ALL-AREA GIRLS BASKETBALL "Dream Team"

By Chris Fiel

BOYNE CITY – With the MHSAA girl's basketball tournament crowning its respective Class champions over the past weekend, bringing a close to the 2011-12 basketball season, the Charlevoix County News, after a lot of deliberation, is proud to announce the Girls All-Area Basketball "Dream Team".

It took some planning and cooperation from area administration along with team coaches and the selected student athletes, but we were able to assemble an array of talent in one location, and after seeing the basketball players showcasing their skills and conversing with one another, there was no doubt that the selections made were correct. Leading the pack for the 2011-12 season is Player of the Year, East Jordan's Valerie Peters. Peters, a junior and the Red Devils point guard, used her explosive speed to navigate her way through opponent's full court pressure along with her ability to break down defenses in the half court setting to get to the basket. Peters was also able to stretch the defense regardless of the different looks teams threw at her as she knocked down long range triples from beyond the arch. She scored a career high of 31 against Charlevoix as she was in "the zone," shooting an amazing 68 percent from the floor in the East Jordan victory on January 10. Val, averaged 13.9 points per game, over three rebounds and two steals per contest. She got to the charity stripe 136 times, nailing 70 percent of her free throws, but the intangibles of being the floor leader and giving 110% on both ends of the floor are what sets her apart from other athletes.

Joining her on the All-Area "Dream Team" are East Jordan senior teammates Jordyn Bacchus and Grace Howes. Boyne City's Tanner McCune, Rainy McCune and Kylie Hicks, along with the Boyne Falls duo of Emily Matelski and Kristen Matelski. Charlevoix is represented by Kelsey Way, Jenna Way and Sydney Carlson, and the Ellsworth tandem of Emily Veenstra and Dana Neumann.

Bacchus, started all of the Red Devils 21 games this season, and ac-ording to coach Steve Hines, got better each time she took the court. That was apparent, with her best game of the year coming in the district contest against Charlevoix, where Jordyn scored 17 points, shooting 6-of-8 from the floor, including 1-of-2 from beyond the arch, and shot 100 percent from the free throw line. She also grabbed five rebounds, dished out two assists and made two steals.

Hines also noted that Bacchus was an integral part of the success of the Red Devils squad, being a true team player and always playing hard. She shot 70 percent on the season from the free throw line, averaged four rebounds per game from her guard position and finished second on the team in assists.

Howes, was a four year varsity starter, she averaged 11.5 points per game, eight rebounds, three steals, and two assists on the season, with a high of 24 points coming against Boyne City on January 6.

Coach Hines summed Grace up in a few simple words, "A very good player." And I don't think that you would get any arguments out of any of her opponents either.

With her versatility, Howes was able to take her opponents both inside and outside, and if she didn't lead the team in a category, she was a very close second.

Boyne City's Tanner McCune, Rainy McCune and Kylie Hicks helped lead a resurgence to the Lady Ramblers basketball program.

Tanner, a senior in her first season as a Rambler, was either the leader or close to the top of each of the statistical categories for Boyne. She was the only player on the team to play in all 22 of the Ramblers contests. She scored a season high of 28 points in Boyne City's 51-40 win over Grayling on February 17.

Tanner averaged 12.5 points per game, eight boards, three steals and three steals per contest.

Rainy McCune, a sophomore stepped right in just before the midway point of the season and gave Boyne City some instant punch to the lineup. McCune used her ball handling abilities to help run the Ramblers offense, and her ability to hit shots from all over the court, opened up the inside game for Boyne.

Rainy chipped in with 11.6 points per game, made four steals each contest, grabbed 3.3 rebounds and dished out 3 assists each game.

Sophomore Kylie Hicks used her leaping ability to grab rebound after rebound for the Ramblers and block shots of opponents that thought they had a clear path to the basket. Hicks grabbed double digit rebounds in many contests down the stretch.

She closed the season strong with 6.5 points and six rebounds per game.

