative and still wear costumes peculiar to themselves and seen nowhere else in the world. Particularly notable are the brilliant many-colored blouses, or huipiles, worn by the women. The attire of the men has shifted more toward the conventional styles but still retains some unique features. The ancient weaving techniques have been preserved.

Canning Paek Increase

Record quantities of fruits, juices and vegetables were packed last year, according to a report in the Encyclopaedia Britannica 1947 Book of the Year. More than 600 million standard cases of food were canned by the industry during the year, an increase of about 84 million cases over 1945's production, the article states. The canned fish pack remained about the same in 1946 as in 1945, while there was a sharp reduction in canned milk production from the 1945 record level. Considerable amounts of meat, poultry and miscellaneous other products were processed in addition to the commodities mentioned.

Ancient Onion Plant

The onion has been domesticated as far back as history records. It takes its name from the city built by Onias in 173 B. C., near the Gulf of Suez. The onion was grown in southwestern Asia and in China and from these centers it spread to every section of the globe. The onion for centuries found favor with the Egyptians and Israelites. As early as 1390 the onion was extensively used in Europe and was brought to America by the earliest colonists. There is record of its being cultivated in America in 1629. There are now nearly 500 varieties of onions listed.

SCRIPTURE: II Peter; Jude; Luke 2:40-52.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Matthew 5:3-16.

Building Character

Lesson for November 16, 1947

WE SHALL need to read carefully Second Peter if we are to profit most in the study of Sunday's lesson. Peter tells us:

Dr. Newton

That, I realize, is very difficult for us to understand, and yet it is within the grasp of every boy and girl, every man and woman, in all the world.

In addition to Second Peter, we are asked to read Jude and Luke 2:40-52. The passage in Luke tells how Jesus grew and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom; and the grace of God was upon him.

As Jesus Grew

WE HEAR a great deal today about juvenile delinquency. The question everywhere arises, What can we do to prevent juvenile delinquency?

We have the answer in Sunday's lesson. As Jesus grew in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man, so can every youth in America grow into strong and beautiful manhood and womanhood.

The parents of Jesus, we are told, obeyed God in doing for the Child all that they were commanded to do.

The Love of God

"KEEP yourselves in the love of God," Jude 21. There is the formula for building Christian character.

This business of building Christian character is based on a formula—keeping within the circle of God's love.

It is just as essential to have the proper nourishment in building Christian character as in growing a fine ear of corn. Progress is not accidental. It is the result of right thinking, right behavior, right purpose. Only in the love of God can the young life find the nature for Christian character.

Christian Mathematics

TURN again, if you will, to Second Peter, and read his mathematical formula by which Christian character is realized:

"Add to your faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge, and to knowledge temperance, and to temperance patience, and to patience godliness, and to godliness brotherly kindness, and to brotherly kindness charity. For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Old-fashioned stuff, someone will cynically observe. Aye, old-fashioned it may seem, but only from this old-fashioned formula can character be built—Christian character.

And what is it that our needy, frightened world is asking for above everything else today? For the certitude of hope that is found only in hearts that are staid upon God.

We may smile at Peter's mathematics, but his formula is the only hope for United Nations, the only hope for world peace, the only hope for civilization.

Jude's Benediction

YOU have read, I hope, the brief Book of Jude, only 25 verses. You have followed his pungent, cogent argument. You have followed his exhortation. And now you come to his benediction—a very fitting climax for Sunday's lesson:

"Now unto him that is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy, to the only wise God our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and evermore. Amen."

As you sit in your living room, or on the train, or in the plane, or in the hotel, or at the hospital, or wherever you may be, reading these lines, remember this—the need of America today is more Christian character in the home, factory, store, bank, mill, field, school room, in the meeting house.

God grant that we may heed the admonition of the Scripture passages above cited, and thank our ways while it is yet day. The night cometh apace.

There's a big difference to bein' in a job and on a job.

