Mich. Bell Telephone Co. Announces Dial System For East Jordan In 1952

C. L. JOHNSON, MANAGER FOR THE COMPANY, ANNOUNCES SCHEDULE

The Michigan Bell Telephone Company today announced that a new $60,000 dial system for East Jordan is scheduled in its 1951 construction program.

C. L. Johnson, manager for the company, said that work on the new plant is scheduled to begin this summer, and if the company is able to go through with its plans, the new system will go into operation early in 1952.

Johnson cautioned that, while the local project is included in next year's program, circumstances beyond the company's control could again force postponement of the job.

"We will make every effort to complete our plans for East Jordan," Johnson said, "but Michigan Bell is no less vulnerable to adverse economic conditions than any other business."

The advent of World War II forced postponement of previous plans to convert the local exchange to dial operation, Johnson said.

When the war ended, he pointed out, the company had 127,000 families on its waiting list. In order to provide these people with some kind of service it was necessary to limit new construction projects to exchanges with the greatest number of held orders. There has never been a serious hold-order situation in East Jordan.

"While we were busy cutting that waiting list down to about 20,000, our earnings were showing a steady decline because telephone rates were inadequate in the face of rising business costs. As a result, we were forced to adjust our construction program accordingly."

"This served to further delay our dial-conversion program," Johnson pointed out that the company had to wait nearly 18 months for the rate relief which was granted last June. Since then, he said, the company's earnings picture has brightened considerably.

On the other hand, he said, the company's recent wage settlement with the union representing its employees—along with increased taxes, have boosted the costs of doing business to such an extent that Michigan Bell will be forced to seek an additional rate increase.

"Without even considering the latest wage settlement, other wage boosts during the last 10 years raised the company's annual wage bill $35,000,000, as against rate increases of only $21,000,000 during the same period," Johnson said.

"As a result of this situation, we cannot determine, at this time, how far we can go with our 1951 construction program. We believe our construction goal for next year is reasonable of accomplishment. We are hoping that nothing will prevent us from completing the entire program, including dial service for East Jordan."

STORY OF A MAN WHO TRIFLED WITH LOVE

The tragedy that ended a couple's marriage never should have occurred, except for a husband's flashing smile and uncontrollable zest for adventure, writes famous author Fannie Hurst, in The American Weekly, great magazine with this Sunday's (Dec. 10) issue of Detroit Sunday Times. You're MISSING something if you miss Sunday's Detroit Times.

That Extra Deer Meat

To hunters who bagged deer merely for sport, or who are using only part of the venison, the conservation department suggests making a contribution to some charitable organization.

Rather than have the deer wasted, the Salvation Army and other local charities would welcome the addition of deer meat to their holiday season larder.

Venison from illegally killed does and fawns, still in good shape and recovered by conservation officers, regularly is turned over to public and charitable institutions and organizations.

Community Chest Drive Now Closed

RESULTS OF THE 1950 DRIVE ARE VERY SATISFACTORY

At the November meeting of the Board of Directors of the East Jordan Community Chest, Bill Grauel, Campaign Chairman, gave the results of the 1950 drive. $4,713.27 was the final amount raised, the goal set being $5,044.46. This report was accepted, the drive closed, the treasurer instructed to pay each participant 93.436 percent of their original allotments: To Charlevoix Hospital, $116.52; Michigan Children's Aid Society, $93.44; Salvation Army, $70.07. To the Associated Services for the Armed Forces, American Heart Association, Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, and the twenty-five other agencies of the Michigan United Health and Welfare Fund, $602.15 to be divided among them on a 93.436 percent ratio of their original amount. This leaves $3,831.09 for our Community Chest to be spent for East Jordan and its school district.

The raising of $4,713.27 in East Jordan and surrounding townships is remarkable, because it is the largest sum ever raised here for a community purpose. A real effort was made to contact every home and place of business, and this was checked and rechecked. The very encouraging result is that 95 percent of the people solicited contributed. This spirit of all working together for a worthy cause, and the very large sum of money contributed is a just reason of our feeling proud.

To Bill Grauel and his assistant, Jason Snyder, should go our thanks and congratulations. They worked untiringly for almost two months listing, card indexing and checking each house and place of business, sending letters to our summer neighbors, and giving out cards and instructions to workers in the nearby townships as well as in town.

Congratulations are also due the other volunteer workers, many of whom had 30 to 40 names to contact.

The campaign committee wishes to thank the Rotary Club for passing the Red Feather cans downtown on Wednesday afternoon. Thanks to the Merchants Committee for their advertising on Appreciation Day, the Temple Theater, the Charlevoix County Herald and the State Bank of East Jordan.

