Churches Asked To Observe Cancer Sunday, April 20th.

Worshippers at the various churches here will be asked to observe Cancer Sunday on April 20, it was announced by Mrs. Ronald R. Scott, County Commander of the American Cancer Society's 1952 Cancer Crusade.

The clergy of all Catholic and Protestant churches have been asked to participate by devoting a portion of the Sunday services to prayer for cancer control. Jewish congregations in this area will be asked to observe April 20 as Cancer Sabbath and Rabbis will be urged to seek divine guidance for their people in the fight against cancer.

In commenting on plans for observance of Cancer Sunday, she said, "Religion has a definite place in the campaign for cancer control. Certainly the objective of saving lives—of making it possible to live out our allotted span—and of alleviating the suffering that cancer inflicts upon all ages, is God's work, and it needs the blessing of the Almighty."

"More than that too, these people who are using the knowledge of science to find means of controlling cancer, need the prayers of everyone of us, to the end that their efforts may be truly inspired by the Supreme Intelligence."

"I think Cancer Sunday presents an opportunity for all of us to pause and reflect upon our personal lives and remember the challenge of two thousand years ago: 'A new commandment I give you, that ye love one another.'"

The 1952 Cancer Crusade opens Here Tuesday

Mrs. Ronald R. Scott, County Commander, said that 25 volunteers will canvass every neighborhood in the community. Contributions to the Crusade also can be mailed to her, care of the East Jordan post office.

"At every home visited by our canvassers," she announced, "an American Cancer Society educational leaflet will be left whether a contribution is made or not. Imparting this lifesaving information to the public is every bit as important as our fundraising success in this humanitarian campaign."

Charlevoix County's goal of $1300.00 is part of the national Crusade goal of $16,000,000. The funds will be used to expand programs of services to patients, research into cancer's causes and cures, and public and professional education.

Mrs. Scott pointed out that 22,000,000 Americans now living will die of cancer unless present mortality rates are altered.

The Meditations will be conducted by the Rev. R. H. Moore, the Rev. O. A. Holley, the Rev. C. W. Thompson and the Rev. E. O. DeHaven.

In the Second Period of Worship which lasts from 1:45 to 3:00 p.m. the following solists will sing the following hymns: The Fourth Word, Mrs. O. A. Holley; the Fifth Word, Bonnie Hosler; the Sixth Word, Barbara Boring and the Seventh Word will be sung by a soloist to be announced later. The music is in charge of Mrs. Adolph Drapeau who will sing the Third Word in the First Period of Worship. The Same Clergy and the same order will conduct the Meditations for the Second Period of Worship.

The public is urged to attend one of the Periods of Worship and is invited to attend both Periods. Without a proper understanding of His Suffering there is little possibility of properly understanding the meaning of Easter Resurrection.

New Books:
True Tales of Buried Treasure — Snow: A collection which the author considers the best of the several hundred stories he has investigated. The last one tells of his own success in treasure hunting.

Lady Unafraid — Nelson: True story of a year in the life of a 17 year old girl who taught in a Mission School in L'Anse, Michigan, U.P., in the year 1826. This pioneer story tells much of the Indian life at that time.

Tara's Healing — Giles: Mystery and romance, especially good characterization. A story of the Kentucky Mountains people.

I Let Three Lives — Philbrick: True story of an American who was admitted into the inner circle of the Communist party, but worked for the F. B. I. as a counter-espionage, exciting reading. Through him our Government was able to trap and convict the eleven Communist spies.

The Crowning Glory — Turnbull: "The Bishop's Mantle", by this author, dealt with the problems of city churches. This describes life of a minister of a village church 50 years ago. Good family story.

Wings of The Morning — Davis: Life in American Northwest in the 1920's. This is neither a western nor a mystery but a bit of both.

In these days of uncertainty, the only thing you can count on is your fingers.

Collared Lemming

In the far north, where summers are short and winters bring many an icy blast, there lives a tiny, fur-bearing animal called the Collared Lemming. Though he doesn't look strong and hardy, he knows the tricks of surviving in the barren lands that stretch from northern Alaska to Labrador.

To help him hide from the larger animals that hunt him, he wears a white coat during the snowy winters. In the summer, when the ground is clear, his color changes to brown, chestnut, or gray.

If an enemy does see him, he scampers into his underground shelter. It is a clever hideaway, says the National Wildlife Federation, and often saves him from harm.

Collared Lemming

The entrance to the burrow may be dug in an open place, or it may be carved out beneath a log, a bush, or some tree roots. When he plunges into the hole, he enters a small tunnel which is from two to three feet long. At the end of this passageway, he comes to a nest chamber that is four or five inches in diameter. To make it soft and warm, he lines it with grass and moss.

If, by chance, a foe does poke into his main burrow, the Collared Lemming can leave his nest chamber and go into a branch tunnel. It is a foot or more in length.

The nest is an especially busy place early in the summer, for that is when most baby Lemmings are born. There are about three to a litter — making a family of five that must live in the little home. But the shelter never seems crowded because even the parents are small. When fully grown they are about 6 inches long and weigh 4 ounces.

Long before the first snow flies, the young Lemmings are ready to leave the nest and hunt their own meals. Their favorite foods are grass, roots, and moss — all fairly easy to find during the summer.

It is harder to get enough to eat in the winter, but the Lemmings still manage to satisfy their hunger. Under the snow they build a network of tunnels on the surface of the ground. With a thick blanket of white above them, they can leave their burrows and explore for bits of plant life.