The Loggers used the duo of sisters Emily and Kristen Matelski to provide leadership as well as a majority of the scoring for Boyne Falls this season.

Emily, a sophomore in her third season on the varsity, led the Loggers with a near 14 points per game average along with nine rebounds and seven assists per contest. Matelski was the motor that made Boyne Falls go, as she was in charge of the ball handling responsibilities along with getting the Loggers into their offense.

Emily was also tasked with defending the opponent's best offensive player in nearly every contest. She scored a game high 23 points in the Loggers district semi-final loss to Ellsworth.

Kristen Matelski, a senior in her fifth year on the varsity, was the inside force that Boyne Falls used to open up their outside game. Kristen averaged 13.6 points and 11 rebounds per game this season. She shot 56 percent from the charity stripe and hit a game clinching triple against Northern Lakes Conference unbeaten rival Mackinaw City on January 11.

The hard working Rayders of Charlevoix: Kelsey Way along with Sydney Carlson and Jenna Way, bring a blue collar work ethic to the squad.

Senior Kelsey Way, was the Rayders go to player in the post the entire season. One of the few that would put her body on the line nightly and do the "dirty work" that post play requires. Many nights, standing at 5'7", she gave up the height advantage, but played with a workmen like attitude and according to coach Leslie Hoffman, gave her all with heart and hustle, noting that there wasn't much that could rattle her.

Kelsey, a team captain that led by example on and off the court, averaged 10 points and seven boards per game for Charlevoix.

Jenna Way, a senior, made the Rayders go with her game changing capability. A versatile player that mainly ran the point position, Jenna worked hard wherever coach Hoffman needed her to play and Hoffmann teamed her when to play. This was very noticeable in the district final against Elk Rapids as she kept the Rayders in the game, hitting big shot after big shot scoring 25 points in the contest.

Jenna's athletic ability and work ethic put her among the elite guards in the Lake Michigan Conference, her combination of speed, talent and a shooters touch helped her average 12 points and three assists per game for the Rayders.

Charlevoix junior, Sydney Carlson has been a go-to guard for the Rayders for the past two seasons. She battled through injury the end of last season and mid-way through this season, but was determined to finish strong, and finish strong she did.

Carlson, played both guard positions for the Rayders, and came up clutch in the district tournament, torching East Jordan for a career high 22 points, including six three pointers in the Charlevoix victory.

A co-captain for the Rayders, Sydney led by example with her dedication and leadership ability. She averaged six points and three assists per game.

Ellsworth seniors Emily Veenstra and Dana Neumann helped lead the Lancers to a co-championship in the Northern Lakes Conference and their first district title since 2006.

The inside presence of Veenstra, 6'2", and Neumann 5'10", kept opponents out of the lane on a regular basis, and there weren't many nights that the Lancers were out rebounded.

Veenstra led Ellsworth with 15.4 points per game, 11.3 rebounds dished out 67 assists, made 73 blocks, 54 steals and shot 50 percent from the charity stripe. Emily also recorded a pair of triple doubles during the season.

Neumann was the leading rebounder for the Lancers, grabbing 11.7 per game, and made it a point to score when needed as she finished the year with a 10.4 per game average, including 18 against Bellaire in the district final and another 18 against McBain NMC in the regional semifinal loss. Dana also had 20 assists, 24 steals and nine blocks on the year.

Coach of the Year, Steve Hines enjoyed a stellar season for the Red Devils. East Jordan finished with a 13-8 record, including 8-6 in the very tough Lake Michigan Conference, good enough for third place behind powers Traverse City St. Francis and Kalkaska, which were a combined 39-7. The veteran coach mixed his line-ups well each and every night and had the Lady Devils playing ball at their best.

Hines helped East Jordan put together a five game win streak from the end of December through mid-January, and another four game streak the end of January through into the second week of February, with seven of those nine wins coming against conference opponents.

With a very solid returning cast slated for next season's team, look for Hines to work his magic again and lead the Red Devils towards the Lake Michigan Conference title.

