Shooting accident kills Charlevoix man

BY MICHELLE MEDJESKY

CHARLEVOIX - Police are characterizing the recent shooting death of a Charlevoix man known as "Miracle Man" to have been accidental.

Charlevoix Police Chief Gerard Doan said 36-year-old Greg Van Stedum was shot and killed by a friend on Saturday, April 14 and the shooting is believed to have been accidental. The incident occurred just after 4 p.m. at a small apartment building located on May Street in Charlevoix.

Doan said a friend of Van Stedum's had stopped by the apartment to show off a newly-purchased .45 caliber handgun and unloaded the weapon before handing it to Van Stedum to examine. When he got his firearm back, the friend replaced the magazine, pulled the slide back and "let it go."

"Somehow it went off and struck his friend," Doan said, noting such occurrences are "very rare."

Van Stedum was shot in the side and transported to McLaren Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey where he was pronounced dead.

Police said the handgun was legally purchased and owned and that the shooting is being treated as accidental, however, the case is being examined by the Charlevoix County prosecutor's office to determine if any charges should be filed.

Van Stedum came to be known by friends and family as "Miracle Man" after his remarkable recovery

Matt Hamilton is EJ Rotary "Father of the Year"

Matt Hamilton, father of two, husband to wife, Stacey, was recognized as East Jordan's 2018 Father of the Year by the East Jordan Rotary Club. The award was presented by the East Jordan Rotary Club president, Tami Vincent, at the 98th annual father/son banquet on Saturday.

His family describes him as a great listener, takes his girls for donuts on snow days, and challenges them to try new things like wakeboarding and four wheeling. They say that he keeps them guessing about what adventure he will take them on next. Hamilton is a Middle School Teacher at East Jordan Middle / High School. He founded, and continues to sponsor, The Shoe Club where students are encouraged to think about what it is like to "walk in someone else's shoes". He encourages students to invest in themselves and the people around them.

He is also a founding member of The Depot, a community teen center, in East Jordan. The Depot is a safe place for teens to hang out, receive guidance, and feel connected. He enjoys giving nicknames to his students that reflects each student's personality. "Froggy Fresh", "Hot Sauce", and "Prime Time" are just a few examples.

This award was particularly meaningful to Hamilton as his own Father passed away just 6 months ago. He expressed his appreciation for his own Father being such a good role model for him when he was growing up. He misses his Father, but is thankful for the example he was.

His family reiterates that he devotes his time to things he believes in and feels are important. His life reflects his love for his family, his students, and his community. "We feel blessed to call him husband, dad, coach, and our hero!"

Twenty eight is just a number.

It's not a life. It's not fair. Any death of someone so young is a tragic loss.

It's often that we wait until a loved one is gone that we tell the world what a wonderful person they were. Today we are wanting to tell the world a little about Danny.

Danny had a smile that was just about as warm as the sun. It was contagious, too. It was almost impossible to be unhappy when he was around. His mom might say he had his moments, but she'd also say that Danny was the sweetest boy on earth. His presence was impossible to ignore. He was gentle, kind and giving. He was giving of his time with others; always helping out a friend, helping his mom with one of her many projects, hanging with his nephew, River, who he could make full on belly laugh at any time. Danny loved spending time with his family. He was loving and he was real. He would call anyone out on their bullshit, but then take the time to help them figure it out. While the rest of us had so much to whine about, Danny was always the optimistic one.

Danny loved all things outdoors. He played baseball his whole life and went on to play at Ferris State University. He golfed, he loved playing volleyball on the beach. Danny had a rare and enthusiastic appreciation for the outdoors. He was a fisherman and a hunter. Even in the cold Michigan winter he loved being outside, skiing, snow shoeing and playing hockey.

His incredible spirit will live on through his family and many friends. His parents, through Amy and Eddie, through River. His cousins, Calvin, Sarah, Andrew, Dalton, Reed, Brent and Evan.

His heart reached so many, he and his bear hugs will be greatly missed.

Rest easy, Danny Boy.

Consumers Energy, Nestto provide free thermostats to Michigan households

Consumers Energy will provide 10,000 thermostats to income-qualified Michigan residents over the next three years, part of a new initiative with Nest to provide immediate assistance to those in need.

