Academy pushes recruits Academically, physically

DIMONDALE – The Michigan Department of Natural Resources is seeking candidates for its 2018 Conservation Officer Recruit School, a 23-week training academy that is the first step in becoming a conservation officer.

Recruit School #9 runs July 15-Dec. 21, 2018, at the training academy in Dimondale, near Lansing, Michigan.

Boyne City's Hoth signs with LCC to play softball

BOYNE CITY —

Rambler senior, Katie Hoth has one less thing to worry about her senior year and now knows where she'll spend her first two years of college.

The Boyne City centerfielder and pitcher signed her National Letter of Intent to play softball for the Lansing Community College Stars, following in the footsteps of her sister, Hannah, a 2016 Boyne graduate, who currently catches and plays middle infield for LCC.

In addition to playing for the Stars, Hoth will look to study in the medical field, and while still fully undecided, pediatrics is high on her list.

"It's a huge relief to know that I'm done with the application/scholarship process!" Hoth said. "I get to focus on making the most of my senior year."

Katie is a two-time CC-News All-Area softball team selection and was selected the 2017 Player of the Year in addition to all her other accomplishments, which included an All-State selection.

Some of the statistical highlights from Hoth's junior season included a .496 batting average, 59 hits, including nine doubles, 13 triples, seven home runs 53 RBIs, while also drawing 20 walks and had a .966 slugging percentage.

She was a nightmare on the basepaths for opponents, swiping 33 bags, including stealing home nine times and scored 58 runs for the Ramblers.

Defensively, she finished with a .992 fielding percentage, committing only one error on the season.

In the circle, she finished the season with a 10-8-1 record and a 2.19 ERA. Tossing 106 innings of ball, allowing 88 hits and only 39 earned runs. She also struck out 89.

Katie first learned about LCC through her sister, when Hannah began her recruiting process a few years back.

"She's loved the experience so far, including the program and coach Kibby," Katie noted. "Tom Mielke (former travel ball coach) was a huge factor in my ultimate decision to commit. He sat me down and told me to at least email coach Kibby and express an interest. Then the support of family and friends and a meeting with coach Kibby, I knew I wanted to play there."

Hoth noted that she has been recruited as a center fielder and her goal is to utilize her speed and cover some ground and perform when given the opportunity.

"I'm excited to (hopefully) be a threat offensively as well."

Coach Kibby noted that Katie has the opportunity to step right in as a freshman and take over center field, as the current Stars center fielder will be moving on to a four-year school.

He also noted that the current centerfielder was an All-American and believes that Hoth has the potential to step in and earn the same honor.

DNR seeks candidates for Officer School

ment," said 1st Lt. Steve Burton, training section supervisor in the DNR Law Enforcement Division. "It challenges recruits academically and physically. But those who succeed are on the path to an exciting, fulfilling career as a Michigan conservation officer. Not just anyone can wear our gray and green uniform. Only the finest men and women should apply."

The DNR is an equal opportunity employer and encourages diversity among its applicants. During the academy, recruits become state of Michigan employees and are paid biweekly. After graduation, they become probationary conservation officers and spend several more months training throughout the state before being assigned to one of Michigan's 83 counties, in which they will live. The entire training process, which includes the academy, takes one year before candidates become full-fledged conservation officers, due to the high quality and diverse nature of the training.

An applicant must:
Be a U.S. citizen.
Be at least 21 years old before graduating from the academy.
Become a resident of Michigan by completing the Probationary Training Program.

Be allowed to lawfully possess a firearm in Michigan.

Possess a valid Michigan driver's license.

Possess a satisfactory driving record.

Possess a clean criminal record absent of any felony convictions.

Submit to a thorough background investigation measuring the applicant's suitability for law enforcement work.

Pass the Michigan Commission on Law Enforcement Standards (MCOLES) physical fitness test.

Complete and attach the Job Fit Questionnaire, Location Preference Sheet, a cover letter and resume when applying.

A detailed guide to the application process is available at www.michigan.gov/conservationofficers. For more information contact Sgt. John Meka at mekaj@michigan.gov or 517-284-6499.

This year's Recruit School is under way, with graduation scheduled in December. For a look at life in the academy, subscribe to the weekly conservation officer academy blog, which is also posted on the Michigan DNR Facebook page. View previous blogs from Recruit School #8.