Willing To Assist

SAND RIVER, Nov. 30 — Dr. Reginald Williams, Ishpeming, was not content with his legal limit of one deer which he bagged during the recent bow and arrow season.

Getting a general firearm season license, he went hunting again but shot a buck near this Marquette county village which was too large for him to drag out of the woods alone. He proudly explained his overly successful season to an unidentified hunter appearing on the scene. Would he give him a hand?

Conservation officer Alger Lahti said he would be glad to.

Black-Out Basketball Game Here Dec. 19th

High School Faculty and Business Men feature attraction at High School Gym, Tuesday, Dec.

19. A novelty attraction rightly named Black-out Basketball will be played completely in the dark.

Black-out Basketball will be the first attraction in which Independents will oppose the Veterans. All lights will be turned out. Only the outline of the floor, baskets, ball and uniforms will show. The wrists of the players will also glow, so the referee will be able to detect any roughness such as clipping. It is also hinted that some erie figures will invade the game, so if you like a good spook show you are in for a lot of thrills.

The feature attraction called The Bloomer Girls vs. the Gay 90's will follow with the lights turned on. This game is packed full of thrills, and laughs with the High School Faculty decked out in their bloomers, bras, wigs, and bonnets while the Business men will have their pantaloons and hoop skirts. They are already complaining that they don't see how they can dribble the ball with a hoop sticking out around them. It is rumored that they are planning a few practices with some make-shift barrel hoops so they won't be so unfamiliar with their gear when the Company that is furnishing the wardrobe arrives the night of the game. It is also rumored that the Faculty have been trying to contact some of the town's women who might have played basket-ball back in the 1920's in the hope that they might secure some of the bloomers which were worn at that time and have been tucked away in the old trunk. So far they have been unsuccessful but the Company has assured them that they will be able to fit any and all contestants.

You can't afford to miss the laughs, thrills and spills that await those who attend this big double header attraction.

Tentative line-up is as follows:

Business Men
"Bottoms Up" Taylor (Chris)
"Santa Claus" Taylor (Bill)
"Mayor Ex" Benson (Benny)

"Grease Monkey" Bader (Harold)

Written Agreement Needed for Success

A study of father-and-son farm-operating agreements in Michigan by H. S. Wilt, Michigan State College agricultural economist, showed the lack of written operating agreement the weakest link.

Wilt found that although 96 percent of the fathers and sons were satisfied with the success of the farming program, only 19 percent of them had the partnership agreement in writing.

In most cases, Wilt explained, the farmer's intentions were fine, but if anything happened to the father, the son had little to show in a legal way for his interest in the business. Oral agreements, Wilt believes, are inclined to be quite general.

Illegal Cutting of Christmas Trees

A person with the idea of getting a free Christmas tree by cutting one from state land may find himself paying several times its value—and still have no tree. It takes a fine to convince a few illegal cutters each holiday season.

The conservation department cautions that taking a tree from a state forest is as much a conservation law violation as hunting game out of season.

Conservation and other enforcement officers are checking bills of sale (which must be certified) required of all persons transporting Christmas trees. The legitimate individual purchaser, transporting his yule tree over the highway, likewise must have a similar bill of sale. Necessary bill of sale forms may be secured from the state agriculture department, any state police post, or from a conservation field headquarters.

Insure Quality Milk Through Proper Care

What happens to the quality of milk after it is taken from the cow depends upon conditions and facilities provided by those who do the job of milking and caring for the herd. D. L. Murray, Michigan State College extension dairyman, reminds dairymen that quality is important from the standpoint of consumers' using dairy products in greater quantities.

A strong point from the standpoint of selling dairy products is that they are purchased and consumed because people like them, Murray advises. To maintain this valuable aid of flavor in selling dairy products, producers must provide milk that is free from off-flavors and which possesses good keeping quality.

Several important items must be considered if quality of milk is to be maintained until it reaches market. Murray cites as the first item the cleanliness of the cows. Clean, well-bedded barns, along with clipping the rear quarters of the cow's body, help to protect quality. Clean, sterile utensils and equipment used in handling the milk are next in order, and are of major importance in preventing bacteria from getting into the milk supply.

Prompt cooling to below 60 degrees Fahrenheit is necessary to prevent the growth of those bacteria that may be present.

Careful attention to all steps of milk production is necessary in producing high quality milk. Achieving good results is up to those individuals who are caring for the herd and handling the milk, Murray maintains.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Vishinsky Names Only Conditions On Which Russia Will Make Peace; Weather Hampers Allies in Korea

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Asia is the danger spot of the world today, most observers believe. The above map shows point of Communist aggression and countries being aided by the United States. China Reds now dominate Tibet, and observers theorized Nepal may be next.