Consumers Energy is the only Michigan energy provider to work with Nest in The Power Project, a commitment announced this Earth Day to make 1 million thermostats available to families across the U.S. Consumers Energy will install 10,000 free thermostats through its energy efficiency income-qualified programs over the next three years.

In addition, people can help their neighbors in need this month through The Power Project, sponsored by Nest. Nest will donate 10 percent of the proceeds from sales of its thermostats through Consumers Energy's online store, www.ConsumersEnergyStore.com, through April 30 to nonprofits that help people with their energy bills.

"Our commitment to world-class performance, delivering hometown service, means we're focused on providing energy solutions for every household we serve, especially those who need it most," said Patti Poppe, Consumers Energy's president and chief executive officer.

"We're excited to be Nest's partner in Michigan to make a difference in so many people's lives," Poppe said. "We want to be part of the solution to help our friends, family and neighbors to reduce energy waste and lower their monthly energy bills."

The average household nationwide spends less than 4 percent of its budget on energy costs, but those costs can pose a challenge for low-income families. As many as one in five households spends at least 20 percent of its budget on energy bills. Learn more at www.nest.com/powerproject.

"Creating a home that takes care of the people inside it and the world around it has been Nest's mission since day one," said Jeff Hamel, head of energy partnerships at Nest. "We've joined with Habitat for Humanity, Fannie Mae and energy providers across the country this Earth Day to bring this mission to life through The Power Project, to connect families with the tools and programs that can help alleviate the burden of high energy costs. Every family deserves to have heat in the cold and light in the dark."

"We want to take action. Providing free thermostats will help households take control of their energy costs, leaving money for other essential needs," Poppe said. "We want to raise awareness and turn households on to the programs we already offer that lower monthly energy bills."

Program highlights:
- FREE THERMOSTATS: Consumers Energy will provide thermostats to 10,000 income-eligible families over the next three years. To learn more or see if you qualify, do the following: Go to www.ConsumersEnergy.com/myhome. Click "Energy Assessments," then click "Helping Neighbors."

Or call 877-448-9433.
- PROCEEDS FOR NON-PROFITS: Ten percent of proceeds from sales of Nest thermostats at www.ConsumersEnergyStore.com will go to nonprofit organizations.

- HELP IS AVAILABLE: Anyone having trouble paying their bill to call 2-1-1. Or go to www.ConsumersEnergy.com/assistance to learn more about available help.

Consumers Energy has helped thousands of Michigan families through its Helping Neighbors program, which helps lower monthly bills by increasing the energy efficiency of homes. Helping Neighbors conducts free home energy assessments, installs energy-saving measures and provides information about how households can take additional steps.

DAVE Says

Dave Ramsey

(Why not short-term disability?)

DEAR DAVE,

Why don't you recommend having short-term disability insurance while doing the first three Baby Steps of your plan? It seems like a good time for it, when you're in the beginning stages of getting your finances in order.

Bob

DEAR BOB,

You could certainly do that if you want, possibly even through your place of employment. I'm a big fan of folks having long-term disability insurance when they're in their prime wage-earning years. But short-term disability is something I've always considered to be gimmick insurance, and that's something I don't recommend or buy.

I get the argument, too, that short-term disability coverage usually isn't very expensive. But during the first two Baby Steps — getting a $1,000 beginner emergency fund set aside, and paying off everything but the house — you're trying to limit expenses as much as possible. Chances are you wouldn't need it in Baby Step 3, because that covers your full emergency fund of three to six months of expenses.

Hope that helps, Bob!
 —Dave

(Low vs. No)

DEAR DAVE,

My husband and I are trying to buy a house, but we both have low credit scores, so we're having trouble securing a loan. We've heard you talk about getting a mortgage loan with no credit score. Is this the same as a low credit score?

Laura

DEAR LAURA,

No, it is not. No credit score, means you don't have any credit or your credit score is "indeterminable." A low credit score indicates you've had — or still have — debt in your life, and you haven't done a good job of paying creditors on time.

Two things will help solve the problem of having a low credit score. One is time. If you've had instances of late payments from years ago, time will help heal that to a degree. The older late issues become, the less they count against you.

But my guess is you two probably have some bad debt. By bad debt, I mean things that were never paid, or accounts that are in collections. If that's the case, you need to contact those people, and settle those debts in full — and in writing — as quickly as possible. Officially close the accounts, too, before you try to buy a home.

