President Truman Asks for Unity As Nation Builds Up Armed Might; U. N. Forces Continue to Pull Back

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

With food prices near the all-time high of July, 1948, which was nearly 217.3 per cent of the 1935-39 average, the government drafted a 30-day moratorium on all prices increased. The chart above traces the food price spiral. The moratorium was delayed by disagreement within the government's economic-control organization.

TRUMAN:

Drops Fair Deal

President Truman opened his "State of the Union" message to congress with the words "our country is in a healthy condition." From that point he stressed strength and unity in the face of Communist aggression throughout the world.

One of the remarkable points of the President's message was his apparent willingness to drop his much debated Fair Deal program—for the time being—in order to get on with the business of building up the free world's ability to wage "a full-scale war against Russia," if such conflict becomes necessary.

Mr. Truman's plea for unity was impressive and undoubtedly won him some new friends in a hostile congress. "I ask the congress for unity . . . I do not ask, or expect, unanimity . . . Let us debate the issues, but let every man among us weigh his words and deeds," he said.

Many legislators called the President's speech conciliatory. And despite certain routine political sharpshootings which some Republicans indulged in after his address, it was obvious that the opposition party was affected favorably by his effort to find unity of purpose. It seems likely that an era of greater co-operation and political peace is in store for the 82nd congress than could have been hoped for a few months ago. The people along the main streets of America may at least see swift and vital decisions made to meet the crisis. It was also evident from the President's speech that on one point he would not give an inch. He stood unyielding on the issue of military co-operation with western Europe.

The Program

President Truman outlined a 10-point legislative program in his "State of the Union" message to congress:

1. Appropriations for the armed forces build-up.
2. Extension and revision of the draft law, presumably to induct 18-year-olds and extend the draft term from 21 to 27 or 30 months.
3. Military and economic aid to the rest of the free world.
4. Revision and extension of his authority to expand production and control wages, prices, and rents.
5. Improvement of the agricultural laws to help "obtain the kinds of farm products we need for the defense effort." This might include a direct subsidy to farmers to keep from setting farm price ceilings at less than parity.
6. Improvement of labor laws to "help provide stable labor-management relations" and assure "steady" production.
7. Housing and training of defense workers and "the full use of all our man-power resources."
8. Legislation to increase the supply of doctors, nurses, and other medical personnel.
9. Federal aid to the States for elementary and secondary education.
10. A "major increase" in taxes.

UNITED NATIONS

U. S. Seeks to Brand China Aggressor

Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb told the United Nations his country was not yet ready for a final decision on American demands for U.N. condemnation of Red China as an aggressor. He held the U.N. that to "look well before you leap is a wise maxim in foreign affairs. If we do leap, we should all leap together."

There was an undertone to Jebb's

A-Bomb

Atomic energy commission chairman, Gordon Dean (above), reported recently the Russians do have the atomic bomb. He made the announcement during a news conference in which he told news- men that the government will have to cut down its development of atomic energy for peacetime uses because of the international situation.

KOREA:

Pattern Repeated

The pattern of the Korean conflict continued to repeat itself. Following the January 1 attack by Chinese and North Korean Communists on United Nations forces south of the 38th parallel, a general retreat to the south and the old Pusan beachhead continued.

The retreat was along the old "Heartbreak Highway" down which Americans and South Koreans first retreated before the North Korean invaders last July.

Although Communist casualties were reported heavy, the Reds continued to attack and push southward.

It seemed unlikely that United Nations forces would be able to establish a line short of the Pusan beachhead. What would happen after that is anyone's guess.

Some military leaders believe U.N. troops will be able to stand off Communist thrusts with the aid of U.S. fleet guns. It seemed unlikely, however, that a counter-offensive could be launched for months.

It was obvious to every observer that the position of U.N. troops in Korea was steadily growing worse. And there was no indication that their position would get better.

FARMING:

Some Curbs Lifted

The government removed all restrictions on production of wheat and corn for 1951 in an effort to maintain safe reserves of these vital bread and livestock feed grains under the national emergency.

The only crops still under production controls are some types of tobacco, peanuts and rice. It is possible that restrictions may be eased on peanuts and rice.

The action came too late for additional planting of winter wheat but is expected to increase spring wheat planting which makes up 30 per cent of the nation's crop.

Farm experts predicted that the unlimited corn acreage would increase the nation's meat supply by at least three pounds per person this year. There was enough meat available in 1950 to supply each person with 145 pounds.

TAFT:

Constructive Criticism

In a speech which he called "constructive criticism" of the administration, Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio served notice that the Republican party pledged itself to securing a greater voice in policy making.

The senator based his criticisms on what he called the President's legal right to send American troops to Europe. He added that we "had better commit no American troops to the European continent at this time."

Mr. Taft expressed a tide of thought that has been growing throughout the United States since reverses in Korea, namely, that the defense of Europe was primarily western Europe's responsibility, not ours.

Undoubtedly the most powerful Republican in the senate, Taft seemed to be serving notice on the administration that congress intended to cut in on the President's power to formulate foreign policy. If the Republicans are willing to push the question it could lead to a state of confusion in congress never before seen in a time of crisis.

One of the most startling statements of the senator's speech was the one when he said the U.S. ought to go along, for the time being, in the U.N. for its value as a world forum, but that the instrumentality was mortally weak in having been founded, not upon "justice" but upon the power of its leading members. To the people in the home towns of the country who had placed their faith in the United Nations it was like a blow below the belt.

Was it possible that some of the nation's leading legislators believed that the United Nations was as dead as the League of Nations? Was it possible that some of our prominent leaders favored U.S. withdrawal from the United Nations? Taft's speech put those questions into the minds of many.

