BY HAZEL BLAIR
EAST JORDAN - The fifth grade will move from portable classrooms into the elementary school next fall, the school board decided at Tuesday night's meeting.

To make room for the three-section grade, the elementary supportive services, art, music, Title I, and the learning center, will be moved into middle school classrooms. The board agreed to try this for one year to see if it works out. "The only way it will work is if the teachers make it work," board member Herb Griffin said. "We're willing to give it a year's try."

The board has been studying two proposals made by the elementary and middle school principals concerning the future placement of the fifth grade. Board member Jack Zoulek said because of smaller rooms in the middle school and the cost of remodeling bathroom facilities, it would be better to place supportive services in that building. The board had earlier considered putting fifth grade in the middle school.

In other action the board:
--Accepted the resignation of sixth grade teacher Charles Inman, who has been teaching in East Jordan since 1960 and will retire in June;
--Accepted the resignation of Jim Everest as varsity basketball coach. In his letter, he said he believed it would be better for a new coach to go into the new school with a new team next year;

--Agreed to set up an athletic council composed of an administrator, the athletic director, a member of the board, and a coach. The group would study the sports program, set up guidelines, and work out possible future problems in the athletic program;

--Hired Steve Zallman as head baseball coach and Shelley Thayer as girl's softball coach. Salaries will be six per cent of their present base pay;
--Agreed to consider leaving one night per week free of school events for church group scheduling. James Ehrkey of the East Jordan Ministerial Association presented a petition signed by seven clergymen requesting one night a week for youth groups.

An ad hoc group of one board member, the athletic director, an administrator, and a member of the association will meet to decide what night would be acceptable;
--Granted tenure to middle school teachers Cathleen McCreedy and Pam Allen and elementary school teacher Peg Latimer, to begin in the school fiscal year 1978.

Financial adviser Ruby Dipzinski announced that there will be two positions open on the board. The date for annual school elections is June 12. Nominating petitions must be filed no later than 4 p.m. April 10.

'House' ok's death penalty

BY HAZEL BLAIR
EAST JORDAN - On March 2 the "House of Representatives" voted to allow the 50 states to reinstate capital punishment. A rider attached to the bill would also allow college students meeting certain academic requirements to have 75 percent of their college cost paid by the government.

Congressman Ed Finch had proposed the college bill earlier, but it had been defeated. The proposal to reinstate capital punishment looked as though it would pass, so the college bill was attached as a rider to get it through.

The same day the House also voted to keep the Panama Canal for defense purposes; pay $200 million a year rent, using all profits for upkeep and improvement of the canal and give Panama free access.

In the middle of discussing whether to prohibit the sale of pornographic material to those under the age of 18 and ban the use of children in pornography, the bell rang and the "congressmen" left the room for their second hour class.

Mock Congress was adjourned until the "Senate" would convene fourth hour.

The senators and congressmen were senior high students in American Government class taught by Jim Wodzinski. Mock Congress is used as a semester exam in place of a written test. "The idea is to get a bill through both the House and the Senate," Wodzinski said. "That's tough."

Wodzinski has been using the mock congress in his class for the past 10 years and said East Jordan is the only place in the area that this type of thing is done.

"The issues have changed," Wodzinski said. "One thing that used to come up all the time was a bill to de-merge the Twin Valley School District. Interestingly enough, it was always defeated."

He said in the past 10 years we have gone through rioting in the cities, Viet Nam, and assassinations. All of those issues have shown up in mock congress.

Each year something has been added to the six week session. This year the students were videotaped. Wodzinski believes that by videotaping, the students seem to put more thought into how they appear to their colleagues, the words they use, and the way they present their arguments.

The whole concept is to study how Congress operates, Wodzinski said, and it's an effective learning experience.

"One advantage is that they cover such a wide variety of issues that something will affect each student," he said. "A student who never says anything in class, will respond to something. Once they find out it's not so hard to get up in class and talk, they can do it the rest of the year."

The biggest problem the students face is learning how to write the bill, then getting up enough courage to get up and defend it. The success of mock congress depends on the make-up of the class, he said. "If I have students who like to argue, it's good."

Some of the students spend hours on preliminary research to present their bills. The classes are not divided into political parties, because Wodzinski said they have not formed political ideologies. "The groups do vary though," he said. "This year they are conservative."

"I would also like to pay special tribute to floor leaders Dan L. Spence and Jeannie Betz and Speaker of the House, Julie Slough," Wodzinski said.

Iron Works donates $10,000

EAST JORDAN - After a $10,000 donation from East Jordan Iron Works last week, the East Jordan Family Health Center has approximately $23,000 left to raise for the matching funds grant with the Department of Health Education and Welfare, according to Larry Chanda, finance chairman for the health center board of directors.

This is the second time the Iron Works has donated $10,000 toward the health center. "Donations have been coming in again," Chanda says. "I'm looking at a check for $100 right now and know of another $100 that will be coming in."

This week the board of directors mailed out 1,700 donation requests to rural and city residents. Included in the letter was a gift opportunities list telling what could be purchased with donations.

If contributors wish to designate that their donations be used to purchase a specific piece of equipment or furnishings it will be recognized with a bronze plaque placed at the clinic in their names.

"We will welcome any donations," Chanda says. "If we receive money in access to our commitment to HEW then, depending on our financial status at that time, we will start to pay back some of the $25 non-interest bearing notes."

Chanda says the health center building on Bridge Street is progressing to the point that the board feels secure that it will be ready for occupancy by April 1 as planned.

Fire clean up going slowly

EAST JORDAN - Clean up procedures at the Charlevoix County Senior Center are going slowly, according to center director Dorothy Pelton.