When it comes to buying a home, Laura, I always advise folks to first be debt-free and have an emergency fund of three to six months of expenses set aside.

—Dave

(Access to my checking account?)

DEAR DAVE,

Will paying my taxes online give the government electronic access to my checking account?

Ashley

DEAR ASHLEY,

If you use your checking account, of course they will have the ability to withdraw that money from your account. I believe I know where you're going with this question, and I think you may be a little confused about my stance on this sort of thing.

There's nothing wrong with certain entities having access to your checking account. I use electronic bill pay for utilities, mutual fund contributions, and things like that all the time. The only time I warn people against giving electronic access to their bank accounts is when they're dealing with collectors over a bad debt. The government — even the IRS — isn't known for coming in and randomly taking money out of people's accounts. Collectors, on the other hand, do it all the time.

You're in a fight when you're dealing with a debt collector. It's an adversarial relationship. As a rule, no one in that industry should ever be given electronic access to any of your accounts. There may be a few decent debt collection companies out there, but many of them will lie, cheat, and steal to get your money.

I hope that clears things up, Ashley.
 —Dave

(Many already know)

DEAR DAVE,

How can I convince my fellow millennials that government isn't the solution to their problems?

Josh

DEAR JOSH,

I think you're proceeding from a false assumption. Many millennials already understand it's not the government's job to take care of everyone and provide everything. The problem, I think, is there's a group of people in every generation that wants someone else to take care of them.

The only thing I can suggest is that you try to be kind to everyone. It does no good to have a political discussion with a political neophyte. If you have friends like this, perhaps you could suggest they work to control and improve the variables in their lives they can actually control and make better — namely themselves.

You can't control the variable of government, Josh. It's not going to come to your rescue. It never has.

East Jordan State of the Community Luncheon

By Tina Sundelius

EAST JORDAN—East Jordan is heading in the right direction and its future is bright was the message members of the community walked away with after hearing four keynote speakers discuss the status of the city, schools, and DDA at East Jordan's State of the Community Luncheon Tuesday, November 11.

An air of optimism filled the Harvest Barn hall as 26 East Jordan High School seniors and other members of the community listened intently to Mayor Russell Peck whose speech focused on the challenges and infrastructure improvements that still lie ahead for the city. "All in all things are looking up, we're heading in the right direction. Together we will position our community for a resilient and sustainable future. Indeed, East Jordan's future is bright," he concluded.

Peck not only talked about all that the city has accomplished but emphasized the infrastructure improvements needed to accommodate new growth. "We are very optimistic about the future of our community and that optimism comes from the exciting new direction we have been heading," he said. He cited the city's sewer system that is already operating at 86% capacity, sidewalks, and sea-pilings to be installed at the southwest side of the harbor next to the bridge intended to stop silt from filling the harbor (construction to begin in December) as projects that will further enable the city to grow. He mentioned the new well house (already up and running), the now open 24/7 recycling center and the $12,000 Kayak facility in the park which he stated presently "looks like an art project." "We are developing the kind of community we have envisioned for future generations. There is a positive beat energy," he said.

DDA Chairman Tom Teske, Entrepreneur Director with the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance Tom Erhart, Chamber of Commerce Director Mary Fac-Stevenson addressed an audience of community leaders at the third annual State of the Community Address Tuesday, November 11. "East Jordan's future is bright," said Peck.

Schmidt co-sponsors resolution opposing fees on canoes, kayaks

LANSING — Last week State Sen. Wayne Schmidt co-sponsored a resolution formally opposing a recent Michigan State Waterways Commission (MSWC) recommendation that canoes, kayaks and other paddle vessels be subject to state registration fees.

State Senator Wayne Schmidt

“Canoeing, kayaking and other watersports are incredibly popular in my district,” said Schmidt, R-Traverse City. “Northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula are home to some of the most beautiful waterways in the world. Enjoying the water is a way of life where I am from and I do not support adding a fee that would hinder both a generations-long tradition and our state’s economy.”

MSWC recently passed Resolution 02-2018-01, which recommended the Legislature pursue an effort to require the registration, with a new fee, of all rigid-hulled kayaks, canoes and paddleboards eight feet or longer. Such vessels are currently exempt from registration fees when used recreationally.

