Needy Families To Get Relief

TO CO-ORDINATE WORK BY A CENTRAL ORGANIZATION

Plans were formulated for launching a community drive for needy families in the vicinity of East Jordan at the regular meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary, Monday evening, according to Edna Wilkins, Chairman, the aim of this program is to coordinate into one representative group of all interested organizations, some type of service group which will eliminate guess-work and duplication in helping many unfortunate families here—whether or not they are the families of veterans.

"The need of many in our community must be called to the attention of everyone who can help. Our aim is to see that the veterans who need assistance get it as well as the children of any family who are in want and too, the elder, afflicted persons," said Mrs. Wilkins addressing the group. "Let us invite each organization to select at least one representative who will attend a general meeting, decide on a name for the drive, investigate the situation with us and carry on from there. Such a program would supplement our State Welfare Aid, which so often fails to meet requirements because of lack of funds; it would eliminate the necessity for soliciting our business men who are too often called upon for money to alleviate the suffering of some family tragedy such as fire, death or illness. We will not ask for money. Let us ask only that anything in the way of clothing, bedding, furniture, canned foods, etc., which has outgrown its usefulness to the more fortunate be placed in our hands for distribution where it is most needed," she said.

"The task is not impossible—it can be made easier by everyone who will bring needed articles to the City Building where we will have a collection and sorting room. Should anyone find it impossible to bring the donations in themselves, then let us urge them to contact one of us and we will arrange to collect them. We have already had the offer of trucks from folks who are willing to haul donated furniture from and to homes where it is so sorely needed," added Mrs. Wilkins.

Full support was pledged by Legion Auxiliary members present at the meeting and all were urged to "spread the word" among citizens of East Jordan that the room in the City Building will be open Friday afternoon, April 30, for receiving the first donations.

The ladies of the Auxiliary also voted to "Adopt" three veterans at the V. A. Fort Custer Hospital. The adopted vets will receive free candy bars for one year. The acceptance of $12.00 per year from an outside interested member of the community to carry on this work was approved and this help will enable the Auxiliary to care for three more veterans, making six in all.

Michigan Poultrymen Will Conduct A New Search For Superior Meat-Type Bird

Michigan poultrymen will conduct a new search for a superior meat-type chicken with a 1948 Chicken-of-Tomorrow contest, State Committee Chairman J. M. Moore, of Michigan State University, announced today.

The new contest follows up the splendid progress made by Michigan poultrymen in their 1946 and 1947 contests, sponsored by A & P Food Stores, when they competed for awards of $7,000 against outstanding breeders throughout the country.

This year's contest, as outlined by Moore, will get under way April 26 and will run until August 4, when competing flocks will be sent to a central dressing plant. Birds will be judged for hatchability, mortality, feathering, feed consumption, rate of growth and body conformation.

Goal of the national Chicken-of-Tomorrow contest, supervised by a committee of poultry industry leaders and representatives of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is to develop a chicken that will grow faster on less feed and produce more meat in proportion to bone. Commercial production of the ideal bird promises greater returns for Michigan's $39,000,000 poultry industry, and greater satisfaction for the consumer.

The program announced by Chairman Moore of the Poultry Department at Michigan State University places increased emphasis on junior participation. Special cash and trophy awards will be presented by A & P to winners in the junior division.

Beware of Rackets:

This is the time of year when questionable solicitors and fly-by-night operators are apt to appear in the territory offering various promotional schemes of advertising and so-called publicity. Many of these ideas are just plain rackets which prove to be costly ventures with questionable results.

We warn our members to be alert and watch for these schemes with a careful eye. Some unscrupulous promoters will claim to have the approval of the West Michigan Tourist and Resort Association, but you should check with your association office for accuracy and ask to see a letter of sanction from your secretary-manager. By so doing you will probably save for yourself much more than the price of your membership dues in one season.

Center Stage Established

EAST JORDAN WILL BECOME DRAMA CENTER

For many years Northern Michigan has had no opportunity to see and hear spoken drama. A few sporadic attempts were never followed up on a permanent basis.

Now East Jordan has been selected as the site for a permanent summer playhouse. During the last week two New York City young women, Marilyn Lief and Bernice Loren, were here looking over the general situation and consulting with the School Board regarding the use of the High School Auditorium. They also visited the Chamber of Commerce offices in Petoskey and Traverse City where they received hearty encouragement and support. The list of subscribers to the recent concert course in Petoskey was given them for their mailing list, as well as that of the members of the Traverse City Women's Club.

At a joint meeting of the school board and directors of the Chamber of Commerce, Tuesday evening April 13th, the board agreed to lease the Auditorium and necessary rooms to "Center Stage, Inc., 1948" for a ten week season.

Miss Lief and Miss Loren are now back in New York starting publicity and making final arrangements with personnel. They will return here June 1st, and will be joined by other members of the group, numbering about twenty, June 15th, to start rehearsals for their opening play July 1st. Each of the ten major plays will be presented four times; on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, and a Saturday matinee. They also contemplate on producing a special play on Tuesday afternoons for children from 6 to 12 years old.

Eventually they are planning to build their own theatre here. The fact that East Jordan is a pivotal point of a large resort area as well as the other towns, influenced selection. Other plans include the establishment of a school for courses in all phases of dramatic work; stagecraft, play production, lighting, choreography, etc.

The establishment of Center Stage is no small job. It means much hard work and expense for the entire group as well as for those who head it. The installation of their lighting system alone is costing them a minimum of $800.00. However, Miss Lief and Miss Loren have unusual talent and training. During the past winter they were employed as directors by the Civic Players of Montreal, to produce the plays in the Drama Playhouse. Miss Loren was born in Montreal and Miss Lief is a native of Long Island. Both played several seasons in summer stock, plus some radio work, and met when they were studying at the Dramatic Workshop of the New School for Social Research in New York. They compared notes while writing required reviews of current productions and found both were feeling a want in most plays. The result was that they collaborated in writing a play, "The Search," which Erwin Piscator (former European director who founded the Workshop), termed a "perfect jewel." It was staged, the girls both directing and acting in the play, one scene of which was in dance sequence for which Miss Loren arranged the choreography. They spent one season directing a New York City Community theatre, have written several short magazine stories, and at present are engaged in writing two plays as well as a text book on a new phase of acting.

Regarding their recent work, Helen Murphy, Montreal Herald columnist, wrote: "They are a rare phenomenon in the theatre, it being unusual to find two directors working together, yet retaining their individuality. They are terrifically ambitious and are planning to establish a permanent Summer theatre in the States."