The worst thing that can happen to them is for a raging wind to blow away the protecting snow. When that happens to a lemming colony, some of the little creatures perish in the cold and other are captured by hungry enemies.

While many are lost, the National Wildlife Federation reports that there is no danger of Collared Lemmings being wiped out. They are among the most plentiful animals on earth.

Faster, Cheaper Livestock Gains Made on Pasture

Young lambs and calves with their dams will make the fastest and cheapest gains when they're on pasture.

L. H. Blakeslee, Michigan State College, animal husbandman, points out that "sows with pigs on clean, palatable pastures also make more economical gains than on dry feeds alone. This is because pastures produce a good flow of the dam's milk and furnishes more complete feed or nourishment than harvested grains or roughages."

For this reason, Blakeslee believes that livestock producers should provide all the good, palatable early spring pasture needed by the dams and their young.

He says that for early pastures, rye, June grass and, in emergency cases, wheat, should be considered where soil and other conditions justify. Later on, high quality pastures such as alfalfa, ladino clover and other legumes with brome grass, timothy and other desirable grass mixtures are usually available. They will be ready soon after May 1.

Blakeslee says that use of unpalatable pastures like fescue, orchard grass and Reed canary grass should be discouraged and used only when recommended.

For emergency pasture, especially in case of winter-killing, rape, oats and peas, soybeans and sudan grass should be considered for the different classes of livestock.

The most popular labor-saving device for women is still a husband with money.

Soil Testing Laboratories

KEPT BUSY SINCE ESTABLISHING FIRST ONE IN 1946.

Michigan farmers kept their 40 soil testing laboratories busy during 1951 by sending in a total of 32,213 soil samples to be tested according to E. D. Longnecker, Michigan State College extension soil scientist.

Longnecker said that the first county soil testing laboratory in the state was organized in Branch county in 1946. Berrien and Van Buren counties followed by establishing labs in 1948. Eight counties got laboratories in 1949, 22 in 1950, seven in 1951 and two to date in 1952, bringing the total to 42. Prospect are good for new laboratories in Alpena, Antrim and Wayne counties in 1952.

The large increase in number of county laboratories set up since 1949 was caused, in part, by the request of the production and marketing administration of the USDA for soil testing service in many of the counties and the beginning of a PMA committee sampling program.

In 1950, the 34 operating labs tested 25,838 samples. In 1951 the labs tested 32,213 samples, of which 19,313 were collected and submitted by PMA.

The county laboratories have taken much of the load off the limited facilities of the college soil testing service. In 1949, Michigan State College tested 8,692 samples. By 1951 the number had dropped to 2,096.

Longnecker attributes the growth in interest in soil testing to farmers who have learned that the practice pays dividends. It takes much of the guess work out of liming and fertilization practices. It helps farmers decide how much lime is needed to get a good stand of alfalfa or maximum yields of other crops. It aids in selecting a fertilizer with proper ratio between phosphorus and potassium and in deciding how much fertilizer to apply.

Longnecker has some advice for farmers planning to take samples for testing. He said the samples should represent the plow layer of the field, so should not be scraped from the surface. Each sample also should represent a major portion of the field so far as soil type and past management is concerned.

Each sample should be a composite of several samplings taken at intervals of a couple of rods within a major soil area of the field. Mix these samples within one type of an area thoroughly and save one cupful for testing. Where a field is fairly uniform as to soil type and past management, one composite sample per field is enough.

Many county PMA committees are sponsoring soil testing programs, Longnecker said. In such counties farmers may write or call their PMA committee and take their samples.

All but a half-dozen counties in the state are either served by a testing laboratory within the county or in an adjoining county. Where testing service are not available locally, soil samples may be mailed to the Soil Science Department of Michigan State College, East Lansing, Mich.

Kite Flying Has Hazards

Says Consumers Power Co.

Although Benjamin Franklin survived a series of shocks while flying a kite during an electric storm, boys and girls of today should not attempt to copy him, according to District Manager R. H. Fredberg of Consumers Power Company, in his annual warning to kite flyers.

"Flying kites in storm weather, even if they are constructed properly of wood, cloth and paper, can be very dangerous," Mr. Fredberg said. "Even the lightest rain can dampen kites and string and lightning could be then attracted to the kites and conducted to the flyer with fatal results," he added.

Mr. Fredberg said the safe kite is the "wood-frame" model with paper covering and plain string or twine, containing no metallic threads, and cloth tail. "He said that Mr. Franklin's risk was in the interest of electrical science, but that Consumers Power Company is satisfied with the results attained by Mr. Franklin and does not solicit additional kite experiments."

He warned also that children should fly kites far from power lines or installations, preferably in open country. Mr. Fredberg asked parents, teachers, police and other safety-minded persons to relay his warning to children for safety's sake.

To Run 10 Years On Little Fuel

RALEIGH, N.C. — North Carolina State College plans to run its new atomic reactor for 10 years on four gallons of a green-yellow liquid fuel that is about as heavy as ginger ale.

Ever at the end of 10 years of non-stop operations this wonderful four gallons still will be good, but will have to be purified of the new atoms which will have been created by splitting of uranium. Maybe a pint of fresh fuel will have to be added to run it another 10 years. All the time there will be no smoke, no fumes, no sound except a slight bubbling noise made by the liquid just starting to boil. It will never reach real boiling.