Senate Resolution 153 would formally oppose this recommendation.

“Currently, most vessel registration fees go toward lake patrols and launch maintenance,” Schmidt said. “The problem is those who enjoy canoeing and kayaking often prefer rivers or streams to lakes, and state recreation passports already pay to maintain state launch sites. This means those who prefer canoeing or kayaking will see little, if any, benefit from a registration fee.”

Schmidt also added that a registration requirement and fee can only be implemented by legislative approval and that the MSWC has no authority to impose registration fees on residents. The senator went on to say he vows to fight any effort that comes up in the Legislature.

“I will not support any sort of registration or fee increase for canoes or kayaks,” Schmidt said. “I think imposing an additional cost on people who want to enjoy the outdoors, get some exercise and take in our state’s beauty is counterproductive in many ways. We should be encouraging people to travel, to give a small boost to a local economy and to enjoy what Pure Michigan has to offer.”

SR 153 has been referred to the Senate Committee on Outdoor Recreation and Tourism.

With the utmost hometown pride Gaylord Chamber of Commerce and Alpenfest® Board is thrilled to announce that Lauren Duski will be “Following Her Heart Home” to headline the Alpenfest Main Stage Friday, July 13th for a free concert.

Lauren was the runner-up of NBC’s season 12 “The Voice” last year. Since that time she has had opportunities to open for both Blake Shelton and Maroon 5. Her debut CD is due to be released before the festival and Alpenfest attendees will be among the first to hear her perform live with a full band accompanying her.

Being a music enthusiast from a very young age Duski practiced piano, guitar, and singing. Her talent provided performance opportunities to open for local country acts as she traveled around the state. Despite her newfound musical success, Duski went on to attend the University of Michigan following in her parents’ footsteps, to become a dentist.

Upon graduating she decided to give her love of music one more shot as a career, and moved to Nashville. She was asked to audition for The Voice and utes and 54 seconds. It was the 122nd year the Boston Marathon was run.

It was a feat that even 34-year-old Linden, a two-time Olympic marathon runner, didn’t think she could muster from the get-go. The freezing rain and blustery high winds were almost enough to make her scrub the mission in just the first few miles.

“At six miles, I was thinking, ‘No way, this is not my day,’ she recalled, “My hands were freezing...It was comical how slow you were going and how far you still had to go.”

But despite chilly temperatures in the mid-30s and winds gusting more than 30 mph, Linden stuck it out and beat both the weather and the rest of the field, becoming the first woman from the United States to win since Lisa Larsen Weidenbach won the Boston Marathon back in 1985.

“You break the tape and you’re like, ‘This is not what I expected today,’” she said.

Linden, who represented the United States in the 2012 London Olympics and the 2016 Rio de Janeiro Olympics, took home a $150,000 award as this year’s first place women’s Boston Marathon winner.

Yuki Kawachi of Japan took first in the men’s race with a winning time of 2 hours, 15 minutes and 58 seconds.

The Boston Marathon was first held in 1897 and is open to both professional and amateur athletes. Regardless of unpredictable spring-time northeastern weather, the event is always held on Patriot’s Day, which is the third Monday in April. The 26 mile-long course is mapped through winding roads and across hilly terrain and attracts some 500,000 spectators annually, ranking it as New England’s most widely-viewed sporting event.

Tobacco Quitline offering free nicotine patches, gum or lozenges

Thinking about quitting tobacco? The Michigan Department of Health and Human Services (MDHHS) is expanding its telephone coaching and nicotine replacement therapy (NRT) program to all Michigan residents through May 31.

During this time, the Michigan Tobacco Quitline will offer a free, two-week supply of nicotine gum, patches or lozenges for all new enrollees who want to quit smoking or chewing tobacco. Tobacco users who would like to quit may call the Quitline phone number at 800-QUIT-NOW (800-784-8669). Enrollment is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The Quitline serves all ages, however, callers seeking NRT must be over 18 and meet basic health requirements. Enrollees will receive a coach who will assist them in setting a quit date, choosing a nicotine replacement product that is right for them and making an individualized quit plan. The coach will provide support with up to four telephone coaching sessions scheduled around the caller’s quit date.

