School Bus Garage Needed Now

ISSUE TO BE DECIDED AT JUNE 14th ELECTION

At our regular school election Monday, June 14, your Board of Education will present the following proposition for your consideration: Shall the Board of Education, East Jordan Rural Agricultural School spread a special tax of five mills in the above mentioned said school district over a period of three years, the proceeds of which to be placed in a sinking fund for the purpose of erecting a school bus garage and storage.

Since approximately 550 of our 875 pupils depend on bus transportation the Board feels that every consideration should be given this essential part of our program. If the buses are off schedule the entire school is off schedule. If buses cannot operate the school closes.

At present five of our buses are housed in our school owned garage back of the Gidley Drug Store and six in the Community building back of the Postoffice. This latter building is rented monthly from the city. Access to the building is difficult and we must trespass on private property getting our buses in and out. If the city should see fit to use this building for some other purpose there would be no other building available and our buses would be parked outside the year around.

Another disadvantage with our present set up is that at least 50% of all merchandise for the entire East Jordan community is hauled or handled in the narrow alley that our buses must use. On numerous occasions drivers find their route blocked by Parker or other heavy trucks and consequently are thrown off schedule.

Neither our garage or the Community building are fireproof. Neither are any of the other buildings along Main St. A fire on Main street with a strong west wind could cause a serious damage in a very short time.

The Board feels that it would be neglecting its duty if it did not attempt to provide a safer and more convenient storage for our fine fleet of buses. So many parents are directly interested in our transportation system that we feel you should make a special effort to be present at this election and see that proper storage is provided.

Before Buying Check Bean Seed For Healthy Crop

The proof of good bean seed is the crop it produces, but Herbert Pettigrove, Michigan State college farm crops specialist, says that there are some signs that will help to identify good bean seed before planting.

Bright seed having a good color and luster indicates healthy seed which should make strong plants. Discolored seed may be caused by weather. Weathered beans sometimes do not germinate. If conditions are unfavorable, the seed may germinate but the plant will be so weak it grows slowly.

Frost may cause a yellowing of the bean which usually severely weakens or kills the embryo in the seed. Bacterial wilt may cause yellowed seed, but such seeds are generally smaller than the average run of beans. Beans carrying these characteristics are not good seed beans in most cases.

Yellow or dark brown spots or yellow streaks on the seed coat indicate bacterial blight disease. They may carry the disease to the field and be a source of infection if the weather is favorable.

Pettigrove advises careful inspection of even good looking seed to see if there are fine checks in the seed coat. The checking of the seed coat may have broken the growing tip off the bean. Seed like this either rots in the ground or produces baldhead, a condition that retards growth.

When bean seed is purchased, careful scrutiny will help in choosing good seed. Certified seed, the specialist points out, is always a good buy since it has been carefully inspected before certification. taboas(dvifionn before certification.

The Wild Horses of High Island

The wild horses of High Island are still roaming their exclusive little wilderness range, sleek and in excellent condition. L.A. Davenport of the conservation department's game division and district game manager Otto Failing spotted the four of them on a routine airplane flight to observe more ordinary forms of wildlife.

So wild they are seldom seen, the horses to the approach of the department plane, bolted from the clearing where they had been feeding into the brush and out of sight. Flowing manes, long tails enhance their wild look.

In the summer of 1945, when Cash Wosner and Ben Jenkins of the department's game division were mapping the two-mile-wide, three-mile-long island, they thought one night their tent was going to be trampled by strange beasts rushing past. They found hoof prints, but finished their mapping without ever seeing the animals.

Game men believe that in winter the horses may pay away snow to reach the grass, and browse on shrubs and trees. The island has had no human inhabitants since the horses were abandoned there about nine years ago by their owner, who now lives on nearby Beaver island. None of the four has perished. Since none is a stallion, there has been no increase.

Plan Extension of Highway

EFFORT MADE TO CONTINUE M-32 FROM EAST JORDAN TO ELLSWORTH

More than 75 business men and farmers of Ellsworth, East Jordan and vicinity met at Ellsworth last Friday and launched plans for obtaining the extension of M-32 from its present terminal in East Jordan on through Ellsworth to US 131 at Atwood.