Prissy's Got a Man! (Maybe)

Advertisement

Yesterday Sis Martin, our librarian, found an article cut from their file copy of the Clarion. When she compared it with another copy that I gave her she found it was my column on "How to Keep a Husband Happy."

Nothing unusual about that. Except the last person seen reading the paper was Prissy Hoskins (our town's proverbial Old Maid)!

Well, if Prissy has finally got a man, more power to her. And more tolerance to both of them . . . because that's what my column was about: Tolerance of a husband's taste for old hats, old pipes, old friends, and mellow beer. And tolerance on the husband's part of a wife's tastes and habits.

From where I sit, nobody brings Prissy taking that clipping from the Clarion. But I'd like to hint that if she'd just subscribe, she'd get my thoughts on tolerance firsthand. And in return I'll treat her to a glass of beer.

Woodwork Requires Real Care and Good Attention

Householders take pride in the appearance of their homes. It will pay them to become acquainted with ways to take care of the woodwork, to remove stains from floors and walls. The following may serve as a guide.

For dark stains, dip a cork in oxalic acid, rub the spot, rinse, dry immediately and polish.

For just dirt or finger marks on painted wood, use equal parts of milk, water, and kerosene, or vinegar in water.

Scratches on furniture, if not too deep, may be touched with ordinary iodine and then polished. A good polish may be made by mixing equal parts of linseed oil, turpentine and white vinegar.

For a worn floor, touch up the spots with shellac, and give a new coating of wax. If the floors are hardwood, a tablespoon of vinegar and one of furniture polish, in water, will give a clear finish and keep down dust.

If the floors are oiled, turpentine will take off most spots. If turpentine is not available, kerosene will do.

If a grease mark is made on the floor, cover the spot with Fuller's earth. Leave for at least one day and then remove. If the spot has not been entirely absorbed, apply again. This should remove the stain.

For spilled alcohol, rub the mark quickly with the finger tip to smooth away the roughness, and apply lemon or olive oil. This applies also to spilled perfume.

Inaccessible Coal Mined With Incendiary Bombs

Coal seams that are too thin or too inaccessible for profitable mining now may be converted underground into fuel gas and piped to the surface by a new method.

Incendiary bombs recently were dropped into a coal seam 30 feet below the ground at Gorgas, Ala. The fire which was started was steadily fanned by a blower. Heat-proof windows at inner ends of tunnels were erected through which engineers could control the operation. They changed the nature of the gas by injecting steam. The resultant products included carbon monoxide, hydrogen and methane.

Potential uses for the gas are many, according to Dr. R. R. Sayers, director of the bureau of mines. It not only offers a new source of raw material for the manufacture of synthetic liquid fuels, including gasoline and lubricating oil, but also a heating gas for burning under boilers in industrial plants. Electric power might be produced by means of gas turbines.

Teachers Training

Before a teacher may be qualified by a certifying agency, he must comply with certain educational standards in professional training. Usually less time in professional education is required of elementary-school teachers than secondary-school teachers. The most usual requirement for elementary-school teachers is two years of post high-school education, and for secondary-school teachers, four years. Some states, however, require four years of college for elementary-school teachers and five years for secondary-school teachers. Until the war, standards of professional training were being raised in many states, but the war retarded progress in this development. Several states still give teacher-training courses in high schools and permit graduates of these courses to teach in the state.

Danger For Your Milk

During warm weather farmers no longer can depend on nature to take care of milk cooling, remind extension dairymen. "We have warm days and nights, and if we are not careful we might neglect to cool our milk as it should be cooled," they explain. "As a matter of fact, it is of the utmost importance to cool milk promptly and store it at a temperature of 50 degrees or lower, regardless of the time of the year." It is pointed out that with the big demand for high-quality milk by consumers and the strict requirements that milk must meet a high standard, no dairy farmer can afford to neglect cooling as a means of keeping down the growth of bacteria in milk. The specialists caution that "when your milk gets to market sour, your market soon goes sour on your milk."