UNITED NATIONS: Formula for Peace

Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky in a slashing, abusing speech in the United Nations general assembly outlined a series of conditions which he said must be accepted before there could be world peace. He made it plain that there was no other possible ground for the settlement of east-west differences.

The main condition of Vishinsky's speech was the demand that the Chinese Communists be allowed a seat in the United Nations. Russia has long battled for admission of China in the U.N., but the tone of Vishinsky's speech was much stronger than it had been on other occasions.

The main points of Vishinsky's demands:

1. A pledge not to try to get around the veto.
2. Unconditional prohibition of the atomic-bomb.
3. Armed forces under exclusive control of the security council.
4. Aid to backward countries under international control.
5. Development of international trade without discrimination.

These were the demands reportedly given to Secretary-General Trygve Lie when he visited Prime Minister Stalin during his trip to Moscow in May. Lie's refusal to accept them is believed the reason the Russians opposed his re-election as secretary-general.

Many observers saw a threat in a part of Vishinsky's speech. He said if these demands were ignored it would be idle to think of peace being achieved through the U. N.

KOREA: In Ice and Snow

In ice and snow, with the mercury often below zero, United Nations forces in Korea continued a slow advance against Communist troops.

Snow and ice made operations slow and dangerous. Supply routes far to the rear were blocked making it necessary to depend on air drops.

Military leaders reported approximately 100,000 Chinese and Korean Communists were established in a 60-mile line below the great hydro-electric plants on the Yalu river border between Korea and Manchuria. An all-out battle in the area was expected.

The advance has been carried out behind devastating air attacks by the U. S. air force.

American officers said the advance was progressing "well," but just how fast they go depends a great deal upon the weather. In many of the mountain passes wind had piled snow 10 to 12 feet deep. Meanwhile, the Russians are making new threats concerning the Korean conflict. Among other things, they charge that Japanese soldiers are now being used in Korea.

According to the Soviet, a Chinese-Russian treaty calls for their intervention whenever Japanese troops are used against the Chinese.

Some sources believed this could be another step in the Russian plan for justification of her throwing men and planes into the conflict. Others believe, however, that Russia would not take such a step.

TRUMAN: Champions Fair Deal

President Truman held a press conference and declared—in the face of G.O.P. claims that the November election had killed his fair deal—that he would continue to press for adoption of his whole program as long as he was president.

If the Republican party thought their victory had taken any of the starch out of the President they were disappointed. He said he would present his full program to the 82nd congress when it convened in January.

To the surprise of everyone present at the press conference he did not seem disturbed by Republican gains in congress. He brushed off his reverses as normal in a non-presidential year. He added that practically all the Republican victories could be traced to local situations. Most observers were inclined to agree with him in that respect.

Then the President got down to some definite statement: Secretary of State Dean Acheson is going to keep his job—period. General Douglas MacArthur reports that American troops in Korea have plenty of clothing.

Surveys are still going on to determine whether price and wage controls are necessary. They'll be imposed as soon as there is need for them, but he doesn't think the time has come.

He could be convinced this country should send an ambassador to Franco Spain, but he hasn't been convinced so far.

He doesn't agree with Taft's recent statement that higher taxes could lead to inflation.

There will be further conservations on the proposed Japanese peace treaty within a few weeks.

PROFITS LEVY Battle Shapes Up

From all indications a severe battle is shaping up over President Truman's proposed $4 billion excess profits tax. The tax bill in all probability will be presented to the "lame duck" session of congress but the President has no assurance that it will get approval, especially in the senate.

If the proposal fails in the "lame duck" session and is presented in the 82nd congress, observers believe Republican strength will show itself for the first time and a great many changes will be written into the bill.

As of the moment, the U. S. chamber of commerce branded the tax "un-American" and urged congress to cut Federal nondefense spending by at least $6 billion instead of approving the levy.

A Republican substitute for the bill was vetoed in the house ways and means committee. Democrats on the committee criticized the GOP proposal as one that would hit small business and favor corporations with income swollen by the defense program.

The President's plan calls for a tax of 75 per cent on excess profits of corporations, with the four-year period 1946-49 used as a yardstick to determine what profits are abnormal.

A barrage of other protests against the levy was received by the house ways and means committee.

All this would indicate that no action will be taken on the bill this year although it will be ready for consideration. What the new congress will do about the proposed tax is anybody's guess.

The battle will be bitter and may have a great influence on the 1952 presidential election.

