High school building still on schedule

BY HAZEL BLAIR

EAST JORDAN - Construction on East Jordan High School, the city's first new school in 22 years, is still on schedule and within the proposed budget, according to School Superintendent Mel Rullman.

"We still plan to have it ready for classes next September," Rullman said last week. "Of course that's barring unforeseen problems such as a severe early winter or a long strike."

Rullman said the biggest job right now is to get the walls up. He is confident this can be done in normal winter weather. Getting the roof on is crucial so contractors can work inside.

Steel construction on the $2.5 million project is expected to be finished this week, Rullman said.

The school will have a capacity of 450 students. Since present high school enrollment is 425, this may seem like there is little room for growth.

But, Rullman points out, when the current high school classes graduate, they will be replaced by smaller-sized classes.

"We are not building for a large enrollment increase, but we do expect a slight increase in the future because of the new school itself, people from downstate moving north, the new medical center and," he added, "because it's a nice community."

There have been a few minor problems with the project. A brick delivery to be made by a trucking company had to be brought in by rail. This resulted in a 2 day delay for the masons.

Kitchen equipment funding from the state is now a problem, Rullman says. The state would like the school district to have one central kitchen and truck food to the other buildings.

School administrators are still trying to obtain state reimbursement for the equipment. "Even if we don't get it, we still have one kitchen so we can continue to serve hot lunches," Rullman said.

The focal point of the school will be the media center, which will be located in the center of the classrooms. In this way it becomes an extension of the classroom. Classrooms will have movable walls so teachers can coordinate with the media center.

"In today's world you have to know how to use a library. So the emphasis in education is to have students learn how to use it to obtain the information they need," Rullman said.

The architects met with each teacher to find out what they wanted in the library. For the most part, their wishes were incorporated in the plans, he said.

The new auto shop will be larger than the present one and wood and metal shops will be added. A folding partition between the cafeteria and auditorium area stage area will allow more space for community activities.

Rullman pointed out that a number of local contractors are helping to build the school.

Tom Wiltjer, Wilson, Wilson and Mayhew, Leon Bartlett, Bud Pardee, Jim Petrie, and C.H. Smith are working at the site.

Rullman estimates that approximately 50 to 60 local people are involved in the building project.

More bricklayers are needed and Rullman says the school would like to hire Charlevoix County residents for the job. "A lot of this money is kept in the county by hiring area workers."

In an effort to get the building completed on time, "The architects and contractors really had to scramble," Rullman said.

"I think the quality is there," he added. "Our people are getting a good return for their tax dollar."

A construction worker climbs the rafters of the future East Jordan High School. Plans call for the walls and roof to be built before winter sets in. The new school will be ready for classes next fall, school officials say.

'I'd give them everything I had'

BY HAZEL BLAIR

EAST JORDAN - "All I could think of was that Bob's got a family, and that his Bronco might blow up. I had to get him out," Bill Reid says.

Reid was behind the car driven by school teacher Bob Snyder Nov. 4 when Snyder attempted to pass another car. Reid says that it looked like Snyder didn't have room to pass the car so he tried to go around it on the shoulder of the road. Snyder lost control of the vehicle and hit a tree.

"The engine caught on fire right after he hit," then it flipped," Reid said. Disregarding his own safety, Reid kicked out the windows, freed Snyder's leg and pulled him to safety.

"I was really scared but I just reacted." Reid says he's been in a "couple of accidents myself." In one he went through the windshield.

He wouldn't hesitate to help someone again, either. "If I see somebody that needs help, I'd give them everything I had. I expect them to do the same for me."

When Sheriff Lasater called him two weeks ago, Reid thought he was in trouble. "It's not very often that the sheriff calls me. I had no idea what he wanted."

Reid, 21, was named citizen of the month by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department for his act of heroism. "I'm very honored to get this award. In fact I'm tickled to death."

Snyder, who was Reid's basketball coach in school, is still his buddy, he says.

Snyder says he doesn't remember much until he was out of the car. "I was sure happy he was behind me. He's just the kind of person you'd want there at a time like that. He told me he was nervous and scared, but he sure kept his cool and did the job."

Snyder is recovering at home after being released from Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Safety hazard-- Trees must go

EAST JORDAN - Eight large poplar trees on Water Street will be cut down sometime after January 1, the City Council decided at its November 15 meeting. City Superintendent Herman Rasch made the request because the height of the trees and their closeness to power lines pose a potential safety hazard. The trees are on city owned property.

In other action the council: -Appointed Ralph Van Tielen, an industrial engineer with IIT, to the Planning and Zoning Commission.

-Granted a special use permit to Van Tielen for 301 Bridge St. where his wife will operate a beauty shop. Van Tielen presented signatures from people of the neighborhood to show there were no objections to the shop.

-Accepted, with regret, the resignation of Bill Shaw from the Planning and Zoning Commission.

-Set a special meeting for November 29 for the council and Planning and Zoning Commission to try to reach a decision on the rezoning request from Mrs. Stelvio Padula. Mrs. Padula wants her property near Sunset Hill Cemetery rezoned from R-1 to R-3, residential to construct a 72 unit apartment complex for senior citizens and handicapped people. The meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. in city hall.

New Press dropoff point in East Jordan

The new East Jordan drop-off point for the Charlevoix County Press will be Virginia Giacomelli's home at 215 N. Lake St., two blocks north of the intersection of M-66 and M-32.

There will be a box near the street for the drop-off.

Higher tax bills coming

Winter tax bills will come out Dec. 1. According to East Jordan Superintendent Mel Rullman, the average property owner can expect a 20 percent increase on these bills, because of the increased millage voted to finance the new school.

"It would be an understatement to say that people resent paying taxes," Rullman said. "I want people to be alerted to this increase and to expect it."

Rullman acknowledged that some people criticize the schools and wonder if a new high school is needed. "We haven't built any new schools in a long time and it will hurt for a couple of years," he said.

These taxes are used locally, he said, and "Taxpayers owe it to themselves to come up and look at the construction site. It's theirs. They can see something happening in their school system."

The school board had promised the tax increase would not exceed 7 mills. Rullman said the board has kept its word. The increase will be 6 mills.

Board needs members

The East Jordan Planning & Zoning Commission needs four more members. Only city residents are eligible. It is a non-paying position.

The commission studies requests for rezoning and variances to decide how they will affect the town, then make recommendations to the city council. They are currently working on a master plan for the city.

"It's a job that needs doing and needs dedicated people to do it," said City Clerk, Fern Morris. "What we do today is going to affect tomorrow."

Anyone interested in serving the community may call the clerk-treasurer's office, 536-7861, Mayor Meredith, 536-9406, or contact the councilperson from their ward.

Fitness is concern of senior center

Nobody is too old for physical fitness. Of course, few 80 years olds can still play tackle football, but that doesn't mean they can't stay in shape. Now a Michigan woman has developed an exercise program for senior citizens which is now provided by the Charlevoix County Senior Center.

Sitcal Fitness which, which was designed primarily for circulation stimulation, is far removed from gymnastics. The exercises are done slowly with, for example, arm and leg movements alternating to allow a rest period the part not in use.

Center Director Dorothy Pelton met Ella Smith, who designed the program, at a workshop in Flint. "She has one crippled leg," Mrs. Pelton says, "so I decided if she could do them, we could try it here."

Mrs. Pelton then asked Rosa Young from the Petoskey Mental Health Clinic to co-ordinate the program in East Jordan. The twice monthly classes have 25 members.