Baseball Season underway for Boyne Grads

2011 Boyne City graduates, Dustin Field (left) and Kolbi Shumaker are both still playing baseball in the spring; Kolbi for Alma and Dustin for Davenport. The former high school teammates faced off March 15. Davenport won both games; 13-3 and 8-3 with each former Rambler playing well.

Boyne City's Ryan Carson to participate in BCAM Free Throw Challenge

Rambler big man knocks down charity tosses at an 85% clip

By Chris Fiel

BOYNE CITY – The Ramblers 6'5" sophomore high-light sensation often left opponents with a clear view of the bottom of his shoes as he soared towards the hoop on a regular basis with dunk attempts.

On a good number of those take offs, he was grounded as opposing defenders would foul him on his way up towards the rim, sending him to the charity stripe.

Carson made the most of those trips, knocking down shots at an 85 percent rate. Ryan was nominated along with teammates Keegan LaBlance and Corey Redman, and qualified by finishing in the top 20 in Class C.

Ryan will attempt to qualify for the finals on Saturday, March 24 and will shoot at halftime of the Class C game if he succeeds.

Clear your lungs the natural way; Natural Congestion Remedies

Question:

I have had a week now of chest congestion following a head cold and yesterday it got very bad. I cough all the time. It's unproductive, and my chest hurts like crazy. I can't afford to go to the doctor and cold medicines don't provide relief but make me tired.

Do you have any ideas either home-made or OTC? I was thinking of Vicks® VapoRub. My mom used that on me when I was very little. I shower a lot because the hot water makes me feel better, but after awhile, it tightens up and I feel terrible again.

Michelle

Answers from Readers:

Natural Cough Syrup

To make your own cough syrup, bring two cups of water to a boil. Stir in two sliced lemons, half a teaspoon ground ginger, two tablespoons of honey and two tablespoons of sugar. Bring to a boil and reduce heat to a simmer until the mixture becomes a thick syrup. Let mixture cool and then strain into a clean jar. For adults only, you may add one ounce of liqueur, brandy, or whiskey. Take one to two teaspoons as needed for coughing. Barbara

Hot Liquids Reduce Congestion

When you are congested, try drinking hot liquids every hour. Peppermint tea, herb tea, and broth will all work. Even warm water will work. This will help thin the mucus in your lungs. Also, take an expectorant like Mucinex® to loosen the congestion and bring it up so that you can spit it out.

I also suggest having someone "clap" your back by cupping his/her hands and hitting your back. This technique is used for cystic fibrosis patients and it really loosens up congestion.

Gail

Steam a Natural Congestion Remedies

If hot showers help Michelle's congestion, but the effects don't last as long as she'd like, try filling the bathroom sink (or a bowl) with very hot water. Then put a towel over her head and bowl or sink to keep the steam in, adding an herbal tea bag or a drop or two of essential oil if desired. Breathe in the steam for a few minutes until you feel it working.

It's a time and water-saver over constant showering, so you can do it more often. Plus, it does double-duty as a good facial sauna, too!

Diva

When Should You See Your Doctor?

The "cold" may have progressed to pneumonia. You should really go to the doctor.

Drink plenty of fluids to liquefy your secretions. Rubbing in a warm chest salve such as Vicks® VapoRub is soothing, may reduce coughing, and stimulates the blood flow in the chest, which lets the body's white cells work better in helping heal the body. The "tightness" you describe may be asthma; again you should see your doctor. Over-the-counter intervention will not be sufficient at this point.

Postural drainage may help. Hang your head and chest off the side of the bed (bending at the waist), take some deep breaths, and do some deep coughing to help clear your lungs (about 5-10 minutes). Run a humidifier in your bedroom. Lana

On the Feet?

This is something I heard about. It reportedly works 100% of the time, and it won't cost anything to try because she already has the Vicks®.

At bedtime, rub Vicks® VapoRub generously on the bottoms of your feet and put on a pair of old socks. It reportedly stops the cough, no matter how persistent, in about 5 minutes and lasts for hours and hours.