The proposed extension was part of Grover Dillman's program when he was state highway commissioner. Later the state highway department decided the 13-mile stretch must have certain improvements before it could meet state specification and be taken over as a trunk line. The Antrim county road commissioner, Herbert Roggies, Central Lake, and Charlevoix county's road commissioner, Samuel Rogers, East Jordan, said those improvements now have been made.

The road carries heavy summer and winter traffic, the portion between Ellsworth and East Jordan being part of a Greyhound bus route. All East Jordan mail carried by the Pere Marquette district trains is also taken from Ellsworth by truck over this highway.

The extension would also give to Michigan a northern cross-state highway from Alpena to Atwood, connecting with all the main north-south state trunk lines.

Farm Topics

GRASS DAY

The need for increased use of grass and legumes on Charlevoix County's farms was stressed this week by county agricultural agent Ed Rebman in telling about the grass day program set for June 25. Farmers who increase their grass have much to gain. One of the great benefits is soil conservation. In a grassland farming program, soil is held in place and a reserve of organic matter and soil fertility built up.

The grass day program for this region will be held at the Alfred Campeau farm, located five miles southwest of Traverse City on the Secor Road. It has been set up to emphasize the advantages of grass and legumes in the farming program.

TOMATO BLIGHT

If you haven't put in tomato plants yet, check them carefully for blight. This is especially true of out-of-state plants. A tomato blight warning service will be in effect again this year and growers will be notified if it is necessary to start spraying sooner than usual.

Ed. Rebman
County Agricultural Agent

Confronted with an unpleasant break in party ranks during a presidential and state campaign year, Governor Kim Sigler and legislators patched up some of their differences over governmental reform.

Legislators recalled the State Department of Administration bill from the graveyard. Lieut. Governor Keyes ruled Senate could legally reconsider it. And the legislature jammed it there by attaching an amendment whereby important control would be exercised by the state administrative board and not by the governor alone.

In turn, Governor Sigler and the citizens' Committee for Better Government in Michigan agreed to call off petitions proposing constitutional changes of drastic effect.

Such, in a nutshell, was the outcome of the tug-of-war between the governor and the legislature in the windup of the 1948 special session at Lansing.

It will mean one less amendment before the voters in November. There was considerable doubt at the capital whether 167,000 signatures could be obtained in time to place the amendment on the ballot.

The compromise postponed until a later time the issue whether the state government's 100-plus agencies should be merged and consolidated into 18 state departments with chief control in the hands of the governor. Also in the offing is the proposed four-year terms for state officials and new power for the governor to appoint key state officials, such as the attorney general and secretary of state.

These are still parts of the Sigler reform program. For the time being they will be put on the shelf awaiting the right moment for revival.

FACINGS WILL GIVE YOU NEW LOOK IF WELL CHOSEN

New hem facing to let down your lat summer's dresses for that "new look" are popular with everybody these days. The question is—can you find them—and can you find the right kind?

If you have been lucky you have found a notion counter with a good supply. These facings are a big help to anyone interested in saving money and Jane Warden of the textiles department at Michigan State college, thinks you may be.

Check rayon seam bindings carefully. Some of it has new edges that do not show up at first. That means that the binding was just cut off the required width and not woven with selvages. You may not notice this when you buy it—but you will after you have worn the dress and find your hem pulling out because the binding has begun to ravel.

Facings come several types and many colors. Usually they are cut on the bias and may be cotton or rayon. If you plan to face a cotton dress, a cotton facing is most desirable. The cotton dress has probably been washed several times and shrunk as much as it ever will. For this reason it is a good idea to shrink the facing before putting it on the dress. This is rather a nuisance at the time because the facing is not quite so easy to handle after shrinking. But the final results when you wash the dress will be much more satisfactory.

Rayon facings are desirable for use on rayon or wool and make a nice finish on the garment. Since the majority of facings are cut on the bias, be careful not to put them on too tight so that the hem will show when finished.

The cottage was built by the late Prof. L. R. Taft of Michigan State College in 1912.

Lightning Causes High Toll Yearly

Lightning is nature's artillery. That's the way Fred Roth, farm safety specialist at Michigan State college, describes the danger of lightning which causes 37 percent of all farm fires.

Each year lightning destroys approximately $20,000,000 worth of farm property in the United States. It takes the lives of 500 people and injures 1300 others, according to National Safety Council records.