"The Montreal Daily Star" wrote: "Because of their sincere forthright approach to their work, as well as their obvious flair for production and direction, they should be heard from frequently."

"Center Stage, Inc., 1948" (its incorporated title) affords a splendid opportunity for East Jordan to become the theatrical center of Northern Michigan from Petoskey to Traverse City and from Gaylord to Lake Michigan. It should receive the whole-hearted support of everyone, both morally and at the box office.

P. T. A. Hold Last Meeting of Fiscal Year

At the last regular meeting of the P. T. A. Tuesday evening it was learned that the recent Fiesta earned the sum of $66 for the association. However, feeling was unanimous that the organization had earned something of far greater value in sponsoring the Fiesta, which was goodwill of hundreds and the interest of practically every youth in our community.

"Certainly a project of this kind is indicative of what can be accomplished in the way of healthful, educational, good fun for our young and old, through the cooperation of teachers, parents and merchants in East Jordan. Next year, we will profit from what we lacked in experience this year and with the help of interested members of our community we should have hundreds more at the 1949 Fiesta," said Mrs. Klooster, P. T. A. president.

It was estimated that the Fiesta program in the high school gym drew a crowd of at least 500 visitors.

Officers elected at the meeting for the coming year were: President, Helen Klooster; Mother Vice President, Mrs. Lawrence Hayes; Father Vice President, Barney Milstein, Teacher Vice President, Helen Severance; Program Chairman, Agnes Darby.

John Smith, Principal and Mrs. August Knop were appointed to serve on the committee to meet with other organizations in furthering the community drive for the needy.

Crowells Celebrate Their Golden Wedding Anniversary

An evening long to be remembered was celebrated Friday, April 23 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kowalske, over looking the Indian River at Melbourne, Fla.

The occasion was the 50th Anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crowell. About 65 friends were present and many beautiful gifts were received by the hoories. The high light of the occasion was the presence of their two sons, Roscoe and Frank Jr., who arrived from Michigan for the special date. The sons presented each parent with a gold bracelet watch.

Invited guests, who had to leave Melbourne a few days previously, were Mr. and Mrs. James Gidley and Faith, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Reid, Mrs. F. Graff and Mrs. V. Simmes.

The Kowalske home was decorated with spring flowers including Easter Lilies, gladioli and roses.

Music and singing was enjoyed along with much visiting. Mr. Benedict sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly." Harold Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gunnar Nelson, played a selection on the Violin. Mrs. Emery sang a very special number to Mrs. Crowell, "A Charming Damsel," also "Put on your Old Grey Bonnet" and "When You And I Were Young Sadie."

Pictures were taken of the bride and groom cutting the beautiful three tiered wedding cake, and of the guests. Delicious fruit juices were served with cake.

Frank Crowell and Sadie Mackey were united in marriage on April 23, 1898, by Rev. Dunlap of the Presbyterian church of East Jordan, Mich., at the home of the brides parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mackey. The Crowells sold out in East Jordan and moved to Melbourne four years ago in December.

Drug Aids Fight On Tuberculosis

Streptomycin Is Hailed as 'First Real Relief' for Victims of Disease.

PHILADELPHIA. — The wonder drug, streptomycin, has become "the first real relief the medical profession ever has had for the treatment of tuberculosis," but the drug does not cure the disease, Dr. John B. Barnwell of the U. S. Veterans' administration stated before a meeting of specialists.

Dr. Barnwell, head of the tuberculosis branch of the Veterans' administration, said that streptomycin, an antibiotic drug, has greatly benefited the sufferers of tuberculosis in government hospitals, because it arrests annoying symptoms of the disease, and definitely suppresses the tuberculosis germ.

The doctor was one of several hundred specialists attending the meeting of the Eastern Section of American Trudeau society. Used in 1,750 Cases.

He said streptomycin's effectiveness was discovered in the treatment of 1,750 cases of tuberculosis in veterans' hospitals, and that of this highly selected group, 90 per cent showed marked improvement through use of the drug.

The improvement in this group was manifested by a lowering of temperature, gain in weight, increased appetite and decreased cough. These gains, however, ceased when the drug was stopped, Dr. Barnwell pointed out.

Dr. Arthur M. Walker, also of Veterans' administration, told the meeting of the year-long intensive study the administration has been making in use of streptomycin in tuberculosis.

Dr. H. C. Hinshaw of the Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn., warned the doctors against indiscriminate use of streptomycin. He said there was definite evidence that the drug was the best adjunct medicine has against tuberculosis, but that it should be administered only by a specialist in the disease.

"Indiscriminate use of penicillin — another antibiotic agent — has become almost a tradition," Dr. Hinshaw said, "and it has set a bad precedent for streptomycin. Many of us doctors are alarmed at the way some general practitioners are using the drug in treatment of this disease."

"I have heard where patients are being treated in their home for the disease by doctors who are not experienced in tuberculosis. They are doing so under the false premise that streptomycin simplifies treatment of the disease. This is exactly the opposite, as use of the drug complicates treatment, and it is even more important that tuberculosis be treated by a specialist."

New York and Detroit Pay Highest Salaries to Mayors

CHICAGO. — Mayors of the nation's 13 biggest cities receive an average salary of $17,236 a year, according to American Municipal association.

The highest paid are the mayors of New York and Detroit, who get $25,000 each.

The mayors of San Francisco and Boston are next in line with $20,000 yearly.

Chicago, Los Angeles and Philadelphia pay their mayors $18,000.

In other cities with more than 500,000 population, the figures are: Baltimore, $15,000; Buffalo, $12,000; Cleveland and Pittsburgh, $15,000, and St. Louis, $10,000.

Milwaukee's mayor gets $13,074, including a 1947 "cost of living" bonus of $774.

Among the 23 cities in the 250,000 to 500,000 population group, the average is $7,187.

Pictures of U. S. Movie Stars Can't Be Displayed in USSR

MOSCOW. — The display and production of photographs of Hollywood movie stars is now forbidden throughout the Soviet Union.

The newspaper Evening Moscow said the "Union of Artists" directed that "the output of trashy displays with portraits of Gable and other Hollywood cinema actors is categorically forbidden."

The paper revealed that barber shops and beauty parlors were the establishments most prone to displaying the pictures of American stars.