A fire which started in the auditorium behind the center Wednesday, March 8 caused extensive heat and smoke damage to the building. Fire Chief Dick Barnett said. Pelton said the center is presently without electricity, the kitchen facilities are not working and all of the craft

"Dr. Hergt has had much more business than we anticipated," Chanda says. "I think we'll be much better off in the new building. It's going to create a much more satisfactory atmosphere." Dr. Hergt has been practicing in a temporary office at 123 Main Street since January. Donations may be sent to the East Jordan Family Health Center, Box 118, East Jordan, Michigan, 49727.

supplies were lost in the fire.

The meal program will be continued at the American Legion Hall beginning March 15 at 12:30 p.m. Meals are served Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. "The legion has graciously offered to let us use the building until the senior center is able to operate again," Pelton said. She estimates that it will take at least five or six weeks to get the building back in shape.

Proposed bill

Senate considers cloud-seeding

BY DALE PETROSKEY
LANSING - A bill that would set strict control measures for weather modification practices in Michigan emerged from the House Agriculture committee Thursday, March 2, by an 8-1 vote.

The bill passed the Senate Feb. 14 and is now ready to be debated in the House. However, the bill is "tie-barred" to another measure, meaning that it cannot become law without the passage of the other bill. The tie-barred bill, which would allow any county board of commissioners to spend public funds in support of weather modification operations, is currently held up in the House Towns and Counties committee and "may not be considered for some time," according to Rep. Mary C. Brown, D-Kalamazoo, minority vice-chairperson of the committee.

Bob Chaprka, an aide to Sen. R.J. Allen, R-St. Johns, sponsor of the legislation, said that the more expansive weather modification bill will be held up for floor debate until its counter bill emerges from the Towns and Counties committee.

Weather modification enhances the rain process, according to Fred Nurnberger, state meteorologist. The weather modification process is of particular interest to farmers during dry summer months when precipitation levels are too low for good crops to grow.

The weather modification process is accomplished most times by "cloud-seeding", a process by which aircraft drop chemicals into clouds, making the cloud heavy enough so that more water is dropped on the land than would be under normal conditions.

"But what most people don't know," says Nurnberger, "is that natural cloud formations must meet a threshold level before any cloud-seeding can take place. You can't just pick any cloud and make it rain. It must be nearly ready to drop some precipitation already.

Unlike 30 other states, there is currently no weather modification legislation in Michigan, though it has been practiced in some counties for several years without controls.

Some environmentalists are opposed to cloud-seeding, arguing that the artificial process causes an imbalance in the atmosphere which increases the risks of promoting a storm into a much more disastrous storm.

Allen's proposed legislation would establish a license and permit system for weather modification activities in Michigan and define the liabilities, remedial actions, reports and restrictions to protect the public health, safety and welfare of the environment.

Under the legislation, the decision on weather modification would be made by each county, but the Department of Agriculture would head the weather modification program on a state-wide basis.

Many lawmakers concerned about the legislation view the qualification requirements of persons wishing to practice weather modification as one of the bill's biggest assets. In general, the bill would require a combination of at least eight years of higher education in meteorology and weather service training before the Department of Agriculture issues a license to practice weather modification in Michigan.

"I'm for this bill because I don't want to see someone come in who's not reputable," says Rep. Lewis Dodak, D-Montrose. "At least we know we'll get someone to modify the weather who should know what they are doing."

Legislators are also supportive of the evaluation clause of the bill. The bill allows for the record-keeping and reporting of weather modification efforts in Michigan, but Nurnberger cautions about the effectiveness of weather modification evaluations.

Calling the evaluation for weather modification "one of the toughest things to do in weather studies," Nurnberger says it is "very difficult" to know how much of the stormy weather is caused by natural atmospheric conditions and how much is caused by artificial cloud-seeding.

Says Nurnberger: "What's needed to evaluate these projects is either a research project, which costs money, or an operational evaluation project. The problem with the operational project is that the contractors conducting the study will try to seed every cloud in the sky in order to promote themselves for more business."

Another strict control that would be placed on cloud-seeders under the proposed legislation is that a public hearing would be required in an area being considered for weather modification, allowing residents to voice their concerns about the artificial promotion of rainfall.

According to Nurnberger, one of the problems involved in cloud-seeding is economic in nature. Though all the county's residents would be paying for the cloud-seeding of their lands, Nurnberger says it is "unrealistic to think you are going to help every farmer in the county every time. Cloud-seeding is just not that accurate."

The Department of Agriculture, after reviewing the measure, strongly recommended to Gov. Milliken that the bill be passed.

... The U.S. Government Awards the Ram-Jet Supercharger Patent No. 3118435. And other patents pending

AN HONEST SUPER GAS SAVER FOR YOUR CAR

New Ram-Jet Actually "Jet Assists" Your Car Engine... Makes It Burn Up To 15 Gallons Of Air For Every Gallon Of Gas... And Gives You As Much As 15% More Clean Power! Jet Like Acceleration!

We believe Ram-Jet is the most exciting piece of high-performance automotive equipment since the V-8. Yet it weighs only a few ounces. Installs in a couple of minutes (No special tools or training needed. You won't even get your hands greasy!) Costs less than a tankful of gas. And saves you so much gas, it's like getting up to one gallon in every ten FREE!