A building adequately equipped with lightning rods offers the best protection, Roth points out. If you are working in a field and do not have time to seek the protection of a rodged building, lie down in a low spot in the field, away from wire fences, trees, livestock and machinery. Avoid seeking shelter under trees, particularly lone trees.

Week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas St Charles were Mr. and Mrs. A. Waydak and daughters Joyce and Nancy, Flint; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest St Charles and daughter Betty, Pontiac; Mr. and Mrs. Don Walton and family, Mrs. Florence Kaley, Margaret and Donald Kaley, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Blaha Muskegon Heights. Sunday guests were Mr. and Mrs. Cal Courtier, daughter Evon and sons Richard and Jack, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lyons, Hugh Aldrich and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hoxie Jr., all of Traverse City.

Leave Fawns Alone

The first fawns of the season already are being seen in the woods, and conservation department officials again are warning well-meaning but ignorant persons against picking up the helpless young deer they may find "lost" in the woods.

Fawn kidnapers are subject to prosecution, and each year a number of fawns stolen from their homes in the woods become wards of Ogemaw refuge, where they are bottle-fed until they can look after themselves. No pet permits, the department emphasizes, are issued to any private persons to rear wild fawns.

Peak of the fawning season is expected to be in the first week of June.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
International Uniform Sunday School Lessons
By LOUIE D. NEWTON

SCRIPTURE: Daniel 3:6. DEVOTIONAL READING: Acts 4:17-22.

Men Who Dared To Stand For God
Lesson for June 6, 1948

A FIERY furnace, and a lion's den. These are the tests to which Sunday's lesson will put our hero about whom we studied last Sunday, this young man Daniel. Three friends, Shadrack, Meshach, and Abednego, will undergo the test of the fiery furnace, having been convinced by Daniel's example that God is trustworthy.

Dr. Newton

And Daniel will spend the night in the den of lions. You will need to read chapters three through six to get the full story.

DANIEL IN THE DEN OF LIONS

THE sixth chapter must be read to have an adequate background for this study. Daniel had been chosen as the first of three presidents to rule over 120 princes, who should govern the kingdom. The other two presidents and the princes could find no fault in this Hebrew, save that he believed and observed the law of his God. So, they conspired against him by persuading the king to issue a decree that no person in the kingdom was to make a petition to any God or man for 30 days, save to the king, on the penalty of being cast into the den of lions. This decree was issued by Darius, and Daniel's enemies reported to Darius that Daniel was opening his window three times a day, praying to his God. Darius was greatly troubled, but had to stand by his decree, and Daniel was cast into the den of lions. Darius spent a sleepless night, and hurried to the den at dawn to know about Daniel. Daniel replied, "O king, live for ever. My God hath sent his angel, and hath shut the lions' mouths, that they have not hurt me."

DARIUS REWARDS DANIEL

CONVINCED that Daniel's convictions had been miraculously rewarded by God, Darius ordered the other two presidents and the princes, together with their wives and children, thrown into the lions' dens. They were all destroyed by the lions.

Then Darius issued a decree to all the nations and people of all languages that dwell in all the earth. Hear this decree:

"Peace be multiplied unto you. I make a decree, That in every dominion of my kingdom men tremble and fear before the God of Daniel; for he is the living God, and steadfast forever, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed, and his dominion shall be even unto the end." So Daniel prospered in the reign of Darius and of Cyrus, the Persian.

COURAGE TO PUT GOD FIRST

LOOK now at the other test of faith—that of the three Hebrew children, Shadrack, Meshach, and Abednego. Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, had made a golden image, 90 feet high and nine feet wide, and set it up in the plain of Dura. On a certain day, when he was going to establish his state religion, he ordered every subject to fall down and worship this image.

But Shadrack, Meshach and Abednego refused to worship the image. Nebuchadnezzar was furious when he heard of their refusal. He summoned them into his presence, and warned them of their fate if they further refused to worship his gods. They answered him frankly that they would not bow down to the image. He ordered them thrown into the fiery furnace.

They decided that death was more honorable than apostasy. The men who cast them into the furnace fell dead!

UNSEARED AND UNSINGED!

BUT the three Hebrew children walked into the flames, unseared and unsinged! The king was astounded. The people were amazed. They had witnessed what the God of all the earth can and will do.

Then went forth the decree, "There is no other God that can deliver after this sort." Thus we have the golden text for Sunday's lesson: "Be it known unto thee, O king, that we will not serve thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up."