Atomic Dogtag

Corp. Doris J. Aggar is shown with the army's new self-developing photographic dosimeter, a device which measures the extent of exposure of individuals to atomic radiation. The "atomic dogtag" is simple, inexpensive to produce and is worn about the neck. Readings can be obtained in about one minute after exposure to radioactive rays.

MINUTE MEN: Ready for Action

A revolutionary defense plan was announced by defense department officials.

The plan called for millions of civilian "minute men," ready for immediate action, while the regular armed forces are building toward their projected three-million-man strength.

Military men reportedly believe that a three-million-man force will not meet defense needs.

Every newspaper in Michigan for two weeks has been reminding us of the number of shopping days until Christmas. Says one writer, "Fortunately my remaining years are few. I shall not be here to complain when right after Labor Day our hustling merchants commence hanging up Christmas decorations."

Bitter, perhaps, but pointed. The criticism was directed at cities more than at small towns. Rural communities still follow the traditional opening of the Christmas season following Thanksgiving.

But not all is commerce. Every charity and civic organization in the state is preparing bins of gifts to guarantee a merry yuletide season for all. For them the season is all too short. It is impossible to discover and reach all those in need.

Incidentally, don't cut that Christmas tree if it is on state-owned land. That is as much a violation as hunting out of season.

On the political scene the holiday season already is fraught with anxiety. G. O. P. wheelhorses look darkly at Wayne county and hint of fraud at the ballot boxes as the recount results loom nearer. Democrats return the frowns fearlessly, claiming partisan politics by the state board of canvassers.

Michigan, having had a taste of winter, now is bedded down—all but the winter sports centers. After a virtually snowless season last year, operators are preparing for their biggest winter.

Michigan's automobile industry offers an interesting variety of claims. While one spokesman says the business faces its most uncertain year in a decade, another optimistically announces the nation's output will reach 8,000,000 units for 1950. Reo Motors, Inc., of Lansing quietly reveals it is on the threshold of its best year.

But all will agree that the industry is suffering a shortage of youth for key positions—as are all businesses. Behind the cold statistics there always are warm breathing individuals with their own personal problems. The primary problem is war—minor or not—its effect on colleges and the psychological effect of uncertainty.

And many of the impatient younger generation are shying away from the years of training at low pay when the cost of living is pinching white collar workers so badly.

A unique method for teaching safety to the tykes has been perfected by Neil Newman of Williamston, a retired police lieutenant. He tells the story of a dog who disobeyed while his trained terrier acts out the tale. With a board to illustrate the traffic problem he entertains and teaches children at once. And he is available for lectures.

Legislators, mulling the way to spend the $65,000,000 bond issue approved Nov. 7, for mental hospitals, have learned that the state's mental institutions are overcrowded 20 percent. The report by A. N. Langius, building director, says all facilities are over the 100 percent occupancy mark.

Ft. Custer may yet be an air academy. Once rejected by the air force, it now may be acceptable as a joint army-air force station. The army has reversed its original stand and now would be "glad to consider point occupancy."

A plea has been made and supported by Dr. Lee M. Thurston, state superintendent of public instruction, for an up-to-date history of Michigan for public schools.

The deer season—buck and antlerless—are closed. Business in every city is back to normal. Mechanics again are available and that insurance premium again or doctor bill can be paid in person.

Conservation officials ask, however, that rather than have good venison spoil, sportsmen call their local charitable organizations to take it off their hands. Sportsmen in the woods, be sportsmen at home, the department says.

WHOLESALE PRICES

Wholesale Index at All-Time High

The bureau of labor statistics reported wholesale prices hit an all-time high during the second week of November. The new index was an advance of .8 of a per cent in one week and was 8.7 per cent above the June 20 level, before the Korean fighting.

All commodities other than farm products and foods again advanced to another peak, 9.3 per cent above pre-Korean war levels. Hogs and steers continued to move in opposite directions. Hogs dropped while steers advanced to the highest point in 1950.

Steel-scraper prices which had not changed for two months advanced 50 cents a ton. Rubber prices, reacting to the war news, also advanced. Tin prices also fluctuated violently.

Sharing Our Faith

Lesson for December 10, 1950

SCRIPTURE: Acts 8:1-13; 18:1-7; 1
Corinthians 9:16-17; II Corinthians 5:17-20; Philippians 1:12-18; 2:12-18.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Romans 1: 8-17.

A COMMON sight in cities of ancient times was the "libration." Statues of gods or goddesses stood at every prominent corner, in every yard; they were, as numerous as billboards today.
Before one of these statues some one would be pouring out wine from a cup or goblet, an offering of thanksgiving or dedication. Saint Paul even used the libration as a figure of speech to describe himself. My life, he said to his friend Timothy, is being poured out—there was not much left of it, but all of it, every drop, would be poured out as an offering to God.