Safest Engine Built
It is probably the safest engine ever built, certainly about the coolest. It won't get hot enough even to start a fire. It can't explode — by atomic, by radioactive or any other internal force. Lightning can't explode it, even an earthquake cannot wreck it sufficiently to create a hazard beyond some escaping radioactivity that can be avoided completely by keeping a short distance away.

The reactor will be about the size of a two-car garage. Even if a saboteur were to blow it sky-high, the only risk, barring falling bits of concrete or metal, would be scattered radioactive fragments. The greatest risk probably would be the souvenir-hunter who put a piece in his pocket and leaves it there a long time.

Construction is expected to be completed this year, along with a building and laboratory. The public will be permitted to look at this reactor, close-up, through a window which is really a goldfish bowl: Plate-glass sides with eight inches of water between.

The atomic engine is a cylinder of stainless steel, one foot in diameter, containing the green-yellow liquid. That is all. There isn't anything else, except the shields of lead, graphite and concrete and pipes for cooling and some rods which start, stop and control the heat and splitting.

New to Education
The little steel cylinder does it all alone. Its atoms split, the splitting creates heat and, along with the heat, neutrons go flying away at speeds of 10,000 miles a second. The liquid is purified uranium 235. About 80 per cent of the liquid is this bare uranium.

This reactor is the start of something new in education. — Four-year undergraduate courses in nuclear engineering, plus courses looking forward to graduate degrees. The purpose is to educate professional experts for atomic age.

Already 60 students have started the course. Half are air force officers, a sign that American military planes may be expected to take to the air and stay aloft for weeks, if they wish, flying on atomic power. The others are university students of all classes, including candidates for master's degrees.

The plan is to graduate men and women with nuclear degrees, but who have well rounded training also in the humanities and the engineering sciences. They can, if they choose, graduate in ordinary engineering, but they will have the additional atomic training. The nuclear part of their courses will take 11 per cent of the time.

Truman Shies at Elephant Gift from Eastern Kingdom

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Truman has many troubles, and not the least is the gifts people send him. The latest problem is a sacred elephant that the tiny kingdom of Cambodia offered.

Mr. Truman has no place to keep the animal and the Washington Zoo already has enough elephants. So, the U.S. has cautiously suggested that it might be better for Cambodia to send a tiger. The zoo could use one.

The tiger-or-the-elephant problem is one of the first to arise between the U.S. and the Kingdom of Cambodia, which was part of Indochina until a year ago.

President Lincoln dealt with a similar embarrassing elephant problem back in 1862 in a letter to the King of Siam, patently sending a herd of elephants.

Saleswoman Waits Runaway Truck at Busy Crossing

PAWTUCKET, R. I. — Miss Theresa Sullivan, 23, a saleswoman, leaped aboard a driverless runaway truck, stamped hard on the brake, and halted its downhill course barely 10 feet from the busy Main Street.

Afterwards the attractive brunette couldn't account for her deed. "Why did I do it? I don't know," she said. "I just did it. And I'm still shaking."

Miss Sullivan was returning to her job behind a hosiery counter, walking down hill, when she saw the truck rolling along beside her without a driver.

Witnesses said the girl leaped on the running board, seized the wheel, slid into the driver's seat, and jammed down the brake pedal.

A recruit was on guard duty with specific orders to admit no car unless it bore a special tag. He stopped a tagless car carrying a high-ranking officer. The guard heard the officer order his driver to go right through and calmly the guard spoke: "I'm new at this, sir; do I shoot you or the driver?"

A burglar stealthily entered the dark office late one night. His searchlight sought the large safe.

On it he read a sign—"This safe is unlocked. Just turn the knob." He did so. The place was flooded with light; a bell clanged loudly. As he was being taken to prison he said: "My confidence in human nature has been rudely shaken."

Michigan State College dairymen point out that if there is too much noise at milking time, cows won't let down all their milk. This results in incomplete milking.

MEET MRS. KEFAUVER
In an exclusive interview in the April 13 issue of The American Weekly with Detroit Sunday Times, Nancy Kefauver, wife of Senator Estes Kefauver, recalls courtship days and difficulties of the senator's early political career. She reveals how she and the Kefauver children feel about the possibility of living in the White House.

Ike Debate

POLITICS wasn't mentioned during the backstage debate on bringing General Eisenhower home, but it hung over almost every word of the discussion. Except with a handful of senators, the real question—the security of Europe—was lost sight of.

Here is the background story of the debate over bringing Ike back from Paris.

Well before the New Hampshire primary, President Truman sent word to Eisenhower through Averell Harriman, inviting him back to Washington to testify on aid to Europe. This was at a time when Eisenhower supporters were wringing their hands over the danger of his defeat and privately urging Ike to come home. Truman's plan to bring Ike home, therefore, dovetailed right into the plans of Senators Lodge and Duff and Governor Dewey. Until New Hampshire, they were strong for it.

But suddenly, after Ike's victory in New Hampshire, they had a change of heart. Suddenly they figured their man could win without coming back to the U.S.A. Suddenly also they decided that the risk of having Ike testify on the controversial question of foreign aid was such that he should remain in Paris.

That was why Senator Lodge, the Eisenhower campaign manager, voted by proxy in the foreign relations committee to keep Ike in Paris; also why Smith of New Jersey, an Eisenhower Republican, did likewise.

