Keith Haske Alumni Fundraiser set for Sunday, July 27 in Charlevoix

By Chris Fiel

CHARLEVOIX — Some people leave a lasting mark when you meet them.

Keith Haske is one of those people.

Keith or “Coach” to many that know him throughout Northern Michigan and the basketball world, was diagnosed in May with throat cancer. After doing some research on his own, he visited Houston, Texas where one of the best throat cancer facilities in the country is located and he, along with his wife Barb decided that he would get treatment there during the months of June and July.

Coach Haske’s former Rayder family has decided to help give back by hosting an alumni basketball fundraiser on Sunday, July 27 from 1-3pm at the Charlevoix High School gymnasium.

The event is open to any former player (boys or girls) who played for coach Haske at either Charlevoix or Traverse City St. Francis.

Haske took over the Rayder boys basketball program in 1998, coming from St. John’s. In 13 seasons on the Charlevoix bench, he guided the Rayders to 10 Class C district championships, six regional titles, four state semifinal appearances and state runner-ups in 2001 and 2004.

He tallied a 239-78 record in Charlevoix, with only one sub .500 season and led the Rayders to four Lake Michigan Conference championships and five runner-up finishes. In his tenure at Charlevoix, the Rayders finished below third in the conference only one time, his inaugural season.

Haske also coached the Rayder girls program from 2004-06, and led the team to a state runner up finish in 2004 as the team went 27-1.

Coach Haske retired from Charlevoix as the middle school principal and resigned as the basketball coach in 2010, before taking over as the dean of students at Traverse City St. Francis and coaching the boys basketball team.

At St. Francis, just two years after implementing his program, Haske guided the Gladiator boys team to a state runner-up finish in 2012.

“This event is something that we (former players, colleagues and communities) can give back to someone that has given so much to us,” event coordinator Liz Shaw said. “It’s the Sunday after Venetian and all the proceeds raised will help go towards helping with his medical bills and expenses.”

There is a benefit account set up at the Charlevoix State Bank in his name, as well as the event will have a silent auction, bake sale, bracelets, hats and T-shirts.

“It’s been amazing, all the outpouring by those offering to help,” Shaw noted. “I think it’s human nature that wants us to give back in some way and this is one avenue that we can use to do that.”

Shaw has set up a “Coach Haske Alumni Basketball Fundraiser Event” group on her facebook page and encourages any and all that would like to join and leave a positive message to do so.

“We have about 450 members and counting, ranging from former players and friends, to those that have been impacted by him in some way or another,” said Shaw. “I’ve had the opportunity to get to see how he connects with people firsthand. As his JV coach for three years, I got to see how much he loves what he does and how much he loves his players through both his actions and his words. He’s a very special man.”

Shaw receives messages and letters to coach Haske through both facebook and email and forwards them along.

“I try to send those at least three times a day,” she said. “If anyone has a message to send him, whether it be a funny story or a special memory, please send it in.”

Shaw also notes that the feedback from both coach Haske and Barb has been overwhelming and that all the support has been very uplifting. She also said that any updates that she receives from Mrs. Haske will be updated on the facebook group page.

For those looking to donate to the silent auction or help in any way possible, please contact Liz Shaw at .

Drs. Oz and Roizen

Television's Dr. Oz and Cleveland Clinic's Dr. Roizen report on health, wellness and quality of life.

BUTTER, BACON, CHEESE: UN-MASKING THE LATEST NEW HEALTH FOOD IMPOSTERS

MICHAEL ROIZEN, M.D.,
AND MEHMET OZ, M.D.

Saturated fat's sizzling on dinner tables across North America thanks to bacon mania, record-breaking cheese sales and a recent New York Times op-ed titled "Butter Is Back" (it went viral). But we think you should think twice before slathering butter on your morning toast, reaching for a bacon-topped cupcake, or stacking Swiss cheese on your sandwich.

There's a lot of questionable science being touted as fact when it comes to advocating these trendy fat bombs. Don't believe Internet falsehoods like "butter is a health food" or "bacon is good for you." And what about the recent, headline-grabbing study that asserts saturated fat is not harmful? It was flawed.

Researchers from the U.K.'s University of Cambridge reviewed 77 studies involving 643,226 people and found no connection between saturated fat and heart health. Our response: Focusing just on the effect of saturated fat in a person's diet is misleading.

There's plenty of evidence that a diet that slashes saturated and trans fats, added sugars and syrups and grains that are NOT 100 percent whole and includes plenty of produce, whole grains and lean protein is way better for your heart and your brain. It also can prevent cancer, impotence and wrinkles, and is better for your waistline than any other nutritional regimen.

In fact, one study by Spanish researchers had us cheering. They found a diet based around foods such as avocados, olive and canola oils, nuts and fish, containing plenty of good fats (the odd omegas and poly- and monounsaturated) and not much saturated fat slashed heart attack and stroke risk by 30 percent!

But even so, the butter-bacon-cheese craze is getting crazier.