The brainchild of Ed Almqvist, internationally famous automotive engineer and the Thomas Edison of high-performance accessories! The Ram-Jet took over 20 years to develop and perfect

How does it work?
Just as a jet engine requires a certain supply of air to operate so does the gasoline combustion engine in your car. And it's the carburetor that mixes this air with fuel to fire the cylinders and make your car go. The problem is that carburetors were invented over 50 years ago when gas was plentiful and cheap and air pollution wasn't even talked about. The carburetor hasn't changed much since then. It's still a big compromise! It only works perfectly on those rare occasions when all driving conditions are perfect. (Which averages only a couple of minutes at the most out of every driving hour!) Your carburetor just can't efficiently adjust itself to your stop and go driving, sudden bursts of speed, or to put it in technical terms, those many occasions when your engine is operating under 0-10 high-load conditions. When this crucial mixture of air and gas is not right, on the money, the result is a loss of power with a lot more gas being burned than is really necessary!

SIMPLE INSTRUCTIONS
Easy instructions show you how to install in just a few minutes. No special tools. No training needed. Fits all cars and trucks.

Now, at last, the Ram-Jet to the rescue! It solves both problems at once. It brings your 50-year-old carburetor design into the Jet Age.

1) It works like a "mini-computer" to automatically adjust the air-gas mixture to your every driving need. It thus steps up gas molecularization, reducing the over-rich mixture before it becomes wasteful. Just as a jet engine sucks air into it, the Ram-Jet automatically and safely jets air into the gas mixture the very split second your driving conditions require it.

2) It captures the polluted air that would ordinarily be fed back into your engine and re-energizes it into a "Jet Stream" that is once again ignited into useful clean power instead of clogging up your engine and making it hesitate and stall and waste gasoline and power.

Thousands of similar devices sold in Europe for more than $20 a piece. The Ram-Jet Supercharger is now available to you for just $14.95. Because of a special arrangement, it comes to you direct (no middlemen) from the inventor manufacturer himself, Mr. Ed Almqvist.

WHAT DO PEOPLE SAY ABOUT THE RAM-JET SUPERCHARGER?
An airline pilot writes: "I have a Ram-Jet. And suddenly my little six-cylinder engine seems to have the power of an eight. Yet it saves gas like it was a four. That's the Ram-Jet. It's amazing!"

Boyer needs recreation group

County Planner John Hess and the Barn Mountain Committee members are right - Boyne City needs a parks and recreation commission to supervise its growing leisure-time activities and facilities.

In addition to its present parks, Boyne City is currently developing a recreation complex at Rotary Park. Meanwhile, the city is also looking at restoring Barn Mountain to its former, rightful place as a major recreation area. And now a public beach has become a real possibility.

Editorial

Boyer City also provides a wide range of recreation activities, everything from adult basketball leagues to cross country skiing instruction, mostly under the supervision of the Board of Education's community recreation director.

But despite the expansion of this area of local government, until now Boyne City has had no specific group or person to administer it and plan its future. That job has for the most part fallen on the city manager, while the city commission makes the major policy decisions. But parks and recreation has become too big an area for the manager and commission to handle by themselves.

So the members of the Barn Mountain committee were on the right track when they asked John Hess to draw up a tentative proposal for a commission whose sole responsibility will be parks and recreation. The new commission, composed of community members with special interest in the field, will give it the special attention it needs and will be able to provide even more recreation activities for the public.

Skeptics might claim that nothing more has been accomplished than the establishment of another layer of bureaucracy. But the parks and recreation commission, if it functions properly, will provide needed coordination between other city departments, making sure, for example, that the water department doesn't install sewers where the recreation director has just planned a home plate.

Without a parks committee to coordinate plans, foul-ups like this are bound to occur as the area's recreation needs grow.

If a local government is to be responsive to its citizens, it must do its best to attract those with the most particular knowledge in various areas. That way the people who know the most about an area are the ones deciding its future. That is as it should be. Open government and effective government should mean the same thing.

As Boyne City's recreation area grows and improves, the city will need the best people available to operate them to the public's best advantage. Let's hope the new parks and recreation commission attracts those people.

Bad News about paper

A friend of mine died last week. The old goat was over 100 years old, but I was still surprised, because the deceased had many longtime friends, but in the end died from neglect by its neighbors.

My old friend was a newspaper, the Chicago Daily News, a publication that millions of Illinois residents over the years have made part of their regular evening routine, just like kicking off your work shoes and sitting down to dinner.

"I don't know what I'm going to do at night anymore," said one former Daily News reader, the mother of a noted Charlevoix County journalist. "I learned to read from that paper by having my mother read me the comics. I'd watch her eyes go over the words and then I'd figure out what each one meant."

The demise of the Daily News might not seem very important to people up here, hundreds of miles from Chicago, but the truth is that it's bad news for everyone whose reading interests extend beyond TV Guide. The Daily News was an erratic paper, but it always employed a stable of talented writers, many of whom, such as the poet Carl Sandburg, went on to make major contributions to American literature.

The Daily News died for the same reason any paper dies - the people of its community didn't advertise in it enough. Its millionaire publisher, Marshall Field, kept the paper afloat for years in a sea of red ink, but in the end he had a responsibility to his company stockholders to eliminate such a financial drain.

The Daily News in recent years was a thin, incomplete newspaper because there weren't enough ads to support more news. Few people realize it, but that's the way all newspapers work - the number of ads determines how many pages the reporting staff will have to produce the news.

There are some weeks when the Charlevoix County Press is smaller than we'd like it because of lack of advertising. Those are the weeks when I spend much of Wednesday and Thursday involved in conversations that begin with, "Why didn't so-and-so get into the paper?"

I try to explain that the ads dictate the amount of room available for news. Some people understand it better than others. It's frustrating to me, too, not to be able to print all the news that comes out of the lively communities we serve.