DNR conservation officers serve a distinct role in Michigan's law enforcement community. They are certified police officers with full authority to enforce all of Michigan's laws. As conservation officers, they also have specialized training in a variety of areas related to the protection of Michigan's citizens and natural resources. This includes extensive training in fish, game and trapping enforcement; recreational safety and enforcement, as well as firearms, precision and off-road driving, survival tactics and first aid. DNR tips for safe, enjoyable hunting season LANSING – With the arrival of the firearm deer season this week, Michigan Department of Natural Resources conservation officers are encouraging hunters to brush up on safety tips and hunting regulations to ensure a safe, enjoyable experience.

“Firearm deer season is a special time of year in Michigan,” Cpl. Dave Painter said. “It brings family and friends together in celebration of our state’s great outdoor heritage. Staying safe, knowing the laws and being good stewards of our resources will help hunters have a memorable outing.”

Painter reminds hunters that a mandatory deer check is in place within certain areas of the state due to the confirmation of chronic wasting disease, a fatal neurological disease found in deer, elk and moose. Hunters harvesting a deer in these CWD areas must bring it to a DNR check station within 72 hours. Visit mi.gov/deercheck for a map and list of check stations.

Regardless of where deer are harvested in Michigan, the DNR encourages all hunters to voluntarily take them to the nearest check station to help with disease surveillance. In addition, big-game hunters who travel outside of Michigan should be aware of new regulations restricting the importation of harvested cervids.

Painter also offered the following general safety tips:

Treat every firearm as if it is loaded.

Keep your finger away from the trigger and outside the trigger guard until you are ready to fire.

Keep the safety on until you are ready to fire.

Always point the muzzle in a safe direction.

Be certain of your target, and what’s beyond it, before firing.

Know the identifying features of the game you hunt.

Make sure you have an adequate backstop. Don’t shoot at a flat, hard surface or water.

Unload the firearm before running, climbing a fence or tree, or jumping a ditch.

Wear a safety harness when hunting from an elevated platform. Use a haul line to bring the unloaded firearm up and down the raised platform.

Avoid alcoholic beverages or behavior-altering medicines or drugs before or during a hunt.

Always wear a hat, cap, vest or jacket of hunter orange, visible from all sides, during daylight hunting hours, even if hunting on private land. The law also applies to archery hunters during firearm season.

Make sure at least 50 percent of any camouflage pattern being worn is in hunter orange.

Always let someone know where you are hunting and when you plan to return. This information helps conservation officers and others locate you if you become injured or lost.

Carry a cell phone into the woods. Not only does it let you call for help if necessary, but newer phones emit a signal that can help rescuers locate you. Also consider downloading a compass or flashlight app.

Program the DNR’s Report All Poaching (RAP) line (800-292-7800) in your phone contacts so you can alert conservation officers to any natural resources violations you may witness.

“These are simple, common-sense tips that can help prevent accidents and save lives,” Painter said. “The DNR encourages all hunters to review the Michigan Hunting and Trapping Digest for other essential information before taking to the field.”

Michigan conservation officers are elite, highly trained professionals who serve in every corner of the state. They are fully commissioned peace officers with authority to enforce the state’s criminal laws. Learn more at www.michigan.gov/conservationofficers.

DNR officers honored for saving lives

Officers’ immediate responses made the difference in rescues

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources has recognized two of its conservation officers for their lifesaving actions earlier this year.

Conservation Officers Jeffrey Goss and Josiah Killingbeck received the DNR’s Lifesaving Award during Thursday’s regular meeting of the Michigan Natural Resources Commission in Lansing.

“Both of these emergencies could have ended tragically had it not been for the actions of Conservation Officers Jeff Goss and Josiah Killingbeck,” said Dean Molnar, assistant chief of the DNR Law Enforcement Division, who presented the officers with the award. “Their extensive training, rapid responses and professional conduct made all the difference. We’re proud of Jeff Goss and Josiah Killingbeck for upholding the DNR Law Enforcement Division’s highest standards. Their outstanding service to their communities makes them most deserving of this recognition.”

On May 4, Goss responded to a Calhoun County dispatch call regarding a subject who was suffering from a drug overdose. He quickly arrived at the location because it was only 4 miles from where he was working. Once at the scene, Goss found a citizen performing chest compressions on the subject. After checking the subject, Goss observed that he had aspirated breathing and a pulse, so Goss instructed the citizen to cease the chest compressions.

Goss then administered three sternal rubs but the subject did not respond. He opened the subject’s eyelids and noticed the pupils were very large. Goss continued monitoring the subject until his breathing and pulse slowed drastically, updating dispatchers of this change in condition.

Soon afterward, the subject’s breathing and pulse stopped, and his face was turning purple. Goss immediately started chest compressions, and after a while, the subject regained his pulse and normal coloration returned to his face.