Dr. Foreman

Miser of Life or Spender?
PAUL was no miser of life. If life was a full cup, it was not a cup with a tight lid, not like one of your grandmother's jars of very special preserves to be saved and saved but never used. Paul was a spender of life. Whatever God had given him was to be poured out, not to be saved.

There is something in every one's cup of life; something that spoils if kept too long, something fragrant and beautiful when poured out in service.
The miser of life finds that life at last turns sour on him. The spender of life finds that as he has given, in the same measure it will be given him.

Faith Can't Be Hoarded

ONE very important part of the Christian's life is high-lighted for us in this week's Scripture: his faith. Indeed, faith ought not to be a part of life for the Christian.
Faith is no more a "part" of life than sunshine is a part of the out-of-doors. Without the sunshine there might as well not be any out-of-doors. So without faith the Christian's life would be mere existence.

The question is: What do we do with our faith? Do we keep it for ourselves alone or do we pass it on?

Last summer a man tried to get a grocery store to take back 100 pounds of sugar which he had laid up during World War II. He had hoarded it till it was hard as rock and he could not use a pound of it.
(The grocery would not take it back, and it served him right.) Faith is like that. It is sweet and good — but only if we use it and share it, not if we keep it to ourselves.

What Is Sharing Faith?

SHARING your faith means helping others to have a faith at least as strong as your own. All around us there are persons who have no faith at all. They are discouraged, blue, bewildered, at loose ends—in the sad old phrase, they are lost. Sharing your faith means sharing it with just such people.

With some things, the more you give away the less you have left; but the arithmetic of religion is different. The more you give away, the more you have. Shared faith is living faith; shared faith is growing faith.

There are more ways than one of sharing our faith. One way is to talk about it. A person can "give a testimony" in a prayermeeting, and share faith that way; but this is not the only way. A person who merely talks about faith is a little like a gardener who is proud of his own garden and brags on it, but never helps his neighbors with theirs.

How Can We Do It Every Day?

REMEMBER, what we are really trying to share when we "share the gospel" or "share Christ" is not an argument, a set of propositions. The big thing is not arguing other people into becoming Christians.

Very few persons have ever become Christians because some one talked them into it.
Talk has its place, and every Christian should be eager to say a good word for Jesus Christ at every chance. But good words for Jesus have their best effect when they come from a life that is really His.

A Christian whose faith is something put on on Sundays with the "church clothes" is not going to have any great success as a soul-winner. We can't share faith we don't have; we can't share second-hand or imitation faith. A former Mohammedan, being asked what was the great argument that won wasn't any argument, it was the him to Christianity, replied, "It lives of some missionaries."

from Muskegon and competition in the Central States tournament Sunday with Chris Taylor leading in the Class B singles with a count of 649. Chris rolled 203, 223 and 223 to take the lead by 14 pins.
The tournament has but two more week end to go and the score has a good chance to hold up for the balance of the tournament. Chris also landed high in Class B all events, as he added .602 in the doubles and 544 in the team event to give him 1795 and third place.
While Chris was blasting the pins for his top scores, Barney Adair kept pace and placed high in the Class A all-event and singles, landing in the first ten in the singles with a 658 count and taking over third place in the all events with 1899, just ten pins short of the leader. Barney had 597 in the team event and 644 in the doubles. Jim Lilak teamed up with Barney to get 1161 in the doubles for a spot on the board in the Class B doubles.

points from St. Joseph. John At-three points from Monarch Finer the Legion five with 523, and Ike

The Anchorage and Ellsworth Electric moved up in the standings with four point wins over the Recreation and Thorsen's Lumber Co. Dick Hamerski was high for bowlers getting 516 and both bowlers scoring exactly the same score in the three game series.

Dick had 170-182-164, while Cliff had 170-164-182, a neat trick.
Don Campbell led the Electric in their four point win with 527, while Joe Wilkins was high for the lumbermen with 517.

SHORT STORY

Harmonious Union

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

IT WAS incredible that Tony and Leah Cranston should have quarreled over so small a thing. The neighbors would have been horrified, for the neighbors thought no two people were more ideally suited. The neighbors were right, too. Tony and Leah were harmoniously united. They were deeply in love. There was perfect understanding between them.

Then one day Tony came home from work and went into the bedroom to freshen up for dinner and found two five-dollar bills and some change lying on the bureau. He scooped up the money.

"Hey," he said good naturedly. "We can't afford this. I found this money lying on the bureau. It might have blown away. Don't be so forgetful!"

Leah smiled. "Oh, my!" she said. "Did I leave the change from the grocery there?"