"The majority of the people that tried it really enjoyed the exercises," Mrs. Pelton says.

According to Mrs. Pelton, it has been proven that exercise is necessary for everyone. "If someone has arthritis, rather than just sitting, they should be exercising those muscles or someday they just won't be able to use them. We're making every effort to keep these people ambulatory, out of nursing homes and keep them up and around."

"I think the class is just great," says Lila Miller, of East Jordan. "It's very easy. Even the older ladies could do it. Some people had trouble touching their toes, but in time they'll be able to. I've even been doing a few of the exercises at home."

EJ grocery robbed

EAST JORDAN - Bob and Jean's grocery store on Main St. was broken into between 1 a.m. and 6 p.m. on Wednesday November 16. Police Officer Robert Matheny said that $600 in cash and change was reported stolen.

The police department has a suspect and the robbery is still under investigation.

Big crowd on hand for dinner

EAST JORDAN - Nearly 200 people attended the Annual Victory banquet Saturday, November 19, at the Missionary Church.

Following a meal served by the church youth, winners of October's Rally Month contests were given their awards.

A special plaque presentation was made to Ruth Moore, Christian education director, by Pastor Dale Turner. The church won a recent contest with the Roseville Missionary Church for highest Sunday School attendance.

Merilyn Brownell served as chairman of the banquet committee.

Years of experience

New owners for Press

With their extensive backgrounds in journalism and advertising, George Colburn and Paul Marcus bring years of experience to their roles as the new publishers of the Charlevoix County Press.

The two Michigan natives have both been long-time visitors to Charlevoix County. Colburn owns a home near Walloon Lake.

"Quite frankly, after having bought land in Charlevoix County and building a home here, I've become quite attached to the area," Colburn said. "And I've spent most of my life in journalism, so when I learned the paper was for sale, I pursued the purchase."

"What I've done is to fulfill the dream of most journalists, to have their own newspaper."

Paul Marcus expressed a similar view of the community, saying, "I've been attracted to this area from a very early age." Marcus said, "I've spent many years skiing and summering in Charlevoix County. Buying the paper is an incentive to make a commitment to the area."

The two new publishers met several years ago in East Lansing, where both attended Michigan State University. Colburn, 39, earned a Ph.D. in history from MSU and also worked for the East Lansing Towne Courier, winning a nomination for the Pulitzer Prize, journalism's highest award.

The Detroit native has been an editor of three other weekly newspapers and is currently Project Director of Courses By Newspaper, a national newspaper education program based in San Diego.

Paul Marcus, 30, grew up in Whitehall, Michigan, and is currently an advertising executive with Benton and Bowles of New York. He has worked with advertising agencies in East Lansing and Chicago and also for WILX-TV in Lansing.

Both publishers have set high goals for the paper. "We feel that a complete newspaper is a combination of good news coverage and effective advertising," Marcus said.

"I intend to be in the area on a regular basis to see that this goal is carried out."

Colburn said he intends to "provide the community with the best newspaper possible. I see this as a great opportunity to practice some journalistic techniques designed to improve the quality of newspapers."

"I'm going to devote myself to using whatever methods are necessary to produce one of the best weekly newspapers in the country for this area."

George Colburn, center, and Paul Marcus, right, hang their new sign as Frank Noverr of Gregg Publications looks on. Colburn and Marcus have bought the paper from Noverr and have opened an office at 210 S. Lake. Noverr retains the remaining assets of Gregg Publications. The new Press phone number is 582-6761.

Free Classified Ads!

Christmas is here early for readers of the new Charlevoix County Press. From now until Jan. 1, the Press is providing FREE non-business classified ads. It's our way of saying hello to the community.

Here's how it works: Each reader is allowed one three-line classified per week until the end of the year. Place your ad by coming to the new Press office at 210 S. Lake Street or by calling 582-6761 between 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Deadline is noon Monday for publication the following Thursday.

Free classifieds are just one of the many new features the Press will be offering. Turn to page five and you will see our first installment of Doonesbury, the irreverent, tongue-in-cheek cartoon strip.

Another new feature on our editorial pages will be a series on the Great Lakes developed by the University of Wisconsin. The writing is entertaining and informative, so we hope you make use of this opportunity to learn something about the inland seas that surround us here in northern Michigan.

One of the most famous people ever to live in Charlevoix County was Ernest Hemingway, the great writer who spent the summers of his youth at Walloon Lake and did some of his earliest serious writing there. Northern Michigan figures prominently in much of Hemingway's work.

In honor of Hemingway and to encourage good writing about our area, the new Charlevoix County Press is sponsoring a writing contest. The categories will be short stories, essays and poetry, and all entries must reflect some aspect of northern Michigan.

A panel of distinguished college professors, all of whom have lived in Michigan, will judge the entries.

The best work will be published in special literary supplements in the Press. The first special writing section will appear in the spring, so all you aspiring Hemingways should put your thinking caps on.

The Press staff will be constantly thinking of ways to upgrade the quality of your paper, so look for more changes and new features in the coming months.

A long tradition-service through news

The paper you are reading is the beginning of a new era for Charlevoix County's oldest industry, its newspaper.

There have been several mergers and name changes, but today's Press is a direct descendant of a newspaper tradition that began in 1881, when Boyne City was a seven-year-old frontier town.

Boyne City's first newspaper, a four-page tabloid called "The Standard," was founded by William Mears, a leading civic figure of his day. In 1883 he sold to Phillip A. Badour, who changed the name to "The Statesman" and opened an office at the corner of River and Lake Streets, near the Boyne River.

Three years later the paper was sold to the partnership of Miley and Chapin, who kept the paper only two years but made one important change - calling the paper the Boyne Citizen, a name it was to keep until 1968.

In 1902 G.A. Lisk founded East Jordan's paper, called the Charlevoix County Herald. The paper changed hands several times until it was bought in 1952 by Marshall Sayles, who produced the paper for the next 15 years and still writes a column for the Press.

"The moment I got the paper I changed the name to East Jordan News-Herald to get East Jordan on the front page," Sayles said.

"They had never had an East Jordan paper before and it gave them a sense of identity."

In 1960 another pivotal figure in local journalism entered the picture when Gregg Smith bought the Boyne Citizen from Mrs. Guy Baker. Smith and his wife Margaret put in one of northern Michigan's first offset presses and the company expanded rapidly.

The Smiths made a major acquisition in 1967, buying the News-Herald from Marshal Sayles, who started the Michigan Snowmobiler, which he still owns. Gregg Smith, Jr. became editor of the News-Herald, but two years later the Smiths combined the two papers into the Northland Press.

The Smiths changed the name to Charlevoix County Press in 1974. In May of 1977 the Smiths sold Gregg Publications to Frank Noverr.

And then on Nov. 5, 1977, Frank Noverr sold the Charlevoix County Press to George A. Colburn and Paul Marcus.

New CCP staffers will combine energy with experience

The staff of the new Charlevoix County Press is an ideal blend of fresh faces and familiar names.

General Manager Neal Colburn, Managing Editor Joe McElroy and Advertising Director Cindy Paas are the staff's new members. Their enthusiasm will be bolstered by the experience of reporter Hazel Blair, Advertising Representative Ginny Giacomelli, and production assistants Dee McCary and Susie Helms, who all worked for the paper under the former management.

Colburn, 32, is new to journalism but has extensive administrative experience in both business and government.

Prior to returning to his home state of Michigan last summer, Colburn was a mortgage banker in San Francisco. He was also an administrative assistant for the Lansing office of Model Cities, a federal program.