But the Press is a business which must support itself, and sometimes we have to make hard decisions. Extra pages for news means higher expenses, expenses that have to be paid from advertising revenue.

Like the Daily News, we're part of a community, one in which people seem to take a great interest in their newspaper. That's great. Love us, complain about us, but don't ignore us. That's a goal of every newspaper. Your continued readership and financial support will help us produce the kind of newspaper this community deserves.

Life is just too cruel

Poor Christina Ford. Her husband, Henry Ford II, from whom she is separated, auctioned off all the 18th century French furniture, Sevres porcelain and a collection of antique gold boxes from her very favorite drawing room.

She tried to stop the auction, but lost the battle in court. Now dear husband Henry is $2 million more liquid, and she is distraught.

Hazel Blair

Christina claims she has had to take Librium to get through this emotionally trying time. She says she is too proud to show the drawing room bare and now only has 75 rooms in the Grosse Pointe Farms mansion that can be shown.

I'm sure that any of us could become emotionally attached to a $31,000 Louis XV commode or a Swiss enamel and gold music box which sold for $100,000, and I can certainly understand her reaction to the loss of her drawing room.

I don't own any French antiques or little Italian snuff boxes, but there isn't a piece of my Early Cast-off or Neo-Classical Yard Sale furniture that I could part with. How many people are the proud owners of a genuine, one-of-a-kind, handmade, packing crate bookcase? If value can be set by the availability of an object, my bookcase is priceless.

Then there is the handcarved shelf that holds everything from a miniature pewter frog to an old Scottish tobacco poster. The shelf had been thrown out by someone and found by me. A veritable treasure.

My favorite piece is my great-great aunt's rocking chair. It has a terrific squeak to it that has soothed children to sleep for many years. There is nothing particularly unusual about it, but no amount of money would make me part with it.

My drawing room, better known as the living room or even, at times, the disaster area, is filled with a grand array of virtually worthless objects. But each one has its own special memory attached to it and its own peculiar charm.

So Christina, hang in there. Even the peasants share your problems. The only difference is, if one room is suddenly emptied I would only have four left to show and one is the bathroom.

New liquor law unfair

Editor,

Raising the drinking age to 19 is a discriminatory act! Although I am not affected by this, I feel that someone has to speak up.

We always hear stuff about discrimination against blacks, women, and other racial and ethnic minorities. Well, what about 18-year-olds?

In the first place, living in a small town such as East Jordan, is a disadvantage jobwise. There's not much an 18-year-old girl can do besides work in a bar, or work in a liquor selling store. This act they passed, will definitely affect the income of many people all over Michigan.

Secondly, how can they give someone the responsibility of voting and not drinking? They can elect a President of the United States, but aren't experienced enough to decide their limits on drinking?

They can be drafted to fight the rotten, stinking wars, and die for our country at the baby-age of eighteen, but they can't drink.

This is discrimination, out-right, no two ways about it.

When will it all stop. If we don't act now, NEVER!

Pop culture and music: changing dreams

BY NAT HENTOFF

When a member of the Chinese delegation to the United Nations asked an American friend not long ago if all American popular music sounded the same - as he supposed from listening to the radio - the friend arranged for the Chinese official to hear an evening of jazz.

This is the seventh of 15 articles exploring "Popular Culture: Mirror of American Life." Here, Nat Hentoff of "The New Yorker" Magazine and "The Village Voice" begins a two-part analysis of popular music with a discussion of how it reflects our changing dreams.

He listened with great absorption and then said, "I believe I understand. This is American folk music. It has your own kind of spirit. Are there other original American musical sounds and forms?"

Many, he was told, and in a wide variety of popular as well as folk music.

The man from the Chinese delegation has since been looking into this unexpected news about America.

Among the performers I have suggested he hear to broaden his sense of our diversity is James Talley. Not a jazzman, but rather a 33-year-old, Oklahoma-born, popular singer-composer who is a favorite of Jimmy and Rosalyn Carter and millions more Americans.

Talley's music - a blend of country and blues from the South and Southwest - celebrates working people, from truckers to "black lung" miners, telling of the plain, everyday valor that enables them to survive. Just as jazz began by telling of everyday black valor. And like black music, James Talley has deep American roots.

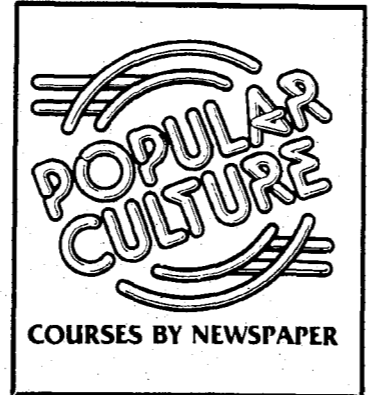

He comes from a long tradition in American popular music - going back to Woody Guthrie and Jimmie Rodgers ("The Singing Brakeman"), and beyond them, to the music-makers of the American frontier who sang of independence and of the hard work, with some whiskey on the side, that might make their dreams take palpable shape.

DREAMS

Dreams power all forms and idioms of popular music. Different dreams nourished by people of profoundly different backgrounds. In what came to be called country and western music, the early dream was of unending spaciousness, always somewhere unspoiled to travel.

And Americans now, so many of them still on the move or at least fantasizing a move to a last big strike, are still attracted to traveling music and the dauntless loners who create it. Kris Kristofferson, for instance, and Bob Dylan, Johnny Cash, more Americans.