Butter consumption -- at 5.6 pounds per person per year -- is at a 40-year high! Bacon's gone wild, with sales at an all-time high of $4 billion, thanks in part to the popularity of oddities like bacon-topped sundaes, bacon-themed restaurants, even bacon-flavored vodka. (It is not just the saturated fat, but the carnitine in the bacon that changes your gut bacteria, creates inflammation and inhibits your ability to stop cancer and brain decay.) U.S. cheese consumption is up from 11 pounds per person in 1970 to 33 1/2 pounds in 2012. (The amino acids in cheese add to inflammation, decay in orgasm quality, impotence, wrinkles and brain dysfunction.)

Now a little sat fat (4 grams at most) is OK once in a while, but big portions and a regular habit are risky. Butter has 7 grams of sat fat per tablespoon; bacon's got 1 g per slice (along with boatloads of sodium and preservatives), and cheese packs about 5 g per slice.

A better idea? Steer clear of bacon and other processed meats. Just one serving a day raises your odds for fatal cancers by 20 percent, heart disease by 42 percent, and diabetes by 19 percent. And like cheese, they're linked to wrinkles, brain rot, impotence and decay in orgasm quality. Chalk up all this trouble-making to the amino acids and blood-pressure-raising sodium in these meats, along with nitrate preservatives that mess with your body's ability to produce and respond to insulin, the hormone that tells cells to absorb blood sugar.

Don't trade in saturated fats for food felons! Remember the low-fat diet craze that had people munching fat-free foods loaded with sugars, syrups and refined grains? Today, we know that these bad guys also increase levels of heart-threatening triglycerides (another blood fat), torpedo your good HDL cholesterol and increase your risk for heart disease, diabetes and many forms of cancer.

When you replace saturated fats with good fats like the DHA-omega3's, omega-7's, and healthier proteins in grilled salmon (instead of a burger), walnuts on your salad (instead of cheese) and a handful of almonds (instead of chips and dip), you'll lower your lousy LDL cholesterol level and protect heart-healthy HDL cholesterol. That means sharper mental powers, better looking hair and skin, a younger ReaAge and more zip in your love life!

July is UV Safety Month

By Deb Hagen-Foley

While you are enjoying outdoor summer activities, be aware of the damaging effects of ultraviolet rays, or UV rays. Tanned skin might look healthy, but the tan comes from UV rays damaging the skin. Sun exposure is the greatest single factor leading to skin cancer. Skin cancer is the most common form of cancer in the United States. One in five Americans will develop risk cancer in their lifetimes. More than 2 million Americans develop skin cancer annually. The most serious type of skin cancer, melanoma, results in thousands of deaths annually. It is important to know your risks for skin cancer and how to safely enjoy time in the sun.

Know your risk. Your risk of skin cancer is greatly influenced by your genetic disposition and your reaction to sun exposure. Take the quiz in the insets to determine your risk. Add your totals for genetic disposition and reaction to sun exposure to find your Fitzpatrick Skin Type. The higher your number the lower your risk. Daily sunscreen and regular skin checks are recommended for all skin types.

If your total is 0-6, your skin is type I. A point value of 7-12 represents type II. You typically burn following sun exposure, leaving you at high risk for skin cancers. The recommendations for risk reduction are similar for both types. To reduce your risk, use sunscreen with a SPF rating of 30 or higher, and stay in the shade when you are outside, particularly between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Even better, avoid being outside during this time, when UV rays are the strongest. Check your skin monthly, head to toe, for unusual growths. Have your skin professionally checked annually. Many of us of Northern European heritage probably fall into these categories.

A point total of 13-16 indicates skin type III. Type IV is a score between 19 and 24. These types are at slightly reduced risk for skin cancer. The recommendations for these skin types, that tend to tan more easily and are less likely to burn is to use a sunscreen with an SPF of 15+ and to seek shade when outside during periods with the strongest sunlight, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Check your skin monthly and have a professionally skin check annually.

Fitzpatrick Skin Type V, 25-30 points, and Type VI, 31 points or higher, tan easily and rarely burn. However, it is still recommended that darker skin persons use sunscreen with an SPF of 15+ daily and check their skin monthly as well as having an annual professional skin check. Skin of this type is at risk for a very virulent form of skin cancer, which is often detected in advanced stages. It is more likely to appear on skin that is not regularly exposed to the sun, like the bottoms of feet.

What to watch for? In general, in your monthly skin checks, look for changes in your skin. The lesions differ by the type of skin cancer. They might be elevated, rough feeling and appear as warts. The most common type of skin cancer, Basal Cell Carcinoma, can present as an open sore that lasts for a few weeks, heals and bleeds again. Something as subtle as a reddish, itchy patch can signal skin cancer. Also, an area that appears as a scar could represent skin cancer. It is important, if you notice a change in your skin, to consult your doctor. Skin cancer that is caught early is very treatable. Treatment often involves removing the growth. The sooner the growth is removed, the less the impact on your skin and your life. Enjoy summer activities safely for years to come by following these simple steps.

Chrysler Group is offering fuel-saving Engine Stop-Start (ESS) technology as standard equipment on certain models of the award-winning 2015 Jeep Cherokee mid-size SUV and all-new 2015 Chrysler 200 mid-size sedan. PHOTO COPYRIGHT CHRYSLER GROUP LLC.