Conquerors of Iraq

Since the dawn of history the acquisition of the land of Iraq has been the aim of nations, due to the importance of its political and geographical position. Its fate was to be a stage for nations to act thereon their parts which were rich in incidents and disasters. It was consecutively occupied by the Sumerians, the Akkadians, the Amorians, the Elamites, the Babylonians, the Assyrians, the Medes, the Persians, the Greeks, the Arabs and the Turks. Each nation left behind it a different civilization. The first people Iraq knew were the Sumerians, who appeared in the lower plain of Shinar. The part they conquered was called Sumer; then they extended their dominion far into the plain, taking cities one after the other until they became masters of the lower part of that fertile plain.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Britons Losing Faith in Socialists; GOP Sees Marshall Plan Limits; Red Hearings End on Atomic Note

Released by WNU Features.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

THE GLEANERS, 1947 . . . On what used to be a playground of a sporting club in Frankfurt, Germany, hundreds of famished Germans now wait daily for trucks which come there to dump spoiled food from storehouses of American occupation forces. Adults and children alike search eagerly for any edible scraps with which they can eke out their scanty rations.

LABORITES:

Socialism Wavers

The political wind that bloweth where it listeth swept across Great Britain in the form of municipal elections and resulted in a severe and significant defeat for the British Labor party.

No parliament seats were at stake, but the Laborites lost 652 council seats to the Conservative party, led by Winston Churchill. Since the elections were fought on national issues, they may be interpreted, according to the London Times, as an "expression of dissatisfaction" with the Socialist government's record.

Interesting from the academic standpoint is the striking similarity between the results of the British elections and the previous municipal elections in France, where Gen. Charles De Gaulle's right-wing Rally of the French People party tallied an amazingly high number of votes (40 per cent) against the forces of Premier Paul Ramadier's Socialists.

In Britain, Churchill claimed that the election figures proved the Socialist government had lost the people's mandate it had obtained in the general elections two years ago. And in France, De Gaulle had struck the same chord. Both are asking that new general elections be held; neither is likely to have his request fulfilled.

What, if any, is the trend indicated by the two elections? Is western Europe veering from left to right? Despite the political implications, it is more likely that the people of France and Great Britain were not so much revolting against Socialism as they were expressing their dissatisfaction with the physical discomforts and hardships that have been their lot since the war ended.

Political philosophies pale into insignificance beside hunger and cold.

LIMITATIONS:

Marshall Plan

Sen. Arthur Vandenberg (Rep., Mich.) made it painfully clear to the administration that the Republican-controlled congress does not intend to give an across-board approval to the Marshall plan as it now stands.

The senator from Michigan, whose views on foreign affairs are accepted with respect by his colleagues, asked that the administration submit a "total bill" for worldwide aid proposals.

"We cannot indefinitely underwrite the world," said Vandenberg, thereby drawing attention to a growing framework of requirements upon which the GOP majority in congress may insist before it approves any plan for economic help to Europe.

Senator Taft already had asserted that the cost of such aid ought to be limited to four and a-half billion dollars in the next year, pointing out that the Marshall plan "asks us for eight billion dollars in the calendar year of 1948," an amount he contended is "beyond all reason."

Taft's stand, coupled with Vandenberg's insistence on a "total balance sheet" of global aid, provided a definitive outline of what the Republican attitude would be when congress convened in its special session.

COSTLY WASTE

Commercial growers of fresh fruits and vegetables raise their products primarily for the tables of consumers; but from the time the fresh produce leaves the farm until it finally reaches the consumer, the produce wastes away at an alarming rate through spoilage.

Bureau of agricultural economics has estimated that the farm value of products wasted amounted to more than 300 million dollars in 1946.

WIND-UP:

Red Hearings

The house un-American activities brought its investigation of Communism in filmdom to a halt by tacking on an ending that bore a strong spiritual resemblance to the final scene in practically every Hollywood movie: It had little or no connection with the events that preceded it.