It was through Model Cities and his brother George, the paper's new publisher, that Colburn got his first look at the newspaper world.

"At Model Cities it seemed like I almost lived in the newsroom," Colburn said, "because one of my functions was public information. The pulse of the paper excited me."

A native of Detroit, Colburn earned an English degree at Northern Michigan University and says, "I've always loved northern Michigan because I'm an outdoors person. And it's beautiful here, just overwhelming."

In addition to doing much of the organizational work involved in starting a newspaper, Colburn also designed and did most of the carpentry for the Press' new office at 210 Lake Street. He was assisted by local carpenter Jim Avery.

Managing Editor Joe McElroy, 25, has been doing newspaper work for the past five years. After spending three years on the staff of the student newspaper at Illinois State University, McElroy worked as a reporter for the Islander News, a weekly newspaper in Key Biscayne, Florida. He has also done freelance magazine writing.

"I've been coming up to this area on vacations for a long time and have always liked it here," McElroy said. "I'm surprised and happy that I'm getting a chance to work here."

"We want the Press to be an asset to the community and I want to be an editor who listens to his readers. So when people have suggestions or complaints, I hope they contact me."

Advertising Manager Cindy Paas grew up on a farm near Ann Arbor and graduated from Notre Dame. Paas, 22, most recently worked in the classified advertising department of the Ypsilanti Press.

"My goal is to bring the merchants of our county the most effective and thorough advertising possible," she said. "I firmly believe that newspapers are the most effective form of advertising available."

What makes a good neighbor?
It's the ability to get along with people in the community.
And its concern for the community, a desire to make it a better place to live.
Good newspapers have the same characteristics as good neighbors.
The new management of the Charlevoix County Press, for example, is committed to producing a first-rate community newspaper. This commitment is based on our belief that a local newspaper must know its citizens and know how to get along with them.

Editorial

Like a mirror, a good paper reflects what goes on in front of it, whatever that might be. And like a good neighbor, it doesn't hide or distort things. Good neighbors tell the truth, and so do good papers.
A good newspaper wants to talk WITH residents, not at them. Such communications can be improved and strengthened if readers and advertisers support their community paper. We need your help and support. We hope to merit that support by producing a quality product.
A community newspaper is where you find information about you and your neighbors, about the people and the places you see every day. In addition to descriptions of community activities, the Press plans to offer background, interpretations and informed opinions on all sides of the issues we cover.

In order to have a better idea of what you're thinking, of what you're interested in or what you're curious about, we need your comments and questions. Let us know what is on your mind.
One of our obligations as a good neighbor is to provide information not easily available to the average resident. Provide our editorial staff with ideas and they will follow up. Some of the most interesting newspaper stories develop as a result of such community interest in an issue.
A final note: Even good neighbors sometimes disagree and we expect that the newspaper and some residents will not always see eye-to-eye on an issue. Such disagreements, however, do not undermine a relationship, only define it.
In most cases a "healthy disagreement" leads to a better understanding of your neighbor, especially if the parties involved are willing to talk things through, to listen, and to accept another viewpoint with good will.
Having said all this, let us close by saying we're glad to be here. We hope you will come to recognize us as a good neighbor, an asset in the development of an even better community.

Letter from the publisher

What makes a great newspaper?

The purchase of a newspaper anywhere - small town or big city - is a major news in the community served by that newspaper.
Many residents of the community, particularly those in public positions and those who regularly use the newspaper for advertising purposes, generally want to know who will be making the decisions once a newspaper has come under new ownership. There is also interest in the likelihood of editorial changes by the new management team.
The question that usually doesn't come up when a newspaper changes hands has to do with philosophy. For example, what has motivated the purchase of the newspaper by certain persons? Is it a desire to make money; to go into business for themselves; to settle in a particular area?

living conditions of the residents; to analyze social, political and environmental issues of special concern to the community; to help members of the community, individually and in groups, communicate information to the rest of the community; to investigate rather than describe charges and accusations that affect members of groups within the community; to provide an outlet for the creative talents of the community when they relate to the print medium.
During the past several years, newspapers across the country have experimented with techniques that are designed to serve better the various communities within the total community. Some major newspapers, for example, journalist, as a public official, and as a teacher of journalism. My conclusion is that such experimentation (and the changes that have resulted) does not conflict with the basic goal of good journalism - to cover the news in a community in a complete and balanced manner. It's possible, then, to combine the traditional with the new, and even the fancy, to produce a highly readable and still vital newspaper.

With such thoughts guiding us, Paul Marcus and I decided several months ago that we would attempt to purchase the Charlevoix County Press. Last week, final arrangements were made with Gregg Publications, and this week our attempt to produce an outstanding weekly newspaper is beginning.

many special features that will be offered in these pages during the year.
Many other ideas are under consideration and I will share them with you as decisions are made. However, those of us involved in making decisions at the Charlevoix County Press do not have a monopoly on ideas that will improve your community newspaper. We want to hear from you - formally in the letters column, or informally by telephone, casual conversation on the street or in the coffee shop.
The policies of this newspaper will be evolving over the next months, and probably over the next few years - if we manage to be financially successful.
We can cover the news well and can have a lot of fun promoting and improving our communities, but we can't survive without the support of the residents.

The Charlevoix County Press is selling only one thing - news. If you think we do a good job, we hope we can count on your support. We have no other means of staying in business.

I believe our small staff to be highly motivated and excellently trained to carry out their important responsibilities. As publishers, Paul Marcus and I, with many years of experience in the worlds of journalism and advertising, will be able to assist them in a very practical way.
All of us will be working hard over the next few months to get your attention and win your support for our efforts.
If we are successful, everyone wins - community residents, the newspaper staff, advertisers, public agencies and officials, and a certain idealistic philosophy that needs a boost in the field of journalism.

Let's work together to make the Charlevoix County Press a very special kind of newspaper in our area's very special communities.

have added ombudsmen to write about errors in judgement made by the newspaper; "Op-Ed" pages are now standard in order to provide more informed commentary; editorials are frequently signed; speculative articles are designated as "commentary."

In addition to attempts to increase quality, there have been other attempts to change the focus of newspaper coverage. Such attempts have led to the spread of special sections and features designed to catch the attention of busy readers often distracted by television, movies and recreational activities.

I've watched such experimentation with some interest - as a practicing

You've noticed by now some obvious changes; we've returned to the traditional newspaper format to emphasize our traditional goals; we've borrowed a motto that emphasizes the newspaper belongs in a very real sense to the community; we've added the cartoon strip of political satire that earned Garry Trudeau a Pulitzer Prize to add some levity to the often heavy business of the editorial pages; we've made arrangements for coverage of our representatives in Lansing and Washington; we will be offering a literary supplement on a regular basis to encourage and recognize the creative talent in our midst; and we're publishing an excellent series of articles on the Great Lakes, the first of

Thanksgiving for the memories

Thanksgiving tradition varies from family to family, the focal point of most being the stuffing.
Everybody's Mom has that special recipe that's been in the family for at least 2 generations and no one would consider any other way of doing it.
When our family gathers for the big feast, my mother's dining room table is extended to 8 feet.
The best china and silver is laid out, and salads and trimmings of every kind are set around the table buffet style.
In the center of course is the piece de resistance, a 25 pound turkey, roasted to a golden brown sitting on a special

Once the plates are laden with food, the men go to the living room to watch the football game, the women sit at the dining room table. That part is rather nice. It gives us time to catch up on all the topics we haven't had time to discuss during the year and brings us a little closer together.
However, after the dinner that has taken the women all day to prepare, we get stuck with dishes. But even with that, I would rather be there than anywhere else.
I remember my first Thanksgiving away from home. My husband, who was in the Navy at the time, had duty on base.