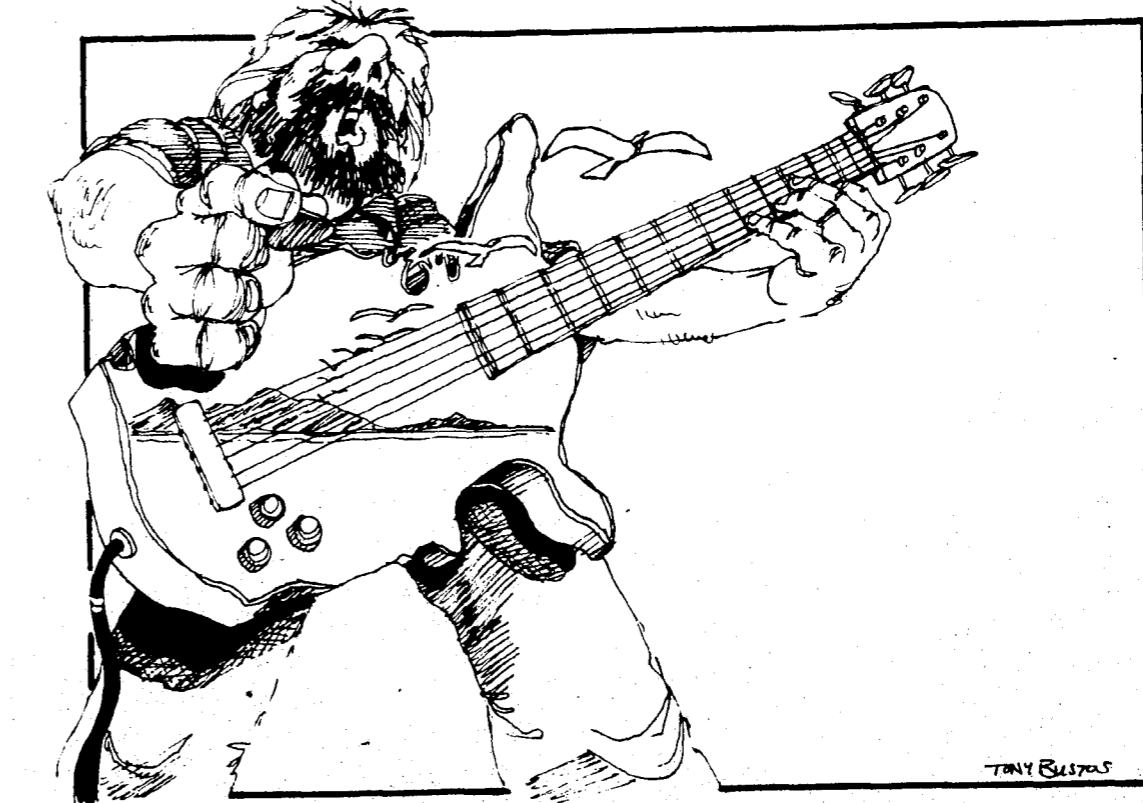

Charlie Rich.

These present-day songsters are seen as perhaps the last of the frontiersmen, needing no college degrees or professional licenses to reap large rewards as they roam the land, riding their guitars.

In an age of corporate envelopment, they keep alive the dream of the self-made American who success comes not from "selling out" but just from being himself.

And there are other kinds of dreams. Black music, for instance, was eventually to color all popular sounds, even white country. In the "cry" of Charlie Rich's voice are echoes of the black work and religious songs he heard as a white boy in a small Arkansas farming town. But the foundations of black music are obviously built on centuries-long experiences largely unknown to other Americans. So viscerally unknown still that the televising of Alex Haley's "Roots" was a shock to millions of his fellow white citizens.

From the beginning of slavery here, black music was nothing less than a way of psychic survival. Field hollers were used to send messages; religious songs both shared the spirit and, in code, prophesied freedom. And the blues, as novelist Ralph Ellison has pointed out, were "one of the techniques through which Negroes have survived and kept their courage."

The blues were not only about hard, shattering times but were also ironic, defiant, proud. There was triumph in the blues, with heroes who had gone so far down they had nowhere to go but up. And up they came.

THE BLUES

It is no wonder that the blues have never lost their strength, having been tested so much. And so the textures of the blues continue to pervade the "soul" music that now reaches huge numbers of white as well as black listeners.

More showy than classic blues, rhythmically driving, and mixed with gospel, "soul music" distills the black urban experience while also projecting young dreams of love and power. From Aretha Franklin to Stevie Wonder, both soul "superstars," black music still propels a directness of emotional force that no other American musical language has yet equaled.

performances were once limited to black communities, except for a few white aficionados, since the 1950s the blues and other black music have "crossed over" to all other popular audiences. Accordingly, the Top 40 lists are not only thoroughly integrated but also contain records by white singers and musicians who are heavily influenced by black sounds.

In fact, there is not a single white rock band unaffected by the blues.

Rock music began in the early 1950s as white version of what was then called black "rhythm and blues." As white and black strains merged more completely than ever before in American popular music, ecumenicism became the rule.

In the 1960s, rock - mirroring the "counterculture's" impatience with restrictions and categories - fused country cadences, jazz, blues, and various styles of pop music, from ballads to simple "good time" songs. Significantly, the most widely influential figure in the history of American rock, Elvis Presley, was himself stylistically an amalgam of what used to be heard as opposites - white country music and what he called "the real lowdown" black Mississippi blues singers.

EGALITARIAN ROCK

One of the key reasons so many of the young have been drawn to rock has been its seemingly egalitarian nature. That is, in previous generations, it was generally felt that the making of popular music was limited to such highly skilled and sophisticated specialists as George Gershwin and Cole Porter. Even the singers, from Bing Crosby to Frank Sinatra, with their difficult big-band experience and coolly urbane manner, appeared to belong to a distant aristocracy.