As finales go, this one was typically melodramatic. It involved the disclosure of an alleged unsuccessful Russian spy plot to get atomic energy secrets.

Why committee chairman J. Parnell Thomas (Rep., N. J.) chose to wind up the Hollywood Reds probe with a story of an atom plot was as great a mystery as the atomic bomb itself. No Hollywood figure was shown to have had any connection with the incident, although Thomas previously had declared that such a connection would be revealed by the committee.

Louis J. Russell, committee investigator and former FBI agent, told of the skulduggery. He said that in November, 1942, Peter Ivanov, a Soviet vice-consul in San Francisco, had attempted to get information about atomic energy research then under way at University of California. Ivanov failed, however, and that, apparently, was the end of it.

As the committee adjourned its hearings indefinitely and the tumult and shouting began to die, a Red-eyed and befuddled public was aware of only one definite result of the investigation: Ten Hollywood screen writers had been cited by the committee for contempt after refusing to answer directly whether or not they were Communists.

That development was destined to turn up next in the courts, where the ideals of political freedom in the U. S. probably would be given an airing.

Political philosophies pale into insignificance beside hunger and cold.

FLY BOY:

He Flew

Howard Hughes, multi-millionaire fly in the ointment of Sen. Owen Brewster and his war investigating committee, had the last laugh again—he actually flew in the mammoth plywood flying boat, construction of which had precipitated the flamboyant war contract investigation of last summer.

He had started out simply to make taxi tests of the largest plane ever built in Long Beach harbor

But on the third run, Hughes put the flaps down and the craft became airborne. It flew at a height of 70 feet for about a mile.

Said Hughes, who had sunk seven million dollars of his own money into construction of the plane which he had contracted to build as a troop-carrier for the army:

"Well, I really sort of thought it would fly."

DIPLOMAS:

For Vets

Veterans' administration has announced that many of the two million veterans whose high school education was interrupted by the war may obtain high school diplomas by taking government tests.

VA said that veterans testing service agencies are being set up in or near every community having a VA regional office or guidance center. The agencies are organized by state departments of education.

JOHN WINANT:

Man of Principle

John G. Winant often said he was not interested in politics and political jobs, but in principles, and as a man of principle in public offices, he held determinedly to that philosophy.

Although not a native of New Hampshire, he served three terms as governor of that state and refused to run for a fourth because he thought someone else should have a chance.

In 1935, he was appointed by President Roosevelt as first head of the new social security board. He was chosen because of his intense interest in the cause of advanced social legislation. Winant constantly was seeking social and labor betterment.

He was appointed U. S. ambassador to London in 1941 and served in that capacity throughout the war. With the coming of peace, he was made the U. S. representative on the European supervisory council; and in 1948, President Truman named him permanent U. S. representative on the United Nations economic and social council.

But his health began to fail, and he resigned his post last December to return to private life and to write his memoirs. Early this month he had finished the first book.

Then, in his home at Concord, N. H., at the age of 58, John G. Winant put a .32-caliber Belgian pistol to his head and pulled the trigger.

MIKOLAJCZYK:

He Escaped

"Plans were made in advance for a military court to sentence us to death."

That, said Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, Poland's former premier and Peasant party leader, as he arrived in London, was why he had fled his Soviet-dominated homeland.

Bone-weary upon his arrival in the British capital, Mikolajczyk literally had disappeared two weeks previously to begin his fear-ridden flight from Warsaw through the Russian zone of Germany to the comparative safety of the British zone.

It was certain that British and American "underground" units had aided him in the escape.

For Mikolajczyk, this was the second such dramatic migration. When the Nazis took Poland in World War II, he fled to England to head the Polish government-in-exile. After this war, he went back to help in the reconstruction of his country, and in so doing he and his Peasant party came into opposition with Communist policy there.