Hazel Blair

"Thanksgiving only" platter and a big bowl of Mom's southern style cornbread dressing.
It's a wonderful day except for a few minor things. The first is that my Mom will say, "Get the men their plates."
I guess that being raised in the '60's makes it difficult for me to relate to this kind of philosophy.
For years it was against the law for women to lift in excess of 40 pounds (unless it was groceries, the wash, a child, or the refrigerator so she could clean under it). "So why is it that men are incapable of lifting a one pound plate?"

A girlfriend and I decided we would go out to eat. It was the most miserable meal of my life.
For anyone who has ever been in a service town on a holiday, I need not tell you how grim it can be. We had a wonderful turkey dinner, but the restaurant was filled with homesick sailors and their wives or girlfriends. No one spoke the entire time we were there.
So this year, when my mother says "get the plates," I will present her with the same arguments as I always have. I'll grumble as we do the dishes, while the men doze off in the living room and we'll all love every minute of it.

Time marches on, so does Marshall

During the course of human events it sometimes becomes necessary to welcome a new newspaper publisher to town.
I did that not too long ago and before the harvest moon could work itself up over Chandler hill the course of human events got out of hand, providing cause for another welcome.
New publishers, new faces, fresh talent and two buckets of well-stirred enthusiasm have been put together to develop a highly serviceable weekly publication for area residents.
I'm told the paper will return to the larger size. That's to make room for all the news that's fit to print. Back during my own weekly publishing days we, upon occasion, published news that wasn't fit to print. Some readers laughed and slapped their legs. Others brought a rope with a noose on the end. If memory serves me correctly, I survived the hanging.
There are those among us who feel that newspaper publishers should be hung upon occasion to keep them in line. My good friend Gregg Smith was hung several times and I secretly congratulated him for not realizing it.

The purpose of a newspaper is to properly reflect the events of the area in which it serves, protect the community against evil doers, amaze readers by printing the truth, and to editorially whip civic nonsense whenever it breaks loose.
Those few who may develop stomach gas due to some seeming lack of coverage from this "brand new" newspaper may come and belch upon my right shoulder. The left is undergoing an attack of bursitis. Come to the Rendezvous Inn, Panama City Beach, Florida between Thanksgiving and Easter. That's where I expect to be, lolling around and feeling no more important than the intelligence of the world justifies.
If the gripe isn't worth the trip I shall suspect the bellyache to be somewhat fishy. Fishy bellaches were hatched on the nether side of Boyne City back in ought two, spreading to East Jordan shortly after the road commission black-topped that hairpin between the two communities. Over the years, four publishers standing close together have not been able to stomp them out.

Speaking of advertising, which I've not done yet, a newspaper cannot survive without a source of income. Some people can, but newspapers cannot. Like the local party store. If everyone in Boyne City bought their drinking whiskey in Petoskey the party store would drizzle off down the Boyne River, becoming tangled up among all those fishing lines at the mouth. (I became tangled up at the mouth once and I couldn't count the number of people who arose to applaud in great glee.)
I'm trying to say that merchants should place their advertising in their home town newspaper, if they want a home town newspaper. That's an age old newspaper adage which I just made up.
Alas and alack. This welcome to our new publishers seems to have wound up as a sermon.
And from me, who ain't hardly ordained at all.

Marshall Sayles

Readers expecting something besides reading and pictures can quit now.
I'm told that, in addition to Boyne City, the paper will cover East Jordan like the snow - a warning to my friends there who fiddle with the light fantastic during the week and then walk around as sober as a hymn on Sunday. (I used to do that when I lived there but, being the publisher, it never seemed to get into the paper.)

Letters to the editor

Dear Press readers,
As some of you know, I was a reporter for the Press for two years. I left in July to take a job as editor of the newspaper in Rogers City.
Part of the reason I left was that the Press was becoming weaker and weaker from an advertising standpoint.
That has a serious effect on the news department, since the amount of advertising determines the size of each week's paper - and also the space available for news.
This decreasing advertising was nobody's fault, really. The Press just got overlooked. It had been there forever and would always continue. But Gregg Publications had started a number of specialty papers in the last decade - and they got all the attention.
I thought the Press would, therefore, do much better if it were on its own again. Even though I was leaving I still cared about the Press.
A friend of mine, who was an experienced journalist, had always dreamed of owning a paper in Northern Michigan. (I think 99% of the reporters and editors in the state have that same dream.)
So I introduced my friend, George Colburn, to Frank Noverr, who owns Gregg Publications. A few months later, the paper was sold.

I'm confident that the separation of the newspaper and the Penny Stretcher will result in a much improved newspaper. The new owners and staff have lots of exciting new ideas which will be noticeable immediately.
I know you'll like the "new" Charlevoix County Press and the people associated with it. I hope you'll support them in this new endeavor.
Jim Baumann
Rogers City

Editor,
This letter is addressed to all area merchants. It is brought on by an unfortunate and embarrassing incident that I was recently involved in and could have been prevented. Also by a notice in a "daily paper of the area" that a meeting of area merchants was planned and one of the topics was "bum checks"! Recently, we had been shopping and had only groceries to buy. Being low on cash I presented a check - second party checks they call them - only to be told "Sorry we no longer take second party checks". Now I had not seen a notice to that effect and having cashed checks in that store for years I was somewhat shocked and got rather nasty!

Later I wrote the manager and got a very polite reply in which I think that we ended up a "horse apiece"! He told me that there was a big sign in the shopping cart area to that effect.
I stopped and thought a minute and realized why I'd missed it. As I drove into the parking lot an elderly man just finished emptying his cart into his car and so I just took the cart and went shopping and missed the sign.
So to those merchants who contemplate a "Sorry no second checks" policy - and believe me from the reports I've heard of merchants losses from bad checks, they are certainly justified in doing so - I offer these suggestions:
Remember if you were going to keep your store open "extra hours" until Christmas Eve will be splattered across your ad in - since "unmissable" size letters!
So first off, when you will announce such a policy please use part of your ad to notify us so that we may be prepared either before we leave home or make arrangements the way so that we don't get caught at the end of the line in an unneeded embarrassing situation.

After all, if ten cents off on four rolls of Softex Wipe toilet paper rates a four by six inch box, we the customers ought to rate at least equal space to announce "sorry due too many bad checks we must adopt a policy of no second checks."
I think it will be to your advantage and I can testify that it may just save some hard feelings.
Maurice Hartung
East Jordan

Editor,
On behalf of the publishers of the Charlevoix County Press, I wish to thank all of the people who assisted us in producing this premier issue. Jim and Jackie Baumann, Jack Graham, Pat Weirbaugh, the ownership, management and staff of Gregg Publications were particularly helpful in this undertaking. Beyond this, I want to express my personal appreciation to my overworked staff and typesetters without whom it would have been impossible to produce this paper in the confusion that was created by the recent move to the new office.

Neal G. Colburn
General Manager

Letter policy

This is Your Community Newspaper, so we encourage letters to the editor. All letters are subject to editing, and are expected to make their points in terms of local issues, not personalities. # The Great Lakes:— an inland frontier

EDITOR'S NOTE: - In an effort to increase understanding and appreciation of the waters around us here in northern Michigan, the Press is publishing this series of articles on the Great Lakes. They were produced by the University of Wisconsin Sea Grant College Program. We would appreciate your comments on it.