"This unique advertising of American cinema trash for more than a year has flowered not only in Moscow, but also in Tashkent, Leningrad, Baku and other cities," the paper said.

Embroidered Pulpit Cloth Is Gift From Swedish King

STOCKHOLM, SWEDEN. — King Gustaf of Sweden has put the finishing touches to an exquisite pulpit cloth that he embroidered and is sending as a gift to the First Evangelical church of Worcester, Mass.

Now that he has had to drop tennis on his physician's advice, embroidery is the 89-year-old king's principal hobby.

The ornament for the Worcester church is the seventh he has made. On hand woven emerald venetian silk the monarch has embroidered a cross and rich edge of varying colors.

Nehemiah Rebuilds Jerusalem

Lesson for May 2, 1948

BORN and reared in Persia, Nehemiah appears in the opening scene of his prophecy as cup bearer to King Artaxerxes in the royal palace at Shushan.

He was a favorite at court, due, no doubt, to his personality and training, plus a keen desire to serve his people. He obtained a royal order from Artaxerxes, granting him passage to Jerusalem. It was a long and dangerous journey, but Nehemiah traveled not only with letters from the king, but assurance in his heart that he was on the Lord's mission. He was given authority to seek help from other nations. Just how much help he received from other nations is not definitely certified, but we do know that he achieved the high purpose which God had put in his heart. He governed the city wisely for a dozen years, and wrought many notable reforms. Read the first seven chapters of Nehemiah for the complete story. Read also Psalms 122:1-9.

WHEN FRIENDS WORK TOGETHER

UPON arrival in Jerusalem, Nehemiah made a tour of the city by night. He was shocked and amazed at the ruins. He called upon the people to come and help rebuild the walls. And they were impressed with the earnestness and sincerity and courage of his call. "So built we the wall; and all the wall was joined together unto the half thereof; for the people had a mind to work," Nehemiah 4:6.

There is work for everyone who is of a willing mind. There is work in the home. Boys and girls who pitch in and share in the everyday work of the home make glad the hearts of their parents, and at the same time they are learning how to care for their own homes when they grow up.

STRENGTH AND ENCOURAGEMENT

NEHEMIAH set the people together in families, with tools for work and weapons for defense against the enemy. And in this union of numbers there was both strength and courage. We need today to learn anew this lesson of working together. So often we witness evidence of people pulling against one another. We see it in the home and in the school and in the wider areas of life—in politics and in the clash between capital and labor.

THOSE WHO OPPOSED NEHEMIAH

OUR lesson describes not only the courage and wisdom of Nehemiah in getting the Jews to work and work together, but it tells us about those who opposed the rebuilding of Jerusalem. Sanballat was the governor of Samaria, and when he heard that Nehemiah was rebuilding Jerusalem, he put in to defeat him by many schemes of sabotage.

He began with ridicule. "What do these feeble Jews?" he scoffingly asked. Ridicule is always one of the weapons of those who would tear down and destroy. Young people will do well to guard themselves against the snare of cynicism. It is a dangerous thing. Sanballat and his cohorts, Tobiah, and certain Arabians and Ammonites and Ashdodites, conspired to hinder Nehemiah in many devious attacks; but the people worked and fought, in the name of the Lord.

WHAT MAKES A REAL LEADER?

THIS is the question which will inevitably arise as we study this lesson. How could one man inspire people to undertake the impossible? First, Nehemiah relied implicitly upon God's help. Second, he threw himself into the task, fearlessly and intelligently. Third, he possessed the quality of inspiring faith and hope in others. These are the qualities that make a real leader, anywhere, any time.

How we do need such leaders today! And the Bible speaks to us, in the story of Nehemiah, reminding us how real leaders are produced. Read the 122nd Psalm. Here is the secret of it all—"They shall prosper that love thee." Every difficulty confronting the home, the community, the nation, the world, can be met and mastered, provided we tackle it in the name of the Lord, relying upon his wisdom, his strength, his poise.

Revolt Interrupts Bogota Parley; Miners Get Pension, End Walkout; GOP Aspirants in Primaries Fight

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

REVOLT: Bogota

It was a peaceful early afternoon in Bogota, Colombia, and the inter-American conference was droning along in customary style in the capitol building on the Plaza Bolivar.

Then, with the firing of four assassin's bullets into the body of Jorge Eliecer Gaitan, popular leader of Colombia's Liberal party, one of the worst revolts Latin American has seen exploded into violence.

During the first afternoon Bogota descended into a state of complete anarchy. Mobs prowled the streets, burning and looting. Scores were killed. The residence of President Ospina Perez was attacked and windows were broken before army troops drove away the crowd.

Above the confused clamor of the throng could be heard shouts of "Down with the government, down with the Conservatives."

Three days later, as the riots simmered to a halt, 300 persons were dead, many others injured. Downtown Bogota was a welter of destruction. Colombia had broken relations with Soviet Russia, and the inter-American conference had almost cracked up, with delegates uncertain as to whether they could continue.

On the face of it, the revolt was a sudden eruption of violent sentiment of Liberal party followers against the Conservative government in power. Immediate result was the formation of a new coalition cabinet, equally composed of Liberals and Conservatives.

Big question was how much Communists had to do with the Bogota riots.

U.S. Secretary of State George Marshall, who with other Americans in Bogota got through the riots unscathed, claimed the revolt was Communist.

"The occurrence goes beyond Colombia. It is of the same definite patterns as the occurrences which provoked strikes in France and Italy."

And the Colombian government, in severing relations with Russia, declared that a "Communist insurrection" had touched off the mob fury.

Finally, it was announced from Bogota that the inter-American conference would resume "so that Communism could not triumph over Colombia and the rest of the nations of the hemisphere."

SETTLEMENT:

Coal Strike

John L. Lewis wasn't exactly in the position of a man who had asked friends out to dinner and then found he couldn't pay the check, but he was verging on some such situation.

Half a million soft coal miners started to straggle back to work after a 28-day strike when Lewis informed them that the fight for $100-a-month pensions had been won, but Lewis himself had to appear before Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough to answer a contempt of court charge.

Lewis was cited for contempt by Goldsborough, his 1947 nemesis, on the grounds that he ignored an April 3 court order to call off the strike.

Apart from the contempt of court citation, settlement of the coal strike was distinguished mainly by a slightly marvelous amalgam of political action and expedient compromise.