A week later Tony discovered a dollar bill where it had been idly dropped on the living room table and forgotten.

"Listen, honey, you've got to be more careful. Money is pretty important to us right now."

"I'm sorry," said Leah. "but it's only a dollar."

"We can't afford to lose a dollar or even a part of a dollar," Tony said, smiling.

The next time—the time Tony discovered three dollars on the kitchen tables and one on the floor, where it had blown—she didn't smile.

"Good gosh, woman! Show a little more consideration, will you? If I hadn't noticed that dollar on the floor it would have been lost."

"Darling," she said altogether too precisely. "I've never lost a penny of our money."

"How do you know?" asked Tony, a bit smugly.

"Because," said Leah, just as smugly. "I can account for every dime you've ever given me."

"Hal!" said Tony. "Let's see you!"

So Leah got a pencil and paper—and sat down and figured out her expenditures, to the last penny.

"Well," said Tony, "that doesn't mean you won't lose some if you continue to be careless. After it's gone—well, you've heard the crack about locking the barn door after the horse has been stolen."

"I've heard," said Leah icily. "a lot of cracks."

SUDDENLY it occurred to Tony that this was their first major crisis. Somehow he'd have to break Leah of her habit without a quarrel.

It was the next Saturday noon when he came home from work that Tony discovered three ones and a two-dollar bill on the bureau where it had been absent dropped by Leah while she rescued the roast from burning. Furtively Tony scooped up the money and stuck it in his pants pocket. Sooner or later Leah would discover it was missing. She'd become concerned. She'd ask him to help hunt. He'd make a pretense of hunting and then pretend to find the money where it had blown into the bathroom.

That afternoon Tony went playing golf. All the while he was gone, while he was in the locker room and on the course and later in the showers, he kept thinking of Leah hunting for the missing money.

He came home an hour earlier than he had planned. The moment he saw Leah's face he knew she had discovered the loss.

"Darling, I laid some money on the bureau. Have you seen it?"

"It must have blown off," said Tony. "Boy, I hope we can find it!"

His face wore a look of grave concern as he began hunting. "We can't afford to lose a cent," he kept saying.

Tony waited until Leah looked as though she were on the point of bursting into tears, remembering she had been saving for a new hat and knowing she couldn't have it unless they found the money. Then he ambled into the bathroom, and, chucking to himself, reached into his pocket.

A startled look came to his face. He reached into his other pockets. They were all empty.

Can't Change

"That's a fine youngster," said the talkative old man to the young mother sitting opposite him on the train. "I hope you will bring him up to be an honest, upright American. And who knows? Maybe someday he will be a second George Washington."

"Yes," smiled the proud mother, "but in this day and time I'm afraid that is going to be somewhat difficult, since—"

"Oh, nonsense," continued the man. "As the twig is bent so is the tree inclined."

"I know," agreed the mother, "but this twig is bent on being a girl and we are inclined to let it go at that."

Practice Before You Leap

In the wildest confines of darkest Africa, a big-game hunter suddenly came upon a lion, shot, and missed. Fortunately for him, the lion was running so rapidly that he overshot his mark, too, allowing the hunter to escape.

The hunter returned to camp and set about at target practice, lest he not be so lucky the next time. Soon, he heard a terrific roar in bushes nearby. Out bounded the self-same lion—practicing short leaps.

Wrong Address

A prominent business man who had been invited to speak at a political meeting was placed last on the list of speakers. Moreover, the chairman introduced several speakers whose names were not on the program, and the audience was tired out when he eventually introduced the last speaker: "Mr. Jenkins will now give us his address."

"My address," said Mr. Jenkins, rising, "is 155 Lane Park, and I wish you all good-night."

Takedown

Voice (over telephone) — Hello. Hello. This is Judge Babington Peterson McFeatherson the Third. Will you please tell my son, Cravenwood Rutherford McFeatherson the Fourth, that I would like to speak to him."

Frosh—"Hey, Mac, your old man wants to speak to you."

I Remember Mama

Voice over telephone. "Ronnie Fisher has a bad cold and will not be in school today."

Principal: "And who is this speaking, please?"

Voice: "This is my mother speaking."

Look Here!

He — "That's a flimsy dress you're wearing."

She — "That's a flimsy excuse for staring."

Extra Precaution

Mr. Watkins, a widower only a short time, was seen by a friend in the company of a charming young woman at a local restaurant. The friend called Watkins aside and said "Say, don't you remember what your wife told you? If you ever went out with a woman after she died, she'd claw her way out of her grave and haunt you the rest of her life?"

But Watkins only laughed and the friend, puzzled, asked "What's so funny?"