And what happened in the long ago when men dared to stand up and trust in God will happen today and every day.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Palestine Jews Proclaim New State
Of Israel, Attacked by Arab Armies;
U.S. Victim of Russian Propaganda

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Impulse to Zion
Arnold Toynbee, British historian, types the Jews as a fossilized remnant of an extinct civilization. He meant that because of their single-minded, faultless devotion to the religion of Moses and their strict adherence to ancestral customs, the Jews, descending through history as a compact group, have retained most of the original characteristics which marked them when first they emerged as part of the Syrian civilization thousands of years before Christ. They are recognized today as being in but not of the societies in which they appear on every portion of the globe. They almost invariably form a minority group, and as such they have been targets for endless persecution.

Socially, world Jewry has been of two minds concerning the most desirable end it could achieve for itself. Those two conflicting trains of thought are represented by the "zionists" and the "dispersionists."

The dispersionists have advocated that Jews should mingle freely with whatever people they have chosen to live among and gradually be assimilated by that people. Zionists, of course, favor establishment of a national homeland — an indestructible ideal ever since Moses led the exodus to Canaan.

Since the war, with Nazi attempts to obliterate German Jews completely and subsequent displacement of millions of European Jews, Zionism has been given a tremendous impetus. That impulse to Zion has been distilled into what the world has come to know as the "Palestine problem." More recently it has crystallized even further in the actual establishment of a Jewish state — called Israel — in Palestine, ancient homeland of the pre-Christian era Jews.

WINDFALL:
Propaganda

In Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith's formal and completely routine statement to Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, the Russians thought they had a propaganda bonanza.

It was cleverly done. Smith's otherwise tough statement, which simply repeated the basic U. S. foreign policy with regard to Russia, contained one sentence that Moscow took as a loophole: "As far as the United States is concerned, the door is always wide open for full discussion and the composing of our differences."

Molotov seized upon that sentence and the announcement was broadcast to the world that Russia accepted the American "offer" to negotiate.

It looked like a propaganda victory of major proportions for the Soviets. Briefly, it put them in the position of being able to point with pride to their manifest willingness to settle the bitter differences which have kept the world unnerved for so long.

If the U. S. refused to talk, that would be fine with the Russians who would capitalize on that fact with a vengeance. If a peace conference did develop as a result of the original trick, the old and familiar Soviet obstructionist tactics would be brought into play to do the usual job of sabotage.

That was about the way it stacked up to the high officials in Washington. Both President Truman and Secretary of State George Marshall made it clear that there would be no conference, that there was no logical basis for one and that such a conference could not possibly succeed at this time because neither the U. S. nor Russia had altered or modified its position in any way.

In addition to the propaganda value of the Russian move, it might also have been calculated to throw some sand into the gears of the incipient U. S. defense program.

If the Soviets, suddenly assuming a peaceful mien, were able to hypnotize the American people into feeling falsely secure, congress in an election year might be coerced into wasting a lot of time in preparing such items of the defense program as the 70-group air force bill and the draft bill. That wasted time could, in the light of possible future events, turn out to be incalculably precious.

Sequel

Second episode of the affair of the Russian piece overtune was a Stalin-to-Wallace pass that went over the head of the U. S. government.

The Russian premier took advantage of an "open letter" which Henry Wallace had addressed to him demanding an open showdown between the two nations. Wallace's proposals, as summarized by Stalin, included:

1. General reduction of armaments and prohibition of atomic weapons.
2. Conclusion of peace treaties with Germany and Japan.
3. Evacuation of troops from China and Korea.
4. Respect for the sovereignty of individual countries and non-interference in their domestic affairs.
5. World development of international trade.

"I don't know whether the United States government approves Mr. Wallace's program . . ." Stalin said, making it starkly clear that he was talking, not to the government, but to the American people.

He applauded the Wallace letter as "the most important document of recent times," and declared, "As far as the government of the USSR is concerned, it considers that Mr. Wallace's program could serve as a good and fruitful basis for an agreement."

Apparently a Russian attempt to bring about a showdown in the East-West struggle before an audience of world public opinion, Stalin's bombshell statement renewed the question of whether the new Soviet tactics are merely propaganda or a genuine effort for peace.

Either way the U. S. was in a difficult position. If the Russian appeal is taken at face value it cuts the ground from under the tough American cold war strategy. If it is propaganda it undoubtedly will serve to put the U. S. in a bad light.