BY LINDA WEIMER

The Great Lakes are, in many ways, a microcosm of the world's oceans. Except for the lack of a tangy saltwater spray, they are in every respect inland seas.

Covering over 95,000 square miles, they boast busy ports, a thriving sport fishery, a commercial fishery that goes back to the earliest settlers and a variety of scenic, well-traveled coastlines.

Even more convincing of the comparison is the simple experience of standing on a windy beach in northern Michigan and looking out across the heaving waters of Lake Superior toward Canada.

Not only do the Great Lakes look like oceans, they behave like oceans as well. The storms of the Great Lakes are just as violent as those on the high seas, if not more so. And the lakes, like the oceans, exert a major influence over the weather of the neighboring region.

Draining off the forests and plains of the upper Midwest, the lake waters flow west to east, running down through the chain of lakes, rivers and canals and ultimately out through the St. Lawrence River to the Atlantic Ocean.

Superior, the western-most lake in the chain, is the largest in the world in terms of surface area, and is the deepest in the Great Lakes system.

Superior, in turn, flows into Lake Huron. Though it is the second largest Great Lake, Huron is remote and is probably the lake about which the least is known.

Dangling between Huron and Superior is appendix-shaped Lake Michigan. Michigan, the only lake which lies solely within the United States, has heavy concentrations of people and industry along its shores.

From Huron, the waters flow down the St. Clair River and through Lake St. Clair to arrive at Lake Erie, the smallest and shallowest of the Great Lakes. Despite its modest size, Erie is the most notorious Great Lake. Its past water quality problems have become legendary and the lake is frequently pointed to as an example of the damage man can unwittingly do to his environment.

Finally, there is Ontario. Last in the chain, it receives much of its water from Erie and so, it too has suffered many of Erie's same water quality problems, only perhaps more quietly.

From Ontario, the waters of the Great Lakes flow out the St. Lawrence River to the sea, completing their 2,300 mile journey from Duluth, Minnesota. Every ten minutes, enough water leaves the Great Lakes via this route to supply the city of New York for a day.

If the oceans are our last frontier, the Great Lakes are the proving ground for that frontier. Here, man first experimented with the law of the sea and came up with a successful, international agreement between the United States and Canada to clean up the Great Lakes.

Here, man first began to limit what could be harvested from the marine environment by putting controls on the lakes' commercial fishermen.

Here, too, man has learned the limits to which he can push an aquatic system -- how much waste and debris a lake will bear before it finally becomes so degraded as to be almost beyond repair.

This has certainly been the story of Lake Erie. The lake was used carelessly for 100 years as a dumping ground for municipal sewage and industrial wastes until, in the late 1960's, it attracted national attention as the "dead" Great Lake.

Since then, the campaign to clean up Lake Erie has proven far more arduous and more costly than was ever expected. By some calculations, it will cost another $17 billion just to provide adequate facilities to treat municipal sewage going into the lake and another $2 billion to bring industrial wastes within federal water pollution control standards.

Many now believe the oceans face the same fate as the lakes. Pollution along our saltwater coasts and on the high seas has become a major cause for concern. If the Great Lakes truly do reflect the future of the oceans, will man be able to afford to clean the oceans once he has fouled them?

The call of the sea

An old pier, a sailboat and a wave hitting the shore -- everything a boy needs to fall in love with the water.

EJ community chest nets $8,500

EAST JORDAN - The East Jordan Community Chest has collected $8,500 toward its $12,000 goal during its month long drive and there is still money coming in, according to Shelby Ziegler, secretary for the group.

Most of the money has come from payroll deductions which ranged from 10 cents to $5.00 per week by employees of ITT, Northwestern State Bank, Grandvue Medical Care Facility, city employees, East Jordan Public Schools, and Gulf & Western stamping division. Other donations were made by area residents.

The money collected will be given to several organizations, including Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, the Bergman Center rehabilitation school for the handicapped in Charlevoix, Big Brothers and Big Sisters, and the Cancer Society.

The Community Chest, which works together with the United Way, needs more volunteers, Ziegler said. "We're still working on getting money by mailing letters to residents, but it really works better if we can go door-to-door. To do that we need more people," she said.

They would also like volunteers to talk with agencies to see how much money is needed and decide how much can be raised. Volunteers are not reimbursed for mileage, telephone calls or their time.

"We have had a good response to the payroll deduction, which is what really makes this thing go," Ziegler said. "It's a 'We have had a good response to the payroll deduction, which is what really makes this thing go,' Ziegler said. 'It's just a little out of their check each week, but it really adds up by the end of the year. We want to thank everyone for giving their 'Fair Share'. We feel the people are much more community-minded this year."

Anyone interested in being a volunteer or contributing to the Community Chest may call Walter Goebel, 536-2924, or Shelby Ziegler, 536-2057.

School library needs books

EAST JORDAN - The East Jordan Middle School Library is looking for Hardy Boys, Nancy Drew and other series. Any book donations are welcome, but librarian Jane Brown, asks that people remember the books are for youthful readers.

Anyone wishing to donate books may contact Jane Brown at the high school, 536-2254.

cover up some dead fish that are causing a nuisance.

The Commission gave approval to Landfill Operator Basil Moore to close the Sanitary Landfill on Monday, December 26, 1977, but he must remain open on Monday, January 2, 1978.

A letter was read from Lynda Christensen, President and District Commissioner of the Boyne City Women's Slow Pitch League as follows: "Dear Mr. Barden and Mr. Sevens: Just wanted to extend our appreciation for your full support of the development of Rotary Park (just one of your many contributions to the City) during your past terms on the City Commission. As you know this park has affected our club and individuals lives greatly and without your support none of this could have been possible. Your contributions as a Commissioner will always be remembered."

Moved by Behling, seconded by Gierlach that Commissioner Keith Fitzpatrick be appointed Mayor of the City of Boyne City. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

Moved by Gierlach, seconded by Jessup that Commissioner Thelma Behling be appointed Mayor Pro-Tem of the City of Boyne City. Roll Call: Yeas - Jessup, Gierlach, Moody, Nays - None. Abstaining: Behling. Motion carried.

In the absence of Mayor Fitzpatrick, Mayor Pro-Tem Behling took the gavel and presiding chair and opened the meeting.

Roll Call: Present: Mayor Pro-Tem Thelma Behling, Commissioners Catherine Jessup, Steven Moody and Joseph Gierlach. Absent: Mayor Keith Fitzpatrick. Also present: City Manager Ruth Neymark, City Clerk Tom Garlock, Chief of Police John Talboys and City Attorney Harvey Varnum.

The clerk read the minutes of the regular meeting of October 11, 1977 and a special meeting of November 8, 1977. Both minutes were approved. Accounts Payable in the amount of $20,292.70 for the month of October were approved.

Moved by Moody, seconded by Jessup to allow Bernard Cherne to split Lot 7, City of Boyne City, Hiram B. Chapman and Russell M. Cadwell's Addition to Spring Harbor, Block 2, in half, and making the East Half of Lot 7 a part of Lot 6. Total combined lot size will be 98.97 feet by 132 feet. Also on the above described Lot Split, the City Manager is hereby instructed to pro-rate the charges of the Special Assessment Sewer Bond that will be due on this new land parcel, so that it may be cleared of its indebtedness to the City of Boyne City. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

Lawrence Titaworth appeared before the Commission to inquire when his ponds would be finally filled up. It was explained that because of the wet weather, city trucks were unable to drive on his property and that they would be filled up as soon as the trucks may feasibly drive on the property again. City crews will be sent up immediately to ment for ingress and egress over and across said lands for the purpose of maintenance and repair of said sewer line. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

Commissioner Gierlach introduced Joe McElroy and George Colburn, representing the new owners of the Charlevoix County Press. Moved by Gierlach, seconded by Moody to adjourn. Meeting adjourned.