"Well, Bill," Watkins replied, "I buried my wife face down, so let her dig away."

In 1945 the Michigan Cooperative Extension Service saw the need for a centralized artificial breeding program to aid the state's billion dollar dairy industry. It provided personnel, leadership and initial funds to organize the Michigan Artificial Breeders' Cooperative, Inc.

Today the organization is self supporting and owns many thousands of dollars worth of valuable bulls and facilities. The 78 bulls kept at the central laboratory at East Lansing include many of the best in the state. Most of them have proven ability to raise butterfat production in female offspring above that of the mother. Purebred bulls include the Holstein, Guernsey, Jersey and Red Dane breeds. By early 1950, locally operated breed associations were operating in 70 counties and serving 150,000 cows. Since then, 15,000 more cows in 2,200 more herds have been added to the list:

Semen is delivered to local inseminators by train, bus and air transportation. Local county agricultural agents help develop the program and some counties have as many as six associations. A. C. Baltzer, Michigan State College extension dairyman, is secretary-manager of the farmer-owned cooperative which constructed modern buildings and laboratories on land leased from Michigan State College near East Lansing.

CHRISTMAS CAN MAKE YOUR CHILD UNHAPPY

Are your children already over-excited with the anticipation of Christmas and Santa Claus and all the activities? They are likely to be and your worry is that Christmas actually is still days away.

Each year it seems that the commercial world forces us to become concerned with Christmas earlier until it must seem to be an eternity of waiting for the small fry. Bernice Borgman, who works with nursery school children at Michigan State College, believes that it can cause children to become over-stimulated and overtired with bad effects on them.

Your problem is to keep preparations and talk of Christmas down to a moderate amount so long before Christmas. The general feeling is that each Christmas should mean more parties, more decorations and more gifts than the previous one. This is intended to be for the pleasure of children but may result in their becoming irritable and restless and unhappy instead of happy as we planned, the nursery school specialist says.

Out of this restlessness, a child may become more demanding for constantly more elaborate pleasures. And children do enjoy simple things. If they haven't been spoiled it takes little to make them happy. If they become accustomed to too much excitement, it can become a vicious circle as they constantly demand more.

Christmas is a particularly good time to make an effort to strive for contentment and lasting satisfaction rather than elaborate but short-lived pleasures. Families have different ways of celebrating and each must plan its own. It is important to remember that a little bit goes a long way with children and for them expectation and realization must come close together. Plan for happiness rather than fatigue and strain.

Heroes of the health world, guinea pigs react almost like mankind when they catch tuberculosis. The prolific little creatures, to whom countless people already owe their lives, are studied by scientists with the goal of finding new treatment weapons against human tuberculosis. If sufficient money is raised, more of Michigan's 1950 tuberculosis Christmas Seal dollars will be used to help the life-saving scientific research in 1951, according to the Michigan Tuberculosis Association.

MICHIGAN SECONDARY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION

Mr. Carl Wagner attended the annual meeting of the Michigan Secondary School Association, Nov. 27-29. This meeting was held in Grand Rapids.

The main meetings were sponsored by the North Central Association. This is the association which accredits and sets up standard for the school of Michigan.

Benefit plans for the athletes were discussed at one meeting.

One representative from every school in Michigan attended.

Mrs. Wagner accompanied her husband.

FIRST Grade — M. Stokes

In spite of the recent cold epidemic, eight people had perfect attendance the second six weeks of school. They are: Marvin Crawford, Jean Graham, Betty Healey, Donald Metcalf, Larry Bussler, Roger Clark, Raymond Richards and Donald Snyder. The first four have had perfect attendance all twelve weeks so far.

With the help of the kindergarten and Judy Dressel we are showing how the Dutch children greet Santa Claus in the Christmas program. One of our boys will be Santa.

Joe Kaley's mother came to visit one day last week.

FIRST Grade — Mrs. Bowerman

We had so much fun planning and carrying out the decorations for our room. We enjoy setting by our big fireplace. We are enjoying the small fireplace with its cherry light which Mary Boring brought to share with us.

Sandra Gibbard had her seventh birthday on Dec. 6th. She entertained some of her friends at her home.

Only Jane Graham, Kenneth Sineway and Ronnie Metcalf had perfect attendance for the second marking period.

FIRST Grade — Mrs. Brooks

Of course we are very busy learning Christmas songs and practicing for our Christmas pageant.

Charey's mother brought their new baby, Patricia Anna, to our room Monday. Patricia did not see us but we saw her. She was just ten days old. She was asleep all the time and looked so sweet she made us think of the Baby Jesus.