Well, Not Exactly

A. C. Hudson of Portsmouth, N. H., head of a committee of fire protection experts who examined the White House recently, said he wouldn't exactly call the President's home a firetrap, but still and all there are plenty of hazards existing at the Pennsylvania avenue edifice.

There is nothing wrong with the White House that a lot of fire-proofing won't fix, he said, but it needs a lot of money.

FARM PLAN:
Truman's

To shore up his sinking political prestige in his campaign for re-nomination, President Truman proposed to congress a four-point farm program which he claimed is "essential" to a productive, prosperous agriculture in the U. S.

Burden of his message were these recommendations:

1. A permanent system of "flexible price supports for agricultural commodities."
2. "Full support to the continuance and expansion of our program of soil conservation."
3. Legislation by congress to "continue and strengthen programs to assure adequate consumption of agricultural products."
4. "We need to consider other means for assisting farmers to meet their special problems. For example, we must support and protect farm cooperatives. We must continue to work toward a sound system of crop insurance."

There was nothing very startling about the proposals, and they carried the unmistakable ring of a campaign year bid for the farmers' favorable attention.

ITALY:
Vox Pop

Luigi Einaudi, 74, a banker, is to be president of the Italian republic for the next seven years.

He was elected at a joint session of both houses of parliament on the fourth ballot after the Communists, who had been supporting Enrico de Nicola, threw their votes to him. On three previous ballots none of the presidential prospects had been able to command the required majority because of the Communists bloc.

An opponent of communism, Einaudi also was a foe of Mussolini's brand of fascism. He is an internationally known writer on public finance and economic history. Einaudi's first task as president of the republic was to designate a premier and instruct him to form a cabinet. There was no doubt that he would name Alcide de Gasperi, premier of the provisional government, to continue in that capacity on a permanent basis.

DISPLACED:
Bill Pending

Although the desperate problem of Europe's displaced persons has not been attracting much headline attention lately, congress has been busy working out legislation to admit quotes of DPs into the U. S. Latest report was that an informal poll showed that a majority of the senate would vote for a bill to admit 200,000 displaced persons into this country during the next two years.

The actual bill being considered by the senate judiciary committee sets the figure at 100,000 DP immigrants for the next two years, but several senators have introduced amendments to raise that total to 200,000 and to remove some restrictions imposed by the committee.

One senate source said the poll indicated that at least 55 senators were ready to vote for the less restrictive version. The house judiciary committee already has approved a similar measure to admit 200,000 DPs in the next two years.

ATOM RACE: Official

Governments of the world never have been farther from outlawing the use of atomic weapons. In fact, the atomic armament race is just settling down to a long, straight-away dash.

It is a contest involving astronomical costs, with horrible disaster if not ultimate destruction possibly lurking just beyond the horizon.

So far the U. S. is well in the lead, as indicated by the recent announcement of the development and successful testing of three new atomic weapons which are said to supersede the original atom bombs in destructive power.

The United Nations atomic energy commission made the race official when, after two years of fruitless effort to work out some kind of international atomic control, it finally voted to suspend negotiations.

Other developments followed swiftly to prove that the U. S. is deadly serious about developing a powerful and diversified atomic arsenal.

David E. Lilienthal, chairman of the atomic energy commission, reported that the "present stage of the commission's tests of atomic weapons is concluded."

President Truman then authorized the commission to take "steps . . . at once for further development based on information gained from the tests."

What Russia was doing about atomic weapons remained pretty much of a mystery, at least as far as the American public was concerned. It was an accepted fact that the Russians knew how to make an atom bomb. Whether they had the industrial facilities to do so still remained a matter of considerable conjecture.

SAVE CASH OUTLAY WHEN REMODELING YOUR FARMHOUSE

When you build or remodel your farmhouse—and it seems that nearly everyone is these days—do you know how to keep your cash outlay as low as possible?

Three very important suggestions for reducing cash outlay are offered by Olevia Meyer, extension specialist in home management at Michigan State college.

First, and highly important, is that you have a complete plan for the whole improvement even though some things will have to be postponed over a period of years. This will prevent costly adjustments later. Second, confine present improvements to those most urgently needed to safeguard health and provide for comfort and welfare. Third, find ways to do or buy things at less than the usual cash outlay. Farm families are fortunate in being able to make some improvements at little or no cash outlay.

