 County Fair Sept. 12-13-14-15, 1911. The Charlevoix Agricultural Society was organized in 1885 and has held a fair each fall since that time. Some years ago the society acquired 40 acres of ground near the city and built buildings that at that time were considered very commodious and up-to-date, but the exhibits have each year called for more room and at the close of the 1910 fair it was decided to build modern and up-to-date buildings. A picture of the new dining hall 18x74 ft. with dwelling 14x24 attached. Mrs. E. Newson has been secured to manage the dining hall and speed barn for the use of race horses, contains 14 box stalls with slatted doors also the horse barn is 24x100 ft containing 40 stalls. Water is furnished to all barns by wells conveniently located.

During the electric storm early Monday morning the lighting struck the home of the late Mr. Spencer, tearing down the chimney and doing some damage within. Miss Foster the nurse who was in the home was slightly shocked.

Charles Spencer died at his home in this city Sunday evening after a long and painful suffering from paralysis. Surviving besides the widow are four children, George, a well known business man of our City, William L. Seattle, Wash., Mrs. Henry L. Winters of this City and Miss Carrie at home. Interment in East Jordan Cemetery.

A cement walk is to be constructed on the east side of the Presbyterian Parsonage lot and will be a great improvement to the property of the Church Trustees. It is high time that the old broken dangerous wooden sidewalks were replaced by cement. Received of the ladies of the Maccabees of the world a draft for five hundred dollars which is full payment of the Benefit Claim of the late Mrs. Ida Johnson, Laura Fuller, R. K.

SEPTEMBER 2, 1921
 In a near-fatal accident Saturday afternoon Ole Hegerberg connected a 2200 volt electric light wire and a 110 with his right arm and neck and lives to tell the story.

The accident took place on the electric light pole in front of the postoffice (now the Herald printing office) and was witnessed by hundreds of afternoon shoppers. Mr. Hegerberg had gone up the pole to re-connect the Empey building with electricity. For some reason Mr. Hegerberg went a step too high to adjust the heavy life belt, started to make the connection. It seems that some of his friends across the street called to him and he started to wave his hand, his right wrist striking the heavy voltage wire. He had polished off the 110 wire and in the mix-up this got across the back of his neck forming a circuit. This froze him to the wires and rendered him unconscious. The weight of his body pulled him away from the wires causing an explosion. Supt. Balch who was near by heard the explosion and rushed to his aid. Climbing the pole he righted Mr. Hegerberg's body, which was hanging downward from the life belt. He was taken down and rushed to a physician's office. It was found that the current had passed from his wrist to the neck, inflicting sever burns, but that the injuries were not fatal. The wrist burn is a bad one and for several days a nurse had to be in constant watch for fear of an artery breaking. At present he is resting easily and will soon be out again.

Charles William Farmer, 67, passed away at the home of his son Arthur in this city Aug 31. The remains were taken to Hortons Bay Friday, where funeral services were held from the Methodist church there.

J. W. (Bill) Loveday, one of East Jordan's native born, has accepted a position with Hudson's Pioneer Shoe Store and plans on making his home there. Mrs. Loveday and two children have been here during the summer months. They will make their home for the present with Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Loveday.

You can make a handy flower holder by sticking a potato full of holes with an ice pick for the stems. Then cut a sliver off the bottom to make it steady, MCS specialists suggest.

Three rubber jar rings held together by thread and sewed under the corner of a throw rug will prevent it from slipping.

Farmers Warned To Watch Grain For Pest Damage

Farmers were warned today to check their stored grain for bran bug and weevil damage if they want to avoid the cost of spoiled grain. Ray L. Janes, extension entomologist at Michigan State College, advised farmers to examine their stored grain every week or two for possible infestations. As a preventive measure against the profit-eaters, Janes said that grain should be dried out and cooled down as soon as possible after harvest. Any conditions that tend to keep temperatures and moisture high in the grain are ideal for insect damage. Fumigation is the best way of getting rid of bran bugs and weevils once they infest the grain. There are several points to keep in mind in fumigating for the pests. The granary must be tight enough to prevent the fumigating material from escaping through the walls and floor during the process. Temperature of the grain must be above 65 degrees Fahrenheit when the work is done. Janes recommends a mixture of three parts of ethylene dichloride and one part of carbon tetrachloride for fumigating. Both substances are poisonous and must be used with great care. Avoid breathing the fumes. One gallon of the mixture to 200 bushels of grain is needed. Air tight covers must be placed over the top of fumigated grain. James advises farmers to check with their county agricultural agent for complete instructions in using fumigants.

SOIL MISUSE

Nearing the last stage before being abandoned is this farm... not in the deep south or far west, but here in Michigan in southern Kalkaska county. Shifting sands uncover the remains of a horse, possibly buried deep enough, some 10 years ago. Instead of holding the thin layer of top soil with tree plantings... wheat, oats and similar quick crops were grown 10-15 years ago. To save the remaining land from a like fate, conservation department district forester Fred Harkin is recommending the planting of a mixed stand of jack and red pine which some day would stabilize the soil and produce an annual, valuable plywood and timber crop.

Homemakers' Corner

Home Economics Specialist Michigan State College MAKE APPLESAUCE OF EARLY APPLES "Early apples are excellent for eating but do not store too well," says Roberta Hershey, Michigan State College extension food and nutrition specialist. She suggests a practical way to keep them for winter—can them. Since they are likely to cook to pieces, most homemakers prefer to can them as sauce. This canned applesauce is fine in pies, puddings or served as a relish with chops and roasts, Miss Hershey points out. Making applesauce is easy. You can make it sweetened or unsweetened. After paring and coring apples, cut them in pieces. Heat through, stirring to keep from sticking to the pan. Pack hot to one-fourth inch of the top. Adjust lids and process in boiling-water bath, 10 minutes for either pint or quart jars. Complete seals, if closures are not of self sealing type, as soon as you remove jars from the canner, Miss Hershey advises. HOW TO SAVE AN ALCOHOLIC HUSBAND See, in this Sunday's (Sept. 9) issue of the American Weekly, celebrated health magazine, exclusively with The Detroit Sunday Times the story of one woman's courageous battle to rescue her husband from alcoholism.