Roy Dougherty came back to school today after being absent for more than a week.

The Bears have finished all the pre-primers and are now reading Fun With Dick and Jane.

SECOND Grade — Agnes Johnston

We have begun to decorate our room for Christmas with bells, trees, stars and many attractive pictures.

Mrs. Johnston told us about the big Christmas parades that take place every year in New York and Detroit. Macy's big department store in New York City puts on one and also Hudson's department store in Detroit. The parade consists of giant-size balloons in the shape of Santa Claus, animals of all kinds and many Mother Goose characters. We enjoyed hearing about these parades.

We are busy getting our Christmas gifts made for mother and father. Last week we finished special Christmas cards for them which we hope they will like.

A book of Christmas stories was brought to school by Judy Malpass. Mrs. Johnston read to us the story of "The Little Fir Tree" by Hans Christian Andersen from this book. It was interesting story of the life of a little fir tree. We all decided we would let the birds have our Christmas tree when we are finished with it at Christmas time.

We think hanging suet, apples and food on the branches of the tree will give birds food all winter. This is a much happier way of using the Christmas tree than by burning it as was the fate of the little fir tree in the story.

Catherine Kamradt and Larry Schumacher also brought their Christmas story books to school from which we will read as soon as possible.

We are trying to have a 100 percent enrollment in the Junior Red Cross drive being held this week in our room. Ten children from our room have enrolled already and are wearing Red Cross pins.

We are glad to have a few children in our room who have been neither absent nor tardy the last six weeks of school. Those children with perfect attendance are: David Bartholomew, Virginia Donaldson, Jane Dunson, Harold Murray, Larry Schumacher, Loretta Sineway and Donald Skop.

LIGHTNING PROTECTION FOR METAL-ROOFED BUILDINGS

Many requests are coming in to Ed Rebman, county agr'l agent, for information regarding the efficiency of the simple method of lightning protection for metal-roofed buildings. Consensus of opinion is that the simple system is quite adequate, but perhaps the rod system is better. The following is an excerpt from the Farmers' Bulletin No. 1512 entitled "Protection of Buildings and Farm Property from Lightning".

"Metal-roofed and metal-clad buildings, when properly grounded, usually require little further attention to make them reasonably safe from damage by lightning. The down conductor should be connected to the underside of aluminum roofs. Clamps and fastenings made of aluminum but otherwise similar to those used for copper grounds should be used. Adding air terminals where needed and cross-connecting and grounding interior metalwork completes the installation and brings it into full accordance with standard practice as set forth in the following paragraphs quoted from the Code:

214 Metal-Roofed and Metal-Clad Buildings

(a) METAL IN OVERLAPPING SECTIONS — Buildings which are roofed or roofed and clad with metal in the form of sections insulated from one another, or so applied that they are not in electrical contact, shall be treated in the same manner as are buildings composed of non-conducting materials.

(b) METAL CONTINUOUS — When buildings are roofed or roofed and clad with all-metal sheets made electrically continuous by means of an interlocking or other contact, or by bonding, the following modifications may be made:

Air terminals need be provided only on chimneys, ventilators, gables, and other projections, such as are likely to receive and be damaged by a stroke of lightning. Projections that are likely to receive, but not be damaged by a stroke of lightning need not be provided with air terminals but shall be securely bonded to the roof.

Roof conductors may be dispensed with and elevation rods, if used, connected to the roof by solder joints, or securely bolted joints, having an area of contact of not less than 3 square inches (19.3 cm²). If the roof metal is in small sections, connections shall be made to at least four of the section.

Down conductors shall be connected to the edges of roofs, or to the lower edges of metal siding, by soldered or bolted joints having an area of contact of at least 3 square inches (19.3 cm²). If the metal is in small sections, connection shall be made to at least four of the sections.

Interconnection of exterior metalwork in a metal-covered building should be carefully done. Although the metal cover may be used in place of the usual lightning conductor for making connections, this should be done only when the cover is continuously conducting and well grounded."

KEEP YOUR TRACTOR RUNNING

Having trouble getting your tractor to start on these cold mornings? If so, you'll benefit from these three suggestions given this week by Ed Rebman, county agr'l agent.

He recommends keeping the engine clean as the first job. Dirt collects around the spark plugs, magneto and distributor cap. Then it gets damp and shorts the electrical system. A clean engine is always a help to easier tractor starting.

Agent Rebman also says to be sure you use winterized fuel. Some manufacturers add volatile materials during the winter months, and these light materials help promote easier starting.

Finally, the agent advises, keep the fuel tank full as much of the time as possible this winter. This will help keep moisture from condensing on the inside of the tank and promotes easier starting.