“Callers using NRT along with coaching, such as through a telephone-based service like 800-QUIT-NOW, can increase their chances of becoming smoke-free by five times the rate of someone quitting cold turkey,” said Dr. Eden Wells, MDHHS chief medical executive. “Providing access to free NRT during this promotion might just be the jump start someone needs to quitting smoking tobacco for good.”

The Michigan Tobacco Quitline is an evidence-based service providing free telephone coaching for the uninsured, pregnant women, residents enrolled in Medicaid and Medicare, veterans, cancer patients and American Indians. More than 100,000 calls have been received since the service was launched in October 2003.

The Quitline offers English, Arabic and Spanish-speaking counselors, as well as interpretive services for a wide variety of languages. For more information about the Quitline, call 800-QUIT-NOW or visit Michigan.gov/tobacco.

For more information about quitting tobacco, contact the Health Department of Northwest Michigan at 1-800-432-4121.

maximum penalty of four years in prison.

The charges stem from a March 16 incident during which Jett showed up at McLaren Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey with what were described as “superficial/non-life threatening wounds” that he claimed he suffered after being stabbed that morning in an alley in downtown Petoskey.

Jett told police that around 10 a.m. that day he had arranged to meet a male acquaintance in the alley behind Leo’s bar in downtown Petoskey to buy $100 worth of marijuana. However, when he gave the man his money, the man did not hand over the marijuana and instead walked away. Jett said he then grabbed the man’s coat to stop him when the man turned and stabbed him and then fled.

Police conducted a photo line-up with Jett in which he identified 28-year-old Justin Odle, then of Boyne Falls, as his assailant. Odle was arrested and spent a week in Emmet County Jail, and at the time was facing possible life in prison for allegedly stabbing Jett and related charges.

Odle vehemently denied any involvement in the crime and Emmet County Sheriff’s department detectives eventually retrieved video surveillance and witness statements to corroborate his alibi and placing him at a motel far from the crime scene at the time of the stabbing. Odle was released from jail late last month and all charges against him were dropped.

Odle told the Charlevoix County News that he had never even met Jett before and still has no idea why he randomly singled him out as his alleged assailant. He said he is furthermore puzzled as to why he was implicated by Petoskey police with their including his image in the photo line-up they showed Jett during their initial investigation. Odle has since moved from Boyne Falls to Levering and said he plans to pursue legal action for his false arrest.

Jett is scheduled for sentencing in Emmet County’s 57th Circuit Court on May 22.

Buff Up Boyne Event

May 5, 9am-Noon. The community clean-up event is organized every year by the Boyne City Main Street Program and it will start in Sunset Park, behind the Chamber building. Doughnuts will be provided in the morning, courtesy of Family Fare, and a hot dog cookout will round out the morning, courtesy of Todd Meier and Dearborn Sausage. Volunteers are asked to bring their own tools, such as brooms, rakes, shovels and gloves. Some supplies will be available to borrow.

The City will begin its weekly residential rubbish collection program starting on May 23. This collection will serve all three unit or less residential properties in the City. It does not serve commercial properties.

Main Street and the areas South of Main Street: Pick-up service will begin on Wednesday May 23. Items for collection should be placed out after 5 p.m. on Tuesdays and before 7 a.m. Wednesdays. See schedule below for dates of collection.

North of Main Street: Pick-up service will begin on Thursday, May 24. Items for this collection should be placed out after 5 p.m. on Wednesday and before 7 a.m. Thursday. See schedule below for dates of collection.

Main Street and the area south of Main Street: Pick-up dates are; May 23 & 30, June 6, August 22 & 29 and September 5.

North of Main Street;

Pick-up dates are; May 24 & 31, June 7, August 23 & 30 and September 6.

This program is in addition to, not a replacement of, your existing residential household garbage collection. It is still your responsibility to properly dispose of your garbage separately.