George Says No

No matter what you think of Harry Truman, however, in this case involving the all-important question of foreign policy, he played the game straight. Truman's main idea is to get foreign aid passed. Having already invited Eisenhower to come home and testify, he assumed this would be done. So also did the joint chiefs of staff, who, until last week end, were making plans for Ike's arrival.

However, some White House advisers thought it would be more diplomatic to have the two congressional committees which must pass on foreign aid extend the official invitation to Eisenhower rather than have the President "order" him back.

So Senator McMahon of Connecticut, one of the ablest administration leaders in the senate, picked up the ball and demanded that the senate foreign relations committee, of which he is a member, extend the invitation.

When the vote came up in a closed-door session, however, politics obviously dominated the debate.

Senator George of Georgia led the drive to block Ike's return, probably because George, first, is strongly in favor of cutting the mutual-security funds; also, through a Democrat, friends say that he leans toward Taft for President. Though George cooperates with his Georgia colleague, Senator Russell, there never has been too much love lost between them.

McMahon Pleads

Senator McMahon opened the closed-door debate by urging that it was Eisenhower's duty to inform the senate how much money it should vote for the security of Europe.

"There's no politics being played here, at least on my part," declared McMahon. "I realize that General Eisenhower's prominence in the Republican party has increased since his victory in New Hampshire. But before the New Hampshire results were known, I suggested to this committee that Eisenhower be invited here."

"I timed my proposal to avoid the intrusion of politics. We have every reason to seek the general's views, since three-fourths of this $7,000,000,000 appropriation—or about $5,900,000,000—will be spent through his command."

"I'm against this proposal in any form," snapped Senator George. He continued with a lengthy argument that Eisenhower's testimony would be "politically misunderstood."

"Well, I'm for it," announced Tobey of New Hampshire. "Who is an Eisenhower Republican, but also strong for foreign aid. Who knows more about this matter, the financial and military aspects of NATO, than General Eisenhower? Of all witnesses we should seek out for advice while considering this tremendous appropriation, Eisenhower is the most important."

Tobey later tangled with Chairman Connally, when the latter refused to vote, leaving the count 7-5 against inviting Ike.

"I would like to know how the chairman voted on this matter," needed the New Hampshireite. "I didn't," replied Connally. "Aren't you compelled under the rules to vote, like the rest of us?" inquired Tobey caustically. "No," scowled the big Texan, who thanks to a primary battle, has now become more the senator of the Lone Star state than of the United States.

Poultry Prospects Better For 1952

Pointers for making more money with your poultry flock in 1952 were given today by Michigan State College poultry husbandmen.

They predicted that prices in the winter and spring of 1952 would be higher than this year, and urged use of an all-pullet flock. Pullets lay more eggs than old hens and a good pullet flock coming into production this fall will give you the advantage of usual good fall egg prices.

Dry quarters will mean more eggs and will prevent waste of feed, so good insulation and ventilation are important. A balanced ration will save feed. Prompt removal of birds that are not producing will save feed and increase profits. Control lice, mites and rat to improve the health of your birds.

The poultry specialists suggested four methods of saving scarce labor. They are using deep or build-up litter, installing running water in the poultry house, using community nests and dropping pits.

Using lights to provide a 13 to 14-hour working day for the hens is a cheap way to increase production. Keep nests clean, provide plenty of nests and gather eggs three times a day to avoid broken and dirty eggs and, thus, market a better product.

The shoemaker was explaining to a complaining customer the reason for the poor quality of his half-soles. "All the good leather," he said, "is going into steaks."

Make a resolution now to do one set of curtains at a time throughout the year urge Michigan State College home management specialists. Avoid the spring-cleaning orgy and preserve the life of your curtains.

COUNTY TAX INCREASES

A request has been made by the public to publish the final results of the action taken by the state commission and the Charlevoix board of supervisors during the year 1951, relative to the increased demands made upon the finances of the county general fund.

After the state tax commission had completed taking their assessment, the board of supervisors on December 19, 1951, adopted a resolution made by the finance committee: "That the equalization committee of said board be requested at the April session, to equalize the various assessing units at 70% of said state tax commission's equalized valuation," which it was estimated to be the minimum for the 1953 budget of approximately $146,000.

Herewith are the percentages and amounts required by the various assessing units exclusive of losses and gains to comply with the order of the board of supervisors for the 1952 assessment:

SCANNING THE WEEK'S NEWS of Main Street and the World

Living Costs Decline .6 Per Cent; Minnesota Vote Shocks Politicians

LIVING COSTS—Home town housewives across the nation read with interest the Bureau of Labor Statistics' report of a 0.6 per cent drop in the cost of living from mid-January to mid-February. But they were more interested in knowing whether it was a temporary lull in the price spiral or the beginning of a trend to lower prices.

That little man—The little people—the farmer who talks his politics by the pot-bellied stove in the country store, the filling station attendant who listens to the casual remarks of his customers, the barbers and beauticians and clerks and housewives—have done it again. They have turned in an incredible write-in vote in Minnesota that tells the politicians, the disbelievers and the prognosticators that the "little man" is jealous of his powers and will assert his beliefs even if he has to do it the hard way.

has developed in American politics in a number of years. But the professional politicians are still unable to believe what they have witnessed and are still shaking their head at that little man.

Others are reading three meanings into the vote: (1) The people are looking for new faces on the national scene; (2) Isolationism is definitely on the wane—candidates classed as internationalist got five times as many votes as those considered nationalists; (3) The voters are in rebellion against the politicians.