Beginning of the end came when Speaker of the House Joseph Martin (Rep., Mass.) moved into the dispute by persuading Lewis and Ezra Van Horn, a mine operator, to meet with him in his office. Martin then suggested that Sen. Styles Bridges (Rep., N.H.) be named the third member of the board which administers the miners' welfare and retirement fund. (Lewis and Van Horn are the other two members.)

At a subsequent meeting of the three, Bridges proposed a plan that would give $100-a-month pensions to 62-year-old miners with 20 years of service who retired after May 28, 1948, the date on which the miners' welfare fund was set up. Bridges' plan was accepted and the strike called off.

Actually, Lewis, in approving the New Hampshire senator's proposal, had descended several notches from his original demands.

Politically, the most fascinating aspect of the affair was how Joe Martin managed to take the play away from the administration in arranging for a settlement.

EDUCATION:

Nearly half of the 5,245,000 World War II veterans who entered special education and training programs under the G.I. bill of rights have abandoned their courses, Veterans' administration says.

More than 400,000 completed their work, however—382,000 of them under the G.I. bill and the rest under the rehabilitation program for disabled veterans. Many of those that quit plan to return later, it was indicated.

On Wisconsin

In his South St. Paul home Stassen grinned with the comfortable cheer of a cat who had just swiped all the cream in Wisconsin as he sat with his wife and received reports stating that he had run off with 19 of the 27 delegates in that state's primary election.

PRIMARIES: Wisconsin

Wisconsin's presidential primary election to choose delegates to the Republican national convention in Philadelphia on June 21 was regarded, as usual, as a straw in the wind; but this year the political breeze was a shifting one.

For Harold Stassen, ex-governor of Minnesota, a hard, thorough campaign waged by himself and his volunteer supporters up and down the state paid off nobly when Wisconsin voters granted him a total of 19 of the state's 27 delegates to the GOP convention.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur took the remaining eight to run a poor second, despite a flamboyant publicity drive carried out by his backers (notably the Hearst newspapers) which was built around the theory that he is "the only man equipped to deal with Russia."

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York drew a complete blank in Wisconsin, where he had been the Republican favorite in 1940 and again in 1944.

As a result of the Wisconsin election, Stassen was catapulted into public consciousness as a leading contender for the Republican nomination. It was certain that his top-heavy victory there would be reflected in the other primaries to follow, and that he had gained considerable stature in the Midwest.

It was difficult to tell which of the two losers—Dewey or MacArthur—had been hit harder by his defeat. Dewey, who received no delegates, might seem to be in a position similar to that of Wendell Willkie in 1944 when he withdrew from the GOP race after losing ignominiously in the Wisconsin primary. But the New York governor previously had beaten Stassen in the New Hampshire primary, and, also, he had the full slate of New York delegates pledged to him.

It was on MacArthur, who had claimed Wisconsin as his home state, that the axe of public disfavor appeared to have fallen with greatest force.

More To Come

From Wisconsin the election year wind swung to the plains of Nebraska where seven leading contenders in the Republican presidential race fought it out in a free-for-all match, with Stassen again emerging as the big winner.

After Nebraska the battlefield shifted to Pennsylvania and Massachusetts on April 27. A total of 108 delegates to the GOP convention was at stake.

On May 4 Harold Stassen was to carry the fight to Sen. Howard Taft's home arena, the state of Ohio. It was no secret that Taft was worried over which way his fellow Ohioans might go, and a good showing by Stassen would hamper materially Taft's White House ambitions.

In his second pitched battle with Governor Dewey (New Hampshire was the first) Stassen was slated to invade Oregon for that state's GOP primary on May 21. While results of the Oregon primary were not expected to be conclusive, they would serve to provide a first sampling of West coast opinion.

Final state presidential primary on the Republican side occurs in California on June 1.

Gasoline from Coal

Gasoline made from coal, even when it comes into general use, probably will cost more than petroleum gasoline, but at least motorists won't have to worry about shortages, a research scientist, Dr. R. W. Krebs of Baton Rouge, La., has predicted. He estimated that coal gasoline will cost from 10 to 15 cents more a gallon than gasoline currently in use but he added that the supply will be enough to last 1,000 years.

TREATY:

Finns-Russ

Russia had what it wanted from Finland—a buffer state to the north-west.

The two nations signed a 10-year treaty of mutual assistance which binds Finland to fight within its own borders in the event either country is attacked.

Finland and Russia, stated the pact, would battle side by side to repel aggression by Germany "or another state allied with Germany." The treaty circumspectly failed to mention any other state by name.

Despite the fact that Finland's delegation virtually had been commanded to appear at Moscow to sign a treaty with Russia, Premier Josef Stalin beamed expansively after the agreement had been concluded, hailing it as a "treaty between equals." And he said:

"I would like to see us pass from a long period of mutual distrust during which we twice fought against each other, to a new period in our relations—to a period of mutual trust."

Actually, the Finns got a better deal from Russia than they might have hoped for. Their nation had not been forced into a tight, arbitrary military accord with the Soviets, nor had Finland lost its sovereignty although it was brought firmly into the bloc of states along Russia's exposed western flank.

ATOM BOMB:

No Secret

Secretary of Defense James Forrestal put a name and a definitive edge, after a fashion, to all the restless postwar fears Americans have been experiencing.

He did it by announcing to the house armed services committee that Russia knows how to make the atomic bomb. More specifically, the Russians possess the knowledge of how to put the bomb together but so far do not have the industrial capacity to capitalize on that knowledge.

Russia does not yet have an atom bomb, but the days of U. S. monopoly of A-bomb production are numbered, Forrestal said. He told the congressional committee that he got his information from Dr. Vannevar Bush, chairman of the U.S. research and development board.

During the course of his testimony regarding a two-year draft of men 19 through 25, the defense secretary answered queries with:

"I said they do not have the atom bomb. I did not say they do not have the secret of the atom bomb."

"I am informed by Dr. Bush that the scientific knowledge and technical procedure involved in the manufacture of the atom bomb are known to Russia."

Thus, U.S.-Russian relations on the atomic level had developed to the point where there was only one unknown quantity: How soon would the Soviets acquire the industrial capacity to produce atom bombs? Secretary Forrestal admitted he didn't know.

Italian Style

U.S. Ambassador to Italy James Clement Dunn (right) peers benevolently at an Italian worker in Taranto as he tastes grain that was among the foodstuffs delivered aboard the 500th relief ship to bring food to Italy.