Rock, on the other hand, has given status to thousands of singers and instrumentalists who look and act very much like their fans: who write their own songs; and who, in many cases, have skills not too far removed from those of a dedicated amateur.

Reviewing such a rock combo, "Big Brother and the Holding Company" - the group that featured white blues singer Janis Joplin - a counterculture critic wrote in the 1960s, "It's probably the secret dream of every kid everywhere to just do things they dig doing and be rewarded for it. America - as only America, the land where dreams come true, could - is making that dream come true for Big Brother."

And so, from the 1960s to the present, more of the young have been enthusiastically immersed in popular music than at any other period of our history. It is, after all, their music.

Unlike the popular songs of earlier decades and centuries, rock is not primarily directed at grown-ups. It's about freedom from grown-ups; freedom to leap right into the middle of experience, without having to lay back for fear of what some parent or teacher may think.

Elvis Presley did indeed succeed Porter and Gershwin. And in turn, he was at least partially dislodged by a more outspoken rebel, Bob Dylan, who, in the 1960s, spoke for and to a whole generation of listeners who were, like him, anti-war and anti-all-establishments.

In the 1970s, and beyond, more lone stars in their early 20s will inevitably continue to speak to the dreams and nightmares of each new generation. There still remains, however, ample popular music for new and even for older adults. They still listen to the musical survivors of the 1950s and 1960s; and as James Talley says, they listen to remember the values of their quicksilver youth, as contrasted, if there is a contrast, with their values now.

Popular music always speaks, among other things, of dreams - which change with the times.

Tannery condo project proposed

BY JOE McELROY
BOYNE CITY - Plans for a 250-unit condominium development on the Tannery property, including a public beach and park, were revealed at Tuesday night's Boyne City Commission meeting. No formal action was taken, but commission members indicated their approval of the project, which would be built on approximately 59 acres of vacant land on Lake Charlevoix between Second and Division Streets, including land on both sides of Front Street. The prospective developers, Rick and Dave Smith and Jon Gerster, all of Boyne City, said they have an option to buy the property from the present owners, Harold Garber and Joseph Steward of Detroit. The three men, forming a partnership known as Lake Associates, say they need to have Boyne City close Front Street in order to make development possible. Otherwise, they feel, the strips of land on both sides of Front would be too narrow for an attractive development. If the city commission agrees to close Front, Lake Associates will proceed with the project, which would include a public beach, a park, a 50 to 75 slip marina and a 150-seat restaurant. Approximately 250 condominiums would constitute a cluster-type development of five stories or less, according to the developers. According to an impact analysis prepared by Bill Mercer, former county planner who now works for John Buick Real Estate, a participating broker, the condos would house approximately 885 new residents, most of whom would be seasonal.

According to Mercer's analysis, the project would generate approximately $350-$400,000 additional annual property taxes. The prospective developers said the marina and restaurant would be built first, but said construction won't begin until at least the spring of 1979. Zoning variances are needed, since the property is currently zoned commercial, and Department of Natural Resources and Army Corps of Engineers permits must be obtained before construction can begin. Gerster and the Smiths would not say how much the project would cost, but Gerster said they anticipate $14-$18 million in sales revenue when all the units are sold. Dave Smith told the commission his group is interested in the property because they are local residents. "We think Boyne City enjoys one of the nicest locations in the mid-west," he said. "We're in the heart of a summer recreation area and near the winter ski areas." The Smiths helped develop Wildwood On Walloon, a condominium at Walloon

Lake. "We will have to live with this," Rick Smith said. "We don't do it and then skip town. Accountability is the key thing. This is where we live." Mayor Keith Fitzpatrick expressed his approval of the project because, "Not only will this give us a good tax base but it will also give us a bathing beach." Dave Smith told the commission that his group would like to schedule a series of information work shops with the community, so local residents could find out more about the proposed project.

Boyne City News

Workers strip off some of the ornamentation from the Dilworth. The new owners want to restore the old hotel to the atmosphere it featured years ago. (Press photo by Neal Colburn).

Dilworth returned to prominence

BOYNE CITY - Rick Vogel and his colleagues at the recently re-opened Dilworth aren't complaining, but they found a few unexpected problems when they began work on the 67-year-old hotel in January. Vogel and his family got a quick introduction to northern Michigan winter weather. "We came up January 7 in the middle of a snowstorm," he said. "Then my wife put the car into a ditch near Grayling." Nobody was hurt and work began in earnest, with Vogel and assistant manager Joe Gough working "12 hour days minimum, lots of 18's and a few 24's." Their first major task was cleaning out the debris that had gathered over the years. They filled nine dumptrucks with garbage. "There was so much stuff," Vogel said. "The big joke every time we went into a different room was that maybe we'd find Jimmy Hoffa." The missing former labor leader never turned up, but they did find another unpleasant surprise. Over the years beer had seeped through the coolers in the bar "and just rotted away the floor," Vogel says. So a new sub-floor had to be installed, a project that forced back their planned opening day from early February to March 1. The grand opening is March 16.