COMMUNISM—Although reporting a sharp decline in membership in the U.S. Communist party, F.B.I. Director J. Edgar Hoover warned congress in recent testimony before the house appropriations committee that they are as much if not a greater threat to U.S. security than the Nazi fifth column of World War II.

KOREA—There was little news from the Korean peace talks during the past week. Certain phases of the negotiations are now being held in secret. But Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme U.N. commander in the Far East, made headlines by calling for patience while his staff haggles with the Communists.

STEEL—Steel has long been the big problem in America's defense production program. Evidently the problem has been solved because the government has authorized the automobile industry to increase production by 150,000 units during the third quarter of this year.

GERMANY—The Soviet Union has proposed an early four-power meeting on a peace treaty for a united Germany. The Soviet has proposed such a meeting before.

LOCAL SCHOOLS—The U.S. Department of Education reports there will be a shortage of 180,000 school teachers by 1957 and says the shortage is already being felt in local schools across the nation.

Earl James McGrath, U.S. Commissioner of Education, said in making public the department's report that an education "catastrophe" was in the making because of the many shortages of teachers and facilities resulting from the Korean war and the mobilization program.

He attributed the teacher shortage to low pay for instructors and reduced purchasing power due to inflated prices.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS International Union Sunday School Lesson BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: John 11:14-16; 14:1-6; 14:26-28. DEVOTIONAL READING: Matthew 28:1-10.

The Risen Lord Lesson for April 13, 1952

IN all the chattering Easter music, in all the multitudinous many-voiced "I believe . . ." in the midst of the Easter lilies, is it hard to believe? Some find it so; and feel ashamed that in the presence of others' bright faith their own doubts rise darkly dim, their faith once clear and warm now grown opaque and cold.

The Man of Dark Mind RAGIC such loss of faith may be; but not new. For in Christ's first Twelve—we must say first Eleven, for Judas had sold himself to another—even in that choice company there was one who, on the First Easter, when the voice of all his friends spoke as one: He is risen! could only answer, Is he risen, indeed?

The Last Beatitude NOW the Lord Christ did not rebuke this man Thomas, when at last the two came face to face once more; nor did he praise him. He knew that Thomas had acted as a Thomas will.

Not forever could Christ be seen on earth with the visible eye. To only a few would be granted even the dream or vision of what Saint Thomas could have touched if he had dared.

The Risen Lord SO Saint Thomas was wrong, and right. He was wrong if he thought: I cannot believe unless I see. The Christian way is not the seeing that is believing; it is the believing that is seeing.

But he was right if he thought: I must believe for myself, I can take no other man's faith for my own. And he was right at the last: "My Lord and my God!"

Michigan Mirror INTERPRETING THE NEWS

The big noise in Michigan is still—taxes and the possibility of a constitutional convention, those two playmates who are getting ticked around so much these days.

But not to Governor Williams. Taxes, yes, but not a constitutional convention.

The governor admits the state's tax structure is faulty, but he says a constitutional convention would not repair that tax structure in time.

Helping to move their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Art Ingalls, to her new home at Grand Rapids, gave Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Ingalls a chance to visit their other two sons, Glen and Marlin and families also of Grand Rapids.

Ann Wagho will again be ringing your doorbell to aid the Cancer Fund drive, in the very near future.

The John Krolkowskis of Chicago were up over the week end.

The boys then grouped off in patrols to decide about the hike. The hike has been decided for Saturday April 19th. Later Harry Watson came and gave a demonstration on hiking. Then he had us group off again in patrols and plan our hike for our own patrol with his methods.

Afterwards we had a discussion on different hikes. Jerry Green adjourned the meeting at 8:45 leading us in the Scout Oath.

The boys were all happy with the gift of candy given to the troop by Mr. Cunningham.

not go along with cutting diversion to the schools." He still thinks a corporation tax will do the job without a general price increase and he points out that 33 other states have corporation taxes with no appreciable change in prices.

Since 1940 national income has increased from 90 billion per year to approximately 300 billion per year, approximately 300% increase.

Now consider some departmental budgets: Department of Commerce is up 1,709.67%.

Department of Interior is up 594.27%.

Labor Department is up 720.69%.

Justice Department is up 273.56%.

State Department is up 1,934.40%.

All this in only 13 years. In 1947 Government expenditures ate up 22.2% of national income; 1953 Budget will take over 30% of National's income.

To Federal Government's take must be added state, local taxes, another 20 billion at least.

Think it over. The American taxpayers are footing the bill.

Governor Williams points out that such a convention first must be approved by a majority ALL THOSE VOTING in the November elections, the delegates then would meet, spend many months working up a new constitution and then the document must be resubmitted to the people which would make it sometime around 1954 before the constitution becomes effective.

The stat's acute financial problems must be solved before any new constitution could possibly go into effect. It can't truthfully be represented as any solution to the state's problem.

In Williams' first tax message of 1949 he said that he wished he could recommend a general revision of the state's patchwork tax structure, but that the state's financial condition is such that he felt there wasn't time.

He admits the present situation is bad—but he is opposed to the basic theory of G.O.P. taxing. He says this program is based upon the recovery of funds now being returned to local units of governments—and more consumer taxes.

The governor has pledged himself to veto any tax bills following those lines.

The little man in Michigan already is paying 30 percent of the total revenue," he says curtly. "The national average is 60 percent."

Some local units are not using the diverted funds to good advantage, the governor ruefully agrees, but he adds that "the legislature had made no distinction."