Goss administered two sternal rubs but the subject did not respond. Goss stayed with him and monitored his condition until medical personnel arrived. The emergency responders administered medication to the subject, and within a few minutes he was able to walk to the stretcher.

Goss has been with the DNR for 11 years, serving Calhoun County and the surrounding area. He is a native of North Branch in Lapeer County.

Killingbeck’s lifesaving incident occurred June 30 when he responded to a distress call along the Pere Marquette River in Lake County. A family of four was canoeing on the river when the craft overturned, throwing all occupants into the water.

The river was unseasonably high and the water flow was swifter than usual. The father and son were swept downstream while the mother and daughter remained near the canoe and became stuck in a logjam.

The mother was unable to locate her daughter. After calling her for some time, she reached under the canoe and discovered that her daughter was underneath, partially wedged in the logjam. After freeing her, the mother placed her daughter on top of the debris in which they were stuck.

Realizing her daughter’s skin was blue and she was unresponsive, the mother immediately rendered CPR and revived her. While traveling to the scene, Killingbeck used his detailed knowledge of the local area to determine the spot where the family likely was, and advised dispatchers and a sheriff’s deputy of the best response location.

The deputy was first on the scene along the river and located the mother and daughter. The father and son managed to escape the river and walked upstream to where the mother and daughter were trapped. Killingbeck arrived soon after and worked with the deputy to assess the situation.

Although a swift-water response team had been notified, Killingbeck knew that every minute was critical and he feared the mother and daughter were in immediate danger. The conservation officer crawled out onto a downed tree log that was just upstream of the mother and daughter.

After shimmying out on the narrow log, which was in fast-moving water more than 6 feet deep, Killingbeck was able to rescue the daughter and get her back to shore with assistance from the deputy and other responders who had since arrived. Killingbeck then assisted the mother out of the water.

The daughter was transported to a local hospital before ultimately being sent to a children’s hospital for evaluation. She was released a few days later with no reported health issues.

Killingbeck has been with the DNR for more than three years, serving Lake County and the surrounding area. He is a native of Luther in Lake County.

East Jordan State of the Community Luncheon

By Tina Sundelius

EAST JORDAN—East Jordan is heading in the right direction and its future is bright was the message members of the community walked away with after hearing four keynote speakers discuss the status of the city, schools, and DDA at East Jordan's State of the Community Luncheon Tuesday, November 11.

An air of optimism filled the Harvest Barn hall as 26 East Jordan High School seniors and other members of the community listened intently to Mayor Russell Peck whose speech focused on the challenges and infrastructure improvements that still lie ahead for the city. "All in all things are looking up, we're heading in the right direction. Together we will position our community for a resilient and sustainable future. Indeed, East Jordan's future is bright," he concluded.

Peck not only talked about all that the city has accomplished but emphasized the infrastructure improvements needed to accommodate new growth. "We are very optimistic about the future of our community and that optimism comes from the exciting new direction we have been heading," he said. He cited the city's sewer system that is already operating at 98% capacity, sidewalks, and sea-pilings to be installed at the southwest side of the harbor next to the bridge intended to stop silt from filling the harbor (construction to begin in December) as projects that will further enable the city to grow. He mentioned the new well house (already up and running), the now open 24/7 recycling center and the $12,000 Kayak facility in the park which he stated presently "looks like an art project." "We are developing the kind of community we have envisioned for future generations. There is a positive up beat energy," he said.

DDA Chairman Tom Teske, Entrepreneur Director with the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance Tom Erhart, Chamber of Commerce Director Mary Fac-Stevenson addressed an audience of community leaders at the third annual State of the Community Address Tuesday, November 11. "East Jordan's future is bright," said Peck.

UPDATED BOYNE CITY RANCH HOME IS A TRUE GEM

By Jim Akans

This week's feature listing is an updated ranch home in Boyne City that is truly a gem.

This three-bedroom, one-and-a-half bath home has approximately 1,586 square feet of nicely laid out and appointed main level living space. Highlights include an extra large living room and a large kitchen with pantry that opens to an adjoining dining area. These spaces flow seamlessly together under a common cathedral ceiling...great for entertaining family and friends. The bedrooms are all generously sized, and there is sizable home office plus a main level utility/mud room for added convenience. The partial basement and attached two-and-a-half car garage provide tons of storage space.

The corner lot is nicely landscaped and just five blocks from beautiful Lake Charlevoix and two blocks from Avalanche Park. There is a wonderful deck and patio area on the rear of the home, and the property also has an 8x12 storage shed for storage or perhaps a nice workshop space.

This updated ranch home is located at 200 Trent in Boyne City and it is listed at $149,900. For a