CONTROLS: Cold Shoulder

The jeering specter of price, wage and ration controls was invoked again by President Truman's council of economic advisers which called for nationwide "discipline" to prevent inflation under the impact of the new defense program.

In its report covering the first three months of 1948 the council denounced the tax cut law as "inflationary" and recommended new taxes if the planned defense spending is not offset by reduced government costs in other areas.

Republican-dominated congress received rather happily the council's call for reduced government spending, but maintained a glum silence on the subject of selective price, wage and ration controls.

Congressmen indicated that they want to study possible inflationary effects of the preparedness program and foreign aid spending under the Marshall plan before they give any serious consideration to resurrecting economic controls.

Although the council admitted that foreign spending coupled with a big defense outlay "will not swamp our economy nor require us to pass from free enterprise to regimentation," it added that "some rather systematic and vigorous discipline must be exercised."

"It ain't fair!"

"There oughta be a law! Everything in our house runs by electricity—but this!"

Poor Butch has to do things the hard way. Mother has cheap, dependable electric service to help her cook and clean, wash and iron and sew. Dad runs his razor, and his workshop, too, by electricity. The whole family enjoys light, comfort, and entertainment at the flip of a switch.

Never before has electricity done so much to make life comfortable—for so little! Yes, in spite of sharply rising production costs, the average family still gets twice as much electric service for its money as it got 20 years ago!

The skill and experience of your friends and neighbors in this company have combined to keep the price of electricity low—and its usefulness greater than ever before.

Carefree Days in W. Mich. Vacation Directory Being Distributed

"Carefree Days in West Michigan", the annual vacation directory of the West Michigan Tourist and Resort Association, is now being delivered to the local post office by the truck load. Thousands of copies are being sent to travel bureaus for cross-the-counter delivery to persons inquiring about Michigan vacations. Other thousands are being mailed to individuals in answer to inquiries from advertising in metropolitan papers, while still other thousands of copies are being sent to individuals contacted at the various travel and sports shows at Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago.

Personal inquiries at the shows, according to Chester C. Wells, Secretary-Manager of the West Michigan Tourist and Resort Association, are running greater than any other year. The Michigan displays at the shows were staffed by a greater number of attendants and all workers were on their feet from ten to twelve hours a day giving information and answering questions. All names recorded at the shows have been bulletined to members of the Association for personal follow-up.

WITH THE ANTRIM COUNTY AGR'L AGENT

W. Kirkpatrick, Extension Agent

NOXIOUS WEED ERADICATOR Cottage owners, resort operators and farmers in Antrim County will find a new Michigan State College circular of interest.

Noxious weeds, county agricultural agent, Walter G. Kirkpatrick reports, often cause resort operators to lose money. Many persons accidentally contact poison ivy or poison sumac each year. The purpose of the circular is to help resort operators and other landowners to get rid of the objectionable weeds.

Titled "Weed Control in Resort Areas", the publication is circular B-201, issued by the Michigan State College Extension Service and the Michigan - Agricultural Experiment Station.

Details are given regarding the use of chemicals and equipment needed for control. Such pests as poison ivy, poison sumac, common ragweed, giant ragweed, and perennial ragweed can be eliminated by the suggestions given. Special instructions are included for lawn, beach and water weeds.

A copy of the circular can be obtained from the agent's office in the Court House, Bellaire.

Developed Early Glass

In 1607, eight Polish and German glass blowers, members of Capt. John Smith's first expedition to colonize the new world, landed on the James river at what later was to be the site of Jamestown, Va., according to a study of glass history by Libbey. They constructed a crude glass furnace in the nearby woods to make beads for trading with the Indians and thus glassmaking became the first industrial enterprise on American soil. Because glassmaking always had been in the hands of a small group of craftsmen who were masters of a difficult art, manufacturing processes changed little until 1900, when America developed processes that revolutionized the industry.

An obsolete twin-engine bomber purchased from the Australian war disposals commission is doing duty as a "defroster" on a South Australian orchard. The orchardist mounted the fuselage and motors on a turntable and removed most of the wing sections. He set the rudders so that the plane revolves slowly. When frost threatens, he runs the engines on a crude mixture of gasoline and kerosene. The slipstream protects an area about 300 yards in radius.

Fluoride for Dental Caries

Accumulated evidence to date suggests three methods of caries control by use of fluorides, according to Francis A. Arnold Jr., National Institute of Health. First, increasing the fluoride concentration of public water supplies to an optimum level, 1 ppm. F. Second, by topical application of more concentrated fluoride solutions. Third, by increasing fluoride ingestion through daily dietary supplements. The first method, fluorination of water supplies, now is being subjected to experimental verification in numerous communities. Topical application of fluorides has sufficient clinical evidence at the present time to recommend its judicious use by the dental profession. There is no direct scientific evidence with which to evaluate the use of tablets containing fluoride as dietary supplements for caries control.

Hens Laying More Eggs

The American hen today is responding to better care and management by laying 15 per cent more eggs annually than she did at the beginning of World War II. This remarkable rise in annual egg production per bird from an average of 134 in 1940 to 154 now is due largely to the increase of better breeding stock, employment of sound management techniques, advances in disease control and greater use of scientifically balanced feeds. Such is the conclusion reached by poultry nutritionists and other authorities, who point out that this new record was accomplished despite many war-imposed shortages that necessitated constant changing of formulas to maintain feeds in proper nutritional balance.

Untapped Knowledge

THE old farmer was dozing in the shade of his front porch, when a high-pressure salesman bustled up the front walk and awakened him with a cheery "Good afternoon." He had a sample book of a 10-volume set on scientific agriculture he was selling.

The old farmer was at length persuaded to page through the specimen volume.

"Nope," he objected; "ain't got no use for it."

"But you ought to have it," the salesman insisted. "It will teach you to farm twice as good as you do now."

"Hell, son," barked the ancient agriculturist, "I don't farm half as good now as I know how."

SHORT TRIP

A missionary, newly arrived at the Cannibal Islands, asked where his predecessor was.

"Your predecessor," replied the cannibal chief, "has taken a trip to the interior."

Well Taught

A little girl about six years old went into a bank and asked to see the president. A smiling clerk showed her into his private office. She explained solemnly that her girl's club was raising money, and would he please contribute?

The banker laid a dollar bill and a dime on the desk and said, "You take whichever one you want."

She picked up the dime and said, "My mother always taught me to take the smallest piece," but picking up the dollar bill also, she added, "but so I won't lose this dime, I'll take this piece of paper to wrap it up in."