Fuel-Saving Engine Stop-Start (ESS) Technology Now Standard with V-6 in Award-Winning Jeep Cherokee and I-4 in All-New 2015 Chrysler 200

Chrysler Group is offering fuel-saving Engine Stop-Start (ESS) technology as standard equipment on certain models of the award-winning 2015 Jeep Cherokee mid-size SUV and all-new 2015 Chrysler 200 mid-size sedan. Chrysler 200 customers who opt for the 2.4-liter Tigershark I-4, and Jeep Cherokee customers who choose the available 3.2-liter Pentastar V-6, will experience estimated fuel-economy improvements of up to three percent, compared with the conventional vehicle-engine pairings.

“We’re taking highly efficient engines and upping the ante to further benefit our customers,” said Mike Duhaime, Global Director-Electrified Powertrain Propulsion Systems. “ESS leverages intricate control strategies to deliver a superior driving experience, as well as the expected fuel-savings and emissions-reduction.”

ESS applications in the Chrysler 200 and Jeep Cherokee will account for an estimated CO2 emissions-reduction of up to three percent. Availability in the popular Jeep Cherokee is scheduled for third quarter. ESS arrives the following quarter in the all-new Chrysler 200. The technology made its NAFTA-region debut in the Ram 1500 full-size pickup. ESS accounts for a one-mpg city-cycle fuel-economy gain in the Ram, the most fuel-efficient truck in its segment.

At the heart of ESS is a high-speed/high-durability starter that reduces crank time, culminating in quicker restarts. Its function is regulated by algorithms that act on a vehicle’s powertrain and chassis components. As a result, acceleration is always aligned with driver inputs. Passive accelerator application is met with measured throttle response; hard inputs trigger aggressive starts. And there’s no waiting for either.

ESS works this way:
- Engine controls constantly monitor vehicle speed
- When the vehicle brakes to a stop, fuel flow is cut and engine

The all-new 2015 Chrysler 200 is the world's first mid-size sedan to feature a nine-speed automatic transmission, which comes standard and contributes to a fuel-economy gain of up to 13 percent compared with the outgoing car and its four-speed gearbox. PHOTO COPYRIGHT CHRYSLER GROUP LLC.

turns off – events that save gas and reduce emissions

- Beefier batteries maintain other vehicle systems so in-cabin comfort is unaffected

- When the brake pedal is released, the engine automatically restarts and the nine-speed automatic transmission, the segment-exclusive nine-speed automatic transmission is engaged – all within 0.3 seconds

If a driver chooses to forgo the benefits of ESS, the feature can be deactivated with the push of a button, and then reactivated.

Efficiency and refinement are hallmarks of the Tigershark and Pentastar engine families. ESS just complements these attributes. The 16-valve, 184-hp 2.4-liter Tiger-shark comes standard in the all-new 2015 Chrysler 200. The slickly engineered I-4 also features the unique MultiAir2 electro-hydraulic fully variable valve-lift system.

Exclusive to Chrysler Group in North America, MultiAir technology uses a column of oil in place of the traditional mechanical link between the camshaft and intake valves. Sophisticated electronic control of the MultiAir components maximizes intake manifold pressure, significantly reducing pumping losses. MultiAir2 takes the innovation further by simultaneously controlling both valve opening and closing events to more effectively manage combustion quality. This ensures the appropriate, effective compression ratio and efficient internal exhaust-gas recirculation (EGR) for improved fuel economy.

The all-new 2015 Chrysler 200 is the world's first mid-size sedan to feature a nine-speed automatic transmission, which comes standard and contributes to a fuel-economy gain of up to 13 percent compared with the outgoing car and its four-speed gearbox. The high-tech transmission – which also comes standard in the Jeep Cherokee – dispenses power smoothly for elevated refinement. Such performance is made possible because the ratio steps between its gears are smaller than those of other transmissions.

The Cherokee’s available 271-hp 3.2-liter Pentastar V-6 is derived from the acclaimed 3.6-liter Pentastar V-6, named three times one of Ward’s 10 Best Engines. The smaller-displacement V-6 helps the Cherokee deliver fuel-economy improvements of up to 30 percent, compared with the model it replaces.

Question & Answers About Selling Real Estate

A Timeline for Your Summer Move

Part 2 of 5

3 WEEKS FROM MOVE DATE:

Once you've selected a mover, begin by taking inventory of your belongings and their worth and decide what will be coming with you to your next home.

Tip: Start cleaning out closets, drawers and storage areas of your home and divide things into categories: "pack", "recycle" and "give to friend." You can always have a garage sale or donate old items to charity. This will make packing day a lot easier and you may reduce the total weight you'll be paying for to move.

Tip: If you're moving yourself or contracting for a self-service move, pack the items you know you won't need until 30 days after the move. It will feel great to get started early.

Tip: If possible, take pictures of rooms and areas inside the home or apartment you'll be moving into so you can start thinking about placement of furniture, artwork and other items. This will help save time, headaches...and money...on moving day.