It was the familiar pattern of the Communist "liquidate the opposition" doctrine. The pattern which, during the past year, has been stamped on Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria, now has fallen on Poland, too.

Mikolajczyk, a lucky man, escaped from it with his life.

PRICE OF WAR:

15 Million

Those who fought the toughest bill in World War II are 15 million in number.

That is how many persons were listed as killed or missing among combatants from 57 nations, according to a summary made by U. S. Secretary of State George Marshall in the Encyclopaedia Britannica's four-volume history of the decade 1937-46.

Russia suffered the greatest losses—7.5 million, or one dead man or woman for every 22 of Russia's 1940 population.

Heaviest Axis loser was Germany, with 2,850,000, or one in every 25 of the 1940 census. Japan listed 1,506,000 killed or missing, beginning with the Shanghai incident in 1937—one out of every 46.

U. S. losses were 295,904, or one in every 500.

Full cost of the war, Marshall commented, "either in intrinsic values or in intangibles," will never be known. Terms like battle casualties, dollar expenditures and similar data are "but partial and inadequate yardsticks," he added.

CANDIDATE:

Will Mac Run?

The word was spreading, gathering weight and force: Gen. Douglas MacArthur, said friends and supporters of that doughty warrior, would undoubtedly declare, before Christmas, his candidacy for the Republican nomination for president in 1948.

Lansing Hoyt, chairman of Wisconsin's MacArthur for President club, said, "I am able to set down with the certainty of personal knowledge that General MacArthur will accept the Republican nomination if it is offered to him."

Supporting Hoyt's declaration, the Baltimore Sun reported that "private advices from Tokyo state flatly that General MacArthur will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for president in 1948."

In Tokyo, the general wasn't talking, although it might have been significant that, at the time, he was entertaining his longtime personal friend, Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, who is on record as favoring MacArthur's nomination. There also was a rumor that Mac would return to the U. S. next spring.

His Interest

A man dashed into the police station at midnight.

"My wife," he gasped. "I want to find my wife! Been missing since eight this morning. Oh find her for me!"

"Particulars?" asked the sergeant. "Height?"

"I—I don't know."

"Do you know how she was dressed?"

"No, but she took the dog with her."

"What kind of dog?"

"Brindle bull terrier, weight 53 pounds, four dark blotches on his body, shading from gray to white, three white legs and right front leg brindled all but the toes, a small nick in his left ear."

"All right," yelled the sergeant. "We'll find the dog!"

OBVIOUS NUT

Patient—Why stick me in the ward with that crazy guy?

Doctor—Hospital's crowded—is he troublesome?

Patient—He's nuts! Keeps looking around, saying, 'No lions, no tigers, no elephants'—when all the time the room is full of them.

Short Cut

The professor of mathematics and his fiancée were out roaming in the fields when she plucked a daisy and looking roughly at him began to pull off the petals, saying: "He loves me, he loves me not—" "You are giving yourself a lot of unnecessary trouble," said the professor. "You should count up the petals, and if the total is an even number the answer will be in the negative; if an uneven number, in the affirmative."

In a Bad Spot

Parson Brown had concluded his sermon and was making the announcements for next week. "And now, brethren," he said, "next Sunday I will speak to you upon the condition of the church and my topic will be 'The Status Quo.'" "Pardon me, Parson," interrupted Deacon Jones, "but what do that Status Quo mean?" "Well, Deacon," rejoined the Parson, "dat's Latin for we's in a hell of a fix."

No Competition

The stage celebrity had spent an enjoyable and profitable summer playing leading roles at the various summer theaters. In most of the theaters, students of the stage, sparked more with enthusiasm than talent, supported the star. The actor, being asked how he liked the experience in relation to a Broadway production, answered: "At a summer theater I never have to worry about somebody stealing a scene from me."

"Hey, mother! The ladder just fell down in the back yard."

"Well I can't come now—I'm baking a cake. Call your father."

"He knows about it. He's hanging on the edge of the roof yelling for help."
