CHARLEVOIX COUNTY — Those located in Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Charlevoix, East Jordan and Ellsworth each had the opportunity to witness some great athletes and teams perform over the course of the 2014 sports seasons.

Whether it was from their own community or watching student-athletes nearby, those that were not playing at the time, showed up in masses to support for their neighbors at their respective events.

While there were many highlights to the calendar year, some of those that stick out are the Boyne City boys basketball team earning the Lake Michigan Conference title for the first time in 16 years with a perfect 14-0 record. Boyne Falls also repeated as unbeaten champions in the Northern Lakes Conference for the third straight season and then the Lady Loggers made it a clean sweep for Boyne Falls, earning their first ever NLC basketball championship.

Once tournament play began, the area witnessed some amazing basketball with district champions coming from the East Jordan boys, their first title since 1995; the Boyne Falls boys and the Charlevoix girls each won their first crown since 2006.

East Jordan wasn't finished there as the Red Devils went on to win their first regional title since 1953 before falling in the Class C quarterfinal behind the play of All-State guard Noah Bacchus.

Paige Podskalny and Ben Walton of East Jordan each inked their respective letter of intent to attend Northwood University and continue their athletic careers, Paige in women's golf and Ben in football.

Amber Way of Charlevoix and Kylie Hicks each won state titles at the MHSAA track and field finals, Way took top honors in the 3200M run for the second consecutive season in a time of 10:35.33 and also finished third in the 1600M run. Hicks won the 300M hurdles in a school record 44.59 seconds. Kylie signed her letter of intent to run for Grand Valley State University.

Both the Boyne City baseball and softball teams were successful in winning their respectful districts with both teams advancing to the regional finals behind outstanding team play from their student-athletes.

Elk is shot in Montmorency County

DNR charges Waterford man with elk poaching on first day of firearm season

MONTMORENCY COUNTY – A 51-year-old man from Waterford has confessed to killing an elk on the opening day of firearm deer season, according to Department of Natural Resources conservation officers who investigated the incident.

A deer hunter hunting in Montmorency County north of Atlanta Nov. 15 contacted the DNR's Report All Poaching (RAP) Line to report he had found a dead elk. Conservation officers from the DNR's Gaylord Customer Service Center responded and located the 4x4 bull elk and determined it had been killed by a single gunshot.

After a lengthy investigation by the officers, a suspect was identified and a confession was obtained. Charges currently are under review by the Montmorency County Prosecutor.

"Good old-fashioned police work by our officers brought this case to a successful end," Lt. Jim Gorno said. "We continue to encourage the public to be diligent in watching out for our natural resources. Without the hunter calling the RAP Line to report this case, it could have gone unsolved."

Conservation officers continue to investigate a number of poaching-related incidents involving elk in northern Michigan. Anyone with information regarding any incidents is asked to call the DNR Law Division at the Gaylord Customer Service Center at 989-732-3541 or the 24-hour RAP Line at 800-292-7800.

Any fish, game or natural resources violation can be reported to the DNR's RAP Line or with the online reporting form, available at the DNR website www.michigan.gov/conservationofficers.

Information leading to an arrest and conviction is eligible for a cash reward funded by the Game and Fish Protection Fund. Information also may be left anonymously.

What You Should Look for When House Hunting

Compliments of Mike Stark, Coldwell Banker Schmidt Realtors East Jordan. (231) 536-7700

SCHMIDT REALTORS

If you're shopping for a home and can afford to buy one, you couldn't be in a better position right now. In many parts of the country, housing inventory is high and both home prices and interest rates are low and as a buyer, you can take advantage of that.

With so many properties on the market, you can probably take a more leisurely approach to house hunting without getting into a fast-paced bidding war. There is a caveat, however. The best homes priced properly for the market conditions will always be in higher demand.

As you begin your search for the right home for you, it pays to keep in mind things you need to check carefully so that they don't cost you big bucks in the long run.

Kitchen

If kitchens matter to you, you might want to be fairly selective about them when looking for a new home. The 2009 average price for a minor kitchen remodel for a midrange home is more than $21,000 and the cost for a major remodel is more than $57,000 and the costs are substantially more for higher-end homes.

Look carefully at the appliances, cabinetry, counters and floor. Those are the elements that cost more to replace. If possible, you want newer appliances to save money on repairs and energy costs; solid-wood cabinets; and solid-surface counters, such as granite, stainless steel, butcher block or engineered stone. Your floor choices include wood, cork, laminates and tile and it's a matter of what's comfortable and durable for your lifestyle.

Bathrooms

Following kitchens, bathrooms are also expensive rooms to remodel at a 2009 national average of more than $16,000 because of the fixtures and plumbing. Make sure you see no leaks or evidence of leaks in tubs, toilets and flooring. Sharing bathrooms can be one of those pain points for families so make sure you get what you need.

Roof

A roof is a big-ticket item with an average 2009 replacement cost of more than $19,000 although adding a second layer to a roof is not nearly as expensive as replacing the entire thing. Inside the house, you can check the attic, ceilings and skylights for signs of water damage, look for places where the roof deck is sagging, and see if you can detect any light coming through. If you do see light coming through, it is likely not a problem if the roof is made of shake shingles. Outside, inspect for cracked, ripped, curling or missing shingles and damaged flashing. Also look for rotting, buckling, blistering or algae growth, which could also be signs of trouble.

HVAC

An old heater can be hard to repair and eats up energy at a pace faster than newer units. Furnaces can start at about $5,000 to replace and if you buy a combined unit with the air conditioner, add on several thousand dollars. You may need to replace the heat pump or air conditioner if it's older than 10 years and a furnace or boiler if it's more than 15 years old.