Permitted Materials include:

- Furniture and household furnishing, such as sofas, chairs, mattresses, tables, lamps, floor coverings, and carpeting (carpeting must be rolled and secured in diameters of no greater than two feet and in lengths of no greater than four feet)

- Appliances, such as, but not limited to, stoves, refrigerators, freezers, washers, dryers, hot water heaters, air conditioners, vacuum cleaners and dehumidifiers (Freon must be removed from all refrigerators, air conditioners, freezers and dehumidifiers by a licensed contractor and removal certifications must be attached)

- Toys, bicycles, sporting goods, hoses and outdoor furniture

- Clothing and similar materials

- Remodeling and construction debris generated by the resident; roofing shingles must be placed within containers weighing less than 50 pounds

- Boards up to four feet in length and secured in bundles

- No televisions, computers or microwave ovens will be picked up

The total volume of all items is limited to two cubic yards per week (the volume of a short bed truck). Do not put any items in any dark plastic garbage bags, as they will not be picked up

Material excluded from collection:

- Household garbage (residents must make arrangements with private refuse-disposal firms)

- Any item that will be accepted for recycling such as newspapers, magazines, cardboard, plastic, glass, etc. (The recycling drop off point is located in the rear of the Road Commission building on Boyne Avenue) visit www.charlevoixcounty.org/recycling.asp for information on what is accepted.

- Scrap metal (these items should be recycled)

- Trees, brush and grass clippings (these items may be dropped off at North Boyne, at the end of Robinson Street, but commercial contractors are excluded from using this drop off area unless they have paid the commercial fee)
- Vehicle parts

- Manufacturing or trade wastes

- Remodeling and construction debris not generated by the resident

- Earth and sod (can be taken up to North Boyne compost pile)

- Rocks and concrete

- Containers weighing more than 50 pounds (except for furniture and appliances)

- Tires and electronics including televisions, computers and microwave ovens. Hazardous products, such as paints, chemicals, solvents, motor oil, and batteries (visit www.charlevoixcounty.org/recycling.asp for household hazardous dates and information, or watch for flyers for the dates and locations)

Materials must originate from the residence, and not from elsewhere or from residents' contractors. Materials for collection must be placed within the curb-lawn areas of right of way - that is between curbs and sidewalks; or just behind curbs where there are no sidewalks; or at street shoulders where there are no curbs.

The total volume of all items that may be placed out for collection per house each week is limited to two cubic yards (think of filling an area the size of a short bed pickup truck). Because this program is not limited to 1 week, you have plenty of time to have your items collected and do not have to have them all out for the first collection or all at once. Please do not place materials out at the street for collection before 5pm the day before your pick-up. In addition, the pick-up will start at 7am so have any items out by then.

Television's Dr. Oz and Cleveland Clinic's Dr. Roizen report on health, wellness and quality of life.

Don't veg out, veg big

The last time you couldn't remember where you put your keys, did you wish you had a photographic memory? Well, not everybody is cut out to be a Brad Williams. A Wisconsin native, Brad is an award-winning journalist and radio personality who was the subject of his brother's documentary, "Unforgettable," because of his uncanny ability to remember most everything. He possesses a highly superior autobiographical memory, otherwise known as hyperthemia.

But for those of you who simply would like to improve your memory (the keys are on the dishwasher!) and keep your cognitive powers as sharp as possible, a study — across 10 different countries where folks eat various diets — may show you a simple solution. Eat a plant-based diet, starting at as young an age as you can.

Researchers, writing in the Journal of the American College of Nutrition, found that "the most important dietary link to Alzheimer's disease appears to be meat consumption, with eggs and high-fat dairy also contributing."

So, to protect your brain and heart while slashing your risk of dementia, eat plenty of whole grains, legumes and fresh produce — foods packed with polyphenols that help reduce inflammation. Add a healthy exercise routine of 10,000 steps a day or the equivalent. And if you want to give Brad Williams a run for his money, rev up your cognitive processing skills with a brain-training game. One option is the game Double Decision from BrainHQ. You can try it at no charge and then decide if you want to be a gamer.

Bariatric surgery for obese adolescents

In 1929, producer Hal Roach and director Robert McGowan had to hold a nationwide audition to find an obese child to play Chubby in the new sound version of "Our Gang." They eventually signed 12-year-old Norman Chaney — who was 3 feet, 11 inches tall and weighed 113 pounds — to a two-year contract.

Today you wouldn't have to look that hard to find an overweight child. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 20 percent of school-age children are obese. That's triple the number since 1970. The number of obese children with Type 2 diabetes also has skyrocketed. That prompted researchers at Boston's Joslin Diabetes Center to explore whether bariatric surgery had helped obese adolescents with Type 2 diabetes.