Lee Thurston state superintendent of public instruction, says $400 million are needed to bring the school system up to date.

Williams makes the following points: 1. It would protect new business—it wouldn't have to pay the tax until it began to make money.

COUNTY SOIL TESTING LABS MAKE BIG GROWTH

From a single county soil testing laboratory in 1946 to 42 operating in Michigan in early 1952. That's been the growth of convenient facilities to enable farmers and urban gardeners to discover the plant food needs of the soil they till. The above picture is typical of the inside of a county soil testing laboratory. It shows B. E. Musgrave, county agricultural agent of Mecosta county, testing soil in his laboratory in Big Rapids. The map below shows the counties in the state with soil testing laboratories; dots indicate the counties with labs and arrows indicate counties using facilities in neighboring counties. County extension offices, aided by other agencies, have promoted the installation of soil testing equipment within the counties. (MSC Photo)

DON'T THREATEN CHILD TO OBTAIN BETTER BEHAVIOR

It is a short-sighted mother who will "buy" temporary good behavior from her child at the expense of something that may one day save the child's life.

Virginia Guthrie, the Michigan State College child development specialist, who made that statement, went on to explain. "Recently I overheard a mother who was shopping threaten her tired little whining daughter by saying, 'Do you see that man standing there? He is a doctor. Do you want him to give you a hypodermic?' The little girl, suddenly terrorized, stopped whining immediately."

"But how soon will that same mother be pleading with her little girl to let the doctor administer some aid?" Miss Guthrie asked pointedly. That child may well grow up with countless fears about doctors, or policemen or ministers.

"How often have mothers plopped a naughty child in bed, closed the door and left him until 'you know how to behave'? That is a bad policy, too, the specialist warned. Bedtime should be a happy time, not a form of punishment.

Miss Guthrie agreed there are bound to be times when children AND their mothers are irritable. What course should the mother take? Try to find the cause of the child's whining and naughtiness and start from there. Often children are naughty because they feel left out and unloved. Take time to reassure him of your love for him, give him your undivided attention for a short time.

Many times children become cross while shopping. If possible Miss Guthrie suggested sparing young children the ordeal of long shopping expeditions. Or be sure to stop for a cold drink or buy a little toy to give the youngster a diversion.

Misbehavior must be controlled by getting at the cause, not by the use of threats, Miss Guthrie concluded. Above all, avoid threats that involve the use of anything you may sometime want your child to accept.

A young man who had just received his degree from college rushed out and said, "Here I am, world; I have my A.B."

The world replied: "Sit down son and I'll teach you the rest of the alphabet."

It's hard to make dollars with your quarters on an easy chair. The difference between freshmen and sophomores is that when a professor enters a freshman class and says, "Good Morning," they answer him. When he enters a sophomore class and says, "Good morning," they write it down in their notes.

The Servicemen's Letter

Hi Fellas:

Election day today. There've been letters — letters — and more letters to one and all. Swell more work for the Post Office. The man made the comment — "When you see how hot it gets in a little town like this at election time it makes you think of how really hot it is down in Washington most of the time. — Enough of that."

Men have been going down to Lackland AFB by the dozens from here — it exodus. Now they are starting the exodus. Dean McPherson is on his way out of there this week and has asked to have his paper canceled until he finds out where he is going. It seems that they are penalized for mail that is sent there after they have left. A lousy system I would call that. Just why is it a soldiers fault if someone mails something to the wrong address?

A new fledgling for Lackland is Pvt Earl Bennett, Sqd 3705, Flt 436, Lackland AFB, San Antonio, Texas. Earl left here about three weeks ago and his brother Paul gave me his address today today. How're they treating you, Earl? Paul Bennett is home from his hitch in the Marine Corps. Paul says that he's had enough for now. He was discharged on April 2, 1952. He feels himself quite lucky that he has not had to be overseas more than just the time when he was on maneuvers. Paul just missed being in the 1st Division which went over to Korea some time ago. He has no plans as yet about what he will do in civilian life but he may be raising some food for the rest of us this summer.

Ed Drapeau ran into a little hard luck while in basic at Lackland. He came down (not with the mumps) with Pneumonia. They slapped him in the hospital for two weeks and therewith he lost his buddies. When he got out of the hospital he found himself in Squad 3719, Flight 357. I suppose that will mean just a little longer in basic for you, Ed.

A letter here from Howard Stank in the 3737 BMTS, Flt Lackland AFB, San Antonio, Texas gives me to understand that there are a lot of WAFs down there in Texas. Howard must be a little more observing along certain lines than the other men who have written to me from there. He's the first one who has even mention WAF. He goes on, "I guess I better get this old peccol out and get off a few lines to you. How is everything back in good old E.J. It's pretty hot down here in Texas. I got the paper tonight and it sure was good to read some of the news from home. Tomorrow we will start our third week of training. The time here goes pretty fast. It took us two days and two nights to come from Detroit to San Antonio. We left all the snow in Detroit and that's the last I've seen of it. This Air Base is known as the Gateway to the Air Force. It is the largest Air Base in the world." Thanks for writing, Howard.