Linda

Get to Your Doctor

If your chest "hurts like crazy," you need to get to the doctor pretty soon before you end up in the hospital with an even larger medical bill than just going to the doctor. Once your chest starts to burn and/or hurt, you are past the point of home remedies and need professional medical attention. I've been there, just like you, and this is the lesson I have learned. Work with your doctor, and I'm sure you can arrange a payment plan or even a reduced bill. Most doctors are "doctoring" because they want to help people get better, not cause you heartache with the bill. But, make sure you talk with the doctor directly; don't try to work anything out with the reception personnel. Lorrie

Natural Honey Remedy

Manuka honey can cure almost any cough. Manuka Honey is now used as treatment in the DC burn hospital because it has very strong anti-viral, anti-bacterial and anti-inflammatory actions. About 1/3 of a teaspoon should be allowed to dissolve slowly in the back of the mouth. Also, spread thinly on a piece of toast. It is gaining use as a cure for ulcers for same reason it cures coughs. Do not give honey to infants.

If you have a bacterial infection in the nose/sinuses, coat the inside of your nose with an anti-bacterial Neosporin. A few treatments and you may be cured almost permanently.

I and other members of my family had chronic cough problems for since one can remember. Now they are stopped within minutes using Manuka honey.

I had painful sinuses and stuffy nose for years and the Neosporin treatment has made it a thing of the past.

Locally grown bee pollen can help with allergies. It must be locally grown and try a small amount first to see if you are allergic to it. If not, a teaspoon a day is wonderful.

John

Essential Oil Reduces Congestion

Place a few drops of eucalyptus oil and peppermint oil in a tablespoon of olive or grape seed oil and rub under the nose, on the throat, and on the chest. You can also drop a few drops onto a washcloth or sponge and leave it in the bottom of the shower when you take a shower. The vapor will help decongest. Viola

Use a Heating Pad

Use a heating pad on your chest. It will help soothe the cough and congestion in your chest and draw it out. Karen

Three Step Approach to Natural Congestion Remedies

Here are three things I have used for years and they really seem to help. Put a heating pad on your chest. This can be any kind of heating Pad, including electric (least recommended), hot water bottle, or one of the newer microwavable pads (see below for directions on how to make your own). Put it on over a layer of clothing (to prevent any possible burns). Make sure you follow any heating pad instructions.

The next thing I use is a mixture of lemon juice and honey. In my opinion, it is best to use fresh lemon juice and raw honey. But I've also used bottled lemon juice and processed honey with fine results. Starting with about a tablespoon of honey, add as much lemon as you can stand for sourness, but where the honey is still thick enough to be a bit clingy. Mix well and then eat a spoonful of it. If your throat is sore, let this slide down your throat as much as possible. It may tingle a bit, but that's fine. Repeat as often as you need to for coughing. This old cure is becoming popular again because, except for a few extra calories, there are no negative side effects to it, as there can be with pharmaceuticals. Also, the ingredients can be kept on hand, and it can be very effective.

Lastly, I use a Neti pot. This is for nasal irrigation, which many people don't want to think about or try. It isn't the most pleasant thing at first, but it can be so effective that I have turned many people into believers. I even have a "travel pot," so that I don't break my good one. Nasal irrigation systems can be bought at the drugstore, although I prefer my porcelain Neti pot (it's very effective and once bought it's virtually free to use).

Basically, nasal irrigation helps to clean out clogged sinuses. A saline solution is put into one nostril, then comes out the other. I admit it was a bit disgusting at first, but I got over that pretty quickly. I used to have chronic sinus infections, and I haven't had a single one since I started the Neti pot 10 years ago. Nasal irrigation is a big enough topic that I suggest you look at it on the web for more details, or talk to your pharmacist.