Basement

The extra room you gain may be a huge headache if the basement floods. Look for water marks and find out if the house has a system for removing water.

Other areas of concern that might cost money down the line are the driveways and sidewalks, chimneys, insulation and windows.

If you find a house and your offer is accepted, you'll be dealing with a home inspector who can fill in the gaps with a professional's eye. The thing is, if you really want the home, you don't have to let problems deter you. You are in position to negotiate a price reduction with the seller or insist repairs be made to the property before your offer is finalized.

If you can afford a house, you can afford the luxury of taking your time to find the right one for you.

Automotive Review

Ford recently introduced SYNC® 3, a new communications and entertainment system that is faster, more intuitive and easier to use with enhanced response to driver commands. IMAGE COPYRIGHT FORD MOTOR COMPANY

Ford SYNC® 3 delivers new, innovative ways for people to stay connected with their lives while on the move

Ford recently introduced SYNC® 3, a new communications and entertainment system that is faster, more intuitive and easier to use with enhanced response to driver commands. SYNC 3's more conversational voice recognition technology, a more smartphone-like touch screen and easy-to-read graphics will help millions of drivers connect with their lives and control their smartphone while on the road. The next-generation system builds on the capability of SYNC technology already in more than 10 million SYNC-equipped vehicles on the road globally. SYNC 3 begins arriving on new vehicles next year.

"Ford is delivering an easier way for customers to stay connected," said Raj Nair, Ford chief technical officer and group vice president, Global Product Development. "SYNC 3 is another step forward in delivering connectivity features customers most want, and they tell us this kind of technology is an important part of their decision to buy our vehicles."

Ford took a customer-centric approach in developing SYNC 3, drawing on 22,000 customer comments and suggestions, plus insights gleaned from research clinics, market surveys and tech industry benchmarking.

Although SYNC 3 is optimized for hands-free use, an all-new touch screen delivers an experience similar to a smartphone or tablet. Quicker response to touch as well as voice commands and smartphone-like gestures including pinch-to-zoom and swipe are central to SYNC 3, along with crisp, modern graphics. A bright background and large buttons with high-contrast fonts for daytime use help reduce screen washout in the sun. At night, the display automatically switches to a dark background to help reduce eye fatigue and minimize reflections on the windows.

"We considered all the modern smartphones and mobile operating systems and created something familiar but unique," said Parrish Hanna, Ford global director of Human Machine Interface.

SYNC 3 reduces on-screen complexity and prioritizes the control options customers use most. The home screen features three zone choices – Navigation, Audio and Phone. Tile-like icons dominate the screen, with a quick access function tray along the bottom making for a more straightforward user experience. Phone contacts are searchable via a simple swipe of the finger to scroll through the alphabet. With "One Box Search," SYNC 3 users can look up points of interest or enter addresses in much the same way they use an Internet search engine.

"Simplicity has value," said Hanna. "Reducing the number of things on-screen also makes control easier and is designed to limit the number of times a driver has to glance at the screen."

Ford SYNC – the industry's first system to widely and most affordably offer voice-activated technology to control smartphones – becomes more capable with the next-generation system by minimizing the number of steps needed to carry out a command.

With SYNC 3, simply saying "play <song, artist, album or genre>" prompts the system to play the desired song, artist, playlist or album; there is no need to identify the desired category. To switch back to a radio station, the user just says the name of the SiriusXM station or terrestrial radio station number.

Voice search results are enhanced by a better understanding of how consumers refer to businesses and points of interest. Drivers don't have to know an exact name. They can search for "Detroit Airport" rather than using the official name "Detroit Metropolitan Airport." With addresses, they can say, "Eleven Twenty-Five Main Street" instead of "One One Two Five Main Street." When connected to an Apple iPhone, SYNC 3 offers seamless integration of Siri Eyes-Free control. Drivers can seek Siri's help by holding down SYNC's "Push to Talk" steering wheel button – much as they would hold down the button on an iPhone to initiate a Siri session.

Ford was first to bring voice control to in-vehicle apps with AppLink™, and the experience is further improved with SYNC 3. AppLink allows customers to connect their smartphone to their vehicle and control their compatible apps using voice commands or buttons on the vehicle display screen. AppLink now automatically discovers smartphone apps including Spotify, Pandora, Stitcher, NPR One, SiriusXM Radio and iHeartRadio Auto, and displays their unique graphics and branding. Music and news apps are automatically displayed along with other media sources, just like AM/FM or SiriusXM.

"Overall, AppLink is faster, more responsive and easier to find your apps," said Julius Marchwicki, Ford global product manager, AppLink. "The overall design of SYNC 3 allows for better integration with smartphones – resulting in a more user-friendly experience."

Developers easily can integrate branded apps into AppLink, providing Ford customers with an experience on the vehicle screen similar to what they see on smartphone screens.

SYNC 3 also features the new ability to update the software via Wi-Fi. Once a vehicle is set up with credentials for a home Wi-Fi network accessible in a customer's driveway or garage, for example, it can automatically download updates. SYNC 3, like earlier generations of the technology, provides subscription-free emergency service 911 Assist®.

The customer's Bluetooth-connected phone is used to dial 911 in the event of a significant accident, alerting first-responders with the vehicle's location. With SYNC 3, the car relays additional information, including if airbags were deployed, the type of crash (front, side, rear or rollover) and the number of safety belts detected in use, in order to help emergency call takers dispatch the appropriate resources to the scene.