ELAINE SMITH, Clerk

30 layoffs at Courter

BY JOE McELROY
BOYNE CITY - Faced with a slow-down in production, Courter Inc., Boyne City's biggest employer, has laid off approximately 30 workers in the past month.

Another 10 workers might be laid off unless enough employees leave by attrition in the near future, according to Warren Todter, general manager of the aircraft instrument plant.

He indicated the layoffs will not be permanent. "We consider them temporary because we're looking to build again," Todter said. "If everything goes as we hope, they will probably all be back in approximately three months."

Both Todter and local UAW President Ruith Hartwick agreed that the layoffs are not retaliation for the employees' recent threat to strike over Courter's sick day policy.

"We don't see any connection," Todter said. "There is none."

Hartwick said, "I don't think so, either. Even before Bendix took over we felt there might be some layoffs because there was a lack of work in some areas."

"I'm hoping it's just a re-adjustment." Although she doesn't argue with the company's motives for the cutback, Hartwick said she feels it comes at a bad time.

"Coming right before Christmas and the beginning of winter, it's really got people worried," she said. "A layoff is bad any time, but this is the worst time, as far as I'm concerned."

Todter says the layoffs are needed now because "At this point we had just completed a big bit of business and we have to reduce employment down to a somewhat smaller level."

Usually the company can compensate for work slowdowns simply by putting a freeze on hiring, Todter said. "But this time it was just a little bit bigger bump."

Union President Hartwick says Courter hired workers right up to the time the company was sold to Bendix, even though there was less work than usual. The plant employed approximately 420 persons before the layoffs, according to Todter.

The company uses a "preferred seniority" layoff system, which allows long-time employees to accept layoffs if they want them and then collect unemployment compensation. Not enough workers have elected this option, so those most recently hired are losing their jobs.

Todter said there have been layoffs in all departments, but Hartwick said most of the cuts have affected assemblers and machine shop operators.

Laid off employees are receiving a week's notice, Hartwick said. The notices are listed Monday mornings on a bulletin board, she said. "And we have no notice in advance on how many they will lay off."

General Manager Todter said he doesn't think the layoffs will hurt the local economy. "It's a small percentage of the area work force," he said, "and they are eligible to receive unemployment benefits."

Here's Craig Parsons with the biggest catch of the deer season's first week, a 14 point buck that weighed in at 185 lbs. Parsons is the son of Ben Parsons, 526 N. Lake.

Fewer hunters than usual

The first week of deer hunting season brought with it reports of good hunting, less hunters than usual, and law enforcement problems ranging from hunting without a license to gun thefts.

As of Friday, Nov. 18, there had been no hunting accidents in Charlevoix County, according to Walter Mikula of the Boyne City DNR office.

Mikula said hunting was going well despite the lack of tracking snow. "The success rate is good," he said. "We've checked a lot of bucks with some nice big racks."

The Tuesday opening date probably contributed to the light turnout of hunters, according to Mikula. "The hunters just aren't around," he said. "This weekend there will probably be a big turnout."

The biggest buck of the season's first week in Charlevoix County was a 14 pointer taken by Ron Parsons, son of Ben Parsons, 526 N. Lake Street, Boyne City. Parsons said he shot the buck from 75 yards during a sleet storm near Chandler Hill.

It measured in at 185 pounds two days after it was shot.

DNR officer Mikula reported a "typical" number of arrests for violations such as hunting without a license, shooting at power lines and possession of loaded guns in cars. He also reported instances of shining, the use of spotlights or headlights to hunt deer at night.

Both the East Jordan and Boyne City Police departments reported gun thefts from cars. Two deer rifles owned by Tom Ellis of Boyne City were stolen Nov. 16 from the parking lot of the Granary Restaurant, according to Public Safety Chief John Talboys. He said the guns were valued at $1,000 each.

In East Jordan, three rifles were stolen Nov. 17 from a locked pick-up truck parked in front of Swanie's Rainbow Bar, according to Police Officer Robert Matheny.

Chamber forms retail promotion committee

BOYNE CITY - The Chamber of Commerce has formed a Retail Board to encourage the spending of local money here in Boyne City, rather than in other communities.

The Board will develop promotional campaigns designed to attract customers to Boyne City stores, according to Ron Erkfitz, who proposed the idea.

"We plan to look at each season and try to find a way to promote it," Erkfitz said. "I'm hoping we can come up with a very systematic set of promotions."

In the past, retail promotion was handled by the Chamber. "But it was just too much," Erkfitz said. "They were trying to do everything and just got spread too thin."

The Retail Board, which has had two meetings since it was formed early this month, will be a committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

Chamber President Jim White said the group's first project will be the Nov. 25 arrival of Santa Claus into town on the Boyne Valley Railroad.

Commission elects Fitzpatrick mayor

BOYNE CITY - The method of selection fit the man just right.

At its Tuesday, Nov. 15 meeting, the Boyne City Commission elected Keith Fitzpatrick mayor quietly, effectively and with no pomp or ceremony, which is probably just how Fitzpatrick will conduct himself in office.

Called out of town on business, the new mayor wasn't on hand to accept congratulations.

The 47-year-old Boyne City native will bring 11 years of commission experience to his new job, leading an otherwise inexperienced group. As recently elected Commissioner Steve Moody pointed out, "Keith has been there longer than everybody else put together."

"There isn't anybody else who comes close to being qualified right now," Moody said. "It's a responsible position. Keith has done a good job and everybody in town knows him."

Fitzpatrick replaces outgoing mayor Aldwyn Barden. This is Fitzpatrick's second one-year term as mayor; he also held the position in 1970.

The new mayor says he got involved with the commission when Barden and former City Manager Forbes Tompkins asked him to run. He had been active in many community organizations, including the Jaycees, Lions Club and the Barbershoppers.

Eleven years is a long time to stay involved with a city council, but Fitzpatrick says he's stayed on because he enjoys "seeing the city change for the better. I think it's an attractive town."

In the past, Fitzpatrick has paid especially close attention to several local issues, including the town's new sewer system, the lakefront restoration project and the acquisition of a new city hall.

One project that Fitzpatrick plans to work on is an improved water system for North Boyne. "The state has been pushing for that," he said.

"The water supply is not adequate. From what I understand, there's just not enough volume."

Fitzpatrick says a new well is probably needed and added, "It's going to be expensive."

The new mayor is also interested in the development of two local recreation facilities, Rotary Park and Barn Mountain. He said tennis courts and softball diamonds are already planned for Rotary Park.

As for Barn Mountain, which Everett Kircher recently gave back to the city through the Nature Conservatory, Fitzpatrick hopes to see it turned into "some kind of recreation facility for the town on a break-even basis."

Regarding the possible expansion of Interstate 75, Fitzpatrick doesn't think it will have a major impact on Boyne City. "If people want to come up here to ski or something else, they're going to come whether the road is widened or not," Fitzpatrick said.

As an accountant and assistant plant manager at Essex, Fitzpatrick knows that there isn't enough money available to accomplish everything he would like to see done.