Excess-Baggage

Wearily of working as a cook in northwestern lumber camps, Ole Svenson retired to a small farm, but after batching a while he went to the city and got himself a wife. Life on the farm was too lonely, however, and the woman soon ran away.

"Well, Ole," said a friend, "are you sorry she went?"

"No," replied Ole.

"No? Why not?"

"Well," retorted Ole, "she was always getting in de vay when I was cooking."

TOE-PRINTS

During the night, two burglars entered the bank. One approached the safe, sat down on the floor, took off his shoes and socks and started to turn the dial of the safe with his toes.

"What's the matter?" said his pal. "Let's open this thing and get out of here."

"Now, it'll only take a minute longer and we'll drive them fingerprint experts nuts."

Simple Arithmetic

A Sunday school teacher had been telling a class of little boys about crowns of glory and heavenly rewards for good people.

"Now tell me," she said at the close of the lesson, "who will get the biggest crown?"

There was a silence for a while, then Johnnie replied, "Him wot's got the biggest head."

Definite Proof

Mr. and Mrs. Newbride were nearing the tearful stage of their first tiff.

"You talk of possessing judgment," sniffed Mrs. Newbride, "My judgment is superior to yours!"

"Oh, unquestionably," retorted Mr. Newbride. "Our choice of life partners proves that."

Grammatical

Sadie — And when Mrs. Gubbins sez you wasn't no lidy, wot did yer say?

Judy — I sez, "Two negatives means an infirmity," and I knocks 'er down. She's in the 'orspital now.

WANTED TO GET EVEN

When the little mink died and went to heaven St. Peter told him, "We haven't had any minks up here before, so we don't know exactly what to do for you. However, you were a good little mink on earth and we want you to be happy, so we will give you anything you like." "Please, St. Peter," pleaded the little mink, "—could I have a coat made out of chorus girls?"

Cities Launch Campaign

To Reduce Noise Level

Quiet is the watchword in many cities currently acting to reduce noise, according to a Kiwanis magazine survey. Schenectady, N. Y., recently passed an ordinance branding sound trucks a nuisance and banning them from city streets. The New Jersey supreme court meanwhile upheld a Trenton ordinance forbidding broadcasting of speeches or music from sound trucks. The ordinance had been contested as an infringement of the right of free speech.

In Sacramento, Calif., an ordinance had been proposed to prohibit sound amplifying and broadcasting from both airplanes and sound trucks, and to forbid advertising from motor vehicles on city streets. Miami's anti-noise ordinance now prohibits loudspeakers playing in the open air or in hotel patios. A ban on "unnecessary loud noises" which interfere with the ordinary comfort of residents has been imposed in Sylacauga, Ala. Of 75 cities with anti-noise regulations, 67 report success in lowering the noise level through consistent enforcement efforts, and 14 report reduction of the number of traffic accidents following enactment of anti-noise ordinances.

Apples Contain Many

Important Food Elements

The main nutritive value of the apple consists in its content of soluble solids, mainly sugar, to the extent of about 13 to 16 per cent, according to C. R. Fellers, Massachusetts State college. Ripe apples contain little or no starch. The acid of the apple is malic, an easily digestible organic acid which leaves no acid residue in the body. Apples may be freely eaten without fear of "acidosis." Apples are particularly rich in pectin content as evidenced by the ease with which apple jelly is made. This pectin contains from 5 to 18 per cent of uronic acid, a substance concerned with mucine formation in the body's mucus membranes. Pectin has been reported beneficial in many ways such as in intestinal ailments and in absorption of toxic substances from the intestine. During the war, pectin preparations were used extensively in surgery to promote healing. Apples contain small but useful quantities of minerals such as iron, phosphorus, sodium, potassium, magnesium and iodine. Thus, apples provide considerable nutritive value in addition to their aesthetic and appetite appeal.

Soldiers of Genghis Khan

Carried Dried Milk Ration

To Marco Polo is attributed the description of a dried milk made by the Tartars during the 13th century. He reported that the soldiers of Genghis Khan were said to have carried dried milk as a part of their ration, according to Jack A. Wright in the Oregon State Agriculture bulletin.

Next mention of dried milk in tablet form came in 1810. It was made by the French scientist, Nicolas Appert, from milk concentrated slowly to a dough-like consistency in a current of dry air. The first process utilized for manufacture on a commercial scale was that invented by Grimwade, about 1853. The perfection of milk drying processes for commercial use dates back to about the same period, the last half of the 19th century, as does that of commercially practicable processes of milk condensing. In most cases the inventors of processes for the one product were not unmindful of the possibilities of the other.

In the United States the first successful dried milk manufactured on a commercial scale was malted milk, with this product placed on the market in 1887. This product also contained an extract of barley and wheat flour paste.

Record Low Death Rate

Estimated for Past Year

American life insurance policyholders probably will record the best health year in history in 1947, the Institute of Life Insurance reports, early estimates pointing to the lowest death rate ever recorded.

This was accomplished despite new high death rate records being set in the two leading causes of death, heart disease and cancer.

During the past year, policyholder deaths from influenza and pneumonia, tuberculosis and children's diseases dropped to a record low rate. While these three classifications combined accounted for one-third of all policyholder deaths 35 years ago, this past year they represented fewer than one-twelfth.

Both children's diseases and the influenza and pneumonia classification showed 1947 death rates at about one-half those of prewar years.

SLAP STICK

Mighty Big Dog

A SMALL boy was so imaginative that he frequently told tall tales which were far beyond the exact truth. One day he rushed into the house excitedly and told his mother he had just seen a bear in the backyard. "Now, Bobby," said his mother, "you know it wasn't a bear, it was just a big dog. I want you to go up to your room and kneel down and pray to God to forgive you for telling a lie."

After a few minutes the boy came downstairs again.

"Did you ask God to forgive you?"

"Yes, and He said it was all right. He said He thought it was a bear, himself, when He first saw it."

'HOW!'

Western Tourist (to Indian) -

White man glad to see red man.

White man hope big chief feeling tip-top this morning.

Indian (calling) - Hey, Jack!

Come here and get a load of this. The guy's terrific.

NO TROUBLE AT ALL!

"Seaman Smith swallowed his knife, sir, and we've operated for its recovery without success."

"Very well. Issue Smith another knife."

Quite Lost

"Pull over, mister," said the traffic cop. "You haven't any tail light."