Here are some suggestions from Miss Meyer for making these savings. Use building materials ordinarily kept in dealers' stock; use ready-made parts, such as doors, windows, and millwork. Choose common grades rather than top grades of such items as framing, sheathing, flooring, and brick. Materials produced locally often cost less than those shipped in.

Consider cutting lumber from the farm woodlot or buying local timber. See whether you can get sand, gravel, and building stone from nearby sources. Ask dealers what materials are the most economical and practical for your locality. Get directions on how to use and apply them. Use farm equipment for hauling materials, excavating foundation and basements, and grading yards and drives. Do some of the building yourself, especially if you can hire a skilled person to direct the work. The job will take longer this way but you will save considerable cash.

A lot of women would look more spick if they had less span.

It's all right to drink like a fish, so long as you drink what the fish does.

SIMPLE TESTS HELP HAYMAKING

Michigan farmers will find that two tests devised by a Michigan State college scientist will be of help in making hay or grass silage this year. The first test is shown in picture 1 where Dr. S. T. Dexter, farm crops specialist at the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station fits a hay sample in his "oven-type" moisture tester on the exhaust of a tractor.

The heat generated by the motor of the tractor drives the water from a sample of hay and permits quick calculation of the hay's moisture content. Equipment needed is the oven, a round cylinder of sheet metal to hold the sample, a scales and a thermometer. The hay sample is weighed, put in the oven and the motor raced. The sample should be turned occasionally and the engine speed adjusted to avoid scorching. When the sample reaches constant weight, the percentage of moisture can be figured by dividing the loss in weight by the original weight of the sample. The farmer can then determine if it is necessary to let the hay in the field dry more before storage.

Pictures 2 and 3 show Dexter's quick storage test. Materials required include a quart ice cream box, some ammonium chloride salt from the drugist, and a hay sample. The hay is put in the box with a small teaspoonful of the salt. The cover is placed on the box and shaken 100 times. If the salt is damp and clumped together (as in picture 2) the hay is too damp to store safely. If it remains in its original state (picture 3) the hay can be stored safely under ordinary farm conditions.

Details for the oven-type tester may be secured by writing to the Farm Crops Department, Michigan State college, East Lansing, Michigan.

Photographic Prints Used On Textiles and Glassware

Photographic prints are appearing on textiles, pottery and glassware. Recent developments make it possible to print fabrics continuously with designs obtained from photographic negatives. Chinaware, too, is treated with a photosensitive material, which is developed during the firing. Another new process makes colorless glass photosensitive throughout its body, and development of the image takes place when the glass is reheated.

Although the principle of printing photographs on textiles has been known for some time, until now there has been no practical method adapted to continuous operation. This, with a lack of proper dyes and finishing agents, made photographs on fabrics slow and costly, and the results did not appeal to fashion designers. Recently, two processes have been developed for commercial operation.

It is estimated that about six million yards of textiles will be printed this year for dresses, scarves, draperies and ties. Material thus printed is expected to be used in theatrical backdrops and window displays as well as in clothing accessories embellished with pictures of favorite movie stars.

Both processes are intricate and require close control by chemists and photographers. The fabric is treated like photographic paper; it is sensitized to light, then brought into contact with a transparent film. Light shining through the film prints the design on the fabric.

False Convictions Boost Cost of Mental Ailments

False ideas about mental illness help keep patients in mental hospitals who ought to be cured or discharged, increase the amount of mental illness and waste millions of tax dollars, Stephen Thiermann, writes in the health magazine of American Medical Association.

The false conviction that "mental illness is a disgrace," he says, makes people hesitate to consult mental health clinics before their illnesses become severe. "This boycott of clinics, of course, increases mental illness, puts more patients in hospitals and takes more tax dollars out of our pockets. Each commitment prevented saves the state $5,000 to $7,000, estimated cost of an average period of hospitalization."

The idea that insanity is incurable costs us even more, Thiermann observes. Although modern treatment in psychiatry brings more recovery than in any other branch of medical science except obstetrics, expenditures for mental hospitals are so inadequate that many of them are not modern treatment centers, but mere custodial units.

"One authority has estimated that public neglect of our mental hospitals means that 20 per cent of all persons admitted to a state mental institution are doomed to life imprisonment, when with adequate care and treatment they could be saved," he writes.