"We have all kinds of places where we could put money, but we're really limited," Fitzpatrick said. "You just do what you can."

"The people are demanding more services all the time, but the people have to remember, they have to pay for them."

Mayor Keith Fitzpatrick

Boyne Ridge Apartments may become condominiums

BOYNE CITY - The Boyne Ridge Apartments on Robinson Street will probably be converted to condominiums, according to Art Poineau of Colwell and Company Realtors.

"I don't want to get into too many details now because we don't have a license to sell condominiums yet," Poineau said.

"All the legal work has not yet been completed."

If the 18 unit apartment complex is converted into condos, it will be a first for Boyne City. Poineau says no prices have been set.

The present tenants of the four-year-old apartments will be allowed to remain until their leases expire, Poineau said. They will then be given the choice of buying their apartments or moving.

Poineau said the conversion is being planned because, "We've had more problems than I want to talk about in terms of rent. It was just a losing proposition, so we decided to turn them into condominiums."

Spirit!

Rambler basketball coach Russ Harvey, center, leads his Boyne City High School team in celebration after a big win last year. The cagers lost most of their height, but Harvey says he hopes to surprise the team's opponents with speed and hustle. See page nine for basketball preview.

Red Devils look to rebuild...

EAST JORDAN - Varsity basketball coach Jim Everest isn't certain yet who will start when the Red Devils open their season at home Tuesday, but he does know what kind of game they will be playing.

"We'll be doing quite a bit of running," said Everest, who is beginning his third season as head coach. "We have good quickness and the kids are enthusiastic. They want to run."

The Red Devils will have to run against opponent Central Lake and the rest of their competition this year because they don't have overpowering height. Three starters return, but they are all an even 6-0. Senior Rick Roberts and junior Jeff Burch play guard and senior Dan Lee Spence is a forward.

At 6-5, junior Tom Bisbee is the tallest Red Devil, but nobody else is over 6-2.

Coach Everest wasn't ready to disclose a starting lineup because practice didn't begin until the first week of November and it has been hard to get practice time in the gym because of girls basketball and the school's split sessions.

Much of the team's practice time has been devoted to conditioning drills, Everest said, which should pay off during games, since the Devils plan to run on offense and play mostly man-to-man defense. Although his team won't be exceptionally tall, Everest hopes to improve on last year's record, when East Jordan won only 4 games. "We're on a rebuilding program," he said. "We should be heading up from here."

East Jordan's first opponent, Central Lake, features balanced height and a talented guard in a 5-10 Marv Blackwell, according to Everest. He said Blackwell, Central's leading scorer last year, gets his points from both outside shooting and strong drives to the basket.

Another Central Lake player to watch is a 6-3 Nate Sommer, who started last year as a freshman. Besides Roberts and Dan Lee Spence, East Jordan's other seniors are Jerry Carpenter, a 6-0 guard, and Larry Chew and Mike Crick. Both are 5-11 and play in the backcourt.

Junior team members are: Bisbee, guards Dave Burch, Dan V. Spence, Dennis Lapeer and Charly Morris; center-forward Doug Stark and forwards Allen Stallard and Dennis Christenson.

The only sophomore on the varsity is Duane Cutler, a 6-2 forward. The varsity's Nov. 29 game against Central Lake will be preceded by a JV game at 7:30 p.m.

Shall we dance?

No, we shall play basketball. It might look like ballet, but actually Boyne City High School center Ginny Scott is getting a shot off over the heads of two Charlevoix defenders. Charlevoix won 49-48 in overtime.

Coach Russ Harvey

...While Ramblers hope to keep the ball rolling

BOYNE CITY - Russ Harvey, coach of the Rambler varsity basketball team, hopes to have an unpleasant surprise for his fellow coaches in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference.

"They've already got us picked down near the bottom," says the coach of last year's Class C state semi-finalists. "But we have nice team speed and a lot of good attitudes, so we're looking to surprise people."

Harvey's colleagues expect Boyne City to be down this year because of the graduation of 4 starters, including 6-8 center Gregg Upton, now playing at Northern Michigan University.

The Ramblers have lost both height and experience. Senior guard Dave DeNise is the only starter back from last year's 18-7 team. He and 6-0 senior Dan Schmittiel, last year's sixth man, will start at the wings in Harvey's three guard, double post attack.

"Both Dan and Dave have super good attitudes," Harvey says. "They're always pushing, trying to get a little bit more. At this point, they're the team leaders."

The other definite first game starter is 6-4 junior center Dean Hicks, who will be trying to fill Gregg Upton's large shoes. Harvey says Hicks is "greatly improved" as a result of playing summer ball against more physical players from downstate.

Ray Greene or Mike Anzell will start at the playmaking guard spot, Harvey said. Both are 5-9 juniors. Harvey said last week he's not yet sure who will be the fifth starter.

Since they have less height, the Ramblers will rely more on quickness than they have in recent years. Harvey said he plans to use both man-to-man and zone defensive presses.

Boyne City opens Tuesday, Nov. 29, at Rogers City, expected to be one of the league's best teams. Harvey said Gaylord and Petoskey also figure to be contenders.

Pluister's running future looking good

BOYNE CITY - Tom Pluister has a lot of running ahead of him.

The Boyne City High School student qualified for the state cross country finals earlier this month by running a 16 minute, 17 second three-miles in the regional finals. It was his fastest time ever.

Making the state finals is an achievement for any runner, but it's even more exceptional in Pluister's case because he is only a sophomore.

When Pluister went to the finals in Clare, he took off too fast at the beginning of the race and then tired, finishing 52nd.

Bob Wollenberg, head cross country coach, attributes much of Pluister's success to "a good steady pace and really hard work. He's very intelligent. He gets A's and B's in his classes."

Pluister's teammates paid their way to the state finals to see Tom and the state's other top runners compete. Commenting on the trip, Wollenberg said, "I want to make particular mention of Mac McNichols and his wife for loaning us their van to drive down in."

"I saw him and just happened to mention we needed a way to get down and he said, 'Well, just take my van.' And he refused to take any money for it."

"To me, that's what makes small towns great."

EJ girls finish with win

EAST JORDAN - The East Jordan girls Junior Varsity basketball team ended its season on a winning note with a 27-24 victory over Ellsworth last Thursday, Nov. 17.

The team finished the year with a 7-10 record but Coach Steve Zallman was quick to add, "In terms of attitude and improvement, we had a successful season."

Three Ramblers named to all-conference team

BOYNE CITY - Three Rambler football players have been named to the Michigan-Huron Shores All-Conference team.

The team's senior co-captains, Dan Schmittiel and Tom Dressel, both were named to the all-conference squad. Both have been three year varsity starters for Boyne City. Dressel played halfback and strong safety; Schmittiel was a line-backer and offensive guard.

Bryan Price was named honorable mention all-conference. He is a 5-9, 190 pound offensive tackle.

This is one example of a non-profit group making use of the Save-Share Program to help raise funds. There are many more groups using it too and there will be a picture of one each week in this paper.

Glen's wants everyone in East Jordan to know about

Save-Share and hopes more groups will use it to raise funds.

All a group has to do is register with the Store Manager or Asst. Manager and begin saving the green cash register tapes. Glen's will pay 1 percent of the total qualified amount of all tapes brought in to any registered group; and not just once, but each time a group brings in $25.00 worth of slips or more.