To make a rice pad, decide on how big you want it (mine is about 1.5 feet by 2 feet), and make a bag that size (shaped as you might a pillow case). Make sure you use cotton, since synthetics can melt. Then sew channels in the bag from bottom to top, about 1.5 inches wide. Put a few tablespoons of uncooked rice in each channel and then sew across to seal the rice in. Add another few tablespoons of rice, and sew across. Repeat until the bag is all filled with rice. It will have a kind of quilted look when finished. To use, put it in the microwave and heat as desired. It can get very hot, and more so in some spots than others, so use with caution. I used my pad for many years. It started to tear at some of the channel seams, so I am making a new one. This time I am using a slightly heavier cotton than last time, and I bought new fabric (last time I used scraps).

Free home test kits for colorectal cancer available at Health Department

March is Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month

March is Colorectal Awareness Month and public health officials are speaking out with advice for consumers on this potentially life-threatening disease. "Colorectal cancer is the second leading cause of cancer deaths in the United States, with over 56,000 people expected to die from this disease each year," Joshua Meyerson, MD, Medical Director for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan explained. "However, it is a preventable and very curable disease if caught early."

The Health Department offers free home test kits for men and women age 50 and over from Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego counties who meet certain income guidelines.

Because there are often no symptoms when it is first developing, colorectal cancer can only be caught early through regular screening. "The benefits of early detection and treatment are dramatic," Meyerson said. "The possibility of curing patients after symptoms develop is only 50%, but if colorectal cancer is found and treated at an early stage before symptoms develop, the opportunity to cure it is 80% or better."

Meyerson notes that in addition to getting screened regularly for colorectal cancer, people can lower their risk of getting the disease by:

- Avoiding red meat and bacon
  - Eating plenty of vegetables, fruits, and other high-fiber foods
  - Exercising regularly and maintaining a normal body weight
  - Not smoking and drinking alcohol only in moderation
- The Health Department is offering free test kits to eligible individuals ages 50-64. For more information or to receive your free test kit call 1-800-432-4121.

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan is mandated by the Michigan Public Health Code to promote wellness, prevent disease, provide quality health-care, address health problems of vulnerable populations, and protect the environment for the residents and visitors of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego counties.

Real Estate Corner

Question & Answers About Selling Real Estate

Getting the House Ready to Sell: Uncluttering the House

Mike Stark

Compliments of
Mike Stark,
Stark Realty, Inc.
(231) 536-7700

This is the hardest thing for most people to do because they are emotionally attached to everything in the house. After years of living in the same home, clutter collects in such a way that may not be evident to the homeowner. However, it does affect the way buyers see the home, even if you do not realize it.

Clutter collects on shelves, counter tops, drawers, closets, garages, attics, and basements.

You want as much open clear space as possible, so every extra little thing needs to be cleared away.

Take a step back and pretend you are a buyer. Let a friend help point out areas of clutter, as long as you can accept their views without getting defensive. Let your agent help you, too.

Kitchen Clutter

The kitchen is a good place to start removing clutter, because it is an easy place to start.

First, get everything off the counters. Everything. Even the toaster. Put the toaster in a cabinet and take it out when you use it. Find a place where you can store everything in cabinets and drawers. Of course, you may notice that you do not have cabinet space to put everything. Clean them out. The dishes, pots and pans that rarely get used? Put them in a box and put that box in storage.

You see, homebuyers will open all your cabinets and drawers, especially in the kitchen. They want to be sure there is enough room for their "stuff." If your kitchen cabinets, pantries, and drawers look jammed full, it sends a negative message to the buyer and does not promote an image of plentiful storage space. The best way to do that is to have as much "empty space" as possible.

For that reason, if you have a "junk drawer," get rid of the junk. If you have a rarely used crock pot, put it in storage. Do this with every cabinet and drawer. Create open space.

If you have a large amount of foodstuffs crammed into the shelves or pantry, begin using them – especially canned goods. Canned goods are heavy and you don't want to be lugging them to a new house, anyway – or paying a mover to do so. Let what you have on the shelves determine your menus and use up as much as you can.

Beneath the sink is very critical, too. Make sure the area beneath the sink is as empty as possible, removing all extra cleaning supplies. You should scrub the area down as well, and determine if there are any tell-tale signs of water leaks that may cause a homebuyer to hesitate in buying your home.