They found that compared with obese kids who only took medications (metformin and/or insulin), gastric bypass surgery did a better job of lowering blood glucose levels, led to greater weight loss and helped normalize cholesterol and blood pressure levels. Those who underwent surgical intervention also showed significant improvements in kidney function and cardiovascular disease risk factors. (By the way, Norman Chaney died at age 21 from myocarditis — inflammation of the heart).

Seems for obese kids under age 19, bariatric surgery might be a life-saver. True, we don't have long-term follow-up of these adolescents, but results show promise in helping them achieve enduring lifestyle changes. Consult your doctor, and remember that bariatric surgery is only effective when combined with lifestyle changes, including regular exercise and switching to a nutritious diet without added sugars and syrups, all trans and most saturated fats and all processed grains.

How and why to lower your resting heart rate

In 2014, former physical-training instructor Daniel Green was in for a shock when, at age 81, he went to his doctor in Sussex. His resting heart rate was 36 beats per minute. The doc took it again, and it was down to 26 BPM, one beat lower than the all-time low entered in the Guinness World Records. Green credits walking an hour every morning, using the elliptical regularly and lifting weights.

While you don't need to bring your BPM down to one beat every three seconds, if you have a high resting heart rate, it's a good idea to lower it.

One study of men ages 40 to 59 found that an RHR of 81 to 90 (as opposed to an RHR of 65 to 80) doubled the chance of death over the course of the 16-year study, while an RHR higher than 90 tripled it. A high RHR also increased the chance of heart attack, and recent studies have found that elevated RHR is associated with an increased risk of death in patients with colorectal, pancreatic and non-small cell lung cancer, as well as being predictive of colon cancer recurrence.

Ask your doc what your ideal RHR is based on your age and gender. If you need to bring it down, try the following: 10 minutes of mindful meditation daily; stay well-hydrated; limit alcohol intake (seven drinks weekly for women, 14 for men); shoot for at least 150 minutes of exercise a week; take 10,000 steps a day; and get seven to nine hours of sleep nightly.

One bite may be one too many

After nipping Italy's Giorgio Chiellini at the World Cup in 2014, Luis Suarez, aka the biting soccer player, was given a last chance to behave decently when Team Barcelona picked him up after his ban from the sport (it was Luis's third offense).

We certainly hope it's not as tough for you to learn that a bad bite can threaten your well-being!

A new study published in Nature shows that downing one high-fat milkshake made with whole milk, heavy whipping cream and ice cream can cause remodeling of red blood cells so that the 25 trillion of them in your body become small, spiky barbs and you have increased levels of an enzyme that damages blood vessels and increases inflammation. Plus, white blood cells that scavenge damaged red blood cells become bloated, and your plasma becomes thick, off-color and filled with lipids. Quickly, that may destabilize plaque and cause a heart attack or stroke. From just one serving!

Eating high-fat meals day after day, as many folks do, changes the temporary assault on your arteries to a chronic attack, risking cardiovascular problems like heart attack and stroke, impotence and wrinkles.

Seems Barcelona may be your best and last chance to get it right, too. The Mediterranean diet, with small portions of fish, minimal meats and a focus on fruits and veggies, whole grains and heart-loving odd omega-3 and omega-9 fatty acids in olive oil and nuts keeps RBCs healthy. Then you'll enjoy a long, healthy life — along with smoother skin and a better love life!

The plea agreement involved a reduction from the original charge of Criminal Sexual Conduct, First Degree. Charlevoix County Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Caitlin Borchard, who prosecuted the case, told the court at sentencing that the plea offer was made out of concern for the victim and not putting her through any greater stress or anxiety.

Borchard stated that the child considered Thelen a "friend" and that he preyed ago. His wife, Emily, described him as a "caring, compassionate and gentle man" and "amazing dad" to their 1-year-old daughter, Violet Lottie.

upon her by removing other children from the room, closing the blinds and door before he assaulted her. She also indicated that Thelen had been observing child sexually abusive material for years prior to the assault.

In sentencing the defendant, Hayes noted that sexual assaults upon children are "evil acts" and "regularly cause lifelong damage to the victims." Hayes sentenced Thelen to the maximum under the sentencing guidelines for the case.