Much of the metal work in the building is solid brass, but had been neglected or in some cases painted over. "The brass in this building hadn't been polished in years," Vogel said. "It was just black. It just took hours to clean. You can't get real brass like that anymore." Another rare item in modern buildings is doors and other woodwork done in solid oak. "This hotel was built when Boyne City was a big shipping and lumber center," Vogel said, "so they were able to get oak. Today it would just cost too much." To preserve the wood, Dilworth employees used 14 gallons of varnish, including eight coats on the front desk. They also doubled the length of the bar. The new owners have tried to restore the hotel rather than re-design it. "We came in here not to re-build, but to restore it to what it was years ago," Vogel said. The ornamentation added to the outside of the building in past years is being removed. Latimer Spinney, the new owner, is one of the many skiers who stayed at the Dilworth during its heyday as a meeting place for vacationing skiers. Local businessmen are hopeful that the Dilworth's reopening will attract customers to other stores in the area. The hotel itself will employ 25 people, and Northwestern State Bank Vice President Bob Prebble said, "It should help the economy all around, not just the Dilworth." "Any time the business community grows, it's going to attract more people to the area who will also spend money in other places." "It will have a very favorable effect," said realtor John Buick. "It will offer employment and bring more people to town. It will definitely help out the other businesses." Chamber of Commerce President Jim White, owner of Ace Hardware, said he thinks the Dilworth will even help the other restaurants and bars in town. "There's about 4,000 people skiing at Boyne Mountain some Saturdays and they have to go somewhere at night," White said. "When you have that many people, you need more drawing cards to attract them to town. "The Dilworth will be a good drawing card. People will be more likely to come to Boyne City if they know they have more choices here." White mentioned that many people who buy the apartments being designed in the Dilworth's former hotel rooms will probably loan them or rent them out. He said this will bring more people into town who will shop at local stores.

Bank plans expansion

BOYNE CITY - Northwestern State Bank proposes to expand its Boyne City branch office, adding a walk-up window, additional drive-up lanes and a 24-hour automated teller service, bank officials announced this week. The bank currently has two drive-up windows but no walk-up service. The proposed plans call for enlargement of the present building at 101 River Street and construction of an additional building. The new building will hold the walk-up window, the automated teller and four more drive-through lanes. Senior Vice President Robert Prebble said the bank will make a formal announcement of its plans after receiving approval from the FDIC, the bank's federal regulatory agency.

Asked when construction might begin, Prebble laughed. "How fast does the government work?" Announcement of the proposed bank expansion came in a report in the bank's Annual Meeting. In a prepared release, the bank said deposits increased 21 percent during 1977 while loans increased by 23 percent. Earnings of $12.44 per share were reported, highest in the bank's history. The stockholders approved a two for one split, the bank's first stock split since 1974. Robert Prebble was elected to the Board of Directors. Other directors for 1978 are W. G. Boswell, Howard Darbee, Kenneth Diller, Richard Fish, William Grauel, Conrad Klooster, W. E. Malpass and W. A. Porter.

Board may buy library

BOYNE CITY - The Board of Education might stock the library in the new elementary school in one quick move with the purchase of an entire 5,461 volume library from the Livonia School District. The Livonia schools have recently experienced severe enrollment declines and are closing entire schools, according to Boyne City School Superintendent Rich Kelly. So the district has offered an elementary library for approximately $2.95 per book. Boyne library officials estimated this as a savings of between $2 and $3 over the cost of purchasing new books. Kelly said Livonia is seeking $15,000 for the library, but might accept a lower bid. The Board of Education authorized Kelly to spend up to $12,000 to buy the library. The school district needs new library books because it will have three libraries instead of the present two when the new elementary school is finished. The middle school, which currently shares a library with the high school, will be moving into the present elementary school. Some of the books purchased might go into the middle school library, which will take 2,000 books from the high school and buy another 200. The high school library has 6,000 volumes and the present elementary has 2,500.

Big turnout for Chamber dinner

Over 120 people attended this year's Boyne Area Chamber of Commerce Annual Dinner Dance. The event was held at the Granary restaurant, and those in attendance were entertained by Sh-Boom, a trio featuring the songs and music of early rock and roll.

Mr. Gray of Gray's Grocery received an award in recognition of his many years of service to Boyne City, and Jim White received an award for his work as chamber president for the last two years.

The election of three new chamber directors and officers was announced.

They are Gary Schafer, Gary Mellon, and Bill Avery. The new officers include Ron Erkfitz, President; Mike Weeks, Vice President; Howard Raney, Treasurer; and Mac McNichol, Secretary.

During the meeting it was noted that the chamber was experiencing a healthy growth rate. The number of investors increased from 49 to 85 this year, and the large attendance at the dinner was seen as a sign of optimism. One member mentioned, "This is the best Chamber dinner I've seen in five years."

Arrangements for the winter picnic are made in East Jordan each August, when officers are elected and details worked out. High cost of using the Elm Point facilities at East Jordan has resulted in a vote to move the summer meeting to the East Jordan Snowmobile Clubhouse.

Rambler netters finish, losing just one starter

BY GRACE MOOSE
Student Reporter

BOYNE CITY - Volleyball season is over for the Boyme City High School Volleyball team. The Ramblers played 11 seasonal games and were knocked out in the first game of the state tournaments by top-ranked Rogers City.

"The team finished in fifth place in the conference, which isn't too bad. As a team they did a real nice job. We had lost a lot of last year's senior players," said Coach Joyce Baker.

The team will be losing six seniors next year. Coach Baker says, "They won't hurt us really, because it was the first year for most of the seniors."

"The team will only be losing one regular, Jodel Aimesbury," stated Baker. Connie Garlock, Michele Houser and Jodel were the only three returning seniors from last year's team.

"Michele Houser did a good job for us, and for her first year Kathy Mittig, a senior, did a good job," commented Baker.

Baker singled out juniors Ginny Scott and Sara Bricker, saying, "They both played very well."

It was the first year for Sophomores Kathy Furton and Jeanne Place. "They both played very well," Baker said.