Maurice Murphy was in today. He's home on leave from Brooke Gen. Hospital in San Antonio, Texas. Maurice escorted a partially blind patient from Brooke up to Chicago and then came on home for his leave. He's got to start back to Texas the day after Easter. Maurice is assigned at present to a desk job in the patient accounting section down at Brooke. He was describing to me just how big that hospital is. I forget just how many wards he said they had but to describe the number of patients they can handle he said they discharged an average of two thousand a week last month. That included all the way from a soldiers' pregnant wife to broken up soldiers from Korea. You know, that's a pretty big institution that can handle that many people in such a short time and do it efficiently. Maurice says they keep all the records of the patients by machine. They punch cards and the machines do the rest. Maurice is due to be discharged in March of 1953 and he's thinking strongly ahead to that time now. He doesn't want any more of the Army until this Korean mess is over.

Guess I had Walt Moblo in the wrong Squad last time. His correct address is: Pfc. Walter J. Moblo, AF 12 383 365, 2266 Stu Sqd, Amarillo, AFB, Texas.

Joe Hammond must have shipped out because Gaius hasn't had a letter from him for over a week now.

Dick Rusnell wasn't up at Lansing Shoals for long. He dropped in here last week and told me to discontinue his paper as he was being discharged from the Coast Guard. Dick has been in the CG for one year more than his original enlistment period and when offered the opportunity to get out he took it. He doesn't know just what he will do next but said that he guessed he'd bum around a little before going back to work steady.

Two letters from Camp Polk advise me that Bob Nemecek and Joe Chanda ran into each other down there before I could get word to them via the paper. Bob writes, "I didn't get to go on the maneuvers. I guess you can call it lucky. They put me in the hospital for a couple of weeks and while I was there my outfit left for Texas. After I got out I was chosen to stay here and guard our area. I think I got a swell deal. We work 2 hours on and 4 hours off. We do that for a day and then we have the next day off to do what we want to. I think that is a lot better than those maneuvers where they are on duty for 21 straight days. Yesterday I had a surprise. I went in to have a cup of coffee and was halted by Joe Chanda. We had quite a talk about everything and then I took over to Wayne Pearce. It was like old home week here. I haven't been getting much of my mail or papers here for quite a spell but I suppose it is in Texas. I didn't want to say where I would be until I was at least half-way sure what they were going to do with me. The weather here is sure nice. The sun is out most of the time and it isn't too hot. You know, Jake, they might make me a southern man someday — but then again they have to go a long way before they can beat Northern Michigan."

Now for Poes letter. "I have finished my eight week training at Fort Knox so they shipped me down here to Camp Polk. They get me in the MPs when I got here and so far I think it will be all right. We have a lot more time to do what we want to. We are off duty at 4:30 down here so we can go in our barracks and clean up and go to town if we want to. The nearest town is only nine miles away but it isn't as nice as being in my home town. However, it isn't as bad as I thought it would be. I didn't like it when I first got here because they split us all up. My buddies were all sent to different parts of the camp. However, the fellows in this barracks are a nice bunch of guys. I was surprised at the chow we get. I didn't think it would be as good as it is. We sure have some weather down here. I got a nice sunburn but they don't let a man take his shirt off very often. Guess we will be going overseas around September or October. I should get home this summer, I hope."

That letter was written before he met Bob. Afterwards he wrote another as follows: "I suppose you will wonder what this is all about but I thought I would write and tell you what happened today. I was over at the Coffee Shop this morning and Bob Nemecek walked in. We sure were surprised to see each other. After we talked a while he told me Wayne Pearce was in this camp. So we went down to see him. As long as we are in this camp together I don't think I will mind army life as much as I did. It sure is nice to see someone from your home town for a change. Bob has his car down here and he told me to come over and go out with him some time and he would show me some of the country." That sure was swell — Bob and Joe. Wayne — you see that they don't go hungry.

Bob Farber sent a note in by his mother to say "Hello" and give me a change of address. His new one is: A/3c Robert C. Farmer, AF 16 379 489, 3322 Student Sqd, Box 729, Scott AFB, Illinois. I'm glad to see you got a raise, Bob. And now for the overseas news. I suppose I should put them first but sometimes the best things come last. Glen Murray checked in this week from the Mok-Dong-Ni Valley in Korea. Those names sure sound odd to us over here but I suppose the soldiers over there get used to twisting their tongues around all those foreign names. Glen writes, "I suppose you are wondering why I haven't written you before. I have no explanation of that at all. I have been in the army eight months now and during that time I was never in one place for a very long period of time. As you know I am now in Korea and it looks very much like I will be here awhile. I have been promoted to Pfc and have a new job. It is mail clerk. An easy job and I like it. Being mail clerk has been easy for me to get acquainted with the men. I still send the mail to the wrong place once in a while but the boys are getting used to it and I don't think they mind too much. Our outfit is on the line as far as Artillery goes and we are located on the East Central front in Korea. I have received some good breaks since I shipped overseas and right now am living very comfortably. The chow of course, isn't too good but really is better than I expected to get over here. If there are any of the boys from back home that might be in this vicinity would you please send me their address. Maybe I can look them up. As mail clerk I get around quite a bit and I can get practically anywhere within reason." Glen, I don't know of anyone right near you at present but if any of you men over in Korea are anywhere near him just drop him a note and I'll bet he'll be over to see you before you think the letter has reached there. I know these mail clerks. They get to go a lot of places.

I've been seeing letters coming regularly from Al Nelson (who is over in Korea) to his wife out here on RFD No. 3. The other day I received one and it is a good one. It follows: "Greetings Jake: No! This is not from a stranger but as you unquestionably realize I'm several months behind schedule in my correspondence file. It is extremely difficult to compile adequate information for the composition of an intelligent epistle. I attempt to write Peg and the children daily and so far I have managed well in that effort."