The motorist stopped, got out for a look, and was speechless with dismay.

"Well, it's bad, but not that bad," said the officer.

Recovering his voice, the motorist quavered, "It isn't the tail light that bothers me, officer, but what become of my trailer?"

Knew Him

The lawyer had been bullying a witness. "Have you ever been arrested or in court before?" he snapped.

"No, sir," replied the witness.

"Humph! Are you sure? Your face certainly looks familiar. I've seen it some place before."

"That's quite possible," agreed the witness, "I'm the bartender in the saloon across the street."

A BIG SWALLOW

"Crop failures?" asked the old timer.

"Yes, I've seen a few in my day. In 1898 the corn crop was almost nothing. We cooked some for dinner, and my father ate 14 acres of corn at one meal!"

Big Mouth

Everything was wrong in a reading class. The teacher was very discouraged and urged her pupils in some excitement to put more expression into their recitation.

"Too flat!" she exclaimed. "Too colorless! You can do better than that. Try again. Now! Open your mouth and throw yourselves into it."

Sermons to Order

"Brethren," said the minister of a southern church, "brethren, I've got a five-dollar sermon, an' a two-dollar sermon, an' a one-dollar sermon, an' I wants this here meretricious audience to take up a collection as to which one of them they can afford to hear."

Too Noisy

Little Willie was gazing at his day-old brother, who lay squealing and screaming in his crib.

"Did he come from heaven?" Willie inquired.

"Yes, dear."

"No wonder they put him out!"

Sam's Hens Wear Spectacles!

Yes, it's a fact! Sam's brood of two dozen hens are wearing spectacles - which he bought from a mail-order house in Capitol City.

Sam says it works (and big poultry raisers say so, too). The hens see each other through soft colored glasses, and instead of fighting and picking at each other, they go around placidly, gain weight, and lay more eggs.

Makes me almost wish we could have rose-colored glasses for human beings, too. So that instead of quarreling and criticizing, like we do so much of the time, we'd live and let live in contentment.

From where I sit, the human race wastes a powerful lot of time in wrangling over minor issues . . . whether a man should drink beer or cider . . . whether a woman should wear slacks or skirts . . . instead of seeing each other through "spectacles" of tolerance that enable us to live-and-let-live like Sam's brood of chickens.

Stone Age Jungle Will Be Explored

Scientists to Investigate the Primitive Aborigines of Australia.

WASHINGTON. — Scientists of two nations are preparing for a hazardous expedition among the Stone Age wild men and animals of a little known corner of Australia. They will visit Amhem Land, a region of tropical swamps and dense forests the size of Maine, in northern Australia east of Darwin. There, despite a long-standing ban against white men, the scientists will try to get along with and learn something about a race whose members are "true Stone Age wild men" dwelling among "stone age birds, beasts and reptiles."

Announcement of the expedition, a joint U. S.-Australian venture, was made by Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of National Geographic society.

The society and Smithsonian institution will join with the Australian government in carrying out the project. Leader of the expedition will be Charles Percy Mountford of the South Australian museum at Adelaide.

Inaccessible Territory

No automobile trails exist in Amhem Land, which never has been mapped except by air. So the expedition will approach by sea and work inland up the jungle rivers or more arduously by foot.

Only recently have the natives of Amhem Land—which was named for the vessel of its Dutch discoverers in 1823—been "absolved to some degree of a mythical reputation as bad men, killers and cannibals," the geographic society said.

They now are believed to be generally friendly, although "extremely wary and difficult to approach by strangers."

And though these natives "can be warlike on slight provocation," they are militarily backward. They never heard of the bow and arrow. They use in war the same wooden spears and throwing sticks they use in hunting.

The only white men permitted to remain on the fringes of Amhem Land are a handful of missionaries. Their missions were set up early in this century. A few exploring parties have penetrated inland, but they produced little data of scientific value.

Natives Are Primitive Beings. Because Australia long ago was cut off from the rest of the world, its natives—animal and human—are among the planet's most primitive beings. So the expedition will study mammal, fish, insect, plant and marine as well as human life.

The terrain is so difficult that only the nomadic natives, living the same way as did their ancestors of thousands of years ago, "are geared for travel" in Amhem Land, the society said.

Polar Bear Escapes, Chases Zookeeper to Top of Cage

PORTLAND, ORE.—A full-grown polar bear romped for almost an hour inside the Washington park zoo's main cage room, trapping Supt. J. L. Marks atop a cage after sending four tourists scurrying for safety.

The 700-pound beast was lured into its cage with a meaty bone by zoo tender William Clark, who earlier had outdistanced the bear in several turns around the octagon-shaped main zoo building.

Clark explained the bear broke a padlock on an outside cage door. The first that the zoo keepers realized the animal was free was when several tourists pointed frantically toward the main zoo doors. There, Clark said, the big animal was calmly looking into the building.

When Clark sought to distract the animal, the bear started to chase him around the building.

WCTU Wants to Withhold All Grain From Liquors

WASHINGTON. — Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, president of the national Women's Christian Temperance union, is urging the complete diversion of grain from the manufacture of alcoholic beverages to production of meat and other scarce foods.

In a statement made public by the W.C.T.U., Mrs. Colvin said that distillers and brewers "are being allowed to waste grain at a rate sufficient to produce the equivalent of 3,750,000 hogs weighing 240 pounds each, annually."

"Contrary to what the booze makers would have the public believe," she said, "every kind of grain used in liquor or beer is good for food or livestock feed. Any waste of grain for drink while the nation's housewives and the people of other nations struggle for food is unthinkable."

'Pain Killer' Developed For Quick Relief Anywhere

LONDON. — A "pocket pain killer," which can be used safely by unskilled people, is described in the Lancet, British medical magazine.

The device is a small inhalator containing "trilene," a chlorine compound. A plunger breaks the glass and the gas is vaporized, emerging through a nozzle to ease the sufferer's pain.

Dollar Shortage Is Factor in Decline of U. S. Exports

Recent figures on foreign trade indicate that the dollar shortage in many foreign countries is beginning to have an effect on exports from the United States, according to Alexander Hamilton institute. After reaching a high record level last spring, the general tendency has been for exports from this country to decline.

Because of the large disparity which developed between purchases by foreign countries in the United States and their sales to this country, many of the nations of Europe and the western hemisphere found it necessary to tighten up import controls. They took these measures in order to conserve their fast dwindling resources of gold and dollar assets and to prevent their trade deficits from increasing too rapidly.