Poster winners

Boyer City Public Library, in co-operation with teacher Betty Adgate's art students, held a drawing for five posters, one for each elementary school grade, to celebrate National Children's Book Week, November 14th through 19th. The art students designed posters for each classroom, advertising the event and over 250 students signed up to try to win a poster for their particular room. The winners were: Chris Meads, Mrs. Lundteigen's Junior Primary class; Marc Kubesh, Mrs. Powers 2nd grade class; Raquel Redmer, Miss Ronfeldt's 3rd grade; Kelly McPherson, Mr. Hoover's 4th grade; Kevin Raney, Mr. Felton's 5th grade.

What does Thanksgiving mean ?

BY GRACE MOOSE
Thanksgiving... giving thanks. That's just one way of defining the holiday. Students and teachers of Boyne City High School were asked, "What does Thanksgiving mean to you?" Here are some of the responses:
Food seemed to be the main concern as Dave DeNise said "A big Thanksgiving dinner." Becky Elzinga cheerfully remarked, "Turkey, dressing, pumpkin pie and (boyfriend) Jerry." Chuck Arnott agreed: "Turkey, pumpkin pie, and all that junk!" Mike Bajko added, "Thanksgiving dinner, deer hunting, and venison. "Good Munchies," was Marty Kildea's only answer.
Chris Matthew looked bewildered and said, "I don't know, I never really thought about it." Cathy Bradley stated, "Going deer hunting."
"Thanksgiving means that I'm not home and I wish I were... I miss my family," commented our journalism teacher Ms. Chaney. "I'm looking forward to snow!"

Others thought of family too. Eric Pearl exclaimed, "Food and having all my relatives come over." "Food, family and warm feelings," was what Vicki Camburn had to say. Sheila Sloop remarked, "Being with my family and all the good food."
Cindi Spohn jokingly remarked, "A time when all my family gets together to eat all that scrumptious food and I get stuck with the dishes."
Brenda Zinck commented "Food... Being together with everybody, your family and friends." "Time being spent with my family, being together," added Val Leach.
Others had vacation on their minds. Ann Lewis state, "It means vacation, getting to see my relatives and having a lot of fun." Kasia Watkins agreed. "Seeing my relatives and eating turkey and all the trimmings; also getting out of school!" Mr. Pfahler laughingly said, "Vacation away from all of the rowdies." Mr. McCullough, standing nearby mentioned, "Turkey, dressing, and sleeping until the sun comes up." "Put that down for me too," added Mr. Pfahler.

More on the serious side, Mr. Lauterbach said, "A day off, time to relax and be thankful for all the things you've got in life." Jeanine Larsen commented, "Thanksgiving is a time for being with friends and relatives and being thankful for the bountiful life we have."
To me Thanksgiving is a time of Peace. A time to be with the ones we love and care about. A time for everyone to say, "Thank You."

Say cheese!

This smiling fellow is Shamrock Sam, who greets visitors to the Jim and Dorothy Barnes home in Springbrook Hills.

School publishing literary journal

BY LAURA LOOZE
Ms. Laura Chaney's second period high school journalism class is publishing a literary journal which will contain short stories, poems, essays, drawings and photographs.
The material will be contributed by the students of Boyne City's Elementary School, Middle School and High School. Grace Moose has collected several articles from sixth grade students while Michele Houser and Vicki Camburn are gathering materials from the elementary school students.

The stories, essays, and poems being typed, edited, and retyped a final time by the journal staff. After the final typing the materials will be laid out and printed by Mr. Doug Shields.
The journal will be ready to print by Dec. 20.

Learn to eat, eat to learn

EAST JORDAN - Munching macaroni and chopped chewy cheese, gleaming green beans, vegetable variety, jiggy jiggly jello salad, beautifully browned biscuits, super sauce, and jungle juice.
That's what nearly 300 people dined on at the first grade family supper in the school cafeteria Thursday, Nov. 16. The children came up with the names for the dishes, the first grade teachers planned the menu, and the school cooks, teachers and several parents helped prepare the meal.
The teachers thought that the supper and the program which followed it would be a good way to show parents a new method for teaching beginning letter sounds and that learning can be fun.

The method, called the Letter People, teaches children how to sound the letters. It also helps reading skills because they learn to examine words more carefully than with the phonetic method.
The first graders portrayed Letter People during the program, each wearing a picture of the letter that they made themselves. The classes also sang songs and put on a play about the different letter sounds.

Crafts class offered to Boyne pre-schoolers

Want to do something different with your child? Parents and children ages two through five will have the opportunity to share a creative learning experience with each other in a Pre-school Crafts class offered by Boyne City Community Education.

Each crafts class will meet for one hour and parents must attend with the children. These activities will run for four weeks, one hour per week. Cost is $6.00 per child. Activities will be held Wednesday mornings beginning November 30 at the Adult Learning Center, Portable No. 28, Boyne City High School. Two-three year olds meet 9:30 - 10:30, and four-five year olds meet 10:45 - 11:45. Sorry classes are limited to 10 children per session. Wear something old and comfortable. Most materials will be furnished.

Call 582-6766 for more information. Please register before classes begin on November 30.

Help adults learn to read

If you would like to give an hour a week to a worthwhile cause, the Boyne City Right-to-Read program can use your help.

The Right-to-Read program tries to give every adult in the area an opportunity to learn to read or to improve his reading skills free of charge. Anyone who needs help in reading, writing or spelling; or anyone who knows someone who needs help should call Boyne City Community Education Office - 582-6765.

A poor reader may have difficulty reading this and may not know help is available.

The Right-to-Read program uses one-to-one tutoring by trained volunteers.

The tutoring is done at whatever time and place is convenient for both people. Instructional materials are geared to the needs, interests and backgrounds of each individual learner. For example, if a person wants to learn how to pass a driver's test, the program works toward that goal. Each person begins at his own level and progresses from there.

In a four year study by the U.S. Office of Education, released in 1975, found that 23 million Americans aged 16 and up are functionally illiterate. They can't read help wanted ads, can't fill out forms for driver's license or Social Security, can't understand directions on a bottle of medicine, can't read a bedtime story to their children.

Illiteracy is not incurable. Only one percent of the country's population is physically or mentally incapable of learning to read. The rest can be taught if they can be reached.

The Right-to-Read program was begun nationally by the Office of Education and it was spearheaded in the Boyne Community by Sherry Sheldon, Title One Director and Bill Lymangrover, former Community Education Director. Today Nancy Bakewell is the Coordinator and Judy Pore is the Community Education Director.

The Charlevoix County Press has a new office at 210 S. Lake St. Boyne City.

Our new phone number is 582-6761.

Artists eye grant money

Artists North has known since it was formed in 1974 that there were various fine art grants available, but they didn't know how to get them. So for the past 2 years, they have been studying methods for obtaining grants, according to publicity chairperson for the group, Sweet Marcie Brown.

Now members of Artists North are able to help draft proposals to obtain funding for the visual and performing arts. The grants are designed basically to provide financial and technical assistance proposed by new as well as experienced community-based organizations which might not be implemented without outside assistance.

CETA, Michigan Council for the Arts, the National Endowment for the Arts and the Michigan Council for the Arts all have grants available to artists and craftpersons. Through CETA applicants must meet low income requirements.

Funding can be obtained for conference assistance for non-profit organizations to bring special guest lecturers, individual artists, consultants, technical assistance for individual arts, and various other projects. Carol Wald, artist in residence at Elm Pointe for several years was sponsored by a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts.

Artists North is working in conjunction with the Crooked Tree Arts Council while awaiting non-profit status. For information on applying for a grant contact the Crooked Tree Arts Council, 347-3973 or Artists North, 547-6119.