Two days after his "policy" speech, Senator Taft announced he was in favor of pulling U.S. troops out of Korea and setting up a new Pacific defense line based on Formosa and Japan. For these he would fight, he said. He then warned that if Russia attacks western Europe "it means war."

CONTROLS:

A Matter of Time

Wage and price controls appeared certain for the nation as it moved toward full mobilization. To the average housewife the need for price controls on food was becoming desperate.

A disagreement within the government's economic-control organization blocked action on a planned 30-day wage-price freeze. The action was a temporary measure to hold the line until enforcement machinery could be set up about March 1.

Price controller Michael V. D. Salle reportedly will need 30,000 workers for a nationwide staff, of whom more than half would be charged with tracking down black marketeers, hoarders, price gougers and other control chisellers.

Some temporary plan to stop the price spiral was considered necessary by most people. At the present rate of increase, food prices would be at an all-time high by March 1 and would bring hardship for fixed income groups. Millions of workers have contracts which grant pay increases as the price index climbs and this group would not suffer.

The people on pensions and white collar workers are hardest hit by any price spiral.

Eisenhower

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower (above), is surrounded by lensmen as he speaks for newsreel and television cameras in the Pentagon during his first press conference after being named commander-in-chief for European armies. He left for a tour of European capitals shortly afterwards, declaring that the defense of western Europe cannot be carried out successfully unless sacrifices of other Atlantic pact nations equal those of the U.S.

DRAFT:

For All 18-Year-Olds

Any day now the defense department will ask congress for a blanket draft of all physically fit 18-year-olds to serve 27 to 30 months in uniform.

There is a question, however, whether or not congress will approve immediately. A number of legislators were reported splitting hairs over the request. Many felt that 18½ was young enough and 24 months long enough.

STYLE REVUE AT FARMERS' WEEK A WOMAN'S FEATURE

New ideas in clothing and design continue to interest many women. That's a reason why the annual style revue by students in the school of home economics during Farmers' Week each year draws larger audiences. The showing of costumes designed by the students will be in the M. S. C. auditorium, Thursday afternoon, February 1. There will be seating capacity for several thousand rural and urban women and the event is open to the public.

Josephine Martin, member of the staff in the department of textiles, clothing and related arts, reports more than 75 young women will model and show costumes they have designed and made.

Five groups of dresses and suits including cotton, wool, silk, crepe and nylon fabrics will be included. To show what originality can do, some girls have used the identical basic commercial pattern and through manipulating the fabric or varying the trimming or accessories, have produced very different dresses.

Outstanding hats made by millinery students last term will be modeled. Among them will be many madeover felts and straws and the popular cloche shape hats with a fitted crown and small turned down brim.

Some foreign students will model native costumes in the Farmers' Week event.

Dean Marie Dye of the school of home economics reports interesting programs scheduled for women both morning and afternoon on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday during Farmers' Week. The staff invites Michigan women to attend these educational events.

The Great Teacher
Lesson for January 28, 1951

WE HEAR a lot about a "better world." God pity the poor lout who thinks the world as it is, is all right! And may God stab awake those who are afraid to try to make this world better.
If you want to see a group of people who are not afraid, and are really working at this, go to your nearest Sunday school. There you will find teachers of religion. They may be doing a good job or a poor one; but anyhow they are trying. And when one of these teachers succeeds, even a little, in what they are all trying to do, the world has already been made a little better.

Greatest of Teachers
EVERY Sunday school teacher, or any other sort, for that matter, should study the methods of Jesus to see what good teaching can be. He is and will always be THE Teacher.
His object was not to teach science or history. The only technique he taught was the most important of all—the technique of fine living. His object was to teach "what we are to believe concerning God, and what duties God requires of man."
In short, his subjects were Faith and Life, not separately but welded into one.

Down Where We Live
HIS method was always simple. He did not use long words, he did not "put his hay on such a high shelf that only intellectual giraffes could reach it," as Billy Sunday expressed it. Common people heard him gladly, because he taught in the kind of language they used, he spoke of things that were familiar to them.
So the good teacher today never teaches over the heads of the class. This means he has to have a good imagination, has to make believe to himself that he is one of the class instead of the teacher. He has to remember how the world looked to him when he was a boy, he has to stay young in heart.
Jesus could surely have taught more profoundly than he did. Indeed, he said at the end of his days, "I have many things to say . . . but ye cannot bear them now." However true a thing might be, he would not say it if his hearers were not ready for it.

Truth in Pictures
THEN Jesus taught in pictures; we call them parables. The best-loved and remembered parts of his teaching are the stories he told. Every one of them was simple; they were about the kinds of people his listeners knew or had often heard of.
The good teacher will always use illustrations. But the best ones will come right out of the experience of the pupils. Jesus never quoted from a book his hearers had not read. He never used illustrations that only a Ph.D. could understand. Furthermore, he never tried to teach two things at once.
A teacher, looking over a Sunday school lesson, may find it full of suggestive ideas; but it is generally better to pick out one truth and illustrate it in several ways, as Jesus did when speaking of the Kingdom of God, than it is to try to bring out everything that could be brought out, and so confusing the class.

Making Them Think
NOW some teachers, trying to be simple, succeed only in being dull. The good teacher must keep the class awake, otherwise no one can learn anything. There is a good motto which might be borrowed by all Sunday school teachers: "Nothing that is not interesting; not everything that is interesting; nothing merely because it is interesting."
Jesus gained attention and interest in various ways. One was the "cryptic" nature of his teaching; that is, it was often puzzling. There was often something that sent listeners away thinking: Now what did he mean by that?
Confucius once remarked: "I give my pupil one corner of an idea. If he cannot get the other three corners for himself, I do not want him for my pupil." So Jesus often gave out one corner of a truth and let his hearers (and ourselves!) wrestle out the other three.