If congress should adopt substantially the long-range European recovery program presented by the administration, this would tend to modify the indicated decline in exports from the United States. During the first three quarters of 1947, the deficit of countries in the Marshall plan area in their trade with the United States was equivalent to a rate of approximately 4½ billion dollars a year. This was about equal to the amount which the administration tentatively has recommended be loaned or granted annually during the next four years to the 16 western European countries (and western Germany) coming under the Marshall plan.

Early Sheepmen Imported Merinos to Improve Flock

President Jefferson knew that wool could become important in the new land. He urged our ambassador to Spain, Washington Irving, to send home as many Merinos as possible. Several thousand of these sheep were imported to improve American flocks.

The first woolen mill in the United States had opened in 1788. George Washington ordered some sturdy brown cloth from this mill. The suit which he wore at his first inauguration as president was made from this cloth.

As the pioneers moved westward, sheep went with them. The New England states, however, were the leading wool growers until about 1850.

After 1840, great flocks began to be developed in the West. The California gold rush in 1849 brought thousands of sheep into that state. Many of these sheep were used for meat by California's growing population. Some were kept as breeding flocks for future wool production.

After the Civil War industries in the East developed more rapidly. Railroads were pushed into the West. The growth of factories and population brought greater demands for wool. Wool and sheep for meat both could be shipped more easily to eastern markets. From that time on, Texas and the western states became more and more important as wool growers.

Industrial Castor Oil

Castor oil has many industrial uses. It lubricates internal combustion engines. It is used in the manufacture and processing of such varied products as artificial leather, leather lubricants, linoleums, type-writer inks, rubber, shellac and varnish, flypaper, transparent soaps and medicinal preparations. It is used as a sulfonated oil in the making of Turkey red oil, a compound widely demanded in the dyeing and cloth-printing industry. Castor oil also is utilized as a plasticizer in plastic manufacture. Recent advances in dehydrating the oil will make it possible to use it as a substitute or amendment to tung oil in the drying-oil industry. The pulp, leaves and stems can be used in making fertilizers, plastics, chemicals, cloth and cordage, insecticides and paper for boxes.

Strong and Durable Wool

Wool has great tensile-resistance to pulling. Wool fibers can be bent backwards and forwards many more times than any other natural textile fiber before breaking. These natural qualities give great strength to the wool fiber. Wool's strength and resilience allow wool to stand hard use, thus making it very durable. Products from wool appear in heavy and light weights, as heavy clothes and felt, or as light, soft materials. In either form it is durable. Clothing from wool gives protection without great weight. Some wool fabrics are as light and soft as down. The use of summer clothing made of wool as well as blankets and baby clothing has increased in recent years.

Beginning of Butter

Credit for the discovery of butter usually is given to an Aryan herdsman of many centuries ago. It is said that he placed some sour cream in a goatskin, fastened it to his saddle and galloped across the plains. On reaching his destination he was amazed to find that the cream had turned into a yellow mass. He tasted it and liked it; other herdsmen also liked it, and soon the whole tribe was making butter. They put sour milk into goatskins and shook it or beat it until the cream, or butter, had separated from the whey. This primitive method of making butter still is used in some parts of the world.

INTERPRETING THE NEWS

Human nature and freedom of the press what they are, it is inevitable that some of Kim Sigler's newspaper supporters now disagree with parts of his 1948 reform program.

Representative Elton R. Eaton, editor of the Plymouth Mail, differs with the governor on the proposal for power to hire and fire department heads and to scrap, in effect, control of state departments through the state administrative board.

It so happens that the administrative board was created by Governor Alex J. Groesbeck, early in the 20's, while Eaton was Groesbeck's executive secretary. Eaton says the board is just like a corporation board of directors and that the governor, as "chairman" of the board, has ample powers to get things done.

The Plymouth editor recalls that Groesbeck's power to hire and fire was used to oust Tom Johnson as state superintendent of public instruction, and that Fred Green used to cry of "dictator" to upset Groesbeck at the next Republican primary.

Governor Sigler retorts that he has no power today to remove department heads or other state officials. "In order to remove an official I have to prefer charges of malfeasance, misfeasance and non-feasance," he told the press.

Sigler does not believe in boards and commissions. He regards them as inefficient. He would like to reduce the present 100-plus state units to around 20.

Muriel DeFoe, editor of the Charlotte Republican-Tribune, disagrees with the governor over a four-year term. His logic goes along something like this. When the state gets a poor governor, two years is long enough to keep him. When the state gets a good governor, voters can keep him four years of longer by the simple method of re-electing him.

It is Mr. DeFoe's conviction that the Sigler proposal is more political than practical. The governor and other elective officials (and perhaps the legislators, if the amendment is revised to include them) would be elected in a non-presidential year, beginning in 1950. Michigan elected Democratic governors in the presidential years of 1932, 1936 and 1940; Republican governors have won in every non-presidential year campaign since 1914.

The Lansing legislative situation has been interesting to watch for several reasons. Governor Sigler's reform program was presented to the legislature without much advance consultation with legislative leaders. The four-year term for the governor and other elective officials, for example, was linked to a similar term for county officials but not to members of the state legislature.

This now appears to have been a tactical error. Legislators were cool from the start. They warmed up to it reluctantly and only when political pressure was applied that the head of the party should get legislative support in a campaign year and that the amendments, after all, were going to the jury (the people) for final verdict.

After asking legislators to do something for the governor and nothing for themselves, Sigler further ruffled their pride by appearing before committees and warning members he would summon legislators back for another special session unless they submitted his program to the people. Otherwise he would appeal to the people, circulate petitions, and get the amendments on the November ballots.

An Associated Press writer reported that the Governor announced, well in advance, a slate of seven delegates-at-large for the state republican convention in Detroit after he had assured the press that the gathering was to be "unbossed". Furthermore, the convention endorsement of proposed reforms was characterized by the A.P. as being "very lukewarm." Sigler's methods were said to be "amatourish."

On the plus sign of the Sigler ledger may be placed in bold letters his traits of high courage and intellectual integrity. He still is the idealist, the reformer, the knight battling for "better government." He delights in challenging the status quo.

The governor's troubles come largely from his zeal impatience to get things done. By seeking more power for himself in order to achieve these reforms, he has antagonized a number of influential people in the party, including those in the legislature.

Now that the legislative record is on the books, popular debate on the issues will get under way. The verdict will come in November.