Men from East Jordan who have rotated from Korea are much more capable of furnishing you with a complete description of this country and it's inhabitants than I by correspondence. So, I will not attempt that feat. As to my personal position in the UN forces, I am Company Commander of the Company. We are a TO&E heavy tank Bn but actually possess the M4A3E8's that you were undoubtedly familiar with during WWNo.2.

I am receiving the paper regularly now and wish to express my appreciation for the same. To get the paper into the hands of the servicemen in the most expedient method (Air Mail) is a project worthy of the highest praise and commendation. This holds very true for the younger men so we can go in our barracks and clean up and go to town if we want to. The nearest town is only nine miles away but it isn't as nice as being in my home town. However, it isn't as bad as I thought it would be. I didn't like it when I first got here because they split us all up. My buddies were all sent to different parts of the camp. However, the fellows in this barracks are a nice bunch of guys. Guess we will be going overseas around September or October. I should get home this summer, I hope."

I wish to extend my regards to all in E.J. and wish the men, a happy tour in the Services. Thanks a lot for writing. Al. You know men, that is a darn good offer for anyone within reach of Al's plane. Al's address is: Lt. Alfred Nelson, "B" Co, 72nd Med Tk Bn, 2nd Inf. Div, APO 248, C/A, PM, San Francisco, Calif.

Mrs. Glen Pinney passed on to me a letter which they received from Ernest who also is over in Korea, at this time. Ernest's address is: Sgt Ernest Pinney, AF 16 323 082, 3rd Air Res Sqdn, Flt D, APO 970, C/O PM, San Francisco, California. He has been in Japan but writes that just now he is back over in Korea for 30 days time. It will shorten his time over there by two months. He only has until September to stay over there now. From the sound of his letter I gather that he is planning marriage when he returns to the States. Quite naturally he is getting a little impatient to get back home. Marriage is a great institution, Ernie, and I hope you can get home and tie that knot soon. The sooner the better. But in the meantime, keep those planes in tip top shape. So Long Men, "Jake" Snyder.

Getting a good seeding of hay and pasture crops is one of the jobs facing many Michigan farmers now and Richard Bell, farm crops specialist at Michigan State College, today passed along some tips for insuring success in the venture. Bell says that one of the most important points is to test the soil for acidity if you're making an alfalfa seeding and the soil hasn't been tested recently. That job must be done immediately so you can get the results of the test and get the limestone applied. Pulverized or super-fine limestone will correct the acidity more rapidly. The lime should be applied and worked into the soil either before or after plowing. Inoculate alfalfa seed regardless of how recently alfalfa has been grown on the same land. Put the legume seed in shallow by tying the alfalfa seed tubes back so the seed falls behind the drill. Then cutpack or let the first rain cover the seed. A good seeding mixture for alfalfa is six to eight pounds of alfalfa, one fourth to one half pound of ladino clover, and two to four pounds of bromegrass per acre. At planting time, apply at least 300 to 350 pounds of fertilizer of an analysis like 4-16-16 or 3-18-9, or 450 to 500 pounds of a lower analysis such as 3-12-12 or 2-12-6. For sandy soils, Bell recommends at least 300 to 350 pounds of 3-9-18.

FARM FACTS

from your County

Agricultural Agent

Ed. Rebman, Co. Agr'l Agent

Early spring is a good time to check up on the soil conservation needs of the farm, Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent said today. He said that in spite of snow cover and frozen conditions which normally reduce erosion, heavy losses occur when water flows down slopes where the subsoil is frozen.

That's because the surface soil becomes saturated with water and the surface layer moves down the slope in the form of a mud flow. This kind of sheet erosion is extremely severe and moves large quantities of top soil in a short time. This type of erosion is common on sloping fields which were left unprotected over the winter.

R. G. Hill, Michigan State College extension soil conservationist, told county agent, Rebman, that about 2 million acres of row crop land are left without much cover over the winter. A large percentage of these acres are subject to wind and water erosion. Other losses occur — leaching losses and lost opportunity of adding organic matter and plant food from cover crops cannot be seen.

Spring season also is a good season to determine other soil conservation needs, such as the location for waterways, farm drainage and where other conservation practices are needed. The spring air is again filled with smoke from burning crop residues and organic matter which is needed to replenish the organic content of most Michigan soils.

The spring plowing, fitting and seeding program determines to a large degree whether a conservation system of farming is going to be followed for the year. It is in the time when changes are made in the rotation and farmers look ahead to better soil conserving practices, Ed Rebman hopes.

Spring pasture season is just around the corner, and with that in mind, Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent, points out that good pastures can save as much as 15 percent on the feed bill and also control parasites in the young pigs. After young pigs are away to a good start and the sow is back on full feed about a week or ten days after farrowing — they should be moved from the farrowing pen to a clean pasture lot. At this stage the sow may be self-fed on a ration containing plenty of protein and mineral nutrients to assure good milk flow. The sow needs about twice as much feed when suckling pigs as during pregnancy.

A creep should be made for the small pigs where they can eat undisturbed by the mother. Such feeds as shelled corn, rolled oats, a good quality protein supplement, skim milk, if available, will give the young pigs a good start. The sow's peak of milk production is reached when the pigs are about 3 weeks old, then starts declining. The little pigs start eating supplemental feeds at this time. By weaning age the pigs have learned to eat well, which eases the shock of separation from the sow.