Becky Aimesbury was the only freshman on the varsity team this year. She started and was a regular.

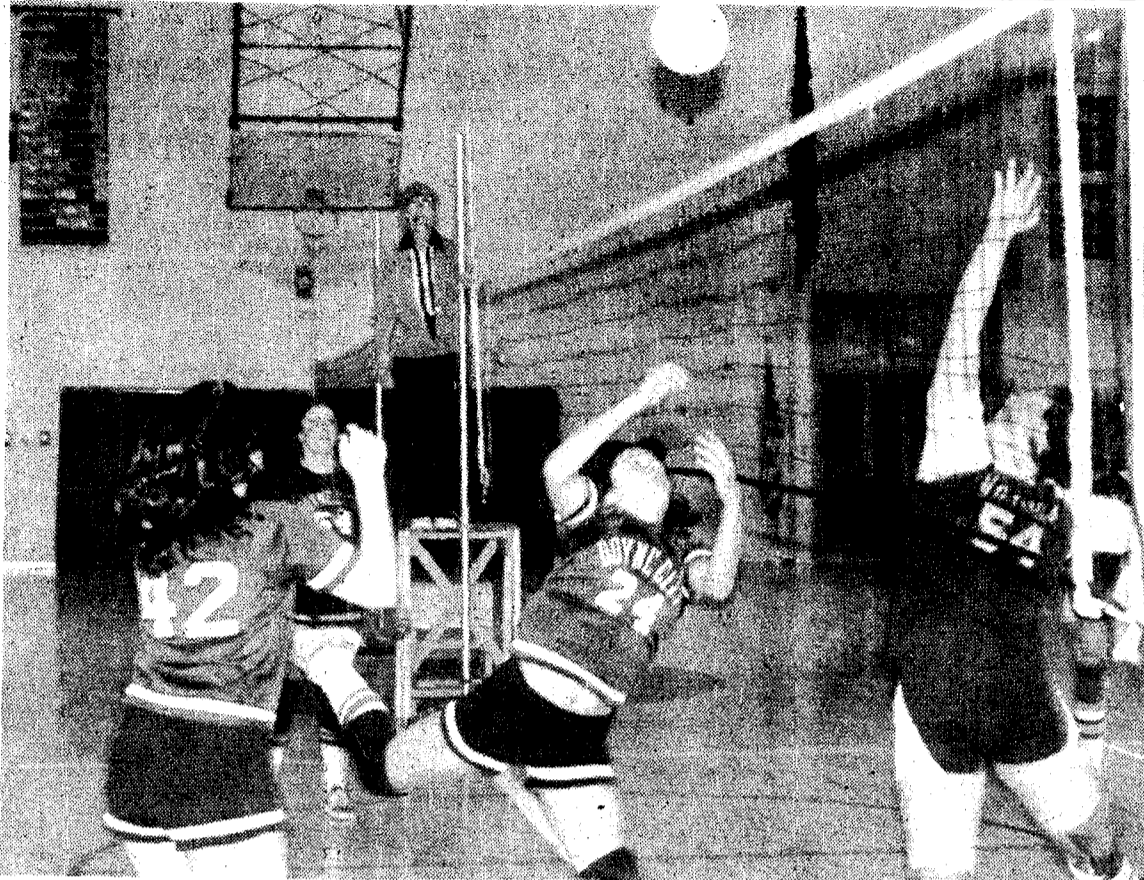

Baker said, "The junior varsity season wasn't too good." Their conference record was 2-5.

Team manager Mary West says, "There are some freshmen who could be quite good if they keep it up."

West acknowledged Becky Aimesbury and Sara Bricker stating, "They showed up for every practice and they were always good workers."

Although the team usually had a sparse audience, West complimented a couple of mothers on their faithfulness. "Mrs. Furton and Mrs. Bricker were our best supporters. They showed up for almost every game and cheered us on all the time."

Other members of the team were: Kim Herrmann, Sue Lillis, Linda Hamlin, Joy Pettis, Konna Kleinschrodt, Tracy Mania, Mary Jo McGeorge, and Cindi Scott.

Good year for EJ skiers

If you are excitable, energetic and a little bit crazy, you must be a member of the East Jordan Ski Team, says Coach Shelly Thayer. You may have seen them dressed in their blue and yellow jackets, "streaking" down the slopes of the local ski areas this season.

It is their second year in the sport and they have managed to not only hold their own, but to place with top standings in their meets.

Two members of the team, David Shoemaker and Brenda Rullman, placed in the top six positions in all but one meet. Shoemaker also took a medal in the regionals by coping a ninth place out of 90 competitors.

Backing the two members are a host of enthusiasts, Jamie Burrows, Kathy Nessel, Melissa Hite, Lynne Hawkins, Nora Barrow, Theresa Bartlett and Julie Testa.

Tight competition is the word for the boys' team, comprised of Bob Burrows, Tommy Zoulek, Scott Spence, Dennis Nessel, Roger Cyr, Todd Crawford, John Bennett, Bill Ulvund and Mark Bauer.

Shelley Thayer, last year's coach and this year's assistant, said, "Skiing is a new sport in East Jordan and the students are not only excited about the competition but the flair and allure that follows the skiing scene."

"They were fortunate this year in receiving excellent training from Shanty Creek Ski Instructor Bill Hinkley. Bill gave the kids the training and background that was so essential for our inexperienced team, a tremendous boost in their confidence."

When asked about next year's goals, Coach Thayer stated that her two objectives would be for more experience and consistency.

The regional was the last race for the season. Sixteen teams were involved in the competition held at Thunder Mountain. East Jordan finished 11th.
